

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at `http://books.google.com/`

THE

NEW TESTAMENT

OF OUR LORD AND SAVIOUR

JESUS CHRIST,

IN THE ORIGINAL GREEK:

WITH NOTES,

BY

CHR. WORDSWORTH, D.D.

CANON OF WESTMINSTER.

PART I.—THE FOUR GOSPELS.

LONDON:

RIVINGTONS, WATERLOO PLACE.

1856.

~~101. b. 210~~ 101. d. 719

LONDON:
GILBERT AND RIVINGTON, PRINTERS, ST. JOHN'S SQUARE.

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
PREFACE	v
EUSEBIAN CANONS	xxvii
ON ANCIENT GREEK MSS. OF THE NEW TESTAMENT	xxxvi
ON ANCIENT VERSIONS	xxxviii
ON CRITICAL EDITIONS	xxxix
AUTHORS AND EDITIONS QUOTED	xl
INTRODUCTORY NOTE TO THE GOSPELS	xlii
THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO ST. MATTHEW	1
THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO ST. MARK	93
THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO ST. LUKE	130
THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO ST. JOHN	205

PREFACE.

THE present Edition of the Greek Testament is the result of a design formed many years ago, and suggested by the following considerations:—

The history of the Criticism and Interpretation of the Sacred Text of the Evangelical Scriptures during the present century is distinguished by certain remarkable characteristics.

By the blessing of Divine Providence singular benefits have been bestowed upon the present generation, for the elucidation of the inspired Volume.

The Manuscripts of the New Testament have been collated with greater labour and accuracy than formerly; the various readings thence derived have been recorded with more minute exactness and precision; and if all has not yet been achieved in this respect that may be requisite—and doubtless much still remains to be done—yet new aids and instruments have thus been supplied to the biblical student, which were not accessible in former times. Transcripts, some of them in facsimile, of the most ancient Manuscripts have been published; early Versions have been recovered and printed. The researches of Travellers, Historians, and Chronologers, have shed new light on the sacred page. Indeed it must be confessed, with thankfulness to the Divine Author of Scripture, that the present age enjoys, in certain respects, greater privileges for the due understanding of Holy Writ than were ever conferred by Almighty God on any preceding generation since the revival of Letters.

On the other hand, some features of a different kind present themselves to our notice.

In one remarkable respect the history of the Criticism and Interpretation of the New Testament in our own times bears a striking resemblance to that of the Old Testament among the Jews.

What could be more praiseworthy than the diligence of the Masoretic Critics in collating the Manuscripts and revising the Text of the Old Testament? With unwearied patience and scrupulous fidelity they registered every letter, and the frequency of its occurrence, in the pages of the ancient Scriptures.

Yet, it is well known, with all their indefatigable labours for the guardianship of the letter of the Sacred Volume, they were not able to preserve its spirit. Side by side with the fruits of the minute diligence of the Masora, grew up, like weeds in a fair garden, the aberrations of the Cabbala.

We may recognize a parallel here, in the history of the New Testament, in Christian times and in our own day.

It cannot be denied that Christendom is indebted to one Nation of Europe more than to any other, for critical contributions to the sacred Text of the New Testament.

Without undervaluing the labours of Biblical Critics in other countries; without disparaging what has been done in America; without forgetting what has been effected in our own country, particularly by the publication of the Alexandrine Manuscript and the Codex Bezæ, and by the learned labours of English Scholars who have published Critical Editions of the Greek Testament; we must freely confess that the palm for industry in this sacred field is specially due to another nation. The Masorites of the New Testament are from Germany.

But having made this acknowledgment, we are constrained to add, that if Christendom has had her Masora from Germany, she has had also her Cabbala.

The fact is too clear to admit a doubt. It is recognized and deplored by some of the most pious minds in that country[1]. Contemporaneously with great benefits contributed to the elucidation of the sacred text by collation of Manuscripts, by discovery or re-examination of ancient Versions, by rich stores of illustration from History, Chronology, and Topography, we have to lament, with feelings of disappointment and with forebodings of alarm, that the cause of Biblical Criticism, as a high and holy Science, qualifying men for the discharge of the duties of life, and for the enjoyment of the bliss of eternity, has not made progress,—but has greatly degenerated, and appears to be tending still further downwards in a more unhappy declension.

[1] e. g. Tholuck, die Glaubwürdigkeit der Evangelischen Geschichte, pp. 8—13. A graphic picture of the ever-varying and fantastic forms of modern exegesis has been drawn by a recent writer, Arnoldi, in his remarks on the Commentaries upon the Gospel-narrative of the Miraculous Feeding, Matt. xiv. 21, as follows. "Ein Eingehen auf die wunderlichen Wegdeutungen des Wunders, wie sie in der protestantischen Exegese gäng und gäbe sind, halte ich für überflüssig. Der Evangelist gibt das Factum, wie die ganze Haltung der Erzählung zeigt, für ein Wunder aus. Leugnet man dessen Inspiration und lässt man ihn fallen, so ist nicht abzusehen, wo das Ende der möglichen Hypothesen ist. Ehe die letzte widerlegt ist, haben zehn neue das Tageslicht erblickt, und wer sie widerlegen will, hat mit einem phantastischen Heerhaufen zu thun, der nirgends Stand hält. Darum gehen wir in der Regel auf dergleichen nur da aus, wo irgend ein besonderes Interesse an der Sache ist. Für unsere Stelle wird es genügen, mitzutheilen, was De Wette über dieselbe sagt; 'Als Geschichte, im Sinne des Referenten' (er meint den Evangelisten) 'genommen, widerstrebt das Wunder selbst derjenigen Ansicht von Jesu Person, welche höhere Kräfte in ihm voraussetzt' (womit uns also gestaltet wird, dieselben auch nicht vorauszusetzen, und doch evangelische Christen zu sein!), 'weil h. eine schöpferisch vermehrende Wirkung auf todte Stoffe, ja auf Kunstproducte (Brod) angenommen werden müsste' (was dem Herrn natürlich zu viel zugetraut wäre!), 'und weil man die Vermehrung der Speisestücke, sei sie unter den Händen Jesu oder der Jünger geschehen, sich gar nicht zur Anschauung bringen kann' (dieselbe daher auch nicht stattgefunden hat, q. e. d.)." See also Kahnis, Internal History of German Protestantism, p. 174, Edinb. 1856.

In evidence of this fact, let any one read with attention, by way of specimen, the critical comments, which have been recently published in that country, on one of the most solemn, beautiful, and affecting histories,—such as, it might have been supposed, would have disarmed all cavil in Christian readers, and have melted doubt into adoration,—the evangelical narrative by St. John of that stupendous miracle of Christ, the prelude of the transactions of the Great Day,—the raising of Lazarus from the dead.

These various criticisms on that narrative are inserted in the present volume by way of example and warning[1]; and they clearly demonstrate the fact, that there is scarcely any error, however puerile or preposterous, which may not find its advocates among persons enjoying high literary and scientific advantages for the interpretation of the New Testament, and be gravely propounded by them with an air of superior intelligence, as a true exposition, to be received by the world in the place of ancient interpretations of Holy Writ.

We have also to deplore, that the field of sacred Hermeneutics has lately too often been made an arena of fierce fightings and uncharitable disputations. It seems to be no longer the province of Editors of the New Testament to hand down the sacred deposit of ancient, uniform interpretation, illustrated by clearer light, and confirmed by the solid support of a sound and sober criticism. Rather it would appear, that their function now must be, to bite and devour one another. In those recent expositions, to which we refer, there is no unity of teaching. One Expositor combats another; one Edition would supersede another, by outbidding it with novelties and paradoxes. The Text of Scripture has been made an occasion of personal disparagements and disdainful sarcasms. It seems to have been thrown among its interpreters as an apple of discord; Zion is changed into Babel, and the City of Peace is distracted with the strife of tongues.

Can there be any real progress, can there be any maintenance of truth, when they who profess to expound it are not animated by a spirit of charity, and have no consistency of exposition[2]?

[1] See below, pp. 250, 251.

[2] We much need the counsel of St. Augustine, for right exposition of Scripture, who says (De Doctr. Christ. iii. 1), "Homo timens Deum, voluntatem ejus in Scripturis sanctis diligenter inquirit. Et ne amet certamina pietate mansuetus; præmunitus etiam scientiâ linguarum, ne in verbis locutionibusque ignotis hæreat; præmunitus etiam cognitione quarundam rerum necessariarum, ne vim naturamve earum quæ propter similitudinem adhibentur, ignoret; adjuvante etiam Codicum veritate, quam solers emendationis diligentia procuravit; veniat ita instructus ad ambigua Scripturarum discutienda atque solvenda."

Ibid. ii. 62:—"Sed hoc modo instructus divinarum Scripturarum studiosus, cùm ad eas perscrutandas accedere cœperit, illud apostolicum cogitare non cesset, Scientia inflat, charitas ædificat (1 Cor. viii. 1). Ita enim sentiet, quamvis de Ægypto dives exeat, tamen nisi Pascha egerit, salvum se esse non posse. Pascha autem nostrum immolatus est Christus (1 Cor. v. 7), nihilque magis immolatio Christi nos docet, quàm illud quod Ipse clamat, tanquam ad eos quos in Ægypto sub Pharaone videt laborare, Venite ad me qui laboratis et onerati estis, et ego reficiam vos. Tollite jugum meum super vos, et discite à me, quia mitis sum et humilis corde, et invenietis

These evils are not confined to the range of exposition; they menace Scripture itself. There is scarcely any portion of the New Testament whose Inspiration, Genuineness, and Veracity, has not been impugned by some one or more of these Biblical Critics. Some would expunge this portion of the sacred canon, some would cancel that, till at last, if they are to be indulged in their arbitrary caprices, Christendom would hardly be permitted to possess a fragment of the documents of Christianity.

We may observe a gradual decline in the Science of Sacred Interpretation ever since the middle of the last century. We find its origin in a sceptical unbelief of what is mysterious and supernatural, and in a cold and heartless attempt to account for the miraculous phenomena of the New Testament by natural causes. And when Rationalism had done its work, and had revolted the minds of reasonable men by its own irrational hypotheses, then the Evil Spirit, who is ever on the alert to assail the foundations of Holy Writ, changed his mode of attack, and drew off his forces in a different direction; and having formerly endeavoured to subvert men's faith by rationalizing what is spiritual in Scripture, would next endeavour to destroy them by spiritualizing what is rational, and by dissolving the facts of sacred History in a haze and mist of Mythology.

This mode of warfare has effected its purpose. It has numbered its victims by thousands. And now we are threatened and attacked by a form of evil still more subtle and dangerous. It is more subtle and dangerous, because it professes a love for the Gospel and a zeal for Christianity; it presents itself as an Angel of Light; it pretends to abhor Rationalism, and to detest the mythical theories which have sapped the foundations of Scripture. It speaks fair words of Christ; and yet it loves to invent discrepancies, and imagine contradictions, in the narratives which His Apostles and Evangelists have delivered of His Birth, His Temptation, His Miracles, His Agony, His Sufferings, His Resurrection and Ascension. It accepts the doctrines of the Gospel, and yet arraigns its documents; it professes reverence for Christianity, and contravenes the Inspiration and Veracity of the records on which Christianity rests.

Thus, in fact, it has come to pass, that a great part of the rising generation of Christendom is now reduced to a condition little better than that of the Prodigal Son in the Gospel; it longs for the food of the soul; it yearns for sound and wholesome expositions of Holy Scripture; it hungers for the bread of its heavenly Father's House; but it is too often constrained to satisfy the cravings of its appetite with husks.

These results inspire serious apprehensions for the future.

In politics, the abuse of liberty entails its forfeiture. Licentiousness engenders despotism. And so, in spiritual things, the abuse of Scripture has strengthened the cause of those who would forbid its use. Rationalism has been the best ally of requiem animabus vestris. Jugum enim meum lene est, et sarcina mea levis est (Matt. xi. 28—30): quibus, nisi mitibus et humilibus corde, quos non inflat scientia, sed charitas ædificat?"

Rome. And now Christendom lies almost a captive at the feet of two of her worst enemies, whose end is one and the same, although the means by which they would attain it are different. They who treat Scripture as a common book; they who deny Scripture to be true; they who pervert its sense, and supplant that sense by a meaning of their own, virtually destroy Scripture, and make common cause with those who would withhold Scripture from the people. They imitate the great City, the mystical Babylon, which kills the two Witnesses, namely, the Two Testaments, and casts their dead bodies in the street[1]:

"Hinc movet Euphrates, illinc Germania bellum."

Hence we now see, that, even in an age when Bibles are most plentiful, we are in danger of losing the Bible as the Bible; that is, as a Divine, and not a human composition;—as the Rule of Faith and Practice,—as the inspired Word of God, by which we shall be judged at the Great Day.

What are the sources of these evils, and whence may the remedy be derived?

If the New Testament is the work of the Holy Ghost, the causes are not hard to find. If Scripture is to be believed, we are sure, upon its authority, that no one can rightly interpret Scripture without the aid of the Holy Spirit, by Whom it was written. The Holy Spirit is a Spirit of gentleness, concord, and love. He will not dwell amid the strife of tongues. He will not reveal Himself to those who do not approach His own Book in a reverent and loving spirit. "Mysteries are revealed to the meek[2]." "The secret of the Lord is among them that fear Him, and He will show them His covenant[3]." "Them that are meek shall He guide in judgment; and such as are gentle, them shall He learn His way[4]." But "He resisteth the proud[5]." He hides His mysteries from "the wise and prudent[6]," that is, from those who esteem themselves such, and "lean on their own understandings[7]." "Quærenti derisori Scientia se abscondit[8]." "He turneth wise men backward, and maketh diviners mad[9]." If men will not receive Him as little children, then a just retribution awaits them. If they will not be children in simplicity, they will be made children in ignorance; they will fall into childish errors, and become babes in knowledge; "professing themselves wise, they will become fools[10]," and their folly will be manifest unto all men[11], through their arrogance in parading it before the world, and in vaunting of it as if it were wisdom[12].

[1] Rev. xi. 7, 8. [2] Ecclus. iii. 19. [3] Ps. xxv. 13.
[4] Ps. xxv. 9. [5] James iv. 6. 1 Pet. v. 5. [6] Matt. xi. 25.
[7] Prov. iii. 5. [8] Lord Bacon. [9] Isa. xliv. 25.
[10] Rom. i. 22. [11] 2 Tim. iii. 9.

[12] The words of St. Augustine concerning himself are very instructive to an Expositor of Scripture:—"Cùm primo puer ad divinas Scripturas antè vellem afferre acumen discutiendi quàm pietatem quærendi, ego ipse contra me perversis moribus claudebam januam Domini mei. Cùm pulsare deberem ut aperiretur, addebam ut clauderetur. Superbus enim audebam quærere quod nisi humilis non potest invenire." (Aug. Sermon li. 6.)

On the necessity of holiness of life to a right understanding of Scripture, see Athanas. pp. 77. 361, and Gregor. Nazian. Orat. xx. p. 383, βούλει θεολόγος γενέσθαι; τὰς ἐντολὰς φύλασσε· πρᾶξις ἐπίβασις θεωρίας. See also ibid. p. 495.

Is there such a thing as the visible Church Universal, to which Christ has promised His presence and His Spirit? Are there such words as the following written in the New Testament? "Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world[1]." "The Comforter shall teach you all things, and guide you into all the truth[2]." "The Church of the Living God, which is the pillar and ground of the truth[3]." In a word, has Christ done, or has He not done, two things? Has He, or has He not, given us Holy Scripture by the Inspiration of the Holy Ghost? And has He, or has He not, delivered Scripture to the keeping of the Church Universal, and appointed her to be its guardian and interpreter? If He has done these things, it is not only folly and presumption, it is a sin against Him and against the Holy Ghost, to say that any of the Books, or any portion of the Books, which have been received, as divinely-inspired Scripture, by the consentient voice of the Church Universal, is not inspired by God, but is a human composition, blemished by human infirmities. And it is vain to expect that any real progress can be made by the agency of those, who commence their work with an outrage against Christ and the Holy Spirit, by denying the inspiration and inerrancy of writings delivered by Them.

So, again, it is an illusory hope, that any advances can be made in the work of sacred interpretation, by the instrumentality of those who reject the Expositions of Scripture received by the consent of ancient Christendom, and who propound new interpretations invented by themselves, at variance with the general teaching of Scripture as received by the Catholic Church[4]. Rather, with our own Reformers[5], if we hope to maintain the truth, and to guard "the faith once for all delivered to the saints[6]," and to advance the Redeemer's Kingdom upon earth, let us have ever before our eyes, in interpreting Scripture, the formularies of faith[5] delivered by the Church Universal, as representing the true sense of Scripture; and let us not readily imagine, that any text of Scripture can be properly bent by us to bear a sense at variance with those standards of faith.

Is it indeed true that there is such a Divine Institution as an Apostolical Ministry, appointed by Christ for the preaching of the Word and administration of the Sacraments? Is it true, that the illuminating and sanctifying graces of the Holy Ghost are vouchsafed to those who humbly seek for them, by appointed means, at the hands of that ministry? If so, it is certain, that no appliances of Literature and Science, and no labour in collating Manuscripts and examining Versions, no skill in Languages, no familiarity with the results of researches Historical, Chronological, Geographical, Antiquarian, nor any amount of toil about the letter of Scripture, will avail us for the attainment of a knowledge of the spirit of Scripture, if we set at nought the means of grace which God offers us for our illumination.

[1] Matt. xxviii. 20. [2] John xiv. 26; xvi. 13. [3] 1 Tim. iii. 15.

[4] Arnoldi, in his Preface to his Edition of St. Matthew, thus deplores the loss sustained by his own country in this respect:—"Dass man, so zu sagen, die exegetische Tradition unterbrochen hat, sind die bedeutendsten Schätze des gediegensten theologischen Wissens unbenütz liegen geblieben." 1855.

[5] See Reformatio Legum, i. 13:—"Summa fidei capita, è sacris Scripturis clarissimis desumpta, et in Symbolis breviter comprehensa, in exponendo sacras literas ob oculos perpetuò habeantur, ne quid contrà ea aliquando interpretemur." [6] Jude 3.

All those instruments of Literature and Science are, indeed, necessary for the right interpretation of the original Scriptures; and it would be fanatical to imagine that we can dispense with any of them. But it is no less fanatical to rely on them as sufficient. God must open our eyes, if we are to see "the wondrous things of His law[1];" in His "light we shall see light[2]."

The preceding paragraphs have not been dictated by any other spirit than what is congenial to the study of those Scriptures, which have been received from the Spirit of love. The Church of England owes too much to the learning of Germany to regard her with any other feelings than those of affectionate esteem; and on the still higher grounds of religious truth and concord, she longs for union with her. In the sixteenth century, Germany and England fought the great battle of the Reformation side by side. They shed their blood as allies and martyrs in that holy cause. We have received much from her; we owe her a debt of gratitude; we owe her our love and our prayers. Above all, we owe her the truth. And we should not be paying the debt of love we owe her, if, instead of speaking to her the truth, we addressed her in flattering words, and beguiled her with fair speeches, and deceived her by cozening assurances, as if the fruits she is now gathering in the field of sacred Criticism were sound and healthful to the soul, and not rather bitter as wormwood; beautiful, it may be, externally to the eye of unregenerate reason, but loathsome as poison to the healthful palate of faith; specious, it may be, in colour to a superficial glance, but when grasped by the hand, full of dust and smoke and ashes, like apples plucked from the sterile shore of the Dead Sea.

Let us pray and labour for her recovery. At any rate, let us not "put bitter for sweet, and sweet for bitter[3]," and dignify with the name of progress that which ought to be wept over as decline. Let us not be guilty of the sin of singing songs of adulation and joining in a dance of triumph amid the ruins of the Christian Jerusalem. Let us rather lay our hand upon our mouth, and sit down with Jeremiah in sorrow.

By no merit of our own, but by the gracious goodness of God, we possess Colleges and Cathedrals which have been schools of the prophets; nurseries of sacred learning. We possess a National Church, which holds in her hands the true Canon of Scripture as received by the Church Universal; and which does not allow Holy Scripture to be rudely torn by discordant Teachers and irreverent Critics, but delivers to us the Creeds of Christendom and her own formularies of faith, as an authoritative guide to check our rash speculations, and to control our froward wills in obtruding our own caprices as dogmas of Holy Writ[4].

[1] Ps. cxix. 18. [2] Ps. xxxvi. 9. [3] Isa. v. 20.

[4] See above, p. x, and our Ninth and Twentieth Articles, and the Canon "de Concionatoribus," A.D. 1571:—"Inprimis videbunt Concionatores, nequid unquam doceant pro concione quod à populo religiosè teneri et credi velint, nisi quod consentaneum sit doctrinæ Veteris et Novi Testamenti, quodque ex illâ ipsâ doctrinâ catholici patres et veteres episcopi collegerint."

Let us guard these privileges; let us not degrade the biblical criticism of England to the miserable condition of doubt and diversity, of distraction and despair, in which that holy Science now lies prostrate in Germany. Rather let us endeavour, by God's grace, meekly and humbly, wisely and charitably, to elevate the Exegesis of Germany to the standard of primitive Christianity; and so assist her in recovering her ancient dignity, and in consecrating her learning and sanctifying her labour, and rendering it more conducive to the maintenance of the truth, and to the extension of Christ's kingdom, and to her own glory and felicity in time and eternity. Then we may have a reasonable hope, that, with her assistance, the evils which now threaten Christendom may be averted; the torrent of unbelief and superstition, which seems ready to overwhelm us, may be stemmed and turned back; and we may see new fields reclaimed, and gladdened with rich harvests.

Such considerations as these have prompted the design, which has now been executed in part, and which is here presented to the public.

A few words are requisite concerning the Text of this Edition.

It has been already observed, that the present age possesses special advantages in the collations that have been recently made of Manuscripts of the New Testament.

But it must not be forgotten, that it is one thing to possess Manuscripts and collations of them, and another thing to use them well. Indeed it may sometimes happen, that the very abundance of Manuscripts, and consequently of Various Readings, may become an occasion of error; and so, by a misuse of our advantages in this respect, the Text of the New Testament may be depraved and corrupted, rather than emended and improved.

There is some reason to fear that this may be now the case. Certain canons of criticism, as they are called, have been propounded by Griesbach and others, as directions for the use of Manuscripts of the New Testament. These canons contain true principles; but it may well be doubted whether great evils may not arise, and may not already have arisen, from an overstrained application of them.

For example; "Proclivi lectioni præstat ardua." This is an excellent rule, if rightly used; for no one can doubt that an easy reading was more likely to be substituted by a transcriber for a difficult one, than a difficult reading for one that is easy. But this rule requires much caution in its application.

There are many concurrent circumstances to be considered, which may modify and neutralize it, and render it wholly inapplicable. For instance; it must also be inquired, whether the difficult reading is supported by the testimony of ancient Versions and Fathers; or whether it stands on the authority of only one or two Manuscripts of a particular family.

To force readings into the text merely because they are difficult, is to adulterate the divine text with human alloy; it is to obtrude upon the reader of Scripture the solecisms of faltering copyists, in the place of the Word of God.

Again; it is doubtless true that special deference is due, on the ground of superior Antiquity, to the Uncial Manuscripts of the New Testament. No one can question, in the abstract, the soundness of the principle propounded by Bentley, revived by Bengel, and recently applied by Lachmann. But the very application of the principle, without adequate restraints and correctives, has proved, in the judgment of many candid and reflecting persons, how dangerous a true principle of criticism may become, when applied beyond the proper limits of its applicability.

The Uncial Manuscripts are of greater antiquity, as far as ink and parchment are concerned, than the Cursive Manuscripts of the New Testament. The consent of all the Uncial Manuscripts, or of a majority of them, is of paramount authority. But we do not know that some of the Cursive Manuscripts may not be transcripts of Uncial Manuscripts still more ancient than any we now possess; and, therefore, to adopt the readings which are found in two or three Uncial Manuscripts, to the exclusion of the testimony of the Cursive Manuscripts, may be to corrupt the Text while we profess to correct it.

Besides, the Uncial Manuscripts are comparatively few,—and only represent the witness of a few places. But the Cursive Manuscripts are very numerous, and come to us from all parts of the world; and, therefore, to confine ourselves to the testimony of the Uncial Manuscripts, may be to prefer the witness of a few particular Churches to that of Christendom.

Let, then, the Uncial Manuscripts have all honour due; and it can hardly be doubted, that wherever that honour is rightly paid, it will be found to be more or less authorized by a concurrent testimony of Cursive Manuscripts.

It is also true, that the Manuscripts of the Greek Testament may be classified in Families. And, eventually, when they have been carefully examined, such an arrangement, according to Recensions, may be made. But it is premature, before such an examination has been faithfully and scrupulously completed, to prefer the readings of those particular Manuscripts which belong, as it is supposed, to one favoured class, and to reject others, because they are not of the same pedigree, or because they do not seem to us to bear an affinity to those of that class on which we ourselves, in the exercise of our critical prerogative, may have been pleased to confer certain privileges of rank and nobility. Yet, on this principle, some of the Editions seem to have been constructed which profess to give an improved Text of the Greek Testament.

Some other illustrations of a similar kind might be added. Suffice it to say, on the whole, that though the canons of criticism which have been applied to the revision of the Text of the New Testament are of unquestionable value, yet great circumspection is necessary, lest, by a vicious application of them, we do more to mar the sacred Text than has yet been done by their means to improve it.

The Text of the present edition is not a reprint of that hitherto received in any impression of the New Testament. The Editor has endeavoured to avail himself of the collations of manuscripts which have been supplied by others, and to offer to the reader the result at which he has arrived after an examination of those collations. He has not thought it requisite or desirable to lay before the eye a full apparatus of various readings. It would have swollen the volume to too great a bulk, and have occupied the place reserved for exposition. Besides, that important work has been done, or is now in course of being done, by others. And to their labours [1] he would refer those, who are desirous of ascertaining the process by which the text of the present Edition has been formed.

At the same time, he feels it his duty to state, that (whether rightly or wrongly, is left to the judgment of others) he has not deviated so far from the text commonly received, as has been done in some recent editions. And he cannot forbear adverting with satisfaction to important evidence which has come to light since the commencement of the printing of this Volume, and which has confirmed him in the principles he had adopted of caution in deviating from the received text. A seventh Edition of the New Testament is now in course of publication under the Editorship of a learned person, to whom the present age is deeply indebted for his labours in collating manuscripts, and publishing Transcripts of early copies of the New Testament, Constantine Tischendorf. It will be found, on examination of the prospectus of that seventh Edition [2], that he frankly confesses that he has been led to follow too implicitly the lead of certain favourite manuscripts in his earlier editions. And the fact is, that in his new seventh edition he abandons his former readings, and generally returns to those of the received text, in more than a hundred places in the Gospel of St. Matthew alone [3].

With regard to the Notes which accompany the present Edition, the Editor's design has been to recover some of the expository teaching of ancient Christendom, which seems almost to have disappeared from its proper place in the critical exegesis of the New Testament. If it be asked, why he has laid so much stress on the interpretations of Christian Antiquity, and why the names of ancient Expositors occur so frequently in the following pages, he had rather answer that question in the words of others than in his own;

And first, with regard to the Apostolical Fathers,—for example, Clemens Romanus, Ignatius, Polycarp,—he may refer to the words of Archbishop Wake [4];

"1. They were contemporary with the Apostles, and instructed by them. 2. They were men of an eminent character in the Church, and therefore such as could not be ignorant of what was taught in it. 3. They were careful to preserve the doctrine of Christ in its purity, and to oppose such as went about to corrupt it. 4. They were men not only of a perfect piety, but of great courage and constancy, and therefore such as cannot be suspected to have had any design to prevaricate in this matter. 5. They were endued with a large portion of the Holy Spirit, and, as

[1] See below, p. xxxix.

[2] See below, p. xxxix.

[3] They will be found as follows: in Matt. ii. 13; iii. 1; iv. 23; v. 11. 13. 32 bis; vi. 5. 16. 33; vii. 14; viii. 10. 13 bis, 25; ix. 1. 8, 9. 11. 17, 18; x. 7. 10. 14. 19. 23. 33; xi. 23; xii. 35. 48; xiii. 1, 2. 15. 24. 30. 57; xiv. 13. 18. 22. 25, 26; xv. 4. 14, 15; xvi. 19 bis, 22, 23; xvii. 14; xviii. 29. 35; xix. 3 bis; xx. 15. 17. 26. 31. 33 bis, 34 bis; xxi. 2. 4. 7 bis, 11. 28; xxii. 13. 30 bis, 43, 44; xxiii. 4. 18; xxiv. 1. 7. 30. 49; xxv. 1, 2 bis, 4. 6. 17. 20. 22; xxvi. 23. 36 bis, 44, 45. 59. 69; xxvii. 2. 11. 16, 17. 23. 34, 35. 47; xxviii. 3. 15. 18, 19.

[4] Abp. Wake's Translation of the Writings of the Apostolical Fathers, p. 110.

such, could hardly err in what they delivered as the Gospel of Christ. 6. Their writings were approved by the Church in those days, which could not be mistaken in its approbation of them."

Dr. Waterland writes as follows on this subject[1];—

"1. The ancients who lived nearest to the Apostolical times are of some use to us, considered merely as contemporary writers, for their diction and phraseology... 2. A further use of the ancient Fathers is seen in the letting us into the knowledge of antiquated rites and customs, upon the knowledge of which the true interpretation of some Scripture phrases and idioms may depend. 3. They are further useful as giving us an insight into the history of the age in which the sacred books (of the New Testament, I mean) were written. 4. The ancientest Fathers may be exceedingly useful for fixing the sense of Scripture in controverted texts. Those that lived in or near the Apostolical times might retain in memory what the Apostles themselves or their immediate successors said upon such and such points.—Their nearness to the time, their known fidelity, and their admirable endowments, ordinary and extraordinary, add great weight to their testimony or doctrine, and make it a probable rule of interpretation in the prime things. 5. It deserves our notice, that the Fathers of the third and fourth centuries had the advantage of many written accounts of the doctrine of the former ages, which have since been lost; and therefore, their testimonies also are of considerable weight, and are a mark of direction to us, not to be slighted in the main things..... 6. There is one consideration more, tending still to strengthen the former, and which must by no means be omitted; namely, that the charismata, the extraordinary gifts, were then frequent, visibly rested in and upon the Church, and there only." He adds[2]: "A very particular regard is due to the Public Acts of the Ancient Church appearing in Creeds made use of in baptism, and in the censures passed upon heretics. It is not at all likely that any whole Church of those times should vary from Apostolical doctrine in things of moment; but it is, morally speaking, absurd to imagine, that all the Churches should combine in the same error, and conspire together to corrupt the doctrine of Christ." And Bp. Bull says[3]: "Religio mihi est eritque contra torrentem omnium Patrum S. Scripturas interpretari, nisi quandò me argumenta cogunt evidentissima—quod nunquam eventurum credo."

To this it may be added, that, while it is freely allowed that Modern Expositors enjoy some advantages which were not possessed by the Ancient, and that the works of the Ancient Writers cannot be read profitably without sobriety of judgment, yet it is also certain that the Ancient Interpreters are never chargeable with some errors which impair the value, and mar the use, of some Modern Expositions. They are never flippant and familiar. They are not self-conceited and vain-glorious. They are never scornful and profane. They handle Scripture with reverence. Their tone is high and holy; produced by careful study of Scripture, with humble prayer for light to the Divine Author of Scripture. They reflect some of that light, and spiritualize the thoughts of the reader, and raise them to a serener atmosphere, and do not depress them into the lower and more obscure regions of clouds, which hang over the minds of those who approach Scripture with presumption and irreverence, and which disable them from seeing its light, and, much more, from unfolding it to others.

[1] On the Use and Value of Ecclesiastical Antiquity, Works, v. pp. 253—333; p. 260.
[2] P. 265. [3] Def. Fid. Nic. i. 1. 9.

In reciting the interpretations of ancient writers, he begs it to be understood that he does not profess to give in every case their very words, or a literal version of them. He has frequently abridged and condensed them,—but in no case, he trusts, has he misrepresented their sense. Where their names occur without any mention of the particular treatise from which their words are quoted, it may generally be inferred that they are from a commentary on the passage in question. In other cases the treatise has been specified from which the citation is taken.

There is another source from which the present Commentary is partly derived—the Theological Literature of the Church of England. In some respects the Divines of England have enjoyed advantages for the doctrinal exposition of truth, which were not possessed even by the Fathers themselves. As St. Augustine often observes, the cause of Truth is cleared by means of Error. Orthodoxy gains by the oppositions of Heresy; and the heresies which have arisen in Christendom since the times of the Fathers have stimulated and constrained the faithful student of Scripture to examine more closely the truths which the Scriptures teach. Thus from time to time disseminations of false doctrine have afforded occasions and means for the clearer elucidation and stronger confirmation of the Truth. They have shown the inexhaustible riches of Scripture, in the never-failing supply of antidotes against ever-varying forms of error.

It was observed long since by Lord Bacon [1], that one of the best Commentaries

[1] "That form of writing in divinity, which in my judgment is of all others most rich and precious, is positive divinity, collected upon particular texts of Scripture in brief observations, not dilated into common-places, not chasing after controversies, not reduced into method of art; a thing abounding in sermons, which will vanish, but defective in books, which will remain, and a thing wherein this age excelleth. For I am persuaded, and I may speak it with an absit invidia verbo, and no ways in derogation of antiquity, but as in a good emulation between the Vine and the Olive, that if the choice and best of those observations upon texts of Scripture, which have been made dispersedly in sermons within this your Majesty's island of Britain by the space of these forty years and more, leaving out the largeness of exhortations and applications thereupon, had been set down in a continuance, it had been the best work in divinity which had been written since the Apostles' time." (Bacon, Adv. of Learning, p. 268.)

The following admirable remarks from the same source may find a proper place here. Lord Bacon thus speaks (Adv. of Learning, p. 267, ed. 1828):—"The two latter points, known to God and unknown to man, touching the secrets of the heart and the successions of time, do make a just and sound difference between the manner of the exposition of the Scriptures and all other books. For it is an excellent observation which hath been made upon the answers of our Saviour Christ to many of the questions which were propounded to Him, how that they are impertinent to the state of the question demanded; the reason whereof is, because, not being like man, which knows man's thoughts by his words, but knowing man's thoughts immediately, He never answered their words, but their thoughts. Much in the like manner it is with the Scriptures, which, being written to the thoughts of men and to the succession of all ages, with a foresight of all heresies, contradictions, differing estates of the Church, yea, and particularly of the elect, are not to be interpreted only on Scripture might be extracted from the writings of English Divines. Especially is this true of those who were imbued with a spirit of reverence for the works of Christian antiquity, and who applied the teaching of the Fathers to the exposition of Holy Writ, and to the refutation of the errors of their own times. Who can excel Hooker and Bishop Andrewes in expounding the words of St. John? Who more able than Bishop Sanderson to apply to cases of conscience the reasonings of St. Paul?

An explanation perhaps may be necessary of the reasons for which some of the materials in the following Commentary have been adopted.

The best instrument of Education is Holy Scripture in its original language. It alone of all books in the world addresses itself to the whole man. It exercises his memory, strengthens his reason, controls his passions, informs his judgment, regulates his conscience, sanctifies his will, enlivens his fancy, warms his imagination, cherishes his affections, stimulates his practice, quickens his hope, and animates his faith.

But those purposes are impaired and frustrated, if an Expositor of Scripture confines himself to verbal criticism, and material facts of history, chronology, and antiquities. These are necessary, and have not been neglected in the following pages. But something more is requisite. And in an Edition designed for the use of Students in Grammar-schools and Colleges, and Candidates for Holy Orders, the Expositor would seem to be robbing them of the most precious part of their Christian inheritance, and despoiling them of that discipline which is most conducive to exercise and spiritualize the highest faculties of their moral and intellectual being, if he limited himself to critical and archæological disquisitions, and did not supply them with some food derived from Scripture and ancient Authors, for the hallowing of their affections, and for elevating their imaginations, and for nourishing their piety and animating their devotion; and for enabling them to see and recognize with joy, that Holy Scripture supplies the best discipline for the mind, as well as satisfies all the aspirations of the soul.

In the illustration of the phraseology of the New Testament, special use has been made of the Version of the Septuagint, which has been happily called by Professor Blunt "the viaduct between the two Testaments[1]." Here the Editor is according to the latitude of the proper sense of the place, and respectively towards that present occasion whereupon the words were uttered, or in precise congruity or contexture with the words before or after, or in contemplation of the principal scope of the place; but have in themselves, not only totally or collectively, but distributively in clauses and words, infinite springs and streams of doctrine to water the Church in every part; and therefore, as the literal sense is, as it were, the main stream or river, so the moral sense chiefly, and sometimes the allegorical or typical, are they whereof the Church hath most use; not that I wish men to be bold in allegories, or indulgent or light in allusions; but that I do much condemn that interpretation of the Scripture which is only after the manner as men use to interpret a profane book." indebted to Mr. Grinfield's valuable works, and to the excellent Lexicon of Mintert.

[1] Cp. Valckenaer in Luc. i. 51. "Græcum N. T. contextum ritè intellecturo nihil est utilius quàm diligenter versasse Alexandrinam antiqui Fœderis interpretationem (i. e. the LXX), è quâ unâ plus peti poterit auxilii, quàm ex veteribus Scriptoribus Græcis simul sumtis. Centena reperientur in N. T. nusquam obvia in scriptis Græcorum veterum, sed frequentata in Alexandrinâ Versione."

The Ammonian Sections have been marked in the Text of the Gospels in this edition, and the Eusebian Canons relating to them have been prefixed; the use of which, as forming an Evangelical Harmony, and indicating at a glance the correspondence of the Evangelists where they concur, and their independence where each stands alone, cannot be too strongly commended to the student.

These prefatory remarks may be closed with some observations, suggested by the circumstances of the times, on the substance and language of the New Testament.

Much has been recently said on the Inspiration of Holy Scripture.

It may be submitted for consideration, whether it would not be wiser to abstain from disquisitions upon modes and degrees of Inspiration, as a subject beyond the reach of our finite faculties.

If it be said, that this would be too diffident a course, let it be observed that it is no other than that which was pursued by our Blessed Lord Himself in His dealings with the Old Testament. He received, and delivered to the Christian Church, all the Books, and every portion of the Books, of the Old Testament, as the Word of God.

But though He has solemnly declared that every part of the Old Testament is inspired, He never vouchsafed to say a word concerning degrees of Inspiration.

Indeed, it seems to be a contradiction of terms, to speak of degrees in what is Divine.

In the act of inspiration the Holy Spirit did not impair the human faculties, much less did He destroy the personal identity, of those whom He inspired. Inspiration was a mental and spiritual Transfiguration. On the Mount of Transfiguration, the disciples saw "two men talking with Jesus, which were Moses and Elias[1]." Moses was not changed into Elias, nor Elias into Moses; nor were they transmuted into some third person different from either. But they "appeared in glory." They were transfigured. So in Inspiration. Peter is not changed into Paul, nor Matthew into John. They retain their personal identity, distinguishable by men. They appear in glory. They are transfigured.

This work of Transfiguration is a Mystery. It is like other mysteries, where that which is human touches, and is blended with, the divine. We feel a similar process going on in our own being. We all know that we are free agents, and we are all conscious that we need and receive divine Grace. But where our Free-will ends, and where divine Grace begins, who can say? The fact we know, the modes and degrees we cannot analyse; we confess our ignorance, we adore the mystery; we do not discuss it, but we act hourly upon the consciousness of the fact, as a law of our moral being.

May we not even say, that the Mystery of Inspiration bears some likeness to the highest of all mysteries, in which the human is joined with the divine, the Mystery of the Incarnation itself? There, in that mystery, is the union of God and man in One Person, without any confusion of substance. But who will venture to attempt to draw the line, where God's work begins and man's ends, in the Person of Christ? Who will venture to speak of modes and degrees of inspiration there? The mystery dazzles the eye, it baffles all our faculties of analysis. And yet, like the mid-day sun, at which we cannot gaze, while it blinds us with its glory, it alone enables us to see; all would be dark without it. It is the central orb of Christianity.

[1] Matt. xvii. 3. Luke ix. 30, 31.

So it is, in a certain sense, with Inspiration. We cannot define its degrees. It would seem to be our wisdom to decline the attempt, to confess our ignorance, and to act on what we know. We know that "holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost[1];" and that therefore the Scriptures, which the Holy Ghost has given by them, are "the things[2] that are able to make us wise unto salvation, through faith which is in Christ Jesus."

This may be proved by arguments external and internal. And since it may be proved, it can never be granted that there are any, even the least, errors or inaccuracies, in the New Testament. If one man imagines that there are two or three inaccuracies, another person, equally learned, may allege that there are four or five; and so on, indefinitely, till at last the claim of the Scriptures to be regarded as the Word of God, and the Rule of Faith, is destroyed.

It is indeed true, that the Apostles and Evangelists, whose instrumentality was used by the Holy Spirit, in dictating Scripture to the World, were not infallible in practice; they were men, and liable to err. The Scriptures themselves record their errors. The unerring Word records errors of those who were employed by God to write it. St. Paul says, in the Epistle to the Galatians, that St. Peter "was to be blamed," and "walked not uprightly[3]." The Epistle to the Galatians is a part of Holy Scripture, and we are sure that the Apostle Peter erred, because the Holy Ghost, writing by St. Paul in Holy Scripture, affirms that he erred; and relates what his error was[4].

In fact, the fallibility of those by whose agency Scripture was written, and

[1] 2 Pet. i. 21. [2] τὰ δυνάμενα, κ.τ.λ. 2 Tim. iii. 15. [3] Gal. ii. 11. 14.

[4] Cp. Augustin. Epist. ad Hieron. xl.:—"Itaque et ipse Petrus verè correctus est; et Paulus vera narravit: ne sancta scriptura, quæ ad fidem posteris edita est, admissâ auctoritate mendacii, tota dubia nutet, ac fluctuet. Non enim potest aut oportet litteris explicari, quanta et quàm explicabilia mala consequantur, si hoc concesserimus."

Ep. lxxxii.:—"At enim," says the objector, "satius est credere, Apostolum Paulum aliquid verè non scripsisse, quàm Apostolum Petrum non rectè aliquid egisse;

"Hoc si ita est, dicamus, (quod absit,) satius esse credere, mentiri Evangelium, quàm negatum esse à Petro Christum, et mentiri Regnorum librum, quàm tantum prophetam, à domino Deo excellenter electum, in concupiscendâ atque abducendâ uxore alienâ commisisse adulterium, et in marito ejus necando tam horrendum homicidium.

"Imò verò, Sanctam Scripturam, in summo et cælesti auctoritatis culmine collocatam, de veritate ejus certus ac securus legam; et in eâ homines vel approbatos, vel emendatos, vel damnatos veraciter discam, potiùs quàm, facta humana ne dum in quibusdam laudabilis excellentiæ personis aliquando credere timeo reprehendenda, ipsa divina eloquia mihi sint ubique suspecta."

the inerrancy of Scripture written by their agency, constitute together the essence of Inspiration. We do not say that God is inspired. No; God is infallible, and inspires. But we say, that the writers of Scripture are inspired, because they, being fallible men, were preserved from all error, and led into all truth necessary for us to know for our everlasting salvation, by the Inspiration of the Infallible God.

If, therefore, to our fallible senses, there seems to be any error in Holy Scripture, we are sure that the cause of this seeming error is not in Him Who wrote what is written, but in us, who read what He wrote.

We may adopt here the language of one, who has treated this question with his wonted clearness, and whose words deserve to be well weighed at the present time, St. Augustine;

"I confess that I have learnt to pay this deference to the Books of Scripture, and to them alone, that I most firmly believe that none of their writers has ever fallen into any error in writing. And if I meet with any thing in them, which seems to me to be contrary to truth, I doubt not that either the Manuscript is in fault, or that the Translator has missed the sense, or that I myself have not rightly apprehended it. The books of other writers I read in such a spirit, as not to deem a thing true because they think it so, however holy and learned they may be, but because they are able to persuade me of its truth by the authority of Scripture, or by probable inference from it. Nor do I imagine that you differ from me here, or desire your own books to be so read, as if they were writings of Prophets and Apostles, to doubt concerning which, whether they are altogether free from error, is impiety [1]."

And, again, he says, "we must take care to approach the reading of Scripture with such a spirit of reverence, as rather to pass by what we cannot understand, than to prefer our own sense to the Truth [2]."

And, again, "I owe this free servitude solely to the Canonical Scriptures, so that I follow them alone, with the persuasion that their writers have not fallen into any error [3]."

These words were addressed to St. Jerome, who speaks in the same spirit,—"I know that I regard the Apostles in a different light from other writers; the former always say what is true; the latter, as men, sometimes err [1]."

[1] Aug. Epist. ad Hieron. lxxxii.:—"Ego enim fateor charitati tuæ, solis eis scripturarum libris, qui jam canonici appellantur, didici hunc timorem honoremque deferre, ut nullum eorum auctorem scribendo aliquid errasse firmissimè credam. At si aliquid in eis offendero, quod videatur contrarium veritati, nihil aliud quàm vel mendosum esse codicem, vel interpretem non assecutum esse quod dictum est, vel me minimè intellexisse, non ambigam. Alios autem ita lego, ut quantâlibet sanctitate doctrinâque præpolleant, non ideo verum putem, quia ipsi ita senserunt, sed quia mihi vel per illos auctores canonicos, vel probabili ratione, quod à vero non abhorreat, persuadere potuerunt. Nec te, mi frater, sentire aliquid aliter existimo; prorsus, inquam, non te arbitror sic legi tuos libros velle, tamquam Prophetarum et Apostolorum; de quorum scriptis, quod omni errore careant, dubitare nefarium est."

[2] Ep. xxviii.:—"Agendum est igitur, ut ad cognitionem divinarum scripturarum talis homo accedat, qui de sanctis libris tam sanctè veraciter æstimet, ut potiùs id quod non intelligit, transeat, quàm cor suum præferat veritati."

[3] Ep. lxxxii.:—"Tantummodo scripturis canonicis hanc ingenuam debeo servitutem; quâ eas solas ita sequar, ut conscriptores earum nihil in eis omnino errasse non dubitem."

Let us pass from the substance of Scripture to its language.

Much has been written in modern times on what is commonly called, though perhaps not very correctly, Verbal Inspiration.

Words are symbols of things. The words of Scripture are the instruments used for the conveyance of a knowledge of the things of God to the mind of man. And in order that the things of God may be rightly conveyed to the human mind, it is necessary that the verbal symbols should correctly represent, as far as human language can represent, what is in the Divine Mind. And if we say that the writers of the New Testament were not under the control and direction of the Holy Spirit in their use of words, we do in fact deny their inspiration. How far this control and direction extended, it would be presumptuous to attempt to define. St. Paul wrote the Epistle to the Romans, and Tertius wrote the Epistle to the Romans [2]; they wrote the same thing, but not in the same way. Tertius was not inspired,—St. Paul was. Tertius wrote as a mechanical instrument in the hand of a man; St. Paul wrote as a free agent in the hand of the Holy Ghost. And St. Paul affirms that the words which he writes in his Epistles, are "not words which man's wisdom teacheth, but which the Holy Ghost teacheth [3]." St. Paul therefore, we are sure, was under the guidance of the Holy Spirit in his words as well as thoughts, in the letter as well as in the substance of what he wrote for the teaching of the Church of Christ, and in that which was received as canonical Scripture by her, to whom Christ promised His own presence and that of the Holy Ghost.

It is alleged, indeed, by some, that a theory of Verbal Inspiration (if we must use the term), is inconsistent with the facts of the case, as presented to us in the Gospels;

How, it has been asked, can we account for the fact, that we have different recitals from different Evangelists of the same Discourses of our blessed Lord, if the Evangelists were under the control of the Holy Spirit in their use of words? How is it that we have different accounts of the words used by Him in the Institution of the Lord's Supper? How is it that we have various reports of the inscription written by Pilate on the cross?

In strictness of speech, we must say that not one of the Evangelists gives us the exact words of Christ. He conversed in Syro-Chaldaic, and they wrote in Greek.

But the fact, that they sometimes give different—but never contrary—reports of the same sayings of our blessed Lord, is not at variance with their inspiration as to words. Rather we may say, it is characteristic of it, and confirmatory of our belief in it.

[1] St. Hieron. ad Theophil. Ep. vol. iv. p. 337:—"Scio me aliter habere Apostolos, aliter reliquos Tractatores; illos semper vera dicere, istos in quibusdam, ut homines, errare."

See also St. Jerome's master, Gregor. Nazian. p. 60, and Hooker, quoted below, p. 109.

[2] Rom. xvi. 22. [3] 1 Cor. ii. 13.

The mind of Christ is divine. The Holy Spirit, and the Holy Spirit alone, knew what was in the mind of Christ[1]. And Holy Scripture was not written to tell us merely that which Christ taught by means of words, which are human coinage, but what was in the inner treasury of Wisdom of Him Who is Divine[2]. If the Holy Spirit had given us but one verbal account of Christ's sayings, He would have given a far less clear view of Christ's mind than we now possess. This arises, not from any imperfection in the working of the Spirit, but from our imperfection, and from that of the instrument to be used by the Spirit for the conveyance of a knowledge of Christ's mind to us,—namely, human language. He has given to us a fuller knowledge of that mind, by presenting its sense to us in different points of view; just as a Painter gives us a clearer idea of a human countenance or a landscape, by representing it to us from different sides. He has given us, so to speak, a panoramic view. For example; if we had but one account of the Institution of the Lord's Supper, we should have a far less complete notion of what was in the Divine Mind of Him Who instituted it, than we have now by reason of the varieties of expression, by which the Holy Spirit represents in the several Gospels the Divine thoughts which were in the Mind of Christ at its institution.

The same may be said of the various reports we read of Christ's Discourses. Their varieties are like so many contributions from the Hand of the Divine Author of Scripture, making human language less inadequate than it otherwise would be, to give us a revelation of what was in the mind of Him Who uttered them.

But it may be said, Pilate's words are not like the words of Christ. How is it that we have different accounts of what Pilate wrote on the cross?

To this question we may reply by a sentence which is never to be forgotten by the reader of the Gospels: "Qui plura dicit, pauciora complectitur; qui pauciora dicit, plura non negat." The several accounts are quite consistent with each other, and doubtless the Holy Spirit had good reasons for their varieties[3]. If the Evangelists had been mere servile copyists, they would have done what any legal clerk or notary might do, and have given us one and the same transcript of the words written by Pilate. They have not done this; and they thus suggest to the candid and humble inquirer, that there may be good reasons for their varieties, in this and other cases; and though he may not be able to discern those reasons, he will not therefore deny that they may exist. Some reasons, however, he may see; and if they serve only to prove to him the limited powers of his own mind, they will not be without their uses, as exercises of his humility, his faith, and hope for a better and happier time, when his faculties will be enlarged, and his vision clarified, and he will know even as he is known[4].

But, it may perhaps be asked; Suppose that the diversities in question are consistent with Inspiration, how are we to account for the resemblances in the Gospels, if they were written by divinely-inspired persons? These parallelisms, it is to be observed, are in Greek; and they are in records of our Lord's discourses

[1] 1 Cor. ii. 11. 16.
[2] Col. ii. 3.
[3] See note below, p. 279.
[4] 1 Cor. xiii. 12.

not spoken in Greek, but in Syro-Chaldaic. They are parallelisms of translation. Therefore, it is alleged, they show that the writers must have copied one another's words, or have transcribed from some common document. And neither of these suppositions, it is added, is reconcileable with a belief in Inspiration.

In answer to this objection, it may be said, that the process in question is not properly described as one of copying. It is one of Repetition.

Now, if we carefully study the operations of the Holy Spirit of God, in His dealings with men, we shall find that one of His principles of action is Repetition.

God doubled the dream to Pharaoh, as Joseph declared to him, for greater certainty[1]. He often repeated by one Prophet what He had said by another. He revealed the future to Daniel by successive visions, representing the same events[2]. In St. Peter's vision the sheet was let down thrice[3]. In the last Gospel the word "Amen,"—the word of assurance,—never stands singly; it is used about twenty-five times, and always twice at a time.

The repetition of the same words by the same Spirit, in the different Gospels, is altogether in harmony with what we know of the working of the Holy Ghost[4].

Indeed we may say on the whole, that the Diversities in the Gospels, and also their Repetitions, may be accounted for on the supposition of their Inspiration, and that they never have been explained by any other theory.

Our Blessed Lord promised to give the Holy Spirit to them who were sent to preach the Gospel. He forbad them to premeditate when they were brought before kings[5]; and He assured them that He would give them 'a mouth' as well as wisdom of heart, which none would be able to resist, "For it is not ye that speak, but the Spirit of your Father which speaketh in you[6]." Or, as another Evangelist expresses it, "It is not ye that speak, but the Holy Ghost[7]."

If they were to be thus furnished with words by the Holy Spirit for preaching the Gospel orally to a few persons in particular places and times, shall we imagine that they were not equally qualified by the same Spirit for preaching the same Gospel in writing to all ages and countries of the world?

It has also been alleged, that the existence of Various Readings in the New Testament is a proof that the writers could not have been under the control of the Holy Ghost in their use of words. Why, it is asked, if they were under His guidance, have we not received a stereotyped edition of the New Testament?

To this question we may reply by another. It is allowed that the substance of Scripture is from God. Why then have we not a stereotyped Creed? Why has God allowed Heresies to arise, perverting the sense of Scripture? Why has He permitted so many various readings, so to speak, of that one sense which is confessedly from Him? All these things are trials of our vigilance and faith. They are parts of our moral probation in this world. And if the various readings of the sense of Scripture are quite consistent with a belief—as assuredly they are —in the Inspiration of that sense; so the various readings of the letter of Scripture, which may be confined within much narrower limits than those of the sense, and are of comparatively little importance[1], are quite compatible with a belief that the writers of Scripture were under the direction of the Holy Spirit in the letter, as well as the sense.

[1] Gen. xli. 32. [2] Dan. ii. 31—45; vii. 3—7. [3] Acts x. 16.
[4] See further on this subject, below, p. xlvii. [5] Luke xxi. 12. 14, 15.
[6] Matt. x. 20. [7] Mark xiii. 11.

It has not pleased Almighty God to preserve to us the original autographs of the Gospels. Various Readings of the Sacred Text existed even in the second century. No Manuscript of the first, second, or third century is now known to exist, and only four or five Manuscripts that are still extant can be assigned to a date prior to the seventh century. After all the labours of Collators and Critics, we shall never be sure that we have the precise words of the Apostles and Evangelists in every minute particular.

If then we are disposed to be over-captious, if we desire to busy ourselves with scrupulous curiosity about mint, anise, and cummin, we may say that we have not the authentic language of Scripture; and that we cannot cherish the persuasion that we have in the New Testament the words of a message dictated by the Holy Ghost.

But, when we come to examine the evidence of the case, we find, that, after the elimination of manifest errors of copyists, and after the application of the rules of sound criticism to the revision of the Text, the verbal discrepancies of our Manuscripts of the New Testament are so slight and trivial, as scarcely to be of any account.

Besides, these discrepancies, being such as they are found to be, are of inestimable value. They show that there has been no collusion among our witnesses, and that our Manuscript copies of the Gospels, about five hundred in number, and brought to us from all parts of the world, have not been mutilated or interpolated, with any sinister design, that they have not been tampered with by any religious sect, for the sake of propagating any private opinion as the Word of God. These discrepancies are, in fact, evidences of the purity and integrity of the Sacred Text. They show that the Scriptures which we now hold in our hands, in the nineteenth century, are identical with those which were received by the Church in the first century as written by the Holy Ghost.

Indeed, the Various Readings of the Text of Holy Scripture are a striking proof of God's providential care watching over the Text of Holy Scripture. For whence do they arise? From the vast number of ancient Manuscripts of the

[1] See the observations of a very eminent scholar, L. C. Valckenaer, on this subject in his note on Luke i. 54:—"De millenis Lectionibus codicum MSS. observetur hâc occasione, maximam earum partem nihil aliud esse, nisi diversam pronunciationem Librariorum, αι and ε, οι and ι, præter cetera, promiscuè pronunciantium. Magna pars Lectionum perexigui est momenti, et ejusdem generis, cujus hæc est; perpaucæ dantur, inter millenas, quæ sententiam valdè immutent; nulla omnino, quæ ullo pacto noceat auctoritati divinæ horum scriptorum, aut Religionem ullâ parte labefactet."

Ibid. ix. 44:—"In universum observetur, inter millenas illas varias lectiones è Codd. scriptis N. T. collectas, quæ adeo videntur nonnullis terriculo, admodum paucas dari, quæ alicujus sint momenti; multò adhuc pauciores, quæ sensum immutent. Pleræque omnes sunt scribarum aberrationes, leves admodum; ortæ autem sæpius è differentiâ quâdam pronunciandi, et pænè indignæ quæ à nobis tanto studio annotentur."

Scriptures, a number far exceeding in amount that of any other ancient Book in the world. If there were only a few MSS. of the Scriptures, there would be few Various Readings; and "if there was only one Manuscript, there would be no Various Readings at all[1]." And then how precarious and uncertain would be the foundations of our faith!

[1] The remarks of Dr. Bentley on this subject cannot be too generally read at the present time, when from the recent collations of MSS. some may be staggered by the vast multitude of Various Readings in the sacred text:—

"If there had been but one Manuscript of the Greek Testament at the restoration of learning about two centuries ago, then we had had no Various Readings at all. And would the Text be in a better condition then, than now we have 30,000? So far from that, that in the best single Copy extant we should have had hundreds of faults, and some omissions irreparable. Besides that the suspicions of fraud and foul play would have been increased immensely. It is good therefore, you'll allow, to have more anchors than one; and another MS. to join with the first would give more authority, as well as security. Now chuse that second where you will, there shall still be a thousand variations from the first, and yet half or more of the faults shall still remain in them both.

"A third therefore, and so a fourth, and still on, are desirable; that by a joint and mutual help, all the faults may be mended: some Copy preserving the true reading in one place, and some in another. And yet the more Copies you call to assistance, the more do the Various Readings multiply upon you: every Copy having its peculiar slips, tho' in a principal passage or two it do singular service.

"And this is fact, not only in the New Testament, but in all antient books whatever.

"It is a good Providence and a great blessing, that so many Manuscripts of the New Testament are still amongst us, some procured from Ægypt, others from Asia, others found in the Western Churches. For the very distances of places as well as numbers of the books demonstrate, that there could be no collusion, no altering nor interpolating one Copy by another, nor all by any of them.

"In profane authors (as they are call'd) whereof one Manuscript only had the luck to be preserv'd, as Velleius Paterculus among the Latins and Hesychius among the Greeks, the faults of the scribes are found so numerous, and the defects so beyond all redress, that notwithstanding the pains of the learned'st and acutest critics for two whole centuries, those books still are and are like to continue a mere heap of errors.

"On the contrary, where the Copies of any author are numerous, tho' the Various Readings always increase in proportion, there the text, by an accurate collation of them made by skilful and judicious hands, is ever the more correct, and comes nearer to the true words of the author. In the Manuscripts of the New Testament the variations have been noted with a religious, not to say superstitious exactness. Every difference, in spelling, in the smallest particle or article of speech, in the very order or collocation of words without real change, has been studiously registered.

"Nor has the text only been ransacked, but all the Antient Versions, the Latin Vulgate, Italic, Syriac, Æthiopic, Arabic, Coptic, Armenian, Gothic, and Saxon; nor these only, but all the dispersed citations of the Greek and Latin Fathers in a course of 500 years. What wonder then, if, with all this scrupulous search in every hole and corner, the varieties rise to 30,000? when in all antient books of the same bulk, whereof the MSS. are numerous, the variations are as many or more; and yet no Versions to swell the reckoning?

"And yet in these and all other books, the text is not made more precarious on that account, but more certain and authentic.

"The present text was first settled almost 200 years ago, out of several MSS. by Robert Stephens, a printer and bookseller at Paris, whose beautiful and (generally speaking) accurate edition has been ever since counted the standard, and followed by all the rest. Now this specific text in your doctor's notion seems taken for the sacred original in every word and syllable; and if the conceit is but spread and propagated, within a few years that printer's infallibility will be as zealously maintained as an Evangelist's or Apostle's.

"Dr. Mill, were he alive, would confess that this text fix'd by a printer is sometimes by the various readings rendered uncertain, nay is proved certainly wrong. But then he would subjoin, That the real text of the sacred writer does not now (since the originals have been so long lost) lie in any single MS. or Edition, but is dispers'd in them all. 'Tis competently exact, even in the worst MS. now extant; nor is one article of faith, or moral precept either perverted or lost in them; chuse as

As was observed above, it has not pleased Almighty God to preserve to us the Original Autographs of the Apostles and Evangelists. But He has preserved to us many hundreds of ancient Manuscripts of the New Testament written in all parts of the world. And may we not say, that He has thus given us a stronger assurance of the integrity of the Text of the New Testament, than even if we had the Autographs themselves?

For it might be alleged, that the Autographs were not genuine, or that they had been tampered with; and it would not have been an easy task to refute such an allegation. But what are these countless ancient Manuscripts coming to us from every quarter of Christendom? Guardians of the Text of Scripture, Witnesses to us of its purity in all essentials, in which they all agree. And, in the comparatively insignificant minutiæ in which they differ, they afford the means, by their number and variety, of adjusting these differences, and of settling the True Text of Scripture. And as it is the province of the Church of Christ to protect and declare the true sense of Scripture, so it is the office of a sound and sober Criticism to defend and promulge the true letter of Scripture; and by its means we may rest assured that in reading Scripture we are receiving divinely-inspired doctrine, and are not reading words which man's wisdom teacheth, but words which the Holy Ghost teacheth[1].

Thus it appears even from the Various Readings themselves, that the letter of Scripture, no less than the substance, has been guarded and authenticated by the power and goodness of God.

One word, in fine, concerning that letter.

Some appear to disparage the style of Scripture as barbarous. Some apologize for it as the work of illiterate and unlearned men. Surely these notions are false and dangerous. The diction of Scripture, it is true, is not the language of any other composition in the world. The Greek of the New Testament is not the Greek of Xenophon, Plato, or Demosthenes. It is a language of its own. And we need not scruple to affirm that, in precision of expression, in pure and native simplicity, in delicacy of handling, in the grouping of words and phrases, in dignified and majestic sublimity, it has no rival in the world.

The more carefully it is studied, the more clearly will this appear. "Nihil otiosum in Sacrâ Scripturâ[2]." Every sentence—we might almost say every phrase—is fraught with meaning. As it is in the book of nature, so is it in the pages of Holy Writ. Both are from the same Divine Hand. And if we apply to the language of Holy Scripture the same microscopic process, which we use in scrutinizing the beauties of the natural world, and which reveals to us exquisite colours and the most graceful texture, in the petals of a flower, the fibres of a plant, awkwardly as you can, chuse the worst by design out of the whole lump of readings. But the lesser matters of diction, and among several synonymous expressions the very words of the writer, must be found out by the same industry and sagacity that is used in other books; must not be risk'd upon the credit of any particular MS. or Edition, but be sought, acknowledg'd, and challenged wherever they are met with." (Bentley, Discourse on Freethinking, pp. 90—97. Cambridge, 1743.)

[1] 1 Cor. ii. 13.

[2] Origen. in Epist. ad Roman. c. 1.

the plumage of a bird, or the wings of an insect, we shall discover new sources of delight and admiration in the least portions of Holy Writ, and believe that it may be one of the employments of Angels and beatified Saints, in another state of existence, to gaze on the glorious mysteries of God's Holy Word.

ON THE AMMONIAN SECTIONS

AND

THE EUSEBIAN CANONS OF THE FOUR GOSPELS.

In the middle of the third century Ammonius divided the Gospels into Sections, for the purpose of constructing a Harmony, in which the four narratives might be combined.

The numbers which denote these Ammonian Sections are often found in the margin of MSS. of the Greek Testament.

In the following century the celebrated Historian of the Church, Eusebius, Bishop of Cæsarea, drew up the Tables which are commonly called his Canons. In these, the Ammonian Sections are so distributed as to show in a tabular form what portions of the other Evangelists correspond to that Gospel which stands first in order in each Canon. They exhibit as follows:

I.	Sections found in all the four Gospels.
II.	Sections common to three;			Matthew, Mark, and Luke.
III.	,,	,,	,,	Matthew, Luke, and John.
IV.	,,	,,	,,	Matthew, Mark, and John.
V.	Sections common to two;			Matthew and Luke.
VI.	,,	,,	,,	Matthew and Mark.
VII.	,,	,,	,,	Matthew and John.
VIII.	,,	,,	,,	Mark and Luke.
IX.	,,	,,	,,	Luke and John.
X.	Sections in which each several Gospel contains matter peculiar to itself.

The numbers of the Canons were subjoined by Eusebius to the Ammonian Sections[1] as they stood in the margin of a Greek copy of the Gospels; hence they became generally known and used.

[1] In his Epistle to Carpianus; which may be seen in Bp. Lloyd's edition of the N. T. p. xv. It is as follows:—

Εὐσέβιος Καρπιανῷ ἀγαπητῷ ἀδελφῷ ἐν Κυρίῳ χαίρειν.

ΑΜΜΩΝΙΟΣ μὲν ὁ Ἀλεξανδρεὺς, πολλὴν, ὡς εἰκὸς, φιλοπονίαν καὶ σπουδὴν εἰσαγηοχὼς, τὸ διὰ τεσσάρων ἡμῖν καταλέλοιπεν εὐαγγέλιον, τῷ κατὰ Ματθαῖον τὰς ὁμοφώνους τῶν λοιπῶν εὐαγγελιστῶν περικοπὰς παραθεὶς, ὡς ἐξ ἀνάγκης συμβῆναι τὸν τῆς ἀκολουθίας εἱρμὸν τῶν τριῶν διαφθαρῆναι, ὅσον ἐπὶ τῷ ὄφει τῆς ἀναγνώσεως. Ἵνα δὲ σωζομένου καὶ τοῦ τῶν λοιπῶν δι' ὅλου σώματός τε καὶ εἱρμοῦ, εἰδέναι ἔχοις τοὺς οἰκείους ἑκάστου εὐαγγελιστοῦ τόπους, ἐν οἷς κατὰ τῶν αὐτῶν ἠνέχθησαν φιλαλήθως εἰπεῖν, ἐκ τοῦ πονήματος τοῦ προειρημένου ἀνδρὸς εἰληφὼς ἀφορμὰς, καθ' ἑτέραν μέθοδον κανόνας δέκα τὸν ἀριθμὸν διεχάραξά σοι τοὺς ὑποτεταγμένους·

Ὧν ὁ μὲν πρῶτος περιέχει ἀριθμοὺς ἐν οἷς τὰ παραπλήσια εἰρήκασιν οἱ τέσσαρες, Ματθαῖος, Μάρκος, Λουκᾶς, Ἰωάννης.

Ὁ δεύτερος, ἐν ᾧ οἱ τρεῖς, Ματθαῖος, Μάρκος, Λουκᾶς.

Ὁ τρίτος, ἐν ᾧ οἱ τρεῖς, Ματθαῖος, Λουκᾶς, Ἰωάννης.

Ὁ τέταρτος, ἐν ᾧ οἱ τρεῖς, Ματθαῖος, Μάρκος, Ἰωάννης.

Ὁ πέμπτος, ἐν ᾧ οἱ δύο, Ματθαῖος, Λουκᾶς. Ὁ ἕκτος, ἐν ᾧ οἱ δύο, Ματθαῖος, Μάρκος.

Ὁ ἕβδομος, ἐν ᾧ οἱ δύο, Ματθαῖος, Ἰωάννης.

Ὁ ὄγδοος, ἐν ᾧ οἱ δύο, Λουκᾶς, Μάρκος.

Ὁ ἔνατος, ἐν ᾧ οἱ δύο, Λουκᾶς, Ἰωάννης.

Ὁ δέκατος, ἐν ᾧ περὶ τίνων ἕκαστος αὐτῶν ἰδίως ἀνέγραψεν.

Αὕτη μὲν οὖν ἡ τῶν ὑποτεταγμένων κανόνων ὑπόθεσις· ἡ δὲ σαφὴς αὐτῶν διήγησις, ἔστιν ἥδε. Ἐφ' ἑκάστῳ τῶν τεσσάρων εὐαγγελίων ἀριθμός τις πρόκειται κατὰ μέρος, ἀρχόμενος ἀπὸ τοῦ πρώτου, εἶτα δευτέρου, καὶ τρίτου, καὶ καθεξῆς προϊὼν δι' ὅλου μέχρι τοῦ τέλους τοῦ βιβλίου. Καθ' ἕκαστον δὲ ἀριθμὸν ὑποσημείωσις διὰ κινναβάρεως πρόκειται, δηλοῦσα ἐν ποίῳ τῶν δέκα κανόνων κείμενος ὁ ἀριθμὸς τυγχάνει. οἷον εἰ μὲν Α', δῆλον ὡς ἐν τῷ πρώτῳ· εἰ δὲ Β', ἐν τῷ δευτέρῳ· καὶ οὕτω καθεξῆς μέχρι τῶν δέκα. εἰ οὖν ἀναπτύξας ἔν τι τῶν τεσσάρων εὐαγγελίων ὁποιονδήποτε, βουληθείης ἐπιστῆναί τινι ᾧ βούλει κεφαλαίῳ, καὶ γνῶναι τίνες τὰ παραπλήσια εἰρήκασι, καὶ τοὺς οἰκείους ἐν ἑκάστῳ τόπους εὑρεῖν, ἐν οἷς κατὰ τῶν αὐτῶν ἠνέχθησαν, ἧς ἐπέχεις περικοπῆς ἀναλαβὼν τὸν προκείμενον ἀριθμὸν, ἐπιζητήσας τε αὐτὸν ἔνδον ἐν τῷ κανόνι, ὃν ἡ διὰ τοῦ κινναβάρεως ὑποσημείωσις ὑποβέβληκεν, εἶσῃ μὲν εὐθὺς ἐκ τῶν ἐπὶ μετώπου τοῦ κανόνος προγραφῶν, ὁπόσοι καὶ τίνες τὰ παραπλήσια εἰρήκασιν· ἐπιστήσας δὲ καὶ τοῖς τῶν λοιπῶν εὐαγγελίων ἀριθμοῖς τοῖς ἐν τῷ κανόνι ᾧ ἐπέχεις ἀριθμῷ παρακειμένοις, ἐπιζητήσας τε αὐτοὺς ἔνδον ἐν τοῖς οἰκείοις ἑκάστου εὐαγγελίου τόποις, τὰ παραπλήσια λέγοντας εὑρήσεις.

Then follow the X Canons.

In some MSS. they appear as placed by Eusebius; in others, the Ammonian Sections alone are found in the margin, while at the foot of the page those numbers are repeated with a short Table of the Sections in the other Gospels which correspond.

This latter plan has its convenience that the Sections are mentioned, not in the order of Matthew (or whichever Evangelist happens to be first in each particular Canon), but in connexion with each Gospel.

An inconvenience has been found in using the Tables as they generally stand, when the student wished to compare a Section in one of the Gospels with the others, unless the Section be in St. Matthew, or in that Gospel which stands first in those parts of the Table which do not comprise the first Gospel.

Thus, if we would compare the 74th Section of St. Luke (as there marked on the margin) with the other Evangelists, we have to search for that number through the first Table, where we find it between 260 and 269, and we then see that it corresponds to 276 in Matthew, 158 in Mark, and 98 in John.

In order to remove this inconvenience, an endeavour has been made[1] to arrange the Canons in such a manner as will combine the advantages of a Table, and of seeing the Sections of each Gospel arranged in its own order.

For this purpose, the Greek numerals being exchanged for those in common use, the Canons are here repeated, as often as is necessary, so as to allow each Gospel to take the lead: thus Canon I. is given four times, with the Sections of each Gospel in their own order; Canons II., III., and IV. are given three times; Canons V., VI., VII., VIII., and IX. are given twice.

By means of the Sections and Canons thus arranged, the reader is able at once to compare parallel statements in the Gospels. They also show to the eye the transpositions, &c., of events as narrated by the different Evangelists, and what each Evangelist has in common with all the others, or with how many of them, as well as peculiar to himself.

For greater facility of reference, the Greek numerals (used by Eusebius) have been exchanged for those in modern use, and will be found in the text of the present Edition.

For examples of the use of these Canons (which are of great value to the student of the Gospels), the reader may turn to Luke xi. 1—4. He there sees $\frac{\text{IIIC}}{\text{V}}$ in the margin; he turns to Table V. in the order of Luke (see below, p. xxxiii.), and at 123 he finds Matt. 43, and he thence learns that the parallel Section will be found marked 43 in order in the text of St. Matthew.

Again, in the text of John xviii. 28 he sees $\frac{\text{IPH}}{\text{I}}$, and thence knows that this Section will be found in all the other Evangelists; and by turning to Canon I. (in the order of St. John), No. 176, he sees where the parallel Sections are in the other Gospels.

[1] This suggestion was first made in Messrs. Bagster's handsome Edition of the Greek Testament; from which some of the above paragraphs are derived. In the present Volume, the numerals of the Sections are transferred from the margin to the text, where they are enclosed in brackets.

CANONS OF EUSEBIUS.

CANONS I., II., III., IV., V., VI., VII., X., IN THE ORDER OF MATTHEW.

Canon I., containing the IV. Gospels.

Mat.	Mar.	Lu.	Jno.	Mat.	Mar.	Lu.	Jno.	Mat.	Mar.	Lu.	Jno.	Mat.	Mar.	Lu.	Jno.
8	2	7	10	141	50	19	59	284	165	266	65	320	200	302	178
11	4	10	6	142	51	21	35	284	165	266	67	320	200	302	180
11	4	10	12	147	64	93	49	289	170	275	126	325	204	310	184
11	4	10	14	166	82	94	17	291	172	279	156	326	205	311	188
11	4	10	28	166	82	94	74	294	175	281	161	326	205	313	194
14	5	13	15	209	119	234	100	295	176	282	42	328	206	314	196
23	27	17	46	211	121	238	21	295	176	282	57	331	209	315	197
23	27	34	46	220	122	239	77	300	181	285	79	332	210	318	197
23	27	45	46	220	129	242	85	300	181	285	158	334	212	321	201
70	20	37	38	220	129	261	88	302	183	287	160	335	214	324	199
87	139	250	141	244	139	250	141	304	184	289	170	336	215	317	198
87	139	250	146	244	139	250	146	306	187	290	162	336	215	319	198
98	96	116	40	274	156	260	20	306	187	290	174	343	223	329	204
98	96	116	111	274	156	260	48	310	191	297	69	348	227	332	206
98	96	116	120	274	156	260	96	313	194	294	172	349	228	333	208
98	96	116	129	276	158	74	98	314	195	291	166	352	231	336	209
98	96	116	131	280	162	269	122	314	195	291	168	352	231	336	211
98	96	116	144	284	165	266	55	315	196	292	175
133	37	77	109	284	165	266	63	318	199	300	176

Canon II., containing III. Gospels (Mat., Mark, Luke).

Mat.	Mar.	Lu.	Mat.	Mar.	Lu.	Mat.	Mar.	Lu.	Mat.	Mar.	Lu.	Mat.	Mar.	Lu.
15	6	15	85	55	88	153	69	36	206	117	232	281	163	268
21	10	32	85	55	114	164	79	144	208	118	233	285	166	265
31	102	185	88	141	148	168	83	95	217	127	240	285	166	267
32	39	79	88	141	251	168	83	206	219	128	241	296	177	280
32	39	133	92	40	80	170	85	96	223	130	243	296	177	284
50	41	56	94	86	97	172	87	98	225	134	245	301	182	286
62	13	4	94	86	146	174	91	99	226	133	244	308	189	305
62	13	24	103	1	70	176	93	101	229	135	137	312	193	209
63	18	33	114	24	41	178	95	102	229	135	246	316	197	293
67	15	26	116	25	42	178	95	217	242	137	237	317	198	295
69	47	83	116	25	165	179	99	197	242	137	248	322	202	309
71	21	38	116	25	177	190	105	195	243	138	249	338	218	322
72	22	39	121	32	127	192	106	216	248	143	209	339	219	325
72	22	186	122	33	129	193	107	121	248	143	253	340	220	327
73	23	40	123	34	147	193	107	218	249	144	254	342	222	323
74	49	85	130	35	82	194	108	152	251	146	255	344	224	328
76	52	169	131	36	76	194	108	219	253	148	204	346	225	330
79	29	86	135	38	78	195	109	220	258	150	257	353	232	337
80	30	44	137	44	167	198	110	221	259	151	258	354	233	338
82	53	87	143	57	90	199	111	173	264	155	156
82	53	110	144	59	12	201	112	222	269	154	228
83	54	87	149	66	35	203	114	270	271	42	230
83	54	112	149	66	43	205	116	224	278	160	263

Canon III., containing III. Gospels (Mat., Luke, John).

Mat.	Lu.	Jno.	Mat.	Lu.	Jno.	Mat.	Lu.	Jno.	Mat.	Lu.	Jno.	Mat.	Lu.	Jno.
1	14	1	59	63	116	111	119	30	112	119	61	112	119	154
1	14	3	64	65	37	111	119	114	112	119	76	146	92	47
1	14	5	90	58	118	111	119	148	112	119	87
7	6	2	90	58	139	112	119	8	112	119	90
7	6	25	97	211	105	112	119	44	112	119	142

Canon IV., containing III. Gospels (Mat., Mark, John).

Mat.	Mar.	Jno.	Mat.	Mar.	Jno.	Mat.	Mar.	Jno.	Mat.	Mar.	Jno.	Mat.	Mar.	Jno.
18	8	26	161	77	53	216	125	137	287	168	152	321	201	192
117	26	93	204	115	91	216	125	150	293	174	107	323	203	183
117	26	95	204	115	135	277	159	98	297	178	70	329	207	185
150	67	51	216	125	128	279	161	72	299	180	103	329	207	187
161	77	23	216	125	133	279	161	121	307	188	164	333	211	203

Canon V., containing II. Gospels (Mat., Luke).

Mat.	Lu.	Mat.	Lu.	Mat.	Lu.	Mat.	Lu.	Mat.	Lu.	Mat.	Lu.	Mat.	Lu.
3	2	41	55	60	171	102	69	134	120	221	181	256	205
10	8	43	123	61	64	104	71	138	168	228	139	257	213
12	11	46	153	65	172	105	193	156	57	231	179	261	207
16	16	47	134	66	66	107	73	158	226	231	215	262	212
25	46	48	191	68	105	108	115	162	161	232	142	265	157
27	48	49	150	78	108	110	118	175	200	234	136	266	155
28	47	51	59	84	111	119	126	182	187	236	135	266	157
30	49	53	125	86	109	125	62	182	189	237	138	267	158
34	194	54	54	93	145	127	128	183	198	238	140	270	229
36	162	55	170	95	160	128	132	187	199	240	141	272	231
38	53	57	61	96	182	129	130	197	272	241	175
40	52	58	60	96	184	132	81	213	235	255	202

Canon VI., containing II. Gospels (Mat., Mark).

Mat.	Mar.	Mat.	Mar.	Mat.	Mar.	Mat.	Mar.	Mat.	Mar.	Mat.	Mar.	Mat.	Mar.
9	3	139	45	160	76	202	113	252	147	288	169	330	208
17	7	145	60	163	78	214	120	254	149	290	171	337	217
20	9	148	65	165	80	215	124	260	152	292	173	341	221
22	11	152	68	169	84	224	131	263	153	298	179	347	226
44	126	154	71	173	89	246	140	275	157	305	185	350	229
77	63	157	72	180	100	247	142	282	164	309	190
100	98	159	73	189	103	250	145	286	167	311	192

Canon VII., containing II. Gospels (Mat., John).

Mat.	Jno.	Mat.	Jno.	Mat.	Jno.	Mat.	Jno.
5	83	19	32	120	82	207	101
19	19	19	34	185	215

Canon X., Matthew only.

2	33	56	106	136	181	210	235	319
4	35	75	109	140	184	212	239	324
6	37	81	113	151	186	218	245	327
13	39	89	115	155	188	222	268	345
24	42	91	118	167	191	227	273	351
26	45	99	124	171	196	230	283	355
29	52	101	126	177	200	233	303

II.—CANONS I., II., IV., VI., VIII., X., IN THE ORDER OF MARK.

Canon I., containing the IV. Gospels.

Mar.	Mat.	Lu.	Jno.	Mar.	Mat.	Lu.	Jno.	Mar.	Mat.	Lu.	Jno.	Mar.	Mat.	Lu.	Jno.
2	8	7	10	96	98	116	129	165	284	266	65	200	320	302	178
4	11	10	6	96	98	116	131	165	284	266	67	200	320	302	180
4	11	10	12	96	98	116	144	170	289	275	126	204	325	310	184
4	11	10	14	119	209	234	100	172	291	279	156	205	326	311	188
4	11	10	28	121	211	238	21	175	294	281	161	205	326	313	194
5	14	13	15	122	220	239	77	176	295	282	42	206	328	314	196
20	70	37	38	129	220	242	85	176	295	282	57	209	331	315	197
27	23	17	46	129	220	261	88	181	300	285	79	210	332	318	197
27	23	34	46	139	87	250	141	181	300	285	158	212	334	321	201
27	23	45	46	139	87	250	146	183	302	287	160	214	335	324	199
37	133	77	109	139	244	250	141	184	304	289	170	215	336	317	198
50	141	19	59	139	244	250	146	187	306	290	162	215	336	319	198
51	142	21	35	156	274	260	20	187	306	290	174	223	343	329	204
64	147	93	49	156	274	260	48	191	310	297	69	227	348	332	206
82	166	94	17	156	274	260	96	194	313	294	172	228	349	333	208
82	166	94	74	158	276	74	98	195	314	291	166	231	352	336	209
96	98	116	40	162	280	269	122	195	314	291	168	231	352	336	211
96	98	116	111	165	284	266	55	196	315	292	175
96	98	116	120	165	284	266	63	199	318	300	176

Canon II., containing III. Gospels (Mark, Mat., Luke).

Mar.	Mat.	Lu.	Mar.	Mat.	Lu.	Mar.	Mat.	Lu.	Mar.	Mat.	Lu.	Mar.	Mat.	Lu.
1	103	70	39	32	79	85	170	96	118	208	233	163	281	268
6	15	15	39	32	133	86	94	97	127	217	240	166	285	265
10	21	32	40	92	80	86	94	146	128	219	241	166	285	267
13	62	4	41	50	56	87	172	98	130	223	243	177	296	280
13	62	24	42	271	230	91	174	99	133	226	244	177	296	284
15	67	26	44	137	167	93	176	101	134	225	245	182	301	286
18	63	33	47	69	83	95	178	102	135	229	137	189	308	305
21	71	38	49	74	85	95	178	217	135	229	246	193	312	299
22	72	39	52	76	169	99	179	197	137	242	237	197	316	293
22	72	186	53	82	87	102	31	185	137	242	248	198	317	295
23	73	40	53	82	110	105	190	195	138	243	249	202	322	309
24	114	41	54	83	87	106	192	216	141	88	148	218	338	322
25	116	42	54	83	112	107	193	121	141	88	251	219	339	325
25	116	165	55	85	88	107	193	218	143	248	209	220	340	327
25	116	177	55	85	114	108	194	152	143	248	253	222	342	323
29	79	86	57	143	90	108	194	219	144	249	254	224	344	328
30	80	44	59	144	12	109	195	220	146	251	255	225	346	330
32	121	127	66	149	35	110	198	221	148	253	204	232	353	337
33	122	129	66	149	43	111	199	173	150	258	257	233	354	338
34	123	147	69	153	36	112	201	222	151	259	258
35	130	82	79	164	144	114	203	270	155	264	156
36	131	76	83	168	95	116	205	224	154	269	228
38	135	78	83	168	206	117	206	232	160	278	263

Canon IV., containing III. Gospels (Mark, Mat., John).

Mar.	Mat.	Jno.	Mar.	Mat.	Jno.	Mar.	Mat.	Jno.	Mar.	Mat.	Jno.	Mar.	Mat.	Jno.
8	18	26	77	161	53	125	216	137	168	287	152	201	321	192
26	117	93	115	204	91	125	216	150	174	293	107	203	323	183
26	117	95	115	204	135	159	277	98	178	297	70	207	329	185
67	150	51	125	216	128	161	279	72	180	299	103	207	329	187
77	161	23	125	216	133	161	279	121	188	307	164	211	333	203

Canon VI., containing II. Gospels (Mark, Mat.).

Mar.	Mat.	Mar.	Mat.	Mar.	Mat.	Mar.	Mat.	Mar.	Mat.	Mar.	Mat.	Mar.	Mat.
3	9	65	148	80	165	120	214	147	252	169	288	208	330
7	17	68	152	84	169	124	215	149	254	171	290	217	337
9	20	71	154	89	173	126	44	152	260	173	292	221	341
11	22	72	157	98	100	131	224	153	263	179	298	226	347
45	139	73	159	100	180	140	246	157	275	185	305	229	350
60	145	76	160	103	189	142	247	164	282	190	309
63	77	78	163	113	202	145	250	167	286	192	311

Canon VIII., containing II. Gospels (Mark, Luke).

Mar.	Lu.	Mar.	Lu.	Mar.	Lu.	Mar.	Lu.	Mar.	Lu.
12	23	17	28	56	89	97	103	230	335
14	25	28	27	61	91	136	247
16	27	48	84	75	100	216	277

Canon X., Mark only.

19	58	81	94	132
31	62	88	101	186
43	70	90	104	213
46	74	92	123

III.—CANONS I., II., III., V., VIII., IX., X., IN THE ORDER OF LUKE.

Canon I., containing the IV. Gospels.

Lu.	Mat.	Mar.	Jno.	Lu.	Mat.	Mar.	Jno.	Lu.	Mat.	Mar.	Jno.	Lu.	Mat.	Mar.	Jno.
7	8	2	10	116	98	96	120	266	284	165	67	302	320	200	178
10	11	4	6	116	98	96	129	269	280	162	122	302	320	200	180
10	11	4	12	116	98	96	131	275	289	170	126	310	325	204	184
10	11	4	14	116	98	96	144	279	291	172	156	311	326	205	188
10	11	4	28	234	209	119	100	281	294	175	161	313	326	205	194
13	14	5	15	238	211	121	21	282	295	176	42	314	328	206	196
17	23	27	46	239	220	122	77	282	295	176	57	315	331	209	197
19	141	50	59	242	220	129	85	285	300	181	79	317	336	215	198
21	142	51	35	250	87	139	141	285	300	181	158	318	332	210	197
34	23	27	46	250	87	139	146	287	302	183	160	319	336	215	198
37	70	20	38	250	244	139	141	289	304	184	170	321	334	212	201
45	23	27	46	250	244	139	146	290	306	187	162	324	335	214	199
74	276	158	98	260	274	156	20	290	306	187	174	329	343	223	204
77	133	37	109	260	274	156	48	291	314	195	166	332	348	227	206
93	147	64	49	260	274	156	96	291	314	195	168	333	349	228	208
94	166	82	17	261	220	129	88	292	315	196	175	336	352	231	209
94	166	82	74	266	284	165	55	297	310	191	69	336	352	231	211
116	98	96	40	266	284	165	63	294	313	194	172
116	98	96	111	266	284	165	65	300	318	199	176

Canon II., containing III. Gospels (Luke, Mat., Mark).

Lu.	Mat.	Mar.	Lu.	Mat.	Mar.	Lu.	Mat.	Mar.	Lu.	Mat.	Mar.	Lu.	Mat.	Mar.
4	62	13	83	69	47	146	94	86	222	201	112	267	285	166
12	144	59	85	74	49	147	123	34	224	205	116	268	281	163
15	15	6	86	79	29	148	88	141	228	269	154	270	203	114
24	62	13	87	82	53	152	194	108	230	271	42	280	296	177
26	67	15	87	83	54	156	264	155	232	206	117	284	296	177
32	21	10	88	85	55	165	116	25	233	208	118	286	301	182
33	63	18	90	143	57	167	137	44	237	242	137	293	316	197
35	149	66	95	168	83	169	76	52	240	217	127	295	317	198
36	153	69	96	170	85	173	199	111	241	219	128	299	312	193
38	71	21	97	94	86	177	116	25	243	223	130	305	308	189
39	72	22	98	172	87	185	31	102	244	226	133	309	322	202
40	73	23	99	174	91	186	72	22	245	225	134	322	338	218
41	114	24	101	176	93	195	190	105	246	229	135	323	342	222
42	116	25	102	178	95	197	179	99	248	242	137	325	339	219
43	149	66	110	82	53	204	253	148	249	343	138	327	340	220
44	80	30	112	83	54	206	168	83	251	88	141	328	344	224
56	50	41	114	85	55	209	248	143	253	248	143	330	346	225
70	103	1	121	193	107	216	192	106	254	249	144	337	353	232
76	131	36	127	121	32	217	178	95	255	251	146	338	354	233
78	135	38	129	122	33	218	193	107	257	258	150
79	32	39	133	32	39	219	194	108	258	259	151
80	92	40	137	229	135	220	195	109	263	278	160
82	130	35	144	164	79	221	198	110	265	285	166

Canon III., containing III. Gospels (Luke, Mat., John).

Lu.	Mat.	Jno.	Lu.	Mat.	Jno.	Lu.	Mat.	Jno.	Lu.	Mat.	Jno.	Lu.	Mat.	Jno.
6	7	2	58	90	118	119	111	30	119	112	61	119	118	154
6	7	25	58	90	139	119	111	114	119	112	76	211	97	105
14	1	1	63	59	116	119	111	148	119	112	87
14	1	3	65	64	37	119	112	8	119	112	90
14	1	5	92	146	47	119	112	44	119	112	142

Canon V., containing II. Gospels (Luke, Mat.).

Lu.	Mat.	Lu.	Mat.	Lu.	Mat.	Lu.	Mat.	Lu.	Mat.	Lu.	Mat.	Lu.	Mat.
2	3	57	156	108	78	134	47	157	265	181	231	205	256
8	10	59	51	109	86	135	236	157	266	182	96	207	261
11	12	60	58	111	84	136	234	158	267	184	96	212	262
16	16	61	57	115	108	138	237	160	95	187	182	213	257
46	25	62	125	118	110	139	228	161	162	189	182	215	231
47	28	64	61	120	134	140	238	162	36	191	48	226	158
48	27	66	66	123	43	141	240	168	138	193	105	229	270
49	30	69	102	125	53	142	232	170	55	194	34	231	272
52	40	71	104	126	119	145	93	171	60	198	183	335	213
53	38	73	107	128	127	150	49	172	65	199	187	272	197
54	54	81	132	130	129	153	46	175	241	200	175
55	41	105	68	132	128	155	266	179	231	202	255

Canon VIII. containing II. Gospels (Luke, Mark).

Lu.	Mar.	Lu.	Mar.	Lu.	Mar.	Lu.	Mar.	Lu.	Mar.
23	12	27	28	89	56	103	97	335	230
25	14	28	17	91	61	247	136
27	16	84	48	100	75	277	216

Canon IX., containing II. Gospels (Luke, John).

Lu.	Jno.	Lu.	Jno.	Lu.	Jno.	Lu.	Jno.	Lu.	Jno.	Lu.	Jno.
30	219	274	227	303	186	307	190	340	213	341	225
30	222	274	229	303	190	312	182	340	217
262	113	274	231	307	182	312	186	341	221
262	124	303	182	307	186	312	190	341	223

Canon X., Luke only.

1	31	106	149	176	201	236	278	308
3	50	107	151	178	203	252	283	316
5	51	113	154	180	208	256	288	320
9	67	117	159	183	210	259	296	326
18	68	122	163	188	214	264	298	331
20	72	124	164	190	223	271	301	334
22	75	131	166	192	225	273	304	339
29	104	143	174	196	227	276	306	342

IV.—CANONS I., III., IV., VII., IX., X., IN THE ORDER OF JOHN.

Canon I., containing the IV. Gospels.

Jno.	Mat.	Mar.	Lu.	Jno.	Mat.	Mar.	Lu.	Jno.	Mat.	Mar.	Lu.	Jno.	Mat.	Mar.	Lu.
6	11	4	10	57	295	176	282	129	98	96	116	178	320	200	302
10	8	2	7	59	141	50	19	131	98	96	116	180	320	200	302
12	11	4	10	63	284	165	266	141	87	139	250	184	325	204	310
14	11	4	10	65	284	165	266	141	244	139	250	188	326	205	311
15	14	5	13	67	284	165	266	144	98	96	116	194	326	205	313
17	166	82	94	69	310	191	297	146	87	139	250	196	328	206	314
20	274	156	260	74	166	82	94	146	244	139	250	197	331	209	315
21	211	121	238	77	220	122	239	156	291	172	279	197	332	210	318
28	11	4	10	79	300	181	285	158	300	181	285	198	336	215	317
35	142	51	21	85	220	129	242	160	302	183	287	198	336	215	319
38	70	20	37	88	220	129	261	161	294	175	281	199	335	214	324
40	98	96	116	96	274	156	260	162	306	187	290	201	334	212	321
42	295	176	282	98	276	158	74	166	314	195	291	204	343	223	329
46	23	27	17	100	209	119	234	168	314	195	291	206	348	227	332
46	23	27	34	109	133	87	77	170	304	184	289	208	349	228	333
46	23	27	45	111	98	96	116	172	313	194	294	209	352	231	336
48	274	156	260	120	98	96	116	174	306	187	290	211	352	331	336
49	147	64	93	122	280	162	269	175	315	196	292
55	284	165	266	126	289	170	275	176	318	199	300

Canon III., containing III. Gospels (John, Mat., Luke).

Jno.	Mat.	Lu.	Jno.	Mat.	Lu.	Jno.	Mat.	Lu.	Jno.	Mat.	Lu.	Jno.	Mat.	Lu.
1	1	14	25	7	6	61	112	119	114	111	119	148	111	119
2	7	6	30	111	119	76	112	119	116	59	63	154	112	119
3	1	14	37	64	65	87	112	119	118	90	58
5	1	14	44	112	119	90	112	119	139	90	58
8	112	119	47	146	92	105	97	211	142	112	119

Canon IV., containing III. Gospels (John, Mat., Mark).

Jno.	Mat.	Mar.	Jno.	Mat.	Mar.	Jno.	Mat.	Mar.	Jno.	Mat.	Mar.	Jno.	Mat.	Mar.
23	161	77	72	279	161	103	299	180	135	204	115	183	323	203
26	18	8	91	204	115	107	293	174	137	216	125	185	329	207
51	150	67	93	117	26	121	279	161	150	216	125	187	329	207
53	161	77	95	117	26	128	216	125	152	287	168	192	321	201
70	297	178	98	277	159	133	216	125	164	307	188	203	333	211

Canon VII., containing II. Gospels (John, Mat.).

Jno.	Mat.	Jno.	Mat.	Jno.	Mat.	Jno.	Mat.
19	19	34	19	83	5	215	185
32	19	82	120	101	207

Canon IX., containing II. Gospels (John, Luke).

Jno.	Lu.	Jno.	Lu.	Jno.	Lu.	Jno.	Lu.	Jno.	Lu.	Jno.	Lu.
113	262	182	312	190	303	217	340	223	341	231	274
124	262	186	303	190	307	219	30	225	341
182	303	186	307	190	312	221	341	227	274
182	307	186	312	213	340	222	30	229	274

Canon X., John only.

4	31	58	81	108	134	157	189	216
7	33	60	84	110	136	159	191	218
9	36	62	86	112	138	163	193	220
11	39	64	89	115	140	165	195	224
13	41	66	92	117	143	167	200	226
16	43	68	94	119	145	169	202	228
18	45	71	97	123	147	171	205	230
22	50	73	99	125	149	173	207	232
24	52	75	102	127	151	177	210
27	54	78	104	130	153	179	212
29	56	80	106	132	155	181	214

ANCIENT GREEK MANUSCRIPTS OF THE NEW TESTAMENT

IN UNCIAL LETTERS.

On this subject see Wetstein, Prolegomena, p. 8, &c. Horne's Introduction, ii. p. 94, &c. Scholz, N. T., vol. i. p. xxxviii.; vol. ii. p. xxi. Tischendorf, Prolegom., ed. 1849, p. lvii. ed. 1856, pt. ii. Alford, Proleg., p. 83, and the valuable work of Tregelles on the Greek Text of N. T. pp. 129—174.

A Alexandrine, of IVth or Vth century, in British Museum, London; a facsimile published by C. G. Woide, Lond. 1786. Folio.

B 1. Vatican, of IVth or Vth century; in the Vatican at Rome, No. 1209. No accurate collation yet published. An Edition, grounded upon it, has been printed, but not published, by Cardinal Mai[1]. Cp. Tregelles, pp. 156. 172.

2. Codex Basilianus; see on the Apocalypse. A transcript published by Constantine Tischendorf in his "Monumenta Sacra." Lips. 1846, pp. 409—431.

C Codex Ephraem Syri rescriptus (Palimpsest), in Imperial Library at Paris. Num. 9. Vth century. Published by Constantine Tischendorf. Lips. 1843.

D 1. Codex Bezæ, Greek and Latin, of VIth or VIIth century?, contains the greater part of the Gospels and Acts of the Apostles; in the University Library at Cambridge. A facsimile published by Kipling, Cantabr. 1793. Fol.

2. Claromontanus, Greek and Latin, of VIth or VIIth century; at Paris, in Imperial Library; contains St. Paul's Epistles, except Rom. i. 1—7. Published by Tischendorf in 1852.

E 1. Basiliensis, VIIIth or IXth century; contains the Gospels, with the exception of some portions of St. Luke.

2. Laudianus, Greek and Latin, of VIth or VIIth century; in the Bodleian Library at Oxford; originally from Sardinia; contains the Acts of the Apostles. Published by Hearne, Oxon. 1715.

3. Sangermannensis, nunc Petropolitanus, of XIth century; a transcript of Codex D 2; contains St. Paul's Epistles, except 1 Tim. i. 1—6. 15. Heb. xii. 8—13. 25.

F 1. Codex Boreeli, now in the Public Library at Utrecht; contains the Gospels, except some portions of St. Matthew and St. Mark. Cp. Tregelles, p. 166.

2. Augiensis, IXth century?; purchased by Dr. Bentley in 1718, and now in Trin. Coll. Library, Cambridge; contains the greater part of St. Paul's Epistles; resembles "Codex Boernerianus," G 3. Cp. Bentley's Correspondence, p. 805.

F a. Coislinianus, at Paris; contains fragments of N. T.; VIIth century; published by Tischendorf, Mon. Sacr., pp. 403—405.

G 1. Seidelii Harleianus, XIth century; in British Museum; contains the greater part of the Gospels. Cp. Tregelles, p. 159.

2. Angelicæ Bibliothecæ, at Rome, IXth century; contains Acts and Catholic Epistles.

3. Boernerianus, IXth century, at Dresden; contains the greater part of St. Paul's Epistles. A transcript published by Matthæi. Misenæ, 1791. 4to. See above, F 2, and below, Δ. Cp. Tregelles, p. 165.

[1] "Monstravit mihi," says Tischendorf, N. T., p. lviii., "Angelus Mai anno 1843, volumina impressa quinque, quorum quatuor Vetus quinto Novum continetur Testamentum. Quæ editio, brevi opinor proditura, quamquam non erit ejusmodi ut ipsum Codicem accuratissimè exprimat, magnoperè tamen varias Codicis lectiones supplebit."

H 1. Seidelii, posteà La Crozii et Wolfii; XIth century; now at Hamburgh; contains the greater part of the Gospels. Cp. Tregelles, p. 163.
2. Mutinensis, IXth century; contains the greater part of the Acts of the Apostles.
3. Coislinianus, from Mount Athos; VIth or VIIth century; contains portions of St. Paul's Epistles; now in Imperial Library at Paris. A transcript published by Montfaucon in Bibl. Coisliniana, pp. 253—261. Paris, 1715.

I 1. Cottonianus, VIth or VIIth century; in British Museum; contains portions of St. Matthew and St. John. Published by Tischendorf in Mon. Sacr., pp. 12—20.
2. Angelicæ Bibliothecæ Romanæ; in the same volume as Codex G; contains St. Paul's Epistles.
3. Mosquensis, IXth century; from Mount Athos; contains Catholic Epistles.

K 1. Cyprius (brought from Cyprus in 1673); written in IXth century; now in Imperial Library at Paris; contains the Gospels.
2. Mosquensis, IXth century; contains St. Paul's Epistles.

L Paris. N. 62, VIIIth century; agrees generally with Codex Vaticanus; contains portions of the Gospels. Published by Tischendorf in Mon. Sacr., pp. 57—399.

M Paris. Codex Campensis N. 48, Xth century; four Gospels.

N Vindobonensis, VIIth century; in Imperial Library at Vienna; contains Luke xxiv. Published by Tischendorf, Mon. Sacr., pp. 21—24.

O (Scholzio) Montefalconii; contains Luke, cap. xviii.

O (Tischendorfio), Codex Mosquensis; contains fragments of St. John. Published by Matthæi as Cod. 15. Rigæ, 1785.

P Guelferbytanus 1, Palimpsest, VIth century; contains fragments of the Gospels. Published by Knittel. Brunov. 1762. 4to.

Q Guelferbytanus 2, Palimpsest, VIth century; contains fragments of St. Luke and St. John. Published by Knittel. Brunov. 1762. 4to.

R (Scholzio) Tubingencensis, VIIth century; contains part of St. John, cap. i. Published by Reuss.

R (Tischendorfio) Neapolitanus, Palimpsest, VIIIth century.

S Vaticanus, No. 354, Xth century; four Gospels.

T Borgianus, Vth century; contains John vi.—viii.; now in the College of the Propaganda at Rome. Published by A. A. Georgius. Rom. 1789. 4to.

U Nanianus, Biblioth. Venet. St. Marci. IXth or Xth century: Gospels.

V Mosquensis Biblioth. S. Synodi, VIIIth or IXth century: parts of the four Gospels, collated by Matthæi.

W Parisiensis; in Imperial Library; VIIIth century: ixth and xth chapters of St. Luke. Published by Tischendorf in Mon. Sacr., pp. 51—56.

X Olim Lanshutensis, nunc Monacensis; IXth or Xth century: parts of the four Gospels.

Y Biblioth. Barberin. Rom., VIIIth or IXth century: fragments of St. John xvi.—xix. Published by Tischendorf in Mon. Sacr., pp. 37—50.

Z Dublinensis, Palimpsest of VIth century; contains the greater part of St. Matthew. Published by Barrett, Dublin, 1801. 4to. Cp. Tregelles, p. 166.

Γ Tischendorfii, nunc Bodleianus, IXth century; contains St. Mark, the greater part, and St. Luke, and fragments of St. Matthew and St. John.

Γ Vaticanus, contains fragments of St. Matthew, published by Tischendorf, Mon. Sacr., pp. 25—36.

Δ Sangallensis, Greek and Latin, IXth century; of the same age and family as Cod. Boernerianus; contains the greater part of the four Gospels. Published in facsimile by Rettig, Zurich, 1836. 4to.

Θ Tischendorfianus; in Public Library at Leipsick; VIIth century; contains fragments of St. Matthew. Published by Tischendorf, Mon. Sacr., pp. 1—10.

Λ Tischendorfii, nunc Bodleianus, VIIIth century; contains St. Luke and St. John.

The CURSIVE MANUSCRIPTS of the Gospels alone that have been already collated amount to more than Five Hundred.

For an account of them see Scholz, Proleg. N. T., vol. i. pp. xliv.—xcvii. On those of the rest of the N. T., see ii. pp. iv.—xliv. Tischendorf, p. lxxv. Scrivener, collation of MSS. of N. T., pp. x. lxxiv. Horne's Introduction, vol. ii. p. 133, &c.

In addition to these are to be mentioned the numerous Evangelistaria, more than 200, containing portions of the Gospels, see Scholz, i. p. xcviii., and the Lectionaria, about 20, containing Lessons from the Acts and the Catholic Epistles, and 300 from the Epistles of St. Paul. Scholz, ii. p. xl.

ANCIENT VERSIONS OF THE NEW TESTAMENT.

I. Ægyptiacæ.
   1. Coptic, or Memphitic, of IIIrd century. Published by Wilkins. Oxon, 1716. 4to.
   2. Sahidic, or Thebaic, of IIIrd century. Published by Ford. Oxon, 1799. fol.
   3. Basmuric, IIIrd century; fragments. Published by Engelbreth. Havniæ, 1811. 4to.

II. Æthiopica.
   1. IVth century. Published by Bode. Brunsv. 1792.
   2. Published by T. P. Platt.

III. Arabicæ.—IVth and Vth centuries. Published by Erpenius. Lug. Bat. 1616. 4to. See further, Tischendorf, p. lxxviii.

IV. Armenica.—Vth century, from Syriac; and accommodated to Latin Vulgate in XIIth century. Published at Venet. 1805. fol. Mosquæ, 1834.

V. Georgiana.—Vth and VIth centuries. Published at Moscow, 1743. fol.; also, 1816.

VI. Gothica.—IVth century, made by Ulphilas, Bishop of the Goths, from Greek Byzantine MSS. Portions published by Zahn. Lips. 1805. Mai, Milan, 1819; at Leipsick, 1836, and in Abbé Migne's Patrologia. Tom. xviii.

VII. Latinæ.

Itala sive Vetus. Published by Sabatier. Remis, 1739. 3 vols. fol. Bianchini, Rom. 1749. 2 vols. fol.: for the Gospels; cp. Tischendorf, p. lxxxiii.

The nomenclature which combines all the ante-Hieronymian texts under the name of Italic is not correct.

The Latin Versions consist of (1) the old Latin, as in the Codices Vercellenis, Veronensis, and Colbertinus; (2) the revised text of Upper Italy, as in the Codex Brixianus; (3) another revised text, as in Codex Bobbiensis; and (4) the Vulgate of St. Jerome. Cp. Tregelles, p. 170.

Vulgata sive Hieronymiana, IVth century. Published at Rome, 1590 and 1592.

The Codex Fuldensis, of VIth century, was collated by Lachmann. The Codex Amiatinus (of the Vulgate), of the VIth century, in the Laurentian Library at Florence, has been published by Tischendorf. Lips. 1851.

On these Versions, see Tregelles, pp. 100—103. 114. 170.

VIII. Persicæ. Published by Wheloc and Pierson. Lond. 1657.

IX. Slavonica, IXth century.

X. Syriacæ.
   1. Peschito (or literal), IInd century. Published by Schaaf. Lug. Bat. 1709, 1717. 4to.

2. Cureton, of the greater part of the Gospels except St. Mark. IIIrd century, from the Nitrian Monastery in Egypt, now in British Museum. Cp. Tregelles, p. 160. This Version will shortly be published, with an English translation and notes, by the Rev. William Cureton, M.A., Canon of Westminster.
3. Philoxeniana (so called from Philoxenus, the Monophysite Bishop), VIth century. Published by White. Oxon, 1778—1803.
4. Heraclëensis, revised by Thomas of Heraclea, in VIIth century. See Tischendorf, p. lxxx.

Hierosolymitana, VIth century.

PRINCIPAL CRITICAL EDITIONS OF THE NEW TESTAMENT.

Erasm. Basil, 1516, 1519, 1522, 1527, 1535.

Complutensis, in the fifth Volume of the Complutensian Polyglot; printed in A.D. 1514, and published at Complutum or Alcala, in 1520.

Stephens. Paris, 1546, 1549, 1550, 1551.

Beza. Genev. 1565, 1576, 1589, 1598.

Elzevir, commonly called the "textus receptus." Lug. Bat. 1624.

Fell. Oxon. 1675.

Mill. Lond. 1707. Roterod. 1710, by Kuster.

Bentley. On his proposed edition, see Bentley's Correspondence, pp. 503—530 and passim, and Tregelles, 57—78.

Bengel. Tubing. 1734.

Wetstein. Amstelodami, 1751, 1752. 2 vols. fol.

Griesbach. 1st ed. 1774; 2nd ed. 1796—1806.

Matthæi. Riga, 1782—1788. 12 vols.

Alter. Viennæ, 1786, 1787.

Birch. 1788—1801.

Scholz. Lips. 1830—1836. 2 vols. 4to.

Lachmann. 1st ed. 1831; 2nd ed. Berolin, 1842—1850. See Tregelles, pp. 97—115, and Tischendorf, pp. xli.—xlvii.

Tischendorf. Lips. 1841. Two at Paris, 1842.

His first critical edition appeared at Leipsick, 1849; with copious Prolegomena. See there, p. xli., for his own account of his editions.

His seventh Edition, now in course of publication (1856), is intended to present a complete conspectus of all the critical subsidia, as yet available, for the revision of the Text of the New Testament;

The following extracts from the prospectus are of importance, as indicating the present views of the learned Editor:—

"Auf Grund dieser dokumentlichen Vorarbeiten, wie sie wohl noçh nie für eine Neutest. Ausgabe unternommen worden sind, wird zum ersten Male ein solcher kritischer Apparat dargeboten, der für alle aufgenommenen Lesarten, ohne Ausnahme die Zeugnisse für und wider enthält, so wie auch die Angabe aller anderen Lesarten, die in den griechischen Unzialhandschriften gefunden werden, oder sonst irgend beachtenswerthe Auctorität für sich haben.

"Der Textconstituirung ist die grösste Sorgfalt und Gewissenhaftigkeit gewidmet worden. Forgesetzte und immer tiefer eingehende Beobachtungen haben den Herausgeber zu mancher Aenderung der frühern Entscheidungen geführt; namentlich hat er die Bevorzung einiger unseren ältesten Zeugen aus triftigen Gründen beschränken zu müssen geglaubt.

"In diesem Betrachte gewährt die neueste Ausgabe eine gewiss willkommene Förderung kritischer Studien dadurch, dass sie sehr häufig eine Andeutung der Entscheidungsgründe über die einzelnen Lesarten enthält."

Alford. Lond. 1855—6. Second Edition. 3 vols.
Bloomfield. Lond. 1855. Ninth Edition. 2 vols.

To these may be added,—

Scrivener, F. H., collations of about Twenty MSS. of the Gospels. Camb. 1853.
Tregelles, S. P., on the Printed Text of the N. T. Lond. 1854.

ABBREVIATIONS, AUTHORS, AND EDITIONS

USED IN THE FOLLOWING NOTES ON THE FOUR GOSPELS.

A Lapide, Cornelius, In Evangelia. Lugd. 1732. Folio.
Alford, Henry, B.D., Greek Testament. 3 vols. 1855—6.
Ambrose, St., Ambrosii Opera. 4 vols. Paris. 1836.
Amphilochii, St., Opera. Paris. 1644.
Andreas, St., Cretensis, in St. Amphilochii Opera.
Andrewes, Bp., Works. Oxford. 11 vols. 1841—1854.
Arnoldi, M., Commentar zum Evangel. h. Matthäus. Trier. 1856.
Athanasius, St., Opera. Ed. Bened. 2 vols. folio. Patavii. 1777.
Aug., St., Augustini Opera. Ed. Benedict. 12 vols. 8vo. Paris. 1836.
Barrow, Isaac, D.D., Works. 6 vols. 8vo. Oxford. 1841.
Basil, St., Basilii Cæsar. Opera. Ed. Paris. 1721. 3 vols. folio.
Bede, Venerabilis, in N. T. Ed. Giles. Lond. 1844.
Bengel, J. A., Gnomon N. T. 2 vols. Tubingæ. 1835.
Beveridge, Bp., on the Thirty-nine Articles. Oxford. 1840. 2 vols.
Bingham, Joseph, Origines Ecclesiasticæ. London. 1834. 8 vols. 8vo.
Birks, T. R., Horæ Evangelicæ. Lond. 1852.
Bloomfield, S. T., D.D., Greek Testament. 2 vols. 8vo. Ninth ed. 1855.
Browne, Professor, on the Thirty-nine Articles. London. 1850. 2 vols.
Bruder, C. H., Concordantia Novi Testamenti. Lips. 1842. 4to.
Bull, Bp., Works. Ed. Burton. 7 vols. Oxford. 1827.
Burgon, J. W., Plain Commentary on the Gospels for Devotional Reading. 4 vols. Oxford. 1855.
Buxtorf, Johannes, Synagoga Judaica. Basil. 1680.
Casaubon, Isaac, Exercitationes Baronianæ. Genev. 1654.
Catena Aurea in Evangelia. In Aquinatis Opera. Tom. iv. and v. Ed. Venet. 1775.
————, English Translation. Oxford. 1843.
——— in St. Matthæi et St. Marci Evangelia. Ed. Cramer. Oxon. 1840.
——— in St. Lucæ et St. Joannis Evangelia. Ed. Cramer. Oxon. 1841.
Chemnitii, M., Harmonia. Lyseri et Gerhardi. 3 vols. folio. Hamburgh. 1704.
Chrys., St., Chrysostomi Opera. Ed. Savil. Eton. 1613. 8 vols. folio.
Clemens Alexandrinus, St., Opera. Ed. Potter. 2 vols. folio. Oxon. 1715.
Clemens Romanus in "Patres Apostolici."
Cosin, Bp., on the Canon of Holy Scripture. Lond. 1672.

Cyril, St., Alexandrin., Opera. Lut. Paris. 1638.
——— Alexandrin., in S. Lucam. See Mai.
———, Hierosolym., Opera. Ed. Venet. 1763.
Davidson, Samuel, LL.D., Introduction to New Test. Lond. 1848.
De Wette, W. M. L., Handbuch zum N. T. Leipzig. 1845. 3te Auflage. 2 vols. 8vo.
Elz., Elzevir Edition of Nov. Test. Græc. Lug. Bat. 1624.
Epiphanii, S., Opera. Ed. Petavii. 2 vols. folio. Colon.
Eusebii Historia Ecclesiastica. Ed. Burton. Oxon. 1838.
Eusebius in St. Lucam. See Mai.
Euthym., Euthymius Zigabenus. Edited by Pharmacides. Athenis. 2 vols. 1842.
Ford, James, Commentaries on the Four Gospels. 4 vols. Lond. This work, although not used by the Editor, is specified here on account of its importance.
Glassii, Salom., Philologia Sacra. Amst. 1711. 4to.
Gregory, St., Gregorii Magni in Evangelia, in Opera, Vol. i. pp. 1436—1663. Ed. Paris. 1705. 4 vols. folio.
Greg. Nazian., St., Gregorii Nazianzeni Opera. Ed. Bened. Paris. 1778—1840. 2 vols. folio.
—— Thaumaturg., Opera. Paris. Ed. 1721.
Greswell, E., Harmonia Evangelica. Oxon. 1834.
Grinfield, E. W., Editio Hellenistica N. T. et Scholia Hellenistica N. T. Lond. 1843—8. 4 vols. 8vo.
Grotius in "Poli Synopsis Criticorum." Guerike Einleitung in das N. T. Leipzig. 1843.
Hengstenberg, Christologie. Translated by Keith and Arnold. Lond. 1847.
Hilary, St., Hilarii Opera. Oberthür. 4 vols. Wiceberg. 1785.
Hippolytus, St., Opera. Ed. Fabricii. Hamburgh. 1716. 2 vols. folio.
Hooker, Rd., Works. 3 vols. 8vo. Oxford. 1841.
Hottinger, J. H., Thesaurus Philol. Tigur. 1659.
Irenæus, St. Ed. Stieren. Lips. 1853. 2 vols. 8vo.
Jackson, Thomas, D.D., Works. 12 vols. Oxford. 1844.
Jahn, Archæologia Biblica. Viennæ. 1814.
Jerome, St., Hieronymi Opera. Ed. Bened. Paris. 1693—1706. 5 vols. folio.
Josephus, Opera. Richter. 6 vols. Lips. 1826.
Justin Martyr, St. Ed. Paris. 1742. Folio, and Otto, 2 vols. 8vo. Jenæ. 1842.
Kirchofer, Joh., Quellen-Sammlung zur Geschichte d. N. T. Canons. Zürich. 1844.
Kitto, John, D.D., Daily Bible Illustrations. Edinb. 8 vols.
Kuinoel, C. T., Novum Testamentum Græcum. Ed. Lond. 1834. 3 vols.
Lachmann, C., Novum Testamentum. See above, p. xxxix.
Lardner, Nathanael, Works. 5 vols. 4to. Lond. 1815.
Lee, W. (Fellow and Tutor of Trin. Coll., Dublin), on the Inspiration of Holy Scripture. Lond. 1854.
Leo, M., Opera. Lugd. 1700.
Lightfoot, John, D.D., Works. 2 vols. folio. Lond. 1684.
Lonsdale, Bp., and Archdn. Hale on the Gospels. Lond. 1849.
Lücke, F., Commentar über d. Evang. d. Joannes. 3te Auflage. Bonn. 1840.
Macarii Opera, in "Greg. Thaumaturgi Opera."
Mai, Angelo, Cardinal, Patrum Collectio Nova Vaticana. Romæ. 1844. Vols. ii. and iv.
Maldonatus, Joannes, in Evangelia. Mogunt. 1853. 2 vols.
Mede, Joseph, Works. Lond. 1677. Folio.
Methodius, St., in St. Amphilochii Opera.
Meyer, H. A. W., Kritisch. exegetisch Kommentar über d. N. T. Götting. 1853. 3te Auflage. xiv Parts.
Middleton, Bp., on the Greek Article in the N. T. Cambridge. 1828.
Mill, W., D.D., Christian Advocate's Publications for 1844—5. Camb. 1855.

Mintert, Petri, Lexicon N. T. Francofurti. 1728. 2 vols. 4to. A Lexicon illustrating the Language of the N. T. from that of the LXX.

Olshausen, Hermann, Biblisches Commentar. Königsb. 1837. Translated into English in Clarke's Theol. Library.

Origenis Opera. Ed. De la Rue, folio, and ed. Lommatzsch. Berolin. 1831—45.

Patres Apostolici (St. Clemens Romanus, St. Ignatius, St. Polycarpus). Ed. Jacobson. Oxon. 1847. 2 vols. 3rd edition.

Patritius, F. X., De Evangeliis. 2 vols. 4to. Friburg. 1853.

Pearson, Bp., on the Creed. Ed. Chevallier. Cambridge. 1849.—Minor Works. Ed. Churton. 2 vols. Oxford. 1844.

Phrynichus, Lobeck. Lips. 1820.

Poli, Matth., Synopsis Criticorum in Sacram Scripturam. Lond. 1669. 4 vols. folio.

Robinson, Edw., D.D., Harmony of the Gospels. Published by the Religious Tract Society.

———————— Biblical Researches in Palestine. 3 vols. Lond. 1841.

Rosenmüller, Jo. Georg., Scholia in N. T. Ed. 6ta. Norimberg. 1815. 5 vols.

Routh, Martin, S. T. P., Reliquiæ Sacræ. 5 vols. Oxon. 1846—8.

Sanderson, Bp., Works. Ed. Jacobson. Oxford. 1854. 6 vols.

Schoettgen, Christian, Horæ Hebraicæ in New Test. Dresden. 1733.

Scholefield, James, Hints for an improved Translation of the N. T. Lond. 1850.

Septuaginta Interpretes Veteris Testamenti. Oxon. 1848. 3 vols.

Spanheim, Ezek., Dubia Evangelia. Genev. 1658.

Surenhusii, Gul., βίβλος καταλλαγῆς, on the Passages of the Old Testament quoted in the New. Amst. 1713.

Taylor, Bishop, Life of Christ. 2 vols. 8vo. Lond. 1811.

Theoph., Theophylactus in Evangelia. In ed. Bened. Venet. 1754. 4 vols. folio.

Thilo, J. C., Codex Apocryphus N. T. Lips. 1832.

Tholuck, A., Glaubwürdigkeit der Evangel. Geschichte. Hamburgh. 1838.

Tischendorf, Constantin., Novum Testamentum. See above, p. xxxix.

Townson, Thos., D.D., Works. Edited by R. Churton. Lond. 1810. 2 vols.

Tregelles, S. P., LL.D., on the Greek Text of the New Test. Lond. 1854.

Trench, R. C., Notes on the Miracles. 3rd ed. Lond. 1850.

———————— Notes of the Parables. 5th ed. 1853.

Valckenaer, L. C., Scholæ in N. T. Lips. 1842. Amst. 1815—17.

Vorstius, Johan., De Hebraismis N. T. Ed. Fischer. Lips. 1778.

Waterland, Daniel, D.D., Works. Ed. Van Mildert. Oxford. 1823. 11 vols. 8vo.

Webster, W., and Wilkinson, W. F., Greek Testament. Vol. i. Lond. 1855.

Westcott, B. F., on the Canon of N. T. 1855.

Wieseler, Karl., Chronol. Synops der Evangelien. Hamburgh. 1843.

Williams, Isaac, B.D., on the Gospels. London. 1843; and the Author's other works "on the Nativity," "the Holy Week," and "on the Passion."

Winer, G. B., Biblisches Real-Wörterbuch. 3te Auflage. Leipzig. 1842.

——— Grammatik des N. T. Sprachidioms. 6te Auflage. Leipzig. 1855.

INTRODUCTORY NOTE TO THE FOUR GOSPELS.

I. On the Composition and Order of the Four Gospels.

In recent times, endeavours have been made to trace the origin of the Gospels, either (with Semler, Lessing, Eichhorn, and others)—

1. To some primitive Aramaic document; or (with Schleiermacher)
2. To fragmentary narratives, anterior to their composition.

But these theories have no historic foundation; and have not led to any satisfactory results.

It is well said by Rosenmüller[1], "Equidem ingenuè fateor, hanc de origine Trium Evangeliorum, ac de archetypo quodam Syro-Chaldaico eorum fonte (urevangelio) hypothesim mihi semper fuisse suspectam. Etenim ut taceam, eam omni historico testimonio esse destitutam, non video cur Matthæus, testis oculatus et pars rerum gestarum, alieno subsidio ad Commentarium suum componendum indiguerit."

Besides,—St. Matthew was one of those who had the promise of Christ, "The Comforter shall teach you all things, and bring to your remembrance whatsoever I have said unto you[2]."

The testimony of Christian Antiquity is clear and consistent, that

(1) The four Gospels were delivered by the Holy Spirit to the Church of Christ through the instrumentality of those persons whose names they bear.
(2) They were written in the order of time in which they are now placed.
(3) These four Gospels, and they alone, were received from the beginning as divinely inspired histories of our Blessed Lord.

On these points see Origen[3]: ἐν τῷ πρώτῳ τῶν εἰς τὸ κατὰ Ματθαῖον, τὸν ἐκκλησιαστικὸν φυλάττων κανόνα, μόνα τέσσαρα εἶναι εὐαγγέλια μαρτύρεται (Ὠριγένης) ὧδέ πως γράφων· "Ὡς ἐν παραδόσει μαθὼν περὶ τῶν τεσσάρων εὐαγγελίων, ἃ καὶ μόνα ἀναντίῤῥητά ἐστιν ἐν τῇ ὑπὸ τὸν οὐρανὸν ἐκκλησίᾳ τοῦ Θεοῦ· ὅτι πρῶτον μὲν γέγραπται τὸ κατὰ τὸν ποτὲ τελώνην, ὕστερον δὲ ἀπόστολον Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ, Ματθαῖον, ἐκδεδωκότα αὐτὸ τοῖς ἀπὸ Ἰουδαϊσμοῦ πιστεύσασι, γράμμασιν Ἑβραϊκοῖς συντεταγμένον· δεύτερον δὲ τὸ κατὰ Μάρκον, ὡς Πέτρος ὑφηγήσατο αὐτῷ, ποιήσαντα· ὃν καὶ υἱὸν ἐν τῇ καθολικῇ ἐπιστολῇ διὰ τούτων ὡμολόγησε φάσκων, Ἀσπάζεται ὑμᾶς ἡ ἐν Βαβυλῶνι συνεκλεκτὴ, καὶ Μάρκος ὁ υἱός μου[4]. Καὶ τρίτον τὸ κατὰ Λουκᾶν, τὸ ὑπὸ Παύλου ἐπαινούμενον εὐαγγέλιον, τοῖς ἀπὸ τῶν ἐθνῶν πεποιηκότα· ἐπὶ πᾶσι τὸ κατὰ Ἰωάννην." Cp. Aug. de Consens. Evang. i. 4.

And St. Jerome says[5]: "Ecclesia, quæ supra petram, Domini voce, fundata est, quatuor flumina paradisi instar eructans, quatuor angulos et annulos habet, per quos quasi Arca testamenti et custos legis Domini lignis immobilibus vehitur.

"Primus omnium est Matthæus publicanus, cognomento Levi; qui evangelium in Judæâ Hebræo sermone edidit, ob eorum vel maximè causam, qui in Jesum crediderant ex Judæis, et nequaquam Legis umbram, succedente Evangelii veritate, servabant.

"Secundus Marcus, interpres apostoli Petri, et Alexandrinæ ecclesiæ primus Episcopus: qui Dominum quidem Salvatorem ipse non vidit, sed ea, quæ magistrum audierat prædicantem, juxta fidem magis gestorum narravit quam ordinem.

"Tertius Lucas medicus, natione Syrus Antiochensis, cujus laus in evangelio[6]; qui et ipse

[1] i. p. 48.
[2] John xiv. 26.
[3] ap. Euseb. vi. 25.
[4] 1 Pet. v. 13.
[5] Procem in Matt., vol. iv. p. 3.
[6] 2 Cor. viii. 18.

discipulus apostoli Pauli in Achaiæ Bœotiæque partibus volumen condidit, quædam altiùs repetens: et ut ipse in procœmio confitetur, audita magis quàm visa describens.

"Ultimus Joannes Apostolus et Evangelista, quem Jesus amavit plurimum, qui supra pectus Domini recumbens purissima doctrinarum fluenta potavit, et qui solus de cruce meruit audire, 'Ecce mater tua.' Is cùm esset in Asiâ, et jam tunc hæreticorum semina pullularent Cerinthi, Hebionis, et ceterorum qui negant Christum in carne venisse, quos et ipse in Epistolâ suâ Antichristos vocat[1], coactus est ab omnibus penè tunc Asiæ Episcopis et multarum Ecclesiarum legationibus, de divinitate Salvatoris altiùs scribere, et ad ipsum (ut ita dicam) Dei Verbum non tam audaci quàm felici temeritate prorumpere. Unde et Ecclesiastica narrat Historia, cùm à fratribus cogeretur ut scriberet, ita facturum se respondisse, si indicto jejunio in commune omnes Deum deprecarentur, quo expleto, revelatione saturatus, illud procœmium è cœlo veniens eructavit, 'In principio erat Verbum, et Verbum erat apud Deum, et Deus erat Verbum; hoc erat in principio apud Deum[2].'"

(4) Two of the Gospels (the first and last) were written by APOSTLES; the other two were written under the direction of Apostles;—that of St. Mark in connexion with St. Peter; that of St. Luke, with St. Paul.

(5) The former three Gospels having been publicly received and read in the Churches of Christendom, were solemnly sanctioned by St. John, who added his own Gospel to complete the Evangelical Canon. Cp. below, p. 206.

(6) They were read in the Church as of equal authority with the writings of Moses and the Prophets, and as inspired by One and the same Spirit, Who had spoken in the Old Testament, and Who was given by the one and same Lord, the Everlasting Logos or Word, Jesus Christ.

"The Logos," (the Son of God,) "the Creator of all things, Who sitteth upon the Cherubim, and holdeth all things together, after that He was manifested to men, gave us the Fourfold Gospel, which is held together by ONE SPIRIT[3]."

"Qui Prophetas ante descensionem suam præmisit, Ipse et Apostolos post ascensionem suam misit. Quicquid Ille de suis factis et dictis nos legere voluit, hoc scribendum illis tanquam suis manibus imperavit[4]."

"SPIRITUS SANCTUS est qui in Vetere Testamento Legem et Prophetas, Novo verò Evangelia et Christi Apostolos inspiravit; et ideo quæ sunt Novi ac Veteris Instrumenti Volumina quæ secundùm majorum traditionem per Ipsum Spiritum Sanctum inspirata creduntur et Ecclesiis Christi tradita," &c.[5]

See also the very ancient Canon of Scripture[6]: "Licet varia singulis Evangeliorum Libris Principia doceantur, nihil tamen differt credentium fides, cùm UNO ac Principali SPIRITU declarata sint in omnibus omnia de Nativitate, de Passione, de Resurrectione, de Conversatione cum discipulis suis, et de gemino Ejus Adventu."

For a Catena of ancient Testimonies to their Inspiration, see Routh, R. S. v. ad fin., and Lee on Inspiration, Appendix G.

The Editor may be permitted to insert what has been written by him on this subject in another place[7];

The Christian Church, looking at the origin of the FOUR GOSPELS, and at the attributes which God has in rich measure been pleased to bestow upon them by His Holy Spirit, found a prophetic picture of them in the Four living Cherubim, named from heavenly knowledge, seen by Ezekiel at the river of Chebar[8]. Like them the Gospels are Four in number; like them they are the Chariot of God Who sitteth between the Cherubim[9]: like them they bear Him on a

[1] 1 Joh. ii. 18. 22.
[2] Joh. i. 1.
[3] S. Irenæus, iii. 11. Cp. iii. 1.
[4] Aug. de Cons. Ev. i. 54.
[5] Ruffin. in Symb., p. 26, ap. S. Cyprian, ed. Amst. 1691.
[6] Ap. Routh, R. S. i. 394—6.
[7] Lectures on the Canon of Scripture. Lect. vi.
[8] Ezek. i. 5—26, and x. 1—22. Cp. S. Iren. iii. 11. § 8. S. Athanas. Synops. Script. p. 55. S. Aug. de Cons. Ev. i. 10. S. Hieron. in Matt. Procem. Ep. l. ad Paulinum (Opp. t. iv. p. 574):—"Tangam et Novum breviter Testamentum. Matthæus, Marcus, Lucas, et Joannes, quadriga Domini et verum Cherubim, quod interpretatur scientiæ multitudo, per totum corpus oculati sunt, scintillæ emicant, discurrunt fulgura, pedes habent rectos et in sublime tendentes, terga pennata et ubique volitantia. Tenent se mutuò, sibique perplexi sunt, et quasi rota in rotâ volvuntur, et pergunt quocunque eos flatus Sancti Spiritûs perduxerit."
Cp. Williams on the Study of the Gospels, pp. 5—20.
[9] Ps. xcix. 1; lxxx. 1; xviii. 10.

winged Throne into all lands: like them they move wherever the Spirit guides them: like them they are marvellously joined together, intertwined with coincidences and differences; wing interwoven with wing, and wheel inwound with wheel; like them they are full of eyes, and sparkle with heavenly light; like them they sweep from heaven to earth, and from earth to heaven, and fly with the lightning's speed, and with the noise of many waters. Their sound is gone out into all lands, and their words unto the end of the world[1].

Further, the Ancient Church recognized the Four Gospels in the Four Living Creatures of the Apocalypse, seen by St. John in heaven, and crying Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty, which was, and is, and is to come[2].

These expressions have a special use, in assuring us of the important fact, that although other writings were then extant, pretending to evangelical authority, yet it is clear from her language[3], as now cited, that the Church of Christ rejected those writings, and recognized FOUR Gospels, and FOUR only.

And these four Gospels were identical in name, in form, and in matter, with those received by ourselves at this day.

In further evidence of their fourfold character, we may observe that one of the earlier Christian writers employed himself in making a "Harmony of the Gospels," and from the name[4] (Diatessaron) which he gave to his work, it is certain, that four Gospels, and four only, were then received by the Church.

If we trace the four Evangelical streams back toward their source, we find that they are all derived, through Apostolic channels, from CHRIST HIMSELF.

The author of the first Gospel, ST. MATTHEW, was an Apostle of Christ[5]. He wrote[6] for the special use of his own countrymen, and of the Christian Church of Jerusalem, the mother of all Christian Churches, which was first governed by St. James, the Lord's brother, and continued to flourish during the earlier part of the second century[7]. The first written Gospel, then, be it remembered (that is, the first Evangelical Record of Christ's miracles, preaching, death, resurrection, and ascension), was composed for the use of that country in which our Lord's life was passed. The Gospel was first offered to the Jews. And the fact that St. Matthew's Gospel is designed for Jews, is a strong evidence of its priority. It was circulated in that city in which our Lord suffered. This is a striking proof of the confidence of the Apostles in the truth of Christianity. They did not shrink from inquiry, but challenged and courted it. This Gospel, so written, was received as Scripture by the Christian Church at Jerusalem. And this reception and public reading of St. Matthew's Gospel, as not only a true history, but as divinely inspired, in the Church of Jerusalem at that period, is one of the strongest evidences that could be given of its Veracity and Inspiration.

ST. MARK wrote his Gospel under the dictation of the Apostle St. Peter[8], who calls him his son[9] in the faith: and it is observable, as in full accordance with this account of the authorship of these two Gospels respectively, that from St. Matthew's Gospel[10] alone we learn

[1] Ps. xix. 4. Yet it has been said that the Gospels are "mere fragmentary documents." Each of the four Evangelical Cherubim is perfect in himself; and each is harmoniously fitted to the fourfold group, and lends his aid to the other three, and contributes to the perfection of the whole; and to the glory and motion of the fourfold car on which the Spirit rides throughout the world in all time. This double perfection,—individual and corporate,—absolute and relative,—is one of the divine characteristics of the Gospels. A part of their perfection consists in what is called by some their fragmentary character, viz. in their not superseding one another.

[2] Rev. iv. 4—11. See the authorities cited in the Author's Lectures on the Apocalypse, Lect. iv. pp. 114—136.

[3] See also Origen ap. Euseb. vi. 25, μόνα τέσσαρα. Homil. in Luc. p. 932. Euseb. iii. 25, ἀγία τετρακτύς.

[4] Tatian, scholar of Justin Martyr. See Euseb. iv. 29, on his Diatessaron. On the Harmony of Theophilus Antiochenus, see Hieron. ad Algas. iv. p. 197.

[5] Euseb. iii. 24. S. Hieron. Procem. in S. Matt.

[6] In the first instance, in the Hebrew dialect of his country, i. e. the Syro-Chaldaic, or Aramaic. See above, note, p. xliii. and Iren. iii. 1, and Aug. de Cons. Ev. i. 4. S. Cyril, Hierol. Cat. 14, p. 212.

[7] Till Hadrian's time. Euseb. Dem. Evang. iii. 5.

[8] Iren. iii. 10. 6. Euseb iii. 39; vi. 14 (from Clem. Alex.) Demon. Evang. iii. 5. Hieron. Script. Eccl. c. i. and c. 8. Tertullian. adv. Marcion. iv. 5. Euthym. Zygab. i. p. 15. Epiphan. Hæres. li. 4. St. Peter says (2 Pet. i. 15), "I will endeavour that after my departure (μετὰ τὴν ἐμὴν ἔξοδον) ye may have these things in remembrance." This may be compared with a passage of Irenæus, iii. 1, μετὰ τὴν Πέτρου καὶ Παύλου ἔξοδον Μάρκος ὁ μαθητὴς καὶ ἑρμηνευτὴς Πέτρου, καὶ αὐτὸς τὰ ὑπὸ Πέτρου κηρυσσόμενα γεγραφὼς ἡμῖν παραδέδωκε.

[9] 1 Pet. v. 13.

[10] Matt. ix. 9, compared with Mark ii. 14. Luke v. 27; and Matt. x. 3, compared with Mark iii. 18. Luke vi. 15, whence Euseb. Dem. Ev. iii. c. 5, says well, Ματθαῖος ἑαυτοῦ στηλιτεύει βίον. The whole passage of Eusebius deserves a careful perussl.

that the Evangelist belonged to the despised class of Publicans, while it is not he, but another Evangelist (St. Luke [1]), who tells us the honourable fact that Levi left all, rose up, and followed Christ. And in like manner the infirmities of St. Peter are recorded with the most circumstantial fulness in the Gospel of Marcus his son [2]; but we are left to gather our knowledge of his virtues and of the praises with which he was honoured by his Divine Master, from the other Gospels.

St. Luke's Gospel, as Christian antiquity testifies [3], was written under the eye of St. Paul, who was made an able minister of the New Testament [4], by knowledge given him above measure, in visions and revelations of the Lord [5]; and to St. Luke's fidelity St. Paul bears testimony, when he speaks of him as the beloved physician [6], who alone is with him [7], and probably, as the brother whose praise is in the Gospel throughout all the Churches [8].

St. Paul was the Apostle, St. Luke the Evangelist, of the Gentiles [9]. The same spirit was in them both. Hence, in St. Luke's Gospel especially, there is a rich storehouse of comfort and hope for all who sit in darkness and the shadow of death. Here the good Samaritan, Christ Himself, pours oil and wine into the wounds of the broken-hearted. Here He calls them home in the parable of the Prodigal. Here He accepts them in the Publican. Here He visits them in Zacchæus. Here He pardons them in the penitent thief [10].

The fourth and last Gospel, which was written at or soon after the close of the first century, is also from an Apostle—St. John.

Thus all the four Gospels are seen to be due to Christ's Apostles, who received special promises from Him that He would send them the Holy Ghost to teach them all things, to bring all things to their remembrance, and guide them into all truth [11], and of whom it is said, that when He had ascended up on high, He gave some Apostles, and some Evangelists, for the edifying of His Church [12]. Thus we behold the four Evangelical streams, when traced upward, issuing from the Apostolic wells which spring up from the One Divine Fountain of living waters, Who said, Whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him, shall never thirst; but the water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing up unto everlasting life [13].

The last Gospel, as we have said, was written by St. John. He was the disciple whom Jesus loved [14]; he was the disciple who leaned on His breast at supper, when He instituted the Feast of Love, in which the Church will show forth her Lord's death till He come [15]; he was the disciple to whom Jesus said on the Cross, Behold thy Mother, and who thenceforth took her to his own home [16].

The other Apostles were taken away, one after the other, by violent deaths,—by the cross, by the sword, by wild beasts, and by the stake. St. John survived them all. He was miraculously rescued from the furnace [17], and at length died a natural death, at the age of above a hundred years [18]. The other Apostles were sent to Christ by force; St. John tarried till Christ came for him, and gently took him to Himself. Theirs was the martyrdom of death, his the martyrdom of life.

The beloved Disciple of the Incarnate Word was providentially preserved to a great old age, not only to refute the heretics who denied the Lord that bought them, and to convince us of the Divinity of the Uncreated Word Who was in the beginning with God, but also to complete the witness of the Written Word, and to vindicate its Inspiration from the forgeries of false teachers, and to assure us of its fulness and divine character.

In confirmation of this assertion, let us now refer to a fact, attested by ancient and unexceptionable witnesses [19]. Towards the close of his long life, copies of the three Gospels of

[1] Luke v. 28.

[2] See Dr. Townson, pp. 154—8. The Editor cannot mention Dr. Townson's work, without commending it to the student of the Gospels.

[3] Iren. iii. 1. Tertullian adv. Marcion iv. 2; iv. 5. S. Hieron. Script. Eccl. c. 7.

[4] 2 Cor. iii. 6.

[5] 2 Cor. xii. 7.

[6] Col. iv. 14.

[7] 2 Tim. iv. 11.

[8] 2 Cor. viii. 18. Chrysos. Homil. in Act. i. Hieron. Vir. Illust. 7. Euseb. vi. 25.

[9] Origen ap. Euseb. vi. 25.

[10] See Townson, pp. 181—196.

[11] John xiv. 26; xvi. 13.

[12] Eph. iv. 11.

[13] John iv. 14.

[14] John xiii. 23.

[15] 1 Cor. xi. 26.

[16] John xix. 27.

[17] From the cauldron of boiling oil, under Domitian. Tertullian. Præscr. Hær. 36. S. Polycarp. in Victor. Catenâ, ap. Feuard. Iren. iii. 3. Cotel. Patr. Ap. ii. 205.

[18] Eusebii Chronicon. Hieron. Vir. Illust. IX. Comment. in Matt. xx. 22; he died anno ætat. 120, according to Auct. Inc. cited in next note.

[19] Clem. Al. ap. Euseb. vi. 14. Euseb. iii. 24. Epiphan. Hær. li. S. Hieron. Script. Eccl. c. 9. in Matt. Procem. Victorin. in Apocalyps. Bibl. Patrum Max. iii. 418. Auct. Incert. apud Chrysost. Montfaucon. viii. 132, Appendix. Auct. Inc. ap. Augustin in Joann. "Compulsus Joannes ab

St. MATTHEW, St. MARK, and St. LUKE, which at that time, we are informed, had been diffused throughout Christendom, were publicly brought to St. JOHN, in the city of Ephesus, of which he was the Metropolitan, by some of the Bishops of the Asiatic Churches[1]; and in their presence St. John openly[2] acknowledged these three Gospels as inspired, and, at their request, composed his own Gospel in order to complete the Evangelical Record of the Life and Teaching of Jesus Christ.

The second Evangelist St. Mark authenticated the first, St. Matthew, by repeating much of his gospel; so, the third St. Luke guaranteed the first and second; the fourth, St. John omitted much that the preceding three had related, and related much that they had omitted; and so canonized them[3].

Let it be remembered, that the three earlier Gospels were at that time received by the Church as inspired; and if St. John had not been fully persuaded of their Inspiration,—he, who writes to others, Beloved, believe not every Spirit, but try the Spirits whether they are of God[4],—would not have approved them as inspired, as he did, but he would have rejected them as falsely claiming to be divine.

Nor, again, acknowledging them as divine, would he have presumed to add his own Gospel as the consummation of theirs, unless he had been also sure that what he himself wrote was dictated by the same DIVINE SPIRIT Who had inspired the other three.

It is also clear, that, by composing his own Gospel as the complement of the three preceding ones, he has given an infallible assurance to us, that we, who have the four Gospels, possess a complete, divinely inspired, History of our Lord's Ministry.

Thus we find that all the Gospels are brought together into One. They come to us through the hands of St. John.

What better witness could we have or desire, of the oneness, the fulness, the integrity, and the Inspiration of the Gospels, than the Beloved Disciple, who was specially qualified to understand divine things, by the unsullied purity of his life, even from his youth, who leaned on our Lord's breast at supper, and drank in heavenly truth from His Divine lips; and to whom Jesus Christ gave the most endearing pledge of His confidence and love, by commending to him His Mother from the Cross?

Who, again, a more faithful and competent Authority in this solemn matter, than that Apostle, whose life appears to have been prolonged by Christ beyond that of all his Apostolic brethren, for this purpose, that he might comfort Christ's widowed spouse, the Church; that he might take her also, if we may so speak, to his own home; and vindicate against false teachers the Divine honour of her Lord?

May we not, therefore, safely say, that by the hands of the beloved disciple, CHRIST Himself has set His seal on the Gospels; and that in receiving them through the hands of him who leaned on our Lord's breast at supper, we receive them from the mouth of CHRIST[5].

II. On the verbal coincidences in the Gospels.

1. It appears from ancient testimony, that the Gospels were written by Divine Inspiration, in order to be publicly read in the Christian Church in every age and country of the world.

Asiæ Episcopis scripsit. . . Legerat Evangelia trium Evangelistarum et approbaverat fidem eorum et veritatem," and the next note but one.

[1] See the passages collected by Archbp. Ussher, Original of Bishops and Metropolitans, p. 63. Oxf. 1641.

[2] Theodor. Mopsuest. (who flourished in the end of the fourth century) says (in Catenâ in Joann. Corderii, Mill. N. T. p. 198, ed. 1723), ἐπήνεσεν (Ἰωάννης) τῆς ἀληθείας τοὺς γεγραφότας, ἔφησε δὲ βραχέα παραλελεῖφθαι (τοῖς τρισὶν εὐαγγελισταῖς)· ἐπὶ τούτοις παράκλησις ἀδελφῶν (ἐν τῇ Ἀσίᾳ) ἐγένετο ταῦτα ἃ μάλιστα ἀναγκαῖα κρίνει πρὸς διδασκαλίαν, παραλελειμμένα δὲ ὁρᾷ τοῖς λοιποῖς (εὐαγγελισταῖς) γράψαι μετὰ σπουδῆς· ὃ καὶ πεποίηκεν.

[3] See further below, p. 206, for a reply to objections made to the above assertions.

[4] 1 John iv. 1.

[5] Hence the admirable words of S. August. in De Civitate Dei, lib. xi. cap. ii. ed. Paris, 1838. vol. vii. p. 439.—"Ipsa VERITAS, DEUS DEI FILIUS, homine assumpto, non Deo consumpto, eamdem constituit atque fundavit fidem, ut ad hominis Deum iter esset homini per hominem Deum. Hic est enim mediator Dei et hominum homo Christus Jesus."—(Ibid. cap. iii.) "Hic prius per prophetas, deinde per Se Ipsum, postea per Apostolos, quantum satis esse judicavit, locutus, etiam Scripturam condidit, quæ Canonica nominatur, eminentissimæ auctoritatis, cui fidem habemus de his rebus quas ignorare non expedit, nec per nosmetipsos nosse idonei sumus."

And again:—

"Distincta est à posterioribus libris excellentia CANONICÆ auctoritatis VETERIS et NOVI TESTAMENTI, quæ APOSTOLORUM confirmata temporibus, per successiones Episcopales et propagationes Ecclesiarum tanquam in sede quâdam sublimiter constituta est, cui serviat omnis fidelis et pius Intellectus."—S. Augustin. c. Faustum, ii. c. 5.

2. And that they were so read, wherever Christianity was received.

The commands of St. Paul, that his own Epistles should be thus read[1], and the fact that the Scriptures of the Old Testament were read in the Synagogues and in the Church, confirm the testimony that the Gospels were read in the Church as soon as they were published.

3. What had been written by any preceding Evangelist in his Gospel could not be unknown to his successors[2];

It is well said by St. Augustine[3],—"Quamvis singuli (Evangelistæ) suum quendam narrandi ordinem tenuisse videantur, non tamen unusquisque eorum, velut alterius præcedentis ignorans, voluisse scribere reperitur, vel ignorata prætermisisse, quæ scripsisse alius invenitur; sed sicut unicuique inspiratum est, non superfluam operationem sui laboris adjecit."

4. The Holy Spirit, in the Old Testament, for the sake of greater assurance, often repeats by one prophet what He had said by another; and so it is in the Historical Books of the Old Testament. This is proved by Dr. Townson[4], who says,—"The Holy Bible abounds in quotations, but they are introduced in a way which is peculiar to Revelation. When a Prophet mentions one of his own holy brethren, as when Ezekiel names Daniel, or Daniel Jeremiah,—when they mention them they do not quote them, and when they quote them they do not mention them[5]."

On the principle of reiteration as characteristic of Divine Revelations, see Gen. xli. 32. Acts x. 16; and above, p. xxiii. The Prophetical Books of Daniel and the Apocalypse abound with examples of it.

5. It is probable à priori that the Holy Spirit would adopt a similar practice in the New Testament to that which He had employed in the Old. And we find it so in fact.

By means of the second and third Evangelists, St. Mark and St. Luke, He warrants the truth and genuineness of the first Gospel. This He does by repeating much of its contents. In the mouth of two or three witnesses every word is established. Thus the Evangelists became joint vouchers for the truth of the genuine GOSPELS, and, at the same time, joint opposers[6] of the spurious ones, which were obtruded on the world.

The fourth Evangelist, St. John, pursued a different course for doing the same thing; he declared his approval of the foregoing Gospels, not by repeating, but, for the most part, by omitting, what they had related, and by supplying what they had omitted[7].

The same is true of the Apostolic EPISTLES; they also are, as it were, entwined one with another in a loving embrace of words and sentiments. And the Inspiration of one aids in proving the Inspiration of all.

St. Peter, in his first Epistle, repeats parts of the Epistle of St. James. In his second Epistle he recognizes as Scripture all the Epistles of St. Paul[8], and incorporates a great part of the Epistle of St. Jude. St. John, in his Epistle, responds to the first of St. Peter, and interweaves the same thoughts and words in all his three Epistles.

This mutual intertexture is a remarkable characteristic of the Books of Scripture.

All the EPISTLES of the New Testament, as well as all the GOSPELS, cohere together, and confirm each other.

Further; as the beloved disciple, the blessed Evangelist and Apostle, ST. JOHN, whose life was prolonged far beyond that of any other writer of the New Testament, authenticates the Gospels, so he canonizes the Epistles likewise, by his silence.

If what had been taught in them had been erroneous, he would have raised his voice against it. But, by abstaining from entering on those great and sublime doctrines handled by St. Paul and St. Peter, by St. James and St. Jude, in their Epistles, and by confining himself to the Doctrine of Christian Love, St. John showed his approval of what they had taught, and

[1] 1 Thess. v. 27. Col. iv. 15. Cp. 2 Cor. i. 13.

[2] Cp. Justin Martyr, Apol. 1—63. Epist. ad Diognet. ii. Tertullian, Apol. 39. Præscr. Hæret. 36. Adv. Marcion. iv. 5.

[3] De Consens. Ev. i. 4.

[4] p. cxxxiv—cxlvii.

[5] Cp. Lee on Inspiration, p. 320.

[6] Compare Townson's Works, p. 229; and Dr. Owen's Observations on the Four Gospels, p. 109.

[7] See below, p. 206, and cp. Townson, pp. 15, 16.

[8] 2 Pet. iii. 15, 16. See Lectures on the Canon, VII., VIII., IX. Guerike, Einleitung, p. 460.

that it is all-sufficient, without any Additions or Developments, provided it be bound together and encircled by the zone of Love.

Thus the Unity of plan, on which the Gospels and Epistles are written, bears witness to their derivation from One and the Same Spirit[1].

And this Plan is similar to what the Holy Spirit had adopted, in dictating the Books both historical and prophetical of the Old Testament.

In fine, we thus trace the agency of the same Divine Hand in the Sacred Volume, whose component parts were given to the world by the ministry of different persons, living in different countries, from time to time, at intervals throughout a period of about fifteen centuries; and whose subject-matter extends over no less a time than forty centuries; and, indeed, reaches from the Creation of the World to the Last Day.

III. On the Dates of the composition of the Gospels.

The most ancient testimony on this subject is that of Irenæus c. Hæres. iii. 1, which seems, at first sight, to intimate that St. Matthew's Gospel was written when St. Paul was at Rome, i. e. not before A.D. 61.

But this is at variance with other statements; particularly with that of Clemens Alexandrinus (in Euseb. iii. 24), who relates that St. Matthew first preached to the Hebrews in their own tongue, and that when he was about to go into foreign parts, he published his Gospel in his vernacular tongue, so as to compensate for the lack of his personal presence by writing. And there is reason to believe that he left Judæa in or about the twelfth year after the Ascension. Cp. Clemens Alexand. Strom. vi. p. 636. Grabe, Spicileg. i. p. 67. Apollonius ap. Routh, Reliq. Sacr. i. p. 484.

But perhaps the text of Irenæus ought to be so punctuated and interpreted, that he may be understood to speak of the Greek text of St. Matthew, as follows;—Ὁ μὲν δὴ Ματθαῖος ἐν τοῖς Ἑβραίοις τῇ ἰδίᾳ διαλέκτῳ αὐτῶν (i. e. he preached and wrote to the Hebrews in their own tongue), καὶ γραφὴν ἐξήνεγκεν Εὐαγγελίου, τοῦ Πέτρου καὶ τοῦ Παύλου ἐν Ῥώμῃ εὐαγγελιζομένων, καὶ θεμελιούντων τὴν Ἐκκλησίαν (i. e. and he also put forth (ἐξ) to the world his written Gospel, in Greek, when St. Peter and St. Paul were at Rome, and were founding the Church there).

Thus, perhaps, the discrepancies of ancient testimony, with regard to the date of St. Matthew's Gospel, may be explained. Those which assign an earlier date to it (e.g. Cosmas Alexandrinus, Isidore of Seville, Theophylact, and Euthymius, quoted by Lardner, Credibility, xi. p. 375), are probably speaking of the Hebrew edition of it. And this, probably, was published before A.D. XLVI; and those authors who speak of a later date, are referring to the Greek edition of it. And this, it would seem, from the words of Irenæus, was published at Rome, about A.D. LXIII. For why should he connect its publication with St. Peter's and St. Paul's preaching in that city, unless that publication had some relation to the place where they preached?

But probably it was published at an earlier date elsewhere.

If the expressions in St. Matthew, ch. xxvii. 8 ("That field was called the field of blood unto this day"), and xxviii. 15 ("this saying is commonly reported among the Jews until this day"), are rightly supposed to indicate a considerable interval of time between the events specified and the date of composition, it may be suggested as not improbable that these notices may have not been in the Hebrew edition, and may have been added in the later edition, the Greek, where they now are.

2. We find that St. Mark adopts, in many cases, the Greek of St. Matthew, and therefore St. Matthew's Greek Gospel must have been published before the death of St. Peter, under whose direction St. Mark's Gospel was written; and St. Matthew's Greek Gospel is uniformly cited by the Fathers as his.

3. The Gospel according to St. Mark was dictated at Rome by the Apostle St. Peter, and was published by St. Mark, and afterwards preached by him at Alexandria[2]. Epiphanius[3]

[1] Partly, from the Editor's Lectures on the Canon of Scripture. Lect. XI.

[2] Athanas. Synops. Sacr. Ser. ii. p. 56. Kirch. p. 11.

[3] Hær. ii. 51.

says that St. Mark wrote immediately (εὐθὺς) after St. Matthew. See further below, p. 93.

4. St. Luke's Gospel is an introduction to his other work, the Acts of the Apostles, which is not continued beyond A.D. 63. See below, p. 130.

5. St. John published his Gospel about the end of the first century. See below, p. 206.

IV. Introductory Note to St. Matthew's Gospel.

On St. Matthew's name see ix. 9. As a proof of the genuineness of his Gospel, it may be observed, that the Author adds to the Apostolical name of Matthew the adjunct of τελώνης (x. 3), which none of the other Evangelists do; and that they do not join his former profession with the Apostolical name of Matthew as he does (ix. 9), but with that of Levi. He mentions[1] indeed that Matthew, when called by Christ, arose and followed Him (ix. 9); but not, as St. Luke does, that Levi left all and followed Him, and made a great feast for Him in his own house[2]. In his Apostolic Catalogue Matthew is placed after Thomas, before whom he is ranked by St. Mark and St. Luke[3].

These are internal evidences confirmatory of the ancient testimony which ascribes the first Gospel to St. Matthew; and they are indications also of the Author's modesty. It has been observed, that the Author faithfully records speeches in which the Publicans are ranked with sinners and heathens[4],—another evidence of his humility, and of his gratitude to Christ for choosing himself, a member of that despised class; and a proof of the truth of Christianity, which could convert the world by such instruments as the world most despised[5].

The following paragraphs from St. Chrysostom[6] may serve as introductory to this and the other Gospels:—

"You may ask, why, when there were so many disciples of Christ, two only of the Apostles wrote Gospels, and two of their followers;—for one (St. Luke) was a disciple of St. Paul, and the other (St. Mark) a disciple of St. Peter; and with John and Matthew they wrote the Gospels?—Because they did nothing for vain-glory, and all for edification. What then, you may say, was not one Evangelist enough?—Yes. But here is a strong evidence of truth. The Writers are four; they do not write at the same time or at the same place, or after conference with each other, and yet they speak as it were with one mouth. But, you may say, this is not the case, for oftentimes they disagree . . . But here also, we say, is a proof of truth. For, if they had agreed literally, their adversaries would have said that they wrote by collusion. But now these slight seeming discrepancies rescue them from such a suspicion. But in the main things which concern our eternal life, and which constitute the preaching of salvation, there is not the slightest divergence among them. And what are these? That God became man; that He wrought miracles; that He was crucified, buried, rose again, ascended, and will come again to judge, and gave saving commandments, and delivered a Law not contrary to the Old Testament; that He is the Son of God, the only-begotten, and one substance with the Father; and other articles like these. In all these they agree.

"Do not be perplexed, if they do not all relate every thing in the history of Christ's Miracles; but one of them recounts one incident and one another. For if one had narrated every thing, the others would have been superfluous; and if each had narrated things wholly independent and special to himself, the present evidence of agreement would not have been given.

"Therefore they narrate many things in common, and yet each narrates some things peculiar to himself.

"St. Luke tells us the cause why he was induced to write (i. 4). St. John does not declare the reason of his own writing; but the tradition which has come down to us from our fathers is, that inasmuch as the three other Evangelists had dwelt mainly on the subject of the Incar-

[1] Mark ii. 14. Luke v. 27.
[2] Luke v. 27, 28.
[3] Matt. x. 3; iii. 18. Luke vi. 15.
[4] Matt. ix. 11; xi. 19; xviii. 17; xxi. 31, 32.
[5] Cp. Euseb. Dem. Evangel. iii. 5. Epiphan. Hæres. ii. 51.
[6] In Matth. init.

nation, and there was some danger lest the doctrine of the Divinity of Christ should be passed over, he applied himself to the writing of his Gospel; and this is evident from history, and from the preamble of his Gospel.

"St. Matthew is said to have composed his Gospel at the instance of Hebrew converts, and to have written in the Hebrew tongue. St. Matthew, writing for Jews, declares that Christ is from Abraham and David. St. Luke, writing for all, deduces the Genealogy from Adam.

"We may also show the harmony of the Gospels from the testimony of the World which has received them. We may show it even from the Enemies of truth. For many Heresies sprang up after they were written; and these Heresies are hostile to the Gospels; and yet some of them have received them all, and others have cut away parts of them from the residue, and receive the rest. But if the Gospels had been inconsistent, those Heresies, which teach what is contrary to the Gospels, would not have received them; nor would those heresies which receive only a part have so argued from that part, that the part itself proclaims its own affinity with the rest. For, as if you were to take some flesh from the human side, you find there nerves, and veins, and bones, and arteries, and blood, and (so to speak) a specimen of the whole bodily organization in its integrity, so it is with the Gospels. In each part you see the texture of the whole[1]."

As to the order of events in the Evangelical History, it is certain that the Evangelists did not intend to relate them in exactly the chronological sequence in which they occurred. St. Aug. observes on this point[2], that, as it is no man's power to choose in what order he will remember the things he has once known, so it is probable that the Evangelists thought themselves obliged to relate events in that order in which it pleased God to bring them to their mind. That is, the Holy Spirit acted on their minds in bringing things to their remembrance[3], and also in suggesting them in such an order as might be most conducive to the purpose with which the several Gospels, respectively, were written.

The following paragraphs are in part derived from Augustine (De Consensu Evangelistarum, passim):—

"Christ is our King and Priest. The Evangelist St. Matthew more fully declares in his Gospel, and dwells on more constantly, those things which concern Christ's Kingly character and office. He begins his Gospel with tracing Christ's Genealogy from David the King, by a line of Kings. Here wise men come from the East to do homage to the King of the Jews, whose birth strikes fear into the heart of Herod the King.

"St. Luke dilates more on what belongs to Christ as our Priest. He alone mentions the relationship of Mary to the wife of Zachariah the Priest. He relates the Angelic Vision to Zachariah ministering in the Priest's office. He describes the sacrificial offerings made for Christ, an Infant, in the Temple (ii. 22—24). He oftener than the rest reveals to us Christ in prayer (see on chap. v. 16), and intimates to us the mediatorial office of Him Who ever liveth to make intercession for us[4].

"We therefore concur with those, who, in interpreting the Vision of the Four Living Creatures in the Apocalypse, which represent the Four Gospels[5], assign the Lion, the King of all Beasts, to St. Matthew; and the Ox, the Sacrificial Victim, to St. Luke. The Apocalypse itself says, "The Lion of the Tribe of Judah" prevailed[6], and thus designates the Lion as symbolical of Christ our King.

"St. Mark follows St. Matthew, and relates what Christ did in His Human Nature, though without special reference to His functions as King or Priest, and is therefore fitly symbolized in the Apocalyptic vision as Man.

"These three Living Creatures—the Lion, the Calf, the Man—walk on the earth. The first three Evangelists describe specially those things which Christ did in our flesh, and relate

[1] Chrys. in cap. i.
[2] De Cons. Ev. ii. 21.
[3] John xiv. 26.
[4] Heb. vii. 25.
[5] Rev. iv. 7. It is observable that, in the three passages where these symbols occur in Holy Scripture, the three other symbols interchange their order, but the Eagle is always last. Thus, in Ezek. i. 10 the order is, the Man, the Lion, the Ox. In Ezek. x. 14, Cherub, Man, Lion. In Rev. v. 7, Lion, Calf, Man. The Royal, the Sacerdotal, the Human in Christ is presented to the sight in a various order at various times; but the contemplation of the Divine Nature is reserved always to the last.
[6] Rev. v. 5.

the precepts which He delivered on the duties to be performed by us while we walk on earth and dwell in the flesh. But St. John soars as an Eagle above the clouds of human infirmity, and reveals to us the mysteries of Christ's Godhead, and of the Trinity in Unity, and the felicities of Life Eternal; and gazes on the Light of Immutable Truth with a keen and steady ken.

"The first three Evangelists inculcate the practical duties of Active Life: St. John dwells on the ineffable mysteries of the Contemplative: the former speak of Labour, the last of Rest: the former leads the Way, the last shows our Home. In the former we are cleansed from sin, in the last we enjoy the beatific Vision promised to the pure in heart, who will see God.

"He who is the last in order declares more fully the Divine Nature of Christ, by which He is Equal to and One with the Father [1], and in which He made the World [2]; as if this Evangelist, when he reclined on the bosom of Christ at Supper, had imbibed in a larger stream the mystery of His Divinity from His lips.

"This Evangelic Quaternion is the fourfold Car of the Lord [3], upon which He rides throughout the world, and subdues the Nations to His easy Yoke. The Mystery of His Royalty and Priesthood, which was foretold by Prophecy, is proclaimed in the Gospel. The same Lord Christ, Who sent the Prophets before His Descent from heaven into this world, has now sent His Apostles after His Ascension. He is the Head of all His Disciples; and since His Disciples have written those things which He did and said, we are not to affirm with some, that Christ Himself wrote nothing. They wrote, as His members, what they knew from the dictation of Him who is their Head. Whatsoever He willed that we should know of His own Words and deeds, this He commanded them to write, as it were, by His own hand. Whoever, therefore, rightly comprehends the fellowship of Unity, and the Ministry of His Members acting harmoniously in different functions under their Divine Head, will receive what he reads in the Gospel from the narration of the Evangelists, with no other feeling than if he saw the very hand of Christ Himself, which He has in His own body, performing the act of writing [4].

"In the first three Evangelists, the gifts of active virtue,—in the last, St. John, those of contemplative, shine forth. To one man is given by the Spirit the word of wisdom; to another the word of knowledge by the same Spirit [5]. One drinks wisdom from the bosom of Christ; another man is raised to the third heaven, and hears unutterable words [6]. But as long as they are in the body, all are absent from the Lord [7]. And all who believe with good hope, and are written in the Book of Life, have this promise reserved to them,—I will love him and manifest Myself to him [8]. In proportion as we make greater progress in knowledge and intelligence in this mortal pilgrimage of life, let us be more and more on our guard against two devilish sins, Pride and Envy. Let us remember, that as St. John elevates us more and more to the contemplation of the Truth, so much the more does he instruct us in the sweetness of Love. That precept is most healthful and true,—The greater thou art, the more humble thyself, and thou shalt find favour before the Lord [9]. The Evangelist who reveals to us Christ more sublimely than the rest, he also shows us Christ washing His Disciples' feet [10]."

[1] ch. x. 30; xiv. 9, 10; xvii. 22. [2] ch. i. 1, 2.
[3] Ps. xviii. 10; lxxx. 1; xc. 1. Ezek. i. 10—24.
[4] Mainly from Aug. de Consen. Evang. i.
[5] 1 Cor. xii. 8. [6] 2 Cor. xii. 2—4.
[7] 2 Cor. v. 6. [8] John xiv. 21. [9] Ecclus. iii. 18.
[10] John xiii. 5. Aug. de Cons. Ev. iv. 20.

ΤΟ ΚΑΤΑ ΜΑΤΘΑΙΟΝ

ΕΥΑΓΓΕΛΙΟΝ.

I. ($\frac{1}{111}$) [1] [a] ΒΙΒΛΟΣ γενέσεως Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ υἱοῦ Δαυὶδ υἱοῦ Ἀβραάμ. [a] Luke 3. 23, &c.
[2] [b] Ἀβραὰμ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἰσαάκ· Ἰσαὰκ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἰακώβ· Ἰακὼβ [b] Gen. 21. 2. & 25. 24. & 29. 35.

Εὐαγγέλιον] A word used by the LXX for Hebr. בְּשׂוֹרָה (besorah), der. from בָּשָׂר (basar), 'flesh,' as representing some good thing in bodily reality, and so very descriptive of the good tidings of Emmanuel, God manifest in the flesh (1 Tim. iii. 16). Hence St. Ignat. (Phil. 5), προσφυγὼν τῷ εὐαγγελίῳ ὡς σαρκὶ Ἰησοῦ. Cf. c. 9. We find the word Εὐαγγέλια applied to the Gospels early in the second century. Justin, Dial. c. Tryph. c. 100. Apol. i. 66, ἐν ἀπομνημονεύμασιν ἃ καλεῖται εὐαγγέλια. Cp. Iren. iii. 1. 11. On the use of the word εὐαγγέλιον in the Gospels see on Mark x. 29.

κατὰ Ματθαῖον] On the antiquity of this title see Routh, R. S. i. 405. Euseb. iii. 24 has Ματθαῖος γραφῇ παραδοὺς τὸ κατ' αὐτὸν εὐαγγέλιον. The preposition κατὰ prefixed to the names of the Evangelist shows that there is one only Gospel of living water flowing by four Evangelic streams: as Origen says in Ioan. t. 5, τὸ διὰ τεσσάρων ἓν ἐστιν εὐαγγέλιον. Cp. Grot. and Hammond here, and Valck. in Luc. init. p. 4, and Meyer, p. 34.

CH. I. 1. βίβλος γενέσεως] = סֵפֶר תּוֹלְדוֹת (sepher toledoth), a genealogical roll, Gen. ii. 4, where the LXX has βίβλος γενέσεως in the singular: it was a 'formula solennis,' hence the absence of the article. סֵפֶר (sepher = βίβλος), is used for a letter, 1 Kings xxi. 8; for a deed of sale, Jerem. xxxii. 11; for a writing of divorce, Deut. xxiv. 1. Cp. Patrit. ii. 46.

"There seem," says Hilary, "to be four genealogies in the four Gospels. 1. In St. Matthew, from Abraham. 2. St. Mark, from God the Holy Ghost. 3. St. Luke, from Adam. 4. St. John, from Eternity."

— Ἰησοῦ] Ἰησοῦς, i. q. Hebr. יְהוֹשֻׁעַ (yehoshua), from יְהוֹשִׁיעַ (servavit). Cp. Matth. i. 21.

— Χριστοῦ] Χριστός, i. q. Hebr. מָשִׁיחַ (mashiah), 'Messiah,' from root mashah, 'unxit,' anointed in the threefold office of King, Priest, and Prophet. On the personal name Jesus, and the official title of Christ, see Bp. Pearson on the Creed, Art. ii. p. 130, 2. 150—2.—See Abp. Leighton, vol. ii., for an exposition of the first nine chapters of St. Matthew.

— Δαυὶδ] On the orthography see Winer, 42.

ON THE GENEALOGIES.—On this Genealogy [1] in St. MATTHEW it may be observed,

That in St. Matthew's age public tables of Jewish Genealogies existed, and were carefully preserved. (Lightfoot.)

That in all probability this Genealogy inserted here was transcribed thence.

That St. Matthew cannot have introduced at the beginning of his Gospel a document which could be refuted from those tables.

That our Lord was often addressed as Son of David (Matt. ix. 27; xv. 22), and that the Jews, in all their cavils against Him, never denied that he was the Son of David. (Cp. Matt. xx. 30; xxi. 9. 15. John i. 45.)

That St. Matthew wrote for the Jews, and before St. Luke.

The first thing to be proved to the Jews was that Jesus was King of the Jews; and to show this, St. Matthew would refer to public genealogies of the royal race. It seems, therefore, most probable that the genealogical table inserted by the first Evangelist would be the official pedigree of Christ. And this corresponds with what we find in St. Matthew's Genealogy.

The principle on which it is constructed is one not of direct personal descent by natural generation [2], but of royal succession from David to Jechonias; that is, during the whole period of the Jewish Monarchy to the Captivity; it is a Table of Kings.

And the names inserted after Jechoniah are the names of those who would have reigned if the Monarchy had continued, and who were Kings of the Jews de jure though not de facto.

Why then, it may be asked, was another Genealogy added by St. LUKE? (iii. 23—38.) Because it would be satisfactory to know that the Son of Mary descended by her husband in a direct personal lineage from David. This is what appears to be shown in the Genealogy given by St. Luke, who wrote with St. Matthew's Genealogy before him; and so Jesus is proved both by public right and by personal lineage, to be, by his mother's husband, the Son of David [3].

According to their grammatical construction, both the Genealogies (i. e. that in St. Luke iii. 23—38, as well as that in St. Matthew) appear to be Genealogies of Joseph; and if they were not designed to be his, the Evangelists would never have so presented them to the reader that he could hardly fail to mistake them for his.

The Manichæans objected to St. Matthew's Genealogy, that it did not prove Christ to be the Son of David; because it is traced from Joseph, who was not the natural father of Jesus. The same objection had been made by Celsus and Julian [4]. Now how did the Ancient Fathers answer this objection? Not by saying that Jesus was proved to be the Son of David by his mother's side, by the Genealogy of St. Luke; which they certainly would have done, if St. Luke's Genealogy had been the Genealogy of Mary [5].

[1] One of the most full and elaborate dissertations that have been published in modern times on the Genealogies, will be found in Patrit. de Evang. ii. p. 35—105. The conclusions of Patritius are as follows: p. 105:—

It appears from Holy Scriptures and the Fathers that Mary and Joseph were of the same lineage, and it is probable that their marriage was jure agnationis, i. e. she was married to him, according to the Law, as her nearest of kin.

That almost all his ancestors were hers (p. 103).

That both the Genealogies are traced through Joseph, and are the rightly called Genealogies of Christ.

See also Dr. Mill, ii. 102—215, and Rev. Lord Arthur Hervey on the Genealogies, 1853. Williams on the Nativity, p. 103—120. Burgon, p. 8—13. The subject is thus dismissed by Meyer, p. 42:—"Luk. 3, 24. wird Joseph. ein Sohn Eli's genannt. Auch diese Differenz lässt sich nicht beseitigen. So wie bei den meisten, aus niederem Stande entsprossenen grossen Männern, so waren auch bei Jesu die unberühmten Vorfahren vergessen, und wurden nachmals auf verschiedene Weise von der Tradition angegeben. Die Ansicht aber (Spanheim, Döderlein, Rosenmüller, Paulus, Gratz, Hofmann, Ebrard, Lange u. A.), dass Lukas die Genealogie der Maria liefere, und also Luk. 3, 24. Joseph als Schwiegersohn des Eli aufgeführt werde, ist eine eben so grundlose, zur Erzwingung der Harmonie erfundene Hypothese, wie die des Julius African., dass Matth. den eigentlichen Vater Joseph's nenne, Lukas aber seinen nach dem Leviratrechte gesetzlichen Vater (Hug u. M.) oder umgekehrt" (Schleierm.).

[2] This statement is not contravened by St. Matthew's use of the word ἐγέννησε. This word ἐγέννησε, like its equivalent Hebrew יָלַד (yaladh), is not limited to natural procreation, but has a far wider signification, and so ἐγέννησε in the LXX (see Mintert in v.) and describes not only natural generation, but adoption, or other succession (cp. Hammond, p. 6). Hence in St. Matthew's list we find, v. 11, Josiah ἐγέννησε Jechoniah, and v. 12, Jechoniah (cp. Jer. xxii. 29, 30; xxiii. 5, 6) ἐγέννησε Salathiel. And St. Matthew, in v. 16 and in v. 20, applies this word to generation by the Holy Ghost. This has been clearly shown by many, e. g. Mill, p. 173, and by Lord Arthur Hervey in his Volume on the Genealogies, pp. 51—61.

[3] See further note on i. 12.

[4] Origen, c. Cels. ii. Cyril, c. Julian. viii.

[5] Besides, not Heli, but Joakim was the father of Mary. See Epiphan. hær. 78, and Routh, R. S., ii. 356.

c Gen. 38. 27, &c. 1 Chron. 2. 5, 9.
d Num. 7. 12. 1 Chron. 2. 10.
e Ruth 4. 17. 1 Chron. 2. 10, 11, 12.

δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἰούδαν καὶ τοὺς ἀδελφοὺς αὐτοῦ· [3] [c] Ἰούδας δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Φαρὲς καὶ τὸν Ζαρὰ ἐκ τῆς Θάμαρ· Φαρὲς δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἐσρώμ· Ἐσρὼμ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἀράμ· [4] [d] Ἀρὰμ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἀμιναδάβ· Ἀμιναδὰβ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ναασσών· Ναασσὼν δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Σαλμών· [5] [e] Σαλμὼν δὲ

Indeed, the opinion that St. Luke's Genealogy is that of Mary was unknown to Christian Antiquity [1]; and is as novel in its origin as it is at variance with sound criticism [2].

Christian Antiquity was agreed,—

That both Genealogies are Genealogies of our Lord by Joseph the husband of Mary.

That Joseph was the son of Jacob or of Heli, either by adoption [3]; or Because Jacob and Heli were either whole brothers [4] or half brothers, and because on the death of one of the two brothers without issue the surviving brother married his widow [5], who became the mother of Joseph by this second marriage [6], and so he was called the Son of Jacob and the Son of Heli. This opinion may be represented thus:—

MATTHAN	Estha	MELCHI
ex familiâ Salomonis	Matthani	ex familiâ
ortus genuit	mox	Nathanicâ,
	Melchi uxor,	qui ex Esthâ
		Matthani viduâ procreavit
JACOB,	Mulier	HELI, qui obiit
qui uxore ductâ viduâ	ἀνώνυμος.	sine prole, sed per fratrem
Heli fratris sui uterini		uterinum, Jacobum, pater
verus pater factus est		legalis factus est
JOSEPHI.		JOSEPHI.

The Genealogy of St. Matthew is Christ's official succession to David as a King (see v. 6, where David is twice called ὁ βασιλεύς). That of St. Luke is the derivation of his origin from David as a man. And this his human, and personal, and direct derivation from David, and also from Abraham, harmonizes with St. Luke's plan in tracing our Lord's pedigree further backward, even to the first man, Adam, the father of the human race. And so St. Luke suggests the reflection, that He who is the promised Seed, the Son of David, the King of the Jews, is also the Second Adam, is the Saviour and Restorer of the whole family of man. Enough is stated in Holy Scripture [7] to show that Mary, as well as Joseph, was of the House of David. But it was no part of the Divine plan to bring forth the Blessed Virgin from her retirement. She was ha-almah, the Virgin [8],—an example of all Virgins,—and, as her name Almah intimates, secluded from public view. It is most in harmony with this plan, to suppose,—as the grammatical construction of the Genealogies constrains us,—that neither of these pedigrees are hers, except so far as, by the ties of a common origin and by the bond of Holy Matrimony, she was Joseph's, and what was his was hers, and what was hers was his, and that, consequently, as Christ, her true Son according to the flesh, owed and paid filial obedience to him who was united by holy Matrimony to his mother [9], so what belonged by royal and personal heritage, to his mother's husband was due to Him who was her first-born and only Son. We know, from the testimony of St. Matthew and St. Luke, that Christ was born of her, and that she was a virgin, and that she was of the seed of David according to the flesh. But, as far as she is concerned individually, Christ, like his great prototype Melchizedek, is ἀγενεαλόγητος (Heb. vii. 3) in Holy Writ.

God's ways are not man's ways. Man would have expected a genealogy of Mary. And if the Gospel had been dictated by men, such a genealogy would assuredly have been given. But the Gospel is not of man; and, perhaps, by beginning the Gospel in a different way from what man would have done, He designs to teach the reader of the Gospels a necessary lesson, that à priori reasonings are of no account whatever, in regard to Divine Revelations, and that when it has once been proved, by logical deduction, that the Gospel is of God, Reason should make way for Faith, and should wait patiently for the time when Faith will be perfected in fruition, and Reason will rejoice in that perfection, for Faith is Reason in Glory.

Hence, then, an argument may be derived for the Inspiration of the Evangelists. The eagerness with which many, in modern times, have endeavoured to wrest aside the words of the Gospel, in order to make one of the Genealogies to be the Genealogy of Mary, and the questions more modestly, but yet anxiously, put by the ancient Fathers,—Why it pleased God to trace the Genealogy of Christ through Joseph alone, at the same time that He revealed the fact that Joseph was not the natural father of Christ, afford plain proof that if men had been the framers of the genealogies, they would either have deduced our Lord's human origin through Mary, or, if at all by Joseph, not by Joseph alone.

3. Θάμαρ. 5. Ῥαχάβ—Ῥούθ] "Why," says Chrysostom, "having begun the genealogy with men, does he make any mention of women? and why, if he names women, does he pass by the most illustrious, such as Sarah and Rebekah, and enumerates some famous for ill? One of these was born of unlawful wedlock, another a harlot [10], and the third was a stranger; and he introduces also the wife of Uriah." "And this was so designed," says Jerome, "in order that He who had come for the sake of sinners might, being born of sinners, blot out the sins of all, and because He came not now as a Judge, but as a Physician, to heal our diseases." And Jerome (in Jovinian. p. 165) suggests another reason; viz. that these women were types of the Heathen world, recovered from sin and misery, and espoused as a Church to Christ [11].

---

[1] It was first propounded in the 15th century by some Romanist Divines, to do honour (as they thought) to the Blessed Virgin, and was thence, singular to say, adopted from them by some Protestant Theologians. Cp. Mill. p. 183. Patrit. ii. p. 84—87, who observes that "not one of the Fathers ever supposed that Mary's genealogy was traced by St. Luke: and that the first person who broached that notion was Annius of Viterbo, who died A.D. 1502." Maldonatus and some writers in our own day ascribe that opinion to Aug., but erroneously.

[2] The Manichæan objection was considered by St. Aug. c. Faust. Manich. xxiii. 7; 8. St. Aug. answers

That Joseph is called by the Holy Ghost "the husband of Mary"—"habens eam conjugem continentèr non concubitu sed affectu non commixtione corporum, sed copulatione, quod est charius, animarum," that the Holy Ghost, who calls him 'the husband of Mary,' related that Mary "non ipsius concubitu sed de Spiritu Sancto concepisse." See also his Serm. 51.

That the Holy Spirit affirms that Christ is of the seed of David, according to the flesh, Gal. iii. 8, 9. Rom. i. 3. 2 Tim. ii. 8, and yet born of a Virgin; and that therefore Mary His mother was of the lineage of David. This may also be presumed from the fact in Luke i. 27. 32; ii. 5, that Mary, though ἔγκυος goes up to Bethlehem to be registered. Greg. Thaumaturg. (early in the third century) says, p. 25, ἡ ἁγία παρθένος ἐκ γένους Δαβὶδ ἀνύγχανε καὶ τὴν Βηθλεὲμ πατρίδα ἐκέκτητο καὶ τῷ Ἰωσὴφ κατὰ νόμους (as an ἐπίκληρος, Numb. xxxvi. 5. 8. Ruth iii. 11) ἐμεμνήστευτο. Cp. Athanas. c. Apollinar. p. 738. Leo M. Serm. xxix. p. 87, "electa Virgo de Semine Abrahæ et radice Jesse." Cp. Routh, R. S. i. 354—356. Hence St. Jerome says, "It may be asked why the genealogy of Christ is traced through Joseph? We reply, that it is not usual to trace genealogies from women; and that Joseph and Mary were of the same tribe and house." See also the statement of Hegesippus in Routh, R. S., p. 213. Euseb. iii. 32, concerning the δεσπόσυνοι, and see other testimonies, arguments that Joseph and Mary were of the same lineage, in Patrit. ii. 15—17. 48.

[3] See Aug. Qu. Ev. ii. 5, de Cons. Ev. ii. 2 and 3, and Serm. 51, "De concordiâ Evangelistarum in generationibus Domini."

[4] For the argument that Jacob and Eli were whole brothers, see below, i. 15.

[5] ἐπεγάμβρευσεν. Cp. Matt. xxii. 24. Deut. xxv. 5. Gen. xxxviii. 8. Winer, Real-W. ii. 19.

[6] See Julian. African. (A.D. 220) ap. Routh, R. S. ii. pp. 233. 339. 341. 355. Euseb. i. 7; vi. 31. St. Jerome ad loc. Justin. quæst. ad orthodox. 66. Greg. Nazian. de Geneal. ii. p. 268, who says, Εὐαγγελιστὴς δὲ μὲν εἶπε τὴν φύσιν Ματθαῖος, ὃς δ' ἔγραψε Λουκᾶς τὸν νόμον. Cp. Mill, pp. 186—201. St. Ambrose in Luc. iii. regards Heli (not Jacob) as the natural father of Joseph; and Jacob as the legal parent.

[7] See note [2] above.

[8] See note on i. 23.

[9] Hence the Angel calls Mary Joseph's wife (i. 20), and the Holy Spirit does not scruple to say οἱ γονεῖς (Luke ii. 27. 41. 43), nor to record Mary's words ὁ πατήρ σου, ii. 48. Hence St. Aug. (Serm. li. 16), in reply to those who made objections to the genealogies "quia 'per Joseph,' et non per Mariam, numerantur. 'Non,' inquiunt, 'per Joseph debuit?' Quare non? Numquid non erat maritus Mariæ? Scriptura enim dicit 'Noli timere accipere Mariam conjugem tuam: quod enim in illâ natum est de Spiritu Sancto est.' Et tamen paterna ei non aufertur auctoritas, cùm jubetur puero nomen imponere; denique et ipsa Virgo Maria, benè sibi conscia quod non ex ejus complexu et concubitu conceperit Christum, tamen eum patrem Christi dicit." This has been well stated by Gratius (whose legal studies and reputation entitle his opinion to special deference in these matters), and by other Expositors as follows;

"Non aliena à Christo existimanda est origo Josephi, cùm natus sit Christus ex eâ quam Josephus in matrimonio retinuerit (Grotius). Nam si ea vis est Legis, ut partus viduæ ex agnato defuncti viri conceptus in omne jus defuncti succedat, non aliter quàm si ex ipsius genitură ortum traxisset (Grot. and Spalatensis) (et proles à fratre genita, semen vocatur, non illius per quem suscepta est, sed illius cui suscepta est, nempe fratris sine liberis defuncti, vide Gen. xxxviii. 9. Spalat.) quidni id quod sine humana opera ex legitimâ illius conjuge natum est, quasi ipsius solo divinitùs insitum, ipsius proprium censeatur? Atque hinc est, nimirum, quòd non tantùm ab Evangelii scriptoribus Josephus pater Christi (Luke ii. 27. 33. 41. 48), nuptiis videlicet patrem demonstrantibus, nominatur; sed et Christus omnia obsequia atque operas illi præstitit quæ expectari possunt à filio in sacris paternis constituto. Quòd si ubique gentium adoptivi liberi ex ejus gentis, cui velut insiti sunt, nobilitate censentur, quantò justiùs omnia jura gentilitia Josephi, ac promissiones Divinæ ipsius Majoribus factæ, ad Dominum Jesum pertinebant?" (Grot.)

"Josephi legitimus hæres Jesus fuit quippe filius ejus, non quidem naturalis nec tantùm putatitius neque adoptivus, sed reipsâ proprius ac legitimus, ipsi legitimè natus ex uxore, quæ ipsi legitimo matrimonio juncta est, ideóque una erat cum Josepho caro, Deo legitimè operante, qui nihil non legitimè operatur, cujus libero dominio non subtrahit uxorem mariti auctoritas. Cùm autem succedat jure Gentium in paternam hæreditatem is qui solius publicæ famæ testimonio filius habetur, quantò magis filius legitimus? Quocirca à Josephi morte Christus erat Regni Davidici hæres. Quod cùm Matthæus demonstrare vellet, fuit ei Josephi Genealogia condenda, non nuda Mariæ, quæ, viris relictis, hæres esse Regni non potuit." (Lucas Brugensis.)

[10] That Rahab here mentioned was the Rahab of Jericho, see Mill, p. 132—138. Patrit. ii. 49—51. As Bengel observes, this may be presumed from the article τῆς 'P.

The mention of Rahab shows that St. Matthew had access to materials that we have not, for it is no where said in the Old Testament that Rahab was mother of Boaz.

[11] As Chrysostom says, "God married our nature, which was in poverty, and misery, and exile, and estranged from Him, and had committed harlotry against Him. Such was the Church; but she left her Father's ἐγέννησε τὸν Βοὸζ ἐκ τῆς Ῥαχάβ· Βοὸζ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ὠβὴδ ἐκ τῆς Ῥούθ· Ὠβὴδ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἰεσσαί· [6] [f] Ἰεσσαὶ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Δαυὶδ τὸν βασιλέα· Δαυὶδ δὲ ὁ βασιλεὺς ἐγέννησε τὸν Σολομῶνα ἐκ τῆς τοῦ Οὐρίου· [7] [g] Σολομὼν δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ῥοβοάμ· Ῥοβοὰμ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἀβιά· Ἀβιὰ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἀσά· [8] [h] Ἀσὰ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἰωσαφάτ· Ἰωσαφὰτ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἰωράμ· Ἰωρὰμ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ὀζίαν· [9] [i] Ὀζίας δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἰωάθαμ· Ἰωάθαμ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἄχαζ· Ἄχαζ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἐζεκίαν· [10] [k] Ἐζεκίας δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Μανασσῆ· Μανασσῆς δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἀμών· Ἀμὼν δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἰωσίαν· [11] [l] Ἰωσίας δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἰεχονίαν καὶ τοὺς ἀδελφοὺς αὐτοῦ, ἐπὶ τῆς μετοικεσίας Βαβυλῶνος. [12] [m] Μετὰ δὲ τὴν μετοικεσίαν Βαβυλῶνος, Ἰεχονίας ἐγέννησε τὸν Σαλαθιήλ· Σαλαθιὴλ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ζοροβάβελ· [13] Ζοροβάβελ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἀβιούδ· Ἀβιοὺδ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἐλιακείμ· Ἐλιακεὶμ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἀζώρ· [14] Ἀζὼρ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Σαδώκ· Σαδὼκ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἀχείμ· Ἀχεὶμ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἐλιούδ· [15] Ἐλιοὺδ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἐλεάζαρ· Ἐλεάζαρ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ματθάν· Ματ-

[f] 1 Sam. 16. 1. & 17. 12. 2 Sam. 12. 24.
[g] 1 Kings 11. 43. & 14. 31. & 15. 8. 1 Chron. 3. 10. 2 Chron. 14. 1.
[h] 1 Kings 15. 24. 2 Kings 8. 16, 24. 2 Chron. 17. 1. & 21. 1.
[i] 1 2 Kings 15. 7, 38. & 16. 20. 2 Chron. 26. 23. & 27. 9. & 28. 27.
[k] 2 Kings 20. 21. & 21. 18, 24. 1 Chron. 3. 14, &c. 2 Chron. 32. 33. & 33. 20, 25.
[l] 1 2 Kings 23. 30, 34. & 24. 6. 1 Chron. 3. 15, 16. 2 Chron. 36. 1, 4, 8.
[m] 1 Chron. 3. 17, 19. 1 Esdr. 3. 2. & 5. 2. Hagg. 1. 1.

---

5. Ὠβήδ] Lachmann, Tisch., and others have Ἰωβὴδ, on good MSS. authority: but the reading of the LXX is not lightly to be abandoned. Besides Ἰωβὴδ is inconsistent with the Hebrew etymon עֹבֵד, and seems to have arisen from a supposed connexion with Ἰώβ. See below, v. 10, where Ἀμὼς, for Ἀμὼν (אָמוֹן), seems to be due to a similar confusion with Ἀμὼς, the name of the Prophet and of Isaiah's father.

6. Δαυὶδ τὸν βασιλέα] The King, a clue to the design of this Genealogy, showing the Royalty of Christ, Messiah the King.

8. Ἰωρὰμ δέ] The Evangelist omits three names here, Ahaziah, Joash, and Amaziah, 2 Kings viii. 25. 1 Chron. iii. 11. 2 Chron. xxii. 1; xxiv. 27 (Jerome), because the race of Jehoram was mingled with the seed of Jezebel, 2 Kings viii. 16. 26, therefore its memory is blotted out from the Genealogy of Christ, even to the third generation. Three generations were omitted intentionally, and thus there became fourteen generations. (Hilary.) Cp. Surenhus. p. 126, who shows that it was not unusual for the Hebrews to omit names designedly (see above, v. 3) in their genealogies, as in Ezra, cap. vii., compared by 1 Chron. i. 3—15, five generations are omitted. See also Lightfoot.

— Ὀζίαν] Uzziah, called also Azariah (help of God), 2 Kings xiv. 21. 1 Chron. iii. 12, for God had mercy on him, and did not destroy him when he profaned the sanctuary, 2 Chron. xxvi. 21. Surenhus. p. 126.

10. Ἀμών] Lachmann and others, Ἀμώς; see above on Ὠβήδ, v. 5.

11. Ἰωσίας δὲ ἐ. τ. Ἰεχονίαν καὶ τοὺς ἀδελφοὺς αὐτοῦ] (1) Porphyry hence derived an objection (see Jerome). For Jechoniah, the father of Salathiel, was not the same as Jechoniah the son of Josiah; but was the grandson of Josiah by Joakim or Jeconiah. Cp. 1 Chron. iii. 15. 2 Kings xxiii. 34; xxiv. 2 Chron. xxxvi. (2) To this St. Jerome replies, that under the same word Jechoniah two different persons are to be understood; and thus the fourteen generations are complete[1]. The second tessarodecad begins with David and ends with Jechoniah = Joakim. The third begins with Jechoniah, and ends with Christ (Jerome in Daniel i.). (3) St. Augustine supposes that the same Jechoniah is reckoned twice—"in figuram Christi a Judæis ad gentes transeuntis;" and as a "lapis angularis." Serm. li. 15. De Cons. Ev. ii. 4[2].

— ἐπὶ τῆς μετοικεσίας] ἐπί (see Mark ii. 26): tempore transmigrationis, which began under Joakim, 2 Kings xxiv. 7. 2 Chron. xxxvi. 6, was repeated at several times, Jer. lii. 28—30. He does not call it αἰχμαλωσίας: for (1) That was not effected then; (2) though the city was destroyed, yet the family of David, to which the promise was given, was only removed; (3) and though Salathiel was born after the migration, yet not after the seventy years' captivity.

— Βαβυλῶνος] On this use of the genitive, see x. 5. Winer, G. G. p. 169.

12. ἐγέννησε] i. e. by adoption, or other legal assumption: not by natural procreation; for Jeconiah had no natural successor in the royal line (Jer. xxii. 30), but the regal line of Solomon terminated with him[3] (cp. St. Basil, iii. p. 362, and Bengel here), and the royal inheritance passed into another channel, derived through Nathan from David[4], to whom it was divinely promised that there should be no failure of royal progeny, but no such promise of perpetuity was ever made to Solomon. Salathiel, or Shealtiel (Ezra iii. 2. 8; v. 2), who followed Jeconiah, was son of Neri (Luke iii. 27).

— Ζοροβάβελ] i.e. the royal seed זֶרַע (zera) at Babylon (Chrys.); and the prince of or head and leader of the Jews on their return from captivity (Hagg. i. 1. 12; ii. 2. Ezra ii. 2; iii. 2. 8; v. 2. Neh. xii. 1), and so a remarkable type of Christ. (Mill, p. 158.) From Zorobabel the family of David starts, as it were, afresh; it branches out into two lines by the two sons of Zorobabel, Abiud (in St. Matt. i. 13), and Rhesa (in St. Luke iii. 27). Zorobabel, here (and in Luke iii. 27, and in Ezra, Nehemiah, and Haggai), called the son of Salathiel, is called the son of Pedaiah in 1 Chron. iii. 19, probably by a levirate marriage. Cp. Mill, 138, 139.

13. Ἀβιούδ] Perhaps Hodaiah (1 Chron. iii. 24). See further on Luke iii. 27.

15. Ματθάν] Perhaps the same as the Ματθὰτ in St. Luke iii. 24, whose name is written Ματθὰν in some MSS. and by some of the Fathers, Aug. qu. 46, in Deut., Greg. Naz., and Epiphan. See the authorities quoted in Mill, p. 77. 189—192. Hervey, 129, 130. Patrit. ii. p. 80. 82. We now see another reason why the Genealogy of St. Luke was added to that of St. Matthew.

It was necessary to show that Joseph was the son of David.
St. Matthew traces David's line through Solomon.
But that line ended in Jeconiah, in the captivity.
And yet we see that Jeconiah has a successor assigned him by St. Matthew, viz. Salathiel.

---

house (Ps. xlv. 10), was espoused to Christ, and became the mother of princes."

Perhaps, also, in this mention of Thamar, Rahab, and Ruth, in our Lord's Genealogy, we may see here an evangelical protest, by anticipation, against the novel dogma of the original and actual sinlessness of Mary, grounded by some on the plea that He Who was without sin could only be born of one who is sinless. See on Luke i. 27.

[1] This is to be explained thus. Josiah had four sons, Johanan, Eliakim = Joakim, Zedekiah = Mattaniah, Joahas = Shallum. The Jechoniah first mentioned by the Evangelist is the same as Eliakim or Joakim, who was the father of Joachin, or Jechoniah (or Jeconiah) the second mentioned by the Evangelist. It is observable, in confirmation of this view, that יְכָנְיָה (Jeconiah), the grandson of Josiah, is called also Ἰωάχιμος by Josephus, Antt. x. 8, and by some MSS. of the LXX, in 2 Kings xxiv. 6 (see Rosenmüller), as well as by the name Ἰεχονίας. Cp. other authorities in Mill, p. 108, and Hervey, p. 70—72.

[2] Surenhus. (p. 129) supposes that St. Matthew here omits the children of Josiah, and passes on to his grandson: and that by ἀδελφοὺς he means his uncles (see Gen. xiii. 8; xix. 7), who are placed after him, because Jeconiah was king before his uncle Zedekiah, 2 Kings xxiv. 17; but it is not certain (observes Arnoldi) that Zedekiah, in 1 Chron. iii. 16, is not the brother of Jeconiah.

[3] The following is from Grotius. "Mihi certissimum est, à Matthæo spectari Juris successionem.

"Nam eos qui Regnum obtinuerunt, quod erat τῶν πρωτογόνων, primatu nemine admisto, recenset.

"Cùm Salathieli (nam cur diversos Salathieles putemus non video) Neri parentem adscribit Lucas, privatum hominem, Matthæus autem Jechoniam; apertissimum est, à Luca jus sanguinis, à Matthæo jus successionis et præcipuè jus ad Regem dignitatem, spectatum; quod jus, sine liberis mortuo Jechonia, et si qui alii erant à Salomonis posteris, ad Salathielem, caput familiæ Nathanis, legitimo ordine devolutum est; nam inter Davidis filios Salomonem Nathan sequebatur.

"Adde his, quòd Lucas ad Adamum naturalem omnium satorem genus perducit; Matthæus autem ab Abrahamo incipit, à quo incipiunt promissiones, unde jus potissimum oritur.

"Lucæ numerus plenior est, quàm Matthæi. Matthæus non numerari à se personas, sed generis summam brevitèr indicare in τεσσαρεσκαιδεκάδας tres memoriæ causâ digestam satis apertè profitetur. Nam et inter Joramum Regem et Osiam, qui Azarias, Achaziam, Joam, Amaziam, silentio transmittit, nempe ut ordini ad memoriæ facilitatem instituto consulat: quod in Juris successione demonstranda parum refert. Nam, ut dici solet, hæres hæredis mei hæres meus est. At qui naturalem seriem sequi velit, quod facit Lucas (eam enim ob causam, à Davide ad Salathielem usque, privatæ fortunæ homines memorat, ne ab eo ordine discedat) eum decet de gradu ad gradum, quà sanguis ducit, progredi, quod eum feciise non dubitamus. At si quis tempora rectè putet à Zorobabele ad Christum, videbit secundùm id quod plerúmque accidit, totum id tempus personis ab illo recitatis rectè expleri. Quare hinc quoque discimus à Matthæo τὸ νομικὸν, à Luca τὸ φυσικὸν spectari."

[4] 2 Sam. vii. 8—16. 1 Chron. xvii. 7—15. Ps. lxxxix. cxxxii.

θὰν δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἰακώβ· 16 Ἰακὼβ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἰωσὴφ, τὸν ἄνδρα Μαρίας, ἐξ ἧς ἐγεννήθη ΙΗΣΟΥΣ, ὁ λεγόμενος ΧΡΙΣΤΟΣ.

(ᾱ) 17 Πᾶσαι οὖν αἱ γενεαὶ ἀπὸ Ἀβραὰμ ἕως Δαυὶδ γενεαὶ δεκατέσσαρες· καὶ ἀπὸ Δαυὶδ ἕως τῆς μετοικεσίας Βαβυλῶνος γενεαὶ δεκατέσσαρες· καὶ ἀπὸ τῆς μετοικεσίας Βαβυλῶνος ἕως τοῦ ΧΡΙΣΤΟΥ, γενεαὶ δεκατέσσαρες.

n Luke 1. 27, 34, 35.

(ᾱ) 18 [n] Τοῦ δὲ Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ ἡ γένεσις οὕτως ἦν. μνηστευθείσης γὰρ τῆς μητρὸς αὐτοῦ Μαρίας τῷ Ἰωσὴφ, πρὶν ἢ συνελθεῖν αὐτοὺς, εὑρέθη ἐν γαστρὶ ἔχουσα ἐκ Πνεύματος ἁγίου. (ᾱ) 19 [o] Ἰωσὴφ δὲ ὁ ἀνὴρ αὐτῆς, δίκαιος ὢν, καὶ μὴ θέλων αὐτὴν δειγματίσαι, ἐβουλήθη λάθρα ἀπολῦσαι αὐτήν· 20 ταῦτα δὲ αὐτοῦ ἐνθυμηθέντος, ἰδοὺ ἄγγελος Κυρίου κατ' ὄναρ ἐφάνη αὐτῷ λέγων, Ἰωσὴφ, υἱὸς Δαυὶδ, μὴ φοβηθῇς παραλαβεῖν Μαριὰμ τὴν γυναῖκά σου, o Deut. 24. 1.

Now how does it appear that Salathiel so adopted was of David's line? From the Genealogy of St. LUKE, who traces him from David, through David's son Nathan.

The two Genealogies coalesce for two generations, i. e. in Salathiel and in his son ZOROBABEL. But then they diverge again in two lines by Zorobabel's two sons Abiud and Rhesa.

Now it may be that as David's line by Solomon failed in Jeconiah, and was to be supplied from David's line by Nathan given by St. Luke; so perhaps Zorobabel's line through Abiud (which St. Matthew gives) may have failed likewise, and was to be supplied by Zorobabel's line through Rhesa given by St. Luke.

There seems to be some intimation of such a failure. As David's two lines coalesce in Salathiel, just above Zorobabel, so Zorobabel's two lines seem to coalesce in Matthan or Matthat (see note on v. 13), just above Jacob, the grandfather of Joseph.

Or suppose that Matthan and Matthat are not identical. There are two lines from Zorobabel. And it might have been alleged that Joseph was not sole heir of Zorobabel and David, if it had not been shown, as it is shown by the Genealogy of St. Luke, added to that of St. Matthew, that both lines terminate in Joseph.

The following diagram will illustrate what has now been said.

16. Ἰακὼβ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἰωσὴφ [1]] who is therefore called by the angel 'Son of David,' υἱὸς Δαυὶδ, i. 20. Cp. Luke i. 28. By virtue of his marriage with Mary, Joseph is called by the Holy Spirit ἀνὴρ Μαρίας (i. 16. 19), and she is called his wife (i. 20), and the husband is head of the wife (Ephes. v. 23), and therefore he had a jus paternum over her offspring; and God authorized this by giving to Joseph the paternal office of imposing the name on her Son (i. 21). Cp. Luke ii. 41. 48. Consequently, her first-born and only Son had an hereditary claim to Joseph's privileges, whatever they were, by virtue of Joseph's descent from 'David the King;' and therefore the angel says (Luke i. 32), God shall give him the throne of his father David. (Cp. Aug. Serm. 51.) We no where read that Joseph had any children by natural generation, or that the Blessed Virgin was more than once a mother; therefore the direct line of David's race seems to have been ended in Christ. Cp. Olshausen on Luke iv. 21.

17. πᾶσαι αἱ γενεαὶ — δικατέσσαρες] Observe αἱ —. Not all generations, but all the generations recited by the Evangelist. (See Winer, G. G. 101.)

δεκατέσσαρες, fourteen = twice seven; a number, in Scripture, symbolizing completeness. The sixth seventh brings us to Christ.

It is observable, that the number fourteen may be expressed in Hebrew by letters which make the word David, דוד. (Surenhus. p. 143.)

The three fourteens, or six sevens of this Genealogy = forty-two; a number which had been already distinguished in Holy Writ as the number of Mansiones or Stationes[2] by which the People of God come to the Land of Promise. "So," says St. Jerome, "by forty-two generations the seed of the faithful is brought to Christ."

18. τοῦ δέ] See Irenæus, iii. 16.

— ἡ γένεσις] origin, not simply birth. (Meyer.)

— μνηστευθείσης] Why was our Lord conceived of a Virgin espoused?

That the lineage of Mary might be shown through the Genealogy of Joseph.

That she might not be stoned as an adulteress.

That in her flight to Egypt she might have a protector and comforter.

The martyr Ignatius, the disciple of St. John (ad Ephes. 19), adds another reason, that his birth might be concealed from the devil. (Origen, Hom. 6, in Luc., and St. Jerome.) Compare also the words of Chrys. God concealed from the Jews at first that Jesus was born of a Virgin. He kept the mystery as it were in shade for a time, as He did other mysteries, which He revealed more fully by degrees. If after our Lord had wrought so many miracles as He did they were loth to believe that He was born of a Virgin, it is not probable that they would have received this truth before those miracles were wrought. Even Joseph, a just and good man, required the evidence of an angel to convince him" (and his conviction, and his consequent reception of the Virgin as his wife, is the strongest assurance that could be given us for our conviction). "Hence the Apostles in their preaching did not begin with proclaiming our Lord's birth from a Virgin; and the Virgin herself kept it in reserve for a time; she said even to her Son, 'Thy Father and I have sought thee, sorrowing.' (Luke ii. 48.)" (Chrys.) St. Ambrose adds (in Luc. I), "Maluit Dominus quosdam de suâ generatione, quàm de matris pudore, dubitare."

— εὑρέθη] ἐφάνη (Euthym.). The Angel and the Evangelist state the fact, but not how it was done We know not how He who is infinite was in the womb, how He who comprehends all things was conceived by a woman. Do not inquire how such things were done, but receive what is revealed, and do not repine for what is concealed. (Chrys.) A salutary caution is given by Greg. Naz. (Orat. xx. p. 382): ἀκούεις γέννησιν· τὸ πῶς μὴ περιεργάζου — εἰ δὲ πολυπραγμονεῖς, κἀγώ σοι πολυπραγμονῶ τὸ κρᾶμα ψυχῆς καὶ σώματος.—"On the Incarnation of our Lord," see Barrow, Sermons 23 and 24.

19. δίκαιος] "Sæpe in N. T. ubi aliquis δίκαιος צדיק (tsadik) dicitur plures omninò virtutes comprehendi solent." Vorst, de Hebr. p. 56. Cp. Luke i. 6; ii. 25. Acts x. 22.

20. ἰδού] הִנֵּה (hinneh).

— ὄναρ] No communications by dreams are mentioned in the N. T. except those to Joseph at the beginning of the Gospel, ii. 13. 19. 22, and to the Magi, ii. 12, and to Pilate's wife, a Gentile, xxvii. 19 (cp. Bengel on Acts xvi. 9).

— υἱὸς Δαυὶδ] See v. 16. "Recognosce quod promissum est domui David (Isa. vii. 13, 14) de quâ tu es et Maria, et vide impletum in ea." (Gloss. Ord.)

[1] There is an ancient tradition that Joseph had the cognomen of Panther, and the same name is assigned by some to Jacob his father. Epiphan. 78, hær. § 7. Cp. Mill, p. 189. Patrit. p. 101.

Damascene (de Fid. Orth. iv. 14) says that Melchi and Panther were brothers; that Panther was the father of Barpanther; and Barpanther the father of Joakim, the father of Mary.

Celsus (ap. Origen. i. 32) "Jesum Panthere patrem ortum aiebat."

Epiphan (hær. 66; al. 78) says, and so the Talmud (Patrit. 101), that Cleophas (Alphæus) were brothers; by the same father, Panther.

[2] On the number forty-two, often signifying in Scripture a time of trial leading to rest, see on Rev. xi. 2, 3; xii. 14; xiii. 5.

τὸ γὰρ ἐν αὐτῇ γεννηθὲν ἐκ Πνεύματός ἐστιν ἁγίου· 21 [p] τέξεται δὲ υἱὸν, καὶ καλέσεις τὸ ὄνομα αὐτοῦ Ἰησοῦν, αὐτὸς γὰρ σώσει τὸν λαὸν αὐτοῦ ἀπὸ τῶν ἁμαρτιῶν αὐτῶν. 22 Τοῦτο δὲ ὅλον γέγονεν, ἵνα πληρωθῇ τὸ ῥηθὲν ὑπὸ Κυρίου διὰ τοῦ προφήτου λέγοντος, 23 [q] Ἰδοὺ, ἡ παρθένος ἐν γαστρὶ ἕξει, καὶ τέξεται υἱὸν, καὶ καλέσουσι τὸ ὄνομα αὐτοῦ Ἐμμανουήλ· ὅ ἐστι, μεθερμηνευόμενον, Μεθ' ἡμῶν ὁ Θεός. 24 Διεγερθεὶς δὲ ὁ Ἰωσὴφ ἀπὸ τοῦ ὕπνου ἐποίησεν ὡς προσέταξεν αὐτῷ ὁ ἄγγελος Κυρίου, καὶ παρέλαβε τὴν γυναῖκα αὐτοῦ· 25 καὶ οὐκ ἐγίνωσκεν αὐτὴν ἕως οὗ ἔτεκε τὸν υἱὸν αὐτῆς τὸν πρωτότοκον· καὶ ἐκάλεσε τὸ ὄνομα αὐτοῦ ΙΗΣΟΥΝ.

[p] Luke 1. 31. & 2. 21. Acts 4. 12. & 10. 43. & 13. 38, 39.

[q] Isa. 7. 14.

II. 1 [a] Τοῦ δὲ Ἰησοῦ γεννηθέντος ἐν Βηθλεὲμ τῆς Ἰουδαίας, ἐν ἡμέραις

[a] Luke 2. 4, 6, 7. 1 Kings 4. 30.

---

21. καλέσεις τὸ ὄνομα — ἁμαρτιῶν] See below, v. 25 and v. 16, and on the sense of καλεῖν τὸ ὄνομα see Vorst, de Hebr., p. 349. The meaning is, Thou shalt give Him this name, and He shall be in act what His Name, Ἰησοῦς, or Saviour, signifies; αὐτὸς γάρ, for He, Ipse, by Himself, and no other, shall save His People, not (as many will suppose) from their temporal enemies the Romans, but from their deadly foes, their own sins. Cp. Aug. de Cons. Ev. ii. 2.

— αὐτός] "Casu recto, semper habet emphasim — hìc maximam." (Bengel.) "Ipse, solus, nemo alius."

22. ἵνα πληρωθῇ] That it might receive its full and final accomplishment; intimating that though other previous results may have emerged from the prophecy, they were only partial, prelusive, and preparatory to this fulfilment, which was the aim and end of the prophecy. The ἵνα is not therefore ἐκβατικὸν, but preserves its true sense as αἰτιατικόν[1].

The emphatic word in this formula is ΠΛΗΡΩΘΗ, intimating that now the Prophecy, which had been gradually mounting to this point, had attained its zenith, or culminating point[2]. In strictness of language, an action is already done in the counsels of God before He utters a prophecy that it will be done. "Non res sunt propter prophetias, sed prophetiæ propter res." (Luc. Brug.) But prophecies are God's promises to man. God is here speaking to men. And He says that such an event happened in order that a prophecy, which concerned Christ, might be fulfilled visibly to us, and so we might believe that Jesus is the Christ.

On the consistency of this with Human Freewill, see on Acts iv. 27, and cp. Spanheim, Dub. Evang. 33.

23. ἡ παρθένος] So the LXX, a conclusive argument against all Jewish objections to St. Matthew's translation of this text, Isa. vii. 14[3]. Cp. Justin M. c. Tryph. § 67. Iren. iii. 21.

Besides, the word הָעַלְמָה (ha-almah)—from root עָלַם (alam) 'to hide,' 'to keep at home,' as Eastern virgins were kept, and therefore rendered ἀπόκρυφος by Aquila—is well translated ἡ παρθένος, which is more descriptive of the Blessed Virgin than Betulah would have been, for it denotes youth, as well as virginity[4].

The article ἡ, Hebr. ה, is to be observed, the Virgin, "magnam habet emphasim, Virgo per excellentiam docta." (Vulck. p. 19.) "Insignis illa Virgo cujus Filius erat contriturus semen serpentis." (Glass. Phil. p. 319.) "Singularis illa Virgo." (Cp. Aug. Serm. 191.)

THE VIRGIN.—The Prophet Isaiah, speaking in the spirit, had a vision of the Virgin as present who would conceive and bear a Son, Emmanuel, God with us. He sees before him the MESSIAH[5], a most satisfactory proof to the House of David, then menaced by enemies, that it would not be destroyed; whereof, also, the Prophet gave assurance by bringing with him his own son, whose name, Shear-jashub (vii. 3), though it spake of captivity,—which was to come to Judah from that very power, Assyria, to which the faithless king of the house of David, Ahaz, now looked for help instead of to God,—yet spoke also of return from captivity, "a remnant shall return[6]."

The Prophet goes on to say, 15, 16, "butter (milk) and honey shall he eat until he knows to refuse the evil and choose the good," that is (as Irenæus, Jerome, Chrys., and Basil explain it), though He is "EMMANUEL," "God with us," yet He shall be also an infant, and have a human body, and (not be born, like the first Adam, in full mankood, but) pass through infancy and childhood, and gradually come to maturity.

St. Matthew fitly refers to this prophecy, in speaking of the birth and infancy of Christ, "God manifest in the flesh." The Prophet, having the Virgin and her Divine child before his eyes, naturally makes the growth of the Messiah from birth to years of discernment the measure of time of an event then about to happen. He turns to Ahaz, and says, "Before the child born of the Virgin shall know to reject the evil and choose the good, the land which thou abhorrest, i. e. thy enemy's land, shall be forsaken of both its kings." (Cp. Vitringa on Isaiah, l. c.) This destruction did take place in a very few years afterwards (2 Chron. xxviii. 5. 2 Kings xv. 29), and so was a proof of the truth of the prophecy, and a pledge of its fulfilment in the Virgin and in Christ of the House and Seed of David. Though St. Matthew traces our Lord's Genealogy through Joseph to David and Abraham, yet he takes care that we should not suppose that He was the son of Joseph κατὰ σάρκα, by stating, at the same time, that He was born of a Virgin.

— καλέσουσι τὸ ὄνομα αὐτοῦ Ἐμμανουήλ] i. e. He shall be (see on v. 2 and ii. 23) Emmanuel, עִמָּנוּאֵל, 'God with us;' i. e. God, not united to any one person among men already existing, but God in us, i. e. in the common nature of us all. See Hooker, v. lii. 3, and so He is Jesus, or Saviour of the World. Tertullian c. Jud. 1. St. Jerome (in Isa. vii. 14). The deliverance of Ahaz, and of the kingdom of David is ascribed by the Prophet to Christ, who even then proved Himself God with His People, and would afterwards show Himself to be the Saviour of all.

25. οὐκ ἐγίνωσκεν αὐτὴν ἕως οὗ] "Non sequitur, ergo post." (Bengel.) "Helvidius[7]," says Hooker, v. xlv. 2, "greatly abused these words of Matthew, gathering that a thing denied with special circumstance, doth impart an opposite affirmation, when that circumstance is expired[8]."—οὐκ ἐγίνωσκεν αὐτὴν ἕως οὗ ἔτεκεν υἱὸν—and it might be added, οὐκ ἐγίνωσκεν αὐτὴν μετὰ τὸ τεκεῖν,—if it were not the first duty of a student of Holy Scripture to know when to be silent.

Obs. One Joseph was appointed to be a guardian of the Saviour's human body before his first birth from the Virgin's womb. Another Joseph was appointed to be a guardian of it before His Resurrection, or second birth from the Virgin tomb (Matt. xxvii. 57—60. Luke xxiii. 50. John xix. 41). And both one and the other Joseph is called ἀνὴρ δίκαιος in Holy Writ (Matt. i. 19. Luke xxiii. 50).

— υἱόν] αὐτῆς—not of Joseph.—τὸν υἱὸν αὐτῆς τὸν πρωτότοκον D and others, and so Vulg. "filium suum primogenitum." Cp. Luke ii. 7, and so Jerome, who says, "From this passage some have imagined (Helvidius, Jovinian, and the Ebionites), most erroneously, that Mary had other children, whereas it is the practice of Scripture to designate as the firstborn that child who is born first, not that child who is followed by other children. See my treatise against Helvidius[9]."

— ἐκάλεσε] i. e. Joseph exercised a paternal right over him as Jesus, the name He then received as man. See v. 21.

CH. II. 1. τοῦ δὲ Ἰησοῦ γεννηθέντος]

As to the DAY of Christ's birth[10], it was kept by the Western

---

[1] Cp. Bengel here, and see Lee on Inspiration, pp. 105. 328.

[2] Or, to use another figure; the Ancient Prophecies concerning the Messiah are like beautiful vessels, which either (1) received a partial infusion, from time to time, in certain preparatory events, which kept up the memory of them, and refreshed the hope and faith of the believer, in the coming Deliverer, till they were all filled up to the brim, and ran over in Christ, who is the fulness of all in all. See further below, ii. 17. 23, and Patrit. ii. 153—169, who refutes the lower sense which has been assigned in recent times to the formula ἵνα πλ.

Or (2) they were filled up at once, by one infusion, in Him.

[3] For the LXX Version was made by Jews, and was read in their Synagogues (Tertullian, Apol. 18. Cp. Grinfield, Scholia Hellenist. p. viii—x).

[4] See Jerome on Isa. vii. vol. iii. p. 70. Surenhus. p. 152. Spanheim, Dub. Ev. 34. Bp. Pearson On the Creed, art. iii. pp. 323—325.

For the New Test. Quotations of the Old Test. in relation to the Septuagint Version, see Grinfield, ed. Hellen. p. 4, and Citata et Parallela, p. 1447.

[5] See Theodoret and Chrys. in Isa. vii. Athanas. de Incarn. pp. 33. 60. Jerome, iii. 70, who well expounds the prophecy thus: "O domus David, non mireris ad rei novitatem, si Virgo Deum pariat, qui tantam habeat potestatem ut multo post tempore nasciturus, te nunc liberet invocatus." There was a punishment to Ahaz the King for his stubbornness. He should not see the Sign; it should appear many ages afterwards; but the effects of the Sign should be felt by the house of David, even in the age of Ahaz. Emmanuel, yet un-born, should deliver it. And the truth, now revealed, that He should be born of a Virgin of that house, was a sure pledge that the house of David would not perish.

[6] For an excellent modern exposition, see Hengstenberg. Christol. i. pp. 11. 45, and Patrit. ii. 139—146, who also refutes the opinion recently propounded by some, that the Jews did not expect the Messiah to be born of a Virgin. And see Justin M. c. Tryph. §§ 18. 67.

[7] See St. Jerome here, and adv. Helvidium, tom. iv. pars 2, pp. 130—142. Aug. de Catech. Rud. 40, and Serm. 188 and 191.

[8] See also Bp. Pearson On the Creed, art. iii. on the term ἀειπαρθένος, p. 326 Chemnitii Harmon. cap. vii. and Glass. Phil. Sacr. pp. 319 and 452, and Dr. W. H. Mill, p. 309. Patrit. ii. p. 125. Similar instances of the use of "until" after a negative may be seen in Gen. viii. 7; xxviii. 15. Deut. xxxiv. 6. 1 Sam. xv. 35. 2 Sam. vi. 23. Psa. lxxix. 14; xc. 1. See below, xvi 28; xxii. 44; xxviii. 20.

[9] Concerning those who are called our Lord's ἀδελφοί, see Routh, R. S. i. 16. 43. 212—249; ii. 32. 234. Dr. Mill, 224—236, and the note below on xii. 46.

[10] For a full discussion of this question, see Patrit. de Evangeliis, pp. 280—291, and the comparative tables inserted by him p. 277, who main-

Ἡρώδου τοῦ βασιλέως, ἰδοὺ, μάγοι ἀπὸ ἀνατολῶν παρεγένοντο εἰς Ἰεροσόλυμα, b Luke 2. 11. Num. 24. 17. 2 λέγοντες, b Ποῦ ἐστιν ὁ τεχθεὶς βασιλεὺς τῶν Ἰουδαίων; εἴδομεν γὰρ αὐτοῦ τὸν ἀστέρα ἐν τῇ ἀνατολῇ, καὶ ἤλθομεν προσκυνῆσαι αὐτῷ. 3 Ἀκούσας δὲ

Church in early times on the 25th Dec., and that day was thence received by the Eastern Church at the middle of the fourth century, where it was called Θεοφάνια, γενέθλια [1]. The word Epiphany came afterwards to be applied to the day of the arrival of the Magi, and of Christ's Baptism, τὰ ἅγια φῶτα (Greg. Naz. p. 677), and the word Θεοφάνια was also applied to that day. See Hippolyt. homily with that title, and Greg. Thaumaturg. p. 30 [2].

As to the year, see on ii. 20.

On the place of the Nativity see Justin Martyr (c. Tryphon, § 78), who describes it as a cave near the village of Bethlehem, and says also that the Magi coming from Arabia found Him there (ἐν σπηλαίῳ τινὶ σύνεγγυς τῆς κώμης), which Jerome calls (ad Eustoch. and ad Paulin) "specus Salvatoris." Cp. Origen c. Cels. i. 51. Euseb. v. Const. iii. 41. 43, who speak of a cave.

— Βηθλεέμ] בֵּית־לֶחֶם, 'the house of bread,' of the Living Bread that came down from heaven (Greg. M. Hom. in Ev. i. 8); called also Bethlehem Ephrata (Ruth i. 2; iv. 11. Mic. v. 2) for its fertility; and Bethlehem Judah to distinguish it from a Bethlehem in Zabulon (Jerome), six miles S. of Jerusalem.

— Ἡρώδου τοῦ β.] made king by Roman influence, particularly of M. Antony, and called 'Herod the Great' (Joseph. A. xiv. 11. 18). On his history and character, see Joseph. A. xiv.—xvii. Casaubon, Exc. Baron. Art. 3—5. Mill, p. 335—342.

— μάγοι] MAGI. Not such as were known among the Greeks as professors of Magical Arts (see Origen c. Celsum, i. p. 35), but such as those whose title before the time of Zoroaster was Magh or Magus (whence מָג in Jerem. xxxix. 3), the sacerdotal caste of the Medes and Persians [3], dispersed in the ἀνατολὴ and called Μαγουσαῖοι by Epiphanius, p. 1094, and not idolaters, but hating idolatry, εἰδώλα βδελυττόμενοι. Hence perhaps they were distinguished among the Heathens by God (as Cyrus [4] had been in an eminent manner, and as the Persians were favoured generally for their freedom from Idolatry, and their hatred of it), and were chosen as the ἀπαρχὴ, or first-fruits, of Gentilism, to behold and worship Christ.

Cp. Casaubon, Exc. Baron. ii. num. 19, who regards them as toparchs; see Tertullian, adv. Jud. 9, ad Marcion. iii. 13, "Magos reges ferè habuit Oriens," and they were of the sacred caste. Cp. Spanheim, Dub. Ev. ii. 20. Cp. Mill, p. 331—342, and Dissertation in Patrit. ii. p. 309. Williams on the Nativity, p. 121—139.

We find them described as three in Leo M. (A.D. 450), p. 88: "Tribus Magis stella novæ charitatis apparuit;" and p. 90, "adorant in tribus Magis omnes populi Universitatis Auctorem."

On the time of their visit, see on chap. ii. 11.

On the Epiphany, see Aug. Sermones, 199—204.

— ἀπὸ ἀνατολῶν] Though, probably, of Persian origin, yet it does not therefore follow that they now came directly from Persia. The Fathers are divided in opinion between Persia and Arabia [5]. Perhaps both opinions are true, viz. that, being of Persian extraction (as is most likely), they came now from Arabia.

The prophecies of the Old Testament seem to point that way. Ps. lxxii. 10. Isa. lx. 1—7. Also,

The gifts which they bring. Isa. lx. 6.

Perhaps their visit to the Prince of Peace was typified by that of the Queen of Sheba to Solomon (1 Kings x. 1. 2 Chron. ix. 1).

Time will show whether these μάγοι ἀπὸ ἀνατολῶν were typical of the βασιλεῖς ἀπὸ ἀνατολῶν ἡλίου in Rev. xvi. 12.

— παρεγένοντο] After the Circumcision and Presentation in the Temple (Bengel). Cp. on v. 11.

— Ἰεροσόλυμα] St. Matthew only uses Ἱερουσαλὴμ once, in quoting Christ's words, xxiii. 37. St. Mark never. St. Luke rarely in Gospel, often in Acts. St. John never in Gospel; four times in Apocalypse, where he never uses Ἱεροσόλυμα. (Patrit. ii. 352.)

2. εἴδομεν αὐτοῦ τὸν ἀστέρα] I. The main reason which led them to believe that the STAR they saw was the Star of a King born in Judæa, was the persuasion then prevalent in the Eastern world [6], and grounded

On the prophecy of Balaam, Numbers xxiv. 17, delivered in the East [7]; and more,

On the prophecy of Daniel (ix. 24—26) delivered in the East, that a Star would rise out of Jacob, and that Messiah the Prince, who was to be born in Judæa, should arise at that time and have universal dominion.

II. That his appearance would be signified by a Star, would have been suggested by Balaam's prophecy; and the name Bar-coobba, or Son of a Star, given by the Jews to one of their false Messiahs (Euseb. iv. 6), shows the prevalent expectation in this respect.

III. What the ἀστὴρ or Star was.

It has been supposed by some [8] to have been a conjunction of Planets. But this is a groundless conjecture [9]. The luminary is not called ἄστρον, a constellation, but ἀστήρ, a single star; and it is described as standing over the house where the young child was (v. 9), and primitive testimony calls it a new star. St. Ignat. (ad Ephes. 19) says ἀστὴρ ἐν οὐρανῷ ἔλαμψεν, ὑπὲρ πάντας τοὺς ἀστέρας, καὶ ξενισμὸν παρεῖχεν ἡ καινότης αὐτοῦ. So Chrys. and Aug. c. Faust. ii. 5, who says that it was created at the Nativity. Cp. Protev. Jacob. § 21. It is called 'lingua cœli' by Aug. (Serm. in Epiph.)

In the History of the Old Testament we have a similar instance of a luminous moveable body created in the Pillar of Fire (Exod. xiv. 24) to lead the People of Israel through the wilderness to the promised land. See Chrys. [10]

There is a remarkable confirmation of St. Matthew's account in Chalcid. in Timæum, in the edition of St. Hippolytus by Fabricius, p. 325.

A miraculous sign in the heavens was a fit harbinger of the birth of Him who made the heavens (Col. i. 16), as also of his death (xxvii. 45), and so it will be at his Second Coming to judge the world (xxiv. 30). Cp. Arnoldi.

IV. A question arises, How is it that the Star has not been noticed by heathen writers?

Suppose this to be so, then it may be replied, that if (as appears to be the case) the Magi were the first-fruits of the Gentile World coming to Christ, and the Star appeared to them as such, it is probable that it was manifested specially and singly to them.

God often reveals to some what He conceals from others at the same place, at the same time. The Angel in the way was not at first visible to Balaam, but it was to the ass (Num. xxii. 23) on which he was; and by this contrast God revealed to Balaam his own blindness. The servant of Elisha did not see the horses and chariots around his master till his master prayed that his eyes might be opened (2 Kings vi. 17). The sound in the heavens was heard by those who journeyed with Saul (Acts ix. 7; xxii. 9), but the words were articulate to Saul alone. Thus God showed that they were addressed to him. The darkness at the Crucifixion seems to have been local at Jerusalem; intimating to them at mid-day that they were then spiritually at midnight.

The Star then, it is probable, was visible to the Magi alone. It was a message from heaven to them. Hence their faith and obedience.

---

tains, p. 290, the ancient Tradition (sanctioned by Hippolyt., Athanas., Jerome, Ambrose, Aug.), which fixed the Nativity on Dec. 25; see also Bp. Pearson, Minor Works (ed. Churton), i. pp. 153—162.

[1] See Monit. ad Greg. Nazian. Orat. xxxviii. p. 662. Chrys. Hom. de Nativ. ii. p. 352, ed. Bened. Casaubon, Exc. Baron. p. 166. Patrit. 281.

[2] For Sermons on the Nativity, see Aug. in Natali Domini, Serm. 184—196. Vol. v. 1278—1309. Bp. Andrewes, i. 1—302. Barrow On the Nativity, iii. 427—450. Serm. 75. Williams On the Nativity, pp. 80—91.

[3] Cic. Div. i. 23. Plin. N. H. xxiv. 29. Justin, i. 9. 7. Hyde de vet. Pers. rel c. 31. Patrit. ii. p. 317.

[4] See Dr. Jackson's Works, v. 404—411.

It is observable that the Prophecy concerning Messiah the Prince delivered in the East, by the Prophet Daniel, who was Prime Minister of the East, for two dynasties in succession, is connected with Cyrus, as a terminus à quo, and with the edict due in the first instance to him who was of the same origin as the Magi, and favoured (as it would seem) by Almighty God for the same reasons as they, and made an instrument in God's hands for punishing the Idolatry of Babylon.

[5] See the authorities in Patrit. ii. pp. 317, 318.

[6] See Sueton. in Vesp. c. 4. Tacit Hist. v. 13. Patrit. ii. 352. Joseph. B. J. i. 5, 5; vii. 31. Dio Cass. xlv. 1.

[7] "This star (says Jerome) arose in the East according to the prophecy of Balaam, whose successors the Magi were (Numb. xxiv. 17), and it was ordained to be a rebuke to the Jews that they might learn Christ's Nativity from the Gentiles; and the Wise Men are led by it to Judæa, that the Priests being interrogated by them where Christ was to be born, might be left without excuse for ignorance of His Advent." (St. Jerome.) "Magi per stellam, piscatores per pisces adducuntur." (Bengel.)

[8] Kepler, Münter, and Ideler, Handbuch der Chronologie, ii. p. 410. Winer, Real-W. ii. p. 523. Wieseler, p. 62.

[9] Cp. Spanheim, Dub. Ev. ii. 27, 28. Mill, pp. 322. 360—372, where this opinion is confuted, and Patrit. ii. p. 331.

[10] Whose Comment on this history is deserving attention. "This star was not like other stars; for it was visible in the day time; and it led the wise men to Palestine, and then disappeared for a time; it had, as it were, a vaporeal power, and may be compared to the pillar of fire which led the people in the wilderness; and it descended from its altitude in heaven, and marked the place where the young child lay, and stood over His head.

"And why did it appear? to penetrate the insensibility of the Jews, and to take all excuse from them, if they would not receive Christ. He Who had now come from heaven was about to abrogate the ancient Polity, and to invite the world to His worship, and to be adored in Sea and Land, He begins with opening a door to the Gentiles, in His desire to teach His own people by means of strangers. For since the Jews would not attend to what their own Prophets had said concerning His Advent, He brought foreigners from afar in quest of the King of the Jews, who hear first from the language of Persia what they would not learn from their own Prophets; in order that if they are disposed to listen they may have a strong motive to obedience; but if they are contentious, they may be without excuse. Observe also, God in His condescension teaches us by things familiar to us. He teaches the Magi by the stars with which they were conversant. He calls us by our occupations. So St. Paul preached to the Athenians by an inscription from their altar (Acts xvii. 23), and by a verse from their Poets (Acts xvii. 28), and instructs the Jews from the rite of circumcision, and from their own sacrifices.

"And when God has taught us by our own occupations, He raises us higher, if we listen to Him, as He did those wise men, whom He first taught by a star, and afterwards by a vision (verse 12). As Solomon says, 'Give instruction to a wise man and he will be yet wiser (Prov. ix. 9).'"

Ἡρώδης ὁ βασιλεὺς ἐταράχθη, καὶ πᾶσα Ἰεροσόλυμα μετ' αὐτοῦ· 4 καὶ συναγαγὼν πάντας τοὺς ἀρχιερεῖς καὶ γραμματεῖς τοῦ λαοῦ, ἐπυνθάνετο παρ' αὐτῶν, ποῦ ὁ Χριστὸς γεννᾶται; (ϛ) 5 Οἱ δὲ εἶπον αὐτῷ, Ἐν Βηθλεὲμ τῆς Ἰουδαίας· οὕτω γὰρ γέγραπται διὰ τοῦ προφήτου, 6 [c] Καὶ σὺ Βηθλεέμ, γῆ Ἰούδα, οὐδαμῶς ἐλαχίστη εἶ ἐν τοῖς ἡγεμόσιν Ἰούδα· ἐκ σοῦ γὰρ ἐξελεύσεται ἡγούμενος, ὅστις ποιμανεῖ τὸν λαόν μου τὸν Ἰσραήλ. (ϛ) 7 Τότε Ἡρώδης λάθρα καλέσας τοὺς μάγους, ἠκρίβωσε παρ' αὐτῶν τὸν χρόνον τοῦ φαινομένου ἀστέρος· 8 καὶ πέμψας αὐτοὺς εἰς Βηθλεέμ, εἶπε, Πορευθέντες ἀκριβῶς ἐξετάσατε περὶ τοῦ παιδίου, ἐπὰν δὲ εὕρητε, ἀπαγγείλατέ μοι, ὅπως κἀγὼ ἐλθὼν προσκυνήσω αὐτῷ. 9 Οἱ δὲ ἀκούσαντες τοῦ βασιλέως, ἐπορεύθησαν· καὶ ἰδοὺ, ὁ ἀστὴρ, ὃν εἶδον ἐν τῇ ἀνατολῇ, προῆγεν αὐτοὺς, ἕως ἐλθὼν ἔστη ἐπάνω οὗ ἦν τὸ παιδίον· 10 ἰδόντες δὲ τὸν ἀστέρα, ἐχάρησαν χαρὰν μεγάλην σφόδρα, 11 [d] καὶ ἐλθόντες εἰς τὴν οἰκίαν, εἶδον τὸ παιδίον μετὰ Μαρίας

[c] Micah 5. 2. John 7. 42.

[d] Ps. 72. 10. Isa. 60. 6.

---

3. ἐταράχθη] Lest he, an usurper, should be dispossessed by the rightful king. And Jerusalem was troubled with him, (1) as fearing his anger; (2) as ill prepared for the severe discipline of the Messiah's coming (Mal. iii. 2, 3; iv. 1). (Chrys.)

— Ἱεροσόλυμα] Feminine form, iii. 5, and so Josephus and Philo. (Meyer.)

4. ἀρχιερεῖς] A word suggestive of the confusion now introduced into the nominations to the office of High Priest, when the True High Priest came from heaven to "purify the sons of Levi." Instead of one High Priest for life, there were many High Priests, made and unmade, in rapid succession (Mal. iii. 3). As Spanheim says (Dub. Ev. ii. 37), "Ἀρχιερωσύνη confusa, Christo exhibito. Summum sacerdotum pessimè habitum, Herodis et Romanorum licentiâ."

They who had held the office and the deputies of the High Priest were now included in the term.

Also (as some suppose) the Heads of the twenty-four ἐφημερίαι, or courses of Priests[1].

— γραμματεῖς] סוֹפְרִים (sopherim) scribes learned in the Law of Moses and the Prophets, and called νομικοὶ[2] by St. Luke[3], probably Members or Assessors of the Sanhedrim (Lightfoot ii. 422. 652), who supposes them to have been Levites, and Masters of colleges and schools (1. 439. 469. 654.)

— ποῦ ὁ Χρ. γεννᾶται] What is his birthplace? (See Winer, p. 238.)

5. οἱ δὲ εἶπον] They could send others to Christ, but would not go themselves, like many of the builders of the Ark, who provided a refuge for others, but were themselves drowned by the Flood. (Aug. Serm. 373, 374). The Jews carry the Scriptures, but do not believe them. "Codicem portat Judæus, unde credat Christianus[4]." (Aug. in Ps. lvi.)

— οὕτω γὰρ γέγραπται] Micah v. 2. Grinf. p. 6.

It seems, at first, as if here the scribes deny[5] what Micah affirms.

But here, as elsewhere, the Holy Spirit, speaking in the New Testament, records the sense (and not the letter) of what had been spoken by Him, through the Prophets in the Old Testament.

He begins with calling Micah's "Bethlehem Ephrata" by its newer name, "Bethlehem Judah[6]" (for Ephrata was now obsolete), and thus prepares us to understand that His words are not to be regarded as a literal quotation, but as a Paraphrase.

It is to be remembered that, in Micah's age, Bethlehem was of small account, its very name, as "the City of David," being transferred to Jerusalem, and its glories being eclipsed by those of the capital. And so it was little. But yet Micah was inspired to predict (what then seemed very improbable) its future grandeur and glory, for "out of thee shall go forth One to be a Ruler in Israel; and His Goings forth are from of Old, from the Days of Eternity."

Thus the Holy Ghost proclaimed by Micah the human birth and the Eternal Generation of Christ[7].

Thus also He speaks of the greatness of Bethlehem, then small in the world.

Now that the prophecy is fulfilled, and now that Bethlehem, once little, is now become more great than it was even in the age of David, the Holy Spirit delivers the sense of His own prophecy, as spoken of old by Micah, and says, "Thou, Bethlehem Judah (so small and despised by men), art by no means the least among the princes of Judah[8]."

6. ἐν τοῖς ἡγεμόσιν] Micah has Alephi, thousands. But the word is here elevated to a higher meaning, i. e. to Aluphim, leaders; not without reference to the ἡγούμενος who was to come forth from Bethlehem and rule the Rulers (Hengst.), being no other than King of Kings and Lord of Lords. This was a very natural modification[9]. For the Israelites were distributed into Alaphim, families or thousands, which were presided over by Princes of thousands (Exod. xviii. 21. Num. i. 16. Judg. vi. 15). Hence the Heads of families are fitly put for the families themselves. He who was the Head of the thousands was rightly called the Head of the Rulers themselves, and the City in which He was born was pre-eminent among them[10].

10. σφόδρα] מְאֹד[11].

11. οἰκίαν] 9. ἐπάνω. To distinguish that οἰκία from other οἰκίαι. Some of the Fathers supposed the visit to have taken place while our Lord was still in the φάτνη at Bethlehem. Justin M. c. Tryph. § 78, and Aug. Serm. 200. "In præsepi tum jacebat et Magos ab oriente ducebat, abscondebatur in stabulo, agnoscebatur in cœlo." So Greg. Nyssen. in Natal., and Chemnitz, cap. x., and others in Patrit. p. 340. Euseb., Epiphan., Theophyl., suppose that Mary had removed to a house in Bethlehem, and Eusebius (Qu. ad. Stephan. Mai 16) and Epiphan. (hæres. 51) are of opinion that the Parents returned to Bethlehem often, on account of the wonderful events there revealed to them. Cp. on ii. 22, a passage cleared up by this consideration. And this is probable, and that the Visit of the Magi at Bethlehem

---

[1] Grotius and Winer, Real-W. ii. p. 271. Cp. Patrit. ii. 354, 355, who observes that the Chief Priest was called ἱερεὺς (wider ἀρχιερεύς) by LXX, and see on Acts iv. 23.

[2] A word which occurs only once in St. Matt. xxii. 35, and never in St. Mark or St. John; but six times in St. Luke. Probably St. Luke uses νομικοὶ to explain the nature of the office, as distinct from that of the γραμματεὺς of Greek cities.

[3] Span. Dub. Ev. ii. 38—40. Vorst, de Hebr. p. 84. Patrit. ii. p. 366.

[4] Here is a strong argument for Christianity. We bring documents in its proof which are in the hands of the Jews our enemies, and which no one therefore can say have been forged or tampered with by us. See Justin M. ad Græcos, c. 13. St. Aug. in Ps. xl. lvi. Faust. xii. 13.

[5] The Exposition given by the Chief Priests and Scribes of Micah's prophecy, is adopted here by St. Matthew. The Holy Spirit authorizes it as true; and the mode of it, giving briefly the sense of Prophecy (not the exact words), and prefacing the exposition with an οὕτως γέγραπται διὰ τοῦ προφήτου is a remarkable exemplification of the manner in which the official Jewish Expositions of St. Matthew's age dealt with Scripture, and may serve to confute the cavils of some against the Holy Spirit dealing with His own Prophecies in a similar way in the Gospels, particularly in the first and second Chapters of St. Matthew. Indeed, we may suppose that the Spirit who deigned to speak by Balaam and a Caiaphas, guided here the words of the authorized Expounders of Scripture at Jerusalem in this interpretation, which He adopts by St. Matthew as His own.

[6] On γῆ Ἰούδα see Winer, G. G. 104.

[7] And the Jews themselves and the Chaldee Paraphrase applied this Prophecy to the Messiah. Cp. John vii. 42. And their exceptions against our Lord, falsely supposed by them to be of Galilee (and not of Bethlehem), may be used against some of later days who, in this prophecy of Micah, see no intimation of Christ.

[8] Compare Pococke, i. p. 134, and Lightfoot, i. 440. Hengstenberg, Christol. 916, who well says, "The apparent contradiction that Micah calls Bethlehem 'small,' the Evangelist 'by no means small,' has been satisfactorily explained by ancient and modern Interpreters. Thus Euthym. ad loc. εἰ καὶ, τὸ φαινόμενον, ἐντελῶς εἶ, ἀλλά γε τὸ νοούμενον οὐκ ἐλαχίστη, and Michaelis, 'Parvam vocat Michæas, respiciens statum externum; minimè parvam Matthæus, respiciens nativitatem Messiæ.'"

[9] Meyer, p. 66, charges St. Matthew or his translator with error, in confounding one word with the other.

[10] Cp. Surenhus. p. 174.

[11] The following is from Chrys. "The star which they saw in the East went before them. It had been hidden from them, in order that they might inquire of the Jews," "and that the appearance might be made known to all. And when they had learnt from the Jews, it appeared to them again. Observe here the sequence of events. First, the star sets them forth on their journey, then they are received by the Jews—their people and King—who introduce to them the Prophet, the written Word of God," "which teaches them concerning what had appeared. And thus they are brought to Bethlehem, and then the star re-appears and goes before, and leads them by the hand in broad daylight, that they may be assured that the star is not an ordinary one, and brings them to Bethlehem to the cradle of Christ. Thus they received an additional assurance of faith, and they rejoice greatly because they have found what they had sought, and have become messengers of the truth, and have not journeyed in vain. The star stood over the head of Christ, showing that He who was born is Divine, and it invites and induces them to fall down and worship.

"Here also let us recognise a prophetical figure of what would afterwards take place,—that the Gentiles would come to Christ, and anticipate the Jews in coming to Him. Let us arise, and (though kings and people are troubled, and conspire against Christ) hasten to Bethlehem,—the house of spiritual bread,—to worship Him."

τῆς μητρὸς αὐτοῦ, καὶ πεσόντες προσεκύνησαν αὐτῷ, καὶ ἀνοίξαντες τοὺς θησαυροὺς αὐτῶν, προσήνεγκαν αὐτῷ δῶρα, χρυσὸν καὶ λίβανον καὶ σμύρναν. 12 Καὶ χρηματισθέντες κατ' ὄναρ μὴ ἀνακάμψαι πρὸς Ἡρῴδην, δι' ἄλλης ὁδοῦ ἀνεχώρησαν εἰς τὴν χώραν αὐτῶν.

13 Ἀναχωρησάντων δὲ αὐτῶν, ἰδοὺ, ἄγγελος Κυρίου φαίνεται κατ' ὄναρ τῷ Ἰωσὴφ, λέγων, Ἐγερθεὶς παράλαβε τὸ παιδίον καὶ τὴν μητέρα αὐτοῦ, καὶ φεῦγε εἰς Αἴγυπτον, καὶ ἴσθι ἐκεῖ ἕως ἂν εἴπω σοί· μέλλει γὰρ Ἡρῴδης ζητεῖν τὸ παιδίον τοῦ ἀπολέσαι αὐτό. 14 Ὁ δὲ ἐγερθεὶς παρέλαβε τὸ παιδίον καὶ τὴν μητέρα αὐτοῦ νυκτὸς, καὶ ἀνεχώρησεν εἰς Αἴγυπτον· 15 καὶ ἦν ἐκεῖ ἕως
e Hos. 11. 1. τῆς τελευτῆς Ἡρῴδου, ἵνα πληρωθῇ τὸ ῥηθὲν ὑπὸ Κυρίου διὰ τοῦ e προφήτου, λέγοντος, Ἐξ Αἰγύπτου ἐκάλεσα τὸν υἱόν μου. 16 Τότε Ἡρῴδης, ἰδὼν ὅτι was after the Presentation in the Temple (which was forty days after the birth), and so Photius (quæst. Amphiloch. 36). For

The Parents would not have taken the child Jesus to Jerusalem for the Presentation (Luke ii. 22) after the alarm of Herod had been excited by the Magi.

Herod would not have extended his cruelty to children of two years old (v. 16).

The flight into Egypt seems to have been immediately after the Visit of the Magi (v. 13).

It is not probable that Christ should have been manifested to the Gentiles before His manifestation in the Temple at Jerusalem.

Immediately after the Presentation, the Parents and the child Jesus returned to Nazareth. See on ii. 23. Luke ii. 39.

It seems, therefore, that the sequence of events was thus:

Nativity.
Presentation in the Temple.
Return to Nazareth.
Return to Bethlehem (probably on the occasion of one of the great annual Feasts at Jerusalem).
Visit of Magi.
Flight to Egypt.
Settlement at Nazareth. Cp. Patrit. ii. 328—331.

— πεσόντες προσεκύνησαν — δῶρα — σμύρναν] With divine honours. (Patrit. p. 344—349.) Their Gifts were symbolic and prophetical. ὡς βασιλεῖ, χρυσὸν, ὡς δὲ τεθνηξομένῳ, τὴν σμύρναν, ὡς δὲ Θεῷ, λιβανωτόν [1]. Therefore their gifts, whether consciously on their part or no, symbolize severally to the faithful of all ages, His Sovereignty, His Divinity, His sufferings. (Mill, p. 378. Cp. Routh, R. S. iv. 43.)

In fact the Magi [2] did three things:

They fulfilled in part a prophecy concerning Christ. Ps. lxxii. 10. 15. Isa. lx.

They themselves had a prophetical character. They prefigured Heathendom coming to worship Christ. And if they were of royal race (as seems probable), they were prophetical of the future subjection of all Kings to Christ, as King of Kings and Lord of Lords.

And (as subsequent events have shown) their offerings had a symbolical and prophetical character.

Gold—signifying all that is most costly to be given to Christ the Universal Lord.

Frankincense—the fragrant incense of Prayer offered through Him and by Him as our Great High Priest, within the veil (Levit. xvi. 12, 13) before the mercy-seat of God, in the Golden censer of His merits.

Myrrh—"they did it for His burial." He had myrrh presented to Him on the Cross (Mark xv. 23), and myrrh for the embalming of His body in the tomb (John xix. 39).

Thus their act was like a Creed. In their prostration and presents, the Heathen World fell down and did homage to Christ, yet an Infant at Bethlehem, and they presignified the Time when all Nations will fall down before Him sitting on His judgment-seat and Royal Throne at the Great Day.

13. φεῦγε εἰς Αἴγυπτον] The Infant Jesus by His Divine Power makes all things ever mighty and wise in this world minister to Himself. Augustus Cæsar, the Heathen Master of the World, had ministered to the evidence of His Messiahship at Bethlehem by the imperial decree that all should be taxed in their own cities.

And now Egypt is made to minister to Christ (cp. Chrys.).

Egypt, the nurse of Ancient Learning and the ancient enemy of God's People, now made the asylum of Him who was born King of the Jews,—flying from Judæa itself.

The Ancient Fathers saw here a partial accomplishment of the prophecy, Isa. xix. 1. And there was an ancient tradition, "idola in Ægypto ad ingressum Christi corruisse [3]."

On the bearing of this action on the much controverted subject "de fugâ in persecutione," see Athanas. Apol. de fugâ suâ, § 12, p. 259. Cp. Luke iv. 30. John viii. 59; xi. 54. Acts ix. 25 [4].

15. ἵνα πληρωθῇ τὸ ῥηθέν] Not ὑπὸ τοῦ προφήτου, but τὸ ῥηθὲν ὑπὸ Κυρίου διὰ τοῦ προφήτου, i. e. The Holy Spirit here declares by St. Matthew what had been in His own mind when He uttered those words by Hosea, xi. 1. And who shall venture to say that he knows the mind of the Spirit better than the Spirit Himself? See 1 Cor. ii. 11.

— ἐξ Αἰγύπτου ἐκάλεσα τὸν υἱόν μου] This was spoken, in the first instance, of the ancient Church of God, delivered by Him from Egypt [5] in its Infancy. (Cp. Gal. iv. 1—4.)

The Holy Spirit applies it to Christ; and He thus teaches us:

To regard Christ as One with His Church [6] in all ages of her history. In the persecution of the literal Israel in Egypt, He teaches us to see a persecution of Christ [7]. In all their affliction He was afflicted, and the Angel of His presence saved them (Isa. lxiii. 9). He was with them in the Exodus, and led them through the Red Sea: they drank of that Spiritual Rock that followed them, and that Rock was Christ (1 Cor. x. 4—9). They were in Him, and He in them.

To regard what is said by the Holy Spirit concerning the literal Israel as God's Son, as having a prelusive reference to what is declared in the Gospel concerning the only-begotten Son of God; and to see, under the guidance of the Holy Spirit speaking in the Gospel, its πλήρωσιν, or accomplishment in Christ [8].

Thus, in His dealings with His own Prophecies, the Holy Spirit

---

[1] Cp. Iren. iii. 9. Origen, c. Cels. i. 60, whence St. Ambrose (in Luc. ii.), "Aurum regi, thus Deo, myrrham defuncto." And Leo M. Serm 30. St. Greg. (hom. x.), "Auro Regem, thure Deum, myrrhâ mortalem prædicant." And the verse. "Myrrham homo, Rex aurum, suscipe thura Deus."

[2] The history of their Visit, including the Murder of the children at Bethlehem and the flight into Egypt, is discarded as a fable not only by Strauss and his followers, but even in some more recent Expositions, which profess to take a middle and orthodox course between the rationalistic and legendary schools, and are not less dangerous than either. We find the following language in Meyer's Critical and Exegetical Commentary on the N. T. (third ed. Gottingen, p. 70), on what he calls "Dem sagenhaften Charakter der ganzen Geschichte."

"Diese ganze Erzählung ist, wie sie dasteht, nicht als wirkliche Historie, sondern als sinnige judenchristliche Sage über die unbekannte Kindheit Christi zu betrachten, wobei um so weniger zu ermitteln ist, ob und wie überhaupt etwas Geschichtliches zu Grunde liegt, als die ganze Geschichte sehr leicht aus dem Jüdischen Glauben an die Erscheinung eines Sterns bei der Geburt des Messias (s. Fabric. Cod. pseudepigr. i. p. 584 f. Schoettg. ii. p. 531. Bertholdt Christol. § 14. Strauss i. p. 272 f.), welcher Glaube wahrscheinlich Num. 24, 17, seinen Grund hatte (Schoettg. ii. p. 151 f.), so wie aus der Messianischen Erwartung, dass fremde Völker Geschenke dem Messias bringen würden (Ps. 72. Jes. 60), wie auch sonst schon reiche Tempelgeschenke aus dem Osten gekommen waren Zach. 6. 9 ff.), sich mythisch entwickeln konnte,—wobei den Magiern die Voraussetzung einer besondern Weisheit entspricht, welche heidnischer Seits zur Theilnahme an der Jüdischen Messiashoffnung gehörte, die Thätigkeit des Herodes aber der Typus der Feindschaft ist, mit welcher nothwendig und erfahrungsmässig die weltliche Herrschermacht wider den erschienenen Messias in die Schranken tritt (vrgl. Luk. 1. 51 f.), mit List und gewaltsam, wie vergeblich (Kindermord in Bethl.)."

It is not within the plan of the present Edition to specify with frequency and in detail such allegations as these, with the names of those who urge them. But some samples of them are necessary, by way of caution, and in order that the Biblical Student may see some evidence of the spirit in which the Gospel History is now assailed in works widely circulated.

[3] See Athanasius de Incarn. 33, p. 60, and cp. St. Jerome, Palladius, and others quoted by à Lapide.

[4] The following is from Chrys. "Wherefore this double flight? that of the wise men to Persia? that of the child to Egypt? The first—that the wise men might be preachers of the truth to their own country. The second, because if our Lord had remained, and had fallen into Herod's hand, and not been killed, it might have been suggested by some that He had not really taken human flesh. Observe; the Angel does not say take thy child, but the young child; nor does he say, thy wife, but his mother; for the birth had now taken place, and Joseph's suspicions were dispelled; and the Angel reveals the cause of the flight,—Herod is about to seek his life,—and tells him to remain in Egypt till he gives him notice to leave it. Observe, also, Joseph is not perplexed by this, but takes the child and flies into Egypt accordingly."

[5] At and by means of the Passover—prefiguring Christ, from Egypt the land "in quâ primum occasione agni salutiferum Crucis signum et Pascha Domini fuerat præformatum." (Leo M. Serm. xxxii.)

[6] One of the exegetical canons of Tichonius, approved by Augustine, iii. 100—103. And so Bengel, "Totus Christus caput et corpus est."

[7] Cp. Acts ix. 4, 5, "Why persecutest thou Me?"

[8] Hence St. Jerome (in Hos. xi. 2) says, "the Evangelist cites this text because it refers typically to Christ; and in this and other prophecies the coming of Christ is foreshown, and yet the thread of History is unbroken." And Grotius says (i. 22), "Historia Christi nos admonet ita directam a ἐνεπαίχθη ὑπὸ τῶν μάγων, ἐθυμώθη λίαν, καὶ ἀποστείλας ἀνεῖλε πάντας τοὺς παῖδας τοὺς ἐν Βηθλεὲμ καὶ ἐν πᾶσι τοῖς ὁρίοις αὐτῆς, ἀπὸ διετοῦς καὶ κατωτέρω, κατὰ τὸν χρόνον ὃν ἠκρίβωσε παρὰ τῶν μάγων. 17 Τότε ἐπληρώθη τὸ ῥηθὲν διὰ Ἱερεμίου τοῦ προφήτου, λέγοντος, 18 [f] Φωνὴ ἐν Ῥαμᾶ ἠκούσθη, θρῆνος καὶ κλαυθμὸς, καὶ ὀδυρμὸς πολύς, Ῥαχὴλ κλαίουσα τὰ τέκνα αὐτῆς, καὶ οὐκ ἤθελε παρακληθῆναι, ὅτι οὐκ εἰσί. 19 Τελευτήσαντος δὲ τοῦ Ἡρώδου, ἰδοὺ, ἄγγελος Κυρίου κατ' ὄναρ φαίνεται τῷ Ἰωσὴφ ἐν [g] Αἰγύπτῳ, 20 λέγων, Ἐγερθεὶς παράλαβε τὸ παιδίον καὶ τὴν μητέρα αὐτοῦ, καὶ πορεύου εἰς γῆν Ἰσραήλ· τεθνήκασι γὰρ οἱ ζητοῦντες τὴν ψυχὴν τοῦ παιδίου. 21 Ὁ δὲ ἐγερθεὶς παρέλαβε τὸ παιδίον καὶ τὴν μητέρα αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἦλθεν εἰς γῆν Ἰσραήλ· 22 ἀκούσας δὲ, ὅτι Ἀρχέλαος βασιλεύει ἐπὶ τῆς Ἰουδαίας ἀντὶ Ἡρώδου τοῦ πατρὸς αὐτοῦ, ἐφοβήθη ἐκεῖ ἀπελθεῖν· χρηματισθεὶς δὲ κατ' ὄναρ, ἀνεχώρησεν εἰς τὰ μέρη τῆς Γαλιλαίας, 23 καὶ ἐλθὼν κατῴκησεν εἰς πόλιν λεγομένην Ναζαρὲθ, ὅπως πληρωθῇ τὸ ῥηθὲν διὰ τῶν προφητῶν [h], ὅτι Ναζωραῖος κληθήσεται.

f Jer. 31. 15.

g Exod. 4. 19.

h Isa. 11. 1. Jer. 23. 5. Zech. 3. 8.

opens to us new lights as to their meaning, lights which we could have never have hoped to receive.

16. τοὺς παῖδας—ἀπὸ διετοῦς] The males, from the child who was two years old. Cp. 1 Chron. xxvii. 23[1]. 2 Chron. xxxi. 16. Herod might have supposed that the Star was significant of the child already born, and not to be born, and therefore might have extended the range of his cruelty in time (cp. Patrit. p. 381), as he did in place by killing those in all the regions near (ὅρια) Bethlehem (v. 16), as well at Bethlehem itself. For a valuable ancient exposition see Basil Seleucen. 37, p. 188. The following, slightly modified, is from Chrys.[2] "Why was Herod allowed to perpetrate this murder? Why did Christ fly, and suffer these children to be slain? Why did the Angel deliver Peter from prison, and thus expose the keepers to death? Christ was not the cause of slaughter, but the cruelty of the king was. Remonstrate with Herod, not with God. But why did God allow this? What shall we say, but what may be always replied to such questions? There are many who act unjustly, and no man can be injured but by himself. How can we say that these children were injured in being cut off by death? they who were so soon brought to a placid harbour of everlasting peace! This is part of the answer, not the whole, which is well known to Him who ordereth these things. And remember, that Herod, who perpetrated this wicked deed, was soon called to his account, and died a wretched death, as you may have read in the history of Josephus." On the murder of the Innocents, it is beautifully observed by Leo M. (Serm. xxxi.), "Christus, ne ullum Ei tempus esset abeque miraculo, ante usum linguæ potestatem Verbi tacitus exerebat, et quasi jam diceret, Simile parvulos venire ad Me (xix. 14), talium enim est regnum cœlorum, novâ gloriâ coronabat Infantes, ut discerctur neminem divini incapacem esse sacramenti, quando etiam illa ætas gloriæ apta esset martyrii." On Christ's love for Infants see ibid. Serm. xxxvi. p. 98. See also Bp. Taylor, Life of Christ, sect. vi.

17. τότε ἐπληρώθη] Then, and not till then, the prophecy (Jer. xxxi. 15) received its full and final accomplishment.

It had been partially and provisionally verified in the first instance in the murder of the children of Judæa, particularly of the region where Rachel, the mother of Joseph and Benjamin, was buried, (Gen. xxxv. 17—20; xlviii. 7) by the Babylonians[3].

But it was now fully accomplished, and no other fulfilment was to be expected.

The Holy Spirit, speaking by St. Matthew, teaches us here and elsewhere in these first two Chapters[4], that the Prophecies spoken by Himself in the Old Testament are not exhausted at once, but have a perennial flow on through successive ages till they arrive at their height and spring-tide in Christ[5]. His Coming is the consummation for which all History prepares the way, and toward which all Prophecy tends. All the afflictions and all the consolations of the literal Israel find their fulfilment there. And from the divine and inestimable specimens of Prophetic Interpretation which are given by the Holy Spirit in these two Chapters of St. Matthew, we learn to read History and Prophecy aright.

20. τεθνήκασι] A gentle way of saying—Herod is dead. The Plural for sing. showing lenity and forbearance, particularly in speaking of the dead. Cp. Glass. Phil. Sacr. p. 421. Winer, 158. Meyer here. See below, ix. 8; xxvii. 24.

Herod died just before the Passover, A.U. 750[6].

Our Lord was, probably, then more than a year old; and, therefore, his birth was not later than A.U. 749.

A similar result is obtained from Luke iii. 1. 23, where Our Lord is said to have been about thirty years of age in the fifteenth year of Tiberius[7].

Our Lord's Death took place in the consulate of the two Gemini[8], A.U. 782. His Ministry (it is probable) commenced when He was thirty years old, lasted three years and a half[9]. Therefore He was born A.U. 748 or 749.

The common era Anno Domini (due to Dionysius Exignus A.D. 525, and thence called the Dionysian era), which makes the first year from the Incarnation to coincide with A.U. 754, begins about four years too late[10].

22. Ἀρχέλαος] Nine years afterwards banished by Augustus to Vienne, in Gaul; when Judæa became a Roman province as an apanage to Syria. (Joseph. A. xviii. 1.)

— βασ. ἐπί] Not King of—, but set βασιλεύειν ἐπὶ —. (See Joseph. xvii. 13.) The ἐπί, cancelled in some MSS., ought not to be omitted.

— ἐφοβήθη ἐκεῖ ἀπελθεῖν—ἀνεχώρησεν δέ] It has hence been alleged by some (e. g. Meyer) that St. Matthew was not aware of what is mentioned by St. Luke, viz. Joseph's and Mary's previous abode at Nazareth (Luke i. 26; ii. 4). But this is groundless;

It was very natural that Joseph and Mary (though formerly resident at Nazareth in Galilee) should now desire to settle at Bethlehem Judah, the city of David, on account of the prophecies connected with it—and the marvel of which it had just been the scene—in the history of the new-born child, who was to sit on the throne of his Father David, and whom therefore they might well wish to bring up in the City of David. See above on ii. 11.

The word ἀπελθεῖν also, used here, intimates a departure from, and ἀνεχώρησεν may imply here a return to, a former abode—Nazareth. For this sense of ἀνεχώρησεν see ii. 12; iv. 12.

— Γαλιλαίας] Where a "King of the Jews" would not be so much an object of jealousy to the ruling powers as in Judæa.

Deo prophetæ mentem fuisse, ut quod de Israële dicebatur rectiùs (and we may add, plenìus, imò plenissimè) in Christum conveniret." See also Mill, p. 411.

[1] The allegations of Strauss and others (cp. Meyer, p. 74) against this narrative of the massacre at Bethlehem, on account of the silence of Josephus, are refuted by Mill, pp. 321—359, and had been solidly confuted by anticipation by Dr. Jackson, On the Creed, vol. vii. pp. 259—299.

It may be added that Josephus was already committed by personal interest to a private interpretation of the prophecies concerning the Messiah, in favour of Vespasian and of Rome; and the reasons of worldly policy which unhappily led him to speak in flattering and equivocal language concerning Christianity (see on Acts xxvi. 28), would induce him to suppress any evidence in favour of the true King of the Jews (cp. Arnoldi).

[2] In these ethical extracts the Editor does not profess to give always a literal version, or to translate the whole as they stand in the original: but he trusts that he has never distorted the sense.

[3] Cp. Psa. cxxxvii. 8, 9, and the Chaldee Paraphrase on Jer. xxxi. 15; xl. 1, and Mill, pp. 402—407.

[4] See i. 22; ii. 23. Cf. viii. 17; xii. 17; xiii. 35; xxi. 4; xxvii. 9. 35.

[5] As Lord Bacon says (Adv. of Learning, ii. p. 101), "Divine Prophecies, being of the nature of their Author, with whom a thousand years are as one day, are not punctually fulfilled at once, but have springing and germinant accomplishment throughout many ages,"—and (it may be added) have, at length, their summer blossom and autumnal ripeness in Christ. See also Bp. Horne's Preface to the Psalms, p. xiv.

[6] Joseph. Antt. xvii. 6, 1; 8, 4. Ideler, Chronol. ii. p. 391. Winer, R.-W. i. p. 560. Clinton, F. H. iii. p. 254, and F. R. ii. App. p. 236.

[7] For Tiberius was admitted by Augustus "in partem imperii" two or three years before the death of Augustus Cæsar, which took place in Aug. A.U. 767 (Tacit. Ann. i. 3. Sueton. Tiber. 20, 21. Vell. Pat. ii. 121); and so the fifteenth year of Tiberius corresponds with A.U. 779, or 780, and since our Lord was then thirty years old, he was born A.U. 749, or 750.

[8] Tertullian, adv. Jud. 8. Aug. Civ. D. xviii. 54.

[9] See Kuin. and others on John v. 1.

[10] On this subject see Wieseler, Chronol. Synops. p. 67, who places the Nativity in A.U. 750. Greswell's Dissertations, x. vol. i., who places our Lord's birth on April 5, A.U. 750. Gieseler, Ch. Hist. § 20. Mill, p. 341, who observes that the year of Rome 750 is the year at which the older tradition fixes the Nativity. Clinton, F. H. ii. App. p. 238, places it in the spring of B.C. 5 = A.U. 749.

On the time of year in which our Lord was born, see John i. 14. Luke ii. 8.

III. ($\frac{7}{III}$) [1] Ἐν δὲ ταῖς ἡμέραις ἐκείναις παραγίνεται Ἰωάννης ὁ βαπτιστὴς κηρύσσων ἐν τῇ ἐρήμῳ τῆς Ἰουδαίας, [2] καὶ λέγων, Μετανοεῖτε, ἤγγικε γὰρ ἡ βασιλεία [a] τῶν οὐρανῶν· ($\frac{8}{I}$) [3] [b] Οὗτος γάρ ἐστιν ὁ ῥηθεὶς διὰ Ἡσαΐου τοῦ προφήτου λέγοντος, Φωνὴ βοῶντος ἐν τῇ ἐρήμῳ, Ἑτοιμάσατε τὴν ὁδὸν Κυρίου, εὐθείας ποιεῖτε τὰς τρίβους αὐτοῦ· ($\frac{9}{VI}$) [4] Αὐτὸς δὲ ὁ Ἰωάννης [c] εἶχε τὸ ἔνδυμα αὐτοῦ ἀπὸ τριχῶν καμήλου, καὶ ζώνην δερματίνην περὶ τὴν ὀσφὺν αὐτοῦ· ἡ δὲ τροφὴ αὐτοῦ ἦν [d] ἀκρίδες καὶ [e] μέλι ἄγριον,

[5] [f] Τότε ἐξεπορεύετο πρὸς αὐτὸν Ἱεροσόλυμα, καὶ πᾶσα ἡ Ἰουδαία, καὶ πᾶσα ἡ περίχωρος τοῦ Ἰορδάνου, [6] καὶ ἐβαπτίζοντο ἐν τῷ Ἰορδάνῃ ποταμῷ ὑπ' αὐτοῦ, ἐξομολογούμενοι τὰς ἁμαρτίας αὐτῶν. ($\frac{10}{V}$) [7] Ἰδὼν δὲ πολλοὺς τῶν Φαρισαίων καὶ Σαδδουκαίων ἐρχομένους ἐπὶ τὸ βάπτισμα αὐτοῦ, εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, [g] Γεννήματα ἐχιδνῶν, τίς ὑπέδειξεν ὑμῖν φυγεῖν ἀπὸ τῆς [h] μελλούσης ὀργῆς; [8] ποιήσατε οὖν καρπὸν ἄξιον τῆς μετανοίας· [9] καὶ μὴ δόξητε λέγειν ἐν ἑαυτοῖς, [i] Πατέρα ἔχομεν τὸν Ἀβραάμ· λέγω γὰρ ὑμῖν, ὅτι δύναται ὁ Θεὸς ἐκ τῶν

a Dan. 2. 11.
b Isa. 40. 3. Mark 1. 3. Luke 3. 4. John 1. 15, 23.
c 2 Kings 1. 8. Zech. 13. 4.
d Lev. 11. 22.
e 1 Sam. 14. 25, 26.
f Mark 1. 5. Luke 3. 7.
g Luke 3. 7—9. ch. 12. 34. & 23. 33.
h Rom. 5. 9. 1 Thess. 1. 10.
i John 8. 33, 39. Acts 13. 26.

---

23. Ναζωραῖος κληθήσεται]

A prophecy no where found literatim in the Old Testament.

But (as has been already seen, i. 22; ii. 15. 17) the Holy Spirit in the New Testament gives the sense of the Prophecies spoken by Himself in the Old, and not always the exact words [1].

And therefore St. Matthew does not refer here to any one Prophet, but says generally that it was spoken διά, through, the Prophets, that He should be called a Ναζωραῖος [2].

The word κληθήσεται signifies "he shall be [3], and be known to be,"—remarkably fulfilled by the title on the Cross.

But how was Christ Ναζωραῖος?

As the Branch or Netser from the root of Jesse (Isa. xi. 1; where see Jerome [4] and Vitringa, and cp. Is. xiv. 19). And though the word for Branch in other prophecies [5] is not נֵצֶר (netser), but צֶמַח (tsemah), yet Netser expresses the sense of them all [6].

And it was indeed a marvellous thing that the Root of Jesse of Bethlehem Judah should flourish at NAZARETH in Galilee.

And from this word Netser, or branch, the City Ναζαρὲθ derived its name, "quia urbs florida et virgultis consita." See Jerome in Isa. xi. 1.

And the Holy Spirit teaches us, that by settling at Nazareth, the city of branches, He whose "Name is the Branch" thus fulfilled an ancient prophecy that He should be called Ναζωραῖος.

This word, derived by the enemies of Christianity from an obscure village of despised Galilee. Nazareth, was inscribed as His title on the Cross [7], and was applied in contempt to the followers of Christ (Acts xxiv. 5), who gloried in it [8]; and Christ applied it to Himself in heaven (Acts xxii. 8); for it proclaimed that He is the Branch, and the Giver of eternal life to all who are grafted in Him [9], the true Vine.

CH. III. 1. Ἰωάννης ὁ βαπτιστής] So called by Josephus, A. xviii. 5. 2. Heathens were baptized on reception into Judaism [10], and John by baptizing the Jews taught them that they now needed as a great change, as from Heathenism to their own religion. Thus a preparation was made by John's baptism to a still higher ascent, viz. to the Baptism instituted by Christ. (Remig.)

— ἐρήμῳ τ. Ἰουδ.] west of Jordan. See Patrit. ii. p. 442. It seems that John first began to preach in the wilderness of Judæa (cf. Luke i. 80; iii. 3), then baptized near Bethany (John i. 28), and in the region about Jordan (Luke iii. 3), and at Ænon, near Salim (John iii. 23).

2. βασιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν] A phrase used only by St. Matthew. St. Mark and St. Luke, writing more especially for Gentiles who were to be disabused of their notion of local Deities, and to be taught the Unity of God, use βασιλεία τοῦ Θεοῦ. See below, iv. 7. And on the true character of the Kingdom of Heaven, or Christian Church, as distinguished from the Kingdoms of Earth, and from the temporal Kingdom expected by the Jews, see Daniel ii. 44; vii. 14. 27; our Lord's Parables, xiii. 11—52. Cp. Mede's Works, p. 103.

3. οὗτος] St. John's words concerning himself (John i. 23); and cp. on Matt. xvi. 18.

— Κυρίου] Jehovah, Christ. Bengel, Bp. Lonsdale.

4. αὐτὸς δέ] Although he was so great, yet such was his fare and garb,—in which he resembled Elijah, 2 Kings i. 8.

— ἔνδυμα] Here (says Chrys.) was an invitation to the Jews, beholding in St. John's garb and appearance an image of the great Elias (2 Kings i. 8), and being reminded of his character and history in contrast with the effeminacy of his own age.

— ἀκρίδες] A common food in the East, Levit. xi. 22. Plin. ii. 29; vi. 30. St. Jerome (in Jovinian. ii.): "Locustas prisci edebant, vel elixas vel tostas et in pollinem redactas; imò vel sole vel sale et fumo duratas in totum annum servabant."

5. ἐξεπορεύετο] They were excited by the wonder, that after so long an interval of silence a Prophet had risen up among them; for the grace of Prophecy had ceased, and was now revived after a long time: and the burden of his prophecy was strange, not concerning battles, and pestilences, and famines, and Babylonians, and Persians, and the taking of their city, and other such things as they had heard from the old Prophets—but the kingdom of heaven, and the punishments of Hell. (Chrys.)

— πᾶσα] "major vel magna pars." Glass. Philol. S. p. 882. Or "some from all parts of —." (Bengel.) Exod. ix. 6; xxxii. 3. Matt. viii. 34. Phil. iv. 13.

— Ἰορδάνου] Ἰορδάνης = יַרְדֵּן, either from יָרַד (yarad) descendit (Reland, Pal. iii. 63), or from יְאֹר (yor), fluvius, and דָּן (Dan), its source at the foot of Lebanon. (Joseph. A. xv. 13.)

7. Φαρισαίων καὶ Σαδδουκαίων] On these sects see Lightfoot, i. 654. Jahn, Archæol. § 317—320. Bp. Lonsdale, and Alford here. The Pharisees did not submit to John's Baptism, Luke vii. 31.

— γεννήματα ἐχιδνῶν] Cp. Ps. lviii. 4. Isa. xiv. 29. Matt. xii. 34; xxi. 31,—with an allusion perhaps to the ὄφις ἀρχαῖος, whose progeny some among them are called, John viii. 44, 45.

9. μὴ δόξητε λ.] Let not this be your δόξα. "Sic non debetis placere vobis." (Bengel.) Cf. Winer, G. G. 540.

— ἐκ τῶν λίθων τούτων] In the desert by the river's side,—"ut ex glebâ Adamum." (Beng.)

And so God did. For, as Joshua, the type of Jesus, took up twelve stones from the bed of the same river Jordan (Josh. iv. 1—9), [1] See Jerome ad Pammach. Ep. 33, pp. 252—254, who sums up his disquisition on these Prophecies by saying, "ex his perspicuum est Apostolos et Evangelistas in interpretatione veterum Scripturarum sensum quæsisse non verba." Cp. Surenhus. pp. 2. 151, 152. 218, for some excellent remarks on this subject.

---

[2] St. Jerome says here, "Pluraliter Prophetas vocando Matthæus ostendit non verba de Scripturis à se sumpta sed sensum."

[3] See Vorst de Hebr. p. 155, and above, i. 23, and below, v. 19. Luke i. 32. 76.

[4] St. Jerome says, also, ad Pammach. p. 252, "Exiet virga de radice Jesse et Nazaræus de virgâ Ejus crescet."

[5] Jer. xxiii. 5; xxxiii 15. Zech. iii. 8; vi. 12.

[6] The other derivation of Ναζωραῖος from Nazir, a Nazarite, seems to be at variance with history and grammar: for, Christ was not a Nazarite, but is contrasted with the Baptist, who was one. Matt. xi. 19. Luke vii. 34.

The City Nazareth is spelt, properly, with tsadi, and not with zain. Cp. Mill, p. 422.

The etymology נָצַר (notser), guardian, or Saviour, has more to recommend it. Job vii. 10. Psa. xxxi. 24. Isa. xxvii. 5. Jer. xxxi. 6.

[7] The names Jesus, Christ, Emmanuel, all have their meaning in deed; and shall that of Nazarene be meaningless? (Bengel.)

[8] See Acts ii. 22; iii. 6; iv. 10; vi. 14; xxvi. 9.

[9] Cp. Hammond here, pp. 11, 12, and Jackson, On the Creed, vi. 219—221, "He turned aside into the parts of Galilee (Matt. ii. 22), to the place of Christ's conception: and thus by his doubtful resolution, the will of the Lord which he had spoken by the Prophet, is fulfilled; to wit, that Christ, from the place of his conception and education, should be called Nazaræus; a name in their intendment that sought to fasten it first upon him of disgrace and scorn, but by the disposition of the Almighty a known title of greatest honour, convicting such as used it otherwise, even whilst they spake it, of blasphemy. For this city's name, it is by interpretation, the city of plants. Whence if the Jew captiously demand, Was it ever heard that any prophet should arise out of Nazareth? We may answer (as our Saviour did Pilate), 'Infidel! thou hast said it, though unwittingly, as Caiaphas thy predecessor did foretell his dying for the people: for didst thou never hear of a man whose name was the Branch, never of a plant Netzer, that should grow out of the root of Ishai? What if thou canst not revile this Jesus whom we preach, but thou must acknowledge him Hanotzeri surculus ille, or surcularius ille, or germen illud, the Plant, the Branch?' For though the objector meant to disgrace him, yet God had ordained his glory as well out of his enemies' mouths, that meant him mischief, as out of the mouths of babes that meant him neither good nor ill. And it is very suitable to the ways of God's providence to suggest by ambiguous words or speeches unto the attentive hearer, conceits quite contrary to their meaning that uttered them."

[10] Buxtorf, Lex. Tal. p. 408. Lightfoot on John iii. and here.

λίθων τούτων ἐγεῖραι τέκνα τῷ Ἀβραάμ. 10 Ἤδη δὲ ἡ ἀξίνη πρὸς τὴν ῥίζαν τῶν δένδρων κεῖται· [j] πᾶν οὖν δένδρον μὴ ποιοῦν καρπὸν καλὸν ἐκκόπτεται, j Luke 13. 7, 9. John 15. 6.
καὶ εἰς πῦρ βάλλεται. (ιβ) 11 [k] Ἐγὼ μὲν ὑμᾶς βαπτίζω ἐν ὕδατι εἰς μετάνοιαν· k Mark 1. 8. Luke 3. 16.
ὁ δὲ ὀπίσω μου ἐρχόμενος ἰσχυρότερός μου ἐστίν· οὗ οὐκ εἰμὶ ἱκανὸς τὰ ὑποδήματα βαστάσαι· [l] αὐτὸς ὑμᾶς βαπτίσει ἐν Πνεύματι ἁγίῳ καὶ πυρί· l Mal. 3. 2. Acts 2. 3, 4.
(ιγ) 12 [m] Οὗ τὸ πτύον ἐν τῇ χειρὶ αὐτοῦ, καὶ διακαθαριεῖ τὴν ἅλωνα αὐτοῦ, m Mal. 3. 3.
καὶ συνάξει τὸν σῖτον αὐτοῦ εἰς τὴν ἀποθήκην αὐτοῦ, [n] τὸ δὲ ἄχυρον κατακαύσει n Mal. 4. 1. ch. 13. 20.
πυρὶ ἀσβέστῳ.

(ιδ) 13 [o] Τότε παραγίνεται ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἀπὸ τῆς Γαλιλαίας ἐπὶ τὸν Ἰορδάνην o Mark 1. 9. Luke 3. 21.
πρὸς τὸν Ἰωάννην, τοῦ βαπτισθῆναι ὑπ' αὐτοῦ. 14 Ὁ δὲ διεκώλυεν αὐτὸν, λέγων, Ἐγὼ χρείαν ἔχω ὑπὸ Σοῦ βαπτισθῆναι, καὶ Σὺ ἔρχῃ πρός με; 15 ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπε πρὸς αὐτόν, Ἄφες ἄρτι· οὕτω γὰρ πρέπον ἐστὶν ἡμῖν and set them up on the western bank[1] there for a memorial, so Jesus, the true Joshua, after His baptism in the same river, began to choose His twelve Apostles (see on x. 2) from obscure and unlearned men, like rude and unhewn stones of the wilderness, and to make them to be the θαυμάσιοι λίθοι of His Church (Rev. xx. 14), which is the true family of Abraham, the Israel of God, the heavenly Jerusalem, the city that hath foundations, whose builder is God. (Heb. xi. 10.)

And so, daily, God raises up children to Abraham from stones of the desert (Iren. iv. 7. 2), when by His grace He softens the stony heart of the heathen, who worship stocks and stones,—and of the infidel, and turns them to Christ. (Jerome.) Aug. in Joan. 42. 5. We become Abraham's seed by faith, but are changed into the Devil's by unbelief. (Hilary.)

10. ἀξίνη—κεῖται] A warning of judgment. Cp. Luke xiii. 7. Greg. Hom. in Ev. xx. 9.

11. ἐν] Hebr. ב, denoting the instrument; ὕδατι, with water only, without the Spiritual grace to be given by means of water in the Baptism instituted by Christ. Cp. Acts i. 5; xi. 16; xix. 4. Greg. Hom. in Ev. vii. 3.

— ἰσχυρότερός μου] For I call to repentance, but He remits sin. I preach the kingdom of heaven. He bestows it. I baptize with water, He with the Spirit also. (Raban.) On the difference of the Baptism of John and the Baptism instituted by Christ, see Acts xix. 4. Aug. c. lit. Petil. ii. 32—37. Cyril, in John i. 26. Patrit. ii. p. 450—453.

— ὑποδήματα βαστάσαι] "Servus ejus esse." Vorst. Adag. N. T. 815. St. Luke says, iii. 16, λῦσαι τὸν ἱμάντα τῶν ὑποδημάτων. "If," says Aug. de Consens. Ev. ii. 12, "there is any real discrepancy between the two expressions, then we may be sure that the Baptist used them both; but if he only meant to express our Lord's greatness and his own littleness, then the same sense is preserved, whether he used the one or the other. And thus considered, they afford salutary instruction, that in reading the Scriptures we are to inquire after the mind of the speaker."

— πυρί] "Spiritu Sancto, Illoque igneo."

To purify, illumine, transform, inflame with holy fervour and zeal, and carry upward (as Elijah was carried up to heaven in a chariot of fire),—a prophecy specially fulfilled at Pentecost when the Holy Spirit descended in tongues of fire. Acts ii. 3. (Cyril, Hierosol. Catech. 3, p. 44.)

There is also a threefold baptism with fire, says Jerome,

1. With the fire of the Holy Ghost at Pentecost.
2. With the fiery trials of this life. Luke xii. 49. 1 Pet. i. 7; iv. 12. See on Mark ix. 49.
3. That fire of which St. Paul speaks, which shall try every man's work, what it is, at the Great Day. (1 Cor. iii. 13.)

12. οὗ τὸ πτύον—αὐτοῦ] On this pronominal repetition see Winer, p. 134. As Bengel observes, the pronouns bring out the great truth, that no one has the judicial fan but Christ; that it is His fan, and in His hand.

The Baptist—greater than a Prophet—passes from a view of the First Advent to a vision of the Second. Christ has come as Saviour; but He is seen by him coming as Judge. His fan is in His hand; the Visible Church Universal, the World itself, is His threshing-floor, in which wheat and chaff now lie mingled together; He stands over it, to winnow the one from the other by the fan of His all-searching Judgment. Cp. Ps. i. 4, 5.

The Baptist, the Herald of Christ, proclaims to the people the Future Judge, lest they should imagine that Christ, submitting to John's baptism, was inferior to John. "Observe," says Chrys., "after baptism, he immediately speaks of the fan of judgment, in order that you might not imagine that Baptism is enough, without good fruit. For every tree that bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down and cast into the fire. Let none of us, therefore, be chaff, tossed about with the wind, not puffed away by temptations, nor separating ourselves by schism, but remaining on the threshing-floor of the Church. Let us also remember that, on the Christian floor, the grain may become chaff and the chaff grain. God now tries the grain, and is long-suffering toward the chaff, that we may escape the fire, and inherit heaven." "In areâ sunt viatores, in horreo victores." (Bengel.) — ἄχυρον] Not merely chaff (χνοῦς) גֵּו (mots) 'stubble,' 'stalk,' but the stipula also, and indeed all that is not grain.

Chaff alone would have been of little use for heating the κλίβανος, or oven, but stubble, &c. was commonly used in the East for that purpose. See vi. 30.

Hence the comparison here with the ἄσβεστον πῦρ of Gehenna. And hence a warning is implied by the Baptist, that whatsoever is not good grain will be cast into it at the Great Day.

He also compares the Visible Church, which is the world, to an area, or threshing-floor, where chaff and grain,—bad and good,—now lie mingled together, till He who will winnow them shall come. And thus He teaches patience, constancy, charity, zeal, and fear[2].

13. ὁ Ἰησοῦς—βαπτισθῆναι] Why did Jesus come to be baptized?

"To sanctify Water to the mystical washing away of sin." See Ignat. Eph. 18, ἵνα τὸ ὕδωρ καθαρίσῃ. Hence St. Cyril Hierosol. (Cat. 44, p. 45), ἡγίασε τὸ βάπτισμα βαπτισθεὶς αὐτός, and Jerome (adv. Lucif. p. 293), "Dominus lavacro suo non tam mundatus est, quàm universas aquas mundavit," and Greg. Naz. (p. 538), "He who was baptized as man, cleanses our sins as God[3]." He came to baptize water by being baptized in it[4].

He came to the Baptism of His servant, in order that we, who are Christ's servants, should rejoice to come to the Baptism of our Master. (Aug. in John. Tract. v. 3.)

And thus, by obedience and humility, to fulfil all righteousness. For "I am come to take away, by My obedience, the curse of the Law consequent on Disobedience to it." (Chrys.) See on v. 17.

14. ἐγὼ χρείαν ἔχω] And therefore they who were baptized with John's baptism were afterwards baptized into Christ, Acts xix. 3—5.

And the Baptist himself was baptized into Christ, if not "baptismo flumînis" (as some of the fathers have thought), yet "baptismo flaminis," in his mother's womb (Luke i. 15), and "baptismo sanguinis," as a Martyr for Christ[5].

15. ἀποκριθείς] A word censured as a solecism by the Grammarians. (See Phrynich. Eclog. p. 40.) Such Barbarisms as these, distinguishing the Greek Testament from all other books of its age, place it in a position of its own, and render its triumph over the learning and eloquence of the world more wonderful and illustrious.

— ἄφες ἄρτι] See v. 14.

---

[1] Did John point to them? (Bengel.)

[2] St. Aug. (Serm. 4. 32, p. 37), "Ecclesia est una catholica et tolerat peccata hominum quos non potest purgare de aream dominicâ antequam veniat Ille ultimus Ventilator qui falli non potest, ut purget aream suam." See also Serm. 88. 1[9], p. 686, and Serm. 223, p. 1408, "Quantum est hoc quod premit palea? Nos grana simus. Audite me, paleæ; granorum conjunctio grana vos faciat."

[3] Cp. p. 687. and cp. Ambrose in Luc. ii. 83. Aug. in Joh. iv. 11.

[4] The Author of the Sermon in St. Aug. Appendix 135, 1, says, "The Holy Spirit who had been present with Christ in His mother's womb, now shone around him in the water; He now sanctifies the water, who then purified Mary," a strong testimony against the modern dogma that she was exempt from original sin.

It has been supposed by some of the Fathers (see Chrys. here) that our Lord instituted the Sacrament of Baptism at His own Baptism, when Water was sanctified by His Baptism in it; when the Three Persons of the Blessed Trinity, in whose Name Baptism is administered, declared themselves by sensible signs. As was the case of the other Sacrament, He transmuted the Levitical shadow of the Passover into the Evangelical substance of the Holy Eucharist, so (it has been thought) by some, He blended the spiritual reality of His own Baptism with that which was an adumbration of it.

In fact, it appears that soon after this, Christ did administer His Baptism (John iii. and iv.), though it was not made imperative on all till the outpouring of the Holy Spirit on the Day of Pentecost, when the New Law was fully promulgated, and the Old ceased to oblige.

[5] Hence Greg. Naz. p. 687, says, "I have need," &c. So spake the λύχνος to Him who is the Light; the Voice, to the Word; the friend, to the Bridegroom: He who was greater than all who had been born of woman, to Him Who is the Firstborn of every creature; John, to CHRIST.

And Christ replied, Suffer it to be so now, for He knew that He would afterwards baptize the Baptist. And for other expositions of this passage, see St. Hippolytus, i. p. 263. Greg. Thaumaturg. p. 30.

p Mark 1. 10.

πληρῶσαι πᾶσαν δικαιοσύνην. τότε ἀφίησιν αὐτόν· (14/I) 16 [p] βαπτισθεὶς δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς εὐθὺς ἀνέβη ἀπὸ τοῦ ὕδατος· καὶ ἰδοὺ, ἀνεῴχθησαν αὐτῷ οἱ οὐρανοὶ, καὶ εἶδεν [q] τὸ Πνεῦμα τοῦ Θεοῦ καταβαῖνον, ὡσεὶ περιστερὰν, καὶ ἐρχόμενον ἐπ' αὐτόν· 17 καὶ ἰδοὺ, [r] φωνὴ ἐκ τῶν οὐρανῶν, λέγουσα, [s] Οὗτός ἐστιν ὁ Υἱός μου ὁ ἀγαπητὸς, ἐν ᾧ εὐδόκησα.

q Isa. 11. 2. & 42. 1. Luke 3. 22. John 1. 32, 33.
r John 12. 28.
s Isa. 42. 1. ch. 12. 18. Mark 1. 11. Luke 9. 35. Col. 1. 13.

IV. (15/II) 1 [a] Τότε ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἀνήχθη εἰς τὴν ἔρημον ὑπὸ τοῦ Πνεύματος, πειρασθῆναι ὑπὸ τοῦ Διαβόλου. (16/V) 2 καὶ νηστεύσας ἡμέρας τεσσαράκοντα a Mark 1. 12, &c. Luke 4. 1, &c.

— πληρῶσαι — δικ.] Quoted by Ignatius ad Smyrn. i. p. 431. See on v. 17.

16. ἀνεῴχθησαν οἱ οὐρανοί] The heavens, which had been shut by the sin of Adam are now opened at the baptism of Christ (Greg. Naz. p. 688).

The opening of the Heavens, the Descent of the Holy Ghost, and the Voice from heaven, designating Christ, now thirty years of age, as the well beloved Son of God, were not only ministerial to His Baptism, as such, but to this His public Ordination, and Inauguration in His Ministry, by the visible Unction of the Holy Ghost lighting upon Him (Isa. lxi. 1 and Luke iv. 21), and by an audible commission from God for the public performance of His prophetical office of preaching the Gospel. Cp. Bp. Pearson, Art. ii. p. 178, 185.

— ὡσεὶ περιστερὰν] σωματικῷ εἴδει says St. Luke, iii. 22. Not by any hypostatic union of the Holy Spirit with a Dove, but for a visible sign of the invisible influences of the Holy Spirit, Who for a like reason descended in the likeness of fiery tongues on the Apostles at the day of Pentecost (Acts ii. 3). As Aug. says (de Trin. ii. 5), "In order that the hearts of men, moved by the visible and transitory appearance, might contemplate the invisible and eternal essence."

Aug. compares this manifestation to the flame which appeared to Moses in the bush [1].

Also, by the appearance of a Dove at Christ's Baptism, the Holy Spirit may have designed to remind the world of what took place at the Creation. The word used in Genesis i. 2, to express the moving of the Holy Spirit on the face of the Waters at the Creation [2] is מְרַחֶפֶת (merachepheth), to "flutter with a tremulous motion, as a dove does" (cp. Deut. xxxii. 11), and so prepared the way for this manifestation of the Holy Ghost at the inauguration of the New Creation in the Baptism of Christ.

We may suppose also [3] that, as at the Deluge—the Baptism of the Old World—the return of the Dove to the Ark, with the Olive Branch in its mouth, was the signal of the cessation of God's wrath, and the return of peace to the world, so the Dove was now visible as an emblem of reconciliation and peace in Christ (Eph. ii. 11—17. Col. i. 20).

The Dove, also, is an emblem of those graces, the fruits of the Spirit (Gal. v. 22), which are given in Baptism,—love, joy, holiness, and peace [4] (Matt. x. 16), and which are to be cherished by all who are baptized into the mystical body of Christ [5].

The distinct appearance of the Holy Ghost at Christ's Baptism, together with the Voice from heaven, "This is My beloved Son," brings out clearly the distinctness of each of the Three Persons of the EVER BLESSED TRINITY, and was an appropriate prelude to the fuller Revelation of the Doctrine of the Ever Blessed Trinity, in Whose Name the whole world is now to be Baptized, according to the institution of Christ.

The Mystery of the Trinity is shown in the baptism of Christ. The Lord is baptized; the Spirit descends in the likeness of a Dove; the Voice of the Father is heard, bearing witness to His Son. And the Dove settles on the Head of Jesus, lest any one should imagine that the Voice was for John, and not for Christ (Jerome), and in order that we might know that at our own Baptism the Holy Spirit descends on us, and that we are bedewed with the unction of celestial glory, and are made the Sons of God by adoption [6]. (Hilary.)

17. ὁ Υἱός μου ὁ ἀγαπητός] He is supposed by men to be Joseph's son; but He is the Son of ME (not ἐμός, but μου), and He is My ἀγαπητός, My Only Son (St. Hippol. p. 263. St. Athanas. adv. Arian. iv. 29. Patrit. ii. p. 488).

— εὐδόκησα] Not simply in a present sense. See xii. 18; xvii. 5. 2 Pet. i. 17, and Winer, Gr. Gr. p. 249. For a valuable primitive comment on these incidents in vv. 13—16, 17, see Justin M. Tryph. 88.

CH. IV. 1. ὑπὸ τοῦ Πνεύματος] the Spirit; the Holy Spirit. On the distinct personality and Divinity of the Holy Ghost see Athanas. Epist. ad Serapion. p. 518—540, and p. 557; and for a refutation of the most prevalent errors on His Nature and Person, Greg. Nas. Orat. xxxi. p. 556. Bp. Pearson, On the Creed, Art. viii. p. 575.

— ἔρημον] Later curiosity has specified the desert of Quarantania (between Mount of Olives and Jericho) as the scene of the Temptation; just as it has fixed on a certain Mountain as the Mountain of Beatitudes, for the scene of the Sermon on the Mount, and on Mount Thabor for the Transfiguration, &c. But the Holy Spirit has left all these matters, in Christ's History, uncertain; probably with the same design that He had in not mentioning the burial-place of Moses,—viz. to guard against Superstition. (Cf. Bengel on xvii. 1.)

See also below, on Mark i. 12, and Michaelis and Webster here, for the opinion that the Temptation was in the desert of Arabia.

— πειρασθῆναι] Why was He tempted? "Ideò," says Aug. in Ps. lx. "tentatus est Christus ne vincatur à Tentatore Christianus." And because the trial of earth is necessary for the triumphs of heaven. "Quando tentaris cognosce quià paratur Corona. Tolle Martyrum cruciatus, tulisti beatitudines." (Ambrose, in Luke iv.) Our Lord is tempted immediately after His Baptism; showing that the Devil attacks those who are sanctified, and that he desires particularly to gain a victory over them. (Hilary.) Thou hast received arms from God's armoury, not that thou shouldest fly, but fight. He does not restrain the troop of temptations hastening to assail thee, in order that thou mayest learn by resisting them through Grace, that He has made thee stronger than they; and in order that from a sense of danger thou mayest live humbly, and not be elated by thy gifts; and that the Tempter may learn, by finding thee proof against temptation, that thou hast renounced him and his works, and that by resisting temptations thou shouldest acquire more strength to resist, and that from the eagerness of the Tempter to rob thee of thy spiritual blessings, thou shouldest learn their value, and the value of those other benefits which are still reserved for thee. (St. Chrys.) On the History and doctrinal import of the Temptation see Iren. v. 21. Leo M. Serm. xxxviii.—xlvii. p. 98. Bp. Andrewes, v. p. 479. 558. Chemnitz, Harmony, xix. Dr. Mill's Sermons at Cambridge, 1844, p. 25—51. Williams on the Nativity, p. 239—260.

— ὑπὸ τοῦ Διαβόλου] If Christ, the Second Adam, was to be tempted, in order to be like us (Heb. ii. 18; iv. 15), it must be, as the first Adam was, by the Devil; for He could not be tempted from within. "Tentari Christus potuit," says Greg. M., Hom. i. xvi. "sed Ejus mentem peccati delectatio non momordit. Ideò omnis diabolica illa Tentatio foris non intus fuit."

2. νηστεύσας ἡμ. τεσσ. ὕ. ἐπείνασε] Cp. Luke iv. 2, οὐκ ἔφαγεν οὐδέν. Moses and Elias were enabled to fast Forty Days, "potestate extrinsecus datâ," Christ "potestate propriâ," which He did not choose to exert beyond that time, and so presented Himself in the infirmity of manhood to the Tempter. He was an hungred [7]. "Christ," says Greg. Naz. p. 538, "hungered as man, and fed the hungry as God. He was hungry as man, and yet He is the Bread of Life. He was athirst as man, and yet He says, Let him that is athirst come to Me and drink. (Rev. xxii. 17 [8].)"

On the term of forty days in the history of the Flood, the Spies of Canaan, the defiance of Goliath, the penitence of Ezekiel, &c., see Maldonat. here, who observes: "Non potest fortuitò fieri quod tam sæpe fit [9]."

---

[1] Cp. St. Cyril. Hierosol. p. 46. The Fathers make no doubt that a Dove was visible.

[2] In the tract Chagigah, it is said on this passage, "Spiritus Dei ferebatur super aquas, ut Columba."

[3] With Chrys. here. Ambrose on Luke iii. 21. Greg. Naz. p. 688.

[4] Hence St. Clement Rom. fr. viii. Μακάριος ὁ γινώσκων ὅτι τὸ πνεῦμα Ἅγιον, δόσις ἐστὶ τοῦ Πατρός. Καὶ τοῦτο ἐν τύπῳ Περιστερᾶς παρίσχε· Τὸ γὰρ ζῷον ἀκακίαν ἔχει καὶ ἀχολόν ἐστι· Ἄκακος δὲ ὁ Πατὴρ Πνεῦμα εἴδωκεν ἄκακον, ἀνόργητον, ἀπίκραντον, τέλειον, ἀμίαντον ἀπὸ σπλάγχνων ἰδίων προϊάμενος, ἵνα ῥυθμίσῃ τοὺς αἰῶνας, καὶ τοῦ ἀοράτου δῷ τὴν ἐπίγνωσιν.

[5] In reference to the event recorded here by St. Matthew, the Arabian impostor had a dove which he taught to fly to his ear, and from which he pretended to derive inspiration; and so he bare witness to the truth of this history.

[6] "Gloriosissima appartio S. Trinitatis, et documentum quid fiat, quando nos baptizamur: nam non Sibi baptizatus est Christus." (Bengel.)

Indeed, in a certain sense, Mankind was baptized in Christ; for, as Athanasius says (Or. i. c. Arian. 46, p. 355), "Christ declares that He sanctifies Himself for our sakes (John xvii. 19). When He had taken our flesh, and the Holy Spirit descended on Him at Jordan, it descended on us because He bare our flesh; and the Spirit descended then, not that the WORD might be improved, but that we might be sanctified, and be made partakers of His unction. When the Lord as Man was baptized in Jordan, we were baptized in Him. The Word was not anointed by the Spirit, but our Flesh which He had assumed, was, in order that the unction then received by Him might flow from Him upon all." (Psa. xlv. 7; cxxxiii. 2.)

[7] Cp. an excellent Exposition in Iren. v. 21.

[8] He proceeds thus; "He was weary, and is our Rest; He was weighed down with sleep, and yet is buoyed on the sea. He pays tribute, and is a King; He is called a Devil, and casts out devils; prays, and hears prayer; weeps, and dries our tears; is sold for thirty pieces of silver, and redeems the world; is led as a sheep to the slaughter, and is the Good Shepherd; is mute like a sheep, and is the Everlasting World; is the Man of sorrows, and heals our pains; is nailed to a tree, and dies upon it, and by the tree restores us to life; has vinegar to drink, and changed water to wine; lays down His life, and takes it again; dies and gives life, and by dying destroys death." (Greg. Nax. p. 538.)

[9] Observable is the recurrence of Forty Days in the History of Christ.

He was forty days before the Presentation in the Temple, forty days in the wilderness before His entrance on His Ministry, forty days after His Resurrection before He presented Himself in the Heavenly Temple to God. The term seems often to intimate in Holy Scripture a season of probation and preparation for some public manifestation. [On καὶ νύκτας τεσσαράκοντα ὕστερον ἐπείνασε. [3] Καὶ προσελθὼν αὐτῷ ὁ πειράζων εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Εἰ Υἱὸς εἶ τοῦ Θεοῦ, εἰπὲ ἵνα οἱ λίθοι οὗτοι ἄρτοι γένωνται. [4] Ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπε, Γέγραπται, [b] Οὐκ ἐπ' ἄρτῳ μόνῳ ζήσεται ὁ ἄνθρωπος, ἀλλ' ἐν παντὶ ῥήματι ἐκπορευομένῳ διὰ στόματος Θεοῦ. [5] Τότε παραλαμβάνει αὐτὸν ὁ Διάβολος εἰς τὴν ἁγίαν πόλιν, καὶ ἵστησιν αὐτὸν ἐπὶ τὸ πτερύγιον τοῦ ἱεροῦ, [6] καὶ λέγει αὐτῷ, Εἰ Υἱὸς εἶ τοῦ Θεοῦ, βάλε σεαυτὸν κάτω· γέγραπται γὰρ, ὅτι [c] τοῖς ἀγγέλοις αὐτοῦ ἐντελεῖται περὶ σοῦ, καὶ ἐπὶ χειρῶν ἀροῦσί σε, μήποτε προσκόψῃς πρὸς λίθον τὸν πόδα σου. [7] Ἔφη αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Πάλιν γέγραπται, [d] Οὐκ ἐκπειράσεις Κύριον τὸν Θεόν σου. [8] Πάλιν παραλαμβάνει αὐτὸν ὁ Διάβολος εἰς ὄρος ὑψηλὸν λίαν, καὶ δείκνυσιν αὐτῷ πάσας τὰς βασιλείας τοῦ κόσμου καὶ τὴν δόξαν αὐτῶν, [9] καὶ λέγει αὐτῷ, Ταῦτα πάντα σοι δώσω, ἐὰν πεσὼν προσκυνήσῃς μοι. [10] Τότε λέγει αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Ὕπαγε ὀπίσω μου, Σατανᾶ· γέγραπται γὰρ, [e] Κύριον τὸν Θεόν σου προσκυνήσεις, καὶ αὐτῷ μόνῳ λατρεύσεις. (17/VI) [11] Τότε ἀφίησιν αὐτὸν ὁ Διάβολος, καὶ ἰδοὺ, ἄγγελοι προσῆλθον καὶ διηκόνουν αὐτῷ.

(18/IV) [12] [f] Ἀκούσας δὲ ὅτι Ἰωάννης παρεδόθη, [g] ἀνεχώρησεν εἰς τὴν Γαλιλαίαν· (19/VII) [13] καὶ καταλιπὼν τὴν Ναζαρὲθ, ἐλθὼν κατῴκησεν εἰς Καφαρναοὺμ τὴν παραθαλασσίαν, ἐν ὁρίοις Ζαβουλὼν καὶ Νεφθαλείμ, [14] ἵνα πληρωθῇ τὸ ῥηθὲν διὰ Ἡσαΐου τοῦ προφήτου, λέγοντος, [15] [h] Γῆ Ζαβουλὼν καὶ γῆ Νεφθα-

b Deut. 8. 3.

c Ps. 91. 11, 12.

d Deut. 6. 16.

e Deut. 6. 13. & 10. 20.

f Mark 1. 14. Luke 3. 19, 20.

g Luke 4. 14. John 4. 43.

h Isa. 9. 1, 2.

---

3. ὁ πειράζων] Participle for noun. A common Hebrew use. See viii. 33. Grot. and Glass. Ph. S. p. 342, and Arnoldi.

— εἰ Υἱὸς εἶ τοῦ Θεοῦ] If thou art indeed what thou wast lately proclaimed to be by the Voice from heaven at Thy baptism (iii. 17). How can that be, since Thou sufferest hunger? In what sense then art Thou Υἱὸς Θεοῦ? This is what Satan would now explore.

He begins with flattery, and, as he had done, and done successfully, with the first Adam, by a temptation from the appetite (Chrys.).

He proceeds, as with our first Parents, by a temptation of spiritual pride, Vain-Glory, and Ambition — "Ye shall be as gods, knowing good and evil." (Gen. iii. 1—15.)

— εἰπὲ ἵνα—γένωνται] ἵνα in order that; and as a mean and cause, whereby. See xvi. 20. Mark v. 10. Winer, 299.

4. γέγραπται] "Vicit adversarium testimoniis Legis, non potestate Virtutis. Pugnavit, ut et nos pugnaremus. Vicit, ut et nos vinceremus. Ob hoc se tentari permisit, ut Cujus munimur auxilio Ejus erudiremur exemplo." (St. Leo, Serm. xxxvii. de Quadrages.) Christ quenches the false Scripture darts of the Devil with the true shield of Scripture. (Jerome.) And note, that his quotations are all from the Law of God, to show the invincibility of Obedience to His commandments. "Our Lord defeats the Tempter, not by Miracles, but by Scripture. He routs him by what all may wield,—the sword of the Spirit,—which is the word of God. Heuce learn the value of Scripture, and the impotence of Satan against it." (Origen, on Luke iv. Cp. Greg. Hom. in Ev. xvi. 5.)

— ἐν παντὶ ῥήματι] Every thing that He appoints for that purpose,—as manna and quails in the desert. On ἐν (not ἐπί) see Winer, G. G. 347.

5. τὴν ἁγίαν πόλιν] Jerusalem, still preserving a memorial of its holiness in its modern name. (Winer, R.-W. p. 546.)

— τὸ πτερύγιον] The article τὸ indicates something single of its kind; and therefore πτερύγιον cannot mean a porticus or corridor; nor would there be any special eminence in πτερύγιον so understood. It rather signifies the apex of the fastigium, ἀέτωμα, or tympanum of the Temple[1]. If so, the appeal would be,—If Thou art the Son of God, cast Thyself down into the court below, that if Thou art the Son of God, Thou mayest be adored by the assembled Priests and People in Thy Father's House.

Satan lies in wait in "high and holy places;" especially does he tempt there to Spiritual pride. (Gloss. Remig.)

6. βάλε σ. κ.· γέγραπται γάρ] cast thyself down.

This is the language of the Devil, who desires that we should fall. Observe, he may tempt us to fall, but he cannot make us fall. He may persuade us to cast ourselves down, but he cannot cast us down.

Observe also, the Devil expounds Scripture falsely; for if the text from the Psalm (xci. 11) which he quotes, refers to Christ, he ought to have added what there follows against himself,—"Thou shalt tread upon the Lion and the adder: the young Lion and the Dragon shalt Thou tread under Thy feet." Ps. xci. 13. (St. Jerome.)

9. ἐὰν πεσὼν προσκυνήσῃς μοι] Satan is ever seeking to be worshipped. Hence Idolatry. It is due to Satan's Pride (by which he fell[2] from heaven), craving adoration on earth.

10. Σατανᾶ] שָׂטָן (Satan), Adversary. See Zech. iii. 1. Our Lord reserves this name for the Tempter when he claims adoration, and thus declares the Satanic character of Idolatry.

— προσκυνήσεις—λατρεύσεις] Deut. vi. 3, where the original signifies literally, 'thou shalt fear and serve.' But, since the Tempter had claimed worship as an outward sign of awe, our Lord uses a word which signifies adoration. As to λατρεύσεις, the LXX often render the word עָבַד (to serve) by λατρεύω (Exod. iii. 12; iv. 23).

12. ἀκούσας] "Decrescente Joanne crevit Christus." (Bengel.)

— Γαλιλαίαν] Then very populous. Joseph. B. J. iii. 2. 10. 7. Lightfoot, ii. 56. St. Matthew here passes over the events narrated in John i. 37; iv. 47.

13. Καφαρναούμ] from כְּפַר (caphar), vicus, and נַחוּם (noham), consolatio, χωρίον παρακλήσεως (Hesyc.), villa consolationis (Hieron.). Cp. Winer, R.-W., p. 210[3]. And therefore Καφαρναοὺμ, the reading of B, D, T, Z, is preferable to Καπερναούμ.

14. ἵνα πληρωθῇ τὸ ῥηθέν] That the prophecy which, as far as the mournful part of it is concerned, was in some degree verified in the abduction by Tiglath Pileser (2 Kings xv. 29), and by the religious debasement of those cities, might now have its full and final accomplishment in the light of the Gospel of Redemption, diffused by the preaching of Christ and His Apostles who were Galilæans, in that land first, which was first over-shadowed by the darkness of captivity. Cp. Jerome in Isa. ix. 1, and Mede, p. 100, and Webster here.

On the Quadragesimal, or Lent Fast, see St. Jerome here. Aug. Ep. ad Januar. 55. Greg. M. Hom. i. 16. Bp. Gunning's History of the Lent Fast, pp. 46—60. 200—232, Oxf. 1845. Bingham, xxi. 1.

[1] Cp. the use of the word (τὸ πτερύγιον τοῦ ἱεροῦ). also τοῦ ναοῦ by Hegesippus (in Euseb. ii. 23, and Routh, R. S. i. 210. 239), in his account of the martyrdom of St. James: there, also, it is evidently a pointed eminence; and it would seem that a person there standing would be visible and audible to a large concourse of people, such as we may suppose collected in the court of the Israelites,—στῆθι ἐπὶ τὸ πτερύγιον τοῦ ἱεροῦ, ἵνα ἄνωθεν ᾖς ἐπιφανὴς, καὶ ᾖ εὐάκουστά σου τὰ ῥήματα παντὶ τῷ λαῷ—πτερύγιον = ἀκροτήριον in Hesych. The Schol. on Aristoph. Av. 1110 says, τὰς τῶν ἱερῶν στέγας πτερὰ καὶ ἀετοὺς καλοῦσι.

[2] Cp. Hooker, i. iv. 3. It has been supposed by some (see à Lapide here), that when it was known in heaven that the Second Person of the Blessed Trinity designed to unite Himself with some other Nature, the Evil Angels were envious that He did not take the nature of Angels (Heb. ii. 16), and that some of them fell through Envy and Pride, while, on the contrary, the Good Angels rejoice in God's act of Love, though the nature of Man is thereby exalted above their own (Luke ii 14). But Satan and His Angels, in their nature, are ever at work to pervert the honour due to the Man Christ Jesus, into homage to some other creature—and specially to themselves.

[3] "Capernaum erat florentissima Galilææ civitas, in finibus Sabulonitarum et Naphthalitarum, ad mare Galilææ sita. v. Lightfoot Hor. Hebrr. et Talm. in Joh. ii. 12, p. 139. Quò accuratiùs autem hujus urbis, quæ Christo domicilium præbuerat, situm describeret Evangelista, addidit τὴν παραθαλασσίαν, maritimam, sitam ad lacum Gennesaret.

"Lacus Gennesaret, ἡ λίμνη Γεννησαρὲτ, Luc. v. 1. Joseph. B. J. iii. 35. longus fuit, auctore Josepho l. l, centum stadia, latus stadia quadraginta, Joh. vi. 1: xxi. 1. dicitur θάλασσα τῆς Τιβεριάδος à civitatibus Gennesaret et Tiberiade, adjacentibus; et θάλασσα τῆς Γαλιλαίας infra v. 18. et simpliciter θάλασσα viii. 24. Lacus autem, λίμνη, vocatur θάλασσα, mare, more Hebræorum, qui non modo mare, sed etiam lacum nominare solent יָם, 1 Regg. xviii. 32." (Kuin.) Cp. Winer, R.-W. i. 407.

λειμ, ὁδὸν θαλάσσης, πέραν τοῦ Ἰορδάνου, Γαλιλαία τῶν ἐθνῶν· 16 [l] ὁ λαὸς ὁ καθήμενος ἐν σκότει φῶς εἶδεν μέγα· καὶ τοῖς καθημένοις ἐν χώρᾳ καὶ σκιᾷ θανάτου φῶς ἀνέτειλεν αὐτοῖς.

(20/VI) 17 [k] Ἀπὸ τότε ἤρξατο ὁ Ἰησοῦς κηρύσσειν καὶ λέγειν, Μετανοεῖτε· ἤγγικεν γὰρ ἡ βασιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν. 18 [l] Περιπατῶν δὲ παρὰ τὴν θάλασσαν τῆς Γαλιλαίας, εἶδε δύο ἀδελφοὺς, Σίμωνα τὸν λεγόμενον Πέτρον, καὶ Ἀνδρέαν τὸν ἀδελφὸν αὐτοῦ, βάλλοντας ἀμφίβληστρον εἰς τὴν θάλασσαν· ἦσαν γὰρ ἁλιεῖς. (21/II) 19 καὶ λέγει αὐτοῖς, Δεῦτε ὀπίσω μου, καὶ [m] ποιήσω ὑμᾶς ἁλιεῖς ἀνθρώπων. 20 [n] οἱ δὲ εὐθέως ἀφέντες τὰ δίκτυα ἠκολούθησαν αὐτῷ. (22/VI) 21 [o] καὶ προβὰς ἐκεῖθεν εἶδεν ἄλλους δύο ἀδελφοὺς, Ἰάκωβον τὸν τοῦ Ζεβεδαίου, καὶ Ἰωάννην τὸν ἀδελφὸν αὐτοῦ, ἐν τῷ πλοίῳ μετὰ Ζεβεδαίου τοῦ πατρὸς αὐτῶν, καταρτίζοντας τὰ δίκτυα αὐτῶν, καὶ ἐκάλεσεν αὐτούς· 22 οἱ δὲ εὐθέως ἀφέντες τὸ πλοῖον καὶ τὸν πατέρα αὐτῶν ἠκολούθησαν αὐτῷ.

(23/I) 23 [p] Καὶ περιῆγεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς ὅλην τὴν Γαλιλαίαν, διδάσκων ἐν ταῖς συναγωγαῖς αὐτῶν, καὶ κηρύσσων τὸ εὐαγγέλιον τῆς βασιλείας, καὶ θεραπεύων πᾶσαν νόσον καὶ πᾶσαν μαλακίαν ἐν τῷ λαῷ. 24 καὶ ἀπῆλθεν ἡ ἀκοὴ αὐτοῦ εἰς ὅλην τὴν Συρίαν· καὶ προσήνεγκαν αὐτῷ πάντας τοὺς κακῶς ἔχοντας ποικίλαις νόσοις καὶ βασάνοις συνεχομένους, δαιμονιζομένους, καὶ σεληνιαζομένους, καὶ παραλυτικούς· καὶ ἐθεράπευσεν αὐτούς. 25 [q] καὶ ἠκολούθησαν αὐτῷ ὄχλοι πολλοὶ ἀπὸ τῆς Γαλιλαίας καὶ Δεκαπόλεως, καὶ Ἱεροσολύμων καὶ Ἰουδαίας, καὶ πέραν τοῦ Ἰορδάνου.

V. (24/X) 1 Ἰδὼν δὲ τοὺς ὄχλους, ἀνέβη εἰς τὸ ὄρος· καὶ καθίσαντος αὐτοῦ, προσl Isa. 42. 6, 7. & 49. 6. Luke 2. 32.

---

k Mark 1. 14, 15. ch. 3. 2. & 10. 7.

l Mark 1. 16—18. Luke 5. 1. 2. John 1. 42.

m Luke 5. 10, 11. 1 Cor. 9. 20, 22. 2 Cor. 12. 16.

n Mark 10. 28. Luke 18. 28.

o Mark 1. 19, 20. Luke 5. 10.

p Mark 1. 23. Luke 4. 31. ch. 9. 35.

q Mark 3. 7.

15. ὁδὸν θαλάσσης] דֶּרֶךְ יָם Isa. ix. 1, the accusative ὁδὸν may, perhaps, be explained by reference to the verb expressed in the Original, and here understood, or it may have the force of an adverb, as πέραν (prop. an accusative) and דֶּרֶךְ. Other explanations are given in Winer, G. G. 206. Meyer interprets it seawards.

— πέραν] עֵבֶר understood here by some (Bengel, Kuin.) to mean juxta, not trans.[1] But it seems to retain here its usual meaning (see iv. 25; xix. 1. Mark iii. 8. John i. 28; iii. 26), and to refer to our Lord's miracles and teaching in Peræa, where, in fact, our Lord began His ministry, being baptized there (John i. 28; iii. 26), at Bethany, in Peræa.

17. βασιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν] The fifth, universal, and heavenly and everlasting kingdom, foretold by Daniel (ii. 44; vii. 14. 27), which is to supersede all kingdoms of the earth, and to destroy all that resist it. See on iii. 8. Rev. v. 10.

18—22. περιπατῶν] See the Homily of Greg. M. in Evang. i. 5, p. 1451.

18. δύο ἀδελφούς] He chose three pairs of brothers; building the Gospel on the foundations of natural affection; and He sent out His Apostles and Disciples two and two. See x. 2—4. Mark vi. 7. Luke x. 1. So He had laid the foundations of the Law on two Brothers—Moses and Aaron.

19. ἁλιεῖς ἀνθρώπων] Luke v. 10, ἀνθρώπους ἔσῃ ζωγρῶν in the σαγήνη of the Gospel, to be drawn through the sea of the world, and enclosing both bad and good fish, and at length to be drawn to the shore—when the separation will be made. Matt. xiii. 47.

Our Lord chose fishermen at their nets: "Volens superborum cervices frangere, non quæsivit per oratorem piscatorem, sed de piscatore lucratus est oratorem." (Aug. in Joan. tr. 7. 1 Cor. i. 26—30. 2 Cor. iv. 7.)

Hence, and for other reasons, Christians are compared to ἰχθύες, in the sea of the world, and enclosed in the net of the Church. One other reason is suggested by Tertullian (de Baptism. 1), "Nos pisciculi secundùm ἰχθῦν Nostrum (Ἰησοῦν χ. Θεοῦ υἱόν) in aquâ nascimur."

23. περιῆγεν—ὅλην τ. Γ.] On the reading, cp. ix. 35. Mark vi. 6, and see Bloomf. Medε, p. 67, and Prideaux, Connex. i. 406—430.

— συναγωγαῖς] See on Luke iv. 16, Bp. Lonsdale, and Alford here.

— θεραπεύων πᾶσαν] 'working miracles.' Whenever God introduces a new Revelation He works miracles; thus giving pledges of His power, to those whom He requires to receive His Laws. Chrys., whose remarks here may serve as a reply by anticipation to Hume's objection to the evidence from Miracles.

— πᾶσαν] 'every kind of.'

24. ἡ ἀκοὴ α.] See on Rom. x. 16.

— βασάνοις] βάσανος, 'touchstone,' perhaps from Hebr. בָּחַן (bahan), probavit, thence any trial, torture, or pain, and βασανιστὴς, xviii. 34, tortor.

— δαιμονιζομένους] The opinion (of De Wette, Meyer, &c.) that the δαιμονιζόμενοι of the Gospel were merely afflicted with ordinary diseases, is refuted by the facts—

That they are distinguished from such persons by Christ Himself, see Matt. x. 1. Luke iv. 40. Mark iii. 15; xvi. 17.

That they act and speak as possessed with evil spirits, whom Christ addresses as distinct from the persons possessed by them, and who give to those persons supernatural power, see Mark v. 3—15; ix. 25.

That when the devils go out of a possessed person, they enter into other creatures, Mark v. 12.

The Devils had a clearer knowledge of Christ than was shown by others, even His disciples (viii. 29. Mark iii. 11. Cp. Arnoldi, p. 138), at the beginning of His Ministry.

As to the allegation, that if men were possessed with devils in Palestine, then such cases would be frequent in other countries and times, it may be observed,

That we do not know the nature and extent of diabolical agency. But the Holy Ghost, who wrote the Gospels, does.

That Satan exerted his power with extraordinary energy in our Lord's age and country, because he knew that "the stronger than he" was come. And he was permitted by Christ to put forth his power then with extraordinary force, that by collision with him, in his fiercest fury, the power and mercy of Christ, in casting him out, might be more manifest, gracious, and glorious.

It has sometimes been urged against the truth of these possessions, that they are never mentioned by St. John (Meyer, p. 115). But St. John's silence is a proof of their truth. The other Gospels were read in the Church, and were current in the world, when St. John wrote; and if any thing further had been requisite, concerning these possessions, he would have added it in his Gospel. His silence therefore in this matter, as in many others, is the silence of approval. See John vii. 20; viii. 48, 49. 52; x. 20, 21.

CH. V. 1. εἰς τὸ ὄρος] The article τὸ does not point to any particular hill frequented by our Lord; but it signified the hill country, distinguished from τὸ πεδίον, or the level ground, where He had just been, and which He had left, to ascend the ὄρος. So ἡ ἔρημος is not the wilderness, but open pasture land, distinguished from ἡ πόλις, or inhabited places (see on Luke xv. 4. John vi. 10); and ἡ πέτρα is not any particular rock, but stony soil, opposed to good ground, vii. 24. Luke viii. 6; ix. 28.

The Law had been given from a mountain. So now the Gospel, but without the thunder and lightning of Sinai. The Law had also blessings and cursings on two opposite mountains (Deut. xxvii. 13). The Gospel at its delivery has one Mountain—of Beatitudes.

From Luke vi. 12—49, it would appear that our Lord had gone up to an elevated and sequestered place in order to retire from the crowd and to pray, before He chose His Apostles, and in order that He might then instruct them in His doctrine, before He sent them

[1] Vorst, Hebr. 230. And so Casaubon interprets it in John i. 28; x. 40.

ἦλθον αὐτῷ οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ· (35/V) 2 καὶ ἀνοίξας τὸ στόμα αὐτοῦ, ἐδίδασκεν αὐτοὺς, λέγων, 3 a Μακάριοι οἱ πτωχοὶ τῷ πνεύματι· ὅτι αὐτῶν ἐστιν ἡ βασιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν. (26/X) 4 b μακάριοι οἱ πενθοῦντες· ὅτι αὐτοὶ παρακληθήσονται. (27/V) 5 c μακάριοι οἱ πραεῖς· ὅτι αὐτοὶ κληρονομήσουσι τὴν γῆν. (28/V) 6 d μακάριοι οἱ πεινῶντες καὶ διψῶντες τὴν δικαιοσύνην· ὅτι αὐτοὶ χορτασθήσονται. (29/X) 7 e μακάριοι οἱ ἐλεήμονες· ὅτι αὐτοὶ ἐλεηθήσονται. 8 f μακάριοι οἱ καθαροὶ τῇ καρδίᾳ· ὅτι αὐτοὶ τὸν Θεὸν ὄψονται. 9 g μακάριοι οἱ εἰρηνοποιοί· ὅτι αὐτοὶ υἱοὶ Θεοῦ κληθήσονται· 10 h μακάριοι οἱ δεδιωγμένοι ἕνεκεν δικαιοσύνης· ὅτι αὐτῶν ἐστιν ἡ βασιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν· (30/V) 11 i μακάριοί ἐστε, ὅταν ὀνειδίσωσιν ὑμᾶς καὶ διώξωσι, καὶ εἴπωσι πᾶν πονηρὸν ῥῆμα καθ' ὑμῶν, ψευδόμενοι, ἕνεκεν ἐμοῦ. 12 k Χαίρετε καὶ ἀγαλλιᾶσθε, ὅτι ὁ μισθὸς ὑμῶν πολὺς ἐν τοῖς οὐρανοῖς· οὕτω γὰρ ἐδίωξαν τοὺς προφήτας τοὺς πρὸ ὑμῶν.

(31/II) 13 l Ὑμεῖς ἐστε τὸ ἅλας τῆς γῆς· ἐὰν δὲ τὸ ἅλας μωρανθῇ, ἐν τίνι ἁλισθήσεται; εἰς οὐδὲν ἰσχύει ἔτι, εἰ μὴ βληθῆναι ἔξω, καὶ καταπατεῖσθαι ὑπὸ τῶν ἀνθρώπων. (32/II) 14 m Ὑμεῖς ἐστε τὸ φῶς τοῦ κόσμου. οὐ δύναται πόλις κρυβῆναι ἐπάνω ὄρους κειμένη· 15 n οὐδὲ καίουσι λύχνον καὶ τιθέασιν αὐτὸν ὑπὸ τὸν μόδιον, ἀλλ' ἐπὶ τὴν λυχνίαν· καὶ λάμπει πᾶσι τοῖς ἐν τῇ οἰκίᾳ. 16 o Οὕτω λαμψάτω τὸ φῶς ὑμῶν ἔμπροσθεν τῶν ἀνθρώπων, ὅπως ἴδωσιν ὑμῶν τὰ καλὰ ἔργα, καὶ δοξάσωσι τὸν πατέρα ὑμῶν τὸν ἐν τοῖς οὐρανοῖς.

(33/X) 17 p Μὴ νομίσητε, ὅτι ἦλθον καταλῦσαι τὸν νόμον ἢ τοὺς προφήτας· οὐκ ἦλθον καταλῦσαι, ἀλλὰ πληρῶσαι. (34/V) 18 q Ἀμὴν γὰρ λέγω ὑμῖν, ἕως ἂν παρέλθῃ ὁ οὐρανὸς καὶ ἡ γῆ, ἰῶτα ἓν ἢ μία κεραία οὐ μὴ παρέλθῃ ἀπὸ τοῦ

a Luke 6. 20.
b Luke 6. 21. Isa. 61. 2.
c Psa. 37. 11. 76. 9. 42. 2. d Luke 6. 21. Ps. 42. 2. Isa. 55. 1. & 65. 13.
e ch. 6. 14. Mark 11. 25. James 2. 13.
f Psa. 24. 4. Heb. 12. 14. 1 Cor. 13. 12. 1 John 3. 2.
g 2 Cor. 13. 11. Ps. 34. 13. 1 Pet. 3. 8—11.
h 1 Pet. 3. 14. 2 Tim. 2. 12.
i Luke 6. 22. 1 Pet. 4. 14.
k Luke 6. 23. James 1. 2. Acts 7. 52. ch. 23. 34. &c.
l Mark 9. 50. Luke 14. 34. 35.
m Phil. 2. 15.
n Mark 4. 21. Luke 8. 16. & 11. 33.
o 1 Pet. 2. 12.
p Rom. 3. 31. & 8. 4. & 10. 4.
q Luke 16. 17.

---

forth to preach. In these respects His conduct was specially exemplary to those who hold office in the Church.

The τόπος πεδινὸς (not the plain, but a level place) in Luke vi. 17, is quite consistent with τὸ ὄρος of St. Matthew, and is a circumstance added by St. Luke. Our Lord went up εἰς τὸ ὄρος, and He chose a τόπον πεδινὸν in it, in order that He might instruct His disciples who were seated near him. Cf. Maldonat. and Bengel here, and on Luke vi. 17. On the relation of the two Evangelical narratives, see further on Luke vi. 20.

Christ had four places of spiritual retirement from the bustle of the world—all, in a certain sense, exemplary,—

1. τὴν ἔρημον (for Fasting and Temptation, Conflict with Satan).
2. τὸ ὄρος, for Prayer, Teaching, Miraculous Feeding, Transfiguration, finally, Ascension.
3. τὸ πλοῖον (type of Church, for Teaching, Miracles).
4. The Garden of Gethsemane, Agony.

2. ἀνοίξας τὸ στόμα αὐτοῦ] He who before had opened the mouth of Moses and all the Prophets, now opens His own mouth,—He who had taught the world by them concerning Himself, now teaches in His own Person—God with us (John x. 8. Heb. i. 1. Gregor. Moral. iv. 1), and He delivers in the Sermon on the Mount a perfect Code of Christian Duty. (Aug. on Serm. in Mon. 1.) See also Leo M., Serm. xcv. p. 181 [1].

3. μακάριοι] "Hæ octo Christi Beatitudines sunt quasi octo Christi Paradoxa;" and St. Ambrose (de Offic. i. 6) says, "Inde incipit Beatitudo divino judicio unde arumna æstimatur humano."

— ἡ βασιλεία τ. ο.] In all the Beatitudes, the Kingdom of Heaven is promised in a form corresponding to the grace which is beatified. Aug. (de Serm. in M.), who asks (on Ps. xciii.), "Regnum cœlorum quo emitur? Paupertate. regnum; dolore, gaudium; labore, requies; vilitate, gloria; morte, vita;" "adde (says à Lap.) luctu, consolatio; esurie, satietas; miseratione, misericordia; munditie, visio; pace, filiatio Dei."

St. Ambrose adds (in Luc. vi.), that there seems to be a graduated scale here of grace and glory.

And this seems to be done with a silent reference to the promises of the Law.

To prevent misconceptions as to the nature and ends of His own promises in the Gospel, he promises the kingdom of heaven,—not an earthly Canaan.

He then speaks of παράκλησις.

Of inheritance of γῆ,—with reference to the promised land of milk and honey.

Of satiety, opposed to Kibroth-hattaavah.

Mercy,—lex talionis.

Vision of God,—Jerusalem (visio pacis).

Children of God,—true Israel, spiritual Jezreel.

5. κλ. τὴν γῆν] the land; i. e. of promise, of the living (Ps. xxxvii. 11; cxlii. 5); for, Earth is the land of the dying; heaven of the living. Cyril, in Isa. lviii. Jerome here. Aug. Serm. liii. 2—6. Cp. 2 Pet. iii. 13. Rev. xxi. 1—27.

9. κληθήσονται] i. e. be and be owned to be — (ii. 23), even by the children of the world.

13, 14. ἅλας—φῶς] Salt to purify the earth, to season all things as sacrifices to God. (See on Mark ix. 49.) Light to enlighten it; but so that men may glorify not you, but Him who enables you to be both the one and the other. (Cp. Aug. Serm. liv. and cxlix. 12.)

"Ye are the salt of the earth," says Chrys. "He does not send His disciples—as the Prophets of old—to one Nation, but to all. He calls them the salt of the earth,—of the earth then corrupted by sin. Not that the Apostles could deliver it from this corruption, but when it was delivered by Christ, they were to keep it in a healthy state. Hence He teaches those virtues which, most diffusive in their nature, are conducive to the general good and common salvation of all; and that not by flattering, but by making the wound smart, if necessary, as salt does. He reminds them also of their own peril consequent on the greatness of their commission. Others may fall and be forgiven; but if the Teacher falls, his punishment is extreme. If the salt hath lost its savour, &c." (Mark ix. 50.) "If the teacher errs, by what other teacher will he be corrected? Let Bishops and Doctors look to it; for mighty men will be mightily tormented." Wisdom vi. 6. (Jerome.) "Quo sale sal condietur? non datur sal salis." Maldon. Jansen.

15. τὸν μόδ.] the bushel of the house.

17. πληρῶσαι] Christ fulfilled the Law and the Prophets, by obedience, by accomplishment of Types [2], Ceremonies, Rites, and Prophecies, and by explaining, spiritualizing, elevating, enlarging, and perfecting the Moral Law, by writing it on the heart, and by giving grace to obey it [3], as well as an example of obedience, by taking away its curse; and by the doctrine of free Justification by Faith in Himself, which the Law prefigured and anticipated, but could not give.

18. ἀμήν] Hebr. אָמֵן (Amen). Truth, Is. lxv. 6. It had been used in the LXX for Hebr. אָמֵן in 1 Chron. xvi. 36. Neh. v. 13, and elsewhere. St. Luke uses ἀληθῶς for it, ix. 27, or ναί, xi. 51.

No one in the N. T. ventures to say Ἀμὴν, λέγω ὑμῶν, but HE only who is the AMEN (Rev. iii. 14), the Truth Itself (John xiv. 6). In the last Gospel—that of St. John—the word Ἀμὴν is invariably repeated,—never in any other.

— ἰῶτα] a yod, the least letter of the alphabet; κεραία, some-

---

[1] For an Exposition of this Sermon, and its fruits in human Society, see Justin M., Apol. i. 15, 16. Cp. Aug. iii. 1492 sqq. Bp. Andrewes, v. 419—440. Chemnitz, Harmon. ii. Bp. Taylor's Life of Christ, Sect. xii. Williams On the Nativity, pp. 420—460. Burgon, p. 85, and Trench.

[2] On this subject, see the excellent remarks of St. Irenæus, iv. 12, 13, and 16, where it is shown that Christ is the Author of the Law as well as the Gospel. And so He is said to abrogate the Law.—As a painter fills up a cartoon. (Theophyl.) "Abolet non dissolvendo sed absolvendo, non delendo sed perficiendo." (Maldon.)

[3] As Aug. says, "Ante Christi Adventum Lex jubebat non juvabat; post, et jubet et juvat."

r James 2. 10. ver. 3.

νόμου, ἕως ἂν πάντα γένηται. (35/X) 19 r ὃς ἐὰν οὖν λύσῃ μίαν τῶν ἐντολῶν τούτων τῶν ἐλαχίστων, καὶ διδάξῃ οὕτω τοὺς ἀνθρώπους, ἐλάχιστος κληθήσεται ἐν τῇ βασιλείᾳ τῶν οὐρανῶν· ὃς δ' ἂν ποιήσῃ καὶ διδάξῃ, οὗτος μέγας κληs Luke xi. 39. ch. 23. 25—27. θήσεται ἐν τῇ βασιλείᾳ τῶν οὐρανῶν. 20 s Λέγω γὰρ ὑμῖν, ὅτι ἐὰν μὴ περισσεύσῃ ἡ δικαιοσύνη ὑμῶν πλεῖον τῶν γραμματέων καὶ Φαρισαίων, οὐ μὴ t Exod. 20. 13. Deut. 5. 17. u 1 John 3. 15. εἰσέλθητε εἰς τὴν βασιλείαν τῶν οὐρανῶν. 21 t Ἠκούσατε ὅτι ἐρρήθη τοῖς ἀρχαίοις, Οὐ φονεύσεις, ὃς δ' ἂν φονεύσῃ, ἔνοχος ἔσται τῇ κρίσει. 22 u Ἐγὼ δὲ λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι πᾶς ὁ ὀργιζόμενος τῷ ἀδελφῷ αὐτοῦ εἰκῇ, ἔνοχος ἔσται τῇ κρίσει· ὃς δ' ἂν εἴπῃ τῷ ἀδελφῷ αὐτοῦ, ῥακά, ἔνοχος ἔσται τῷ συνεδρίῳ· ὃς δ' ἂν εἴπῃ, μωρέ, ἔνοχος ἔσται εἰς τὴν γέενναν τοῦ πυρός. 23 Ἐὰν οὖν προσ-φέρῃς τὸ δῶρόν σου ἐπὶ τὸ θυσιαστήριον, κἀκεῖ μνησθῇς ὅτι ὁ ἀδελφός σου ἔχει τι κατὰ σοῦ, 24 ἄφες ἐκεῖ τὸ δῶρόν σου ἔμπροσθεν τοῦ θυσιαστηρίου, καὶ ὕπαγε, πρῶτον διαλλάγηθι τῷ ἀδελφῷ σου, καὶ τότε ἐλθὼν πρόσφερε τὸ v Luke 12. 58. δῶρόν σου. (36/V) 25 v Ἴσθι εὐνοῶν τῷ ἀντιδίκῳ σου ταχύ, ἕως ὅτου εἶ μετ' αὐτοῦ ἐν τῇ ὁδῷ· μήποτέ σε παραδῷ ὁ ἀντίδικος τῷ κριτῇ, καὶ ὁ κριτής σε x Luke 12. 59. παραδῷ τῷ ὑπηρέτῃ, καὶ εἰς φυλακὴν βληθήσῃ. 26 x Ἀμὴν λέγω σοι, οὐ μὴ y Exod. 20. 14. Deut. 5. 18. ἐξέλθῃς ἐκεῖθεν, ἕως ἂν ἀποδῷς τὸν ἔσχατον κοδράντην. (37/X) 27 y Ἠκούσατε z Job 31. 1. ὅτι ἐρρήθη, Οὐ μοιχεύσεις. 28 z Ἐγὼ δὲ λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι πᾶς ὁ βλέπων γυναῖκα a ch. 18. 8. Mark 9. 43, 45, 47. Col. 3. 5. πρὸς τὸ ἐπιθυμῆσαι αὐτὴν, ἤδη ἐμοίχευσεν αὐτὴν ἐν τῇ καρδίᾳ αὐτοῦ. 29 a Εἰ δὲ ὁ ὀφθαλμός σου ὁ δεξιὸς σκανδαλίζει σε, ἔξελε αὐτὸν καὶ βάλε ἀπὸ σου· συμφέρει γάρ σοι ἵνα ἀπόληται ἓν τῶν μελῶν σου καὶ μὴ ὅλον τὸ σῶμά σου βληθῇ εἰς γέενναν. 30 Καὶ εἰ ἡ δεξιά σου χεὶρ σκανδαλίζει σε, ἔκκοψον αὐτὴν καὶ βάλε ἀπὸ σοῦ· συμφέρει γάρ σοι ἵνα ἀπόληται ἓν τῶν μελῶν σου, καὶ b Deut. 24. 1. ch. 19. 7. Mark 10. 4. Luke 16. 18. 1 Cor. 7. 10. μὴ ὅλον τὸ σῶμά σου βληθῇ εἰς γέενναν.
31 b Ἐρρέθη δὲ, ὅτι ὃς ἂν ἀπολύσῃ τὴν γυναῖκα αὐτοῦ, δότω αὐτῇ ἀπο-thing still less, apex literæ. Cf. Procop. Gaz. 1 Sam. xxi. 2, τὰ στοιχεῖα βὴθ (ב) καὶ κὰφ (כ) βραχυτάτης καραίας μόνον διαλλαττούσης. (Kuin.) In the Hebrew Bible there are above 66,000 yods.—"Colligi hinc potest integritas Scripturæ, nam Scriptura nisi integra esset non posset perspici impleta." (Bengel.)

19. ἐλαχίστων—μέγας] An intimation, perhaps, that there will be different degrees of glory in a future state. See the use of βασ. τ. ο. in v. 20, and cp. on x. 15. Accordingly as we treat the Word of God, so will God treat us. Cp. John xvii. 6. 11. Rev. iii. 10. (Beng.)

21. τοῖς ἀρχαίοις] to those of old (Chrys., Theoph., Maldon., Beng.), at the beginning of God's written Revelation; contradistinguished from ὑμῖν, 'to whom I now speak face to face[1].' Our Lord not only opposes the Pharisaic corruptions of the Decalogue, but He unfolds it. He gives the kernel of it, its spirit, in opposition to those who dwelt only on the letter; for the letter (i. e. taken alone) killeth, but the Spirit (added to it) giveth life. (Rom. vii. 14. 2 Cor. iii. 6.)

22. τῇ κρίσει] The Din Mishpat, or inferior court (of twenty-three judges), distinguished here from the Superior Tribunal of the Sanhedrim (of seventy-two judges[2]). Our Lord says, that the ratio of ὀργὴ and its penalties is to contumelious words and their penalties, what the ratio of the former court is to the latter. And above all is the Tribunal of γέεννα τοῦ πυρός,—for more contemptuous expressions,—how much more for malignant Actions! Against them He sets a double fence, by condemning passionate words and angry thoughts.

— ῥακά] Hebr. ריק = κενός, vacuus.

— μωρέ] The mention of an Oriental word ῥακά in the first clause, and of the Sanhedrim, where crimes of blasphemy were punished, make it probable that there is a reference to the Hebrew מוֹרֶה (morah), apostata. Cf. Mintert in v.

— ἔνοχος εἰς] liable to come to —. Winer, G. G. 191.

— γέενναν] גֵּא (vallis), גֵּהִנֹּם Hinnom, the valley at the foot of Moriah, and in which Siloa flows (Jerome on x. 28), on the East of Jerusalem, desecrated by the idolatrous fires of Moloch (Jer. vii. 31. Isa. xxx. 33), and called Topheth, from Tuph, the tympanum used to drown the cries of children there immolated. Cp. Joshua xviii. 16, where the LXX have γαίεννα; "the type of hell[3]."

23. δῶρον] Thy corban. Mark vii. 11.

— θυσιαστήριον] the brazen altar, before the Porch of the Temple,—not called βωμός (Mede, p. 390). He does not say, If thou hast aught against thy brother, but if he has aught against thee; that the harder duty of reconciliation may be laid on thee. (Jerome.)

25. τῷ ἀντιδίκῳ] The word of God. (Aug. Serm. xl. and cix.) An allusion to Roman Law. The Plaintiff might 'in jus rapere;' the Defendant might 'concordare,' till he came before the Magistrate, when law must take its course.

26. Ἕως ἂν] never. Cf. v. 22. See Jerome here, and Ambr. in Luke vii. 59, and below on xii. 32; xviii. 34. Such as God finds us at our Death, such will He judge us at the last Day. (St. Cyprian, de Mortal. 2.) "In what things I find thee, in those things will I judge thee," were words of Christ Himself. See Grabe, Spicileg. i. p. 14 327, and St. Hippolyt. Fragment, printed by the present Editor, p. 307. See also Chrys. here ad iv. 24,—a protest against the notion that pardon for the dead can be obtained by works and prayers of the living.

28. ἐπιθυμῆσαι] A new doctrine to the Pharisees, who condemned only overt acts.

29. εἰ δὲ ὁ ὀφθαλμός] If the love of a brother or wife, or children intercepts our view of the true light, we ought to renounce it. Hence the High Priest might not defile himself for his Father or for his Mother (Levit. xxii. 10), that is, he must know no other affection but that of Him to whose worship he is dedicated. (Jerome.)

31. ἐρρέθη] Perhaps the connexion may be, He had said cut off hand, pluck out a right eye, and they might imagine, therefore, that they might be allowed to put away their wives. He corrects this. For the hardness of their hearts Moses permitted the Jews to put away their wives, but if they did so, they were to give a bill of Divorce. (Deut. xxiv. 1. Jer. iii. 1. Matt. xix. 9. Mark x. 2.) Our Lord allows a man to put away his wife for one cause, and one only. Our Lord reminds His hearers of the former law, which He does not destroy, but correct. (Chrys.) Moses did what he did, not to concede divorce, but to prevent murder. (Jerome.) The Gospel

[1] See Aug. Retr. i. 22, and Chrys., Hilar., and Theophyl.

[2] On these courts, see Joseph. B. J. i. 20. 5. Ant. iv. 8. 14, and Maldonat. here. Buxtorf, Lex Talmud. p. 514.

[3] Of which Milton writes thus accurately, Par. Lost I.:—

"First Moloch, horrid King, besmeared with blood
Of human sacrifice, and parents' tears,
Though for the noise of drums and timbrels loud
Their children's cries unheard that passed through fire
To his grim idol. Him the Ammonite Worshipped in Rabba and her watery plain
In Argob and in Basan to the stream Of utmost Arnon. Nor content with such Audacious neighbourhood, the wisest heart
Of Solomon he led by fraud to build His temple right against the Temple of God,
On that opprobrious hill, and made his grove
The pleasant valley of Hinnom, Tophet thence And black Gehenna called, the type of Hell.

στάσιον. 32 'Εγὼ δὲ λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι ὃς ἂν ἀπολύσῃ τὴν γυναῖκα αὐτοῦ, παρεκτὸς λόγου πορνείας, ποιεῖ αὐτὴν μοιχᾶσθαι· καὶ ὃς ἐὰν ἀπολελυμένην γαμήσῃ, μοιχᾶται. 33 [c] Πάλιν ἠκούσατε ὅτι ἐρρήθη τοῖς ἀρχαίοις, Οὐκ ἐπιορκήσεις, ἀποδώσεις δὲ τῷ Κυρίῳ τοὺς ὅρκους σου. 34 [d] 'Εγὼ δὲ λέγω ὑμῖν μὴ ὀμόσαι ὅλως· μήτε ἐν τῷ οὐρανῷ, ὅτι θρόνος ἐστὶ τοῦ Θεοῦ· 35 [e] μήτε ἐν τῇ γῇ, ὅτι ὑποπόδιόν ἐστι τῶν ποδῶν αὐτοῦ· μήτε εἰς Ἱεροσόλυμα, ὅτι πόλις ἐστὶ τοῦ μεγάλου βασιλέως. 36 μήτε ἐν τῇ κεφαλῇ σου ὀμόσῃς, ὅτι οὐ δύνασαι μίαν τρίχα λευκὴν ἢ μέλαιναν ποιῆσαι. 37 [f] Ἔστω δὲ ὁ λόγος ὑμῶν, ναὶ ναί, οὒ οὔ· τὸ δὲ περισσὸν τούτων ἐκ τοῦ πονηροῦ ἐστιν. 38 [g] Ἠκούσατε ὅτι ἐρρήθη, Ὀφθαλμὸν ἀντὶ ὀφθαλμοῦ, καὶ ὀδόντα ἀντὶ ὀδόντος. 39 [g] Ἐγὼ δὲ λέγω ὑμῖν μὴ ἀντιστῆναι τῷ πονηρῷ· (ℵ) ἀλλ' ὅστις σε ῥαπίσει ἐπὶ τὴν δεξιάν σου σιαγόνα, στρέψον αὐτῷ καὶ τὴν ἄλλην· 40 καὶ τῷ θέλοντί σοι κριθῆναι, καὶ τὸν χιτῶνά σου λαβεῖν, ἄφες αὐτῷ καὶ τὸ ἱμάτιον· (ℵ) 41 [h] καὶ ὅστις σε c Lev. 19. 12. Exod. 20. 7. Deut. 5. 11. & 23. 23. Numb. 30. 3. d James 5. 12. Ecclus. 23. 9. Isa. 66. 1. e Ps. 48. 2. f Exod. 21. 24. Deut. 19. 21. Lev. 24. 20. g Prov. 20. 22. & 24. 29. Luke 6. 29. Rom. 12. 17, 19. 1 Cor. 6. 7. 1 Thess. 5. 15. 1 Pet. 3. 9. h Deut. 15. 8, 10. Luke 6. 35.

of Christ not only commands husbands to live at peace with their wives, but lays the guilt of adultery at their door, if the wife, being divorced, marries another; and tolerates no other cause of divorce but fornication on the part of the wife." (Hilary.)

— ἀποστάσιον] The words used by the LXX. in Deut. xxiv. 1 are סֵפֶר כְּרִיתֻת (sepher cerithuth) a bill of cutting off from, rad. כָּרַת (carath), abscidit (cf. Isa. l. 1); and this word shows that our Lord is speaking concerning divortium à vinculo; not separation only à mensâ et toro. See v. 32.

32. παρεκτὸς λόγου πορνείας] λόγος = דָּבָר, verbum, negotium, causa. Vorst, Hebr. 373.

It is generally supposed by Divines of Rome that ἀπολύω does not here signify to divorce, in its strict sense of severing the vinculum matrimonii (which they suppose to be in all cases indissoluble), but means only to separate à mensâ et toro [1], and that Matrimony is in all cases pronounced indissoluble by our Lord in Mark x. 11. Luke xvi. 18 [2].

But the conversation here with the Pharisees is concerning divorce à vinculo; and ἀπολύω is used in the natural sense of dissolutio vinculi, as expressed in the bill of Divorce (Deut. xxiv. 1), see above, v. 31; and the exception contained in παρεκτὸς λόγου πορνείας, is repeated by our Lord in Matt. xix. 9. And it cannot be supposed that any thing taught by our Lord in the "Sermon on the Mount" has been repealed. On comparing the passages of the three Evangelists above quoted on this subject, and also the words of St. Paul (1 Cor. vii. 10, 11), it appears that in no case does our Lord advise Divorce;

And that in only one case (πορνεία) does He tolerate it [3];

And in no case does he permit a person to marry a woman who has been divorced [4].

—ποιεῖ α. μοιχᾶσθαι] by tempting her to contract a second marriage.

— ὃς ἐὰν ἀπολελυμένην γαμήσῃ] not τὴν ἀπολ., i. e. he who marries a divorced woman is guilty of adultery.

But if a woman is divorced, does she not cease to be the wife of him from whom she is divorced? how then can he who marries her be guilty of adultery?

The reason seems to be, that a hope of union with another man who is not her husband, is the main thing which makes a woman unfaithful to him who is her husband. Take away that hope, and the principal cause of adulteries is removed. There is the root of the evil; and our Lord, in His Sermon on the Mount, goes to the root of evil, by condemning all such unions as adulterous.

Besides, by marrying her he precludes her return to her husband. See further on xix. 9.

34. μὴ ὀμόσαι ὅλως] i. e. sponte tuâ.

Do not voluntarily proffer, much less vainly protrude an oath. "Non ames non affectes non appetas jusjurandum." Cp. Aug. Serm. 307, 308, and de Mend. 15.

Our Lord here again goes to the root of the evil, as seen in the teaching and practice of the Pharisees, see Matt. xxiii. 16—Do not swear at all.

But this does not prohibit a person from being sworn, on a grave and solemn occasion [5]. For, as the Holy Spirit says by St. Paul, An oath for confirmation is to men an end of strife. (Heb. vi. 16.) Strife is an evil, and so an Oath arises from what is evil, v. 37, ἐκ τοῦ πονηροῦ.

But the evil may be, and ought to be overcome with good: for an Oath, on such an occasion, is an appeal to God [6], as Omnipresent, Omniscient, and Omnipotent, and as the searcher of all hearts, and the Future Judge of all men; i. e. it is an act of Divine Worship, as the Prophet Jeremiah teaches (Jer. iv. 2), and therefore the Psalmist says, "all they that swear by Thee shall be commended." (Psa. lxiii. 12.) [7]

37. περισσὸν τούτων ἐκ τοῦ πονηροῦ] See last note. It is also ἐκ τοῦ πονηροῦ in that it arises from irreverence; and so in every sense is ἐκ τοῦ πονηροῦ, i. e. it is from the Evil One who is the author of strife and profaneness.

39. μὴ ἀντιστῆναι τῷ πονηρῷ] On the use of the negative, for the sake of comparison, see on Matt. ix. 13. Do not retaliate, do not render evil for evil.

The Levitical law of retaliation (Exod. xxi. 24. Deut. xix. 21. Levit. xxiv. 20), though strictly just in itself, was often abused for the gratification of vindictive passions, and for the infliction of evil as such, and not for the repression of crime for the sake of society. This is what our Lord forbids; He commands to check all private feelings of personal hatred and revenge, and to make private sacrifices on all occasions in a spirit of forbearance, patience, meekness, and love, though (as our Lord teaches, Matt. xviii. 15—17. Luke xvii. 3) a regard for public justice, and the welfare of society and of the offender himself, may render it necessary (as it does) to restrain and punish crime.

Thus, for the Law of Retaliation as then practised by the Jews, Our Lord substitutes the Law of Love.

This and the following precepts (see St. Aug. de Serm. D. i. 59) are to be understood as having regard "ad præparationem cordis, non ostentationem operis." Some conform to the letter of these commands, without being animated by the spirit of them. "Multi," says Aug. i. 58, "alteram maxillam præbere noverunt, diligere verò eum à quo feriuntur ignorant." But we must pray and strive to be animated by the spirit, and then we shall not contravene the letter.

— ὅστις σε ῥαπίσει] i. e. not only do not retaliate an injury, but be prepared rather to bear more injuries. "Si quis te percusserit, noli tu percutere, sed para te adhuc percutienti," S. Aug. de Serm. Dom. i. 56, i. e. be ready to suffer in a good cause. Our Lord did not thereby forbid to take legal means of self protection or remonstrance (John xviii. 23. Acts xxii. 25). But He taught by precept as by example, "non solum in alteram maxillam cædi pro salute omnium sed etiam crucifigi." St. Aug. ibid.

40. χιτῶνα—ἱμάτιον] χιτὼν from Hebr. כְּתֹנֶת (cethoneth), the inner garment, tunic; ἱμάτιον, גָּלֶד (leged), the outer robe, "toga Romanis, pallium Græcis." St. Luke inverts the order, vi. 29. You

[1] See Conc. Trid. Sess. xxiv. can. 7. Bellarmine de Matrimonio.

[2] This is the general opinion of Roman Divines; but some of them, e. g. Cajetanus and Catharinus do not concur in it. See à Lapide and Maldonat. on Matth. xix. 9. The latter, pp. 255—260, gives a clear statement of the different opinions on this point.

[3] Cf. Greg. Naz. p. 650, Χριστὸς οὐ κατὰ πᾶσαν αἰτίαν, ἀλλὰ συγχωρεῖ μὲν μόνον χωρίζεσθαι τῆς πόρνης. τὰ δὲ ἄλλα πάντα φιλοσοφεῖν κελεύει.

Cp. Aug. ep. 89, and other authorities quoted in the Editor's Occasional Sermons, No. 40, on the subject of Divorce, and below, xix. 9, and Bp. Cosin, iv. 489.

[4] St. Jerome (vol. iv. 162), "Qui dimissam acceperit adulter est, sive ipsa dimiserit virum sive à viro dimissa sit. Vivente viro adultera est mulier si alteri nupserit;" and Ep. ad Ocean. p. 658, "Præcepit Dominus uxorem non debere dimitti, exceptâ causâ fornicationis; et si dimissa fuerit, manere innuptam; et Evangelii vigore nubendi caussatio viventibus viris feminis amputatur."

[5] The verb נִשְׁבַּע is used only in Niphal (i. e. to be made to swear), and Hiphil (to cause to swear); as much as to intimate that no one ought to Swear, except when compelled to do so (see Bythner on Psa. xv. 4).

The word is derived from נִשְׁבַּע (sheba) seven; a perfect and sacred number. Cp. שָׂבַע (saba) to be filled, and שַׁבָּת shabath (Sabbath) to rest, so that an Oath is, as it were, intended to be a sacred rest—a Sabbath from strife. (Heb. vi. 16.)

[6] Hence the sin of the Jews not only in swearing rashly and lightly, but also in swearing by creatures; "He who swears venerates or loves that by which he swears: and in the law it was ordered that they should not swear but by God: but the Jews, who swore by Angels, and the city and temple, honoured the creatures with the honour due to God." (Jerome.)

[7] The case of swearing is similar to that of taking away life. It is malum per se; but Swearing in a Court of Justice is an occasion of asserting God's Supremacy, and so an act of Worship, as the punishment of Death inflicted in obedience to God's law, and in His Name (Gen. ix. 6. Rom. xiii. 4), is an occasion of proclaiming His Justice and dominion over the lives of all His creatures.

See Bp. Andrewes, De Jurejurando Theolog. Disputatio, 1591. and Catechistical Doctrine, p. 239, and Sermons, v. 70—82. Dr. Barrow, Sermon xv., vol. i. p. 330. Bp. Cosin, on Eccl. Courts, pt. 3. Bp. Sanderson, De Juramenti Obligatione, vol. iv. 244 (ed. Jacobson, Oxford 1854), and Bp. Beveridge on Article xxxix., and below, xxvi. 62.

ἀγγαρεύσει μίλιον ἕν, ὕπαγε μετ' αὐτοῦ δύο. 42 Τῷ αἰτοῦντί σε δίδου· καὶ i Lev. 19. 18. Exod. 34. 12. Deut. 7. 2 τὸν θέλοντα ἀπὸ σοῦ δανείσασθαι μὴ ἀποστραφῇς. (40/V) 43 i Ἠκούσατε ὅτι ἐρρήθη, Ἀγαπήσεις τὸν πλησίον σου, καὶ μισήσεις τὸν ἐχθρόν σου.
k Luke 6. 27, &c. Rom. 12. 14, 20. 1 Pet. 3. 9. Luke 23. 34. Acts 7. 60. 1 Cor. 4. 13. 1 Luke 6. 35. 44 k Ἐγὼ δὲ λέγω ὑμῖν, ἀγαπᾶτε τοὺς ἐχθροὺς ὑμῶν, εὐλογεῖτε τοὺς καταρωμένους ὑμᾶς, καλῶς ποιεῖτε τοῖς μισοῦσιν ὑμᾶς, καὶ προσεύχεσθε ὑπὲρ τῶν ἐπηρεαζόντων ὑμᾶς καὶ διωκόντων ὑμᾶς· 45 l ὅπως γένησθε υἱοὶ τοῦ πατρὸς ὑμῶν τοῦ ἐν οὐρανοῖς· ὅτι τὸν ἥλιον αὐτοῦ ἀνατέλλει ἐπὶ πονηροὺς καὶ ἀγαθούς, m Luke 6. 32. καὶ βρέχει ἐπὶ δικαίους καὶ ἀδίκους. (41/V) 46 m Ἐὰν γὰρ ἀγαπήσητε τοὺς ἀγα-n Luke 6. 33. πῶντας ὑμᾶς, τίνα μισθὸν ἔχετε; οὐχὶ καὶ οἱ τελῶναι τὸ αὐτὸ ποιοῦσι; 47 n Καὶ ἐὰν ἀσπάσησθε τοὺς ἀδελφοὺς ὑμῶν μόνον, τί περισσὸν ποιεῖτε; οὐχὶ καὶ o Lev. 11. 44. & 19. 2. & 20. 7. 26. 1 Pet. 1. 15, 16. Luke 6. 36. οἱ ἐθνικοὶ τὸ αὐτὸ ποιοῦσιν; 48 o Ἔσεσθε οὖν ὑμεῖς τέλειοι, ὥσπερ ὁ πατὴρ ὑμῶν ὁ ἐν τοῖς οὐρανοῖς τέλειός ἐστι.

VI. (42/X) 1 Προσέχετε τὴν δικαιοσύνην ὑμῶν μὴ ποιεῖν ἔμπροσθεν τῶν ἀνθρώπων, πρὸς τὸ θεαθῆναι αὐτοῖς· εἰ δὲ μήγε, μισθὸν οὐκ ἔχετε παρὰ τῷ a Rom. 12. 8. πατρὶ ὑμῶν τῷ ἐν τοῖς οὐρανοῖς. 2 a Ὅταν οὖν ποιῇς ἐλεημοσύνην, μὴ σαλ-πίσῃς ἔμπροσθέν σου, ὥσπερ οἱ ὑποκριταὶ ποιοῦσιν ἐν ταῖς συναγωγαῖς καὶ ἐν ταῖς ῥύμαις, ὅπως δοξασθῶσιν ὑπὸ τῶν ἀνθρώπων· ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ἀπέχουσι τὸν μισθὸν αὐτῶν. 3 Σοῦ δὲ ποιοῦντος ἐλεημοσύνην, μὴ γνώτω ἡ ἀριστερά b Luke 14. 14. σου τί ποιεῖ ἡ δεξιά σου. 4 b ὅπως ᾖ σου ἡ ἐλεημοσύνη ἐν τῷ κρυπτῷ· καὶ ὁ πατήρ σου ὁ βλέπων ἐν τῷ κρυπτῷ, αὐτὸς ἀποδώσει σοι. 5 Καὶ ὅταν προσ-εύχῃ, οὐκ ἔσῃ ὥσπερ οἱ ὑποκριταί· ὅτι φιλοῦσιν ἐν ταῖς συναγωγαῖς καὶ ἐν ταῖς γωνίαις τῶν πλατειῶν ἑστῶτες προσεύχεσθαι, ὅπως φανῶσι τοῖς ἀνθρώποις. Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι ἀπέχουσι τὸν μισθὸν αὐτῶν. 6 Σὺ δὲ, ὅταν προσεύχῃ, εἴσελθε εἰς τὸ ταμιεῖόν σου, καὶ κλείσας τὴν θύραν σου, πρόσευξαι must be ready to sacrifice private comforts and advantages—"decedere de tuo ipsius jure" (see Aug. l. c. i. 59), for the sake of charity and peace. This precept does not require nor permit any one to surrender what is not his own χιτὼν or ἱμάτιον, viz. public rights, much less Christian principles and Christian truth; for which we are to contend earnestly (Jude 3), and of which we are not to divest ourselves, or to allow any one to strip us—for then we should be naked indeed (Rev. iii. 17, 18).

---

41. ὅστις σε ἀγγαρεύσει] Ἄγγαρος, a Persian word for a royal courier[1], who had authority to press horses, &c. into his service in execution of his mission[2]. The word אַנְגַרְיָא (angaria) (whence avania and avanie, in Ital. and Fr.), is used in the Talmud for any forced work. If any one presses thee to do him service,—especially if he has a public claim on thee for duty,—do not contend, but do it heartily.

The word ἀγγαρεύω is applied by the Evangelists to Simon the Cyrenian, pressed into the service of bearing the cross of Christ. Matt. xxvii. 32. Mark xv. 21. This is our ἀγγάρευμα, to bear cheerfully the cross of Christ, and follow Him to Calvary.

42. τῷ αἰτοῦντί σε δίδου] "Omni petenti, non omnia petenti, ut id des quod dare justè et honestè potes. Omni petenti dabis, quamvis non semper id quod petit dabis, et aliquando melius aliquid dabis cùm petentem injusta correxeris." (St. Aug. de Serm. in M. i. 67.)

— δανείσασθαι] "Ne voluntatem alienes ab eo qui petit, quasi et pecunia tua vacabit et Deus tibi non redditurus est: sed cum id ex præcepto Dei facis, apud Illum qui hæc jubet infructuosum esse non potest." (St. Aug. ibid. i. 68.)[3]

44. ἀγαπᾶτε τοὺς ἐχθρούς] This is the Christian 'Lex Talionis.' Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good. (Rom. xii. 21.)

45. ὅπως γένησθε] that you may become.

— βρέχει] for ὕει, the popular word, still in use in Greece. So βροχὴ for ὑετός, βουνὸς for ὄρος, ψαρὶ (from ὀψάριον), for ἰχθύς, and numerous other words used in the New Test., instead of the more refined forms, and still surviving in the vernacular Romaic. See Preface to St. Luke.

46. τελῶναι] The Jewish subalterns and lessees of the Roman publicani, and therefore doubly odious to those of their own nation. The Talmud classes them with thieves and assassins, and regards their repentance as impossible.

48. ἔσεσθε—τέλειος] We who are created in God's image, and restored in Christ, and made partakers of the divine nature in Him, are bound by the conditions of our creation, redemption, and sanctification, to endeavour to be like Him here, that we may have the fruition of His glorious Godhead hereafter. Ephes. v. 1. 1 Pet. i. 15. 1 John ii. 1. "Many imagine what is here commanded to be impossible. But Christ never commands impossibilities; but He prescribes such kind of perfection as was attained by David in the case of Saul and Absalom, and by Stephen the martyr in praying for his murderers, and by St. Paul in wishing to be accursed for his persecutors. Acts vii. 60. Rom. ix. 3." (St. Jerome.)

CH. VI. 1. δικαιοσύνην] justitiam, Vulg., applied to outward acts of righteousness; specially to almsgiving. See Dan. iv. 24, where בְּצִדְקָה (b'tsidkah), i. e. ἐν δικαιοσύνῃ, is rendered by LXX and Theodotion ἐν ἐλεημοσύναις. Cp. 2 Cor. ix. 10, where δικαιοσύνη seems to have a similar sense. It is also used in LXX for חֶסֶד (chesed), i. e. mercy, e. g. Prov. xx. 28. Isa. lxiii. 7.

Here the general word δικαιοσύνη appears to be used by our Lord as introductory to precepts on its two special branches, Almsgiving and Prayer.

— πρὸς τό] i. e. with that intention. We are to be seen to do good, but not to do good to be seen. Cp. v. 16. Gal. i. 10.

2. μὴ σαλπίσῃς] The reference seems to be to the use of Trumpets to summon public assemblies to see some fair spectacle, or hear some great thing. Num. x. 3, &c. Ps. lxxxi. 3. 2 Kings ix. 13.

— ὑποκριταί] ὑποκριτής, properly a histrio or actor who ὑποκρίνεται τῷ χορῷ, i. e. is an interlocutor with the chorus; and wears a mask (πρόσωπεῖον, personam), and plays a part. Hence the word is applied in Christian Ethics to those who "tegunt sub personâ quod sunt, et ostentant in personâ quod non sunt." (Aug.) On the use of the word ὑποκριτὴς in the N. T. see below, xxiii. 13. "He follows up the metaphor. The hypocrite acts a part on this world's stage, to be seen of men; but your Theatre is to be the Omniscience of God your heavenly Father, and the presence of the World and of Angels at the judgment to come. If you wish to be glorious, conceal your good deeds here, and they will have a brighter crown hereafter." (St. Chrys.) "He calls them hypocrites, i. e. actors, wearing a mask; pretending to pray to God, they look around for the praise of men. God is the hearer not of words but of hearts." (Jerome.)

3. μὴ γνώτω] much less let it hold the trumpet to thy mouth,—σεαυτὸν λάνθανε. (Theoph.).

4. τῷ κρυπτῷ] Observe the article here and v. 6, not a secret place merely, but in secret,—shutting out all worldly considerations.

5. ἀπέχουσι] 'id quod iis debetur.' On the use of ἀπὸ see xxii. 21.

6. ταμιεῖον] as Daniel did. Dan. vi. 10. The word ταμιεῖον is used by the LXX, in Gen. xliii. 30, for the private chamber to

---

[1] Connected with this is the Hebrew אִגֶּרֶת (iggereth), a letter.

[2] See Blomfield and others in Æschyl. Agam. 292, and Alford, here.

[3] On the question concerning the legality of Usury, see on Matt. xxv. 27.

τῷ πατρί σου τῷ ἐν τῷ κρυπτῷ· καὶ ὁ πατήρ σου, ὁ βλέπων ἐν τῷ κρυπτῷ, ἀποδώσει σοι ἐν τῷ φανερῷ. (48/V) 7 [c] Προσευχόμενοι δὲ μὴ βαττολογήσητε, ὥσπερ οἱ ἐθνικοί· δοκοῦσι γὰρ, ὅτι ἐν τῇ πολυλογίᾳ αὐτῶν εἰσακουσθήσονται. 8 μὴ οὖν ὁμοιωθῆτε αὐτοῖς· οἶδε γὰρ ὁ πατὴρ ὑμῶν, ὧν χρείαν ἔχετε, πρὸ τοῦ ὑμᾶς αἰτῆσαι αὐτόν. 9 [d] Οὕτως οὖν προσεύχεσθε ὑμεῖς· Πάτερ ἡμῶν ὁ ἐν τοῖς οὐρανοῖς, ἁγιασθήτω τὸ ὄνομά σου. 10 ἐλθέτω ἡ βασιλεία σου. [e] γενηθήτω τὸ θέλημά σου, ὡς ἐν οὐρανῷ καὶ ἐπὶ γῆς. 11 [f] τὸν ἄρτον ἡμῶν τὸν ἐπιούσιον δὸς ἡμῖν σήμερον. 12 [g] καὶ ἄφες ἡμῖν τὰ ὀφειλήματα ἡμῶν, ὡς καὶ ἡμεῖς ἀφίεμεν τοῖς ὀφειλέταις ἡμῶν. 13 [h] καὶ μὴ εἰσενέγκῃς ἡμᾶς εἰς πειρασμόν, ἀλλὰ ῥῦσαι ἡμᾶς ἀπὸ τοῦ πονηροῦ. (44/VI) 14 [i] Ἐὰν γὰρ ἀφῆτε τοῖς ἀνθρώποις c Ecclus. 7. 14. Eccles. 5. 2, 3, 7.

d Luke 11. 2.
e Heb. 13. 21. Ps. 103. 20, 21.
f Luke 11. 3.
g Luke 11. 4. Eph. 4. 32.
h ch. 26. 41. John 17. 15.
i Mark 11. 25. Ecclus. 28. 2.

which Joseph retired to weep. See also in Exod. viii. 3, and passim. The Fathers give also a figurative sense to this precept, e. g. St. Ambrose (Cain and Abel, c. 9) thus: Enter into the secret chamber (τὸ κρυπτόν) of thine own mind wherever thou art, shut the door thereof against the world, and commune with God. So St. Jerome, "Claude ostium, et mente ora, uti faciebat Anna mater Samuelis. Hoc orationis cubiculum," says St. Ambrose, "ubique tecum est." We may enter the κρυπτὸν or chamber of our own hearts, even in a crowd,—"et ubique secretum est, cujus arbiter nullus est nisi solus Deus." "Qui," as St. Cyprian de Orat. says, "non vocis sed cordis auditor est."

7. προσευχόμενοι μὴ βαττολογήσητε] "βάττος dicitur fuisse Poëta quidam fuisse qui multa inaniter garriebat eademque molestissimè inculcabat." (Mintert in v. Cp. Suidas in v.) Hence βαττολογεῖν, to use vain repetitions; to repeat for repetition's sake.

Our Lord repeated the same words in prayer in His agony, Matt. xxvi. 44. He teaches us here that the essence of prayer is not in the utterance of the lips, but in the colloquy of the heart with God; and by his own practice in His Agony He instructs us that the affection of the heart is stimulated and sustained by the ministry of the lips saying the same words.

8. οἶδε γάρ] But since God knows what we need before we ask, why should we pray? Not to inform Him, but to exercise ourselves in communion with Him. (Chrys.) We are not narrators, but suppliants. It is one thing to inform the ignorant, and another thing to beseech the Omniscient. (Jerome.)

9. οὕτως οὖν προσεύχεσθε] Our Lord here, by this Prayer—(cp. the Benediction, Num. vi. 23. Deut. xxvi. 13),— Authorizes form of prayer [1].

Delivers a particular form of prayer to be used, and

To serve as a pattern for the subject and order of our desires and prayers; and [2] therefore as a guide for our practice.

As the Decalogue is in two tables, so the Lord's Prayer is in two parts; making together seven petitions,—the first three relating to God, the latter four to man. (Aug.) Bp. Andrewes, v. p. 331.

— Πάτερ ἡμῶν] Not ἡμέτερε. He lays the Foundation of Prayer in Love. If God is our Father, we should honour Him as His children; and if He is the father of us (ἡμῶν), we should love one another as brethren. Let us remember also, for our comfort and joy, Who it is that authorizes and encourages us to use these words,—the Son of God, co-equal and of One Substance with the Father.

— ἁγιασθήτω τὸ ὄνομα] ὄνομα, Hebr. שֵׁם (Shem), has a comprehensive meaning. See Mede, p. 5. It signifies whatever belongs to God,—His Essence, Attributes, House, Day, Word, Ministers, &c. See Exod. xxiii. 21. Levit. xxiv. 11. 16. 1 Sam. xvii. 45. Ps. viii. 1; xx. 1. 7; xlviii. 10; cxiii. 1; cxlviii. Mal. i. 11. 14.

This is to be our first aim and desire in all things—the glory of God. (Chrys.)

10. γενηθήτω] as by angels in heaven, so by us on earth. (Jerome.)

11. τὸν ἄρτον—τὸν ἐπιούσιον] Bread—the Hebrew לֶחֶם a synecdoche for "quicquid ad vitam sustentandam utile est." Gen. xliii. 25. 31. 34.

The word ἐπιούσιον, a new word, as Origen observes (de Orat.), peculiar to the New Testament, and marking the newness of the precept involved in this petition, seems to be formed in the same way as περιούσιος (superfluous), and is contrasted with it, and signifies what is necessary, not περι-ούσιον, but sufficient for our οὐσία [3] or existence; hence ἄρτος ἐπιούσιος is [4] the same as לֶחֶם חֻקִּי (lehem huki) in Agur's prayer. Prov. xxx. 8; and this petition appears to be derived from it. (Mede.)

The Fathers understand by this bread, the spiritual food of the Word and Sacraments. Tertullian. de Oratione 6, "Panem Spiritualiter intelligamus, Christus enim panis noster." "Hunc panem quotidiè nobis postulamus," says St. Cyprian, de Orat. Dom., as the Manna in the wilderness. (Cp. John vi. 33.) So the English Catechism,—"all things that be needful for our souls and bodies."

12. ἄφες τὰ ὀφειλήματα] "ἀφιέναι respondet verbo Chald. et Syr. שְׁבַק, quod non modo valet, dimittere, relinquere, sinere, sed etiam condonare, remittere, et tunc ei fere jungitur חוֹב, ὀφείλημα, v. Buxtorf. Lex. Talm. h. v. atque sic etiam h. l. ἀφιέναι notat, condonare, remittere, Hebr. סלח; ut ap. τοὺς ὁ· Ps. xxv. 18, ἄφες τὰς ἁμαρτίας μου· add. Num. xiv. 19. Ies. lv. 7. Voces חוֹב et חֵטְא etiam de peccatis usurpantur, v. Buxtorfii Lex. Talm. p. 714 s. et Vorstius de Hebraism. N. T. p. 74 ss. hinc et ap. Luc. xi. 4. pro ὀφειλήματα legitur ἁμαρτίας, et infra v. 14. ὀφειλήματα commutatur cum παραπτώματα." (Kuin.) Hence St. Augustine argues against the Pelagians, that no one is without sin. S. Aug. de Peccat. ii. 10, and c. Epist. Parmen. ii. 10. St. Cyprian (de Orat. Dom.) says, "hinc docetur peccare se quotidiè."

13. μὴ εἰσενέγκῃς] Quoted by St. Polycarp, Phil. 7. God tempts no one (James i. 13; cp. de Aug. Serm. on M. ii. 9); but He sometimes permits the Tempter to try the faith and patience of His servants, as Job (i. 12; ii. 6), and our Lord Himself (iv. 1). We are taught to pray here that God would not lead us into Temptation, i. e. allow us to run into it—"Ne nos induci patiaris." (Tertullian) —(though the Tempter may be allowed to attack us), much less go in quest of it; and thus we are reminded of, and acknowledge our frailty, and need of grace, and of watchfulness against Satan, and of prayer for the Holy Spirit,—Christ's own prayer in His Agony. See Matt. xxvi. 39. See Bp. Andrewes, v. 458, 467, on this text.

— τοῦ πονηροῦ] the wicked one. Πονηρὸς is to be distinguished from κακὸς, because it always signifies moral evil; whereas κακὸς sometimes means physical evil only.

The Doxology ὅτι σοῦ—ἀμήν is not found in the oldest MSS. and was probably added in the beginning of the fourth century [5], from the primitive usage of Christian Churches in reciting the Lord's Prayer in their public Liturgies.

Mr. Humphry (on Acts xxi. 14) and Prof. Blunt (on the Chris-

---

[1] And in "the Lord's Prayer" our Lord adopts petitions already in use in Forms of Prayer among the Jews. See Vitringa de Synagog. iii. 692. Lightfoot and Schoettgen, pp. 61—65. Cp. on vi. 34.

[2] On this Prayer see Tertullian de Oratione, p. 129, Paris 1695, who calls the Lord's Prayer "Breviarium Evangelii," and St. Cyprian de Oratione Dominica, p. 395, ed. Ven. 1728. Aug. de Serm. M. ii. 4—8, and Serm. 56—58, "ad Competentes post symbolum traditum." Gregor. Nyssen. in de Orat. Domin. Origen, περὶ εὐχῆς, i. 226, and St. Cyril. Hierosolym. Catech. 23, p. 329. Bp. Andrewes, v. 350—476, who calls it "a compendium of faith," and Mede, 1—18.

[3] "Panem peti mandat, quod solum fidelibus necessarium." (Tertullian de Orat. 6.)

[4] It has been said by many learned modern interpreters, that ἐπιούσιος is derived from ἡ ἐπιοῦσα ἡμέρα (to-morrow), and cannot come from ἐπὶ and οὐσία, for it would be ἐπούσιος.

But this opinion does not seem satisfactory.

It is hardly consistent with Matt. vi. 34, to pray σήμερον for to-morrow's bread.

Ἐπιούσιος, from ἐπὶ and οὐσία, may be compared with ἐπιόγδοος, ἐπιούριος, ἐπίοπτος, ἐπίορκος, ἐπίουρος, where the vowel ι is not elided.

And so the Ancient Church understood the phrase; e. g. Chrys. ἄρτον ἐνὶ τὴν οὐσίαν διαβαίνοντα, and Basil. reg. brev. 253, τὸν ἄρτον τὸν πρὸς τὴν ἐφήμερον ζωὴν τῇ οὐσίᾳ ἡμῶν χρησιμεύοντα. Theoph. ἐπὶ τῇ οὐσίᾳ καὶ συστάσει αὐτάρκη, and Euthym. and Suidas, and Etymol. M. ὁ ἐπὶ τῇ οὐσίᾳ ἡμῶν ἁρμόζων.

So also St. Cyril. Hierosol. p. 329, speaking of daily bread in a spiritual sense, ὁ ἐπὶ τὴν οὐσίαν τῆς ψυχῆς κατασταθσόμενος, and so the Greeks now understand it. See the Athenian ed. of Euthym. 1842, p. 110.

The Version of the Western Church has supersubstantialis.

See also Joseph Mede's excellent Essay, p. 125, who observes that the petition may be thus paraphrased, τὸν ἄρτον ἡμῶν, μὴ περιούσιον, ἀλλὰ τὸν ἐπιούσιον δὸς ἡμῖν σήμερον. Schoettgen here (pp. 63. 71, 72) cites passages from the Rabbis, which show that even among the most pious of the Jews it was not usual to pray for the things of the morrow. See also Bloomf., Alford, and Arnoldi.

[5] "Omittunt hæc verba codd. Græci, pauci quidem, sed præstantissimi, patres Latini omnes, etiam ii, qui commentarios in hanc orationem scripserunt, et singulas ejus partes diligentèr illustrarunt, inter quos antiquissimi sunt Tertullianus et Cyprianus. Origenes quoque, qui omnes hujus orationis sententias singulari libello (περὶ εὐχῆς Opp. T. i. p. 226 ss. ed. de la Rue) pertractavit, et diserte indicavit, quibusnam rebus codices Lucæ, qui doxologia semper caruerunt, a Matth. codicibus differrent, hanc ultimam formulæ partem planè præterlit, unde patet, eam ab Origenis codd. abfuisse. Reperiuntur quidem hæc verba in vers. Syriacis tribus, (Peschito, Philoxeniana, Hierosolymitana,) in Æthiopica, Armenica, Gothica, in constitutionibus Apostolorum, et apud Chrysostomum. Sed horum testium nullus, ut Griesbachius in Commentar. Crit. ad h. l. monuit, si Syriacam Peschito excipias, probare potest, quarto seculo antiquiorem hanc clausulam esse, versionem autem Peschito, serioribus temporibus passim ad Græcos libros juniores, cum vulgari textu consonantes, recognitam esse. Adstipulor igitur Griesbachio, cui hæc doxologia seculo IV. post Chr. N. e liturgiis irrepisse videtur." (Kuin.)

These facts show that we have now Greek MSS. of the New Test,

τὰ παραπτώματα αὐτῶν, ἀφήσει καὶ ὑμῖν ὁ Πατὴρ ὑμῶν ὁ οὐράνιος· 15 [k] ἐὰν δὲ μὴ ἀφῆτε τοῖς ἀνθρώποις τὰ παραπτώματα αὐτῶν, οὐδὲ ὁ Πατὴρ ὑμῶν ἀφήσει τὰ παραπτώματα ὑμῶν. (45/X) 16 [l] [v] Ὅταν δὲ νηστεύητε, μὴ γίνεσθε ὥσπερ οἱ ὑποκριταί, σκυθρωποί· ἀφανίζουσι γὰρ τὰ πρόσωπα αὐτῶν, ὅπως φανῶσι τοῖς ἀνθρώποις νηστεύοντες. ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι ἀπέχουσι τὸν μισθὸν αὐτῶν. 17 Σὺ δὲ, νηστεύων, ἄλειψαί σου τὴν κεφαλὴν, καὶ τὸ πρόσωπόν σου νίψαι· 18 ὅπως μὴ φανῇς τοῖς ἀνθρώποις νηστεύων, ἀλλὰ τῷ Πατρί σου τῷ ἐν τῷ κρυπτῷ· καὶ ὁ Πατήρ σου, ὁ βλέπων ἐν τῷ κρυπτῷ, ἀποδώσει σοι.

19 [m] Μὴ θησαυρίζετε ὑμῖν θησαυροὺς ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς, ὅπου σὴς καὶ βρῶσις ἀφανίζει, καὶ ὅπου κλέπται διορύσσουσι καὶ κλέπτουσι· (46/V) 20 θησαυρίζετε δὲ ὑμῖν θησαυροὺς ἐν οὐρανῷ, ὅπου οὔτε σὴς οὔτε βρῶσις ἀφανίζει, καὶ ὅπου κλέπται οὐ διορύσσουσιν οὐδὲ κλέπτουσιν· 21 ὅπου γάρ ἐστιν ὁ θησαυρὸς ὑμῶν, ἐκεῖ ἔσται καὶ ἡ καρδία ὑμῶν. (47/V) 22 [n] [w] Ὁ λύχνος τοῦ σώματός ἐστιν ὁ ὀφθαλμός. ἐὰν οὖν ὁ ὀφθαλμός σου ἁπλοῦς ᾖ, ὅλον τὸ σῶμά σου φωτεινὸν ἔσται· 23 ἐὰν δὲ ὁ ὀφθαλμός σου πονηρὸς ᾖ, ὅλον τὸ σῶμά σου σκοτεινὸν ἔσται· εἰ οὖν τὸ φῶς τὸ ἐν σοὶ σκότος ἐστὶ, τὸ σκότος πόσον. (48/V) 24 [o] Οὐδεὶς δύναται δυσὶ κυρίοις δουλεύειν· ἢ γὰρ τὸν ἕνα μισήσει, καὶ τὸν ἕτερον ἀγαπήσει· ἢ ἑνὸς ἀνθέξεται, καὶ τοῦ ἑτέρου καταφρονήσει. Οὐ δύνασθε Θεῷ δουλεύειν καὶ μαμωνᾷ. (49/V) 25 [p] Διὰ τοῦτο λέγω ὑμῖν, μὴ μεριμνᾶτε τῇ ψυχῇ ὑμῶν, τί φάγητε καὶ τί πίητε, μηδὲ τῷ σώματι ὑμῶν, τί ἐνδύσησθε. [q] οὐχὶ ἡ ψυχὴ πλεῖόν ἐστι τῆς τροφῆς, καὶ τὸ σῶμα τοῦ ἐνδύματος; 26 [r] ἐμβλέψατε εἰς τὰ πετεινὰ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ· ὅτι οὐ σπείρουσιν, οὐδὲ θερίζουσιν, οὐδὲ συνάγουσιν εἰς ἀποθήκας· καὶ ὁ πατὴρ ὑμῶν ὁ οὐράνιος τρέφει αὐτά· οὐχ ὑμεῖς μᾶλλον διαφέρετε αὐτῶν; 27 [s] τίς δὲ ἐξ ὑμῶν μεριμνῶν δύναται προσθεῖναι ἐπὶ τὴν ἡλικίαν αὐτοῦ πῆχυν ἕνα; 28 [t] καὶ περὶ ἐνδύματος τί μεριμνᾶτε; καταμάθετε τὰ κρίνα τοῦ ἀγροῦ πῶς αὐξάνει· οὐ κοπιᾷ, οὐδὲ νήθει· 29 λέγω δὲ ὑμῖν, ὅτι οὐδὲ Σολομὼν ἐν πάσῃ τῇ δόξῃ αὐτοῦ περιεβάλετο ὡς ἓν τούτων· 30 [u] εἰ δὲ τὸν χόρτον τοῦ ἀγροῦ, σήμερον ὄντα καὶ αὔριον εἰς κλίβανον βαλλόμενον, ὁ Θεὸς οὕτως ἀμφιέννυσιν, οὐ πολλῷ μᾶλλον ὑμᾶς, ὀλιγόπιστοι; 31 [x] μὴ οὖν μεριμνήσητε λέγοντες, τί φάγωμεν, ἢ τί πίωμεν, ἢ τί περιβαλώμεθα; 32 πάντα γὰρ ταῦτα τὰ ἔθνη ἐπιζητεῖ· οἶδε γὰρ ὁ πατὴρ ὑμῶν ὁ οὐράνιος ὅτι χρῄζετε τούτων ἁπάντων· 33 [y] ζητεῖτε δὲ πρῶτον τὴν βασιλείαν τοῦ Θεοῦ καὶ τὴν δικαιοσύνην αὐτοῦ, καὶ ταῦτα πάντα προστεθήσεται ὑμῖν· 34 μὴ οὖν μερι-k ch. 18. 35.

l Isa. 58. 5. Joel 2. 12, 13.
m ch. 19. 21. Luke 12. 33. 1 Tim. 6. 6, 9, 18, 19. Heb. 13. 5.
n Luke 11. 34.
o Luke 16. 13. Rom. 6. 16, 22. 1 John 2. 15, 16. p Luke 12. 22. Phil. 4. 6. 1 Tim. 6. 8. 1 Pet. 5. 7. Ps. 55. 22.
q Luke 12. 23.
r Job 38. 41. Ps. 147. 9. Luke 12. 24.
s Luke 12. 25.
t Luke 12. 27.
u Luke 12. 28.
x Luke 12. 29, 30.
y Luke 12. 31. Ps. 34. 10. 1 Tim. 4. 8. 1 Kings 3. 11—13.

---

tian Church, p. 38) well compare 2 Tim. iv. 18, where St Paul adopts the substance and order of the last two petitions in the Lord's Prayer with the Doxology.

16. ὅταν νηστεύητε] Our Lord is speaking here of private fasts, not of fasts imposed by public authority. Fasting was prescribed by the Old Law; but with the exception of the annual fast on the day of Atonement (Lev. xvi. 1—34; xxiii. 27—29. Cp. Numbers xxix. 7), the times were left, for the most part, to private discretion. Some (e. g. the Pharisees) fasted twice a week (Monday and Thursday) Luke xviii 11. (Lightfoot.) He anticipates that His disciples will fast. On the duty, design, and proper meaning of fasting, see Basil, De Jejunio ii. p. 1—15. 621.

22. ὀφθαλμὸς ἁπλοῦς] "Lippientes oculi," says St. Jerome, "solent lucernas videre numerosas: simplex oculus et purus simplicia intuetur et pura." Thy body will be full of light, if thou hast one object in view, i.e. the glory of God seen in the way of obedience to His Law[1].

24. μαμωνᾷ] From Syriac ܡܡܘܢܐ (mammuna), riches; which appears to be derived from חָמוֹן (hamon), abundance. "Non dixit, qui habet divitias sed qui servit divitiis; qui divitiarum servus est custodit ut servus; qui servitutis excussit jugum, distribuit eas ut dominus." (Jerome.) Cp. Luke xvi. 9. 11. 13[2].

25. μὴ μεριμνᾶτε] Our Lord does not forbid provident forethought (cp. 1 Tim. v. 8), as was imagined by the Euchites ("qui volebant semper εὔχεσθαι et nunquam laborare"), against whom St. Augustine wrote his book "de Opere Monachorum" (vi. 797; xi. 446). "Dominus," says St. Aug., "propter exemplum loculos habuit." But he forbids anxious, restless, and distrustful solicitude about earthly things.—and this He does by seven considerations. 1. The care which God shows for our life and our bodies (see Chrys. and Jerome). 2. For the inferior creatures which exist for our sake. 3. Because all our care is vain without God. 4. From a consideration of the flowers and grass which God clothes and adorns. 5. Because such solicitude is unchristian and heathenish 6. Because God adds every thing necessary to them who seek first His Kingdom. 7. Because sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof. Cp. Phil. iv. 6. 1 Pet. v. 7.

— τῆς τροφῆς] its food. τοῦ ἐνδύματος, its clothing.

29. Σολομὼν] "Christus verè scivit Solomonis amictum." (Beng.)

30. εἰς κλίβανον] 'clibanus, furnus,' the kiln; from לְבֵנָה (lebhenah), later. From lack of timber in Palestine, χόρτος, &c. was used as fuel. See above, iii. 10.

---

representing the Text as it was before the fourth century,—a very important result.

And that the Lord's Prayer was probably in universal use in Ancient Christian Liturgies.

[1] See Bp. Sanderson (Prælect. de Obligat. Consc. ii. § 11, vol. iv. p. 31), who observes, that singleness of purpose,—or good intention, properly so called,—here includes good means not less that a good end, and quotes St. Bernard, "Ut oculus sit simplex, duo sunt necessaria, charitas in intentione et in electione veritas."

"Him, only him, the hand of God defends Whose means are pure and spotless as his ends."

[2] This verse is cited μνημονικῶς καὶ παραφραστικῶς by Clement. Rom. i. 6, λέγει ὁ Κύριος, οὐδεὶς οἰκέτης δύναται δυσὶ κυρίοις δουλεύειν· ἐὰν ἡμεῖς θέλωμεν καὶ Θεῷ δουλεύειν καὶ Μαμωνᾷ, ἀσύμφορον ἡμῖν ἐστι. Τί γὰρ ὄφελος, ἐάν τις τὸν ὅλον κόσμον κερδήσῃ τὴν δὲ ψυχὴν ζημιωθῇ; ἐστι, δὲ οὗτος αἰὼν καὶ ὁ μέλλων δύο ἐχθροὶ . . . οὐ δυνάμεθα τῶν δύο φίλοι εἶναι.

μνήσητε εἰς τὴν αὔριον· ἡ γὰρ αὔριον μεριμνήσει ἑαυτῆς· ἀρκετὸν τῇ ἡμέρᾳ ἡ κακία αὐτῆς.

VII. (50/II) [1] [a] Μὴ κρίνετε, ἵνα μὴ κριθῆτε. [2] ἐν ᾧ γὰρ κρίματι κρίνετε, κριθήσεσθε· καὶ ἐν ᾧ μέτρῳ μετρεῖτε μετρηθήσεται ὑμῖν. (51/V) [3] [b] Τί δὲ βλέπεις τὸ κάρφος τὸ ἐν τῷ ὀφθαλμῷ τοῦ ἀδελφοῦ σου, τὴν δὲ ἐν τῷ σῷ ὀφθαλμῷ δοκὸν οὐ κατανοεῖς; [4] ἢ πῶς ἐρεῖς τῷ ἀδελφῷ σου, Ἄφες ἐκβάλω τὸ κάρφος ἀπὸ τοῦ ὀφθαλμοῦ σου· καὶ ἰδοὺ, ἡ δοκὸς ἐν τῷ ὀφθαλμῷ σου; [5] ὑποκριτά· ἔκβαλε πρῶτον τὴν δοκὸν ἐκ τοῦ ὀφθαλμοῦ σου, καὶ τότε διαβλέψεις ἐκβαλεῖν τὸ κάρφος ἐκ τοῦ ὀφθαλμοῦ τοῦ ἀδελφοῦ σου. (52/X) [6] Μὴ δῶτε τὸ ἅγιον τοῖς κυσί· μηδὲ βάλητε τοὺς μαργαρίτας ὑμῶν ἔμπροσθεν τῶν χοίρων· μήποτε καταπατήσωσιν αὐτοὺς ἐν τοῖς ποσὶν αὐτῶν, καὶ στραφέντες ῥήξωσιν ὑμᾶς. (53/V) [7] [c] Αἰτεῖτε, καὶ δοθήσεται ὑμῖν· ζητεῖτε, καὶ εὑρήσετε· κρούετε, καὶ ἀνοιγήσεται ὑμῖν, [8] πᾶς γὰρ ὁ αἰτῶν λαμβάνει, καὶ ὁ ζητῶν εὑρίσκει, καὶ τῷ κρούοντι ἀνοιγήσεται. [9] [d] ἢ τίς ἐστιν ἐξ ὑμῶν ἄνθρωπος, ὃν ἐὰν αἰτήσῃ ὁ υἱὸς αὐτοῦ ἄρτον, μὴ λίθον ἐπιδώσει αὐτῷ; [10] καὶ ἐὰν ἰχθὺν αἰτήσῃ, μὴ ὄφιν ἐπιδώσει αὐτῷ; [11] [e] εἰ οὖν ὑμεῖς, πονηροὶ ὄντες, οἴδατε δόματα ἀγαθὰ διδόναι τοῖς τέκνοις ὑμῶν, πόσῳ μᾶλλον ὁ πατὴρ ὑμῶν ὁ ἐν τοῖς οὐρανοῖς δώσει ἀγαθὰ τοῖς αἰτοῦσιν αὐτόν. (54/V) [12] [f] Πάντα οὖν ὅσα ἂν θέλητε ἵνα ποιῶσιν ὑμῖν οἱ ἄνθρωποι, οὕτω καὶ ὑμεῖς ποιεῖτε αὐτοῖς· οὗτος γάρ ἐστιν ὁ νόμος καὶ οἱ προφῆται.

(55/V) [13] [g] Εἰσέλθετε διὰ τῆς στενῆς πύλης· ὅτι πλατεῖα ἡ πύλη, καὶ εὐρύχωρος ἡ ὁδὸς ἡ ἀπάγουσα εἰς τὴν ἀπώλειαν, καὶ πολλοί εἰσιν οἱ εἰσερχόμενοι δι' αὐτῆς· [14] ὅτι στενὴ ἡ πύλη, καὶ τεθλιμμένη ἡ ὁδὸς ἡ ἀπάγουσα εἰς τὴν ζωὴν, καὶ ὀλίγοι εἰσὶν οἱ εὑρίσκοντες αὐτήν. (56/X) [15] [h] Προσέχετε δὲ ἀπὸ τῶν ψευδοπροφητῶν, οἵτινες ἔρχονται πρὸς ὑμᾶς ἐν ἐνδύμασι προβάτων, ἔσωθεν δέ εἰσι λύκοι ἅρπαγες. [16] [i] Ἀπὸ τῶν καρπῶν αὐτῶν ἐπιγνώσεσθε αὐτούς· (57/V) μήτι συλλέγουσιν ἀπὸ ἀκανθῶν σταφυλὴν, ἢ ἀπὸ τριβόλων σῦκα; (58/V) [17] [i] οὕτω πᾶν δένδρον ἀγαθὸν καρποὺς καλοὺς ποιεῖ· τὸ δὲ σαπρὸν δένδρον καρποὺς πονηροὺς ποιεῖ. [18] [k] οὐ δύναται δένδρον ἀγαθὸν καρποὺς πονηροὺς ποιεῖν, οὐδὲ

a Luke 6. 37, 38. Ps. 41. 2. Rom. 2. 1. & 14. 3, 4, 10, 13. 1 Cor. 4. 3. 4, 5. James 4. 11, 12. Mark 4 24.
b Luke 6. 41, 42.
c ch. 21. 22. Mark 11. 24. Luke 11. 9. John 14. 13. & 15. 7. & 16. 23. James 1. 5, 6. 1 John 3. 22.
d Luke 11. 11.
e Luke 11. 13.
f Luke 6. 31. Tob. 4. 16. Matt. 22. 40. Rom. 13. 8, 10. Gal. 5. 14. 1 Tim. 1. 5.
g Luke 13. 24.
h Micah 3. 5. ch. 24. 4, 5. 2 Tim. 3. 5. Acts 20. 29.
i Luke 6. 44. 2 Tim. 3. 1, seqq.
k Luke 6. 43.

---

34. μεριμνήσει ἑαυτῆς] So C, B, G, L, S, V, and other MSS.—not τὰ ἑαυτῆς, i. e. to-morrow will take care of itself; so φροντίζω with genit. Matth. G. G. § 326.

— ἡ κακία] not ἡ πονηρία, or malitia, but vexatio or ærumna,—its burden of care and sorrow. See Tertullian c. Marcion. ii. 24. Jerome, Epist. 147, and above, v. 13. Cp. Gen. xlvii. 9.

This adage is found in the Talmud Berachot, fol. 9. 2. Vorst, de Adag. N. T. p. 806.

Here it may be observed, that our Lord adopts and spiritualizes several proverbial sayings in succession, which were known to the Jews. (See on verses 2, 3. 6 of the next Chapter.) In the same manner as in the Lord's Prayer (see above, vi. 9) He adopted and spiritualized petitions from the Jewish Liturgy. He thus exemplified His own precept concerning new wine and new bottles (Matt. ix. 16, 17), and on bringing out of the storehouse things new and old (xiii. 52). In all those cases He animates the old letter with the new Spirit of His own.

CH. VII. 1. μὴ κρίνετε] Quoted by St. Polycarp, Philipp. 2, p. 507, who also cites v. 3. 10. On the meaning of this precept, see Barrow's Sermon xx. vol. i. p. 431. 456.

2. ἐν ᾧ μέτρῳ] ἐν preserves its usual sense here, in what measure, large or small, or just the contrary. On this adage, which is found in the Talmud Sota, cap. i. see Vorst, p. 801.

3. κάρφος] "Festuca, stipula, palea quæ in oculos facilè involat" (à Lapide) "opponitur δοκῷ trabi." This proverb was already familiar to the Jews. See Talmud Erachin, c. 2, and Baba Bathra, c. 2, and see next note.

6. κυσί] By κύνες St. Aug. understands 'impugnatores veritatis;' by χοῖροι, 'contemptores.' Both were among the unclean animals of the Levitical Law (Lev. xi. 1—7); on whose moral significance see W. Jones of Nayland, Zoologia Ethica, vol. ii. p. 115, ed. 1826. See also his Serm. xxix. on this text. This, like most of our Lord's proverbial sayings, appears to have been already current among the Jews. See Vorst, de Adag. N. T., p. 780, ed. Lips. 1778, cap. i. of Mischar Happeninim.—"Ne projiciatis margaritas coram porcis, et ne tradatis sapientiam ei qui ignorat præstantiam ejus."

As to our Lord's use of heathen proverbs, see on Luke v. 39. Acts xxvi. 14.

11. ὑμεῖς, πονηροί] Scripture does not commend itself to the world by speaking well of mankind; more wonder is it that Scripture has been received by men as God's word. (Cp. Beng.)

12. πάντα οὖν] οὖν is not here illative; or if so, it depends on what has preceded generally concerning moral duty, and so introduces a summary of universal application (Glass, Philol., p. 534), and corresponds to Hebr. לָכֵן (lachen), and is used in transitions, as John ix. 18. 1 Cor. xiv. 23.

— ἵνα] On this use of ἵνα see Mark vi. 25; ix. 30. Winer, p. 301. It is the νὰ of modern Greek.

— οὗτός ἐστιν ὁ νόμος καὶ οἱ προφῆται] i. e. the sum of the revealed will of God,—which among the Jews was known by the name "The Law and the Prophets." Luke xvi. 16. See Matt. xi. 13; xxii. 40.

14. στενὴ πύλη] The narrowness of the gate appears from various historical types of salvation; i. e. Lot and his daughters in Sodom; Noah and seven persons in the Flood; Caleb and Joshua in the Wilderness; and from our Lord's saying, "Many are called but few chosen" (Matt. xx. 16).

"The gate is straight; let the knowledge of its straightness stimulate our energies. And though the gate is straight, and the path narrow, yet not such is the city—the heavenly city—to which it leads," στενὴ ἡ πύλη, οὐχ ἡ πόλις. (Chrys.)

— τὴν ζωήν] Observe τὴν, the life: that which alone deserves to be called life. "Vita enim præsens non est vita, sed potius mors." (Beng.)

15. ψευδοπροφητῶν] false teachers. See on Rom. xii. 6. Titus i. 12. 1 Cor. xi. 4; xiv. 6.

16. ἀπὸ τῶν καρπῶν] i. e. from the fruits of their teaching; not from their acts alone, because acts seemingly virtuous are often nothing more than the Sheep's clothing in which the wolf wraps himself in order that he may deceive and devour the Sheep. See Bp. Sanderson, Sermon ix. § 31, on 1 Tim. iii. 16, vol. i. p. 244. "Non ex foliis neque ex floribus," says St. Bernard, ep. 107, "sed ex fructu arbor bona malave dignoscitur."

18. οὐ δύναται] Christ does not say that a good tree cannot become bad (as Jovinian and others inferred), or that man has no free agency (see St. Jerome), as the Manichæans said; but that while it is good it produces good fruits, as a consequence and proof of its good-

1 ch. 3. 10. John 15. 2, 6. Luke 3. 9. δένδρον σαπρὸν καρποὺς καλοὺς ποιεῖν. 19 [1] πᾶν δένδρον μὴ ποιοῦν καρπὸν καλὸν ἐκκόπτεται, καὶ εἰς πῦρ βάλλεται. 20 ἄραγε ἀπὸ τῶν καρπῶν αὐτῶν ἐπιγνώσεσθε αὐτούς.

m Hos. 8. 2. Jer. 7. 4. Luke 6. 46. Rom. 2. 13. James 1. 22. (59/III) 21 [m] Οὐ πᾶς ὁ λέγων μοι, Κύριε, Κύριε, εἰσελεύσεται εἰς τὴν βασιλείαν

n Luke 13. 24, 25. τῶν οὐρανῶν, ἀλλ' ὁ ποιῶν τὸ θέλημα τοῦ πατρός μου τοῦ ἐν οὐρανοῖς. (60/V) 22 [n] Πολλοί ἐροῦσί μοι ἐν ἐκείνῃ τῇ ἡμέρᾳ, Κύριε, Κύριε, οὐ τῷ σῷ ὀνόματι

o Luke 13. 27. ch. 25. 12, 41. 2 Tim. 2. 19. προεφητεύσαμεν, καὶ τῷ σῷ ὀνόματι δαιμόνια ἐξεβάλομεν, καὶ τῷ σῷ ὀνόματι δυνάμεις πολλὰς ἐποιήσαμεν; 23 [o] καὶ τότε ὁμολογήσω αὐτοῖς, ὅτι οὐδέποτε

p Luke 6. 47, 48. ἔγνων ὑμᾶς· ἀποχωρεῖτε ἀπ' ἐμοῦ οἱ ἐργαζόμενοι τὴν ἀνομίαν. (61/V) 24 [p] Πᾶς οὖν ὅστις ἀκούει μου τοὺς λόγους τούτους καὶ ποιεῖ αὐτούς, ὁμοιώσω αὐτὸν ἀνδρὶ φρονίμῳ, ὅστις ᾠκοδόμησε τὴν οἰκίαν αὐτοῦ ἐπὶ τὴν πέτραν· 25 καὶ κατέβη ἡ βροχὴ, καὶ ἦλθον οἱ ποταμοὶ, καὶ ἔπνευσαν οἱ ἄνεμοι, καὶ προσ-q Luke 6. 49. ἔπεσον τῇ οἰκίᾳ ἐκείνῃ, καὶ οὐκ ἔπεσε· τεθεμελίωτο γὰρ ἐπὶ τὴν πέτραν. 26 [q] Καὶ πᾶς ὁ ἀκούων μου τοὺς λόγους τούτους, καὶ μὴ ποιῶν αὐτούς, ὁμοιω-θήσεται ἀνδρὶ μωρῷ, ὅστις ᾠκοδόμησε τὴν οἰκίαν αὐτοῦ ἐπὶ τὴν ἄμμον· 27 καὶ κατέβη ἡ βροχὴ, καὶ ἦλθον οἱ ποταμοὶ, καὶ ἔπνευσαν οἱ ἄνεμοι· καὶ προσ-r Mark 1. 22, 27. Luke 4. 32. ἔκοψαν τῇ οἰκίᾳ ἐκείνῃ, καὶ ἔπεσε· καὶ ἦν ἡ πτῶσις αὐτῆς μεγάλη. (62/II) 28 [r] Καὶ ἐγένετο, ὅτε συνετέλεσεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς τοὺς λόγους τούτους, ἐξεπλήσσοντο οἱ ὄχλοι ἐπὶ τῇ διδαχῇ αὐτοῦ· 29 ἦν γὰρ διδάσκων αὐτοὺς ὡς ἐξουσίαν ἔχων, καὶ οὐχ ὡς οἱ Γραμματεῖς.

a Mark 1. 40. Luke 5. 12. VIII. (63/II) 1 Καταβάντι [a] δὲ αὐτῷ ἀπὸ τοῦ ὄρους, ἠκολούθησαν αὐτῷ ὄχλοι πολλοί· 2 καὶ ἰδοὺ, λεπρὸς προσελθὼν προσεκύνει αὐτῷ, λέγων, Κύριε, ἐὰν b Luke 5. 13. Mark 1. 41, 42. θέλῃς, δύνασαί με καθαρίσαι. 3 καὶ ἐκτείνας τὴν χεῖρα ἥψατο αὐτοῦ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, λέγων, Θέλω, καθαρίσθητι· καὶ εὐθέως ἐκαθαρίσθη αὐτοῦ ἡ λέπρα. 4 [b] καὶ ness, and cannot be called good, if it does not bring forth good fruit.

---

22. ἐν ἐκείνῃ τῇ ἡμέρᾳ] the great day. Mal. iii. 17. Luke x. 12; xxi. 34.

— προεφητεύσαμεν] preached. See 15. Balaam and Caiaphas prophesied. Pharaoh and Nebuchadnezzar learn the future by dreams. Judas (among the Apostles) worked miracles with a traitor's mind. Such things are permitted for a manifestation of God's power, for the conviction of sinners, and for the edification of others. (St. Jerome.) "They will say to Me." Observe, having concluded His sermon, He presents Himself as our Judge, and describes the Judgment to come. So He said to His disciples, "Rejoice not that the spirits are subject unto you, but that your names are written in heaven" (Luke x. 20). He teaches us that faith will not profit us without works, no, nor miracles. Hence St. Paul, "If I have faith so as to move mountains, and know all mysteries, but have not charity, it profiteth me nothing" (1 Cor. xiii. 2). Let us then take good heed not to work iniquity, and let us not consider ourselves disparaged because we do not work miracles now. We shall be none the worse at the day of judgment on that account, when God will not require of us miracles, but holiness. (Chrys.)

23. οὐδέ ἔγνων] as Mine.

25. ἡ βροχή] the rain. "Articulus significat pluviam non refuturam." (Beng.)

— ἐπὶ τὴν πέτραν] the Rock, as distinguished from τὴν ἄμμον (26). See above on v. 1. "Mysticè petra est Christus; unde Glossa 'Ille ædificat in Christo qui quod audit ab illo facit.'" (à Lapid.) St. Jerome, says, "Christ built His Church upon a Rock Petra (Matt. xvi. 18), and from this Petra, Peter (Petrus) derived his name. See Rom. ix. 33. 1 Pet. ii. 8. 1 Cor. x. 4. The foundation which the Apostle laid as a Master builder (1 Cor. iii. 10—16), is the one Lord Jesus CHRIST. On this solid and firm foundation the Church of Christ is built. But all doctrines of Heresy are built on the sand, which is floating and cannot be consolidated; and they are built only to fall." Cp. on Matt. xvi. 18[1].

28. καὶ ἐγένετο] This Hebraism, so often repeated by the Evangelist St. Matthew (see ix. 10; xi. 1; xiii. 53; xix. 1; xxvi. 1; cp. Vorst, p. 601), served continually to remind the Jewish and Hellenistic reader of the connexion of the Gospel History with the narrative of the Old Test. It would be difficult to find any other Books in the World where it occurs in the same manner as in the two Testaments.

29. ἦν διδάσκων] Hebraismus.

— ὡς ἐξουσίαν ἔχων] authority to teach.

— οὐχ ὡς οἱ Γραμματεῖς] There were various points of difference between Christ and the Scribes.

In the subject of teaching: Christ taught concerning grave spiritual matters; the Scribes, on frivolous trifles and superficial formalities. (See the Talmud, passim.)

Christ did what he taught. Not so the Scribes.

Christ taught with fervour and energy.

Christ confirmed his teaching by miracles.

Christ taught as the Divine Law Giver; the Scribes as doctors of the Law.

Christ in His teaching sought only the glory of God; the Scribes, that of men.

Christ gave divine grace to his hearers (if they were humble), to receive and do His Word.

Christ's doctrine was perfect; that of the Scribes erroneous and defective.

CH. VIII. 2. λεπρός] Our Lord enforces His Sermon by a Miracle; and begins with healing that disease (Leprosy) which was regarded by the Jews as almost incurable, and was specially a type of sin. Cp. Jahn, § 189, where it is shown that leprosy was infectious and hereditary.

3. ἥψατο αὐτοῦ] To show that He was above the Law, which forbad contact with leprosy (Num. v. 2. Lev. xiii. 46. Tertullian adv. Marcion. iv. 9); and to prove that He is the Source of purification even to what is most unclean, whether in body or soul. He stretched out His hand and touched the leper, to show that He is not subject to the Mosaic law, but superior to it. Elisha did not touch Naaman the leper, but conformed to the strictness of the law, and sent him to Jordan to wash. But the Lord touches the leper; and thus shows that He heals not as a servant, but a Lord; for His hand was not rendered unclean by touching the leper, but the whole body of the leper was cleansed by the touch of that holy hand. (St. Chrys.) See also on ix. 20[b].

— θέλω, καθαρίσθητι] "Volo; magna potestas." (Beng.) "Dicit 'Volo' propter Photinum" (who said that Christ was a mere man); "imperat propter Arium" (who denied His equality with the Father);

---

[1] "The rain descended. A prophecy verified in the primitive Church, bearing all the brunt of the waves and storms of the world, of People, of Tyrants, of friends, of strangers, of the Devil himself persecuting her, and venting all the hurricane of his rage upon her. She stood firm, because she was built upon a Rock. So far from being injured, she was made more glorious by the assault." (Chrys.)

[2] St. Jerome adduces here a remarkable example of error, arising from the exclusive use of the Latin Version, "Volo mundare," which many of the Latins, he informs us, then interpreted as if "mundare" were the active infinitive, instead of the passive imperative.—"I will, be thou clean." Christ says this to prove the truth of the leper's declaration.

Contrast here the mode of our Lord's working miracles with that of the Apostles. He says, "I will;" they say, "Why look ye so earnestly on us, as though by our own power or holiness we had made this man to walk?" And they ascribe the effect to Christ alone, His name, through faith in His name, hath made this man whole. Acts iii. 12—16.

λέγει αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Ὅρα μηδενὶ εἴπῃς, ἀλλ' ὕπαγε, [c] σεαυτὸν δεῖξον τῷ ἱερεῖ, καὶ προσένεγκον τὸ δῶρον ὃ προσέταξε Μωϋσῆς, εἰς μαρτύριον αὐτοῖς. c Mark 1. 44. Luke 5. 14. Lev. 14. 3, 4, 10. ch. 9. 30. & 12. 16.

(64/II) [5] [d] Εἰσελθόντι δὲ αὐτῷ εἰς Καφαρναοὺμ προσῆλθεν αὐτῷ ἑκατόνταρχος, παρακαλῶν αὐτὸν [6] καὶ λέγων· Κύριε, ὁ παῖς μου βέβληται ἐν τῇ οἰκίᾳ παραλυτικὸς, δεινῶς βασανιζόμενος. [7] καὶ λέγει αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς· Ἐγὼ ἐλθὼν θεραπεύσω αὐτόν. [8] [e] καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς ὁ ἑκατόνταρχος ἔφη, Κύριε, οὐκ εἰμὶ ἱκανὸς ἵνα μου ὑπὸ τὴν στέγην εἰσέλθῃς· ἀλλὰ μόνον εἰπὲ λόγῳ, καὶ ἰαθήσεται ὁ παῖς μου. [9] [f] καὶ γὰρ ἐγὼ ἄνθρωπός εἰμι ὑπὸ ἐξουσίαν, ἔχων ὑπ' ἐμαυτὸν στρατιώτας· καὶ λέγω τούτῳ, Πορεύθητι, καὶ πορεύεται· καὶ ἄλλῳ, Ἔρχου, καὶ ἔρχεται· καὶ τῷ δούλῳ μου, Ποίησον τοῦτο, καὶ ποιεῖ. [10] [g] Ἀκούσας δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἐθαύμασε, καὶ εἶπε τοῖς ἀκολουθοῦσιν, Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, οὐδὲ ἐν τῷ Ἰσραὴλ τοσαύτην πίστιν εὗρον. (65/V) [11] [h] Λέγω δὲ ὑμῖν, ὅτι πολλοὶ ἀπὸ ἀνατολῶν καὶ δυσμῶν ἥξουσι, καὶ ἀνακλιθήσονται μετὰ Ἀβραὰμ καὶ Ἰσαὰκ καὶ Ἰακὼβ ἐν τῇ βασιλείᾳ τῶν οὐρανῶν, [12] [i] οἱ δὲ υἱοὶ τῆς βασιλείας ἐκβληθήσονται εἰς τὸ σκότος τὸ ἐξώτερον· ἐκεῖ ἔσται ὁ κλαυθμὸς καὶ ὁ βρυγμὸς τῶν ὀδόντων. (66/V) [13] [k] Καὶ εἶπεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς τῷ ἑκατοντάρχῃ· Ὕπαγε, καὶ ὡς ἐπίστευσας γενηθήτω σοι. καὶ ἰάθη ὁ παῖς αὐτοῦ ἐν τῇ ὥρᾳ ἐκείνῃ.

d Luke 7. 1.
e Luke 7. 6, 7.
f Luke 7. 8.
g Luke 7. 9.
h Luke 13. 29. & 12. 37.
i Luke 13. 28. & 25. 30. ch. 21. 43.
k John 4. 52. Luke 7. 10.

(67/II) [14] Καὶ ἐλθὼν ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἰς τὴν οἰκίαν Πέτρου, εἶδε τὴν πενθερὰν αὐτοῦ βεβλημένην καὶ πυρέσσουσαν· [15] καὶ ἥψατο τῆς χειρὸς αὐτῆς, καὶ ἀφῆκεν αὐτὴν ὁ πυρετός· καὶ ἠγέρθη καὶ διηκόνει αὐτῷ. [16] Ὀψίας δὲ γενομένης προσήνεγκαν αὐτῷ δαιμονιζομένους πολλούς· καὶ ἐξέβαλε τὰ πνεύματα λόγῳ,

---

"tangit propter Manichæum" (who said that Christ had not human flesh, but was only a phantom). Ambrose in Luc. v. 12.

"Prima miracula," says Beng., "confestim fecit, ne videretur cum labore facere, posteaquàm auctoritatem sibi constituerat, moram interdum adhibuit salutarem."

4. μηδενὶ εἴπῃς]

To give a lesson against vain-glory.

To teach humility.

To avoid giving offence to His enemies by exciting their envy and jealousy.

To allow them time to examine calmly into the evidence of His works and claims.

To wean them from their carnal and earthly notions of the Messiah; and to teach them what the true character of the Messiah was to be, viz. one of meekness and suffering as well as of power and of glory.

Not to expose the person healed to persecution as a disciple of Christ.

But yet the miracle was to be made known in an orderly manner by an appeal to the Priests who were legally appointed to examine the criteria of the case (Levit. xiii. 2; xiv. 2; xv. 19. 21), and who might thus be satisfied that He was not at variance with the Law, but revered and obeyed it.

And since they were, for the most part, hostile to Jesus, their testimony would be of greater value; and if they were candidly disposed, they would thus be led to acknowledge Him to be what He professed to be, and what His works proved Him to be. And He would give them the opportunity of originating the acknowledgment of His Power, instead of having it forced upon them by others.

— εἰς μαρτύριον αὐτοῖς] for a testimony that thou art really cleansed; and in order that they may testify to that effect; and recognize me to be the Christ; and (adds Chrys.), "for a witness against them, if they will not believe,—which Christ foresaw would be the case; and as a witness for Me, that I have done My part that they should believe."

5. προσῆλθεν αὐτῷ ἑκ.] He came by others whom he sent. See Luke vii. 3. "Non absurdè Matthæus, per alios facto accessu Centurionis ad Dominum, compendio dicere voluit accessit ad Eum Centurio." (Aug. de Cons. Ev. i. 20, and see Chrys. here.) And it is common with Hebrew writers, especially to speak of a thing as done by him who orders others to do it. (See Kuin. and xxvii. 26.)

This Centurion at Capernaum was a figure and precursor of the Gentile World coming to Christ, and received by Him (Aug. Serm. 62),—a forerunner of the Centurion at Cæsarea, Cornelius (Acts x. 1).

6. ὁ παῖς] He does not say δοῦλος, but, as in Latin, puer, servant. See Luke vii. 3.

8. εἰπὲ λόγῳ] The centurion had a just notion of Christ's power. He did not say, Pray to God, and my servant will be healed, but speak the word only. And our Lord greatly commended him, whereas Martha, who said, "I know whatsoever thou shalt ask of God, He will give it Thee" (John xi. 22), was reproved, as having spoken amiss; and Christ thus teaches that He Himself is the Source of Blessings (Chrys.), which He could not be unless He were God.

9. ὑπὸ ἐξουσίαν] If I, who am under authority (i.e. of the 'tribunus legionis' and of the 'imperator'), command and receive ready obedience from my soldiers, how much more Thou, Who hast no superior, canst command Thy ministers (Diseases, the Elements, &c.), and they will obey Thee?

10. ἐθαύμασε] "Who," says St. Aug., lib. de Genes. c. Manich., "had inspired that faith but He Who now admires it? In wondering at it, He intimated that we ought to admire, He admires for our good, that we may imitate the Centurion's Faith. Such movements in Christ are not signs of perturbation of mind, but are exemplary and hortatory to us." See a similar expression, Mark vi. 6, ἐθαύμαζε διὰ τὴν ἀπιστίαν αὐτῶν.

— οὐδὲ ἐν τῷ Ἰσραὴλ] Christ did not enter the Centurion's house, but his servant was healed by Him, present in majesty, but absent in body. So to Israel indeed, and to them alone, He showed Himself in the Flesh; but to the Gentiles He was preached by others. And then was fulfilled the saying, "A people that I have not known shall serve Me" (Ps. xviii. 43). The Jews saw and crucified Him; the Gentiles heard and believed. (Cp. Aug. Serm. 62.)

12. οἱ υἱοὶ τ. β.] A Hebraism. Cf. on ix. 15.

— τὸ σκότος] the darkness—that which is indeed such. The righteous will be received into the glorious light of the heavenly palace, and there be refreshed at the Spiritual banquet; but the children of the kingdom, those who rely on their carnal descent from Abraham, and do not acknowledge Me to be the Son of Abraham, in whom all Nations are to be blessed, they will be excluded from the glory of the royal palace, and cast into outer darkness.

— ὁ κλαυθμὸς καὶ ὁ βρυγμός] the weeping, &c.; that which alone deserves the name; being more doleful than any other anguish,—both in duration and intensity. "In hâc vitâ dolor nondum est dolor" (Beng.). See the opposition in ἡ ζωὴ, vii. 14.

15. ἥψατο] This was on the Sabbath-day. See Mark i. 29. Luke iv. 38; and thus He taught His disciples at first privately that it was lawful to do good on the Sabbath—the people did not bring the Sick till sunset. See Mark i. 32.

— διηκόνει] By His touch He not only quenched the fever, but restored her to perfect health. This no human physician could have done. After a fever a long convalescence ensues before health returns. But in the case of Christ it was with Diseases as it was with the Sea. After a storm there is a swell before the Sea sinks into a calm. But Christ reduced the fury of the Sea by a word to perfect calm, as He did the rage of the fever to perfect health. She arose and ministered to Him, thus proving the cure and her own love to its Author. (Chrys.)

16. ὀψίας] "scl. ὥρας, [quod addit Marc. xi. 11.] γενομένης, vesperi, Marc. i. 32. addit: ὅτε ἔδυ ὁ ἥλιος, sed ἑσπέρα est Hebr. ערב, et de omni tempore pomeridiano adhibetur. Duas fuisse Hebræis vesperas, docent loci Exod. xii. 6. Levit. xxiii. 5. Matt. xiv. 15; una fuit ab horâ IX, nostrâ pomeridianâ tertiâ, usque ad horam sextam, altera ab horâ nostrâ sextâ, usque ad noctis principium, ὀψία δευτέρα, quæ etiam simpliciter ὀψία et ἑσπέρα dicebatur, et hoc quidem loco altera illa pars temporis pomeridiani intelligi debet, ut Luc. xxiv. 29, al." (Kuin.)

— πολλούς] See how, as it were, with a single word the Evangelists sail over a sea of miracles! And that it might not seem incredible καὶ πάντας τοὺς κακῶς ἔχοντας ἐθεράπευσεν· 17 ὅπως πληρωθῇ τὸ ῥηθὲν διὰ 1 Isa. 53. 4. & 53. 9. 1 Pet. 2. 24. Ἡσαΐου τοῦ προφήτου λέγοντος, [1] Αὐτὸς τὰς ἀσθενείας ἡμῶν ἔλαβε, καὶ τὰς νόσους ἐβάστασεν.

18 Ἰδὼν δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς πολλοὺς ὄχλους περὶ αὐτὸν, ἐκέλευσεν ἀπελθεῖν m Luke 9. 57, 58. εἰς τὸ πέραν. (68 V) 19 [m] Καὶ προσελθὼν εἷς γραμματεὺς, εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Διδάσκαλε, ἀκολουθήσω σοι ὅπου ἐὰν ἀπέρχῃ. 20 καὶ λέγει αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Αἱ ἀλώπεκες φωλεοὺς ἔχουσι, καὶ τὰ πετεινὰ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ κατασκηνώσεις, ὁ δὲ Υἱὸς τοῦ n Luke 9. 59, 60. ἀνθρώπου οὐκ ἔχει ποῦ τὴν κεφαλὴν κλίνῃ. 21 [n] [v] Ἕτερος δὲ τῶν μαθητῶν o 1 Kings 19. 20. αὐτοῦ εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Κύριε, [o] ἐπίτρεψόν μοι πρῶτον ἀπελθεῖν καὶ θάψαι τὸν πατέρα
μου. 22 ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς λέγει αὐτῷ, Ἀκολούθει μοι, καὶ ἄφες τοὺς νεκροὺς θάψαι p Mark 4. 37, &c. Luke 8. 23, &c. τοὺς ἑαυτῶν νεκρούς. (69 H) 23 Καὶ [p] ἐμβάντι αὐτῷ εἰς τὸ πλοῖον ἠκολούθησαν αὐτῷ οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ. 24 καὶ ἰδοὺ, σεισμὸς μέγας ἐγένετο ἐν τῇ θαλάσσῃ ὥστε τὸ πλοῖον καλύπτεσθαι ὑπὸ τῶν κυμάτων· αὐτὸς δὲ ἐκάθευδε· 25 καὶ προσελθόντες οἱ μαθηταὶ ἤγειραν αὐτὸν, λέγοντες, Κύριε, σῶσον, ἀπολλύμεθα· q Ps. 65. 7. & 89. 9. & 107. 29. 26 καὶ λέγει αὐτοῖς, Τί δειλοί ἐστε, ὀλιγόπιστοι; [q] τότε ἐγερθεὶς ἐπετίμησε that so large a number should be healed in so short a time, the Evangelist introduces the Prophet Isaiah witnessing that so it should be. (Chrys.) Thus Prophecy becomes History.

---

17. ὅπως πληρωθῇ] From this citation of Isa. liii. 4 compared with 1 Pet. ii. 24, it appears that some of the prophecies of the Old Test. have a double sense,—physical and spiritual; and that the Holy Spirit in the New Testament has enabled us to see new lights, which otherwise would be only partially discerned, in those Prophecies. Cp. Surenhus. p. 222.

— ἔλαβε—ἐβάστασεν] "Λαμβάνειν respondet Hebr. נשׂא, quod ut סבל, cui h. l. respondet βαστάζειν, non tantum notat, ferre, perferre, sed etiam depellere, auferre, tollere, ut h. l. v. 40. xv. 26. v. Exod. xxxiv. 7. Levit. x. 12. Numb. xiv. 8, ubi Alexandrini habent ἀφαιρεῖν· verbum βαστάζειν hoc modo occurrit etiam Joh. xx. 15, ubi in nonnull. codd. pro ἐβάστασας e glossemate legitur ἦρας." (Kuin.) Thus Christ is not only our Vicarious Proxy, but our all-sufficient Atonement. On αἴρων in a similar sense see on John i. 29.

19. εἷς] 'one,' 'unus e multis.'

— ἀκολουθήσω] This Scribe saw the crowds following Christ on account of His miracles, and appears to have hoped for some worldly advantage from Him. This man's temper is to be inferred not so much from his words as from our Lord's answer to them. Christ read his heart, and replied from it. You think perhaps that you will derive some worldly advantage from following Me; but do you not see that I have no resting-place, no, not even so much as the birds of the air?

Observe here generally, that we may often ascertain the disposition of those whose conversations with Christ are recorded in the Gospel, not so much from their own words as from His replies to them. He answered not their words, but their thoughts. (St. Chrys., who refers to Matt. xii. 47. John vii. 7; i. 47. Luke vii. 22.)

20. αἱ ἀλώπεκες] Our Lord would not draw any to Himself by promises of worldly ease. "Servus Christi nihil præter Christum habet," says St. Jerome, ad Heliodor. i.; and we may add "nihil avet." But, says Aug., "pauci amant Christum propter Christum."

— ὁ δὲ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου] The article ὁ denotes that He is the Son of Man κατ' ἐξοχήν, He who being above all has taken on Him man's nature—the Second Adam. A proper name (applied by Daniel vii. 13 to the Messiah. See on Matt. xvi. 13), which Christ applies to Himself (cp. Lightfoot, i. 537) when He speaks of His own Incarnation and its consequences. "Commendat nobis," says St. Aug. De Cons. Evang. ii. 1, "quid misericorditèr dignatus sit esse pro nobis; et velut mysterium commendans admirabilis incarnationis suæ, nomen hoc sæpiùs auribus nostris insinuat."

22. λέγει] So B, C; not εἶπεν. There seems to be a contrast between the εἶπεν of these persons and the λέγει of our Lord; see v. 19, 20.

— ἀκολούθει μοι] "Hoc dixit ei," says St. Ambrose (on Luke ix. 60), "cujus patrem jam sciebat mortuum." The person here described was a disciple (v. 21), one to whom Christ had already said, "Follow Me." (Luke ix. 59.) Our Lord, when He had called him, knew what would happen to his father; and our Lord, by precept and example, taught filial love and obedience (Luke ii. 51. Matt. xv. 6), and yet He had said, "Follow Me." Hence we may be sure that no duty to the parent was infringed by obeying Christ. But, as St. Ambrose says (lib. vii. in Luc. ix. 59), "Paterni funeris sepultura prohibetur, ut intelligas humana posthabenda divinis." Our Lord shows the vast importance and paramount duty of following Him immediately, alone, and with the whole heart, by contrasting with that duty, and subordinating to it, the natural desire and obligation of burying the dead (see Tobit xii. 12), and especially a dead parent[1].

The strength of Abraham's faith was tried and proved by the command to slay his son. The strength of this man's faith was tried by the answer given to his request, "Suffer me first to bury my father."

See also below, xii. 46—50, where our Lord illustrates in His own conduct to His mother what He teaches here. And see the comment of St. Augustine on Luke ix. 59; and cp. Luke xiv. 26.

— ἄφες τοὺς νεκροὺς] Suffer those who have not been called by Me, who are as yet dead (John v. 25) in trespasses and sins; who have not risen to life in Me,—suffer them to bury their dead, not My dead: for My dead live—they never die. But I am The Life; therefore follow thou Me: and "go thou and preach the Gospel" (Luke ix. 60); preach it to them who are dead, and so raise them from that which is indeed death,—raise them from the grave of the soul, instead of following others to that of the body.

23. τό] Observe τό. Cp. v. 18.—πλοῖον. "Jesus habebat scholam ambulantem." (Bengel.) This school a ship,—sometimes near shore, where the people stood; sometimes in calm, sometimes in storm,—an emblem of the Church.

24. σεισμὸς μέγας] He permitted the storm to arise to try the faith of His disciples, and in order that by quelling it He might prove His Divine power.

— ἐκάθευδε] was sleeping. He fell asleep to exercise the faith of His disciples, εἰ ἄρα ἐν πειρασμοῖς ἀκλόνητοι εἶσι (Theophyl. on Luc. viii. 23).

And to combine (as usual) a proof of His Manhood with the evidence that He was now about to give of His Godhead, so that they might never think of the one without being reminded of the other. See on John xi. 35.

He was asleep. We have a type of this action in Jonas, who slept when the others were in peril, and was awakened and rescues those who were labouring in the storm, by the mysterious action of His own self-sacrifice. (Jerome.) The Church is a ship, and bears passengers of different sorts, and is tossed by the winds and waves of this world. Christ invites all to the ship. A storm arises; the sea is agitated; those who are on board fear; Christ is awakened; He rebukes the disciples, because they have little faith, and calms the storm. Those Churches where the Word of God is not awake, are in danger of shipwreck; not that Christ sleeps, but He is slumbering in us by reason of our sleep. But where faith watches, there is no fear of wreck from the powers of this world. (St. Hilary.)

25. σῶσον] A mark of truth,—the Evangelists describe their own weaknesses. They were ambitious, &c. before Pentecost. The Holy Ghost changed their hearts. (Cp. Bengel.)

26. τί δειλοί ἐστε, ὀλιγόπιστοι] They had some faith, for they came to Christ; but it was a weak faith, for they awoke Him. They did not wait patiently on Him, relying on the power and love of Him whose disciples they were, and who had led them into the storm.

They did not yet understand that while He slept as man, yet as

---

[1] Hence Chrys. here, "You may say, was it not unnatural in a son not to bury his father? Yes; if he was absent from indifference. But Jesus forbad him to go, in order to show that nothing, not even the most important work of natural duty and affection, is so momentous as care for the kingdom of heaven; and nothing, however urgent, should cause us to be guilty of a moment's delay in providing first for that. What earthly concern could be more necessary than to bury a father? a work too which might be dispatched speedily.—And yet the answer is, 'Let the dead bury their dead. Follow thou Me.' If, then, it is not safe to spend even so little time as is requisite for the burial of a parent, to the neglect of spiritual things, how guilty shall we be if we allow slight and trivial matters to withdraw us, who are Christ's disciples, from His service! (Luke ix. 62.) But rather let us endeavour, with Christ's aid, to raise those who are spiritually dead and buried, from the death of sin to a life of righteousness, as He raised Lazarus from the tomb, then we shall be His disciples indeed."

τοῖς ἀνέμοις καὶ τῇ θαλάσσῃ, καὶ ἐγένετο γαλήνη μεγάλη. 27 οἱ δὲ ἄνθρωποι ἐθαύμασαν, λέγοντες, Ποταπός ἐστιν οὗτος, ὅτι καὶ οἱ ἄνεμοι καὶ ἡ θάλασσα ὑπακούουσιν αὐτῷ.

28 r Καὶ ἐλθόντι αὐτῷ εἰς τὸ πέραν εἰς τὴν χώραν τῶν Γεργεσηνῶν, ὑπήντησαν αὐτῷ δύο δαιμονιζόμενοι, ἐκ τῶν μνημείων ἐξερχόμενοι, χαλεποὶ λίαν, ὥστε μὴ ἰσχύειν τινὰ παρελθεῖν διὰ τῆς ὁδοῦ ἐκείνης. 29 Καὶ ἰδοὺ, ἔκραξαν λέγοντες, Τί ἡμῖν καὶ σοί, Ἰησοῦ, Υἱὲ τοῦ Θεοῦ; ἦλθες ὧδε πρὸ καιροῦ βασανίσαι ἡμᾶς; 30 ἦν δὲ μακρὰν ἀπ' αὐτῶν ἀγέλη χοίρων πολλῶν βοσκομένη· 31 οἱ δὲ δαίμονες παρεκάλουν αὐτὸν, λέγοντες, Εἰ ἐκβάλλεις ἡμᾶς, ἐπίτρεψον ἡμῖν ἀπελθεῖν εἰς τὴν ἀγέλην τῶν χοίρων. 32 καὶ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Ὑπάγετε. οἱ δὲ ἐξελθόντες ἀπῆλθον εἰς τὴν ἀγέλην τῶν χοίρων· καὶ ἰδοὺ, ὥρμησε πᾶσα ἡ ἀγέλη τῶν χοίρων κατὰ τοῦ κρημνοῦ εἰς τὴν θάλασσαν, καὶ ἀπέθανον ἐν τοῖς ὕδασιν. 33 οἱ δὲ βόσκοντες ἔφυγον, καὶ ἀπελθόντες εἰς τὴν πόλιν ἀπήγγειλαν πάντα, καὶ τὰ τῶν δαιμονιζομένων. 34 s καὶ ἰδοὺ, πᾶσα ἡ πόλις ἐξῆλθεν εἰς συνάντησιν τῷ Ἰησοῦ· καὶ ἰδόντες αὐτὸν, παρεκάλεσαν ὅπως μεταβῇ ἀπὸ τῶν ὁρίων αὐτῶν.

r Mark 5. 1, &c. Luke 8. 26, &c.

s Deut. 5. 25. 1 Kings 17. 18. Luke 5. 8. Acts 16. 39.

IX. (70 II) 1 a Καὶ ἐμβὰς εἰς τὸ πλοῖον διεπέρασε, καὶ ἦλθεν εἰς τὴν ἰδίαν πόλιν. 2 b Καὶ ἰδοὺ, προσέφερον αὐτῷ παραλυτικὸν ἐπὶ κλίνης βεβλημένον· c καὶ ἰδὼν ὁ Ἰησοῦς τὴν πίστιν αὐτῶν, εἶπε τῷ παραλυτικῷ, Θάρσει, τέκνον, ἀφέωνταί σοι αἱ ἁμαρτίαι σου. 3 καὶ ἰδοὺ, τινὲς τῶν γραμματέων εἶπον ἐν ἑαυτοῖς, Οὗτος βλασφημεῖ. 4 d καὶ ἰδὼν ὁ Ἰησοῦς τὰς ἐνθυμήσεις αὐτῶν, εἶπεν, Ἱνατί ὑμεῖς ἐνθυμεῖσθε πονηρὰ ἐν ταῖς καρδίαις ὑμῶν; 5 τί γάρ ἐστιν a ch. 4. 13.

b Mark 2. 3. Luke 5. 18.

c ch. 8. 10.

d Ps. 139. 2. ch. 12. 25. Mark 12. 15. Luke 5. 22. & 6. 8. & 9. 47. & 11. 17.

God, He neither slumbers nor sleeps. He sleeps as man, before He calms the sea as God, in order that we may believe that the one Christ is perfect man and perfect God.

Why are ye so fearful, O ye of little faith? By these words He rebukes all irregular, impatient, and irreverent ways of endeavouring to extricate ourselves from difficulties; and if we can neither row nor sail, He teaches us to sit still in quietness and confidence, and wait till He arises and calms the storm.

27. οἱ ἄνθρωποι] The sailors, not disciples. Some allege (Meyer, 184) that this is at variance with Mark v. 41. Luke viii. 25, as if the remark might not have been made by many.

28. Γεργεσηνῶν] This seems to be the true reading here[1], called Γαδαρηνῶν by St. Mark v. 1, and St. Luke viii. 26, who mention only one dæmoniac, "quia ille nobilior et famosior," says St. Aug., de Cons. Ev. ii. 24. So Chrys. These circumstantial differences (not contradictions) show independence of knowledge, and are evidences of truth. See further on Mark v. 2. Luke viii. 31.

29. τί ἡμῖν καὶ σοί] See on John ii. 4.

— πρὸ καιροῦ] i. e. before the day of Judgment. The devils believe and tremble. (James ii. 19.) As yet the Evil Spirit has great liberty and power in the world. He is called the Prince of this world; the God of this world; the Prince of the power of the air. (John xiv. 30. 2 Cor. iv. 4. Eph. ii. 2; vi. 12. 1 Pet. v. 8.)

But when the καιρὸς is come, he will be cast into the Lake of Fire (Rev. xx. 10. Matt. xxv. 41), and there βασανισθήσεται (Rev. xx. 10).

Cp. Aug. de Civ. Dei, viii. 23. Joseph Mede, Discourse iv. p. 23—25, and Luke viii. 31.

30. χοίρων] which, being unclean, it was not lawful for Jews to keep. (Lightfoot.)

31. ἐπίτρεψον] "Nec in porcorum gregem diaboli legio habuit potestatem nisi eam de Deo impetrasset; tantùm abest ut in oves Dei habeat." (Tertullian, de fugâ 2.)

32. ὥρμησε πᾶσα ἡ ἀγέλη] How great was the multitude of devils cast out from this one man by Christ, since they were able to fill this herd of swine, and drive them down into the deep! See here a visible proof of the power and fierceness of Satan and his associate fiends, who will hurry all that give entrance to them into their hearts, with furious impetuosity into the gulf of the Lake—the Lake of Fire. If the contemplation of this awful spectacle can save a single soul from everlasting death, let no one question the merciful design of this stupendous miracle, by which the devils themselves are made ministerial to the display of Christ's power, and to the publication of a warning against their own deadly designs.

34. παρεκάλεσαν ὅπως μεταβῇ] An example of servile fear. Contrast the case of the Samaritans and the consequences (John iv. 40). Fear is the beginning of wisdom (Prov. ix. 10), but perfect love casteth out fear. (1 John iv. 18.)

CH. IX. 1. τὸ πλ.] See viii. 23.

— ἰδίαν πόλιν] Capernaum. iv. 13. Mark ii. 1.

2. τὴν πίστιν αὐτῶν] As shown by the circumstances mentioned by St. Mark, ii. 3, 4. Luke v. 17—20.

— θάρσει, τέκνον, ἀφέωνται] ἀφέωνται = ἀφεῖνται. Luke vii. 47, 48. 1 John ii. 12, Thy sins have been already forgiven. The Work precedes the Word; an evidence of Love and Power in the Agent and Speaker. τέκνον, a word of condescension and love, suggesting that Our Lord saw the operation of faith in the paralytic himself, who, with his shattered frame, would not have consented to be borne to the roof, unless he had believed that Christ was able to heal him. "Mira humilitas Christi," says St. Jerome, "filium vocat, quem sacerdotes non dignabantur attingere."

3. βλασφημεῖ] i. e. usurps the prerogative of God. See below, xxvi. 65.

4. ἰδὼν ὁ Ἰησοῦς τὰς ἐνθυμήσεις] The Pharisees accused Him of blasphemy because He forgave sin, for God only can do that. But He proved Himself God; for He knew their thoughts. God alone reads the heart (Jer. xvii. 10; xx. 12); and by healing the body, He who sees the soul proves that He is able to heal the soul. By the same power as that with which I read your thoughts, I have healed his soul. (Cp. Jerome here.) And so by what was visible He establishes what was invisible. The Pharisees perhaps thought Him a deceiver, because He professed to act upon what was invisible, the soul, and did not act upon what was visible, the body. And therefore He heals the body which they could see, in order that all may know that He can heal the soul which they cannot see.

At the same time He thus teaches that the cause of disease is sin, and that when that is destroyed, the body will enjoy angelic health and beauty.

5. τί γάρ ἐστιν εὐκοπώτερον] It is easier to heal the body than the soul; and therefore I have proceeded to do what is the more difficult work of the two, i. e. to heal the soul. I have forgiven his sins. But you do not believe that I can do that. You even accuse Me of blasphemy for professing to do it; but ye are guilty of blasphemy

---

[1] It is authorized by the best MSS. testimony. Gadara is mentioned by Josephus as the principal town of Peræa, and as a Greek city (hence the swine. Bell. Jud. iv. 8, 3. Ant. xiii. 13, 3; xvii. 13), and as sixty stadia from Tiberias. (Joseph. vit. 65.) Cp. Stanley on Palestine, 373.

Gerasa is mentioned by the same writer as on the eastern frontier of Peræa, and is called a city of Arabia by Origen. (Joseph. Bell. Jud. iii. 3, 3; iv. 9, 1)

Gergesa is mentioned by Origen (in Johan. tom. iv. vol. i. 239, Lomm.) as near the Lake of Tiberias, and as the scene of the Miracle.

He speaks of the reading Γερασηνῶν as a common one in the MSS. which he had seen, and appears to prefer Γεργεσηνῶν on the ground of local tradition: and he mentions Γαδαρηνῶν as found in some few MSS.

See Bloomfield, Excursus, p. 890, for some interesting topographical details. Probably the miracle took place on the confines, between the district of Gadara and Gergesa, and some of the masters of the swine may have belonged to Gadara and some to Gergesa. The mention of both, as well as other circumstantial variations, bespeak independent knowledge in the Evangelists.

εὐκοπώτερον, εἰπεῖν, Ἀφέωνταί σου αἱ ἁμαρτίαι· ἢ εἰπεῖν, Ἔγειρε, καὶ περιπάτει; [6] ἵνα δὲ εἰδῆτε, ὅτι ἐξουσίαν ἔχει ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς ἀφιέναι ἁμαρτίας—τότε λέγει τῷ παραλυτικῷ,—Ἐγερθεὶς ἆρόν σου τὴν κλίνην, καὶ ὕπαγε εἰς τὸν οἶκόν σου. [7] καὶ ἐγερθεὶς ἀπῆλθεν εἰς τὸν οἶκον αὐτοῦ. [8] ἰδόντες δὲ οἱ ὄχλοι ἐθαύμασαν, καὶ ἐδόξασαν τὸν Θεὸν τὸν δόντα ἐξουσίαν τοιαύτην τοῖς ἀνθρώποις.

(71/II) [9] [e] Καὶ παράγων ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἐκεῖθεν, εἶδεν ἄνθρωπον καθήμενον ἐπὶ τὸ τελώνιον, Ματθαῖον λεγόμενον, καὶ λέγει αὐτῷ, Ἀκολούθει μοι. καὶ ἀναστὰς ἠκολούθησεν αὐτῷ. (72/II) [10] [f] καὶ ἐγένετο, αὐτοῦ ἀνακειμένου ἐν τῇ οἰκίᾳ, καὶ ἰδοὺ, πολλοὶ τελῶναι καὶ ἁμαρτωλοὶ ἐλθόντες συνανέκειντο τῷ Ἰησοῦ καὶ τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ. [11] καὶ ἰδόντες οἱ Φαρισαῖοι εἶπον τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ, Διατί μετὰ [g] τῶν τελωνῶν καὶ ἁμαρτωλῶν ἐσθίει ὁ διδάσκαλος ὑμῶν; (73/II) [12] ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς ἀκούσας εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, [h] Οὐ χρείαν ἔχουσιν οἱ ἰσχύοντες ἰατροῦ, ἀλλ' οἱ κακῶς ἔχοντες·—[13] πορευθέντες δὲ μάθετε τί ἐστιν, [i] Ἔλεον θέλω, καὶ οὐ θυσίαν·—οὐ γὰρ ἦλθον καλέσαι δικαίους, ἀλλὰ [k] ἁμαρτωλούς.

e Mark 2. 14. Luke 5. 27.
f Mark 2. 15, &c. Luke 5. 29, &c.
g ch. 11. 19. Luke 5. 30. & 15. 2.
h Gal. 11. 15.
i Hos. 6. 6. Micah 6. 6, 7, 8. ch. 12. 7.
k 1 Tim. 1. 15.

---

while you accuse Me of it. And therefore, ἵνα εἰδῆτε, in order that you may know that I can do it, I will do what is more easy, but is visible, i. e. give health to the body, that you may know by this outward sign that the inward act is done.

6. ἐξουσίαν ἔχει ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς] Hence St. Athanasius demonstrates the Divinity of Christ, Adv. Arian. iii. 4, p. 438. Christ forgives sins not only as God, by His Omnipotence, but as Son of Man; because He has united man's nature to His own, and in that nature has fulfilled the law, and perfected obedience, and so merited to receive all power on earth (Matt. xxviii. 18) in that nature; which power He now exercises as Mediator, and will continue to exercise, till all enemies (Satan, Sin, and all their powers and adherents) are put under His Feet. As Son of Man He ever exercises this power of forgiving sin on earth, by means of the Word and Sacraments, and by the Ministry of Reconciliation (2 Cor. v. 18, 19), and by whatever appertains to what is called "the Power of the Keys." "Per eos dimittit (Dominus) peccata," says St. Ambrose on Luke v. 20, "quibus dimittendi tribuit potestatem." See Bp. Andrewes, Sermon ix. vol. iii. p. 263. 277—279.

Besides, by saying that sins are forgiven "upon earth," our Lord reminds us that after death there is no more place for repentance and forgiveness, for then the door is shut. (Theophyl. on Luke v. 24.)

— ἐγερθεὶς ἆρόν σου τὴν κλίνην] Here was a visible sign of invisible grace. He who restored health to the body, and gave a public proof of the restoration by enabling him to carry that whereon he lay bedridden, thus proved manifestly to all that He had by His word raised him from that sick-bed of sin on which he lay, a paralytic in soul. He thus gave visible evidence of His power to work invisible cures; i. e. to give birth and health to the soul by His divine power, working in and by the means of grace. "Surge, excussâ paralysi, et ut id probes toti populo porta lectum tuum, ut jam curatus à Me portes eum, qui te paralyticum paulò antè portavit." (à Lap.)

Paralysis is regarded by Divines as a type of that spiritual state of bedridden incapacity and impotence which is called acedia (ἀκηδία), and is a proper subject of mercy and aid from others, and can only be cured by being carried and laid at the feet of Christ, Who alone can enable the soul to rise and carry its bed. Cp. Rom. vii. 24, 25 [1].

9. τελώνιον] Probably at or near Capernaum, where he collected port-duties and customs from those who traversed the lake.

— Ματθαῖον] i.q. מַתִּתְיָה (Mattiah), i. e. donum Dei, i. q. Gr. Θεόδωρος. See Mark ii. 4. See the wisdom of the Apostle. He does not disguise his former life, as a publican, but calls himself by the name which he afterwards bore (Matthew), whereas the other Evangelists veil it with another name, Levi (Mark ii. 14. Luke v. 27). (Jerome.) In a like spirit in the Apostolic catalogue he calls himself Matthew the publican,—which they do not; thus he identifies himself with the Matthew here called by Christ, and named Levi by the two other Evangelists. See on x. 3. Hence it is clear that Levi and Matthew are not (as some suppose) two different persons, but two different names of the same person. The difficulty which some have imagined in the mention of Matthew here without any note of his oneness with Levi; and in the mention of Levi by the other two Evangelists without any note of his oneness with Levi, will disappear before the moral considerations stated above, combined with the reflection that all the Gospels were dictated by one Spirit, and form one whole, of which the component parts mutually illustrate one another.

That mode of Interpretation which severs one Gospel from another can never lead to any good result.

Some Sceptics (Porphyry and Julian) object here that it was irrational for a man to rise and quit his calling immediately at the bidding of another. But many miracles had been wrought by Christ and seen by the Apostles before they believed. And the radiance and majesty of the hidden Deity beaming in our Lord's countenance might easily draw many even on the first aspect; for if there is so much power in the magnet and in amber to attract objects to them, how much more could the Lord of All draw to Himself whom He would! (Jerome.) Observe our Lord calls him from the receipt of custom, that is, from the midst of his worldly business, as He called Saul from the heat of persecution. A signal proof of divine power. (Chrys.)

10. τῇ οἰκίᾳ] St. Matthew's. Observe his modesty. He does not mention that this was his own house, and that he made a δοχὴ μεγάλη, great feast for Christ (as St. Luke relates, v. 29, cp. Mark ii. 15); whence it appears that he left much to follow Christ. But of this he says nothing.

12. οὐ χρείαν] It is not a shame, but a glory, for a Physician to be surrounded by the sick. He is not contaminated by their sickness, but heals it. Which, therefore, is the true Physician? You, or Christ? All men are morally diseased and need the Physician of Souls (see Isa. liii. 4—16); and therefore the sense of these words seems to be, "they who imagine themselves to be well, as ye Pharisees do, have no need, feel no want of, have no desire for, My healing care,—'non Me egetis;' but they who are Sick," i. e. are sensible of their sins. See note on next verse and on Luke xv. 7, οὐ χρείαν ἔχουσι μετανοίας. The words οὐ χρείαν ἔχουσιν, signifying, do not feel the want, are used precisely in this way by the LXX in Prov. xviii. 2, οὐ χρείαν ἔχει σοφίας ἰνδεὴς φρενῶν, for לֹא־יִתְאַוֶּה כְסִיל (lo yakphots), non delectatur.

13. πορευθέντες μάθετε] You have come here to teach the Law, go and learn it.

— ἔλεον] Hos. vi. 6 חֶסֶד (chesed), which you Pharisees limit to external acts, of almsgiving, to the body; but it is an affection of the heart, showing itself generally in acts of mercy and tenderness and love both to body and soul. Tisch. and Lachmann prefer ἵλεον, the neuter form.

— καὶ οὐ θυσίαν] i. e. more than sacrifice; and so that sacrifice is a vain abomination without it. A Hebrew use of the negative, in order to bring out more forcibly the need and value of the one thing, which is contrasted with, and preferred to, another good in itself, and even prescribed by God, as sacrifice was. Cp. 1 Sam. viii. 7. Prov. viii. 10. Jer. vii. 22. Joel ii. 13. John vi. 27. Luke xiv. 12. 26. Heb. viii. 11. 1 Cor. i. 17. "Comparativus sæpè ita circumscribitur, ut alterum et quidem inferius ex duobus comparatis negetur, alterum affirmetur, cui excellentia tribuenda est." See Glass. Phil. Sacra, p. 468 (lib. iii. tract. v.).

On this text, as expressive of the true genius of Christianity, see Bp. Butler's Analogy, pt. ii. chap. i., near the end.

— οὐ γὰρ ἦλθον καλέσαι δικαίους] I have not come to call those who think themselves righteous, but those who confess themselves sinners, to repentance. So σοφοὶ and συνετοὶ, those who think themselves wise. (Matt. xi. 25. Luke x. 21. 1 Cor. i. 19. See also on Luke vii. 48 [2].)

— οὐ γὰρ ἦλθον—ἁμαρτωλούς] Cited by Clem. Rom. ii. 2, thus: ὁ δὲ εἶπεν ὅτι πολλὰ τὰ τέκνα τῆς ἐρήμου (Isa. liv. 1). Ἑτέρα δὲ Γραφὴ λέγει, 'οὐ γὰρ ἦλθον—ἁμαρτωλοὺς,' whence it appears

---

[1] "Observe, that the couch of the Paralytic, which before was the proof of his sickness, was now made the proof of his cure." (Chrysolog.) The sin which once carried us when sick, is to be carried by us when restored to health, and thus it will be proved that Christ has indeed said to us, "Thy sins are forgiven thee" When the drunkard becomes an example of temperance, and the libertine becomes a pattern of holiness, he carries the bed on which he once lay; and he proves the power and love of his Saviour.

[2] It is a rule of frequent use in sacred criticism, that "opinio hominum sæpè pro re ipsâ ponitur" (Glass. Pl.il. S. p. 699, e. g.), as here, they who in their own opinion are δίκαιοι, are called δίκαιοι. Thus St. Paul, 1 Cor. i. 21, speaks of the 'foolishness of preaching,' i. e. what was accounted foolishness by men. Cp. Gal. i. 6. See also a similar use of verbs, Mark vi. 48.

14 Τότε προσέρχονται αὐτῷ οἱ μαθηταὶ Ἰωάννου, λέγοντες, [l] Διατί ἡμεῖς καὶ οἱ Φαρισαῖοι νηστεύομεν πολλά, οἱ δὲ μαθηταί σου οὐ νηστεύουσι; 15 καὶ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Μὴ δύνανται [m] οἱ υἱοὶ τοῦ νυμφῶνος πενθεῖν, ἐφ' ὅσον μετ' αὐτῶν ἐστιν ὁ νυμφίος; ἐλεύσονται δὲ ἡμέραι, ὅταν ἀπαρθῇ ἀπ' αὐτῶν ὁ νυμφίος, καὶ [n] τότε νηστεύσουσιν. 16 Οὐδεὶς δὲ ἐπιβάλλει ἐπίβλημα ῥάκους ἀγνάφου ἐπὶ ἱματίῳ παλαιῷ· αἴρει γὰρ τὸ πλήρωμα αὐτοῦ ἀπὸ τοῦ ἱματίου, καὶ χεῖρον σχίσμα γίνεται. 17 οὐδὲ βάλλουσιν οἶνον νέον εἰς ἀσκοὺς παλαιούς· εἰ δὲ μήγε, ῥήγνυνται οἱ ἀσκοί, καὶ ὁ οἶνος ἐκχεῖται, καὶ οἱ ἀσκοὶ ἀπολοῦνται· ἀλλὰ βάλλουσιν οἶνον νέον εἰς ἀσκοὺς καινοὺς, καὶ ἀμφότεροι συντηροῦνται.

14 l Mark 2. 18, &c. Luke 5. 33, &c. & 18. 12.
m John 3. 29.
n Acts 13. 2, 3. & 14. 23. 1 Cor. 7. 5.

(74/II) 18 [o] Ταῦτα αὐτοῦ λαλοῦντος αὐτοῖς, ἰδοὺ ἄρχων εἰσελθὼν προσεκύνει αὐτῷ, λέγων, Ὅτι ἡ θυγάτηρ μου ἄρτι ἐτελεύτησεν· ἀλλὰ ἐλθὼν ἐπίθες τὴν χεῖρά σου ἐπ' αὐτὴν, καὶ ζήσεται. 19 καὶ ἐγερθεὶς ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἠκολούθησεν αὐτῷ, καὶ οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ.

o Mark 5. 22, &c. Luke 8. 41, &c.

20 [p] Καὶ ἰδοὺ, γυνὴ αἱμορρόουσα δώδεκα ἔτη, προσελθοῦσα ὄπισθεν, ἥψατο τοῦ κρασπέδου τοῦ ἱματίου αὐτοῦ, 21 ἔλεγε γὰρ ἐν ἑαυτῇ, ἐὰν μόνον ἅψωμαι τοῦ ἱματίου αὐτοῦ, σωθήσομαι. 22 ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς ἐπιστραφεὶς καὶ ἰδὼν αὐτὴν, εἶπε, Θάρσει, θύγατερ· [q] ἡ πίστις σου σέσωκέ σε. καὶ ἐσώθη ἡ γυνὴ ἀπὸ τῆς ὥρας ἐκείνης. 23 [r] Καὶ ἐλθὼν ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἰς τὴν οἰκίαν τοῦ ἄρχοντος, καὶ ἰδὼν τοὺς αὐλητὰς καὶ τὸν ὄχλον θορυβούμενον, λέγει αὐτοῖς, 24 [s] Ἀναχωρεῖτε· οὐ γὰρ ἀπέθανε τὸ κοράσιον ἀλλὰ καθεύδει· καὶ κατεγέλων αὐτοῦ. 25 ὅτε δὲ ἐξεβλήθη ὁ ὄχλος, εἰσελθὼν ἐκράτησε τῆς χειρὸς αὐτῆς, καὶ ἠγέρθη τὸ κοράσιον. 26 καὶ ἐξῆλθεν ἡ φήμη αὕτη εἰς ὅλην τὴν γῆν ἐκείνην.

p Mark 5. 25. Luke 8. 43.
q Luke 7. 50. & 8. 48. & 17. 19. & 18. 42.
r Mark 5. 38. Luke 8. 51.
s Acts 20. 10.

(75/X) 27 Καὶ παράγοντι ἐκεῖθεν τῷ Ἰησοῦ ἠκολούθησαν αὐτῷ δύο τυφλοὶ, κράζοντες καὶ λέγοντες, Ἐλέησον ἡμᾶς, [t] υἱὲ Δαυίδ. 28 ἐλθόντι δὲ εἰς τὴν οἰκίαν προσῆλθον αὐτῷ οἱ τυφλοὶ, καὶ λέγει αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Πιστεύετε ὅτι δύναμαι τοῦτο ποιῆσαι; λέγουσιν αὐτῷ, Ναὶ, Κύριε. 29 τότε ἥψατο τῶν ὀφθαλμῶν αὐτῶν, λέγων, Κατὰ τὴν πίστιν ὑμῶν γενηθήτω ὑμῖν· 30 καὶ ἀνεῴχθησαν αὐτῶν οἱ ὀφθαλμοί· καὶ ἐνεβριμήσατο αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, λέγων, t ch. 15. 22. & 20. 30, 31. Mark 10. 47, 48. Luke 18. 38, 39.

---

that the writer regarded the Gospel of St. Matthew as Scripture no less than Isaiah.

14. οἱ μαθηταὶ Ἰωάννου] According to Luke v. 33 the Pharisees. Some Critics (De Wette. Meyer) have alleged that one of the two Evangelists is wrong. But Mark (ii. 18) informs us that both are right. An important lesson. What if we had a fifth Evangelist? The few seeming discrepancies in the Four would then perhaps disappear. But they are left to try our Faith. The Fifth Gospel will be the coming of Christ.

15. οἱ υἱοὶ τοῦ νυμφῶνος] בְּנֵי הַחֻפָּה (bene hachalkunnah). The Hebrew בֵּן (ben), son, is often used for a friend, inhabitant, disciple, follower, &c. So υἱοὶ βασιλείας, Matt. viii. 12; υἱοὶ τοῦ αἰῶνος τούτου, Luke xvi. 8; xx. 34; οἱ υἱοὶ ὑμῶν, Matt. xii. 27. (Cp. Zech. ix. 13, and see Vorst, de Hebr. cap. xxiv., and below, Matt. xxiii. 15, and on Luke x. 6. John xvii. 12.) Our Lord answers St. John's disciples by referring to their Master's words (John iii. 29), "He that hath the bride is the bridegroom, but the friend of the bridegroom (i. e. their Master, John) rejoiceth to hear the bridegroom's voice."

By His Incarnation the Son of God had married our nature, and espoused to Himself a Church; and as long as He was present in His body on earth the children of the bridechamber could not fast, but they must fast till He returns again in His bodily presence, and the Marriage of the Lamb and of the Bride is come (Rev. xix. 7), and then they will no more fast, but celebrate an eternal festival.

16. ῥάκους ἀγνάφου] 'panni rudis,' 'impexi,' 'impoliti,'—newly woven; and before it has been dressed and dyed by the fuller. St. Luke, v. 36. has ἐπίβλημα ἱματίου καινοῦ.

17. ἀσκοὺς παλαιούς] "utres veteres," skins. See Judges ix. 4. 13, "doliorum loco—utres veteres, Pharisæi; novi discipuli; vinum Evangelium." (Beng.) "My disciples have not yet been made new by the Holy Spirit, and I must deal with them accordingly. (John xvii. 12.) I must not commit too much to them which is not fitted to their as yet imperfect condition. He thus bequeaths a law to His own disciples. that when they make converts they should treat them with gentleness" (Chrys.) See also Jerome here.

18. ἃ ἐλσαλθών] So C, D, E, M, X, and other MSS. and Versions. Others ἐλθὼν or εἷς ἐλθών. There is a force in the preposition εἰς. Our Lord was sitting at meat in St. Matthew's house (v. 10). The ἄρχων entered the house in quest of Him; and our Lord rose up (v. 19) from table, to go with him, and heal his daughter.

20. καὶ ἰδοὺ, γυνή] See further on Mark v. 25. "Statuam hujus mulieris et Dominum eam sanantis suo ævo manisisse narrat Euseb. vii. 14." (Beng.)

— ἥψατο] According to the law of Moses (Lev. xv. 19), whoever touched a woman with an issue of blood was unclean She touches Christ to be made clean. And our Lord said, "Daughter, thy faith hath made (not will make, but hath already made) thee clean." (Jerome.) Compare the case of the leper, viii. 3.

— τοῦ κρασπέδου] the fringe. See Num. xv. 38. Christ observed that law also. (Beng.)

23. αὐλητάς] Concerning hired mourners among the Jews see Jerem. ix. 17. Eccles. xii. 5. Amos v. 16.

24. οὐ γὰρ ἀπέθανε] See Theophyl. on Luke viii 52. "He says this because He was about to awake her, as from a sleep;" for death is only a sleep when Christ calls and says "Arise." Cp. John xi. 11 [1].

25. ἠγέρθη τὸ κοράσιον] Among the numerous examples of dead persons raised to life by Christ, the following are mentioned in the Gospels:—

The daughter of Jairus; here dead, but not carried out of the house. (Cp. Mark v. 22. Luke viii. 41.)

The widow's son at Nain; dead, and being carried to the grave. (Luke vii. 11.)

Lazarus; dead, and buried. (John xi. 39.)

Lastly, Himself.

These appear to be mentioned in order to show Christ's power over death in every form; and also to show that He has provided means in His Church for reviving the soul in every stage of spiritual mortality by His Divine Virtue acting in and by those means. Cp. John v. 25. Eph. ii. 1. 5, 6. It is observable that He connects this power with His own Resurrection. (John xx. 22—24.)

30. ἐνεβριμήσατο] See Mark i. 43; xiv. 5. John xi. 33. He

[1] Surely this is far better Criticism, than that of some later Interpreters (e. g. Olshausen), who say that the damsel had only fallen into a trance, a supposition contradicted by St. Luke viii. 55, "her spirit came again." It is well said by Bengel, "non mortua est; Deo enim vivunt omnes u ch. 8. 4. & 12. 16. & 17. 9. Luke 5. 14.

u ὙΟρᾶτε, μηδεὶς γινωσκέτω. 31 οἱ δὲ ἐξελθόντες διεφήμισαν αὐτὸν ἐν ὅλῃ τῇ γῇ ἐκείνῃ.

v Luke 11. 14.

32 v Αὐτῶν δὲ ἐξερχομένων, ἰδοὺ, προσήνεγκαν αὐτῷ ἄνθρωπον κωφὸν, δαιμονιζόμενον. 33 καὶ ἐκβληθέντος τοῦ δαιμονίου, ἐλάλησεν ὁ κωφός· καὶ ἐθαύμασαν οἱ ὄχλοι, λέγοντες, Οὐδέποτε ἐφάνη οὕτως ἐν τῷ Ἰσραήλ. 34 w Οἱ δὲ Φαρισαῖοι ἔλεγον, x Ἐν τῷ ἄρχοντι τῶν δαιμονίων ἐκβάλλει τὰ δαιμόνια.

w ch. 12. 24. Mark 3. 22. Luke 11. 15.
x ch. 12. 24. Mark 3. 22. Luke 11. 15.

(76/II) 35 y Καὶ περιῆγεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς τὰς πόλεις πάσας καὶ τὰς κώμας, διδάσκων ἐν ταῖς συναγωγαῖς αὐτῶν, καὶ κηρύσσων τὸ εὐαγγέλιον τῆς βασιλείας, καὶ θεραπεύων πᾶσαν νόσον καὶ πᾶσαν μαλακίαν. (77/VI) 36 z Ἰδὼν δὲ τοὺς ὄχλους ἐσπλαγχνίσθη περὶ αὐτῶν, ὅτι ἦσαν ἐσκυλμένοι καὶ ἐρριμμένοι, ὡσεὶ πρόβατα μὴ ἔχοντα ποιμένα. (78/V) 37 zz Τότε λέγει τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ, Ὁ μὲν θερισμὸς πολὺς, οἱ δὲ ἐργάται ὀλίγοι· 38 δεήθητε οὖν τοῦ κυρίου τοῦ θερισμοῦ ὅπως ἐκβάλῃ ἐργάτας εἰς τὸν θερισμὸν αὐτοῦ.

y Mark 6. 6. Luke 13. 22. ch. 4. 23.
z Mark 6. 34. Num. 27. 17. 1 Kings 22. 17, 19. Zech. 10. 2.
zz Luke 10. 2. John 4. 35. Ps. 68. 11. 2 Thess. 3. 1.

X. (79/II) 1 a Καὶ προσκαλεσάμενος τοὺς δώδεκα μαθητὰς αὐτοῦ, ἔδωκεν αὐτοῖς ἐξουσίαν πνευμάτων ἀκαθάρτων, ὥστε ἐκβάλλειν αὐτὰ, καὶ θεραπεύειν πᾶσαν νόσον καὶ πᾶσαν μαλακίαν. (80/II) 2 b Τῶν δὲ δώδεκα ἀποστόλων τὰ ὀνόματά ἐστι ταῦτα· πρῶτος Σίμων ὁ λεγόμενος Πέτρος, καὶ Ἀνδρέας ὁ ἀδελφὸς αὐτοῦ· 3 Ἰάκωβος ὁ τοῦ Ζεβεδαίου, καὶ Ἰωάννης ὁ ἀδελφὸς αὐτοῦ· Φίλιππος, καὶ Βαρθολομαῖος· Θωμᾶς καὶ Ματθαῖος ὁ τελώνης· Ἰάκωβος ὁ τοῦ Ἀλφαίου, a Mark 3. 13, 14. Luke 6. 12. & 9. 1.

b Luke 6. 14. John 1. 42. Mark 3. 16, 17. Acts 1. 13.

---

charged them with rebuke, because they had low notions of the Messiah's Kingdom, and thought that He would aspire to worldly fame and glory. See on viii 4.

31. οἱ δὲ ἐξελθόντες διεφήμισαν] Glory is not to be obtained by seeking for it, but by declining it. "Sequentem fugit, fugientem sequitur."

35. καὶ τὰς κώμας] Not only the towns but the villages, in order that men may learn not to despise what is little and lowly; and not seek only to preach the Word in large cities, but take care also to sow the seed of the Gospel in small hamlets. (Theophyl. in Mark v. 16.)

36. ἐσπλαγχνίσθη] σπλάγχνα is the word by which the LXX render רַחֲמִים (rachamim), misericordia, Prov. xii. 10, which is connected with רֶחֶם (venter), whence probably the word σπλάγχνα was suggested to the LXX. Cp. Gen. xliii. 30. 1 Kings iii. 26; and see the excellent remarks of Vorstius, de Hebr. N. T., p. 35—37.

This use of σπλαγχνίζομαι and σπλάγχνα is limited to the LXX and N. T. It bespeaks connexion between them, and separation from other compositions. Singular intimations of Mercy may well have a language of their own.

37. θερισμὸς] By the word harvest He connects the Gospel with the Law, which was the seed-time. An argument against the Marcionite and Manichæan, who would sever the one from the other, and set the one against the other. See John iv. 38.

38. δεήθητε] "Vide quanti sint preces!" (Beng.)

— ἐκβάλῃ] As the Hebrew שָׁלַח and גָּרַשׁ not only signifies ejicere but emittere. See Matt. xiii. 52. Mark i. 12. John x. 4. Luke x. 35. Matt x. 34, βαλεῖν εἰρήνην: but perhaps there may be some reference to the divine impulse which constrains men unwilling and unable of themselves to labour in so great a work, and makes them feel and say Væ mihi si non evangelizavero! (1 Cor. ix. 6)

CH. X. 1. ἔδωκεν αὐτοῖς] He gave. Mark the difference between Christ and all others who exercised miraculous power. Christ is the Author of it, others Recipients; He the Source, they only streams and channels of grace.

— ἐξουσίαν πνευμάτων] 'Genitivus objecti.' See on Luke vi. 12.

2. δώδεκα ἀποστόλων] See the Lists in Mark iii. 16. Luke vi. 14; and cp. on Acts i. 13. The number Twelve (3 × 4) in Scripture seems to be significant of perfection and universality[1]; and the Twelve Apostles were regarded by the ancient Church as typified by the Twelve Sons of Israel (cp. Matt. xix. 28, and Maldonat. here), the Twelve wells at Elim. (Exod. xv. 26. See St. Jerome, xlii.), and perhaps by the Twelve Stones of the Urim and Thummim on the breastplate of the High Priest, the type of Christ (Exod. xxviii. 15—21); the Twelve Loaves of shew-bread; the Twelve 'Exploratores' of the promised land, the type of heaven; the Twelve Stones taken from the bed of Jordan[2]. They seem also to be represented by the Twelve Stars in the crown of the Woman in the Wilderness, the Church on Earth (Rev. xii. 1), as well as by the Twelve Foundations[3] of the Church glorified. (Rev. xxi. 14. See Eph. ii. 20.)

These types of the Apostolic body are irreconcileable with the notion of a Supremacy in any one of the number. See on v. 2, and xvi. 18.

— ἀποστόλων] ἀπόστολος is used by the LXX for the Hebrew שָׁלִיחַ (shelwah), (Lightfoot), which does not signify a messenger simply, but one who executes the office of him by whom he is sent.

— πρῶτος Σίμων] St. Peter is always first in all the catalogues of the Apostles; as Judas is always last; and (says Aug.) "As Stephen was first among the Deacons." (See on Acts vi. 5.)

Cp. Gen. xlvi. 8, πρωτότοκος Ῥουβήν.—The twelve Apostles are the twelve Patriarchs of the Spiritual Israel, and the relation of St. Peter to the other Apostles appears to be similar to that of Reuben to his brethren: a relation of primacy, not of supremacy. He was "primus inter pares, non summus supra inferiores."

Suppose, for argument's sake, that this privilege of primacy was to descend to the successors of St. Peter; and suppose also that the Bishops of Rome are St. Peter's successors,—yet, as Reuben the first-born was deprived of his birthright because he went up to his father's bed (Gen. xlix. 3. 1 Chron. v. 1), so, if the Bishop of Rome puts himself in the place of Christ, as if he were husband[4] of Christ's Spouse the Church, he forfeits whatever privilege may belong to him on the ground of his supposed succession to St. Peter.

Christ calls Judas, the last of the Apostles, 'the Son of perdition' (John xvii. 12). And there is a Power which sits in the Christian Church, and is called in Scripture 'the Son of Perdition' (2 Thess. ii. 2—4). And if he who calls himself the Successor of St. Peter, the first of the Apostles, imitates that Power, then it may be that in him may be verified the saying, "he that exalteth himself shall be abased;" "and many that are first shall be last;" and he that claims to be Peter may prove to be Judas.

3. Βαρθολομαῖος] from בַּר (bar), i. q. ben, filius, and תָּלְמַי (tolmai), supposed by some to be the same as Ptolemy (see Winer, Lex. p. 140, mortui. (Luc. xx. 36.) Et puella ob resuscitationem mox futuram enumeranda erat dormientibus."

---

See therefore here, not only a miracle, but a prophecy; i. e. a twofold proof of divine power.

[1] "Hi sunt operarii," says Aug. in Psa. lix., "qui mittendi erant et quadrati orbis partes ad fidem Trinitatis vocaturi." The symbolical meaning of Numbers in Holy Scripture deserves more study and attention than it has received in recent times. "God doeth all things in number and measure and weight." (Wisdom xi. 20.) From an induction of particulars it would appear that 3 is an arithmetical Symbol of what is Divine,

,, 4 of what is Created,

3 + 4 = 7 is the union of the Two; hence signifying Rest:

a Sabbath 3 × 4 = 12, is the blending and indwelling of what is Divine with what is created: e. g. as in Israel, the people of God: and in the Heaven by Jerusalem, Rev. xxi. 14 (cp. Bähr, Symbolik i. 201, and Arnoldi here).

[2] See Bp. Pearson, On the Creed, Art. ii. p. 145. Joshua, or Jesus, the Son of Nun, begins his office at the banks of Jordan, where Christ is baptized, and enters upon the public exercise of His prophetical office. He chooseth there twelve men out of the people to carry twelve stones over with them, as our Jesus thence began to choose His twelve Apostles, those foundation stones in the Church of God, whose names are in the twelve foundations of the wall of the holy city, the new Jerusalem (Rev. xxi. 14).

[3] It is supposed by some (e. g. à Lapide) that the twelve precious stones in the High Priest's breastplate (Exod. xxviii. 15—21), are similar to those mentioned as the 12 θεμέλιοι λίθοι of the Church glorified, in Rev. xxi. 19, 20. See above, on iii. 9, and below, on xvi. 18.

[4] See Barrow, On the Pope's Supremacy, vol. iv. p. 204, "Christ is the One Spouse of the Church, which title, one would think, the Bishop of Rome might leave peculiar to our Lord, there being no Vice-husbands: yet hath he been bold ever to claim that, as may be seen in the Constitutions of Pope Gregory X., in one of their general Synods." Sext. Decret. i. tit. vi. c. 3.

καὶ Λεββαῖος ὁ ἐπικληθεὶς Θαδδαῖος· 4 [c] Σίμων ὁ Κανανίτης, καὶ Ἰούδας ὁ Ἰσκαριώτης, ὁ καὶ παραδοὺς αὐτόν. c Luke 6. 15, 16.

(ΙΑ) 5 Τούτους [d] τοὺς δώδεκα ἀπέστειλεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς, παραγγείλας αὐτοῖς, λέγων, Εἰς ὁδὸν ἐθνῶν μὴ ἀπέλθητε, καὶ εἰς πόλιν Σαμαρειτῶν μὴ εἰσέλθητε, 6 πορεύεσθε δὲ μᾶλλον πρὸς τὰ πρόβατα τὰ ἀπολωλότα οἴκου Ἰσραὴλ, (ΙΒ) 7 [e] πορευόμενοι δὲ κηρύσσετε λέγοντες, Ὅτι ἤγγικεν ἡ βασιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν. 8 Ἀσθενοῦντας θεραπεύετε, νεκροὺς ἐγείρετε, λεπροὺς καθαρίζετε, δαιμόνια ἐκβάλλετε· δωρεὰν ἐλάβετε, δωρεὰν δότε. 9 [f] Μὴ κτήσησθε χρυσὸν, μηδὲ ἄργυρον, μηδὲ χαλκὸν, εἰς τὰς ζώνας ὑμῶν· 10 μὴ πήραν εἰς ὁδὸν, μηδὲ δύο χιτῶνας, μηδὲ ὑποδήματα μηδὲ ῥάβδους· ἄξιος [g] γὰρ ὁ ἐργάτης τῆς τροφῆς αὐτοῦ ἐστιν. (ΙΓ) 11 [h] εἰς ἣν δ' ἂν πόλιν ἢ κώμην εἰσέλθητε, ἐξετάσατε τίς ἐν αὐτῇ ἄξιός ἐστι· κἀκεῖ μείνατε, ἕως ἂν ἐξέλθητε. (ΙΔ) 12 εἰσερχόμενοι δὲ εἰς τὴν οἰκίαν, ἀσπάσασθε αὐτήν. 13 [i] καὶ ἐὰν μὲν ᾖ ἡ οἰκία ἀξία, ἐλθέτω ἡ εἰρήνη ὑμῶν ἐπ' αὐτήν· [k] ἐὰν δὲ μὴ ᾖ ἀξία, ἡ εἰρήνη ὑμῶν πρὸς ὑμᾶς ἐπιστραφήτω. (ΙΕ) 14 [l] Καὶ ὃς ἐὰν μὴ δέξηται ὑμᾶς, μηδὲ ἀκούσῃ τοὺς λόγους ὑμῶν, ἐξερχόμενοι τῆς οἰκίας ἢ τῆς πόλεως ἐκείνης, [m] ἐκτινάξατε τὸν κονιορτὸν τῶν ποδῶν ὑμῶν. 15 [n] Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, [o] ἀνεκτότερον ἔσται γῇ Σοδόμων καὶ Γομόρρων ἐν ἡμέρᾳ κρίσεως, ἢ τῇ πόλει ἐκείνῃ.

d ch. 15. 24. Acts 13. 46.
e Luke 9. 2. & 10. 9. ch. 3. 2. & 4. 17.
f Mark 6. 8. Luke 9. 3. & 10. 4. & 22. 35.
g 1 Cor. 9. 7, 11. 1 Tim. 5. 18. 2 Tim. 2. 6. Rom. 15. 27. Gal. 6. 6.
h Mark 6. 10. Luke 9. 4. & 10. 8.
i Luke 10. 5.
k Ps. 35. 13.
l Mark 6. 11. Luke 9. 5. & 10. 10, 11.
m Neh. 5. 13. Acts 13. 51. & 18. 6.
n ch. 11. 25.
o ch. 11. 22, 24.

note) and Bartholomew is thought by some [1] to be the same as Nathanael of Cana in Galilee, which is Winer's opinion; and then the relation of the name Nathanael to Bartholomew would be the same as Simon to Barjona.

— Θωμᾶς] Hebr. תְּאוֹם (teom), i. q. Gr. δίδυμος, gemínus, 'a twin.' John xi. 16; xx. 24, and Lightfoot in loc.

— ὁ τελώνης] Observe St. Matthew's humility in preserving this title, which is not added to his name by the other Evangelists; and also in putting himself after St. Thomas. (Jerome.) Cp. Mark iii. 18. Luke vi. 15, and see above ix. 9.

This addition (ὁ τελώνης) is also a confirmation of the genuineness of St. Matthew's Gospel; and it is an argument that this Gospel in its Greek form is from St. Matthew himself. It well became the charity of others (e. g. of St. Mark and St. Luke) not to add this appellation (a publican) to a brother's name; and it also well became the humility and thankfulness of the Apostle and Evangelist St. Matthew, to add it, in evidence of his Master's love and condescension to himself, and as an encouragement to others.

— Ἀλφαίου] Probably the same as Κλεόπας [2], Luke xxiv. 18.

— Θαδδαῖον] Probably the same name as Judas, from הוֹדָה (hodah), laudavit [3], and by this name, as well as by his name Lebbæus (from לֵב, leb, heart), Jude, the brother of James, was distinguished from Judas the traitor. Cp. Routh, R. S. ii. 26. Dr. Mill, Diss. ii. p. 251.

4. Κανανίτης] or rather Καναναῖος, from B, C, D, L, and Vulg. Not 'Canaanite,' nor 'Cananite,' but, as St. Luke renders it, Ζηλωτὴς (Luke vi. 15), from קָנָא (kanna), 'a zealot,' cf. Ps. lxix. 9, i. e. a person zealous for the glory of God. Cf. Jerome in Caten. Aur. in Marc. iii. 18.

On the character of the ζηλωταὶ in this age, see Joseph. B. J. iv. 6, 3 (cf. Wetstein and Hammond here). If Simon was one of that class, he had much to unlearn (like Saul) in the school of Christ.

— Ἰσκαριώτης] from אִישׁ (isch, vir) and קְרִיוֹת (Keryoth) a city of Juda. Jos. xv. 25. See Glosa and Remig. on xxvi. 14.

— ὁ παραδούς] a mild word for προδούς. "Eligitur et Judas," says St. Ambrose, on Luke vi. 16, "non per imprudentiam, sed per providentiam. Quanta est veritas quam nec adversarius Minister infirmat! Christus voluit deseri, ut tuo socio desertus moderatè feras:" and to show an example of toleration, and that His Word and Sacraments "be effectual because of Christ's institution and promise, although they be ministered by evil men" (Art. xxvi.). Cf. Greg. Nazianz. p. 712, and note on Acts viii. 36, and cp. on Acts vi. 5, the case of Nicolas the Deacon.

5. τούτους τοὺς δώδεκα] Among these twelve, half were three pairs of brothers. See above iv. 18.

— ὁδὸν ἐθνῶν] Way to the Gentiles. (Meyer.) See iv. 15. It was not till after His Crucifixion by the Jews and His Resurrection, that our Lord said, 'Go and teach all nations.' He sends His Apostles first to the Jews, that they might not plead that they rejected Him because He sent His disciples to the Gentiles and Samaritans. (Jerome.)

— Σαμαρειτῶν] for the reason of this see Jerome iv. 195.

8. δωρεὰν δότε] A warning against simony. (Greg. [4] Mor. in Ev. i. 4.) "Gratia vocatur quia gratis datur." (Aug.)

9. μὴ κτήσησθε] By this charge He would thus make them free from suspicion of avarice; and He would relieve them from all worldly anxiety, and teach them to devote themselves wholly to the preaching of the Word; next He would prove to them His own power: and therefore He afterwards asked them, When I sent you without purse and scrip and shoes lacked ye any thing? (Luke xxii. 35.) For He intended to send them forth as teachers of the world, to live the life of Angels without secular distractions.

He also gave this charge in order to teach others the duty of maintaining the Ministers of the Gospel (for the labourer is worthy of his hire); and therefore maintenance is a debt due to the teachers from the taught. (Chrys.)

Hence the Apostle says, 'Let him that is taught in the word communicate unto him that teacheth, in all good things' (Gal. vi. 6); and that they who sow spiritual things to others should reap their carnal things (1 Cor. ix. 11). (Jerome.)

— χρυσὸν—χαλκόν] a climax. Not gold,—no, nor even copper.

10. μηδὲ δύο χιτῶνας] which were sometimes worn, especially by travellers,—one an upper χιτὼν, the other an under one, for warmth. Winer, R.-W. i. p. 662.

— μηδὲ ὑποδήματα] i. e. calceos; but He allows σανδάλια (Mark vi. 9), soleas, i. e. coverings merely for the sole of the foot, and fastened with ἱμάντες, or thongs across the instep. Cp. Acts xii. 8, ὑπόδησαι τὰ σανδάλιά σου.

— μηδὲ ῥάβδους] This is the reading of 12 uncial and 150 cursive MSS., and is received by Tisch. for Elz. ῥάβδον. St. Mark (vi. 8) has ἵνα μηδὲν αἴρωσιν εἰς ὁδὸν εἰ μὴ ῥάβδον μόνον. St. Luke (ix. 3) has μήτε ῥάβδους. The sense is the same in all. They are to go as they are; they are not to procure any thing: 'ne minimam quidem rem' (Aug. de Cons. Ev. ii. 30); not even so light and common a thing as a staff, which was, as it were, nothing (see Gen. xxxii. 10, "with my staff I passed over this Jordan"). They among them who have no staff are not to purchase one (μὴ κτήσησθε). They among them who have one may take it (αἴρειν), but nothing more. They are to depend on the power and love of Christ, "Who is their Rod and their Staff to comfort them" (Ps. xxiii. 4).

If all of them were to go without a ῥάβδος at all, our Lord would probably have specified the ῥάβδος particularly in the question which He afterwards put to His Apostles, "When I sent you forth," &c. See Luke xxii. 35 [5].

13. ἡ εἰρήνη ὑμῶν] Therefore Prayers and Benedictions are not in vain, though they may not take effect in behalf of those for whom they are designed; they redound to the good of him who offers them, and return with a blessing into his bosom. (Ps. xxxv. 13.)

On the use of Benedictions in the Church of God, see Num. vi. 22. Deut. xxi. 5. Luke x. 6. Hooker, V. xxv. 2; V. lxx. 1, and lxvi. 1.

15. ἀνεκτότερον] Hence it appears that there will be different degrees of punishment, as well as different degrees of bliss and glory,

[1] See R. Nelson on St. Barthol.'s Festival. Cp. Lightfoot, Hor. Hebr. p. 325. See further on, John i. 43, and Mintert, Lexicon in v.

[2] See Papias, Galland. i. p. 319; below on xii. 46. Mintert, in v. and Κλεόπας: the ת in תַּלְפַּי (Halepha) being hardened into a K, as פֶּסַח pesah, pesek, whence πάσχα, the passover. Cp. below on xii. 46, and Routh, R. S. i. 16. 207. 215. 219. 255. 260, 261. 279, 280, he is called the father of Symeon, and the brother of Joseph (Euseb. iii. 11). Mill, Diss. ii. 236, 237. Patrit. ii. p. 44. Arnoldi on xii. 47.

[3] Another derivation is from תַּד (tad, qu. Angl. teat), mamma. See Buxtorf, Lex. Talm. p. 2565, [4] Gregory there discusses the question, why in some cases the Apostles worked miracles, and in others not. Cp. 1 Tim. v. 23.

[5] A spiritual meaning, also, has been assigned to these words by some, e. g. Hilary. Take no purse. We are to have no venal affections in the discharge of our Ministerial office. Our Apostleship is not to be made a trade. Take no scrip. We must leave behind us all anxiety about worldly

(86/V) 16 p Ἰδοὺ, ἐγὼ ἀποστέλλω ὑμᾶς ὡς πρόβατα ἐν μέσῳ λύκων· γίνεσθε οὖν φρόνιμοι ὡς οἱ ὄφεις, καὶ ἀκέραιοι ὡς αἱ περιστεραί. (87/I) 17 q Προσέχετε δὲ ἀπὸ τῶν ἀνθρώπων· παραδώσουσι γὰρ ὑμᾶς εἰς συνέδρια, καὶ ἐν ταῖς συναγωγαῖς αὐτῶν μαστιγώσουσιν ὑμᾶς· 18 r καὶ ἐπὶ ἡγεμόνας δὲ καὶ βασιλεῖς ἀχθήσεσθε ἕνεκεν ἐμοῦ, εἰς μαρτύριον αὐτοῖς καὶ τοῖς ἔθνεσιν. (88/II) 19 s ὅταν δὲ παραδιδῶσιν ὑμᾶς, μὴ μεριμνήσητε πῶς ἢ τί λαλήσητε· δοθήσεται γὰρ ὑμῖν ἐν ἐκείνῃ τῇ ὥρᾳ, τί λαλήσετε. 20 t οὐ γὰρ ὑμεῖς ἐστε οἱ λαλοῦντες, ἀλλὰ τὸ Πνεῦμα τοῦ πατρὸς ὑμῶν τὸ λαλοῦν ἐν ὑμῖν. 21 u Παραδώσει δὲ ἀδελφὸς ἀδελφὸν εἰς θάνατον, καὶ πατὴρ τέκνον· καὶ ἐπαναστήσονται τέκνα ἐπὶ γονεῖς, καὶ θανατώσουσιν αὐτούς. 22 x καὶ ἔσεσθε μισούμενοι ὑπὸ πάντων διὰ τὸ ὄνομά μου· ὁ δὲ ὑπομείνας εἰς τέλος οὗτος σωθήσεται. (89/X) 23 y Ὅταν δὲ διώκωσιν ὑμᾶς ἐν τῇ πόλει ταύτῃ φεύγετε εἰς τὴν ἄλλην. ἀμὴν γὰρ λέγω ὑμῖν· οὐ μὴ τελέσητε τὰς πόλεις τοῦ Ἰσραὴλ, ἕως ἂν ἔλθῃ ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου. (90/III) 24 z Οὐκ ἔστι μαθητὴς ὑπὲρ τὸν διδάσκαλον, οὐδὲ δοῦλος ὑπὲρ τὸν κύριον αὐτοῦ. 25 a ἀρκετὸν τῷ μαθητῇ, ἵνα γένηται ὡς ὁ διδάσκαλος αὐτοῦ, καὶ ὁ δοῦλος ὡς ὁ κύριος αὐτοῦ. (91/X) Εἰ τὸν οἰκοδεσπότην Βεελζεβοὺλ ἐπεκάλεσαν, πόσῳ μᾶλλον τοὺς οἰκιακοὺς αὐτοῦ; 26 b Μὴ οὖν φοβηθῆτε αὐτούς· (92/II) οὐδὲν γάρ ἐστι κεκαλυμμένον, ὃ οὐκ ἀποκαλυφθήσεται· καὶ κρυπτὸν, ὃ οὐ γνωσθήσεται. (93/V) 27 ὃ λέγω ὑμῖν ἐν τῇ σκοτίᾳ, εἴπατε ἐν τῷ φωτί· καὶ ὃ εἰς τὸ οὖς ἀκούετε, κηρύξατε ἐπὶ τῶν δωμάτων. 28 Καὶ μὴ φοβεῖσθε ἀπὸ τῶν ἀποκτεινόντων τὸ σῶμα, τὴν δὲ ψυχὴν μὴ δυναμένων ἀποκτεῖναι· φοβήθητε δὲ μᾶλλον τὸν δυνάμενον καὶ ψυχὴν καὶ σῶμα ἀπολέσαι ἐν γεέννῃ. 29 Οὐχὶ δύο στρουθία ἀσσαρίου πωλεῖται; καὶ ἓν ἐξ αὐτῶν οὐ πεσεῖται ἐπὶ τὴν γῆν ἄνευ τοῦ Πατρὸς ὑμῶν. 30 c Ὑμῶν δὲ καὶ αἱ τρίχες τῆς κεφαλῆς πᾶσαι ἠριθμη-

p Luke 10. 3. Rom. 16. 19.
q ch. 23. 34. Heb. 22. 19.
r Mark 13. 9. Luke 12. 11. Acts 12. 1. & 25. 23.
s Luke 12. 12. & 21. 14, 15.
t Mark 13. 11. Acts 2. 4. 2 Pet. 1. 21.
u Micah 7. 5, 6. Luke 21. 16.
x Mark 13. 13. Luke 21. 17. ch. 24. 13.
y Matt. 16. 28.
z Luke 6. 40. John 13. 16. & 15. 20.
a ch. 12. 24. Mark 3. 22. Luke 11. 15.
b Mark 4. 22. Luke 8. 17. & 12. 2. 1 Pet. 3. 14.
c Luke 21. 18. Acts 27. 34. 2 Sam. 14. 11.

in another world. In the words of Hooker (App. bk. v. p. 571), "Degrees in wickedness have answerable degrees in the weight of their endless punishment." See below, xi. 22. 24, and Luke xii. 47, 48. St. Jerome c. Jovinian, and Bp. Bull's Sermon on that subject, Serm. vii. vol. i. p. 168, and see above, v. 19; below, xxiii. 15.

16. πρόβατα ἐν μ. λύκων] He thus prophesies what they will have to encounter; and He will prove his own power, when the sheep overcome the wolves, and not only are not destroyed though in the midst of wolves, but change the wolves into sheep. This they were to do, though they were but twelve in number, and though the world was filled with wolves. Let us thence learn, that as long as we are Christ's sheep we shall conquer, although many thousand wolves rage about us; but when we begin to be wolves we shall be destroyed; for we lose the aid of the Shepherd Who came not to feed the wolves, but the sheep. (Chrys.)

This is quoted from memory by Clemens R. ii. 5, who adds some words, probably from oral tradition. Λέγει ὁ Κύριος, ἔσεσθε ὡς ἀρνία ἐν μέσῳ λύκων· ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ ὁ Πέτρος αὐτῷ λέγει, ἐὰν οὖν διασπαράξωσιν οἱ λύκοι τὰ ἀρνία; εἶπεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς τῷ Πέτρῳ, Μὴ φοβεισθωσαν τὰ ἀρνία τοὺς λύκους μετὰ τὸ ἀποθανεῖν αὐτά· καὶ ὑμεῖς μὴ φοβεῖσθε τοὺς ἀποκτείνοντας ὑμᾶς καὶ μηδὲν ὑμῖν (περισσότερον, Luc. xii. 4, 5) δυναμένους ποιεῖν· ἀλλὰ φοβεῖσθε τὸν μετὰ τὸ ἀποθανεῖν ὑμᾶς ἔχοντα ἐξουσίαν ψυχῆς καὶ σώματος τοῦ βαλεῖν εἰς γέενναν πυρός.

— γίνεσθε] become.

— ὄφεις — περιστεραί] See Gen. iii. 1; viii. 8 and 11. We may learn something from the Tempter (cp. Luke xvi. 8), as well as from the Holy Spirit.

It is said that the serpent shows his wisdom in guarding his head, whatever other part of his body is struck. So let us be ready to sacrifice any thing but our faith; or, let us guard our head Christ. (Hilary, St. Jerome.) "Et Serpens deponit tunicam veterem ut novus exultet." (Aug. Serm. 64.) The innocence of the Dove is shown in likeness to the Holy Ghost. (St. Jerome.)

20. οἱ λαλοῦντες] "Similis usus articuli. Joh. vi. 63." (Beng.)

— ἀλλὰ τὸ Πνεῦμα] An argument for the Inspiration of the Writers of the New Testament. See John xiv. 26.

23. φεύγετε] It was a question discussed in early times, whether 'fuga in persecutione' was under any circumstances allowable. Tertullian (de fugâ in persecutione) argues that our Lord's permission was only temporary; but this is contravened by St. Jerome (Catal. Script. in Tertullian). See also Nazian. (Orat. i. in Julian.), and the excellent directions on the subject in St. Athanasius (Apolog. de fugâ suâ, p. 258—266; cp. à Lapide). The answer seems to be given in our Lord's words: "The hireling fleeth because he is a hireling, and careth not for the sheep." (John x. 13.) "The good shepherd giveth his life for his sheep." (John x. 11.) If a person has a flock committed to his care, and that flock will be scattered or torn by wolves, if he flies,—then he must not fly. See St. Aug. Ep. 218 ad Honorat.[1] ii. 1260—2. Cp. 2 Tim. iv. 10. Acts viii. 1; ix. 25; xiv. 6; xv. 38.

— τὴν ἄλλην] τὴν the other, the next,—showing that there will always be some other to fly to.

— πόλεις τοῦ Ἰσραήλ, ἕως ἂν ἔλθῃ]

In a primary sense, you will not have completed your missionary work in Judæa before I come to judge Jerusalem. Cp. Acts viii. 1. (Jerome.)

In a secondary and larger sense,—the Missionary Work of the Church for the spiritual Israel will not cease till the Second Coming of Christ. (Cp. Matt. xxiv. 14.)

There is a successive series of 'Comings,' all preparatory to, and consummated in, the Great Coming of Christ. Cp. on xvi. 28.

25. Βεελζεβούλ] The Deity of the Ekronites was called by them בַּעַל־זְבוּב (Baal-zebub), 'Lord of flies,' i. q. Θεὸς ἀπόμυιος or μυίαγρος (2 Kings i. 2); and this name was in ridicule and contempt changed by the Israelites to בַּעַל זְבֶל (Baal-zebel), 'Dominus stercoris,' and thence applied to the Prince of the Devils[2].

Hitherto our Lord has given precepts to His Apostles for the discharge of their duty. He now supplies motives, viz.:

His own example.

God will display the truth of the Gospel and His own glory even by means of those who persecute them.

God is more to be feared than man.

God cares for the least of his own.

And will give them reward and honour in the presence of the Holy Angels.

27. ἐπὶ τῶν δωμάτων] On the roofs,—flat (cp. Acts x. 9), used for public proclamations (Isa. xv. 3. Jer. xix. 13; xlviii. 38), and other similar purposes. See on Luke v. 19, and the passages quoted in Jahn, Archæol. § 34. Winer v. 'Dach.'

29. ἓν—οὐ πεσεῖται] You may buy two sparrows for an 'as,' and yet not one of the two falls, &c. No bodily change or chance is to be feared by those who are Christ's, since even our hairs are all numbered by the power and love of Him Who preserves us. (Hilary.) things. Take not two tunics—it is enough to have put on Christ once, and let us not seek any other robe (such as heresy or Judaism) but Him. Take no shoes; as it was said to Mo-es, "Put thy shoes from off thy f-et, for the place whereon thou standest is holy ground" (Exod. iii. 5. Acts vii. 33). Nor a staff; for Christ is our support. He is "the Rod of Jesse" (Isa. xi. 1), and His Rod and Staff comfort us (Ps. xxiii. 4).

[1] The question may be illustrated from the history of Polycarp, Martyr. iv. 18. pp. 593—600, and Archbishop Laud, whom Grotius advised to escape (see Pocock's Life, p. 83, ed. 1816).

[2] Lightfoot ad loc. Goodwin, Moses and Aaron iv. 3. Jahn, Archæol. § 408, p. 566, ed. Vienn. 1814, interprets it 'Deus habitaculi;' but see Winer in v.

μέναι εἰσί. 31 μὴ οὖν φοβηθῆτε· πολλῶν στρουθίων διαφέρετε ὑμεῖς. 32 [d] Πᾶς οὖν ὅστις ὁμολογήσει ἐν ἐμοὶ ἔμπροσθεν τῶν ἀνθρώπων, ὁμολογήσω κἀγὼ ἐν αὐτῷ ἔμπροσθεν τοῦ Πατρός μου τοῦ ἐν οὐρανοῖς. (94/II) 33 ὅστις δ' ἂν ἀρνήσηταί με ἔμπροσθεν τῶν ἀνθρώπων, ἀρνήσομαι αὐτὸν κἀγὼ ἔμπροσθεν τοῦ Πατρός μου τοῦ ἐν οὐρανοῖς. (95/V) 34 [e] Μὴ νομίσητε ὅτι ἦλθον βαλεῖν εἰρήνην ἐπὶ τὴν γῆν. οὐκ ἦλθον βαλεῖν εἰρήνην, ἀλλὰ μάχαιραν. 35 ἦλθον γὰρ διχάσαι ἄνθρωπον κατὰ τοῦ πατρὸς αὐτοῦ, καὶ θυγατέρα κατὰ τῆς μητρὸς αὐτῆς, καὶ νύμφην κατὰ τῆς πενθερᾶς αὐτῆς. 36 [f] καὶ ἐχθροὶ τοῦ ἀνθρώπου οἱ οἰκιακοὶ αὐτοῦ. (96/V) 37 [g] Ὁ φιλῶν πατέρα ἢ μητέρα ὑπὲρ ἐμὲ οὐκ ἔστι μου ἄξιος· καὶ ὁ φιλῶν υἱὸν ἢ θυγατέρα ὑπὲρ ἐμὲ οὐκ ἔστι μου ἄξιος. 38 [h] καὶ ὃς οὐ λαμβάνει τὸν σταυρὸν αὐτοῦ καὶ ἀκολουθεῖ ὀπίσω μου, οὐκ ἔστι μου ἄξιος. (97/III) 39 [i] Ὁ εὑρὼν τὴν ψυχὴν αὐτοῦ ἀπολέσει αὐτήν· καὶ ὁ ἀπολέσας τὴν ψυχὴν αὐτοῦ ἕνεκεν ἐμοῦ εὑρήσει αὐτήν. (98/I) 40 [k] Ὁ δεχόμενος ὑμᾶς ἐμὲ δέχεται· καὶ ὁ ἐμὲ δεχόμενος δέχεται τὸν ἀποστείλαντά με. (99/X) 41 [l] Ὁ δεχόμενος προφήτην εἰς ὄνομα προφήτου μισθὸν προφήτου λήψεται· καὶ ὁ δεχόμενος δίκαιον εἰς ὄνομα δικαίου μισθὸν δικαίου λήψεται. (100/VI) 42 Καὶ ὃς ἐὰν ποτίσῃ ἕνα τῶν μικρῶν τούτων ποτήριον ψυχροῦ μόνον, εἰς ὄνομα μαθητοῦ, ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, οὐ μὴ ἀπολέσῃ τὸν μισθὸν αὐτοῦ.

d Mark 8. 38. Luke 9. 26. & 12. 8. 2 Tim. 2. 12. Rev. 3. 5.
e Luke 12. 49, 51.
f Micah 7. 6. 2 Esd. 6. 24.
g Luke 14. 26.
h ch. 16. 24. Mark 8. 34. Luke 9. 23.
i ch. 16. 25. Mark 8. 35. Luke 9. 24. & 17. 33. John 12. 25. k ch. 18. 5. Luke 10. 16. John 13. 20.
l Mark 9. 41. Heb. 6. 10.

XI. (101/X) 1 Καὶ ἐγένετο [a], ὅτε ἐτέλεσεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς διατάσσων τοῖς δώδεκα μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ, μετέβη ἐκεῖθεν, τοῦ διδάσκειν καὶ κηρύσσειν ἐν ταῖς πόλεσιν αὐτῶν.

a Luke 7. 18, 19, &c.

(102/V) 2 Ὁ [b] δὲ Ἰωάννης, ἀκούσας ἐν τῷ δεσμωτηρίῳ τὰ ἔργα τοῦ Χριστοῦ, πέμψας διὰ τῶν μαθητῶν αὐτοῦ, εἶπεν αὐτῷ, 3 Σὺ εἶ ὁ [c] ἐρχόμενος, ἢ ἕτερον

b ch. 14. 3.
c Gen. 49. 10. Num 24. 17. Dan. 9. 24. John 6. 14.

32. ἐν ἐμοί] Something more than 'confess Me.' ἐν shows the ground on which the confession rests. Cp. Luke xii. 8.

34. μὴ νομίσητε ὅτι ἦλθον] This may appear paradoxical and at variance with the Angel's song (Luke ii. 14). But our Lord's design was to educate His disciples by hard sayings (Chrys.), who adds, "No one should be able to say that He had flattered them by soft speeches. He would, as it were, exaggerate the evils they might expect to see. Here was a proof of His power, in that they who heard these things from Him received Him as their Lord, and were able to convert others.

Christ was no cause of the miseries He predicted as consequent on His coming; but the wickedness of men was. And yet as the manner of Scripture is, He speaks of Himself as doing these things. So it is said, 'He gave them eyes that they should not see'" (Ezek. xii. 2. John xii. 40). Lest they should expect perfection in this world, He describes the result of His coming, viz. strifes, schisms, seditions, controversies, wars.—the consequence of man's sin and the devil's malice. See below on xviii. 7. Though the Song of the Angels was 'Peace on earth' (Luke ii. 14), yet in the same chapter we read that He was set for the fall as well as the rising of many (Luke ii. 34). His Gospel is a savour of death to some and of life to others (2 Cor. ii. 16). He is a stone of stumbling to the disobedient as well as precious to them that believe (1 Pet. ii. 7, 8). This is the condemnation, that Light is come into the world, and men loved darkness rather than light, because their deeds were evil (John iii. 19).

38. λαμβάνει τὸν σταυρὸν αὐτοῦ] αὐτοῦ, his cross, as I shall carry My cross. Every one has his own cross to carry; as criminals did when led to crucifixion.

Our Lord thus prophecies the manner of His own death. (See below, xx. 19.)

He knew what He would do and what He would suffer; and this is ever to be borne in mind in interpreting His words. They must be explained from a consideration of His Divine Prescience. He has all things before Him ἐν στιγμῇ χρόνου. Often, if viewed merely with regard to what was known only to His disciples on the occasion when they were uttered, they will seem dim and obscure. But time explained them; and the Holy Ghost enabled them to understand them (see John xii. 16); and if we forget this we shall often miss their true meaning. See on John iii. 22, and at end of that chapter; vi. 53, 54.

39. ὁ εὑρών] Not 'he that findeth,' but he that 'hath found,' or gained—i. e. he that hath made every provision for his worldly comfort, and so appears to have gained the treasure of which he was in quest—his life; and he who has sacrificed his life for Christ shall gain it for ever. εὑρίσκω is used thus Rom. iv. 1. Cp. Luke xii. 19, 20.

41. εἰς ὄνομα προφήτου] i. e. 'quâ, quatenus, et propheta.' (Vorst, Heb. 740.) But εἰς τὸ ὄνομα is more forcible than ἐν τῷ ὀνόματι. It signifies an inward movement of love to, and, as it were, identification with the prophet (see xviii. 20), and consequently a reception of his message into the soul. He who receives a minister of Christ, because he is such, and with love and adhesion to Christ, the True Prophet (as distinguished from men, who are only His instruments), shall partake in the reward promised to those "who turn many to righteousness" (Dan. xii. 3). The prophet to be received may be an unworthy person—a Judas. Our Lord, foreseeing this, says that the office is to be regarded, and not the person; and that you will not lose your reward if you receive a prophet, though he who is received is unworthy. (Jerome, Hilary. Cp. Article xxvi.) Receive him in the Name of a Prophet, not for the sake of any secular pre-eminence or any worldly consideration, but because he is a prophet, and you will receive a prophet's reward.

— ὁ δεχόμενος δίκαιον] צַדִּיק (tsadik), i.e. a good and holy man, though not a preacher of Christ. See Matt. xiii. 17, πολλοὶ προφῆται καὶ δίκαιοι [1].

42. ἵνα τῶν μικρῶν] μικρός, i. q. קָטֹן (katon), little, a disciple, as distinguished from רַב (rab), great, a master. Cp. xviii. 6. 10. The third case here mentioned—whoever does the least act of kindness to one of the least of my disciples, in My name, and because he is my disciple—shall not lose his reward.

CH. XI. 2. ἐν τῷ δεσμωτηρίῳ] Probably Machærus, on the southern frontier of Perræa. Joseph. Ant. xiv. 5. 2; xviii. 5. Bell. Jud. i. 8. 2; iii. 3. 3.

— τὰ ἔργα] the Miracles. Cp. Luke viii. 18.

— Χριστοῦ] "opportunè scribit Christi non Jesu, quia τὰ ἔργα eum esse Messiam probant." (Calmet.)

— πέμψας διὰ τῶν μαθητῶν] διὰ B, C, D, P, Z, Δ, δύο E, F, G, K, L, M, S, U, V, X (Elz.); but it was much more likely that διὰ should have been altered by copyists into δύο than δύο into διά. Many modern expositors have supposed that St. John, now a prisoner, wavered in faith, and put this question in doubt. But this notion is altogether alien from the tenour of the narrative, and irreconcileable with the words of Christ (see on v. 7), and at variance with the expositions of the Ancient Church [2]. Meyer, indeed, who adopts the modern notion (p. 216, 217), refers to Tertullian adv. Marcion. iv. 5 (cf. de Bapt. c. 10) for that opinion; but the sense of that passage is ambiguous. The following ancient testimonies may suffice.

"John does not put this question from ignorance, for he himself had proclaimed Christ to be the Lamb of God. But as our Lord asked concerning the body of Lazarus, 'Where have ye laid him?' (John xi. 34,) in order that they who answered the question might, by

[1] Greg M. (Hom. in Ev. i. 20) ingeniously illustrates this by a comparison, "etsi fructum ulmus non habet, vitam tamen cum fructibus portans hæc ipsa sua efficit quòd benè sustentat aliena."

[2] See Chrys. here. Aug. Serm. lxvi. Jerome here, and iv. 188. Hilary. Greg. hom. in Ev. vi. 2, and St. Basil, Seleuc. p. 179. Ambrose in Luc. vii

προσδοκῶμεν ; 4 καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Πορευθέντες ἀπαγγείλατε Ἰωάννῃ, ἃ ἀκούετε καὶ βλέπετε· 5 [d] τυφλοὶ ἀναβλέπουσι, καὶ χωλοὶ περιπατοῦσι· λεπροὶ καθαρίζονται, καὶ κωφοὶ ἀκούουσι· νεκροὶ ἐγείρονται, καὶ [e] πτωχοὶ εὐαγγελίζονται. 6 καὶ μακάριός ἐστιν ὃς ἐὰν μὴ [f] σκανδαλισθῇ ἐν ἐμοί. 7 [g] Τούτων δὲ πορευομένων, ἤρξατο ὁ Ἰησοῦς λέγειν τοῖς ὄχλοις περὶ Ἰωάννου, Τί ἐξήλθετε εἰς τὴν ἔρημον θεάσασθαι ; κάλαμον ὑπὸ ἀνέμου σαλευόμενον ; 8 Ἀλλὰ τί ἐξήλθετε ἰδεῖν ; ἄνθρωπον ἐν μαλακοῖς ἱματίοις ἠμφιεσμένον ; ἰδοὺ, οἱ τὰ μαλακὰ φοροῦντες ἐν τοῖς οἴκοις τῶν βασιλέων εἰσίν. 9 Ἀλλὰ τί ἐξήλθετε ἰδεῖν ; προφήτην ; ναί, λέγω ὑμῖν, καὶ [h] περισσότερον προφήτου· οὗτος γάρ ἐστι περὶ οὗ γέγραπται, (108/11) 10 [i] Ἰδοὺ, ἐγὼ ἀποστέλλω τὸν ἄγγελόν μου πρὸ προσώπου σου, ὃς κατασκευάσει d Isa. 29. 18. & 35. 4—6. & 42. 7. John 11. 23. & 3. 2. & 5. 36. & 10. 25, 38. & 14. 11.

e Ps. 22. 26. Isa. 61. 1. Luke 4. 18. James 2. 5.
f Isa. 8. 14, 15. ch. 13. 57. & 24. 10. & 26. 31. Rom. 9. 32, 33.
g Luke 7. 24.
h ch. 14. 5. & 22. 26. Luke 1. 76. & 7. 26.
i Mal. 3. 1. Mark 1. 2. Luke 7. 27. & 16. 16.

their own answer, be led to faith, so John, now about to be slain by Herod, sends his disciples to Jesus, in order that by this occasion they who were jealous of the fame of Jesus (ch. ix. 14. John iii. 26) might see His mighty works and believe in Him, and that while their Master asked the question by them, they might hear the truth for themselves." (Jerome.)[1]

John had no doubts concerning Christ. In the Baptist the Law is as it were in prison; its office is now done, and it sends its disciples to the Gospel, in order that they who do not believe, may see the proofs of its own sayings in the works of Christ. And St. John thus provides for the faith of his disciples by sending them to see Christ's miracles, by which they would be convinced that his own testimony to Christ was true, and that they were not "to look for another." (Hilary.) v. 4. Our Lord refers to His own miracles, and does not give a direct answer to the express question of St. John, but to the silent scruples of his messengers whom He warns by the words "Blessed is he who is not offended in Me." If these words had been applicable to St. John, as some imagine, how could our Lord have given such an eulogy of St. John as He immediately proceeds to do? (Jerome.)

The design of this mission and history was to show the nature of St. John's own office, viz. that it was temporary, transitory, and manuductory to Christ; and to declare also the nature of the Evidence on which Christianity rests, viz. the mighty works of Christ.

Our Lord gives the clue to this, the true interpretation of the passage, when He says to the Jews (John v. 33), "Ye sent unto John and he bare witness unto the truth; but I receive not My witness (τὴν μαρτυρίαν) from man: he was indeed that burning and shining lamp which I kindled in the world (ὁ λύχνος, not τὸ φῶς), and ye were willing for a season to rejoice in his light; but the witness which I have is a greater witness than that of John; the Works which My Father has given Me to finish,—the works themselves that I am now doing, they bear witness of Me that the Father hath sent Me." Cp. also John x. 37, 38.

We find (Luke vii. 18, 19) that St. John's disciples came to him in the prison and showed to him of Christ's miracles. It was no questioning or doubt in his own mind, but it was the announcement of these miracles which was the occasion of his sending to Jesus. And it was providentially ordered, that at the very time when John's messengers arrived, our Lord was engaged in working those miracles by which He showed His divine mission, and fulfilled the prophecies concerning the Messiah. (See Luke vii. 21 and Isaiah xxxv. 5; lxi. 1.)

Christ put it into the heart of John in prison to send to Him, and to send at this time, in order to show more clearly the true ground of belief in Christ. St. John the Baptist—the greatest of those who had been born of women—the divinely-appointed precursor and herald of Christ—comes, in the person of His disciples, to Christ—to Christ working the works of the Messiah. And now "his joy is fulfilled." He sits at Christ's feet, and hears His word. The λύχνος comes to the φῶς; the φωνὴ βοῶντος comes to the eternal Λόγος; the πρόδρομος comes to the Ὁδός; the Κήρυξ comes to the Κριτής; the twinkling of the φωσφόρος, or morning star, is lost in the full effulgence of the Divine Ἥλιος,—the Ἀνατολὴ ἀφ' ὕψους,—the risen Sun of Righteousness.

John had said of Christ, "He must increase, but I must decrease" (John iii. 30), i. e. my light must wane and vanish, being absorbed in His. Thus he finishes his mission, by bringing all men, as far as he is able, with his last breath to Christ. And thus in this history we see a Divine Essay on the Evidences of Christianity. The groundwork of our faith is in the WORKS of CHRIST. There is the foundation of our belief. Hence St. John the Evangelist says at the close of the last Gospel (John xx. 30), "Many other signs truly did Jesus in the presence of His Disciples which are not written in this book; but these are written that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that believing ye might have life through His name."

And if it be asked why we believe that the Gospels in which these works are recorded, are true, we may reply,—Because these Works are described as having been performed in the presence and on the persons of multitudes of people; and because the Gospels were published in the age and country wherein those works are affirmed in them to have been done; and because they were received as true in that and other countries by the Church of Christ, which gladly suffered persecution and death for receiving them; and because they were at length received as true by that very power which persecuted the Church for receiving them—the Empire of Rome; and because they have been so received even to this day; and because the more they are examined the more they prove themselves to be true.

The sending of his disciples to Jesus was the crowning act of St. John's ministry. He thus guarded against a schism between his own disciples and those of Jesus; he bequeathed his disciples to Christ; he had prepared the way for Christ in the desert; he now prepares it in the prison; and the happy result of this mission is intimated in those touching words (Matt. xiv. 12), "His disciples took up the body of John and buried it, and came and told Jesus."

3. ὁ ἐρχόμενος] הַבָּא (Habba), i. e. the Messiah, whose Coming was expected from the beginning. Gen. xlix. 10. See particularly Ps. cxviii. 26, "Blessed is He that cometh." Cp. Is. xxxv. 4. Mal. iii. 1. John vi. 14. Heb. x. 37. 1 John v. 6. John xi. 27. Cp. ix. 39; xii. 46. See Glass. Philol. p. 434. Vorst. de Hebr. p. 713.

— προσδοκῶμεν] may we, should we look for —? the conjunctive mood.

4. ἀπαγγείλατε] Eng. Version, 'show John again.' It is hardly necessary to remark, that 'again' does not here mean 'a second time,' but represents the preposition, ἀπὸ—ἀπαγγείλατε, 'Go back and report to him.' He does not refer them to His own words, nor to those of His disciples and the people; but to the testimony of their own senses, 'Go and report to John what ye, His disciples, hear with your own ears, and see with your own eyes.'

5. τυφλοί] Our Lord here repeats the substance, and not the precise words, of several prophecies concerning the Messiah; to which he adds a caution derived from another prophecy foretelling that to some He would be a rock of offence. (Is. viii. 14.) On this mode of dealing with prophecy see Surenhus. p. 227.

The same may be said of the prophecy of Malachi iii. 1, quoted by our Lord, v. 10.

It is to be remembered generally, that our Lord as the Great Prophet held in His hand the "Key of the House of David" (Is. xxii. 22. Rev. iii. 7); the "Key of Knowledge" (Luke xi. 52); one use of which was to unlock Prophecy; and therefore in quoting the prophecies He often inserts words, or modifies them, in order to make their sense more plain to the hearer.

7. πορευομένων] He would not praise John in the presence of John's disciples, lest he should be suspected of flattery and collusion,—He waited till their departure. See Luke vii. 24.

— τί ἐξήλθετε—θεάσασθαι ; κάλαμον] Our Lord had answered the question of St. John's disciples by an appeal to their own senses. He now replies to the thoughts of the multitude concerning John,—thoughts suggested by the sound of John's message, of which they did not penetrate the sense,—by an appeal to their own acts. He first tells them what John is not, and then what he is.

What went ye out into the wilderness to see? Not a reed, planted in the morass of a weak and watery faith, and quivering in the wind of doubt. Not a Reed—but a Rock. Not a man of soft and effeminate disposition. No; for he preached in the wilderness; and when he went into a King's house, it was not in soft clothing, but in the hairy garb of an Elias; it was not to partake of the dainties of the Court, but constantly to speak the truth, and boldly to rebuke vice; for which he is now in prison and about to die[2].

[1] St. Ambrose says well on Luke vii. 19, "Misit discipulos suos ad Christum Johannes, ut supplementum scientiæ consequantur, quia plenitudo Legis Christus est." See also Theophyl. on Luke vii. 18.

[2] It may be necessary to confirm this exposition from ancient authorities. "He replies to the thoughts of the crowd. They might imagine from St. John's message, and the words in which it was delivered, that the Baptist wavered in his faith, and that his imprisonment had shaken his constancy. Our Lord, therefore, reminds them of what John was, how he had acted, and how they themselves had behaved to him. What went ye out for to see? Not an inconstant and vacillating man. Not a reed shaken by the wind. But a man of inflexible resolution and invincible courage. What went ye out into the wilderness to see? Not a man of effeminate temper. Not a sycophant who would flatter me for hope of gain. No; his rigorous fare, his simple garb, the very place in which you found him refute this notion. If he had been such, he would have been in the court, and not in the desert. But what went ye out for to see? a τὴν ὁδόν σου ἔμπροσθέν σου. (104/V) 11 Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν· οὐκ ἐγήγερται ἐν γεννητοῖς γυναικῶν μείζων Ἰωάννου τοῦ βαπτιστοῦ· ὁ δὲ μικρότερος ἐν τῇ βασιλείᾳ τῶν οὐρανῶν μείζων αὐτοῦ ἐστιν· (105/V) 12 Ἀπὸ δὲ τῶν ἡμερῶν Ἰωάννου τοῦ βαπτιστοῦ ἕως ἄρτι ἡ βασιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν βιάζεται, καὶ βιασταὶ ἁρπάζουσιν αὐτήν. (106/X) 13 Πάντες γὰρ οἱ προφῆται καὶ ὁ νόμος ἕως Ἰωάννου προεφήτευσαν· 14 [k] καὶ, εἰ θέλετε δέξασθαι, αὐτός ἐστιν Ἠλίας ὁ μέλλων ἔρχεσθαι. 15 Ὁ ἔχων ὦτα ἀκούειν, ἀκουέτω. (107/V) 16 [l] Τίνι δὲ ὁμοιώσω τὴν γενεὰν ταύτην; Ὁμοία ἐστὶ παιδίοις ἐν ἀγοραῖς καθημένοις, καὶ προσφωνοῦσι τοῖς ἑταίροις αὐτῶν, 17 καὶ λέγουσιν, Ηὐλήσαμεν ὑμῖν, καὶ οὐκ ὠρχήσασθε· ἐθρηνήσαμεν ὑμῖν, καὶ οὐκ ἐκόψασθε. 18 ἦλθε γὰρ Ἰωάννης μήτε ἐσθίων μήτε πίνων· καὶ λέγουσι, Δαιμόνιον ἔχει. 19 ἦλθεν ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἐσθίων καὶ πίνων· καὶ λέγουσιν, Ἰδοὺ, ἄνθρωπος φάγος καὶ οἰνοπότης, τελωνῶν φίλος καὶ ἁμαρτωλῶν. Καὶ ἐδικαιώθη ἡ σοφία ἀπὸ τῶν τέκνων αὐτῆς. (108/V) 20 [m] Τότε ἤρξατο ὀνειδίζειν τὰς πόλεις, ἐν αἷς ἐγένοντο αἱ πλεῖσται δυνάμεις αὐτοῦ, ὅτι οὐ μετενόησαν. 21 Οὐαί σοι, Χοραζὶν, οὐαί σοι, Βηθσαϊδὰν, ὅτι εἰ ἐν Τύρῳ καὶ Σιδῶνι ἐγένοντο αἱ δυνάμεις αἱ γενόμεναι ἐν ὑμῖν, πάλαι k Mal. 4. 5. Luke 1. 17.

l Luke 7. 31.

m Luke 7. 35.

---

11. οὐκ ἐγήγερται—μείζων] The greatness of John as compared with those who preceded him was seen in various particulars.

He was sanctified in the womb, and there prophesied of Christ by leaping for joy.

He inaugurated the Baptism of Repentance, and he baptized Christ.

He announced the advent of the kingdom of heaven.

He proclaimed Christ already come as the Bridegroom, the Lamb of God, the future Judge.

He was typified by Elias, one of the greatest of the old Prophets.

He was "plus Prophetâ, nam Eum quem præcurrendo prophetaverat, ostendendo monstrabat." (Greg. M. l. c. Cp. à Lapide.)

— ὁ δὲ μικρότερος] He that is less than John. There seems to be a contrast between γεννητοὶ γυναικῶν and the person who is here proclaimed blessed, as born not of the flesh, but of God, and of a Virgin (see Cyril. Hierosol. Cat. 3, p. 42); and also a contrast between ὁ βαπτιστὴς, ὁ προφήτης (Luke vii. 28) and the ὁ ἐν τῇ βασιλείᾳ τῶν οὐρανῶν.

The phrase ὁ μικρότερος is understood by some of the Fathers[1] to mean Christ Himself; and this interpretation so commended is not lightly to be set aside. Cp. John i. 15. 27. 30. "He that cometh after Me (in time) is preferred before Me" (Matt. iii. 11).

And there is something in favour of this interpretation in the words οὐκ ἐγήγερται μείζων ἐν τοῖς γεννητοῖς γυναικῶν, i. e. in those who have been begotten by human fathers from women, which Christ was not.

No one has appeared among those springing from human parents greater than John the Baptist. But do not suppose that he is greater than I am. I am not γεννητὸς γυναικῶν, but Θεοῦ, and though after him in the Gospel (because he is my precursor), yet I am greater than he; and so μικρότερος, and yet elder; greater, μείζων, but less. Rom. ix. 12.

But in a secondary sense ὁ μικρότερος may be applied to every Christian who has been born of God (John i. 10; iii. 3—8), and has seen Christ fully set forth in His crucifixion and ascension, and has received the graces thence ensuing, and felt the fulness of the blessings vouchsafed by God in the βασιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν, or Christian Church; for (as Maldonat. says) "minimum maximi majus est maximo minimi."

And by reason of the greatness of these gifts, he who is less than John, is yet, by being in the Kingdom of Heaven fully opened, greater (quoad statum) than John the Baptist, who saw these things as yet future. (Cp. Matt. xiii. 16. Luke x. 23.) And see how this saying was fulfilled and explained in the graces poured ou those who had been baptized by John, and afterwards received the full outpouring of the gift of the Holy Ghost when they were baptized in the name of Christ, and were confirmed by the laying on of the hands of him who calls himself the least of the Apostles,—St. Paul (Acts xix. 6); and they became greater than him who was the greatest of the prophets, and of all who had been born of women—being born anew of the Holy Ghost.

12. βιάζεται] βιαίως κρατεῖται (Hesych.), suffers violence, and cannot be entered except by those who strive for entrance (vii. 13, 14. Luke xiii. 24). St. Ambrose, in Luc. xi. 5, "Vim facimus Domino, non compellendo, sed flendo; non provocando injuriis, sed lacrymis exorando. O beata violentia, &c. Hæc sunt arma fidei nostræ," and Greg. M. "Joannes qui pœnitentiam peccatoribus indixit (quâ vitam æternam percipiunt) quid aliud quàm regno cœlorum fieri violentiam docuit? Ergo hæreditatem justorum rapiamus per pœnitentiam," and by earnest prayer, "Hæc Deo grata vis est," Tertullian (Apol. 39). Hence our Lord says (vii. 13, 14), ἀγωνίζεσθε εἰσελθεῖν διὰ τῆς στενῆς πύλης.

13. ἕως Ἰωάννου] Cp. Luke xvi. 16, the emphatic word is they prophesied, i. e. as concerning something future: i. e. they prophesied of Me and My kingdom. But now He that was to come is come. Hence the dignity and blessedness of John, who was chosen to proclaim His coming. "Usque ad Johannem Lex; ab eo Evangelium." Cp. Athanas. de Incarn. xl. p. 65.

14. εἰ θέλετε δέξασθαι] Our Lord knew that they looked for Elias in person, and therefore He endeavours to correct their error. So the Angel had said to Zacharias, the father of the Baptist (Luke i. 17), that John would come in the power and spirit of Elias, i. e. not in his person: and St. John had denied that he was Elias (John i. 21). See below on Matt. xvii. 11, 12.

16. ὁμοία παιδίοις] A Hebrew adage (see Vorst de Adag. N. T. p. 813). By the children many interpreters understand the Baptist and our Lord. But this seems harsh. The γενεὰ itself is said to be ὁμοία παιδίοις, and the querulous murmur of the children, complaining that others would not humour them in their fickle caprices, is compared to the discontented censoriousness of that generation of the Jews, particularly of the Pharisees, who could not be pleased with any of God's dispensations, and rejected John and Christ, as they had done the Prophets before them. The sense therefore is, Ye are like a band of wayward children, who go on with their own game, at one time gay, at another grave, and give no heed to any one else, and expect that every one should conform to them. You were angry with John, because he would not dance to your piping; and, with Me, because I will not weep to your dirge. John censured your licentiousness, I your hypocrisy; you, therefore, vilify both, and "reject the good counsel of God," who has devised a variety of means for your salvation. (Luke vii. 30.)

19. καὶ (adversative, as Hebr. ו, vau, and yet) ἐδικαιώθη] δικαία ἐλογίσθη. (Euthym.)

These wayward children cannot be pleased; but all who are really wise children of God, although they may be called bales by those who think themselves wise men, approve all the methods, however various, of Divine Wisdom, and profit by them, and press into the kingdom of heaven. Cp. Luke vii. 29, οἱ τελῶναι ἐδικαίωσαν τὸν Θεὸν, βαπτισθέντες τὸ βάπτισμα Ἰωάννου.

21. Χοραζὶν] Near the Sea of Galilee, about two miles from Capernaum. (Jerome.) It is observable that the very names of these cities denounced by our Lord have perished; and that their precise site is unknown. Cp. Robinson, On Palest. iii. 294.

— Βηθσαϊδάν] i. q. "בֵּית (beyth) domus, et צַיִד (tsayada) piscatio, venatio;" the town of St. Peter, Andrew, and Philip, a very appropriate name for those who were to become "fishers of men."

Our Lord had worked πλείστας δυνάμεις in Chorazin and Bethsaida; and yet there is no mention in the Gospels of any miracle performed by Him there. How much is recorded, and yet how much is left unnoticed by them! John xxi. 25.

Chorazin and Bethsaida were on the Sea of Galilee. Hence He compares them with Tyre and Sidon,—maritime cities.

Prophet; yea, I say unto you, and more than a Prophet. And then He refers to their own Scripture for the true character and office of John." (Chrysos., Hilary, Jerome, Ambrose in Luc. viii. 23.)

The following is from S. Greg. M. Homil. p. 1454. "Arundo vento agitata Johannes non erat quem à statûs sui rectitudine nulla vocum varietas inflectebat. Discamus ergo arundines non esse. Solidemus animum inter auras linguarum positum; stet inflexibilis status mentis; non nos prospera elevent, non nos adversa perturbent, ut qui in soliditudine fidei figimur nequaquam rerum transeuntium mutabilitate moveamur."

[1] Chrys., Macar. (p. 170), Aug., Hilary, Theophyl., and also by Estius, Fritzsche, Arnoldi.

ἂν ἐν σάκκῳ καὶ σποδῷ μετενόησαν. 22 Πλὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, Τύρῳ καὶ Σιδῶνι n Lam. 4. 6. ἀνεκτότερον ἔσται ἐν ἡμέρᾳ κρίσεως, ἢ ὑμῖν. 23 n Καὶ σὺ, Καφαρναοὺμ, ἡ ἕως τοῦ οὐρανοῦ ὑψωθεῖσα, ἕως ᾅδου καταβιβασθήσῃ· (109/X) ὅτι εἰ ἐν Σοδόμοις ἐγένοντο αἱ δυνάμεις αἱ γενόμεναι ἐν σοὶ, ἔμειναν ἂν μέχρι τῆς σήμερον.
o ch. 10. 15. 24 o πλὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι γῇ Σοδόμων ἀνεκτότερον ἔσται ἐν ἡμέρᾳ κρίσεως, p Luke 10. 21. ἢ σοί. (110/V) 25 p Ἐν ἐκείνῳ τῷ καιρῷ ἀποκριθεὶς ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν, Ἐξομολογοῦμαί σοι, Πάτερ, Κύριε τοῦ οὐρανοῦ καὶ τῆς γῆς, ὅτι ἀπέκρυψας ταῦτα ἀπὸ σοφῶν καὶ συνετῶν, καὶ ἀπεκάλυψας αὐτὰ νηπίοις. 26 Ναὶ, ὁ Πατὴρ, q ch. 28. 18. John 3. 35. & 13. 3. & 17. 2. ὅτι οὕτως ἐγένετο εὐδοκία ἔμπροσθέν σου. (111/III) 27 q Πάντα μοι παρεδόθη ὑπὸ τοῦ Πατρός μου· (112/III) καὶ οὐδεὶς ἐπιγινώσκει τὸν Υἱὸν, εἰ μὴ ὁ Πατήρ· οὐδὲ τὸν Πατέρα τὶς ἐπιγινώσκει, εἰ μὴ ὁ Υἱὸς, καὶ ᾧ ἐὰν βούληται ὁ Υἱὸς ἀποκαλύψαι. (113/X) 28 Δεῦτε πρός με, πάντες οἱ κοπιῶντες καὶ πεφορτισμένοι, κἀγὼ r Zech. 9. 9. Phil. 2. 7. Jer. 6. 16. ἀναπαύσω ὑμᾶς. 29 r Ἄρατε τὸν ζυγόν μου ἐφ' ὑμᾶς, καὶ μάθετε ἀπ' ἐμοῦ· ὅτι πρᾷός εἰμι καὶ ταπεινὸς τῇ καρδίᾳ· καὶ εὑρήσετε ἀνάπαυσιν ταῖς ψυχαῖς s 1 John 5. 3. ὑμῶν· 30 s ὁ γὰρ ζυγός μου χρηστὸς, καὶ τὸ φορτίον μου ἐλαφρόν ἐστιν.

a Mark 2. 23. Luke 6. 1. Deut. 23. 25. XII. (114/II) 1 a Ἐν ἐκείνῳ τῷ καιρῷ ἐπορεύθη ὁ Ἰησοῦς τοῖς σάββασι διὰ τῶν σπορίμων· οἱ δὲ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ ἐπείνασαν, καὶ ἤρξαντο τίλλειν στάχυας καὶ ἐσθίειν. 2 Οἱ δὲ Φαρισαῖοι ἰδόντες, εἶπον αὐτῷ, Ἰδοὺ, οἱ μαθηταί σου ποιοῦσιν ὃ οὐκ ἔξεστι ποιεῖν ἐν σαββάτῳ. 3 Ὁ δὲ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Οὐκ ἀνέγνωτε b 1 Sam. 21. 6. Exod. 25. 30. & 29. 33. Lev. 24. 6, 9. τί ἐποίησε Δαυὶδ, ὅτε ἐπείνασεν, καὶ οἱ μετ' αὐτοῦ; 4 b πῶς εἰσῆλθεν εἰς τὸν οἶκον τοῦ Θεοῦ, καὶ τοὺς ἄρτους τῆς προθέσεως ἔφαγεν, οὓς οὐκ ἐξὸν ἦν αὐτῷ c Num. 28. 9. φαγεῖν, οὐδὲ τοῖς μετ' αὐτοῦ, εἰ μὴ τοῖς ἱερεῦσι μόνοις; (115/X) 5 c Ἢ οὐκ ἀνέγνωτε ἐν τῷ νόμῳ, ὅτι τοῖς σάββασιν οἱ ἱερεῖς ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ τὸ σάββατον βεβηλοῦσι, καὶ ἀναίτιοί εἰσι; 6 Λέγω δὲ ὑμῖν, ὅτι τοῦ ἱεροῦ μεῖζόν ἐστιν

— ἂν μετενόησαν] Hence, and from v. 23, it is proved, that our Lord's knowledge extended to contingencies, i. e. to what would have happened, if something else had happened. See 1 Sam. xxiii. 10—13, concerning what would have happened if David had gone to Keilah.

22. πλὴν λέγω] On this text, see the Treatise of St. Athanas. pp. 82—86.

23. Καφαρναούμ] "Beatior quum Chorazin (præsentiâ Christi), sed ex peccato infelicior; ideo cum Sodomis confertur non Tyro ὑψωθεῖσα ἕ. τ. οὐρανοῦ. Nam Dominus à cœlo ipsumque adeo cœlum se illuc habitatum contulerat." (Bengel.)

25. ἐξομολογοῦμαι] The LXX use this word for הוֹדָה (hodhah), "laudavit, celebravit, glorificavit." Cp. Luke ii. 38. Cf. 2 Sam. xxii. 50. Vorst de Hebr. p 173. Some interpreters suppose that this verse is to be interpreted as if it were ἀποκρύψας ἀπεκάλυψας, i. e. "quum abdidisses ab illis revelâsses his" (see Winer, Gr. Gr. p. 505, and compare Rom. vi. 17), but this seems to be a distortion of the words. The sense is, I acquiesce in all thy dispensations, and praise thee for them.

Our Lord does not say that God denied means of salvation to any; but He thanks Him, because He has revealed to the Apostles what He has hidden from the Pharisees (Jerome), and thus punishes pride and rewards meekness. He thus teaches the proud, that if they will become humble they will be able to see the wondrous things of God's law, and so escape the punishment due to pride, and receive the blessings promised to the meek (cp. Rom. vi. 17). He recognizes God as Supreme Ruler over all, and blesses Him in all His ways, whether of judgment or of mercy, and therefore He adds, οὕτως ἐγένετο εὐδοκία ἔμπροσθέν σου, and He thus teaches us to submit our will and judgment to God's will and judgment in all things, and to say, "O Lord God Almighty, true and righteous are thy judgments" (Rev. xvi. 7). "Great and marvellous are thy works, Lord God Almighty; just and true are thy ways, Thou King of Nations." (Rev. xv. 3; xix. 2. Rom. xi. 22.)

— σοφῶν κ. σ.] Those who think themselves wise. Cp. on ix. 13, and 1 Cor. i. 20. Aug. (Serm. lxvii. and lxviii.) "nomine sapientium et prudentium superbos intelligi ipse exposuit."

— νηπίοις] Those whom the world calls such, and who are νήπιοι τῇ κακίᾳ, 1 Cor. xiv. 20.

27. οὐδὲ τὸν Πατέρα] Hence it was argued by some, that the God who was revealed in the Old Test. before the Incarnation, is not the God of the Gospel. For a refutation of this heresy, see Iren. iv. 6, who shows that all Divine Revelations are from God, through Christ, the Word of God. (Cp. xiii. 52.)

29. τὸν ζυγόν μου] Yoke and burden. A metaphor from cattle ploughing and carrying—an emblem of Christian life—especially the ministerial. Isa. xxxii. 20. Ecclus. vi. 24, 25, and see on Acts xxvi. 14. Christ has a yoke and a burden for all, but it is very different from the yoke and burden of the Law, Acts xv. 10. Gal. v. 1, and much more does it differ from the yoke and burden of sin. Rom. vi. 17. 2 Pet. ii. 19.

On this text see Bp. Sanderson, iii. 366. The following is from Chrys. "Come all; not this man or that man, but all, all that labour and are heavy laden, all that are in distress, and in sin. Come, not that I may condemn you, but release you: come, because I desire your salvation, and I will give you rest. Come, take My yoke, and bear My burden; and be not fearful, when you hear of a yoke, for it is easy; nor of a burden, for it is light. But how is this compatible with what He said before? Straight is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth to life. (Matt. vii. 14.) Because straight it is, if we are lukewarm and listless; but if we obey Christ's precepts, and follow His example, the yoke becomes easy. And how are we to do this? By meekness. And therefore our Lord begins His divine Sermon, Blessed are the poor in Spirit (Matt. v. 2), thus you will find rest for your soul. Hence St. Paul calls his own afflictions a light burden, and (2 Cor. iv. 17. Cp. Rom. viii. 18. 35), on the other hand, no yoke so hard, no burden so heavy as that of sin." Cp. Zech. v. 7, 8.

30. ζυγὸς χρηστὸς—φορτίον ἐλαφρόν] Cp. Isa. x. 27, "The yoke shall be taken away, because of the anointing." The Fathers compare the yoke of Christ to a bird's plumage, which is indeed a weight to it, but enables it to soar to the sky. "Hæc sarcina," says Aug. Ser. xxiv. de Verb. Apostoli, "non est pondus onerati, sed ala volaturi."

CH. XII. 1. τοῖς σάββασι] On the σάββατον δευτερόπρωτον, a great Sabbath; and therefore the argument of our Lord on this occasion applies à fortiori to ordinary sabbaths.

— τίλλειν στάχυας] which it was lawful for any one to do on an ordinary day. See Deut. xxiii. 25. The Pharisees do not blame the disciples for the act, but for doing it on the Sabbath.

3. τί ἐποίησε Δαυίδ] When he fled from Saul to Abimelech, the priest at Nob, a city of the priests (1 Sam. xxi. 6).

4. ἄρτους τῆς προθέσεως] The 'duodecim panes propositionis,' a Hebraism, לֶחֶם הַמַּעֲרֶכֶת (lehem hammareceth), i. e. 'panes ordinis,' from their being set on the Holy Table in the Tabernacle before God, and sometimes called לֶחֶם הַפָּנִים (lehem happanyim), "the loaves of the faces," rendered by the LXX (Exod. xxv. 30), ἐνώπιοι, as being always "in conspectu Dei," and therefore holy (1 Sam. xxi. 6), whence incense was placed on them (Levit. xxiv. 7); an offering made afresh every Sabbath to God in the name of the twelve tribes, and an acknowledgment that they derived their sustenance in body and soul from Him whose eye was ever upon them.

5. ἱερεῖς] who ought to be most zealous for the Law. (Bengel.)

— βεβηλοῦσι] by various works necessary for the sacrificial ritual of the Temple.

ὧδε.—7 [d] Εἰ δὲ ἐγνώκειτε τί ἐστιν, "Ἔλεον θέλω καὶ οὐ θυσίαν," οὐκ ἂν κατεδικάσατε τοὺς ἀναιτίους. 8 Κύριος γάρ ἐστι τοῦ σαββάτου ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου. d Hos. 6. 6. ch. 9. 13.

(116/II) 9 [e] Καὶ μεταβὰς ἐκεῖθεν, ἦλθεν εἰς τὴν συναγωγὴν αὐτῶν. 10 [f] Καὶ ἰδοὺ, ἄνθρωπος ἦν τὴν χεῖρα ἔχων ξηράν. καὶ ἐπηρώτησαν αὐτὸν, λέγοντες εἰ ἔξεστι τοῖς σάββασι θεραπεύειν; ἵνα κατηγορήσωσιν αὐτοῦ. 11 Ὁ δὲ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Τίς ἔσται ἐξ ὑμῶν ἄνθρωπος, ὃς ἕξει πρόβατον ἕν, καὶ ἐὰν ἐμπέσῃ τοῦτο τοῖς σάββασιν εἰς βόθυνον, οὐχὶ κρατήσει αὐτὸ καὶ ἐγερεῖ; 12 πόσῳ οὖν διαφέρει ἄνθρωπος προβάτου· ὥστε ἔξεστι τοῖς σάββασι καλῶς ποιεῖν. 13 Τότε λέγει τῷ ἀνθρώπῳ, Ἔκτεινον τὴν χεῖρά σου· καὶ ἐξέτεινε· καὶ ἀπεκατεστάθη ὑγιὴς ὡς ἡ ἄλλη. (117/IV) 14 [g] Ἐξελθόντες δὲ οἱ Φαρισαῖοι συμβούλιον ἔλαβον κατ' αὐτοῦ, ὅπως αὐτὸν ἀπολέσωσιν. (118/X) 15 Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς γνοὺς ἀνεχώρησεν ἐκεῖθεν. Καὶ ἠκολούθησαν αὐτῷ ὄχλοι πολλοὶ, καὶ ἐθεράπευσεν αὐτοὺς πάντας· 16 καὶ ἐπετίμησεν αὐτοῖς ἵνα μὴ φανερὸν αὐτὸν ποιήσωσιν· 17 ὅπως πληρωθῇ τὸ ῥηθὲν διὰ Ἡσαΐου τοῦ προφήτου, λέγοντος, 18 [h] Ἰδοὺ, ὁ παῖς μου, ὃν ᾑρέτισα· ὁ ἀγαπητός μου, εἰς ὃν εὐδόκησεν ἡ ψυχή μου. Θήσω τὸ πνεῦμά μου ἐπ' αὐτὸν, καὶ κρίσιν τοῖς ἔθνεσιν e Mark 3. 1. Luke 6. 6. f Luke 13. 14. & 14. 3. John 9. 16. g Mark 3. 6. Luke 6. 11. John 10. 39. & 11. 53. h Isa. 42. 1. ch. 3. 17. & 17. 5.

Hence it was a maxim of the Jews "in templo non esse Sabbatum."

6. ἱεροῦ μεῖζον] If the service of the temple can justify the priests in labouring on the Sabbath, I, who am greater than the temple and give sanctity to it, can excuse my disciples.

Christ had not interfered to prevent His disciples from plucking the corn. Therefore their act was His, and in censuring them the Pharisees had blamed Him.

7. ἔλεον θέλω] See above, ix. 13.

The Sabbath was made for man (Mark ii. 27), and I who am the Son of Man, the Second Adam, the Lord of the New Creation, am the Lord and Master of the Sabbath.

8. ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου] Because I also am the Son of God, therefore I am the Giver of the Law. And he who gives a law can dispense with it. This is another assertion of Christ's Divinity.

No one else (says Titus Bostrensis on Luke vi. 5) is called in the Gospel the Son of Man but Jesus. And He is called so by Himself alone. Jesus calls Himself Son of Man because, being Son of God, He vouchsafed to become Son of Man in a singular manner for our salvation.

The following is an exposition of the argument by Jerome and others:

You break the Sabbath in the temple by slaying victims, and by offering them on the wood heaped up on the altar; and you circumcise children on the Sabbath days, and so (according to your own allegations) break the law of the Sabbath, in your desire to keep another law. But the laws of God never contradict each other. (Jerome.) Observe the circumstances here:—the place, the temple;—the persons, the priests;—the time, the Sabbath;—the act itself, they profane;—and this they do, not from any special necessity, as David; but habitually, every Sabbath, and yet they are guiltless. And if they are blameless, much more are those who are with Me; for I am the Lord of the Sabbath.

In St. Mark the argument rests on a common principle of humanity. The Sabbath was made for man. But here He speaks of Himself, the Lord of the Temple, the Truth and not the Type. He who gave the law of the Sabbath explains its meaning. He teaches them that it was not merely prohibitory, requiring them to abstain from evil, but preceptive also, commanding to do good. And therefore He refers them to the practice of the priests and God's own saying in their Scriptures. "I will have mercy and not sacrifice" (Hos. vi. 6. Micah vi. 6). Thus He gave additional life to the Law. For the season was now come in which they were to be trained by a higher discipline. (Chrys.) He calls Himself the Son of Man, and His meaning is—He whom ye suppose to be a mere man is God, the Lord of the Sabbath, and has power to change the law, because he gave it. (Remig.) He calls Himself the Lord of the Sabbath,—a prophetic intimation cleared up by the event, that the Law of the Sabbath would be changed, as it has now been under the Gospel, not by any alteration in the proportion of time due to God, but in the position of the day; by the transfer of it from the seventh day of the week to the first, in memory of the Resurrection of the Son of Man.

10. τὴν χεῖρα] St. Luke adds (vi. 6) that it was his right hand; and that the persons who watched Him were the Scribes and Pharisees in order to accuse Him (vi. 7).

11. πρόβατον ἕν] "ἕν, cujus jactura non magna." (Beng.) You to preserve your property, though it be only a single sheep, profane the Sabbath, according to your own sense of the terms; and yet you charge Me with profaning it when I restore health to your brother; which I do with much less labour than you can draw a single sheep from a pit. (Jerome.) Ye are evil interpreters of the Law, who say that I ought to rest from good deeds on the Sabbath. In the Sabbath of Eternity we shall rest from evil, but doing good will be our Sabbath itself.

— βόθυνον] Luke xiv. 5, φρέαρ.

13. ἀπεκατεστάθη] He does not say as it was before, but ὡς ἡ ἄλλη. See on Acts i. 6.

17. ὅπως πληρωθῇ τὸ ῥηθὲν] A remarkable specimen of the manner in which the Holy Spirit, speaking by the Evangelists, deals with the Prophecies of the Old Testament in order to interpret them. —ὅπως πληρωθῇ τὸ ῥηθὲν is the form used by the Evangelists when this process of Divine Exposition is performed. It is, as it were, the title of an Evangelical Targum or Paraphrase. See above on ii. 23.

The elucidation of the prophecy (Isa. xlii. 1), as explained by our Lord, is as follows. For the Hebrew עַבְדִּי (abedi), 'my servant,' He does not say ὁ δοῦλός μου, which would be derogatory to His Divine Person, but ὁ παῖς μου, where παῖς offers a double sense, servant and son. (Cp. on Acts iii. 13. 26; iv. 27. 30.) And it is one of the felicitous circumstances (may not they be called providential?) which mark the formation of the LXX Version, that in this prophecy concerning Christ it was enabled to use a word (παῖς) which might suggest the double sense of the word, pre-eminently significant of Christ, in Whom were united the obedience of the servant and the dearness of the son. (Cp. Heb. iii. 5.) For the Hebrew אֶתְמָךְ־בּוֹ (ethmak-bo), 'I will lay hold on him, in order to support him (see Ps. lxiii. 8, especially Ps. lxxxix. 21. Isa. xli. 10), He says ὃν ᾑρέτισα, 'whom I have laid hold on or chosen, My delight.' For עַד־יָשִׂים בָּאָרֶץ מִשְׁפָּט (ad yasim ba-arets mishpat) in Isa. xlii. 4, 'till He establish justice on the earth,' He says, ἕως ἂν ἐκβάλῃ εἰς νῖκος τὴν κρίσιν, 'till He bring forth judgment to victory,' so that no further conflict will remain, i. e. His judgment will not only be true, but victorious.

Again (in v. 21) He says τῷ ὀνόματι for לְתוֹרָתוֹ (ulethoratho), i. e. for His Law, which would have given an unintelligible sense to a Gentile unacquainted with the old covenant.

The next modification ἔθνη for אִיִּים (iyyim), islands, was almost a necessary modification, inasmuch as νῆσοι, though a literal rendering, would not to a Greek or Gentile ear have the sense of ἔθνη, which it had to the Hebrews familiar with the Old Testament (e. g. Gen. x. 5. See Mede's Essay, p. 272).

Thus the Holy Ghost speaking by the Evangelist vindicates our Lord from the cavils of the Pharisees, as described in this chapter, and shows that His meek and pacific, and yet wise and victorious conduct in dealing with His enemies, corresponded with that predicted of the Messiah; and He teaches those who required to be taught, that the prophet was there speaking of the Messiah, as indeed the Chaldee paraphrast understood him to do.

From this passage and others we perceive the reasons why our Lord and the Evangelists did not always cite the LXX Version of the Old Testament, nor give a literal version of their own. Their purpose was to give the sense which was in the mind of the Spirit when He wrote the Prophecies. And since the Prophecies had been spoken in other times long past, and to a single people, and since the Evangelical Interpretations of the Hebrew Prophecies were designed for all ages and nations of the world, therefore to accomplish their purpose of conveying the sense, it was necessary for them often to give a paraphrase rather than a version of them. In fact, the mode in which the ancient Prophecies are explained in the New Testament, displays the most perfect exemplification of the critical rule, ἀπαγγελεῖ. 19 Οὐκ ἐρίσει, οὐδὲ κραυγάσει· οὐδὲ ἀκούσει τις ἐν ταῖς πλατείαις τὴν φωνὴν αὐτοῦ. 20 Κάλαμον συντετριμμένον οὐ κατεάξει, καὶ λίνον τυφόμενον οὐ σβέσει· ἕως ἂν ἐκβάλῃ εἰς νῖκος τὴν κρίσιν. 21 καὶ τῷ ὀνόματι αὐτοῦ ἔθνη ἐλπιοῦσι.

"Nec verbum verbo curabis reddere fidus Interpres."

(119/V) 22 [i] Τότε προσηνέχθη αὐτῷ δαιμονιζόμενος, τυφλὸς καὶ κωφός, καὶ ἐθεράπευσεν αὐτόν· ὥστε τὸν τυφλὸν καὶ κωφὸν καὶ λαλεῖν καὶ βλέπειν. (120/VII) 23 Καὶ ἐξίσταντο πάντες οἱ ὄχλοι, καὶ ἔλεγον, Μήτι οὗτός ἐστιν ὁ υἱὸς Δαυΐδ; (121/II) 24 [k] Οἱ δὲ Φαρισαῖοι ἀκούσαντες, εἶπον· Οὗτος οὐκ ἐκβάλλει τὰ δαιμόνια, εἰ μὴ ἐν τῷ Βεελζεβοὺλ ἄρχοντι τῶν δαιμονίων. (122/II) 25 Εἰδὼς δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς τὰς ἐνθυμήσεις αὐτῶν εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Πᾶσα βασιλεία μερισθεῖσα καθ' ἑαυτῆς ἐρημοῦται, καὶ πᾶσα πόλις ἢ οἰκία μερισθεῖσα καθ' ἑαυτῆς οὐ σταθήσεται. 26 Καὶ εἰ ὁ Σατανᾶς τὸν Σατανᾶν ἐκβάλλει, ἐφ' ἑαυτὸν ἐμερίσθη· πῶς οὖν σταθήσεται ἡ βασιλεία αὐτοῦ; 27 Καὶ εἰ ἐγὼ ἐν Βεελζεβοὺλ ἐκβάλλω τὰ δαιμόνια, οἱ υἱοὶ ὑμῶν ἐν τίνι ἐκβάλλουσι; διὰ τοῦτο αὐτοὶ ὑμῶν ἔσονται κριταί. 28 Εἰ δὲ ἐν πνεύματι Θεοῦ ἐγὼ ἐκβάλλω τὰ δαιμόνια, ἄρα ἔφθασεν ἐφ' ὑμᾶς ἡ βασιλεία τοῦ Θεοῦ. 29 [*] Ἢ πῶς δύναταί τις εἰσελθεῖν εἰς τὴν οἰκίαν τοῦ ἰσχυροῦ, καὶ τὰ σκεύη αὐτοῦ διαρπάσαι, ἐὰν μὴ πρῶτον δήσῃ τὸν ἰσχυρόν; καὶ τότε τὴν οἰκίαν αὐτοῦ διαρπάσει. 30 Ὁ μὴ ὢν μετ' ἐμοῦ κατ' ἐμοῦ ἐστι· καὶ ὁ μὴ συνάγων μετ' ἐμοῦ σκορπίζει. (123/II) 31 [l] Διὰ τοῦτο λέγω ὑμῖν, πᾶσα ἁμαρτία καὶ βλασφημία ἀφεθήσεται τοῖς ἀνθρώποις· ἡ δὲ τοῦ Πνεύματος βλασφημία οὐκ ἀφεθήσεται τοῖς ἀνθρώποις. 32 Καὶ ὃς ἂν εἴπῃ λόγον κατὰ τοῦ Υἱοῦ τοῦ ἀνθρώπου, ἀφεθήσεται αὐτῷ· ὃς δ' ἂν

i Luke 11. 14.
k ch. 9. 34. Mark 3. 22. Luke 11. 15.
l Mark 3. 29. Luke 12. 10. 1 John 5. 16. Heb. 6. 4. & 10. 26.

20. κάλαμον] "Qui peccatori non porrigit manum, nec portat onus fratris, quassatum calamum confringit; qui scintillam fidei contemnit in parvulis, linum extinguit fumigans." (Jerome.)

24. Βεελζεβούλ] See above, x. 25.

27. ἐν] Hebr. ב, by, with. See Vorst. Hebr. 213. Cp. Matt. iv. 1 with Luke iv. 1.

— οἱ υἱοὶ ὑμῶν] Your disciples. This is the more modern interpretation, and Acts xix. 13. 14, is quoted in behalf of it; but this does not seem conclusive. For there the devils were victorious.

Some of the Fathers interpret this of the Apostles, as follows:—

The Pharisees ascribed the works of God to the power of the Devil. Our Lord does not answer their words, but their thoughts, in order that even thus they might be constrained to acknowledge the power to be Divine of Him who saw the secrets of their hearts. And He asks this question, "By whom do your sons cast them out?"—your sons, the Apostles, concerning whom He said (xix. 28), "Ye shall sit on thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel." (Jerome.) Observe His mildness. He did not say, By whom do My Apostles cast them out? but By whom do your sons?—in order that they might be brought to the same mind with the Apostles, whom He calls their sons. For the Apostles had received power from Him to cast out devils (Matt. x. 1), and it does not appear that the Jews had brought any such charge against them. And the Apostles were taken from among the Jews, and yet they listened to Christ and owned Him as their Master; therefore "they shall be your judges," i. e. condemn you of inconsistency, and unbelief, and of envy and malice against Me. (Chrys., Hilary.)

28. ἔφθασεν] venit, with an idea of surprise: an Hellenistic use of the word preserved in modern Greece. See Koray, Ἄτακτα, iii. 646. 'If I by the Spirit of God;' or, as it is in St. Luke, 'If I by the finger of God,'—that finger which the Magicians of Egypt acknowledged (Exod. viii. 19), and by which the law was written. Exod. xxiv. 12. Deut. ix. 10. (Jerome.) Observe His gentleness and love. He would attract them to Himself. Why do you cavil at the blessings which are now offered to you? Why resist God's gracious designs for your salvation? Rather you ought to rejoice because the kingdom of God is come to you; and because I am present to give you the blessings preannounced by the Prophets, and because your ghostly enemy Satan is now cast out by Me. (Chrys.)

We ought not to think ourselves secure. Our ghostly enemy is called the strong man even by his conqueror, and he is the "Prince of this world," which lieth in wickedness. (John xii. 31. Eph. ii. 2.) The Tempter was bound by Christ at the Temptation, when he was called Satan by Christ,—"Get thee hence, Satan" (Matt. iv. 10); and Christ entered his house and spoiled his goods,—that is, rescued us men from his grasp, and subdued us to Himself, and made us fit for Himself. "Vasa ejus et domus nos eramus." Iren. iii. 7. 2. Hilary.

30. ὁ μὴ ὢν μετ' ἐμοῦ] Observe μή. If a man is neutral, and is not in heart with Me in My conflict with Satan, he will be treated by Me as an enemy; and whosoever does not gather with Me,—that is, labour with Me in the spiritual harvest for the salvation of souls, scatters the ears of corn which he ought to bind into sheaves to be housed in My barn. This is to be compared with Mark ix. 40. Luke ix. 50.

This is another answer to the objection of the Jews. Satan is on one side, I on the other. He rebels against God; I invite all men to him. He holds men captive, I release them. He preaches idolatry, I the worship of the one true God. He tempts to sin, I lead to virtue. (Jerome. Chrys.) How then can I be thought to work with him and he with Me? He is not with Me, and therefore is against Me. He gathereth not with Me, and therefore scattereth. He says, indeed, in another place, "He that is not against us is for us" (Luke ix. 50. Matt. ix. 40), but these two sayings are not contrary. Here He is speaking of one opposed to Him in heart and hand; there of one who was with them in spirit though not in person; for he cast out devils in Christ's name. (Cp. Chrys.)

31. Πνεύματος βλασφημία] i. e. against the Holy Ghost. Cp. Matt. x. 1, ἐξουσία πνευμάτων. 1 Cor. ix. 12, ἐξουσία ὑμῶν.

It is observable that both in St. Matthew here (xii. 31, 32), and in St. Mark (iii. 28, 29), our Lord says, 'sin and blasphemy' in the first member of the sentence, but only speaks of βλασφημία in the latter member of the sentence, as irremissible[1]. The question, therefore, which has been argued by Divines[2] concerning sin against the Holy Ghost, may perhaps be properly reduced, as far as connected with this place, to an enquiry concerning the nature of blasphemy against the Holy Ghost.

The Blasphemy against the Holy Ghost, of which our Lord here speaks, is that which ascribes to Beelzebub the Prince of the Devils, and enemy of God and Man, works done by the Spirit of God for the salvation of man and the glory of God[3].

Again, Blasphemy against the Holy Ghost is greater than blasphemy against Christ as man, because the Holy Ghost did not take the nature of man; and Christ as man is inferior to the Holy Ghost. Athanas. contra Arian. p. 358; iv. pp. 561—567.

From this passage it is rightly inferred, that the Holy Ghost is a Person, and that He is God. See St. Cyril in Caten. Luke xii. 3, and Bp. Pearson, On the Creed, Art. viii.

31. οὐκ ἀφεθήσεται] i. e. is very unlikely to obtain forgiveness. Not that it never can. See Aug. Retract. i. 19, "de nullo quamvis pessimo in hâc vitâ desperandum est;" and Ambrose, de Pœnit. ii. 4. But inasmuch as it grieves the Holy Ghost, and provokes Him to withdraw His grace from the soul and leave it to itself, it is almost a suicidal act; and it is impossible, humanly speaking, to renew such an one to repentance. (Heb. vi. 4—8.) But with God nothing is impossible. (Matt. xix. 26. Mark x. 27.) Cp. Aug. Serm. lxxi. de Serm. in Monte i. 22, and see the note on Mark vi. 5.

32. κατὰ τοῦ Υἱοῦ τ. ἀνθρώπου] He who speaks a word against the Son of Man, being offended by My outward appearance, seeing

[1] They who sin thus (says Athanasius) refer the work of God to the Devil; they judge God to be the Devil; and the true God to have nothing more in His works than the Evil Spirit. See Athanas. ad Serapion. § 50.

[2] See à Lapide here and Olshausen, and Professor Browne, On Article xvi.

[3] See St. Mark iii. 30. So Athanas. adv. Serapion. (iv. p. 562). SS. Jerome, Chrysostom, Ambrose, and others interpret the passage.

εἴπῃ κατὰ τοῦ Πνεύματος τοῦ ἁγίου, οὐκ ἀφεθήσεται αὐτῷ οὔτε ἐν τούτῳ τῷ αἰῶνι οὔτε ἐν τῷ μέλλοντι. (124/χ) 33 m *Ἢ ποιήσατε τὸ δένδρον καλὸν, καὶ τὸν καρπὸν αὐτοῦ καλόν· ἢ ποιήσατε τὸ δένδρον σαπρὸν, καὶ τὸν καρπὸν αὐτοῦ σαπρόν· ἐκ γὰρ τοῦ καρποῦ τὸ δένδρον γινώσκεται. 34 n Γεννήματα ἐχιδνῶν, πῶς δύνασθε ἀγαθὰ λαλεῖν, πονηροὶ ὄντες; ἐκ γὰρ τοῦ περισσεύματος τῆς καρδίας τὸ στόμα λαλεῖ. (125/ψ) 35 Ὁ ἀγαθὸς ἄνθρωπος ἐκ τοῦ ἀγαθοῦ θησαυροῦ ἐκβάλλει ἀγαθά· καὶ ὁ πονηρὸς ἄνθρωπος ἐκ τοῦ πονηροῦ θησαυροῦ ἐκβάλλει πονηρά. (126/χ) 36 Λέγω δὲ ὑμῖν, ὅτι πᾶν ῥῆμα ἀργὸν, ὃ ἐὰν λαλήσωσιν οἱ ἄνθρωποι, ἀποδώσουσι περὶ αὐτοῦ λόγον ἐν ἡμέρᾳ κρίσεως· 37 ἐκ γὰρ τῶν λόγων σου δικαιωθήσῃ, καὶ ἐκ τῶν λόγων σου καταδικασθήσῃ.

m ch. 7. 17. Luke 6. 43, sq.

n ch. 3. 7. & 23. 33. Luke 6. 45.

(127/ψ) 38 Τότε ἀπεκρίθησάν τινες τῶν Γραμματέων καὶ Φαρισαίων λέγοντες, Διδάσκαλε, θέλομεν ἀπὸ σοῦ σημεῖον ἰδεῖν. (128/ψ) 39 o Ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Γενεὰ πονηρὰ καὶ μοιχαλὶς σημεῖον ἐπιζητεῖ· καὶ σημεῖον οὐ δοθήσεται αὐτῇ, εἰ μὴ τὸ σημεῖον Ἰωνᾶ τοῦ προφήτου. 40 p Ὥσπερ γὰρ ἦν Ἰωνᾶς ἐν

o ch. 16. 1. Mark 8. 11. Luke 11. 16, 29. 1 Cor. 1. 22.

p Jonah 1. 17. & 2. 1, 2.

---

that I am supposed to be the carpenter's son, and to have James and Joses and Judas for My brethren, he may be forgiven; but he who sees My mighty works, and reviles Me who am the Word of God, and says that the works of the Holy Spirit, working by Me, are the works of Beelzebub, has no forgiveness. (Jerome.)

— οὔτε ἐν τῷ μέλλοντι] Some have hence inferred that sins not forgiven in this world may be forgiven in another. But this inference contradicts the general teaching of Scripture. (St. Luke xvi. 26, and note. John ix. 4. Heb. iii. 13; ix. 27.) The Gloss. on this passage says, "hence is refuted the heresy of Origen, who said that after many ages all sinners should obtain pardon;" and St. Mark says (ch. iii. 29), οὐκ ἔχει ἄφεσιν εἰς τὸν αἰῶνα. The phrase taken together signifies nunquam, and is a Hebraism found in the Talmud. See Vorstius de Hebr. p. 42, just as ἐν τῷ αἰῶνι τούτῳ καὶ ἐν τῷ μέλλοντι, Ep. i. 21, is a Hebraism for semper.

It is observable that the Hebrew עוֹלָם (olam), according as it is used with certain pronouns, signifies both 'this world' and 'eternity.' Hence the similar use of αἰὼν in the N. Test., i. e. ὁ αἰὼν οὗτος, this present world; ὁ αἰὼν ἐκεῖνος, that world which is to come; εἰς τὸν αἰῶνα, for the world, the future world, that which is κατ' ἐξοχὴν the world for which we ought to prepare; εἰς τοὺς αἰῶνας, for all ages; hence αἰώνιος, everlasting. See Matt. xxv. 46.

33. ποιήσατε] Cp. John viii. 53. Indicate, agnoscite, fatemini; εἴπατε. (Euthym.) It is a rule often applicable to the diction of the N. Test., that "verba quæ facere significant agnitionem facti significare." Cp. Glass. Phil. Sacr. p. 370.

Ye accuse Me of working by Beelzebub. But if the devil be evil, he cannot do good works, so that if My works are good the devil is not the doer of them. (Jerome.) A tree is known by its fruits, not the fruits by the tree. The tree is the cause of the fruit, but the fruit is the proof of the tree. But ye reverse this. Having no fault to find with the fruit, ye pass sentence against the tree, saying that I have a devil. (Chrys.)

Since a good tree bringeth forth good fruit, and a corrupt tree bringeth forth evil fruit (Matt. vii. 17), therefore (ποιήσατε) recognize my works as good; or, if you will not do this, prove Me to be evil, and therefore My works evil, for a tree is known by its fruits. But since the fruits I bring forth are good, and you cannot deny this, therefore I cannot be evil. Therefore own me as such, confess Me to be the Son of God. But ye who charge Me with working by means of Beelzebub, are children of the Evil One. Ye yourselves are γεννήματα ἐχιδνῶν, the brood of the Old Serpent, how therefore can you speak what is good? No wonder, therefore, that you, being the children of the devil, revile the Son of God, and make Him an agent of the Evil one.

He then describes the punishment of evil words.

36. ῥῆμα ἀργόν] ἀργὸς here is not simply otiosus, as a person at leisure,—much less as a person who enjoys seasonable leisure in order that he may work,—but as one who will not work when he ought to work ('qui opus detrectat'). Cp. 2 Pet. i. 8, οὐκ ἀργοὺς οὐδὲ ἀκάρπους, and Eph. v. 11.

"Otiosum verbum," says Jerome, "est quod sine utilitate et loquentis dicitur et audientis, si omissis seriis de rebus frivolis loquamur;" and therefore a person is guilty of ῥήματα ἀργὰ, who omits to use speech for its proper purpose of edification to men and of glory to God, and abuses the best member that he has (Ps. cviii. 1) in uttering words of levity, impurity, or outrage against God and calumny against man. How much more one who disseminates them by the public press!

— ἀποδώσουσι περὶ αὐτοῦ λόγον] This anomaly of Syntax, found sometimes in classical authors (Matth. Gr. Gr. §§ 310. 562), is of frequent occurrence in Hebrew (Gen. ii. 17. Exod. xxxii. 1. Ezek. xxxiii. 2. John xvii. 2. Acts x. 38), and is very useful in order to bring out the prominent idea (here ῥῆμα ἀργὸν) at the beginning of the sentence.

Here it may be observed generally that most of the anomalies of language in the New Testament, which at first may offend the taste of the classical reader, are Hebraisms consecrated by use in the Old Testament, and are doubtless designed to remind him of the connexion of the New Testament with the Old, and to show that both Testaments are distinct from other books, and are from One and the same Hand. And they are admirably contrived to facilitate the grouping of ideas, and for presenting them in the best form and with the brightest colouring to the reader. They may indeed be called solecisms, when measured by the standards of human Philology; but they are above those standards, and are to be referred to the rules of another and higher Grammar—the Grammar of Inspiration.

38. σημεῖον] i. e. ἀπὸ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ (see xvi. 1. Mark viii. 11); such as was given under Moses by the pillar of cloud, the thunders at Sinai, the manna in the wilderness, or in fire as by Elias, or with thunder as under Samuel. They require a sign,—as if the miracles they had seen were no signs. (Jerome.) Well may He say ἐπιζητεῖ.

39. μοιχαλίς] adulterous: because it had forsaken God and joined itself to others in spiritual harlotry. (Jerome.)

— σημεῖον οὐ δοθήσεται] i. e. none in answer to their demands and to gratify their curiosity (cp. Herod's case, Luke xxiii. 8); and that which shall be given shall not be from heaven, but from the grave, and will not persuade them to believe, but condemn their unbelief.

But did not Christ give other σημεῖα? Yes; but not to the curiosity of a wicked and adulterous generation. See Mark vi. 5. Luke xxiii. 8.

But was the resurrection (typified by Jonah) given in answer to a challenge from that generation? Yes. See xxvii. 40. Mark xv. 29. John ii. 20, 21.

— Ἰωνᾶ τοῦ προφήτου] Jonah was a σημεῖον of Christ,—

In preaching before and after his resurrection.

In offering himself to death to appease the storm and save the ship—an argument for the Atonement.

In his burial and resurrection after three days.

On the parallel between Jesus and Jonas, see Cyril. Hieros. Catech. xiv. p. 213.

Our Lord sometimes speaks of His resurrection as to take place on the third day (cp. Matt. xvi. 21; xvii. 23; xx. 19. Mark x. 34. Luke xviii. 33; xxiv. 7); and sometimes as to take place after three days (Mark viii. 31. Matt. xxvi. 61; xxvii. 63). These periods therefore are coincident. This is explained from the Jewish mode of reckoning time, according to which any portion, however short, of the period of twenty-four hours was reckoned as a νυχθήμερον. See below, xvii. 1, and Hieron., Theophyl., Aug., and Bp. Pearson On the Creed, Art. v. pp. 488. 492, and the notes[1]. "I have treated more fully," says St. Jerome, "on this passage on my comment on the Prophet Jonah. I will now only say, that this is to be explained by a figure of speech called synecdoche, by which a part is put for the whole; not that our Lord was three whole days and three nights in the grave, but part of Friday, part of Sunday, and the whole of Saturday are reckoned as three days."

The days of Christ's absence from His disciples were shortened

---

[1] Something like the notion derived from this text, and propagated by some in our own days, that our Lord was crucified on a Thursday, and therefore the observance of Good Friday is unscriptural, was broached and exploded in ancient times. See Bp. Pearson, p. 488; à Lapide in loc. The following is from Kuin. "Duas tantùm noctes, et unum diem Jesus in sepulcro fuit; sed Hebræi qui noctem diei initium constituebant, duas noctes cum partibus primi ac tertii diei tres dies atque tres noctes vocabant, tempus incompletum pro completo habebant; et in omnibus fere linguis, pars diei, mensis, anni, dies, mensis, annus per synecdochen dici solet. Sic etiam 1 Sam. xxx. 12, tres dies et noctes, v. 13, explicatur usque ad diem tertium; add. 2 Chron. x. 5, coll. v. 12. Gen. xlii. 17, 18. Deut. xiv. 28, coll. xxvi. 12. Tob. iii. 12, 13. Vid. Relandi Antiqq. Hebr. iv. 20, hanc verò fuisse Judæorum loquendi consuetudinem, et hic ipse locus noster docet, et exinde quoque patet quod ut probe Relandus l. h. monuit, nunquam Apostolis controversia mota est de spatio hoc dierum trium et noctium quo se Jesus in sepulchro commoraturum esse prædixerat."

τῇ κοιλίᾳ τοῦ κήτους τρεῖς ἡμέρας καὶ τρεῖς νύκτας, οὕτως ἔσται ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ q Luke 11. 32. Jonah 3. 5. ἀνθρώπου ἐν τῇ καρδίᾳ τῆς γῆς τρεῖς ἡμέρας καὶ τρεῖς νύκτας. 41 q Ἄνδρες Νινευῖται ἀναστήσονται ἐν τῇ κρίσει μετὰ τῆς γενεᾶς ταύτης, καὶ κατακρινοῦσιν αὐτήν· ὅτι μετενόησαν εἰς τὸ κήρυγμα Ἰωνᾶ· καὶ ἰδοὺ πλεῖον Ἰωνᾶ r 1 Kings 10. 1. 2 Chron. 9. 1. Luke 11. 31. ὧδε. 42 r Βασίλισσα Νότου ἐγερθήσεται ἐν τῇ κρίσει μετὰ τῆς γενεᾶς ταύτης, καὶ κατακρινεῖ αὐτήν· ὅτι ἦλθεν ἐκ τῶν περάτων τῆς γῆς ἀκοῦσαι τὴν σοφίαν s Luke 11. 24. Σολομῶνος· καὶ ἰδοὺ, πλεῖον Σολομῶνος ὧδε. (129/V) 43 s Ὅταν δὲ τὸ ἀκάθαρτον πνεῦμα ἐξέλθῃ ἀπὸ τοῦ ἀνθρώπου, διέρχεται δι' ἀνύδρων τόπων ζητοῦν ἀνάπαυσιν, καὶ οὐχ εὑρίσκει. 44 Τότε λέγει, Ἐπιστρέψω εἰς τὸν οἶκόν μου ὅθεν ἐξῆλθον· καὶ ἐλθὸν εὑρίσκει σχολάζοντα, σεσαρωμένον καὶ κεκοσμημένον· t 2 Pet. 2. 20, 21. Heb. 6. 4. & 10. 26. 45 t τότε πορεύεται καὶ παραλαμβάνει μεθ' ἑαυτοῦ ἑπτὰ ἕτερα πνεύματα πονη-ρότερα ἑαυτοῦ, καὶ εἰσελθόντα κατοικεῖ ἐκεῖ· καὶ γίνεται τὰ ἔσχατα τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἐκείνου χείρονα τῶν πρώτων. Οὕτως ἔσται καὶ τῇ γενεᾷ ταύτῃ τῇ πονηρᾷ.

u Mark 3. 31. Luke 8. 19. (180/11) 46 u Ἔτι δὲ αὐτοῦ λαλοῦντος τοῖς ὄχλοις, ἰδοὺ, ἡ μήτηρ καὶ οἱ ἀδελφοὶ αὐτοῦ εἱστήκεισαν ἔξω, ζητοῦντες αὐτῷ λαλῆσαι. 47 εἶπε δέ τις αὐτῷ, Ἰδοὺ, ἡ μήτηρ σου καὶ οἱ ἀδελφοί σου ἔξω ἑστήκασι, ζητοῦντές σοι λαλῆσαι. 48 Ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπε τῷ εἰπόντι αὐτῷ, Τίς ἐστιν ἡ μήτηρ μου; καὶ τίνες εἰσὶν οἱ ἀδελφοί μου; 49 καὶ ἐκτείνας τὴν χεῖρα αὐτοῦ ἐπὶ τοὺς μαθητὰς αὐτοῦ, εἶπεν, Ἰδοὺ, ἡ μήτηρ μου καὶ οἱ ἀδελφοί μου· 50 ὅστις γὰρ ἂν ποιήσῃ τὸ θέλημα in mercy to them as far as was consistent with the fulfilment of the prophecy.

---

Here is an observable instance of the uses of the Gospels in confirming the Old Testament. Our Lord here refers to the wonderful history of Jonah, swallowed and disgorged by the fish. He treats it as a true history to be understood in its plain sense, and expounds the meaning of it, hitherto unrevealed, viz. that it was not only a history, but also a prophecy, a typical representation of Himself,—of His own wonderful Death, Burial, and Resurrection. Cp. the testimony of the Holy Ghost, speaking by the Apostle St. Peter, confirming the history of Balaam and the ass. (2 Pet. ii. 15.)

By this specimen of Divine exposition, Our Lord suggests to all readers of the Old Testament the belief, that whatever they may now find there difficult to be understood, will one day be explained, and perhaps be seen to be prophetic and typical of the greatest mysteries of the Gospel; and that in the mean time it is an exercise of their Faith, and a trial of their humility,—a divinely appointed instrument of their moral probation. And it is because they are strange and marvellous, that such histories as those of Jonah and Balaam are the best tests of the strength of our faith.

40. καρδίᾳ τῆς γῆς] Jonah's soul as well as body was ἐν τῇ κοιλίᾳ τοῦ κήτους (Jonah ii. 1). Therefore the καρδία γῆς may be what St. Paul calls τὰ κατώτερα τῆς γῆς (Eph. iv. 9. 1 Pet. iii. 19. See the passages of the Fathers, quoted by Bp. Pearson, Art. v. pp. 443—450), and this appears to be spoken of our Lord's human soul descending into Sheol or Hades.

42. Βασίλισσα Νότου] Observe the absence of the article. See i. 1.

— περάτων τῆς γῆς] Hebr. קְצוֹת הָאָרֶץ or אַפְסֵי (aphse or ketsoth haarets), Ps. ii. 8; lxv. 8, and passim.

43. ἀνύδρων τόπων] The opposites of Paradise, and striking witnesses of man's sin, which is the physical as well as moral wildness and desolation (cp. Olshausen here).

44. οἶκόν μου] "Suum putat; ἐξῆλθον, quasi non ejectus." (Beng.)

— εὑρίσκει σχολάζοντα] "Vacuam Deo, Deique gratiâ, ideoque aptam ut fiat domus Diaboli, nam Nihil agere est male agere." And it was swept and garnished like an untenanted lodging, ready to be let to the first comer.

45. οὕτως ἔσται τῇ γενεᾷ τ.] The evil spirit had been cast out of the Jewish Nation when they received the Law; and he walked in the wilderness of heathenism. But the heathen would believe in God, and the Devil be cast out of them and return to the Jews whom he had left, and the last state of that Nation is worse than the first; for they are now beset by a larger number of evil spirits, when they blaspheme Christ in their synagogues, and so they are in a worse condition than when they were in Egypt itself, before the Law. Accordingly the calamities which befel the Jews under Vespasian and Titus, were far more grievous than any in Egypt, Babylon, or under Antiochus. (Jerome.) A warning to those who speak softly of Judaism, as it is now. We must pray for the Jews, and even the more fervently, because Christ has taught us to detest Judaism.

46. ἀδελφοί] Compare Matt. xiii. 55, where his brethren are called James and Joses and Simon and Judas, and these were sons of a Mary. See Matt. xxvii. 56. Some of the ancients imagined that these were children of Joseph by a former marriage. (Euseb. ii. 1.) But the more probable opinion is that they were consobrini, or cousins of Christ (Euseb. Hist. iii. 11); sons of the Mary who was the sister of the Blessed Virgin and wife of Cleophas or Alphæus. See x. 3 John xix. 25. Jerome, ad loc., who calls them "Mariæ liberos, materteræ Domini quæ esse dicitur mater Jacobi et Josephi et Judæ." See also Bp. Pearson On the Creed, Art. iii. pp. 330—333, and Dr. W. H. Mill's Dissertations, ii. pp. 221—290[1].

48. τίς ἐστιν ἡ μήτηρ μου] "Non spernit matrem, sed anteponit Patrem." (Bengel.)

"Qui Christi frater est credendo, mater efficitur prædicando; quasi enim parit eum quem in corde audientis infuderit; et si per ejus vocem amor Domini in proximi mente generatur." (Greg. M. Moral. in Evang. i. 3, p. 1445.)

His mother was perhaps moved by a spirit of vain glory, and came to draw Him from preaching; to display to the multitude the power she had over One who could work so great miracles. (Theophylact. on Mark iii. 32.) Hear what He says, because His mother and His brethren were eager to show that they were related to Him, and were vain-glorious on that account. (St. Chrys. on ch. viii. 20.) Hence we learn that it was of no benefit even to have borne Christ in the womb, and to bring forth that Wonderful Offspring,—without holiness.

He uttered these words, not as if He were ashamed of His Mother, or denied her to be His Mother, but to show that her maternity was of no benefit to her unless she did her duty. And what she now attempted to do was an effort of exceeding vain glory. For she desired to show the people that she had power and authority over her Son. Observe her folly[2] and theirs, for when they ought to have come in and listened with the multitude, and if they were not willing to do this, to await the conclusion of His Discourse, and then to address Him, they call Him out, and do this in the presence of all, betraying excessive ambition, and wishing to show that they can command Him. (Chrys.)

There is but one true nobility, that of obedience to God. This is greater than that of the Virgin's relationship to Christ. Therefore when a woman in the crowd exclaimed, "Blessed is the womb that bare

---

[1] The following important fragment on the four Marys is from Papias, scholar of St. John (ap. Routh, Reliq. Sacr. ex Cod. M88. 2397).

"i. Maria, mater Domini. ii. Maria, Cleophæ sive Alphæi uxor, quæ fuit mater Jacobi Episcopi et Apostoli, et Simonis et Thadei et cujusdam Joseph. iii. Maria Salome, uxor Zebedei, mater Joannis Evangelistæ et Jacobi (confer Matt. xxvii. 56, et Marc. xv. 40 et xvi. 1). iv. Maria Magdalena. (We may add v. Mary of Bethany.)

"Istæ quatuor in evangelio reperiuntur. Jacobus et Judas et Joseph filii erant IIdæ materteræ Domini. Jacobus, quoque et Joannes III alterius materteræ Domini fuerunt filii. IIda Maria Jacobi Minoris et Joseph mater, uxor Alphæi soror fuit Mariæ, matris Domini, quam Cleophæ Joannes nominat (xix. 25), vel à patre vel à gentilitatis familiâ vel aliâ causâ. IIItia Maria Salome vel à viro, vel à vico, dicitur: hanc eandem Cleophæ quidam dicunt, quòd duos viros habuerit."

[2] ἀνόητον—a strong term (which it has become necessary to point out), showing what would have been the opinion of St. Chrysostom and the Church in his age, of the doctrine now enforced as an article of faith; viz. that of the exemption of the Blessed Virgin from original and actual sin.

τοῦ Πατρός μου τοῦ ἐν οὐρανοῖς, αὐτός μου ἀδελφὸς καὶ ἀδελφὴ καὶ μήτηρ ἐστίν.

XIII. ($\frac{131}{11}$) [1] [a] Ἐν δὲ τῇ ἡμέρᾳ ἐκείνῃ ἐξελθὼν ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἀπὸ τῆς οἰκίας, ἐκάθητο παρὰ τὴν θάλασσαν· [2] καὶ συνήχθησαν πρὸς αὐτὸν ὄχλοι πολλοί, ὥστε αὐτὸν εἰς τὸ πλοῖον ἐμβάντα καθῆσθαι· καὶ πᾶς ὁ ὄχλος ἐπὶ τὸν αἰγιαλὸν εἱστήκει. [3] Καὶ ἐλάλησεν αὐτοῖς πολλὰ ἐν παραβολαῖς, λέγων, Ἰδοὺ ἐξῆλθεν ὁ σπείρων τοῦ σπείρειν· [4] καὶ ἐν τῷ σπείρειν αὐτὸν, ἃ μὲν ἔπεσε παρὰ τὴν ὁδόν, καὶ ἦλθε τὰ πετεινὰ καὶ κατέφαγεν αὐτά. [5] Ἄλλα δὲ ἔπεσεν ἐπὶ τὰ πετρώδη, ὅπου οὐκ εἶχε γῆν πολλήν· καὶ εὐθέως ἐξανέτειλε, διὰ τὸ μὴ ἔχειν βάθος γῆς· [6] ἡλίου δὲ ἀνατείλαντος, ἐκαυματίσθη, καὶ, διὰ τὸ μὴ ἔχειν ῥίζαν, ἐξηράνθη. [7] Ἄλλα δὲ ἔπεσεν ἐπὶ τὰς ἀκάνθας· καὶ ἀνέβησαν αἱ ἄκανθαι καὶ ἀπέπνιξαν αὐτά. [8] Ἄλλα δὲ ἔπεσεν ἐπὶ τὴν γῆν τὴν καλήν· καὶ ἐδίδου καρπὸν, ὃ μὲν ἑκατὸν, ὃ δὲ ἑξήκοντα, ὃ δὲ τριάκοντα. [9] Ὁ ἔχων ὦτα ἀκούειν, ἀκουέτω. [10] Καὶ προσελθόντες οἱ μαθηταὶ εἶπον αὐτῷ, Διατί ἐν παραβολαῖς λαλεῖς αὐτοῖς; [11] [b] Ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, ὅτι ὑμῖν δέδοται γνῶναι

[a] Mark 4. 1. Luke 8. 4.

[b] ch. 16. 17. 1 Cor. 2. 10. 1 John 2. 27.

Thee, and the paps that Thou hast sucked; He did not say She is not My Mother, but if she desires to be blessed let her do the will of God; He said, yea, rather, blessed are they that hear the word of God, and keep it (St. Luke xi. 27). Chrys.

See also St. Aug. (in Joan. Tract. x.) "Mater mea quam appellatis felicem, inde felix est quia verbum Dei audit non quia in illâ verbum caro factum est, sed quia custodit ipsum verbum Dei, per quod facta est et quod in illâ caro factum est."

How many women have blessed that Holy Virgin and her womb, and have desired to be such a mother as she was! What hinders them? Christ has made for us a wide way to this happiness: and not only women, but men may tread it; the way of Obedience, this is it which makes such a mother—not the throes of parturition. (Chrys.)

CH. XIII. 3. ἐν παραβολαῖς] Hebr. מְשָׁלִים (meshalim), from root מָשָׁל (mashal), to compare, make like. See Ps. xlix. 12. Isaiah xiv. 10; xlvi. 5, and from the frequent use of comparisons in short pithy sayings among the Orientals (see the Talmud, passim, Cod. Berachoth, Cod. Schabbath, &c.). The word mashal often signifies some sententious adage, apophthegm, or speech (αἶνος, ἀπόλογος),—and therefore Balaam's prophecy is so called [1], Numb. xxiii. 18; xxiv. 15. Cp. Isa. xiv. 4. 2 Chron. vii. 20; and Job's speech, xxvii. 1.

The word παραβολὴ had been applied by the LXX to the Proverbs of Solomon (1 Kings iv. 32, ἐλάλησε τρισχιλίας παραβολάς); but the Proverbs are inscribed παροιμίαι, which is a more general term. See John xvi. 25.

— Ἰδοὺ ἐξῆλθεν] See Clem. Rom. § 24, p. 101.

This Chapter may be described as containing a Divine Treatise on the Church Militant here on earth. The Parables in it form a whole, representing the true nature of the βασιλεία τοῦ Θεοῦ, or of the Christian Church as far as it is visible.

That of the Sower (v. 3), explained by Christ Himself (Matt. xiii. 18. Mark iv. 14. Luke viii. 11), exhibits Christ going forth to sow the Seed of the Word, and the various reception of the same divine seed by various persons, according to their disposition and tempers, and their resistance or non-resistance to the temptations of the World, the Flesh, and the Devil; and it brings out the doctrine that we must take heed how we hear (Luke viii. 10), and receive with meekness the engrafted Word. (James i. 21.)

That of the Tares and Wheat (v. 24) accounts for the existence of Evil in this world, and declares that it is not from [2] God, at the same time that it assures us of God's perfect goodness, and of His desire and design (short of compulsion) that the whole world should be saved; for as our Lord declares, "the Field is the World,"—that is, in His Will and design the Church is co-extensive with the World; it assures us also of the preservation of Good, and of the continuance of the Church Visible unto the End; and of the future, full, and final Victory of Good over Evil, and of the everlasting reward of Virtue, and eternal punishment of Sin.

It therefore warns us not to be staggered and perplexed by the temporary triumphs of Evil, or of Heresy and Schism in the Church, and of Vice in the World. It inculcates the duties of Faith, Stedfastness, Patience, Forbearance, Courage, Hope, and Love; and of maintaining unity in the Church, and of endeavouring to reclaim the erring and to overcome evil with good.

That of the Grain of Mustard-seed (v. 31) is prophetic of the growth of the Gospel from very small beginnings throughout the whole world, and of the reception of Gentile Nations beneath its shadow, as birds of the air flock to, and nestle in, the branches of a tree. And it calls attention to the marvellous and continued propagation of the Gospel, as indicating that it is from God, and will ever be protected by His Omnipotence and Love.

That of the Leaven (v. 33) calls attention to human agency,—especially to that of the Church,—symbolized by the woman employed as God's chosen instrument in this divine work of evangelization, and it reminds all and each member of the Church of their missionary duties.

These Parables being prophetic, are designed to afford evidence of the truth of Christianity; and they have given, and will ever continue to give such evidence, by their gradual accomplishment in the diffusion of the Gospel of Christ.

The Parable of the Treasure found in the field (v. 44), intimates that God, of His own accord, discovers the truth to persons engaged in doing their duty, if they have such dispositions as would lead them to sell all for the truth's sake.

The Parable of the Pearl (v. 45) indicates that if men seek for truth, with a readiness to sell all for it, they will certainly find it.

Both these Parables inculcate the duty of forming and cherishing such a temper as would dispose us to purchase Truth at any cost, and not to sell it at any price.

The Parable of the Draw-net (v. 47) intimates the use made by God of the Fishers of men, to draw the Net of the Gospel through the sea of this world; and teaches, that in this net—i. e. in the Church Visible on Earth—there are and ever will be, some of every kind, bad fish mingled with good; but that at last the net will be drawn to shore; and then, at the end of the world, a severance will be made for ever of the good from the bad, and some be saved and others lost.

"On the last (or seventh Parable)," says Alexander Knox [3], "that of the Net, I need not dwell. Like the Seventh Seal and the Seventh Trumpet in the Apocalypse, it apparently does little more than mark the final close."

But this may be added, that it declares

That the present mixed state of the Visible Church will continue to the end.

That the Missionary work of the Church will also continue to the end.

That the Net of Evangelical Preaching will be drawn through the whole Sea of the World.

That there is a judgment to come.

These truths—inculcating the Christian duties of charity, patience, zeal, faith, hope, and watchfulness, are propounded in the last parable as being of special importance and requiring continual attention.

It is observable, that all these parables concerning the βασιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν are declaratory rather of the condition of the Church in its present mixed and imperfect state on earth, than of its future condition when cleansed from all taint and blemish in heaven; i. e. they teach us to lay very great stress on the performance of present duty, in order to future glory.

9. ὁ ἔχων ὦτα ἀκούειν] A solemn saying, showing man's great proneness to inattention, and the absolute necessity of attention to Christ's words, and therefore often repeated by our Lord on earth and even from heaven, after His ascension. See Matt. xi. 15; xiii. 43; and Rev. ii. 7, "He that hath an ear," &c. Rev. ii. 11. 17. 29; iii. 6. 13. 22.

11. ὑμῖν δέδοται] Faith, therefore, and knowledge of truth, are

---

[1] See Vorst. de Hebr. p. 140, and Glass. Philol. Sacr. pp. 217—224. 914, and Notes on the Parables by Rev. R. C. Trench, B.D., Lond. 1853, fifth edition, and Olshausen's note here, who refers with commendation to Unger's work, De Parabolarum Jesu Naturâ et Interpretatione, Lips. 1828. A list of works on the Parables will be found in Mr. Trench's excellent Volume, pp. 520—523. For some topographical illustrations see Stanley, Palest., p. 409—23.

[2] Cp. Iren. iv. 29.

[3] Remains, i. p. 425, where are some excellent remarks on these parables. Cp. Aug. Quæst. in Matth. i. 10—16.

c ch. 25. 29. Mark 4. 25. Luke 8. 18. & 19. 26.

τὰ μυστήρια τῆς βασιλείας τῶν οὐρανῶν, ἐκείνοις δὲ οὐ δέδοται. (133 V) 12 c ὅστις γὰρ ἔχει, δοθήσεται αὐτῷ καὶ περισσευθήσεται· ὅστις δὲ οὐκ ἔχει, καὶ ὃ ἔχει, ἀρθήσεται ἀπ' αὐτοῦ. (133 I) 13 Διὰ τοῦτο ἐν παραβολαῖς αὐτοῖς λαλῶ· ὅτι d Isa. 6. 9. Mark 4. 12. Luke 8. 10. John 12. 40. Acts 28. 26. Rom. 11. 8.

βλέποντες, οὐ βλέπουσι, καὶ ἀκούοντες οὐκ ἀκούουσιν, οὐδὲ συνιοῦσι. 14 d Καὶ ἀναπληροῦται αὐτοῖς ἡ προφητεία Ἡσαΐου ἡ λέγουσα, Ἀκοῇ ἀκούσετε, καὶ οὐ μὴ συνῆτε· καὶ βλέποντες βλέψετε, καὶ οὐ μὴ ἴδητε. 15 ἐπαχύνθη γὰρ ἡ καρδία τοῦ λαοῦ τούτου, καὶ τοῖς ὠσὶ βαρέως ἤκουσαν, καὶ τοὺς ὀφθαλμοὺς αὐτῶν ἐκάμμυσαν· μήποτε ἴδωσι τοῖς ὀφθαλμοῖς, καὶ τοῖς ὠσὶν ἀκούσωσι, καὶ τῇ καρδίᾳ συνῶσι, e ch. 16. 17. Luke 10. 23.

καὶ ἐπιστρέψωσι, καὶ ἰάσωμαι αὐτούς. (134 V) 16 e Ὑμῶν δὲ μακάριοι οἱ ὀφθαλμοί, ὅτι βλέπουσι· καὶ τὰ ὦτα ὑμῶν, ὅτι ἀκούει. 17 Ἀμὴν γὰρ λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι πολλοὶ προφῆται καὶ δίκαιοι ἐπεθύμησαν ἰδεῖν ἃ βλέπετε, καὶ οὐκ

f Mark 4. 14, &c. Luke 8. 11, &c.

εἶδον· καὶ ἀκοῦσαι ἃ ἀκούετε, καὶ οὐκ ἤκουσαν. (135 II) 18 f Ὑμεῖς οὖν ἀκούσατε τὴν παραβολὴν τοῦ σπείροντος. 19 Παντὸς ἀκούοντος τὸν λόγον τῆς βασιλείας καὶ μὴ συνιέντος, ἔρχεται ὁ πονηρὸς καὶ ἁρπάζει τὸ ἐσπαρμένον ἐν τῇ καρδίᾳ g Isa. 58. 2. John 5. 35.

αὐτοῦ· οὗτός ἐστιν ὁ παρὰ τὴν ὁδὸν σπαρείς. 20 g Ὁ δὲ ἐπὶ τὰ πετρώδη σπαρείς, οὗτός ἐστιν ὁ τὸν λόγον ἀκούων, καὶ εὐθὺς μετὰ χαρᾶς λαμβάνων αὐτόν· 21 οὐκ ἔχει δὲ ῥίζαν ἐν ἑαυτῷ, ἀλλὰ πρόσκαιρός ἐστι· γενομένης δὲ θλίψεως ἢ διωγμοῦ διὰ τὸν λόγον, εὐθὺς σκανδαλίζεται. 22 Ὁ δὲ εἰς τὰς ἀκάνθας σπαρείς, οὗτός ἐστιν ὁ τὸν λόγον ἀκούων, καὶ ἡ μέριμνα τοῦ αἰῶνος τούτου, καὶ ἡ ἀπάτη τοῦ πλούτου συμπνίγει τὸν λόγον, καὶ ἄκαρπος γίνεται. 23 Ὁ δὲ ἐπὶ τὴν γῆν τὴν καλὴν σπαρείς, οὗτός ἐστιν ὁ τὸν λόγον ἀκούων καὶ συνιὼν· ὃς δὴ καρποφορεῖ, καὶ ποιεῖ ὁ μὲν ἑκατόν, ὁ δὲ ἑξήκοντα, ὁ δὲ τριάκοντα.

(136 X) 24 Ἄλλην παραβολὴν παρέθηκεν αὐτοῖς, λέγων, Ὡμοιώθη ἡ βασιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν ἀνθρώπῳ σπείροντι καλὸν σπέρμα ἐν τῷ ἀγρῷ αὐτοῦ· 25 ἐν δὲ τῷ καθεύδειν τοὺς ἀνθρώπους, ἦλθεν αὐτοῦ ὁ ἐχθρὸς, καὶ ἔσπειρε ζιζάνια ἀνὰ μέσον τοῦ σίτου, καὶ ἀπῆλθεν. 26 Ὅτε δὲ ἐβλάστησεν ὁ χόρτος, καὶ καρπὸν ἐποίησε, τότε ἐφάνη καὶ τὰ ζιζάνια. 27 προσελθόντες δὲ οἱ δοῦλοι τοῦ οἰκοδεσπότου, εἶπον αὐτῷ, Κύριε, οὐχὶ καλὸν σπέρμα ἔσπειρας ἐν τῷ σῷ ἀγρῷ; πόθεν οὖν ἔχει ζιζάνια; 28 Ὁ δὲ ἔφη αὐτοῖς, Ἐχθρὸς ἄνθρωπος τοῦτο ἐποίησεν. Οἱ δὲ δοῦλοι εἶπον αὐτῷ, Θέλεις οὖν ἀπελθόντες συλλέξωμεν αὐτά; 29 Ὁ

God's gifts to be sought by prayer. Hence the ignorance and folly of the wise, i. e. of those who deem themselves so, such as Scribes and Pharisees, and all who are like them; and hence Christ spake in parables, which would be intelligible to all who pray for grace to understand them, but not to those who despise Him and esteem themselves; and thus the Parables were designed as a moral trial and visible manifestation of men's tempers, whether they are fit for the Kingdom of Heaven, which these parables describe.

— μυστήρια] μυστήριον either from Gr. μύω, μίμυσται, claudo; or (as Casaubon and others suppose) from Hebr. מִסְתָּר (mistar), from root סָתַר (sathar), occultavit; hence something which is involved, or concealed, or symbolized by something external, as the soul in the body,—a sacramentum.

12. οὐκ ἔχει] For a person is not supposed to have if he does not use what he has. God intends that His gifts shall be χρήματα, not κτήματα.

14. ἡ προφητεία Ἡσαΐου] Isa. vi. 9. The verbs are imperative in the original, here they are future (as also Acts xxviii. 26). This deserves notice, as explaining this and other similar prophecies, where the sin of man seems to be represented as due to the will of God. The Holy Spirit here teaches us how these prophecies are to be understood, viz. as Divine declarations of the future; and He confirms the LXX interpretation, who had already rendered them in this way, and whose words He adopts here literatim.

By employing here and in other places the LXX, and in not doing so always (see above, xii. 18), He shows that the sense given in the former cases is a correct and clear sense; and in the latter cases He intimates, that though it may be a correct sense, yet it is not so clear as is desirable for those (i. e. for the Gentiles as well as Jews) to whom the Gospels are delivered, and for whom they were written.

15. ἐκάμμυσαν] "Ergo Deus eos sanare voluerat." (Beng.)

19. οὗτος] It is observable that all the Evangelists use the masculine gender here, i. e. they consider the person as sown; that is, the seed is not responsible for the use made of the seed; but the person who receives the seed is responsible, and is therefore identified with it: the seed passes into him, is moulded up with him, and assumes his nature, it loses, as it were, its own gender and number, and takes his. See Mark iv. 16. 18, οἱ σπειρόμενοι, and Luke viii. 13, οἱ ἐπὶ πέτρας.

25. ζιζάνια] 'Talmudici nominant, זוּנִין (zonim)[1],' a degenerate wheat, and which may also be reclaimed into wheat.

26. ἐφάνη τὰ ζιζάνια] The Tares were apparent. This, combined with v. 30, supplies an answer to those who say that heretics may be destroyed by force if they are known to be such. (Chrys.) Aug. Qu. in Matt. qu. 2. In such a case, if they remain obstinate, they are indeed to be separated by the wholesome exercise of Church Discipline from Communion with the Church in holy offices (see Matt. xviii. 17. 1 Cor. v. 5. 9. Article xxxiii.), and therefore this parable gives no countenance to the Erastian[2] theory that all Church power consists merely in persuasion. On the other hand, they are not to be eradicated from the soil, because, through the frailty of human judgment, what may seem to be ζιζάνια, tares, may not be ζιζάνια, and wheat may be rooted up as tares; and because what are now degenerate wheat, may one day become good wheat, and be gathered as such into the garner of heaven. (Cp. Jerome here.)

[1] Tractat Kilaim, I. Halach 1 (Melchior. apud Mintert in v.), "genus seminis quod tritici erat non absimile, verum degenerabat." See Winer, Lex. sub v. Loich, oder Tollkorn. Latin Lolium temulentum. Virg. Georg. i. 154. Fr. yvroie. See also Trench, p. 91.

[2] Cp. Hammond on the Power of the Keys, i. p. 429. Bp. Sanderson, Prælect. vii. 29. Archd. Pott, On Christian Sovereignty, p. 24.

δὲ ἔφη, Οὔ· μήποτε συλλέγοντες τὰ ζιζάνια, ἐκριζώσητε ἅμα αὐτοῖς τὸν σῖτον· 30 h ἄφετε συναυξάνεσθαι ἀμφότερα μέχρι τοῦ θερισμοῦ, καὶ ἐν καιρῷ τοῦ θερισμοῦ ἐρῶ τοῖς θερισταῖς, Συλλέξατε πρῶτον τὰ ζιζάνια, καὶ δήσατε αὐτὰ εἰς δέσμας πρὸς τὸ κατακαῦσαι αὐτά, τὸν δὲ σῖτον συναγάγετε εἰς τὴν ἀποθήκην μου. h ch. 3. 12.

(187/II) 31 i Ἄλλην παραβολὴν παρέθηκεν αὐτοῖς, λέγων, Ὁμοία ἐστὶν ἡ βασιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν κόκκῳ σινάπεως, ὃν λαβὼν ἄνθρωπος ἔσπειρεν ἐν τῷ ἀγρῷ αὐτοῦ· 32 ὃ μικρότερον μέν ἐστι πάντων τῶν σπερμάτων, ὅταν δὲ αὐξηθῇ, μεῖζον τῶν λαχάνων ἐστὶ, καὶ γίνεται δένδρον, ὥστε ἐλθεῖν τὰ πετεινὰ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ καὶ κατασκηνοῦν ἐν τοῖς κλάδοις αὐτοῦ. i Mark 4. 30. Luke 13. 8.

(188/V) 33 k Ἄλλην παραβολὴν ἐλάλησεν αὐτοῖς· Ὁμοία ἐστὶν ἡ βασιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν ζύμῃ, ἣν λαβοῦσα γυνὴ ἐνέκρυψεν εἰς ἀλεύρου σάτα τρία, ἕως οὗ ἐζυμώθη ὅλον. k Luke 13. 20.

(189/VI) 34 Ταῦτα πάντα ἐλάλησεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἐν παραβολαῖς τοῖς ὄχλοις· καὶ χωρὶς παραβολῆς οὐκ ἐλάλει αὐτοῖς· 35 l ὅπως πληρωθῇ τὸ ῥηθὲν διὰ τοῦ προφήτου λέγοντος, Ἀνοίξω ἐν παραβολαῖς τὸ στόμα μου· ἐρεύξομαι κεκρυμμένα ἀπὸ καταβολῆς κόσμου. l Ps. 78. 2.

(190/X) 36 Τότε ἀφεὶς τοὺς ὄχλους, ἦλθεν εἰς τὴν οἰκίαν ὁ Ἰησοῦς· καὶ προσῆλθον αὐτῷ οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ, λέγοντες, Φράσον ἡμῖν τὴν παραβολὴν τῶν ζιζανίων τοῦ ἀγροῦ. 37 Ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Ὁ σπείρων τὸ καλὸν σπέρμα ἔστιν ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου· 38 m ὁ δὲ ἀγρὸς ἔστιν ὁ κόσμος· τὸ δὲ καλὸν σπέρμα, οὗτοί εἰσιν οἱ υἱοὶ τῆς βασιλείας· τὰ δὲ ζιζάνια, εἰσὶν οἱ υἱοὶ τοῦ m Gen. 3. 15. John 8. 44. Acts 13. 10. 1 John 3. 8.

---

30. ἄφετε συναυξάνεσθαι] For ancient expositions of doctrine to be derived from this Parable, and also from that of the Drawnet; with which we may compare the words of the Baptist concerning the Chaff and the Wheat, Matt. iii. 12, Luke iii. 17, which were generally associated by the Fathers with these parables [1]; see foot note.

Among English Divines we may refer to the words of Hooker, iii. 1. 8 and 10, "Our Saviour compareth His Church unto a field, where Tares manifestly known and seen by all men do grow intermingled with good corn, and even so shall continue till the full consummation of the world. God hath ever, and ever shall have, some Church Visible upon earth. The Church of Christ which was from the beginning is, and continueth unto the end. Of which Church all parts have not been always equally sincere and sound."

And, again, lxvi. 6. "The (Visible) Church of God (on earth) (i. e. as far as it is an object for the sense and judgment of man) may contain them which are not indeed His, yet (by reason of their outward profession of Christ) must be reputed His by us, that know not their inward thoughts.

"For to this, and no other purpose, are meant those Parables which our Saviour in the Gospel hath, concerning mixture of Vice with Virtue, Light with Darkness, Truth with Error, as well and openly known and seen as cunningly cloaked."

So Bp. Pearson, On the Creed, art. ix., "Within the notion of the Church (Visible on Earth) are comprehended good and bad, being both externally called. For the kingdom of heaven is like unto a Field, in which wheat and tares grow together unto the harvest; like unto a Net that was cast into the sea, and gathered of every kind; like unto a Floor, in which is laid up wheat and chaff. I conclude, therefore, as the ancient Catholics did against the Donatists, that within the Church, in the public profession and external Communion thereof, are contained persons truly good and sanctified, and hereafter saved; and, together with them, other persons, hereafter to be damned."

See also Bp. Beveridge and Professor Browne, on Article xxvi.

31. σινάπεως] The Talmudic חַרְדָּל (chardel or chardlo), Mischna Schabb 20, 2. The Rabbis speak of it as a tree, Sinapis nigra [2].

33. ζύμῃ] 'fermentum,' from ζέω, 'ferveo,' sour dough. Hebr. חָמֵץ (chamets), so called from its acid and fermenting quality, whence it had been employed figuratively in the Old Testament (Hosea vii. 4) for what diffuses itself.

— σάτα τρία] σάτον. Hebr. סְאָה (seath), ⅓ of an ephah.

— ἕως οὗ ἐζυμώθη ὅλον] Till the whole ephah (the same size as the Bath) of the world be leavened. "Sanctificatur enim per Ecclesiæ velut quoddam fermentantis officium Scripturarumque doctrinam." (St. Ambrose, on Luke xiii. 21.) The indicative ἐζυμώθη (not subjunctive ζυμωθῇ) shows that the whole will be leavened.

35. τοῦ προφήτου] From Ps. lxxviii. 2, attributed to Asaph. St. Matthew here follows the LXX in the former part of the quotation, but in the latter אַבִּיעָה חִידוֹת מִנֵּי קֶדֶם (abiya chidoth minny-kedem), where the LXX have φθέγξομαι προβλήματα ἀπ' ἀρχῆς, he has paraphrastically, but more strongly and expressively, ἐρεύξομαι (a word properly applied to Him who is the Fountain of living waters) κεκρυμμένα ἀπὸ καταβολῆς κόσμου. See Surenhus. pp. 245, 246

This is a difficult passage. If we examine the lxxviiith Psalm, we find it to be a History of the Ancient Church in the Wilderness. And it commences with the solemn appeal, "Hear My Law, O My People," words only appropriate in the mouth of God. And in the second verse historical records are called parables and dark sayings (chidoth), piercing words (from rad. חוד, mucro), ἀντίκεντρα.

The solution of these questions seems to be given by the Holy Spirit in the present passage applying those words to Christ. Christ speaks by Asaph. Christ calls on His people to hear His Law. And the historical records of the Ancient Church are dark sayings, for they are τύποι εὐαγγελίου. As St. Paul shows (1 Cor. x. 11), they are figures of the βασιλεία τοῦ οὐρανοῦ, symbols of the Christian Church; not only true Histories, but Prophetical Parables in action [3], and so they belong to the same system of Divine Teaching as the

---

[1] See particularly the doctrinal and practical instruction deduced from them by St. Augustine, in his works against the Donatists, particularly in vol. ix. ed. Benedict. See also, e. g. Sermon lxxxviii. 21, 22. p. 687. Some passages are quoted in Theophilus Anglicanus, part i. ch. ii., e. g. as follows:—St. Aug. iv. 497 (addressing the Donatists), says, "Tolera et zizania, si triticum es; tolera paleam, si triticum es; tolera pisces malos inter retia, si piscis bonus es. Quare ante tempus ventilationis avolâsti? Quare ante tempus messis frumenta eradicâsti tecum? quare, antequam ad littus venires, retia disrupisti?"—And v. 129, "Geme in aræ ut paucos in horreo."

Again, Epist. cv. 16, "Quos corrigere non valemus, etiamsi necessitas cogit pro salute cæterorum ut Dei Sacramenta nobiscum communicent, peccatis tamen eorum non communicemus, quod non fit nisi consentiendo et faciendo. Sic enim eos in isto mundo, in quo Ecclesia catholica per omnes gentes diffunditur, quam agrum suum Dominus dicit, tanquam zizania inter triticum, vel in hâc unitatis aræâ tanquam paleam permixtam frumento, vel intra retia verbi et sacramenti tanquam malos pisces cum bonis inclusos, usque ad tempus messis aut ventilationis aut littoris toleramus, ne propter illos eradicemus et triticum, aut grana nuda ante tempus de aræâ separata, non in horreum mittenda purgemus, sed volatilibus colligenda projiciamus; aut disruptis per schismata retibus, dum quasi malos pisces cavemus, in mare perniciosæ libertatis exeamus."

St. Cyprian, de Unit. Eccles. p. 111: "Nemo existimet bonos Ecclesiâ posse discedere. Triticum non rapit ventus; inanes paleæ tempestate jactantur." And Epist. liv. p. 99: "Etsi videntur in Ecclesiâ esse zizania, non tamen impediri debet aut fides aut caritas nostra, ut, quoniam zizania esse in Ecclesiâ cernimus, ipsi de Ecclesiâ recedamus. Nobis tantummodo laborandum est ut frumentum esse possimus, ut, cùm ceperit frumentum Dominicis horreis condi, fructum pro opere nostro et labore capiamus."

[2] See Linnæan Transact. xxii. p. 450. Billerbeck, Flora Classica, p. 172. Winer, Lex. v. Senf.

[3] As far as the People of Israel was a son of God, they were a type of Christ: the Holy Spirit applies to Christ a passage of Hosea spoken of Israel, "Out of Egypt have I called my Son." See above, ii. 15. In this respect, also, their history is parabolical, and is so treated by the Holy Spirit in the Gospel.

n Rev. 14. 14. Joel 3. 13.

Πονηροῦ. 39 [n] ὁ δὲ ἐχθρὸς ὁ σπείρας αὐτὰ ἔστιν ὁ Διάβολος· ὁ δὲ θερισμὸς συντέλεια τοῦ αἰῶνός ἐστιν· οἱ δὲ θερισταὶ ἄγγελοί εἰσιν. 40 [o] Ὥσπερ οὖν συλλέγεται τὰ ζιζάνια καὶ πυρὶ κατακαίεται, οὕτως ἔσται ἐν τῇ συντελείᾳ τοῦ αἰῶνος τούτου· 41 ἀποστελεῖ ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου τοὺς ἀγγέλους αὐτοῦ, καὶ συλλέξουσιν ἐκ τῆς βασιλείας αὐτοῦ πάντα τὰ σκάνδαλα, καὶ τοὺς ποιοῦντας τὴν ἀνομίαν, o ch. 8. 12.

42 [o] καὶ βαλοῦσιν αὐτοὺς εἰς τὴν κάμινον τοῦ πυρός· ἐκεῖ ἔσται ὁ κλαυθμὸς καὶ ὁ βρυγμὸς τῶν ὀδόντων.

p Dan. 12. 3. ver. 9.

43 [p] Τότε οἱ δίκαιοι ἐκλάμψουσιν ὡς ὁ ἥλιος ἐν τῇ βασιλείᾳ τοῦ Πατρὸς αὐτῶν. Ὁ ἔχων ὦτα ἀκούειν, ἀκουέτω.

q Prov. 2. 4. & 3. 13.

44 [q] Πάλιν ὁμοία ἐστὶν ἡ βασιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν θησαυρῷ κεκρυμμένῳ ἐν τῷ ἀγρῷ· ὃν εὑρὼν ἄνθρωπος ἔκρυψε, καὶ ἀπὸ τῆς χαρᾶς αὐτοῦ ὑπάγει, καὶ πάντα ὅσα ἔχει πωλεῖ, καὶ ἀγοράζει τὸν ἀγρὸν ἐκεῖνον.

r Prov. 8. 11.

45 [r] Πάλιν ὁμοία ἐστὶν ἡ βασιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν ἀνθρώπῳ ἐμπόρῳ ζητοῦντι καλοὺς μαργαρίτας· 46 ὃς εὑρὼν ἕνα πολύτιμον μαργαρίτην, ἀπελθὼν πέπρακε πάντα ὅσα εἶχε, καὶ ἠγόρασεν αὐτόν.

47 Πάλιν ὁμοία ἐστὶν ἡ βασιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν σαγήνῃ βληθείσῃ εἰς τὴν θάλασσαν, καὶ ἐκ παντὸς γένους συναγαγούσῃ· 48 ἣν, ὅτε ἐπληρώθη, ἀναβιβάσαντες ἐπὶ τὸν αἰγιαλὸν καὶ καθίσαντες συνέλεξαν τὰ καλὰ εἰς ἀγγεῖα, τὰ δὲ σαπρὰ ἔξω ἔβαλον.

s ch. 25. 32.

49 [s] Οὕτως ἔσται ἐν τῇ συντελείᾳ τοῦ αἰῶνος· ἐξελεύσονται οἱ ἄγγελοι, καὶ ἀφοριοῦσι τοὺς πονηροὺς ἐκ μέσου τῶν δικαίων, t ver. 42. 2 Thess. 1. 7—10.

50 [t] καὶ βαλοῦσιν αὐτοὺς εἰς τὴν κάμινον τοῦ πυρός· ἐκεῖ ἔσται ὁ κλαυθμὸς καὶ ὁ βρυγμὸς τῶν ὀδόντων. 51 Λέγει αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Συνήκατε ταῦτα πάντα; λέγουσιν αὐτῷ, Ναί, Κύριε. 52 Ὁ δὲ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Διὰ τοῦτο πᾶς γραμματεὺς μαθητευθεὶς εἰς τὴν βασιλείαν τῶν οὐρανῶν ὁμοιός ἐστιν ἀνθρώπῳ οἰκοδεσπότῃ, ὅστις ἐκβάλλει ἐκ τοῦ θησαυροῦ αὐτοῦ καινὰ καὶ παλαιά.

53 Καὶ ἐγένετο, ὅτε ἐτέλεσεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς τὰς παραβολὰς ταύτας, μετῆρεν u Mark 6. 1, 2. Luke 4. 16.

ἐκεῖθεν (141/1) 54 [u] καὶ ἐλθὼν εἰς τὴν πατρίδα αὐτοῦ, ἐδίδασκεν αὐτοὺς ἐν τῇ συναγωγῇ αὐτῶν, ὥστε ἐκπλήσσεσθαι αὐτοὺς καὶ λέγειν, Πόθεν τούτῳ ἡ σοφία αὕτη καὶ αἱ δυνάμεις;

v John 6. 42. ch. 12. 46. Mark 6. 3.

55 [v] Οὐχ οὗτός ἐστιν ὁ τοῦ τέκτονος υἱός; οὐχὶ ἡ μήτηρ αὐτοῦ λέγεται Μαριὰμ, καὶ οἱ ἀδελφοὶ αὐτοῦ Ἰάκωβος καὶ Ἰωσῆς spoken Parables of this chapter; and the same words may be applied to both, "I will open my mouth in Parables."

---

41. τοὺς ἀγγέλους αὐτοῦ] His Angels, the Angels belonging to Christ. He is therefore God.

— σκάνδαλα] offensiones, προσκόμματα, σκάζω, claudico, Hebr. מכשול, offendiculum, a scandal, or cause of stumbling and of sin. And σκανδαλίζω, to cause to stumble or sin.

For an excellent account of these words, see Vorst. de Hebr. pp. 87—101.

44—52. θησαυροῦ] Christ is the treasure hid in the field; He is hid in the field of Holy Scripture, where He is presignified by types and parables. (Iren. iv. 26.) On these parables see the Hom. of Greg. M. in Evang. i. 11, p. 1473.

48. καθίσαντες] 'studiosè.' (Beng.)

52. γραμματεὺς—καινὰ καὶ παλαιά] A scribe, v. q. סופר (sopher), (Vorst. de Hebr. p. 83), a teacher (σοφὸς) connected with ספר (sepher), a book, i. e. an interpreter of the sacred Volume. Christ in His Parables, precepts, and prayers did not disdain to avail Himself of what was already received in the world. He built His religion on the foundation of the Old Testament, and also on the primæval basis of man's original constitution and nature rightly understood [1]. And He teaches His Apostles and Ministers not to reject any thing that is true, and therefore of God; but to avail themselves of what is old, in teaching what is new, and, by teaching what is new, to confirm what is old; to show that the Gospel is not contrary to the Law, and that both are from One and the Same Source (cp. Iren. iv. 9), in harmony with Nature (see Iren. iv. 13). and that One and the same God is Author of them all. God the Father is the Original of all; and God the Son, the Eternal Logos, Who manifests the Father by Creation and by Revelation,—Who made the World and Who Governs it,—is the Dispenser and Controller of all.

The necessity of this precept has been shown in the history of the Marcionite [2] and Manichæan [3] controversy, and in the erroneous teaching of some in more recent times, who either, on the one side, would set aside Revelation on the plea that Reason is sufficient [4], or, on the other side, would disparage Reason as if it were superseded by Revelation [5].

"The Apostles," says Jerome, "were like Christ's notaries, who registered His words on the tables of their hearts, and draw out from that storehouse of doctrine things new and old, proving what they preached in the Gospel by testimonies of the Law and the prophets; whence the Bride says in the Canticles, 'At our gates are all manner of pleasant fruits, new and old, which I have laid up for thee, O my beloved' (Cant. vii. 13)."

53. μετῆρεν] "Finem fecit habitandi Capernaumi. Deinceps ab Herode agitatus" (et ab incolis spretus et ut cæteris prædicaret) "minus uno loco mansit." (Bengel.)

54. πόθεν τούτῳ ἡ σοφία] Strange blindness in these Nazarenes! They wonder how Wisdom itself has wisdom, and how Power itself has power. But here was its cause, they deemed Him the Carpenter's Son. But their error is our safety; for thus His humanity is proved. (Jerome.)

55. ὁ τέκτονος υἱός] Mark vi. 3, ὁ τέκτων. Cf. Sozomen. vi. 2, who relates that when a Christian was scoffingly asked by a heathen, What the carpenter's son was doing? he answered that He was making a coffin for Julian.

— ἡ μήτηρ] Hence we may infer that Joseph was dead.

— Μαριὰμ, Ἰάκωβος] "Hos sic nominant quasi nil haberent nisi nomen." (Beng.)

— οἱ ἀδελφοί] See above, xii. 46. "Ἰάκωβος (i. e. minor) καὶ Ἰούδας auctores Epistolarum Canonicarum. . . . Simon vel Simeon successit fratri Jacobo in Episcopatû Hierosolymitano." Euseb. iii. 11 (à Lapide). Cp. Euseb. iv. 22.

Joses here seems to be the same as Joses in xxvii. 56. It is pro-

---

[1] See Bp. Butler's Sermons on Human Nature.
[2] See Tertullian, adv. Marcion, p. 365.
[3] See St. Aug. Works against the Manichæans, in vol. x. ed. Bened.
[4] See Leland's History of Deism, ii. 32. 182.
[5] See Hooker, I. xiv.; II. iv.; and II. viii. 7, and Bp. Sanderson's Prælections, Præl. iv. Works, vol. iv. 76. 142.

καὶ Σίμων καὶ Ἰούδας; 56 καὶ αἱ ἀδελφαὶ αὐτοῦ οὐχὶ πᾶσαι πρὸς ἡμᾶς εἰσι; πόθεν οὖν τούτῳ ταῦτα πάντα; 57 [w] καὶ ἐσκανδαλίζοντο ἐν αὐτῷ. (142/I) Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Οὐκ ἔστι προφήτης ἄτιμος, εἰ μὴ ἐν τῇ πατρίδι αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἐν τῇ οἰκίᾳ αὐτοῦ. 58 [x] Καὶ οὐκ ἐποίησεν ἐκεῖ δυνάμεις πολλὰς διὰ τὴν ἀπιστίαν αὐτῶν.

w Mark 6. 4. Luke 4. 24. John 4. 44.

x Mark 6. 5.

XIV. (143/II) 1 [a] Ἐν ἐκείνῳ τῷ καιρῷ ἤκουσεν Ἡρώδης ὁ τετράρχης τὴν ἀκοὴν Ἰησοῦ, 2 καὶ εἶπε τοῖς παισὶν αὐτοῦ, Οὗτός ἐστιν Ἰωάννης ὁ βαπτιστής· αὐτὸς ἠγέρθη ἀπὸ τῶν νεκρῶν, καὶ διὰ τοῦτο αἱ δυνάμεις ἐνεργοῦσιν ἐν αὐτῷ. (144/II) 3 [b] Ὁ γὰρ Ἡρώδης κρατήσας τὸν Ἰωάννην, ἔδησεν αὐτὸν καὶ ἔθετο ἐν φυλακῇ, διὰ Ἡρωδιάδα τὴν γυναῖκα Φιλίππου τοῦ ἀδελφοῦ αὐτοῦ· 4 ἔλεγε γὰρ αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰωάννης, Οὐκ ἔξεστί σοι ἔχειν αὐτήν. 5 [c] Καὶ θέλων αὐτὸν ἀποκτεῖναι, ἐφοβήθη τὸν ὄχλον, ὅτι ὡς προφήτην αὐτὸν εἶχον. (145/VI) 6 Γενεσίων δὲ ἀγομένων τοῦ Ἡρώδου, ὠρχήσατο ἡ θυγάτηρ τῆς Ἡρωδιάδος ἐν τῷ μέσῳ, καὶ ἤρεσε τῷ Ἡρῴδῃ· 7 ὅθεν μεθ' ὅρκου ὡμολόγησεν αὐτῇ δοῦναι ὃ ἐὰν αἰτήσηται. 8 Ἡ δὲ προβιβασθεῖσα ὑπὸ τῆς μητρὸς αὐτῆς, Δός μοι, φησὶν, ὧδε ἐπὶ πίνακι τὴν κεφαλὴν Ἰωάννου τοῦ βαπτιστοῦ. 9 Καὶ ἐλυπήθη ὁ βασιλεύς· διὰ δὲ τοὺς ὅρκους, καὶ τοὺς συνανακειμένους, ἐκέλευσε δοθῆναι· 10 καὶ πέμψας ἀπεκεφάλισε τὸν Ἰωάννην ἐν τῇ φυλακῇ. 11 Καὶ ἠνέχθη ἡ κεφαλὴ αὐτοῦ ἐπὶ πίνακι, καὶ ἐδόθη τῷ κορασίῳ· καὶ ἤνεγκε τῇ μητρὶ αὐτῆς. 12 Καὶ προσελθόντες οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ ἦραν τὸ σῶμα, καὶ ἔθαψαν αὐτό· καὶ ἐλθόντες ἀπήγγειλαν τῷ Ἰησοῦ. (146/III) 13 [d] Καὶ ἀκούσας ὁ Ἰησοῦς, ἀνεχώρησεν ἐκεῖθεν ἐν πλοίῳ εἰς ἔρημον τόπον κατ' ἰδίαν· καὶ ἀκούσαντες οἱ ὄχλοι, ἠκολούθησαν αὐτῷ πεζῇ ἀπὸ τῶν πόλεων.

a Mark 6. 14. Luke 9. 7.

b Mark 6. 17. Luke 3. 19.

c ch. 21. 26. Mark 6. 18, 19. Luke 20. 6.

d Mark 6. 32. Luke 9. 10. John 6. 2.

14 [e] Καὶ ἐξελθὼν ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶδε πολὺν ὄχλον, καὶ ἐσπλαγχνίσθη ἐπ' αὐτοῖς, καὶ ἐθεράπευσε τοὺς ἀῤῥώστους αὐτῶν. (147/I) 15 Ὀψίας δὲ γενομένης, προσῆλθον αὐτῷ οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ, λέγοντες, Ἔρημός ἐστιν ὁ τόπος, καὶ ἡ ὥρα

e Mark 6. 34, 35. Luke 9. 12. John 6. 5.

---

bable that the four persons here named were sons of Cleopas or Alphæus.

Ch. XIV. 1. Ἡρώδης ὁ τετράρχης] Antipas, or Antipater, son of Herod the king, by Malthace, a Samaritan woman. (Joseph. Ant. xviii. 1. 9.) Tetrarch or ruler of Galilee and Peræa. (Ibid. xvii. 8.) He had married the daughter of Aretas, King of Arabia, but deserted her for Herodias, daughter of Aristobulus, son of Herod the Great (Joseph. Ant. xviii. 5), and wife of Philip[1], son of Herod the Great by Mariamne (Joseph. ibid.). If a man died childless, his brother was commanded to marry his wife and raise up seed to his brother (Deut. xxv. 5). But if not, not. But Herod took to himself the wife of his brother, who had a daughter by him, and therefore John reproved him. (Chrys.)

Philip was alive at this time; and Herodias had issue then living by him; so that Herod was guilty of adultery. See Joseph. Ant. xviii. 6, 7. After the Baptist's death she commanded his dead body (πτῶμα, Mark vi. 29; σῶμα, Matt. xiv. 12) to be cast out in contempt without burial[2], which accounts for the fact recorded in connexion with it by the Evangelists. Josephus relates that the army of Herod was destroyed by Aretas, his father-in-law, on account of the outrage committed by Herod Antipas on his daughter, and that the current opinion among the Jews was that this destruction was a retribution on him from heaven for the murder of the Baptist (Ant. xviii. 7).

2. παισὶν] "Amicis et familiaribus suis: παισὶν id. qd. δούλοις, φίλοις, ut 2 Esr. i. 32. 1 Macc. i. 6. Etenim ab Hebræis עבדים dicuntur non modo ii, qui proprie servi sunt, sed etiam homines liberi et ingenui, ministri principum, regum, ac civitatum Orientis. Hinc interpretes Græci veteres עבד modo vertunt παῖς 1 Sam. xviii. 22. Jos. i. 7. 13, quo posteriori loco Symmachus habet δοῦλος, modo φίλος, ut Esth. ii. 18." (Kuin.)

3. ἔδησεν] The aorist, not for plusq. perf. But the writer takes himself and the reader back to a past point in the history, and writes from it; and so the sense is,—Herod, having apprehended John at that time, bound him, &c. Cp. xxvii. 60, and ἀπέστειλεν, John xviii. 24.

John the Baptist, who came in the power and spirit of Elias, rebuked Herod and Herodias, as Elijah did Ahab and Jezebel. (Jerome, Aug. de Cons. Ev. ii. 44.)

5. εἶχον] More than esteemed him as a Prophet; held him as a treasure; so that in killing him Herod robbed them. Cp. xxi. 26. 46.

6. γενεσίων ἀγομένων] Cp. Gen. xl. 20. On this sense of ἄγειν see Luke xxiv. 21. Acts xix. 38.

— ἡ θυγάτηρ] Called Salome. Joseph. Ant. xviii. 5. 4.

9. διὰ τοὺς ὅρκους] On the case of Herod's Oath, and other rash oaths like it, see Bp. Sanderson, Præl. iii. § 16, De Juramenti Obligatione, who compares it with the Oath of Ahasuerus, Est. v. 3—6; vii. 2, and with the promise of Solomon, 1 Kings ii. 20, "Esto Herodis juramentum nobis exemplum in castelum; esto illud Salomonis in imitationem, et meminerimus juramentum, sic indefinite prolatum, cum suâ justâ exceptione tantum esse semper intelligendum." See also Sanderson's "Case of a Rash Vow," v. pp. 61—74.

10. καὶ πέμψας] Probably at or near Machærus. On the history see Wieseler, p. 244, and above, xi. 2.

— ἀπεκεφάλισε] A proof that John was not the Christ. Cp. John xix. 36. (Beng.)

12. ἀπήγγειλαν τῷ Ἰησοῦ] Observe how the disciples of John had been conciliated by Jesus. They came and told Him of their Master's death. They take refuge with Him. They had been convinced by the answer which our Lord had given them, and the calamity which had happened to their Master was to them a providential corrective. (Chrys.) See above on xi. 2—14.

13. ἐν πλοίῳ εἰς ἔρημον τόπον κατ' ἰδίαν] From a comparison of this passage with Luke ix. 10 and John vi. 1, it appears that our Lord crossed the lake (ἀπῆλθε πέραν τῆς θαλάσσης, says St. John, vi. 1), and that the place to which he crossed was called Bethsaida. It has been supposed by some that this was the same as the town so called of Peter, Andrew, and Philip, which was near Capernaum on the west side of the Lake, but this is not consistent with the narrative.

The well known Bethsaida of Peter and Andrew (John i. 44) would hardly have been described by St. Luke, as this Bethsaida is, as a πόλις καλουμένη Βηθσαϊδά, and it is not surprising that there should be more than one place called Beth-saida (i. e. the place of fishing) near the lake. And there was on the northern shore a town called Bethsaida, or Julias. (Joseph. Ant. xvii. 2. 1; Bell. Jud. ii. 9.) Hence St. Matthew's expression, ἀνεχώρησεν ἐκεῖθεν, i.e. he retired from Capernaum and its neighbourhood; and went over the Sea to a more sequestered place. This was in the Spring, a little before the Passover. John vi. 4. Cp. on Luke ix. 10.

15. ἔρημός ἐστιν ὁ τόπος] Our Lord's Miracles of feeding the

---

[1] "Herodes Philippus h. l. memoratus, non debet confundi cum Herode Philippo, tetrarcha Iturææ et Trachonitidis, cujus mater fuit Cleopatra, sed notatur h. l. alius Herodis M. filius ignobilis et obscurus, qui, a patre exheredatus, vitam privatus transegit, susceptus e Mariamna, Simonis Pontificis M. filia: vid. Joseph. Ant. xvii. 6. B. I. i. 30. 7." (Kuin.)

[2] Hieron. c. Rufin. iii. 42. Nicephor. i. 19.

ἤδη παρῆλθεν· ἀπόλυσον τοὺς ὄχλους, ἵνα ἀπελθόντες εἰς τὰς κώμας ἀγοράσωσιν ἑαυτοῖς βρώματα. 16 Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Οὐ χρείαν ἔχουσιν ἀπελθεῖν· δότε αὐτοῖς ὑμεῖς φαγεῖν. 17 Οἱ δὲ λέγουσιν αὐτῷ, Οὐκ ἔχομεν ὧδε εἰ μὴ πέντε ἄρτους καὶ δύο ἰχθύας. 18 Ὁ δὲ εἶπε, Φέρετέ μοι αὐτοὺς ὧδε. 19 [f] Καὶ κελεύσας τοὺς ὄχλους ἀνακλιθῆναι ἐπὶ τοὺς χόρτους, λαβὼν τοὺς πέντε ἄρτους καὶ τοὺς δύο ἰχθύας, ἀναβλέψας εἰς τὸν οὐρανὸν εὐλόγησε· καὶ κλάσας ἔδωκε τοῖς μαθηταῖς τοὺς ἄρτους, οἱ δὲ μαθηταὶ τοῖς ὄχλοις. 20 [g] Καὶ ἔφαγον πάντες, καὶ ἐχορτάσθησαν. Καὶ ἦραν τὸ περισσεῦον τῶν κλασμάτων, δώδεκα κοφίνους πλήρεις. 21 Οἱ δὲ ἐσθίοντες ἦσαν ἄνδρες ὡσεὶ πεντακισχίλιοι, χωρὶς γυναικῶν καὶ παιδίων. (148/VI) 22 Καὶ εὐθέως ἠνάγκασεν τοὺς μαθητὰς ἐμβῆναι εἰς τὸ πλοῖον, καὶ προάγειν αὐτὸν εἰς τὸ πέραν, ἕως οὗ ἀπολύσῃ τοὺς ὄχλους. (149/II) 23 [h] Καὶ ἀπολύσας τοὺς ὄχλους, ἀνέβη εἰς τὸ ὄρος κατ' ἰδίαν προσεύξασθαι. (150/IV) Ὀψίας δὲ γενομένης μόνος ἦν ἐκεῖ. 24 Τὸ δὲ πλοῖον ἤδη μέσον τῆς θαλάσσης ἦν βασανιζόμενον ὑπὸ τῶν κυμάτων· ἦν γὰρ ἐναντίος ὁ ἄνεμος. 25 Τετάρτῃ δὲ φυλακῇ τῆς νυκτὸς ἀπῆλθε πρὸς αὐτοὺς περιπατῶν ἐπὶ τῆς θαλάσσης. 26 Καὶ ἰδόντες αὐτὸν οἱ μαθηταὶ ἐπὶ τὴν θάλασσαν περιπατοῦντα ἐταράχθησαν, λέγοντες ὅτι φάντασμά ἐστι· καὶ ἀπὸ τοῦ φόβου ἔκραξαν. 27 Εὐθέως δὲ ἐλάλησεν αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, λέγων, Θαρσεῖτε· ἐγώ εἰμι, μὴ φοβεῖσθε. (151/X) 28 Ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ αὐτῷ ὁ Πέτρος εἶπε, Κύριε, εἰ σὺ εἶ, κέλευσόν με πρός σε ἐλθεῖν ἐπὶ τὰ ὕδατα. 29 Ὁ δὲ εἶπεν, Ἐλθέ. καὶ καταβὰς ἀπὸ τοῦ πλοίου ὁ Πέτρος, περιεπάτησεν ἐπὶ τὰ ὕδατα, ἐλθεῖν πρὸς τὸν Ἰησοῦν· 30 βλέπων δὲ τὸν ἄνεμον ἰσχυρὸν ἐφοβήθη, καὶ ἀρξάμενος καταποντί-

f ch. 15. 36. & 26. 26. Mark 6. 39. Luke 9. 14.

g Mark 6. 42. Luke 9. 17.

h Mark 6. 46. John 6. 16.

Multitudes were wrought in a wilderness (see here and below, xv. 33); partly to make the miracle more evident and impressive, and partly, it is probable, to suggest to them that the same God Who, Himself invisible, had fed their forefathers with miraculous sustenance for forty years in the Wilderness, was now come in human form to visit His people.

20. ἐχορτάσθησαν] χορτάζομαι (from χόρτος, grass) had been already used by the LXX for שָׂבַע, satiatus fuit, Ps. xvii. 14, 15; xxxvii. 19; lix. 16, and passim, especially in reference to satiety from the Divine bounty, e. g. xvii. 15, χορτασθήσομαι ἐν τῷ ἰδεῖν τὴν δόξαν Σου. Ps. cvi. 9. The word so used seems to suggest that those so fed are the Sheep of God's pasture, and that He vouchsafes to be their Shepherd (Ps. xxiii. 1), and so is very appropriate when applied to those who are fed by Christ the Good Shepherd (John x. 14).

Christ blesses and breaks, and what is blessed and broken becomes a 'seminarium' of food for the multitude. So the spiritual food of the Word of the Old Testament, when its mysteries are brought forth by Christ and broken for nourishment, feeds the Nations. Observe, the multitude are fed by Christ through the Ministry of His Apostles. (Jerome.)

The manner of the act baffles our intelligence. It was not that five loaves are multiplied into more; but fragments succeed fragments imperceptibly. The substance increases, whether on the table, or in the hands of those who receive it, or in the mouth of those who eat it, I know not. Wonder not that fountains gush forth, or that wine streams from grapes, or that all the riches and plenty of the world flows in an unfailing stream. The Author of the universe was displayed by this abundant increase of bread. His invisible will acts by visible operation, and the Lord of heavenly mysteries executes the miracle of what was present to the eye. The Power of Him who works transcends all nature, and the mode of that Power transcends all intelligence, and we have nothing left but to adore. (Hilary.) — κοφίνους] Here is a difference between our Lord's miracles and that wrought by Moses. The manna was only sufficient for him who gathered it, and it could not be kept.—Theophyl. in Marc. vi. 43.

On the word κόφινος see below, xvi. 9. It is observable, that the word κόφινος (on which see xvi. 9) had been used by the LXX in describing the drudgery of the Israelites in Egypt in gathering clay to make bricks, Ps. lxxxi. 7. As St. Ambrose says, Luke ix. 17, "Populus qui ante lutum in cophinis colligit, hic jam vitæ cœlestis operatur alimonium: per duodecim cophinos tanquam tribuum singularum fidei fundamentum redundat."

21. ἄνδρες ὡσεὶ πεντακισχίλιοι] Our Lord's Miracles were also Prophecies. He had said to His Apostles, "Give ye them to eat" (v. 16). Thus He had prefigured the dispensation of the Spiritual food, His Word and Sacraments, by the ministry of the Apostles and their successors.

And this miraculous prophecy had a remarkable fulfilment in what is said Acts iv. 4, "Many of those who heard the word believed, and the number of the men (τῶν ἀνδρῶν) was about five thousand." See Hilary here, who refers to the Acts, under the title "in libro Praxeon."

22. ἕως οὗ] while; xxvi. 36.

23. ἀνέβη—26. περιπατοῦντα] The spiritual and prophetic meaning of this act has thus been traced by Aug. Serm. 75: "Quod ascendit relictis turbis Dominus orare in montem,—relictis turbis solus post Resurrectionem ascendit in cœlum et ibi interpellat pro nobis. Interea navis portans discipulos, id est Ecclesia, fluctuat et quatitur tempestatibus tentationum. Opus est in navi simus; nam si in navi pericula sunt, sine navi certus interitus. Etsi turbatur navis, navis est tamen. Tene te itaque in navi, et roga Deum . . . Quarta vigilia noctis finis est noctis. In fine sæculi venit Dominus: videtur ambulare super omnes tumores maris, hoc est super omnes hujus sæculi principatus . . . sub ejus pedibus totam hujus sæculi rabiem subjectam."—See also Aug. Serm. 76, and cp. on John vi. 19, 20.

After that our Lord has dispensed the food of life to the world in the Word and Sacraments ministered by His disciples He has ascended up into heaven alone to pray for His Church, and thence He looks down upon her tossed on the waves, and He will come again at the fourth watch, treading under foot the storms and billows of this world, and will enter the ship and bring her where she would be.

25. τετάρτῃ φυλακῇ] Formerly the Jews had divided the night into three watches. (See Buxtorf, Lex. Talmud. voc. אשמורה.) But when Judæa became a Roman province, they adopted the Roman division into four watches. (Lips. de Milit. Rom. p. 123.) The LXX had already used φυλακή in the sense of watch. (Exod. xiv. 24.)

"The fourth watch, i. e. the last," says Jerome.—Our Lord will come to our aid at the end of the world.

He allows His disciples to be tried by dangers that they may be taught patience, and does not come to them till morning that they may not expect to be delivered at once, but may hope for deliverance if they have perseverance and faith. (Theophyl. in Mark vi. 25.)

Thus Christ deals with His Church, typified by the Apostolic ship. He leaves her from time to time to be tossed by the waves of this world, and to be assailed by the blasts of the evil one, and He will return to her in the fourth watch of the night. The first watch of the night was the age of the Law, the second of the Prophets, the third of the Gospel, the fourth of His glorious Advent, when He will find her buffeted by the spirit of Antichrist, and by the storms of the world. And by Christ's reception into the ship, and the consequent calm, is prefigured the eternal peace of the Church after His second coming. (Hilary.)

— περιπατῶν ἐπὶ τῆς θαλάσσης] In v. 26 we have ἐπὶ τὴν θάλασσαν περιπατοῦντα. The former expression indicates the act of walking over the sea toward the disciples; the latter brings out more forcibly the fact of His walking on the sea—as a pavement under His feet. This is what made them afraid, and say, "it is a spirit." Cp. ἐπί in iv. 5; vii. 24; xix. 28.

ζεσθαι, ἔκραξε λέγων, Κύριε, σῶσόν με· 31 εὐθέως δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἐκτείνας τὴν χεῖρα ἐπελάβετο αὐτοῦ, καὶ λέγει αὐτῷ, Ὀλιγόπιστε, εἰς τί ἐδίστασας; (153/VI) 32 Καὶ ἐμβάντων αὐτῶν εἰς τὸ πλοῖον, ἐκόπασεν ὁ ἄνεμος. 33 [i] Οἱ δὲ ἐν τῷ πλοίῳ ἐλθόντες προσεκύνησαν αὐτῷ λέγοντες, Ἀληθῶς Θεοῦ Υἱὸς εἶ. i ch. 16. 16. & 26. 63. John 1. 50. Ps. 2. 6, 7.

(153/II) 34 Καὶ διαπεράσαντες ἦλθον εἰς τὴν γῆν Γεννησαρέθ. 35 καὶ ἐπιγνόντες αὐτὸν οἱ ἄνδρες τοῦ τόπου ἐκείνου, ἀπέστειλαν εἰς ὅλην τὴν περίχωρον ἐκείνην, καὶ προσήνεγκαν αὐτῷ πάντας τοὺς κακῶς ἔχοντας, 36 καὶ παρεκάλουν αὐτὸν, ἵνα μόνον ἅψωνται τοῦ κρασπέδου τοῦ ἱματίου αὐτοῦ· καὶ ὅσοι ἥψαντο διεσώθησαν.

XV. (154/VI) 1 [a] Τότε προσέρχονται τῷ Ἰησοῦ οἱ ἀπὸ Ἱεροσολύμων Γραμματεῖς καὶ Φαρισαῖοι, λέγοντες, 2 Διατί οἱ μαθηταί σου παραβαίνουσι τὴν παράδοσιν τῶν πρεσβυτέρων; οὐ γὰρ νίπτονται τὰς χεῖρας αὐτῶν ὅταν ἄρτον ἐσθίωσιν. 3 Ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Διατί καὶ ὑμεῖς παραβαίνετε τὴν ἐντολὴν τοῦ Θεοῦ διὰ τὴν παράδοσιν ὑμῶν; 4 [b] Ὁ γὰρ Θεὸς ἐνετείλατο, λέγων, Τίμα τὸν πατέρα καὶ τὴν μητέρα· καί, ὁ κακολογῶν πατέρα ἢ μητέρα θανάτῳ τελευτάτω· 5 ὑμεῖς δὲ λέγετε, Ὃς ἂν εἴπῃ τῷ πατρὶ ἢ τῇ μητρὶ, Δῶρον, ὃ ἐὰν ἐξ ἐμοῦ ὠφεληθῇς—καὶ οὐ μὴ τιμήσῃ τὸν πατέρα αὐτοῦ ἢ τὴν μητέρα αὐτοῦ· 6 καὶ ἠκυρώσατε τὴν ἐντολὴν τοῦ Θεοῦ διὰ τὴν παράδοσιν ὑμῶν. 7 Ὑποκριταί, καλῶς προεφήτευσε περὶ ὑμῶν Ἡσαΐας λέγων, 8 [c] Ἐγγίζει μοι ὁ λαὸς a Mark 7. 1.

b Exod. 20. 12. Deut. 5. 16. Ephes. 6. 2. Exod. 21. 17. Lev. 20. 9. Prov. 20. 20.

c Isa. 29. 13. Mark 7. 6.

---

31. ὀλιγόπιστε] It is of no use to be near Christ in person, unless we are near Him by faith. If we are near Him by faith no storm can drown us. It is not the Tempest, but our own weakness of faith which is to be feared; therefore our Lord does not calm the storm, but takes hold of Peter's hand. And He brought the Apostle to the ship as a Bird brings its young on its wings to the nest, when it has attempted to fly before its time and is about to fall on the ground. (Chrys.)

Peter was enabled by Christ to walk on the sea; so the risen bodies of the Saints will be enabled by Christ to fly upwards and meet Him in the air. 1 Thess. iv. 17.

Christ alone treads the waves of this world, and walks amid its storms. He treads the wine-press alone, Isa. lxiii. 3. He alone is the Redeemer of the world, and all who are saved are redeemed by Him alone. Peter sinks without Christ. (Cp. Hilary.)

Peter is the image of weak faith, staggered by the storms of this world; but after he had received the gift of the Holy Ghost, he who is here like a fluent wave, became like a stedfast rock, unmoved by the tempest of persecution and the fear of death. (Cp. Aug., Serm. 76.)

St. Peter walked on the sea. Let then they who imagine that our Lord had not a true human body, because He walked on the waves, explain how St. Peter also walked on the waves, who certainly had a real body. (Jerome.)

36. κρασπέδου τοῦ ἱματίου] The word κράσπεδον had been employed by the LXX to designate the fringes, כְּנָפוֹת (kanepholh), wings, of the garment, which were to be made of purple, according to the law (Numb. xv. 38. Deut. xxii. 12), to remind the wearers of the law, especially of the Sabbath. See below, xxiii. 5.

Observe Christ's miraculous power thus exerted here and on other occasions (ix. 20) by the skirts of His clothing (Ps. cxxxiii. 2) in connexion with the prophecy (Malachi iv. 2) which speaks of "healing in His wings;" the word 'wings' being used by the Hebrews to describe the hems or fringes of the garments.

Consider also its connexion with Zech. viii. 23, "They shall take hold of the skirt (κράσπεδον) of Him that is a Jew,"—a prophecy specially applicable to faith in Christ.

CH. XV. 2. παράδοσιν] Partly the קַבָּלָה (cabbala), tradition; from קִבֵּל (kibbel), to receive; and called π. πρεσβυτέρων because it was pretended by the Pharisees and other Rabbis of the Jews that it had been orally delivered by God to Moses on Mount Sina, and thence handed down by oral tradition to their own times; partly the oral precepts which were afterwards embodied in the Talmud (or Doctrine), from root לָמַד (lamadh), to teach; which at first consisted of the Mishna (about A. D. 219), i. e. the oral repetition of the Law (from שָׁנָה shanah, to repeat); and to which was afterward added (about A. D. 500) the Gemarah, or the complementum, root גָּמַר (gamar), to finish, of the Mishna. See Buxtorf, Synag. Judaic., cap. iii. p. 59.

— ὅταν ἄρτον ἐσθίωσιν] ἄρτον ἐσθίειν, i. q. Hebr. אָכַל לֶחֶם, said of eating food generally. Mark iii. 20. Luke vii. 33; xiv. 15.

3. παράδοσιν ὑμῶν] You pretend that these things have been delivered by God; but they are in fact your traditions, and are opposed to God's Law.

4. τίμα] τιμή (from τίω, pendo, to pay), in Scripture does not mean merely homage and salutation, but succour, support by alms and offerings; thus the Apostle says, "Honour widows that are widows indeed" (1 Tim. v. 3); "and let the presbyters who rule well be counted worthy of double honour" (1 Tim. v. 17), i. e. stipend.

— θανάτῳ τελευτάτω] A Hebraism from Levit. xx. 9, where LXX has θανάτῳ θανατούσθω, and Exod. xxi. 16, ὁ κακολογῶν πατέρα ἢ μητέρα αὐτοῦ τελευτήσει θανάτῳ.

5. δῶρον] i. q. κορβᾶν (קָרְבָּן) See xxvii. 6. Mark vii. 11. It is a gift,—an offering consecrated to God, and therefore I cannot apply it to your benefit. The sense is,—that in which thou mightest have been benefited by me has been vowed and hallowed to God as a Gift to Him; and therefore cannot without sacrilege be alienated from Him and applied to thy use. And it will be most profitable to thee also, being so applied as a gift to God. Thus they taught hypocrisy and undutifulness to parents, under the mask of piety to God.

There seems to be an aposiopesis after ὠφεληθῇς, as if our Lord abstained with horror and indignation from pronouncing the words of blasphemy with which this hypocritical infraction of the divine command was completed.

The apodosis cannot begin with καὶ οὐ μὴ τιμήσῃ, for the Pharisees were too shrewd to say that; but they are our Lord's words. See next note.

They who inculcated this doctrine, being Priests or connected with them, derived private advantage from it. (See Theophyl., Mark vii. 11.)

— καὶ οὐ μὴ τιμήσῃ] And, through your tradition, he shall not honour his father,—although God commands, "Honour thy father." Cp. Mark vii. 11, where the construction is similar.

7—9. Ἡσαΐας] Is. xxix. 13. Cp. Mark vii. 6, 7, where the prophecy is cited with the same variation from the LXX as here by St. Matthew, i. e. δ. δ. ἐ. ἀ. for διδάσκοντες ἐντάλματα ἀνθρώπων καὶ διδασκαλίας. The original of Isaiah signifies "the reverence with which they regard Me is only a human command," i. e. their religion is based on human commandment, and not on My Law. They substitute human traditions for divine commands. Our Lord gives the sense of the prophecy; and adds, that such worship is vain. See Surenhus. p. 249. Such explanations and additions coming from Him, Who is the Author of the Law, are to be regarded as already pre-existing in His Mind when He gave the Law, and are implicitly involved in it [1].

---

[1] On this text,—(v. 9), "teaching for doctrines the commandments of men,"—see Bp. Sanderson's 8 Sermon ad Clerum (Serm. v. vol. ii. pp. 141—168), who shows its application to those who,

Either of their own authority impose Rites and Ceremonies as necessary to salvation; or,

Enforce new articles of faith, as the Church of Rome does, and make them terms of Church Communion; or, Affirm things to be unlawful, which cannot be proved so to be, and on the plea of such alleged unlawfulness, separate from the Church, and rend it by schism.

See also Hooker, I. xiv. 5, and II. viii. 5.

οὗτος τῷ στόματι αὐτῶν, καὶ τοῖς χείλεσί με τιμᾷ, ἡ δὲ καρδία αὐτῶν πόρρω ἀπέχει ἀπ' ἐμοῦ· 9 μάτην δὲ σέβονταί με, διδάσκοντες d Mark 7. 14, &c. διδασκαλίας ἐντάλματα ἀνθρώπων. 10 d Καὶ προσκαλεσάμενος τὸν ὄχλον, εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Ἀκούετε καὶ συνίετε. 11 Οὐ τὸ εἰσερχόμενον εἰς τὸ στόμα κοινοῖ τὸν ἄνθρωπον, ἀλλὰ τὸ ἐκπορευόμενον ἐκ τοῦ στόματος, τοῦτο κοινοῖ τὸν ἄνθρωπον. (156 X) 12 Τότε προσελθόντες οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ εἶπον αὐτῷ, Οἶδας, e John 15. 2. ὅτι οἱ Φαρισαῖοι ἀκούσαντες τὸν λόγον ἐσκανδαλίσθησαν; 13 e Ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπε, Πᾶσα φυτεία ἣν οὐκ ἐφύτευσεν ὁ Πατήρ μου ὁ οὐράνιος ἐκριζω-f ch. 23. 16. Luke 6. 39. θήσεται. (156 V) 14 f Ἄφετε αὐτούς· ὁδηγοί εἰσι τυφλοὶ τυφλῶν· τυφλὸς δὲ τυφλὸν g Mark 7. 17. ἐὰν ὁδηγῇ, ἀμφότεροι εἰς βόθυνον πεσοῦνται. (157 VI) 15 g Ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ ὁ Πέτρος h ch. 16. 9. Mark 7. 18. εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Φράσον ἡμῖν τὴν παραβολὴν ταύτην. 16 h Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν, Ἀκμὴν καὶ ὑμεῖς ἀσύνετοί ἐστε; 17 Οὔπω νοεῖτε ὅτι πᾶν τὸ εἰσπορευόμενον
i James 3. 6. εἰς τὸ στόμα εἰς τὴν κοιλίαν χωρεῖ, καὶ εἰς ἀφεδρῶνα ἐκβάλλεται; 18 i τὰ δὲ ἐκπορευόμενα ἐκ τοῦ στόματος ἐκ τῆς καρδίας ἐξέρχεται, κἀκεῖνα κοινοῖ τὸν k Gen. 6. 5. & 8. 21. Mark 7. 21. ἄνθρωπον· 19 k ἐκ γὰρ τῆς καρδίας ἐξέρχονται διαλογισμοὶ πονηροί, φόνοι, μοιχεῖαι, πορνεῖαι, κλοπαί, ψευδομαρτυρίαι, βλασφημίαι· 20 ταῦτά ἐστι τὰ κοινοῦντα τὸν ἄνθρωπον· τὸ δὲ ἀνίπτοις χερσὶ φαγεῖν οὐ κοινοῖ τὸν ἄνθρωπον.
l Mark 7. 24. 21 l Καὶ ἐξελθὼν ἐκεῖθεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς, ἀνεχώρησεν εἰς τὰ μέρη Τύρου καὶ Σιδῶνος. 22 Καὶ ἰδοὺ, γυνὴ Χαναναία ἀπὸ τῶν ὁρίων ἐκείνων ἐξελθοῦσα, ἐκραύγασεν αὐτῷ λέγουσα, Ἐλέησόν με, Κύριε, υἱὲ Δαυίδ, ἡ θυγάτηρ μου κακῶς δαιμονίζεται. 23 Ὁ δὲ οὐκ ἀπεκρίθη αὐτῇ λόγον. Καὶ προσελθόντες οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ ἠρώτων αὐτὸν, λέγοντες, Ἀπόλυσον αὐτὴν, ὅτι κράζει ὄπισθεν ἡμῶν. (158 V) 24 Ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν, Οὐκ ἀπεστάλην εἰ μὴ εἰς τὰ πρόβατα τὰ ἀπολωλότα οἴκου Ἰσραήλ. (159 VI) 25 Ἡ δὲ ἐλθοῦσα προσεκύνει αὐτῷ λέγουσα, Κύριε, βοήθει μοι. 26 Ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν, Οὐκ ἔστι καλὸν λαβεῖν τὸν ἄρτον m ch. 7. 6. Phil. 3. 2. τῶν τέκνων, καὶ βαλεῖν m τοῖς κυναρίοις· 27 Ἡ δὲ εἶπε, Ναὶ, Κύριε· καὶ γὰρ τὰ κυνάρια ἐσθίει ἀπὸ τῶν ψιχίων τῶν πιπτόντων ἀπὸ τῆς τραπέζης τῶν κυρίων αὐτῶν. 28 Τότε ἀποκριθεὶς ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτῇ, Ὦ γύναι, μεγάλη σου ἡ

---

11. κοινοῖ] κοινὸν, ἀκάθαρτον, Hesych. κοινὸς had been used in the sense of unclean in the books of the Maccabees. 1 Macc. i. 47. 62, in connexion with the war of persecution waged by Antiochus Epiphanes against the Jews, in requiring them to eat swine's flesh, and other unclean meats. Our Lord did not intend to disparage the difference between clean and unclean meats as it had been defined by Himself in the Levitical Law, which had an intrinsic, moral, and spiritual meaning, now corrupted and obscured by its Teachers, who laid stress only on external acts. But He designed to show that the source of all uncleanness is the heart, and that unless that is cleansed, all outward cleansings are vain.

14. βόθυνον] "foveam, et metaphor. interitum;" a pit-fall, more properly than a ditch. See Isaiah xxiv. 17, 18, where the LXX has βόθυνος for פַּחַת (pahath), a pit, of destruction; a pit-fall set by hunters for wild animals.

15. παραβολή] ænigma. See above, xiii. 3.

16. ἀκμήν] ἔτι, Hesych.; even to this point, ἀκμή: used in this sense by Xenophon and Polybius. (See Kuin.)

22. Χαναναία] of Canaan, Hebr. כְּנַעֲנִי (Cenaan), i. q. mercator, and an appropriate name for those who lived near the coast and led a mercantile life. St. Mark here (vii. 26) reminds his Gentile readers by the words ἦν ἡ γυνὴ Ἑλληνὶς Συροφοινίσσα that Our Blessed Lord had offers of mercy for them, even for those among them who, like the Συροφοίνικες of Tyre and Sidon, had been polluted by idolatry and its associate sins (cp. Psalm xliv. 12); and St. Matthew reminds the Jews by the word Χαναναία that Christ would receive the descendants of those seven nations of Canaan (cf. Acts xiii. 19), which had been exterminated by their forefathers at God's command.

26. κυναρίοις] Not that our Lord regarded them as dogs, but because they were so called by the Jews, whose language He adopts.

27. ναὶ, Κύριε, καὶ γάρ] Yea, Lord, thou sayest true; it is not right to take the children's bread and give it to the dogs. For the dogs eat of the crumbs that fall from their master's table. Let me therefore have not bread, but only crumbs; and do not give me even them; but let me pick up what falls from the table. A beautiful image of the humility of the faithful Gentiles, hungering and thirsting for the least fragments of the Gospel which dropped from the table of the Jews who despised it. Cp. Ps. lxix. 23. Acts xxviii. 28.

28. ὦ γύναι, μεγάλη σου ἡ πίστις] She showed humility by not rejecting the title κυνάριον; faith, by calling Christ the Son of David, and by perseverance in her entreaty for help, and by her fervency increased by repulses, though she was a Gentile, and He was sent to the lost sheep of the house of Israel.

When our Lord had taught His disciples concerning the difference of meats, He opens the door of the kingdom of heaven to the Gentiles. But why then did He say to the disciples, "To the way of the Gentiles go ye not?" (Matt. x. 5.) He does not seem to have crossed the border, nor did He go to preach, as appears from Mark vii. 24. The woman came to Him, not He to her. Observe, the Evangelist calls her a 'Canaanite;' reminding us of those godless Nations of Canaan who had subverted even the laws of Nature; and so by her very name he displays the wonder and proclaims the greatness of her faith. The Canaanites had been ejected from Canaan that they might not pervert the Jews; and now this Canaanite comes forth from her own land to seek Christ, who came to the Jews and was rejected by them. (Cp. Chrys.)

See also an evidence here of the divine inspiration acting on the heart of St. Matthew. He tells his Jewish readers that Christ had mercy, love, and praise for this poor woman, whom he calls—not as the other Evangelists do, a Gentile—but a Canaanite, i. e. descended from those whom their ancestors were commanded by God to destroy.

In proportion as the woman's supplication became more intense, so our Lord's remonstrance became more strong. He at first was silent; then He calls the Jews His sheep, and says that He was sent only to them; then He calls them His children, and the Gentiles dogs. And on this rebuke the woman frames her reply; she shows patience and faith, although she might seem to be treated with scorn. Let them be children and I a dog; yet, as such, I am not forbidden to eat of the crumbs which they let fall. Our Lord had foreknown that she would answer thus; and therefore He at first refused, and rebuked her, in order that He might bring out her faith and humility as an example. His silence and reproof were like the silence and reproof of one who is desirous of revealing a hidden treasure to the eye.

The Jews boasted themselves the children of Abraham and despised the Gentiles; she calls the Jews her masters and herself a dog; and thus she became a child of God. O woman, great is thy faith!

He delayed the gift in order that He might utter at once this speech, and place a crown of glory on the woman's head. See then here the blessed reward of faith and humility and perseverance in prayer. (Chrys.)

This miracle was prophetic. The woman of Canaan in the heathen regions of Tyre and Sidon is typical of the Gentile World coming to πίστις· γενηθήτω σοι ὡς θέλεις· καὶ ἰάθη ἡ θυγάτηρ αὐτῆς ἀπὸ τῆς ὥρας ἐκείνης.

(160/VI) 29 n Καὶ μεταβὰς ἐκεῖθεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς, ἦλθε παρὰ τὴν θάλασσαν τῆς Γαλι- n Mark 7. 31.
λαίας· καὶ ἀναβὰς εἰς τὸ ὄρος, ἐκάθητο ἐκεῖ. 30 o Καὶ προσῆλθον αὐτῷ ὄχλοι o Isa. 35. 5.
πολλοὶ, ἔχοντες μεθ' ἑαυτῶν χωλοὺς, τυφλοὺς, κωφοὺς, κυλλοὺς, καὶ ἑτέρους πολλούς· καὶ ἔῤῥιψαν αὐτοὺς παρὰ τοὺς πόδας τοῦ Ἰησοῦ, καὶ ἐθεράπευσεν αὐτούς· 31 ὥστε τοὺς ὄχλους θαυμάσαι, βλέποντας κωφοὺς λαλοῦντας, κυλλοὺς ὑγιεῖς, χωλοὺς περιπατοῦντας, καὶ τυφλοὺς βλέποντας· καὶ ἐδόξασαν τὸν Θεὸν Ἰσραήλ. 32 p Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς, προσκαλεσάμενος τοὺς μαθητὰς αὐτοῦ, εἶπε, p Mark 8. 1.
Σπλαγχνίζομαι ἐπὶ τὸν ὄχλον, ὅτι ἤδη ἡμέραι τρεῖς προσμένουσί μοι, καὶ οὐκ ἔχουσι τί φάγωσι· καὶ ἀπολῦσαι αὐτοὺς νήστεις οὐ θέλω, μήποτε ἐκλυθῶσιν ἐν τῇ ὁδῷ. 33 Καὶ λέγουσιν αὐτῷ οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ, Πόθεν ἡμῖν ἐν ἐρημίᾳ ἄρτοι τοσοῦτοι, ὥστε χορτάσαι ὄχλον τοσοῦτον; 34 Καὶ λέγει αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Πόσους ἄρτους ἔχετε; οἱ δὲ εἶπον, Ἑπτὰ, καὶ ὀλίγα ἰχθύδια. 35 Καὶ ἐκέλευσε τοῖς ὄχλοις ἀναπεσεῖν ἐπὶ τὴν γῆν. 36 καὶ λαβὼν τοὺς ἑπτὰ ἄρτους καὶ τοὺς ἰχθύας, εὐχαριστήσας ἔκλασε, καὶ ἔδωκε τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ, οἱ δὲ μαθηταὶ τῷ ὄχλῳ. 37 q Καὶ ἔφαγον πάντες καὶ ἐχορτάσθησαν· καὶ ἦραν τὸ περισσεῦον q ch. 14. 20, 21.
τῶν κλασμάτων ἑπτὰ σπυρίδας πλήρεις. 38 Οἱ δὲ ἐσθίοντες ἦσαν τετρακισχίλιοι ἄνδρες, χωρὶς γυναικῶν καὶ παιδίων.

39 Καὶ ἀπολύσας τοὺς ὄχλους, ἀνέβη εἰς τὸ πλοῖον, καὶ ἦλθεν εἰς τὰ ὅρια Μαγδαλά. XVI. (161/IV) 1 Καὶ προσελθόντες οἱ Φαρισαῖοι καὶ Σαδδουκαῖοι, πειράζοντες ἐπηρώτησαν αὐτὸν σημεῖον ἐκ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ ἐπιδεῖξαι αὐτοῖς.
(162/V) 2 Ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Ὀψίας γενομένης λέγετε, Εὐδία, πυῤῥάζει γὰρ ὁ οὐρανός· 3 καὶ πρωΐ, Σήμερον χειμὼν, πυῤῥάζει γὰρ στυγνάζων ὁ οὐρανός. Ὑποκριταί, τὸ μὲν πρόσωπον τοῦ οὐρανοῦ γινώσκετε διακρίνειν, τὰ δὲ σημεῖα τῶν καιρῶν οὐ δύνασθε; (163/VI) 4 a Γενεὰ πονηρὰ καὶ μοιχαλὶς a ch. 12. 39.
σημεῖον ἐπιζητεῖ· καὶ σημεῖον οὐ δοθήσεται αὐτῇ, εἰ μὴ τὸ σημεῖον Ἰωνᾶ τοῦ Jonah 2. 1.
προφήτου. Καὶ καταλιπὼν αὐτοὺς ἀπῆλθε.

5 b Καὶ ἐλθόντες οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ εἰς τὸ πέραν, ἐπελάθοντο ἄρτους λαβεῖν. b Mark 8. 14, &c.
(164/II) 6 Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Ὁρᾶτε καὶ προσέχετε ἀπὸ τῆς ζύμης τῶν Luke 12. 1, &c.

Christ, and thankfully accepting the crumbs which fall from the children's table, and therefore welcomed and accepted by Christ, while the children of the kingdom are cast out. (Cp. Hilary.)

32. ἡμέραι τρεῖς] three days to them waiting on Me.—See on Mark viii. 2.

33. πόθεν ἡμῖν ἐν ἐρημίᾳ] An objection has been made to this narrative by some (De Wette, and even Schleiermacher). It is alleged that it is only a repetition or loose tradition of the narrative of the former miraculous feeding (Matt. xiv. 13). It is said that the Apostles could not have used such language as they do here, after they had been witnesses of, and even partakers in, the former miracle.

The answer has been given by anticipation to this objection, in the Old Testament (see Ps. lxxviii. 11. 20—32; cvi. 21) recording the incredulity and insensibility of the Israelites[1] in the wilderness—after the mighty works of God in delivering them from Egypt and in the supply of water and food, of which they had been witnesses and partakers. Even after the Manna, Moses himself doubted concerning the possibility of a supply of flesh. (See Numb. xi. 21—23.) The Apostles in the wilderness of Galilee are as yet children of the literal Israel in the wilderness of Arabia. And even after this second miraculous feeding, to which Our Lord refers (Matt. xvi. 7—10), they are still ὀλιγόπιστοι, and are rebuked as such by Him.

It is strange that the objectors to St. Matthew's veracity do not appear to have perceived that if the Apostle St. Matthew[2] had intended to invent, or to disguise the truth, instead of to relate it honestly and fully, he would have magnified the effects of the miracle on the minds of the disciples, and he would not have recorded what was not creditable to himself and his brethren—their unbelief. But by showing us that even after the miracle was wrought once, and even twice, they were still ἀσύνετοι and ὀλιγόπιστοι. He gives us a striking proof—the more striking because a silent one—that he has told the truth, and has exaggerated nothing in the history of Christ's works.

It is observable also that in the Second Miracle the numbers fed are less than in the former; and this is another evidence of veracity. If the second narrative had been a mere 'loose tradition' of the former, the number would have increased and not diminished.

See another argument for their distinction in xvi. 9, 10.

37. σπυρίδας] See on xvi. 9.

39. Μαγδαλά] St. Mark says (viii. 10), εἰς τὰ ὅρια Δαλμανουθά, a region a little North of Tiberias, on the western coast of the Sea of Galilee, perhaps the birth-place of Mary Magdalene. Jerome, Aug. read Μαγεδάν, which is found in the old Syriac (Cureton), and in B, D, and is received by Tisch. 1856, and has an oriental origin. See the MSS. in Rev. xvi. 16.

CH. XVI. 1. Σαδδουκαῖοι] As far as we know from the Gospels, the Sadducees attacked Christ Himself only twice (Beng. Cf. xxii. 23); but after the Ascension they were bitter enemies of the doctrine of the Resurrection (Acts iv. 1; v. 17)—a silent evidence of its truth.

— σημεῖον ἐκ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ] A sign from heaven; as much as to say that the Miracles he had wrought were only from earth, and not so great as those wrought by Moses, who gave bread from heaven; and by Elias, who went up into heaven.

2. ὀψίας γενομένης] Cp. Plin. N. H. xviii. 35. Virg. Georg. i. 425—455.

4. σημεῖον δὲ ἐ.] But hereafter He will show signs from heaven. He will fold up the heaven as a scroll, and will eclipse the Sun, and the glory of His presence will be like lightning. But the time for these signs is not yet come. (Chrys.)

— Ἰωνᾶ τοῦ προφήτου] See above, xii. 39.

6. ζύμης] Our Lord commanded His Disciples to observe and do all that the Scribes and Pharisees command while sitting on Moses' seat (Matt. xxiii. 1—3), i. e. while teaching in his name and in accordance with his writings.

---

[1] God gave water miraculously twice in the wilderness, and fed the people by two miraculous supplies (manna and quails). So our blessed Lord fed the people in the wilderness miraculously twice. And the parallel extends further; i. e. it is seen not only, in each case, in the goodness of God, but also in the obduracy of man.

[2] The same may be said—'mutatis mutandis'—of Moses.

Φαρισαίων καὶ Σαδδουκαίων. (166/VI) 7 Οἱ δὲ διελογίζοντο ἐν ἑαυτοῖς λέγοντες, Ὅτι ἄρτους οὐκ ἐλάβομεν. 8 Γνοὺς δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Τί διαλογίζεσθε c ch. 14. 17. John 6. 9. ἐν ἑαυτοῖς, ὀλιγόπιστοι, ὅτι ἄρτους οὐκ ἐλάβετε; 9 c οὔπω νοεῖτε, οὐδὲ μνημονεύετε τοὺς πέντε ἄρτους τῶν πεντακισχιλίων, καὶ πόσους κοφίνους ἐλάβετε, d ch. 15. 34. 10 d οὐδὲ τοὺς ἑπτὰ ἄρτους τῶν τετρακισχιλίων, καὶ πόσας σπυρίδας ἐλάβετε; 11 πῶς οὐ νοεῖτε, ὅτι οὐ περὶ ἄρτων εἶπον ὑμῖν προσέχειν ἀπὸ τῆς ζύμης τῶν Φαρισαίων καὶ Σαδδουκαίων; 12 Τότε συνῆκαν, ὅτι οὐκ εἶπε προσέχειν ἀπὸ τῆς ζύμης τοῦ ἄρτου, ἀλλὰ ἀπὸ τῆς διδαχῆς τῶν Φαρισαίων καὶ Σαδδουκαίων.

e Mark 8. 27. Luke 9. 18. (166/I) 13 e Ἐλθὼν δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἰς τὰ μέρη Καισαρείας τῆς Φιλίππου, ἠρώτα τοὺς μαθητὰς αὐτοῦ, λέγων, Τίνα με λέγουσιν οἱ ἄνθρωποι εἶναι τὸν Υἱὸν τοῦ f ch. 14. 2. ἀνθρώπου; 14 f Οἱ δὲ εἶπον, Οἱ μὲν Ἰωάννην τὸν Βαπτιστήν, ἄλλοι δὲ Ἠλίαν, ἕτεροι δὲ Ἱερεμίαν, ἢ ἕνα τῶν προφητῶν. 15 Λέγει αὐτοῖς, Ὑμεῖς δὲ τίνα με g John 6. 69. & 11. 27. Acts 8. 37. & 9. 20. 1 John 4. 15. & 5. 5. λέγετε εἶναι; 16 g καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς Σίμων Πέτρος εἶπε, Σὺ εἶ ὁ Χριστὸς, ὁ Υἱὸς
h 1 Cor. ii. 10. τοῦ Θεοῦ τοῦ ζῶντος. (167/X) 17 h Καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Μακάριος εἶ, Σίμων Βὰρ Ἰωνᾶ, ὅτι σὰρξ καὶ αἷμα οὐκ ἀπεκάλυψέ σοι, ἀλλ' ὁ Πατήρ μου ὁ ἐν τοῖς οὐρανοῖς· 18 κἀγὼ δὲ σοὶ λέγω, ὅτι σὺ εἶ Πέτρος, καὶ ἐπὶ ταύτῃ τῇ

He here teaches them to beware of their ζύμη, by which they corrupt the sound doctrine of Moses; i. e. their hypocrisy (Luke xii. 1), by which they deceive others and themselves. Cp. 1 Cor. v. 6—8. Thus He gives the rule to be observed by the people. If any of the Clergy teach what is false, it is the duty of the people προσέχειν ἀπὸ τῆς ζύμης, at the same time that they observe and do what the ministers of Christ preach in His Name and in accordance with His word.

9, 10. κοφίνους—σπυρίδας] All the four Evangelists use the word κόφινοι in connexion with the former miracle (Matt. xiv. 20. Mark vi. 43. Luke ix. 17. John vi. 3); and the two Evangelists (Matt. xv. 37 and Mark viii. 8) use the word σπυρίδες in the latter case. And now, in this question, our Lord preserves the same distinction; which would well have been retained in the English version. Here is another proof of the diversity of the two miracles. See above, xv. 32.

Chrys. well asks, on cap. xv., "Whence is it that the fragments in this latter miracle are fewer than in the former, although they who ate were not so many? It is either because the basket (σπυρὶς) in this miracle is larger than in the former (κόφινος), or that by this point of difference they might remember the two several miracles? Wherefore also our Lord then made the number of the κόφινοι to be equal to that of the disciples, but now He makes the σπυρίδες to be equal in number to the loaves." See Mark viii. 19.

How much more of sound criticism is there in these remarks than in the pretences to acumen which have been made by more modern scepticism torturing the text of Scripture in order to confound the Miracles of Christ! See on verse 33.

The κόφινος is used by the Septuagint once for Hebr. דוּד (dudh), Ps. lxxxi. 6, which seems to have been a vessel capable of holding liquids (three χόες or congii), probably a metal or eathenware jar. (Cp. Judges vi. 19.) The Jews were noted for their use of cophini (see Juvenal, iii. 15; vi. 542), which they carried with them for the preservation of clean meats and drinks free from contamination.

And the word σπυρὶς (Lat. sporta, sportula) appears to have been of juncus or vimen and palm-leaves, and not suited for liquids. The fact that they had with them so many κόφινοι and σπυρίδες (perhaps each of the Apostles had one for his own use) seems to indicate that the places where the miracles were wrought were not very lofty. In fact the words τὸ ὄρος are little more than a negation; i. e. they signify ground raised above τὸ πεδίον, or plain (see on v. 1); and this is confirmed here by the circumstance that women and children were present as well as men, some probably aged, in great numbers.

12. ζύμης τοῦ ἄρτου] On the inferences to be derived from this narrative, see on Luke xxii. 38.

13. Καισαρείας τῆς Φιλίππου] Cæsarea Philippi, a town at the foot of Lebanon, near the springs of Jordan, so called from Philip, Tetrarch of Iturea, who named it Cæsarea (formerly Paneas, Joseph. Ant. xviii. 3. Euseb. vii. 17), in honour of Tiberius Cæsar; and also to distinguish it from the other more celebrated Cæsarea on the seacoast (formerly Turris Stratonis), and named Cæsarea by Herod the Great, in honour of Augustus. In the great towns of Judæa how much was there now of Rome!

— τὸν Υἱὸν τοῦ ἀνθρώπου] By asking, "Whom say men that I, the Son of Man, am?" He shows how earnestly He desires that men should confess His Incarnation, thence proclaiming His divinity. "No one hath ascended into heaven but the Son of Man, who is in heaven" (John iii. 13). Chrys.

14. οἱ μὲν, Ἰωάννην κ.τ.λ.] Cp. above, xiv. 2. Luke ix. 7—9. John i. 20, 21. The people imagine Thee to be one of these persons who are dead, and (as the people think) one of these has risen again in Thee; a belief which seems to have arisen from Deut. xviii. 15. 18. Mal. iv. 5.

It is to be observed that the Jews entertained two false notions concerning the Messiah.

First, that He was to be a temporal Prince and Saviour.

Secondly, that he was to be a man only, and not God. And one of the strongest arguments against the Socinian heresy may be founded on the horror felt and expressed by the multitude at the announcement of His claim to be God,—a proof that our Lord made that claim; that He professed Himself to be God, and required the people to accept Him as nothing less. Cf. Blunt on the Early Church, p. 117.

16. ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ Θεοῦ τοῦ ζῶντος] Not a man risen from the dead as the people imagine, but the Son of the Living God. Thou who art the Son of Man, and so callest Thyself (see v. 13); i. e. who art the Second Adam, art also the Christ, and Thou who art the Christ art also Son of the Living God, or (as St. Luke expresses it, ix. 20) the Christ of God.

We must remember, that He who is the Son of God is also the Son of man. The confession of one of these truths without the other affords no hope of salvation. (Hilary.)

17. Σίμων Βὰρ Ἰωνᾶ] βὰρ, the Chaldaic form used by the Prophet Daniel (the Prophet to whom our Lord had alluded in His question; see Dan. vii. 13, and note here on v. 18), for the Hebr. בֵּן (Ben), or Son.

This confession, that I, who am Son of Man, am also the Son of God, is as true as that thou, Simon, art the Son of Jona.

— σὰρξ καὶ αἷμα] Humanity in its weakness, and as distinguished from God. Gal. i. 16. Eph. vi. 12.

18. σὺ εἶ Πέτρος, καὶ ἐπὶ ταύτῃ τῇ πέτρᾳ οἰκοδομήσω μου τὴν ἐκκλησίαν] On this passage it is said by Divines of the Church of Rome, that it contains a promise to St. Peter,

That he is described by Christ as the Rock on which He would build the Church,

That a Rock is something permanent, and that the Rock on which the Church is built must be as enduring as the Church itself; and that therefore this promise to St. Peter is also a promise that St. Peter would have successors, and is also a promise to them (see Maldonat. here),

That the successor of St. Peter is the Bishop of Rome,

That the promise here made by Christ to St. Peter is made to the Bishop of Rome.

But, these words of Christ are recorded by St. Matthew alone. St. Mark and St. Luke stop at the confession of St. Peter, adding only that our Lord enjoined them not to tell any one this thing.

Hence it appears that the aim of our Lord's inquiry was to elicit a true confession concerning Himself. "Whom do men say that I am? The world is in error on this point. Some call Me John the Baptist, and by other human names; but whom say ye that I am?—ye, My Disciples, in this the third year of My Ministry,—ye who have heard My words and seen My works?"

This was the main design of our Lord's question. The Evangelists St. Mark and St. Luke omit the words in St. Matthew concerning St. Peter (see further on St. Mark viii. 29. Luke ix. 18), which they would hardly have done, if the declaration of St. Peter's privileges, and not of our Lord's Person and office, had been the scope of the conversation.

Its end and aim is not Peter, but Christ. Here is the clue to the interpretation of our Lord's words to St. Peter, "On this Rock I will build My Church." And hence we are led to believe that the Rock is CHRIST.

We are brought to the same conclusion by other considerations;—

Our Lord introduces Himself here as "the Son of Man." "Whom say men that I, 'the Son of Man,' am?" This title "Son of Man" is applied to Christ in only one passage of the Old πέτρᾳ οἰκοδομήσω μοῦ τὴν ἐκκλησίαν, καὶ πύλαι ᾅδου οὐ κατισχύσουσιν αὐτῆς· 19 [1] καὶ δώσω σοι τὰς κλεῖς τῆς βασιλείας τῶν οὐρανῶν· καὶ ὃ ἐὰν δήσῃς 1 ch. 18. 18. John 20. 23.

Testament (Dan. vii. 13); therefore our Lord may here be supposed to allude to that passage, when He asks, "Whom say men that I the Son of Man (Bar-Enosh) am?" And there was something very appropriate in the transition from speaking of Himself as Bar-Enosh, to speak of Peter as Bar-Jona, who had acknowledged Him to be Bar-Elohim as well as Bar-Enosh. Now in the book of Daniel the kingdom of the Son of Man is compared to a stone which becomes a great Rock (Tur, the Chaldaic for Hebr. צור (Tsur); see Dan. ii. 35), and lasts for ever, and is called the kingdom of the God of heaven. (Dan. ii. 44.)

Here we see a prophetic representation of our Lord's words to St. Peter, on this Rock (i. e. on Myself, the Son of Man, confessed also to be Son of God) I will build My Church, My Kingdom, which is the kingdom of the Living God, and it shall last for ever: and I will give to thee the keys of that kingdom.

Our Lord speaks of a πέτρα, or Rock. Now this title ROCK is one which is reserved in the Old Testament to the ALMIGHTY. The language of Holy Scripture, from beginning to end, is, "Who is a Rock save our God?" (2 Sam. xxii. 32. Ps. xviii. 31.) "God only is my rock." (Ps. lxii. 2. 6, 7 [1].) As far as the word ROCK is used in the Old Testament figuratively as a support, a foundation, or a basis to build upon (as it is used by our Lord here), it is used of GOD, and of Him alone.

The language of the New Testament is similar. He who builds on Christ's words, builds on a Rock (Matt. vii. 24, 25. Luke vi. 48. Cp. 1 Pet. ii. 4, 5). And St. Paul says (1 Cor. iii. 11), "Other foundation can no man lay than that which lieth (κεῖται)"—i. e. not, is laid, as the Apostles are laid on the foundation, but which lieth by its own spontaneous act, as the foundation—JESUS CHRIST; i. e. He who is JESUS as Man, and CHRIST as the Son of the Living God;—which is St. Peter's confession here.

As Greg. Nazian. says, p. 555, our Lord is υἱὸς ἀνθρώπου διὰ τὸν Ἀδάμ, καὶ διὰ τὴν Παρθένον—Χριστὸς δὲ διὰ τὴν θεότητα· χρίσει γὰρ αὕτη τῇ ἀνθρωπότητος, παρουσία ὅλου τοῦ χριόντος.

The relation of St. Peter and the other Apostles to this one foundation, Jesus Christ (i. e. Christ confessed to be both God and Man) is distinctly marked in the Holy Scriptures, both of the Old and New Testament;

In the Old Testament the Apostles were typified by the Twelve Stones taken from Jordan (see above on x. 2), as also by other emblems (see ibid.) signifying their duodenary character and co-ordinate power as respects one another.

But there is not a single type in the Old Testament which prefigures a supremacy of one Apostle over the rest, and over the whole Church. All the Old Testament types of the New Testament Church are disturbed by the theory of such a supremacy.

In the New Testament, the actual relation of the Apostles to the one Foundation Jesus Christ, and to each other, is clearly stated; e. g.

Christ is the Vine, they all are Branches. (John xv. 1—5.) He is their Master, they are all Brethren. (Matt. xxiii. 8.) He discourages all thought among them that one of them should be greatest. (Matt. xviii. 1. Mark ix. 34. Luke ix. 46; xxii. 24.) Christ promises them Twelve Thrones. (Matt. xix. 28. Luke xxii. 30.) The Church is built on the foundation of the Apostles and Prophets (not on one Apostle). Ephes. ii. 20, Jesus Christ being the Head Corner-stone, on Whom or in Whom (ἐν ᾧ) the whole building fitted together groweth into a holy Temple in the Lord, on Whom ye are builded together.

There are twelve stars in the crown of the Church militant sojourning on earth (Rev. xii. 1), and Twelve foundation-stones in the wall of the Church glorified in heaven. (Rev. xxi. 14.) And if Peter, who is one of these Twelve Stones, is taken from the other eleven and made to be their foundation, the whole structure is disturbed, and the whole fabric falls. Hence St. Paul calls himself not a whit behind the very chiefest Apostles (2 Cor. xi. 5; cp. 28), and in nothing (he says) am I behind the very chiefest Apostles. (2 Cor. xii. 11.)

But, it may be asked, can ἐπὶ ταύτῃ τῇ πέτρᾳ be rightly interpreted as equivalent to ἐπ' ἐμαυτῷ, i. e. on Myself?

We have a reply to this question in the Baptist's words concerning himself, and in our Lord's own words concerning Himself;

St. John says, Matt. iii. 3 [2], οὗτός ἐστιν,—he is there speaking of himself. Our Lord says, Destroy this Temple, τοῦτον τὸν ναόν (John ii. 19); this He said of Himself. Whoso falleth on this stone (Matt. xxi. 44), τοῦτον τὸν λίθον,—this He said of Himself. If any one eats of this bread, τοῦτον τὸν ἄρτον (John vi. 5),—this also He said of Himself (see also v. 58).

So in the present sentence,—on this Rock, ἐπὶ ταύτῃ τῇ πέτρᾳ,—He is speaking of Himself [3].

Again: the pronoun οὗτος, this, may be used to signify a third person, and it may be applied by the speaker to designate himself; but it is doubtful whether any passage can be cited from the New Testament where it is used to specify the person to whom the person using it speaks. Now our Lord is speaking to Peter. Here, then, we see another evidence that Peter is not this Rock.

What He says is this: "I Myself, now confessed by thee to be both God and Man, am the Rock of the Church. This is the foundation on which it is built." And because St. Peter had confessed Him as such, He says to St. Peter, "Thou hast confessed Me, and I will now confess thee; thou hast owned Me, I will now own thee. Thou art Peter;" i. e. thou art a lively stone, hewn out of, and built upon Me, the living Rock. Thou art a genuine Petros of Me the divine Petra. And whosoever would be a lively stone, a Peter, must imitate thee in this thy true confession of Me the living Rock; for upon this Rock, that is, on Myself, believed and confessed to be both God and Man, I will build My Church [4].

In contravention of this exposition two objections have been made. It is alleged,—

That our Lord did not speak in Greek, but in Aramaic or Syro-Chaldaic, and used the same word Cepha in both members of the sentence; i. e. that He said, Thou art a Cepha, and on this Cepha I will build My Church.

But this cannot be proved; for it is as probable that our Lord said, Thou art Cephas, and upon this Cepha I will build My Church [5].

And if the name Petros in the New Testament means a Rock, and if our Lord had intended to say that Peter is the Rock of the Church, then the Holy Spirit writing by St. Matthew would have said, σὺ εἶ Πέτρος, καὶ ἐπὶ τούτῳ τῷ πέτρῳ οἰκοδομήσω μου τὴν ἐκκλησίαν. But by changing the word from Petros to Petra, He shows that Petros is not the Rock of the Church [6].

The Holy Spirit has also declared in what sense Simon Bar-jona was called Cephas. For He records our Lord's saying, when the Apostle was first called (John i. 43), σὺ εἶ Σίμων ὁ υἱὸς Ἰωνᾶ, σὺ κληθήσῃ Κηφᾶς, and there the Holy Spirit adds, ὃ ἑρμηνεύεται Πέτρος, i. e. which word Cephas is to be interpreted a stone.

I do not say that Petros never signifies a Rock in profane authors, but it never has that sense in the LXX or the Greek N. T.; but no one doubts that Petra there and elsewhere signifies a Rock. Petra is a Rock; but, as Maldonatus allows (one of the ablest Roman Catholic Expositors, p. 217), "Πέτρος pro rupe et Atticum et rarum est."

Another objection is, that the Fathers apply the words ἐπὶ ταύτῃ τῇ πέτρᾳ to St. Peter, and call him the Rock of the Church. But this is not true. No doubt some of the Fathers do this [7], and they who do so, do not always do so. Some of them say that the πέτρα of the Church is the faith of St. Peter; others, that the πέτρα is Christ, confessed to be God and Man [8], which is equivalent to, but a more clear assertion of, the other opinion. Some of the same Fathers who sometimes call Peter a Rock, vary in opinion on this point. The record which Augustine in the fifth century gives of his own practice is remarkable, viz. that in his earlier expositions he had applied the words to Peter, but in his later ones to Christ [9]. And many of the Fathers place St. Paul on a par with St. Peter [10]. St. Jerome says, ii. p. 689, "Ecclesia Catholica super Petram Christum stabili radice fundata est;" iv. 177 (ad Hedibiam), "Ipsi Prophetæ a Petra, hoc est Christo, cum Apostolis vocabulum acceperunt." And see on Matt. vii. 25. And in his note here St. Jerome says, Christ gave the name Petrus to Simon, who believed in Christ the Petra.

---

[1] Cp. Deut. xxxii. 4. 15. 18. 30. 1 Sam. ii. 2. 2 Sam. xxii. 2, 3. 47; xxiii. 3. Ps. xix. 14; xxviii. 1; xxxi. 2, 3; xlii. 9; lxxi. 3. 26; lxxviii. 35. In the Lord Jehovah is the Rock of Ages. Cp. Isa. xxviii. 6, "a sure foundation;" xxxii. 2; xliv. 8. Where the words Rock and God are interchanged: "Is there a God beside Me? yea, there is no Rock, I know not any."

[2] On the demonstrative pronouns ὅδε οὗτος, used by a speaker for himself, see Matt. Gr. Gr. §§ 470, 471.

[3] Cp. Chemnitz, Harmon. Leyser, cap. 85, for an able exposition of this text, and Schoëttgen, p. 143, and particularly Dr. Jackson on the Creed, book iii. ch. viii. vol. ii. p. 249.

[4] See the clear exposition given by St. Augustine, Serm. lxxvi. vol. v. p. 595. See also Serm. cxlix. and Tract. in Johan. cxviii. cxxiv. "Petra principale nomen est. Ideo Petrus à Petrâ; non Petra à Petro; quomodo non à Christiano Christus, sed à Christo Christianus vocatur. Tu es ergo, inquit, Petrus, et super hanc Petram Quam confessus es, super hanc Petram, quam cognovisti, dicens, Tu es Christus Filius Dei vivi, ædificabo Ecclesiam Meam. Id est super Me ipsum, Filium Dei Vivi, ædificabo Ecclesiam Meam. Super Me ædificabo te, non super te." And then St. Augustine proceeds to condemn those who would build the Church on St. Peter. "Volentes homines ædificari super homines, dicebant, Ego sum Pauli, ego autem Apollo, ego vero Cephæ (1 Cor. i. 12, 13), ipse est Petrus (i. e. Cephas is Peter), et alii erant qui nolebant ædificari super Petrum, sed (i. e. volebant ædificari) super Petram, Ego autem sum Christi. Non in Pauli nec in Petri, sed in nomine Christi baptizati estis, ut Petrus ædificatur super Petram, non Petra super Petrum."

How could St. Augustine have written this, if he had received as an Article of Faith that the Rock of the Church is St. Peter, and that the Bishop of Rome is St. Peter's successor?

And yet this is now called by Romish Divines, e. g. Card. Bellarmine, Præf. in Libr. de Pontif. "res summa fidei Christianæ."

[5] See Lightfoot, ad loc., and Bp. Beveridge on the 37th Article, vol. ii. p. 396.

[6] Cf. Glass. Philol. Sacr. p. 928.

[7] E. g. Greg. Nazian. p. 591, ὁ μὲν πέτρα καλεῖται καὶ τοὺς θεμελίους τῆς Ἐκκλησίας πιστεύεται.

But many of the passages quoted as from the Fathers in this sense are spurious; e. g. all the first three cited here by Maldonat. p. 219. The forged Papal Decretals did much for this Exposition.

[8] See some of them collected by Bp. Andrewes, Tortura Torti, p. 234, and by Bp. Beveridge on the xxxviith Article, pp. 582—584. And in the Editor's Theophilus Anglicanus, pp. 243, 244, and p. 121. Ed. 1850. And on the subject generally, see Barrow on the Pope's Supremacy, Works, vi. 98—106.

[9] Aug. Retract. i. 21. See Theophil. Anglic. p. 244. Ed. 1850.

[10] Thus Leo, Bishop of Rome, in the fifth century (Serm. lxxix. p. 165).

ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς, ἔσται δεδεμένον ἐν τοῖς οὐρανοῖς, καὶ ὃ ἐὰν λύσῃς ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς, ἔσται λελυμένον ἐν τοῖς οὐρανοῖς. (168 II) 20 [k] Τότε διεστείλατο τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ ἵνα μηδενὶ εἴπωσιν, ὅτι αὐτός ἐστιν ὁ Χριστός.

21 [l] Ἀπὸ τότε ἤρξατο ὁ Ἰησοῦς δεικνύειν τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ, ὅτι δεῖ αὐτὸν

k ch. 17. 9. Mark 8. 30. Luke 9. 21.
l ch. 20. 17. Mark 8. 31. Luke 9. 22.

And St. Ambrose says, in Luc. ix. 20," Petra est Christus: etiam discipulo suo hujus vocabuli gratiam non negavit ut ipse sit Petrus, quòd de Petrâ habeat soliditatem constantiæ, fidei firmitatem." Augustine's exposition in this sense has been cited already.

There is a remarkable passage in Theodoret, in 1 Cor. iii. 11, p. 182, who says, "Other foundation can no man lay than this (Christ). This foundation was laid by Peter, or rather by our Lord Himself, for when Peter had said (Matt. xvi. 16), Thou art the Christ, the Son of the Living God, our Lord says, On this Rock I will build My Church. Do not, therefore, call yourselves by the names of men, for the foundation is CHRIST." And in England, even in the eighth century, the greatest divine of the Saxon Church, the Venerable Bede, says (in Marc. iii.), "Idem Græcè sive Latinè Petrus quod Syriacè Cephas. Et in utrâque linguâ nomen à Petrâ derivatur; haud dubiè quin illâ de quâ Paulus ait (1 Cor. x. 4), 'Petra erat Christus.' Nam Simoni qui credebat in Petram Christum, Petri largitus est nomen. Cujus alludens etymologiæ dixit, 'Tu es Petrus et super hanc Petram ædificabo Ecclesiam meam.'" And what is still more remarkable, this exposition has been adopted by the most powerful of all Popes, Gregory VII. Hildebrand, who, as Cardinal Baronius relates (ad ann. 1080, vol. xi. p. 704, and see Matth. Paris ad A. 1077), when he deposed the Emperor Henry IV., sent a crown to Rudolphus, with the inscription, in a hexameter verse, "Petra dedit Petro, Petrus diadema Rodolpho," where the Petra of the Church is distinguished from Peter, and is Christ.

18. οἰκοδομήσω μοῦ τὴν ἐκκλησίαν] 'I will build of Me the Church.' This confirms the last note, and is a protest against all encroachments on the supremacy of Christ. Observe, our Lord does not say οἰκοδομήσω τὴν ἐμὴν ἐκκλησίαν, nor does He say τὴν ἐκκλησίαν μου. But He says Μοῦ τὴν ἐκκλησίαν. This seeming solecism was probably designed to bring out more clearly His own supremacy, against all other claims. Do not think that the Church I will build is the Church of thee, or of any man. It is not the Church of thee, but of ME. It is not the Church of a human Petrus, but of the Divine Petra: not the Church of Simon Bar-Jona, but the Church of Christos Bar-Enosh, and of Christos Bar-Elohim.

— ἐκκλησίαν] The word Ἐκκλησία had been used by the LXX for the Hebrew קָהָל (kahal), connected with Greek καλέω, Latin Calendæ, and Eng. Call. Root Hebr. קוֹל (kol), vox. A congregation, e. g. Deut. ix. 10; xviii. 16, and passim, and also for the Hebrew עֵדָה (edhah), an Assembly, particularly of Rulers, Ps. lxxxii. 1. In the N. T. it signifies more than an Assembly convened for a special purpose; it denotes a permanent visible society, as is shown by the present passage where it first occurs. Cp. Matt. xviii. 17. See Hooker, iii. 1. 4. Bp. Pearson on the Creed, art. ix. Our Lord here, and in xviii. 17, speaks prophetically of a Society to be founded hereafter by Himself; and the Holy Spirit, in recording His words, uses prophetically the word Ecclesia, by which that Society would be known in all ages and countries of the world.

— πύλαι ᾅδου οὐ κατισχύσουσιν αὐτῆς] πύλαι ᾅδου, i. e. its counsels, power, and terrors. See Job xxxviii. 17. Ps. ix. 13; cvii. 18. Isa. xxxviii. 10. Grinfield, p. 102. There is an alliteration in the words שַׁעֲרֵי שְׁאוֹל (shaare sheol). The gates of a city were the places in which councils were summoned to deliberate on stratagems of war, Deut. xxv. 7. Lam. v. 14. Esth. iv. 2. And from which the army issued against the enemy; and therefore the promise of Christ here assures the Church, which is a city built on Himself, that Hell shall not prevail against her, either by secret guile or open force. As Bengel observes, there is a 'Metaphora Architectonica' throughout, in 'portæ,—ædificabo.—claves.' — κατισχύσουσιν] prævalebunt contra. See Luke xxiii. 23.

That these words contain no promise of Infallibility to St. Peter, is evident from the fact that the Holy Ghost, speaking by St. Paul in Canonical Scripture, says that he erred (Gal. ii. 11—13). And that they do not contain any promise of Infallibility to the Bishop of Rome is clear, among other proofs, from the circumstance that Pope Liberius (as Athanasius relates, Historia Arian. 41, p. 291) lapsed into Arianism, and Honorius was anathematized of old by Roman Pontiffs as an heretic. See Liber Diurnus Rom. Pontif. Routh, Scr. Eccl. Opusc. p. 507. 515, 516, and the recently-discovered Philosophumena of St. Hippolytus, Scholar of S. Irenæus, proving the same thing, pp. 284—292.

19. δώσω] After My Resurrection. Cp. John xx. 22, and Ascension, Eph. iv. 8.

— τὰς κλεῖς τῆς βασιλείας τ. οὐρ.] In Holy Scripture, keys are badges of power and trust; and are given, as such, to stewards, treasurers, wardens, &c., who have power of excluding and of admitting, of keeping in custody, and also of opening stores and dispensing them. See Isa. xxii. 22. Rev. i. 18; iii. 7; xx. 1. Luke xi. 52.

In a primary and personal sense, St. Peter, in reward for his good confession of the true faith in Christ, received and exercised the power of the keys; for after the Ascension he was the first among the Apostles to admit into the Church by the ministry of the Word and Sacraments, the Jewish converts (Acts ii. 14. 38); and also Cornelius the first-fruits of the Gentiles (Acts x. 34—48). And Peter himself notes the fulfilment of Christ's promise to himself (Acts xv. 7).

In a secondary and general sense the promise is made to the Church, and specially to all who hold and profess the faith of Peter, and are called to the office of dispensing the Word and Sacraments, and of exercising the ministry of reconciliation (2 Cor. v. 18, 19) [1].

— ὃ ἐὰν δήσῃς—ὃ ἐὰν λύσῃς] The same power was given to the other Apostles, Matt. xviii. 18, John xx. 23, whence it appears that the figure is derived from binding or loosing the chain of those who are imprisoned by sin. (Cp. Luke iv. 18. Rom. vi. 18. 22.) Christ looses from the guilt of original sin by the Ministry of Baptism (Acts ii. 38; xxii. 16. Titus iii. 5), and from the bands of actual sin, on the condition of faith and repentance, by the Ministry of Reconciliation (2 Cor. v. 18, 19), particularly in the Holy Eucharist (Matt. xxvi. 28).

He binds by means of His Ministers when He withholds the means of grace from those who despise them, or are in open and flagrant sin, and separates them from Communion with the Church in Holy Offices (Matt. xviii. 17. 1 Cor. v. 4—7. 2 Cor. vii. 9—12. 2 Thess. iii. 14. See Article xxxiii. Hooker, VI. iv. 2. Bp. Andrewes, Tortura Torti, p. 63. Abp. Cranmer on the Power of the Keys, Catechism, pp. 201, 202, ed. Oxon, 1829). This text, Matt. xvi. 19, is extended by the Church of Rome to authorize the claim of her Bishop to absolve from Oaths; on which see Bp. Sanderson de Juramento, Præl. vii. vol. iv. p. 346.

20. ἵνα μηδενὶ εἴπωσι] Because (as St. Peter's words showed, v. 22) the Apostles were not as yet fully schooled in the doctrine of the true nature of Christ's kingdom and office (see Luke xxii. 24. Acts i. 6), and would not be so, till the outpouring of the Holy Spirit upon them.

Because Christ knew that they would forsake Him in His suffering, and because the Faith of those to whom they had preached would be greatly imperilled by their desertion.

Because He would not exasperate His enemies, but allow them longer time to see and consider the evidence of His works.

Because He was now about to suffer the greatest indignities, which would make belief in His Deity a difficult matter, and would expose those who saw Him suffer, to the danger of sinning against Him as God by greater blasphemy; and because Faith in His Deity would be easier after His glorious Resurrection and Ascension into heaven.

21. ἀπὸ τότε] Observe Christ's method in teaching.

They must first confess His Messiahship and Divinity.

---

speaks of these two Apostles as those "quos gratiâ Christi in tantum apicem inter omnia Ecclesiæ membra provexit, ut eos in corpore cui caput est Christus, quasi geminum construeret lumen oculorum (where some MSS. have 'Petrus et Paulus geminus oculus Ecclesiæ alter alteri æqualis') de quorum meritis nihil diversum, nihil debemus sentire discretum; quia illos et electio pares, et labor similes, et finis fecit æquales."

Thus St. Aug. iii. 2313, "Ipse Caput et Princeps Apostolorum," speaking not of St. Peter, but of St. Paul. Again, he says, x. 256 "(Paulus) tanti Apostolatûs meruit principatum." So St. Ambrose, de Spir. Sanct. ii. 13. "Nec Paulus Inferior Petro;—cum primo quoque facile conferendus, et nulli secundus; nam qui se imparem nescit, facit æqualem." So Petrus Cluniacus (A. D. 1147) contr. Petrobus. Bibl. Patr. Colon. xiii. 221, 2, calls St. Paul "Summus post Christum Ecclesiæ Magister:" and thus both St. Peter and St. Paul are called Κορυφαῖοι in the same sentence by Euthym. Zyg. Præf. ad S. Luc. Δοκεῖς Παύλῳ τῷ Κορυφαίῳ συναριθμοῦσθαι καὶ συνέδημος, καθάπερ δὴ καὶ Πέτρου τοῦ Κορυφαίου Μάρκος· and all the Apostles are called Κορυφαῖοι by Theophylact, in S. Luc. x. εὑρήσομεν τὰς δώδεκα πηγὰς τοὺς κορυφαίους λέγω τοὺς δώδεκα Ἀποστόλους. See also Casaubon, Exerc. Baron. xv. 327, 8, and xvi. 658.

[1] The following are testimonies from the Fathers to this effect:—

Tertullian, Scorpiac. 10, "Memento claves hic Dominum Petro et per illum Ecclesiæ reliquisse." S. Cyprian, de Unit. Eccles. p. 107, "Apostolis omnibus post resurrectionem suam parem potestatem tribuit."—p. 108, "Ecclesia una est, in quâ Episcopatus unus est cujus à singulis in solidum pars tenetur." S. Hieron. c. Jovinian. lib. i. "Dicis, super Petrum fundatur Ecclesia; licet id ipsum in alio loco super omnes Apostolos fiat, et cuncti claves regni cœlorum accipiant, et super eos ex æquo Ecclesiæ fortitudo solidetur." S. Basil, Const. Monast. 22, πᾶσι τοῖς ἐφεξῆς ποιμέσι καὶ διδασκάλοις παρέχει ἴσην ἐξουσίαν· καὶ τούτου σημεῖον τὸ δεσμεῖν ἅπαντας καὶ λύειν ὥσπερ ἐκεῖνος. S. Ambrose, in Psalm xxxviii. "Quod Petro dicitur, cæteris Apostolis dicitur." S. August. Serm. xii. "Numquid istas claves accepit Petrus, et Paulus non accepit? Petrus accepit, et Joannes et Jacobus non accepit et cæteri Apostoli? Aut non sunt istæ in Ecclesiâ claves ubi peccata quotidie dimittuntur?" Serm. cexcv. "Has claves non homo unus sed unitas accepit Ecclesiæ." See also Serm. cxviii. and cxxiv. and cxiv.

S. Leo, A. D. 450. Serm. iii. p. 53, ed. 1700, "Transivit in alios Apostolos jus potestatis illius et ad omnes Ecclesiæ Principes decreti hujus constitutio commeavit. Sed non frustra uni commendatur, quod omnibus intimetur." Serm. de Nativ., "Hæc clavium potestas ad omnes etiam Apostolos et Ecclesiæ Præsules est translata. Quod autem sigillatim Petro sit commendata, ideo factum est quòd Petri exemplum omnibus Ecclesiæ Pastoribus fuit propositum."

Hooker, VI. iv. 1. Bp. Andrewes, Tortura Torti, p. 63. Mason, de Ministerio Anglicano, v. 10. Hammond here, p. 84. Barrow on the Pope's Supremacy, vi. pp. 107-110, de Potestate Clavium. Vol. iv. p. 50, which is more full than his English Treatise on the Power of the Keys, v. 302. ed. Oxon, 1818. Theophil. Anglicanus. chaps. xii. and xiii.

ἀπελθεῖν εἰς Ἱεροσόλυμα, καὶ πολλὰ παθεῖν ἀπὸ τῶν πρεσβυτέρων καὶ ἀρχιερέων καὶ γραμματέων, καὶ ἀποκτανθῆναι, καὶ τῇ τρίτῃ ἡμέρᾳ ἐγερθῆναι. (169/VI) 22 Καὶ προσλαβόμενος αὐτὸν ὁ Πέτρος, ἤρξατο ἐπιτιμᾶν αὐτῷ λέγων, Ἵλεώς σοι, Κύριε· οὐ μὴ ἔσται σοι τοῦτο. 23 Ὁ δὲ στραφεὶς εἶπε τῷ Πέτρῳ, Ὕπαγε ὀπίσω μου σατανᾶ, σκάνδαλόν μου εἶ· ὅτι οὐ φρονεῖς τὰ τοῦ Θεοῦ, ἀλλὰ τὰ τῶν ἀνθρώπων. (170/II) 24 [m] Τότε ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπε τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ, Εἴ τις θέλει ὀπίσω μου ἐλθεῖν, ἀπαρνησάσθω ἑαυτὸν, καὶ ἀράτω τὸν σταυρὸν αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἀκολουθείτω μοι· 25 ὃς γὰρ ἂν θέλῃ τὴν ψυχὴν αὐτοῦ σῶσαι, ἀπολέσει αὐτήν[n]· ὃς δ' ἂν ἀπολέσῃ τὴν ψυχὴν αὐτοῦ ἕνεκεν ἐμοῦ, εὑρήσει αὐτήν. 26 τί γὰρ ὠφελεῖται ἄνθρωπος, ἐὰν τὸν κόσμον ὅλον κερδήσῃ, τὴν δὲ ψυχὴν αὐτοῦ ζημιωθῇ[o]; ἢ τί δώσει ἄνθρωπος ἀντάλλαγμα τῆς ψυχῆς αὐτοῦ; (171/X) 27 [p] Μέλλει γὰρ ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἔρχεσθαι ἐν τῇ δόξῃ τοῦ Πατρὸς αὐτοῦ [q] μετὰ τῶν ἀγγέλων αὐτοῦ· [r] καὶ τότε ἀποδώσει ἑκάστῳ κατὰ τὴν πρᾶξιν αὐτοῦ. (172/II) 28 Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, εἰσί τινες ὧδε ἑστῶτες, οἵτινες οὐ μὴ γεύσωνται θανάτου, ἕως ἂν ἴδωσι τὸν Υἱὸν τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἐρχόμενον ἐν τῇ βασιλείᾳ αὐτοῦ.

m ch. 10. 38. Mark 8. 34. Luke 9. 23. & 14. 27. & 17. 33.

n ch. 10. 39. Mark 8. 35. John 12. 25.

o Mark 8. 36. Luke 9. 25.

p ch. 26. 64. Mark 8. 38. Luke 9. 26.

q Dan. 7. 10. Zech. 14. 5.

r Job 31. 11. Rom. 2. 6. 1 Cor. 3. 8. Rev. 22. 12.

XVII. 1 Καὶ μεθ' ἡμέρας ἓξ παραλαμβάνει ὁ Ἰησοῦς τὸν Πέτρον καὶ Ἰάκωβον καὶ Ἰωάννην τὸν ἀδελφὸν αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἀναφέρει αὐτοὺς εἰς ὄρος ὑψηλὸν

They are to be taught that yet He would suffer the greatest indignities as man.

Accordingly, after the Ascension, they first endeavoured to persuade the world,

That He is Christ,

That Christ should suffer, die, and rise again. (Cf. Bengel here.) See above on xvi. 14.

— ἀποκτανθῆναι] Our Lord does not yet say σταυρωθῆναι. This was to be revealed hereafter (Matt. xx. 19). But He had suggested it in what He had required, and was about to require again from His Disciples, viz. ἆραι τὸν σταυρὸν καθ' ἡμέραν καὶ ἀκολουθεῖν αὐτῷ (Matt. x. 38; xvi. 24. Mark viii. 34. Luke ix. 23; xiv. 27).

— τῇ τρίτῃ ἡμέρᾳ] St. Mark has here (viii. 31), μετὰ τρεῖς ἡμέρας. See above, xii. 40.

22. Ἵλεώς σοι] "propitius sit tibi!" Ἵλεως, Ἵλαος, ἱλάσκομαι are connected by some Lexicographers with ἱλαρὸς (see Passow); they seem to have a common root with ἅλσος, cp. on Rom. iii. 25, ἱλαστήριον, propitiatorium, Mercy-seat.

23. ὕπαγε ὀπίσω μου σατανᾶ] "Adversarie!" Thou who just now wert a lively Stone in My Church, art now doing the work of the πύλαι ᾅδου, and even of their Prince himself, by dissuading Me from suffering death, by which I shall overthrow the Enemy, and give life to the Church.

— σκάνδαλον] Observe our blessed Lord here keeps up the metaphor of Πέτρος, or a Stone: thou who wert just now by thy faith in confessing Me, a lively Stone, art now by thy carnal weakness a stumbling Stone to Christ. See below, xviii. 6.

24. τὸν σταυρὸν αὐτοῦ] He must take up his own cross; as I have just spoken of My death (Matt. xvi. 21). See below, xx. 19, and cp. Iren. iii. 18, 12, who thence refutes the heresy of the Docetæ.

Our Lord was not content with rebuking Peter; He proceeds to show the benefit of suffering. Thou sayest, be it far from Thee Lord, but I say unto thee, that thou wouldest destroy thyself if thou couldest restrain Me from suffering; and if thou art scandalized with My death; and thou canst not be saved, unless thou art prepared to follow Me, thou must not expect a crown of glory, because thou hast confessed Me; this is not enough; thou must take up thy cross, i. e. be content not only to suffer, but to die the most shameful death —to follow Me.

Christ will have a voluntary service from us: He does not compel us to follow him, but He says, "If any one is willing to follow Me." And then He sets before us the misery of not following Him; and the glorious rewards, far exceeding the sufferings, of following Him. (Cp. Chrys.)

26. τί γάρ] Quoted by Ignatius ad Rom. vi. p. 388.

27. ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου] He again refers to Daniel vii. 13. See above, v. 18.

28. εἰσί τινες—βασιλείᾳ αὐτοῦ] This prophecy, like many others, has a progressive and expansive character. It unfolded itself by degrees and at intervals; it put forth buds and blossoms, but it will not be in its full bloom of Accomplishment till the Great Day. Its first germination was in what immediately follows, viz. the Transfiguration (Matt. xvii. 1—5). Its season of blossoming was in the manifestation of Christ's power and majesty in the punishment of His Enemies by the means of the Roman Armies, Christ's Legions called Cæsar's, at the siege and fall of Jerusalem. Another stage toward fulfilment may be observed in the revelation of Christ's glory to St. John in the Apocalypse. But its full manifestation will be at our Lord's Second Coming in glory, for the Universal Judgment. This is evident

From what He has just said, the Son of Man shall come in the glory of His Father, with His Angels, and then shall He reward every man according to his works;

From a comparison of the parallel passages in St. Mark (viii. 38) and St. Luke (ix. 26), where our Lord speaks distinctly of that Second Coming with His Holy Angels in the glory of His Father.

The saying, therefore, in its full power, is to be understood thus,

Some who stand here, viz. remain stedfastly by Me, shall not taste of death (cp. John viii. 52); i. e. shall not feel its bitterness, for I will take away its sting and will taste death for them (Heb. ii. 9); they will not taste its bitterness until I come again in glory; and

They shall not taste of that which alone ought to be called death, viz. 'the second death,' the death of the soul (Rev. xx. 14).

Thus they will not taste of death till I come.

Much less will they taste of it then. They will fall asleep in Me, and rest in peace in Paradise as to their souls, till I come again in My kingdom. And when I come again in glory, then their bodies will be raised and reunited to their souls, and they will enjoy the full consummation of bliss both in body and soul, in My kingdom for ever.

The signification of ἕως ἄν here may be compared to ἕως οὗ in Matt. i. 25 (where see note).

So again He says (xxviii. 20), He will never be absent from His Disciples, even to the end of the world; much less will He be absent from them after it, for then, both in body and soul, they will be "ever with the Lord" (1 Thess. iv. 17).

"Itaque," says St. Ambrose, in Luke ix. 27, "si volumus mortem non timere, stemus ubi Christus est: vita tua Christus est: ipsa est Vita quæ mori nescit." And Origen here, "They that stand where Jesus stands, are they who have the foundation of their souls resting upon Jesus; and they shall never taste of death. The word until does not fix any time when that shall be which was not before; for he that once sees Christ in His glory, shall by no means after that taste of death." See also on John viii. 51.

CH. XVII. 1. μεθ' ἡμέρας ἓξ] So Mark ix. 2. St. Luke says ὡσεὶ ἡμέραι ὀκτώ. This may serve to illustrate the modes of expression by which our Lord's rest in the grave is described. See above, xii. 40.

The Transfiguration was a type and glimpse and earnest of the future glory of the risen bodies of His members; and some of the Ancient Fathers see a symbolical meaning in the period here specified —"after six days." Seven is the number of perfection and rest; the sabbatical number; after an Hexameron of labour we come to the eternal Sabbath, in which we may hope to be transfigured with Christ. (Cp. Theophyl. in Marc. ix.) Some have also connected with them the ancient opinion that after six millenary periods typified by the Hexameron of Creation, the Eternal Sabbath will ensue.

"Our Lord was transfigured;" says Jerome, "not that He lost His form and aspect, but He appeared to His apostles as He will appear to all at the Day of Judgment."

— ὄρος] In Galilee; perhaps Tabor. (St. Jerome in Epitaph. Paulæ and St. Cyril, Cateches. xii.) Some have supposed that this was a fulfilment of Isaiah's prophecy, xxxv. 2. Dr. Robinson (Palestine, iii. 221) thinks that the Transfiguration took place on a mountain to the N.E. of the Sea of Galilee. But see above on ch. v. 1.

κατ' ἰδίαν, 2 καὶ μετεμορφώθη ἔμπροσθεν αὐτῶν, καὶ ἔλαμψε τὸ πρόσωπον αὐτοῦ ὡς ὁ ἥλιος, τὰ δὲ ἱμάτια αὐτοῦ ἐγένετο λευκὰ ὡς τὸ φῶς. 3 Καὶ ἰδοὺ, ὤφθησαν αὐτοῖς Μωϋσῆς καὶ Ἠλίας μετ' αὐτοῦ συλλαλοῦντες. 4 Ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ ὁ Πέτρος εἶπε τῷ Ἰησοῦ, Κύριε, καλόν ἐστιν ἡμᾶς ὧδε εἶναι· εἰ θέλεις, ποιήσωμεν ὧδε τρεῖς σκηνάς· σοὶ μίαν, καὶ Μωϋσῇ μίαν, καὶ μίαν Ἠλίᾳ. 5 Ἔτι αὐτοῦ λαλοῦντος, ἰδοὺ, νεφέλη φωτεινὴ ἐπεσκίασεν αὐτούς· καὶ ἰδοὺ, φωνὴ ἐκ τῆς νεφέλης, λέγουσα, Οὗτός ἐστιν ὁ Υἱός μου ὁ ἀγαπητὸς, ἐν ᾧ εὐδόκησα· αὐτοῦ ἀκούετε. 6 Καὶ ἀκούσαντες οἱ μαθηταὶ ἔπεσον ἐπὶ πρόσωπον αὐτῶν, καὶ ἐφοβήθησαν σφόδρα. 7 Καὶ προσελθὼν ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἥψατο αὐτῶν, καὶ εἶπεν, Ἐγέρθητε, καὶ μὴ φοβεῖσθε. 8 Ἐπάραντες δὲ τοὺς ὀφθαλμοὺς αὐτῶν οὐδένα εἶδον, εἰ μὴ τὸν Ἰησοῦν μόνον.

9 Καὶ καταβαινόντων αὐτῶν ἐκ τοῦ ὄρους, ἐνετείλατο αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, λέγων, Μηδενὶ εἴπητε τὸ ὅραμα, ἕως οὗ ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἐκ νεκρῶν ἀναστῇ. (178/VI) 10 Καὶ ἐπηρώτησαν αὐτὸν οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ, λέγοντες, Τί οὖν οἱ Γραμματεῖς λέγουσιν, ὅτι Ἠλίαν δεῖ ἐλθεῖν πρῶτον; 11 ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Ἠλίας μὲν ἔρχεται πρῶτον, καὶ ἀποκαταστήσει πάντα· 12 λέγω δὲ ὑμῖν, ὅτι Ἠλίας ἤδη ἦλθε, καὶ οὐκ ἐπέγνωσαν αὐτὸν, ἀλλ' ἐποίησαν ἐν

---

2. μετεμορφώθη] In order to give them a glimpse of His future glory. He had been speaking to them of sufferings—His own and theirs. His Passion was at hand, and He endeavours to confirm their faith in His Messiahship, recently confessed by St. Peter, who was blessed for that confession, and to sustain their courage under those sufferings, by a view of His divine glory, and of the glory of the bodies of the Saints in a heavenly state.

On this subject see Leo M. Serm. xciv. p. 179.

3. Μωϋσῆς καὶ Ἠλίας] The Representatives of the Law and of the Prophets; to show their union with, and subordination to, JESUS CHRIST and the Gospel; and that He is the Christ of whom Moses and the Prophets did write. "Moses et Elias," says St. Ambrose on Luke ix. 30, "hoc est Lex et Prophetia cum VERBO." Moses had not been permitted when alive to enter the Land of Promise, but here we see him brought into it, to do homage to the true Joshua.

No man knew where the body of Moses was (Deut. xxxiv. 6). But God here unites it to that of Elias and of Christ Our bodies may be scattered to the winds, and lost to men. But God knows where they all are; and will bring them all again at the last Day.

Moses was dead, Elias alive; Christ the Life, the Son of the Living God, is the Lord both of dead and living (Rom. xiv. 9).

Hence we see that they who have been faithful to Him on earth, though they be dead, yet they live in Him, and retain their personal identity. Perhaps also the Holy Spirit thus intimates the doctrine of mutual recognition in a future state.

Another purpose of this manifestation was to show that Jesus was not Elias (see Matt. xvi. 14), nor one of the old Prophets, but superior to all—and to Moses; and therefore the Messias, the Son of God.

"Why," says Chrys., "did He bring hither Moses and Elias?"

First, because men said that He was Elias, or one of the old prophets, He conducts the chief Apostles (τοὺς κορυφαίους), to the Mount that they may see the difference between the Prophets and the Lord of the Prophets. Next, that they might understand that Christ is not, as some imagine, contrary to the Law and the Prophets; and that when He claims to be equal with the Father, He does not contravene them. Next, that they might learn that He has power of life and death; and therefore He brings forth Moses who had died, and Elias, who had never seen death. Next, that they might understand the glory of the cross; and that He might quell the fear of Peter, shrinking from the cross, and might elevate the thoughts of the rest. For Moses and Elias spake of His glory[1] which He was about to accomplish at Jerusalem by death. He also brings forward Moses and Elias as examples of suffering in the cause of God, and of consequent reward in glory."

4. τρεῖς σκηνάς] σκηνή, from שָׁכַן (shachan), habitavit, whence Shechinah. St. Peter desired to remain there, and to retain Moses and Elias. He had heard Christ's prophecies concerning suffering; Moses and Elias conversed with Christ concerning His death (Luke ix. 31). Peter shrunk from that (see Theophyl. on Luke ix. 33); he was entranced, and enraptured with the present glory; he wished to enjoy that. And he puts Moses and Elias on a par with Christ. But as St. Mark adds (probably from St. Peter's own dictation), he knew not what he said, for they were afraid (Mark ix. 6).

"Thou errest, O Peter," says Jerome, "and knowest not what thou sayest. Speak not of three tabernacles, since there is but one tabernacle, that of the Gospel, in which the Law and the Prophets are enshrined. The Voice from heaven says, 'This is my beloved Son,' they (Moses and Elias) are His servants."

In order that it might be known that the Voice ('Hear ye Him') referred to Christ, as soon as it was uttered Moses and Elias disappeared, and Christ alone remained to be heard. Observe, the cloud was a bright cloud; not like that from which the Law was given on Sinai. (St. Chrys.) Observe also that Christ remained after the cloud had passed away. After the cloud which hung over the Law and the Prophets has been withdrawn, both are revealed and illumined in the Gospel. (Cp. St. Jerome.)

5. νεφέλη] St. Peter had spoken of a σκηνή. The Cloud is Christ's σκηνή—His Shechinah. Cp. the history of the Cloud of the divine Presence at the Tabernacle and Temple, Exod. xl. 34. 1 Kings viii. 10; and see Rev. xi. 12; xiv. 14—16.

— οὗτος—αὐτοῦ ἀκούετε] Not Moses and the Law, nor Elias and the Prophets; but Christ and the Gospel. The voice came from heaven. See 2 Pet. i. 17, 18, who refers to the history as well known to the Church.

— ἀγαπητός] My beloved. Observe, this Voice was uttered after they had been speaking of His death (Luke ix. 31). An answer from heaven to the objections of some who argue that the doctrine of the Atonement, which represents Christ as suffering the Just for the unjust (1 Pet. iii. 18), is irreconcileable with God's attribute of Love. "God is Love" (1 John iv. 16), and God the Father so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son to redeem it (John iii. 16. 1 John iii. 16; iv. 9). But God the Son loved us, and gave Himself freely for us (John xv. 13. Gal. i. 4; ii. 20. Ephes. v. 2—25. Rev. i. 5, 6). I lay down My life of Myself. No one taketh it from Me. Therefore doth My Father love Me (John x. 17, 18). The Father loveth the Son, and hath given all things into His hand (John iii. 35).

8. εἰ μὴ τὸν Ἰησοῦν μόνον] Moses and Elias vanished; Christ was left alone. The Law and the Prophets were for a time, but the Gospel remains for ever to the end. "Finis Legis Christus; Lex et Prophetia ex Verbo; quæ autem à Verbo cœperunt in Verbo desinunt." (Ambrose, in Luc. ix. 36.)

9. μηδενί] "Ne condiscipulis quidem." (Bengel.)

10. Ἠλίαν δεῖ ἐλθεῖν πρῶτον] The reason why the Disciples spoke of Elias seems to be, they had heard that Elias should come before the Messiah. But they had just seen Elias. Could therefore their Master, who had appeared before Elias, be the Christ, as Peter had owned Him to be? (Erasmus in Paraphras.)

The Jews and some of the Fathers affirm that Elias will appear in person before Christ's Second Advent to judgment (Mal. iii. 23, 24; iv. 5. Cp. Rosenm. here). Bishop Andrewes says (contra Bellarmin., cap. xi. p. 255) that this opinion was derived from the reading in the LXX in Mal. iv. 5, τὸν Θεσβίτην, the Tishbite, which is not in the original Hebrew; and from the reading in 2 Kings ii. 1 and 11, ὡς εἰς τὸν οὐρανόν, which is not a correct translation of the original, but passed from the LXX into the writings of the Greek and Latin Fathers of the Church. On this point however it seems better ἐπέχειν. See Theophylact and others on Mark ix. Origen and Chrys. in Matt. xvii. Hilary, cap. xx. in St. Matt. Lactant. vii. 16. St. Aug. de Civ. Dei, xx. 29, and in Joh. Tract. iv.: "Quomodo duo adventus, sic duo præcones: hoc erit in secundo adventu Elias, quod in primo Joannes. Tunc Elias per proprietatem Elias erit, nunc per similitudinem Elias erat;" and Gregory, Moral. in Job xi. 9; xiv. 11; xx. 25; and Hom. vii. and xxix. in Evangel. See further on Luke i. 17, and above on Matt. xi. 14.

11. ἀποκαταστήσει] On this word see on Acts i. 6.

---

[1] Chrysostom, in his edition of St. Luke, ix. 13, seems to have read δόξαν for ἔξοδον, see Mr. Field's collation and note.

αὐτῷ ὅσα ἠθέλησαν· οὕτω καὶ ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου μέλλει πάσχειν ὑπ' αὐτῶν.
13 Τότε συνῆκαν οἱ μαθηταὶ ὅτι περὶ Ἰωάννου τοῦ βαπτιστοῦ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς.

(174/II) 14 [a] Καὶ ἐλθόντων αὐτῶν πρὸς τὸν ὄχλον, προσῆλθεν αὐτῷ ἄνθρωπος γονυπετῶν αὐτὸν, 15 καὶ λέγων, Κύριε, ἐλέησόν μου τὸν υἱὸν, ὅτι σεληνιάζεται καὶ κακῶς πάσχει· πολλάκις γὰρ πίπτει εἰς τὸ πῦρ, καὶ πολλάκις εἰς τὸ ὕδωρ· 16 καὶ προσήνεγκα αὐτὸν τοῖς μαθηταῖς σου, καὶ οὐκ ἠδυνήθησαν αὐτὸν θεραπεῦσαι. 17 Ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν, Ὦ γενεὰ ἄπιστος καὶ διεστραμμένη, ἕως πότε ἔσομαι μεθ' ὑμῶν; [b] ἕως πότε ἀνέξομαι ὑμῶν; φέρετέ μοι αὐτὸν ὧδε. 18 Καὶ ἐπετίμησεν αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, καὶ ἐξῆλθεν ἀπ' αὐτοῦ τὸ δαιμόνιον· καὶ ἐθεραπεύθη ὁ παῖς ἀπὸ τῆς ὥρας ἐκείνης. (175/V) 19 Τότε προσελθόντες οἱ μαθηταὶ τῷ Ἰησοῦ κατ' ἰδίαν εἶπον, Διὰ τί ἡμεῖς οὐκ ἠδυνήθημεν ἐκβαλεῖν αὐτό; 20 Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Διὰ τὴν ἀπιστίαν ὑμῶν· ἀμὴν γὰρ λέγω ὑμῖν, [c] ἐὰν ἔχητε πίστιν ὡς κόκκον σινάπεως, ἐρεῖτε τῷ ὄρει τούτῳ, Μετάβηθι ἐντεῦθεν ἐκεῖ, καὶ μεταβήσεται, καὶ οὐδὲν ἀδυνατήσει ὑμῖν. 21 Τοῦτο δὲ τὸ γένος οὐκ ἐκπορεύεται εἰ μὴ ἐν προσευχῇ καὶ νηστείᾳ.

(176/II) 22 Ἀναστρεφομένων δὲ αὐτῶν ἐν τῇ Γαλιλαίᾳ, εἶπεν αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, [d] Μέλλει ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου παραδίδοσθαι εἰς χεῖρας ἀνθρώπων, 23 καὶ ἀποκτενοῦσιν αὐτὸν, καὶ τῇ τρίτῃ ἡμέρᾳ ἐγερθήσεται· καὶ ἐλυπήθησαν σφόδρα.

(177/X) 24 Ἐλθόντων δὲ αὐτῶν εἰς Καφαρναοὺμ, προσῆλθον οἱ τὰ δίδραχμα λαμβάνοντες τῷ Πέτρῳ, καὶ εἶπον, Ὁ διδάσκαλος ὑμῶν οὐ τελεῖ [e] τὰ δίδραχμα; 25 λέγει, Ναί. Καὶ ὅτε εἰσῆλθεν εἰς τὴν οἰκίαν, προέφθασεν αὐτὸν ὁ Ἰησοῦς, λέγων, Τί σοι δοκεῖ, Σίμων; οἱ βασιλεῖς τῆς γῆς ἀπὸ τίνων λαμβάνουσι τέλη ἢ κῆνσον; ἀπὸ τῶν υἱῶν αὐτῶν, ἢ ἀπὸ τῶν ἀλλοτρίων; 26 Λέγει αὐτῷ ὁ Πέτρος, Ἀπὸ τῶν ἀλλοτρίων. Ἔφη αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Ἄραγε ἐλεύθεροί εἰσιν οἱ υἱοί· 27 [f] ἵνα δὲ μὴ σκανδαλίσωμεν αὐτοὺς, πορευθεὶς εἰς θάλασσαν βάλε ἄγκιστρον, καὶ τὸν ἀναβάντα πρῶτον ἰχθὺν ἆρον· καὶ ἀνοίξας τὸ στόμα αὐτοῦ εὑρήσεις στατῆρα· ἐκεῖνον λαβὼν, δὸς αὐτοῖς ἀντὶ ἐμοῦ καὶ σοῦ.

[a] Mark 9. 14—29. Luke 9. 37—42.
[b] Num 14. 11, 27. Ps. 95. 10.
[c] ch. 23. 37. Exod. 34. 6.
[d] ch. 21. 21. John 11. 40. 1 Cor. 13. 2.
[e] ch. 16. 21.
[e] Exod. 30. 12—16. & 38. 24—26. 2 Chron. 24. 9.
[f] 1 Cor. 9 19—22. & 10. 32, 33. ch. 5. 39.

---

16. οὐκ ἠδυνήθησαν] Another proof of St. Matthew's honesty. (Beng.)

17. ὦ γενεὰ ἄπιστος] Our Lord rebukes the Jews here publicly for their want of faith in Him and in His Divine Power. (Jerome, Hilary, Chrysost., Theophyl.) The fault, He tells them, is not so much in His Apostles as in themselves. They had blamed the Apostles by saying οὐκ ἠδυνήθησαν, but Christ tells them to look to themselves. Unless you have faith, not even I shall be able (i. e. willing) to heal you. And He says to the father εἰ δύνασαι πιστεῦσαι πάντα δυνατὰ τῷ πιστεύοντι. And therefore the father, feeling himself corrected by Christ, says, πιστεύω. Κύριε, βοήθει μου τῇ ἀπιστίᾳ (Mark ix. 24).

But lest the Apostles should imagine that there was no fault in themselves, He also rebukes them; but in private (v. 20).

21. τοῦτο τὸ γένος] It was a deaf and dumb spirit, and παιδιόθεν (Mark ix. 25; ibid. 21.) Its terrible power was seen in its effects. (Mark ix. 22. 26.) This was therefore a very awful form of demoniacal possession. There are therefore different kinds and degrees of diabolical agency and energy; but Christ conquers them all, and enables His servants to do so by His grace used with faith in Him.

24. οὐ τελεῖ] Does He not pay? Whence it would seem that the payment, though binding on the conscience, was not enforced in the civil courts.

— τὰ δίδραχμα] Half a stater (or tetradrachm), and the same as the half of the shekel, מַחֲצִית הַשֶּׁקֶל, due annually from each Jew a little before the Passover; whence the time of this miracle may be determined. The Temple-rate was begun to be demanded by public proclamation on the first day of the month Adar, and was due on the first of Nisan. See Mishna de Siclis, cap. i. col. 7; and Surenhus. p. 260, 261. This tribute was levied for the maintenance of the Temple and its sacred worship, i. e. for incense, wood, red heifer, shewbread, &c. See Exod. xxx. 13; xxxviii. 26. Joseph., Antiq. iii. 8. Bell. Jud. vii. 6. Ant. xviii. 12; and Winer, Lex. vv. Sekel and Stater[1]. This Temple-rate was afterwards sequestered by the Romans, and under Vespasian transferred to the capitol at Rome. Joseph. B. J. vii. 6, 6. Cp. Rosenm.

25. οἱ βασιλεῖς τῆς γῆς] מַלְכֵי אֶרֶץ (malche erets), as distinguished from God, the King of Heaven, Ps. ii. 2. (Rosenm.)

The sense is: If the kings of the earth do not receive tribute from their children, how can the King of Heaven receive this tribute to the Temple from Me, His Son? If the children of earthly kings are exempt from tribute, how much more I? But in order that we may not be supposed to despise the law, pay the tribute; which I do not give it as due from Me, but in order to strengthen and correct the weakness of others. (Theophyl.) — τέλη] toll for wares. κῆνσον, capitation-tax, and for land; here a poll-tax.

27. βάλε ἄγκιστρον] Not a net, in order that the miracle might be more apparent. A wonderful combination of Miraculous and Prophetical power. Not one fish among many caught in a net, but one fish, and that the first, caught by a hook, was to bring in its mouth (not belly) the sum, and that the precise sum required for Christ and His Disciple.

— ἀναβάντα] that comes up from the deep to obey Me. Cp. Ps. viii. 8.

— εὑρήσεις στατῆρα] Some Expositors[2] who endeavour to explain away this miracle allege,

That our Lord meant only that St. Peter would catch a fish and obtain a stater by its sale.

That our Lord must have been without money at the time, or He would not have commanded St. Peter to go to the sea and fish.

That our Lord rebuked St. Peter for rashness in saying that He paid the δίδραχμα.

That it is not said that Peter caught the fish and found the money in its mouth.

The first of these allegations is refuted by the words of the Evangelist, taken in their plain grammatical sense.

On the second we may say that our Lord showed His Divinity by reading Peter's thoughts, and by levying tribute on the deep, and by His power and prescience with regard to the fish. And that He paid the tribute in this way, not because He had no money, but rather because He had money, and because while doing an act of obedience to

[1] The didrachma = stater, or two denarii, was the tribute which the Law imposed on the people of Israel, for the redemption of every soul and body, and was applied to the ministry of those who served in the Temple. (Hilary and Ambrose ad Justum, Epist. vii.) This was paid to the Priests and the Temple. (Theophylact.)

[2] E. g. Dr. Paulus, who refers στόμα to Peter, and interprets αὐτοῦ 'on the spot;' and Leisner. And even Olshausen treats this opinion with respect, and concurs in the opinion stated above in paragraphs (2) and (3). And from this exposition there was only one step (which has been taken by Strauss, ii. p. 184), to treat the whole as a fable.

XVIII. (178/II) 1 Ἐν ἐκείνῃ τῇ ὥρᾳ προσῆλθον οἱ μαθηταὶ τῷ Ἰησοῦ, λέγοντες, a Mark 9. 33—37. Luke 9. 46—48. ch. 20. 20—28. & 23. 11, 12. Rom. 12. 10. Phil. 2. 3.
Τίς ἄρα μείζων ἐστὶν ἐν τῇ βασιλείᾳ τῶν οὐρανῶν; 2 Καὶ προσκαλεσάμενος ὁ Ἰησοῦς παιδίον, ἔστησεν αὐτὸ ἐν μέσῳ αὐτῶν, 3 καὶ εἶπεν, Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ἐὰν μὴ στραφῆτε καὶ γένησθε ὡς τὰ παιδία, οὐ μὴ εἰσέλθητε εἰς τὴν βασιλείαν τῶν οὐρανῶν. 4 Ὅστις οὖν ταπεινώσει ἑαυτὸν ὡς τὸ παιδίον τοῦτο, οὗτός ἐστιν ὁ μείζων ἐν τῇ βασιλείᾳ τῶν οὐρανῶν· 5 καὶ ὃς ἐὰν δέξηται παιδίον τοιοῦτον ἓν ἐπὶ τῷ ὀνόματί μου, ἐμὲ δέχεται· (179/II) 6 ὃς δ' ἂν σκανδαλίσῃ ἕνα τῶν μικρῶν τούτων τῶν πιστευόντων εἰς ἐμέ, συμφέρει αὐτῷ ἵνα κρεμασθῇ μύλος ὀνικὸς ἐπὶ τὸν τράχηλον αὐτοῦ, καὶ καταποντισθῇ ἐν τῷ πελάγει τῆς b ch. 13. 41. Rom. 2. 24. θαλάσσης. 7 b Οὐαὶ τῷ κόσμῳ ἀπὸ τῶν σκανδάλων· ἀνάγκη γάρ ἐστιν ἐλθεῖν τὰ σκάνδαλα· πλὴν οὐαὶ τῷ ἀνθρώπῳ ἐκείνῳ δι' οὗ τὸ σκάνδαλον ἔρχεται.
c Mark 9. 43—48. Luke 14. 26, 27. & 18. 22—24.
(180/VI) 8 c Εἰ δὲ ἡ χείρ σου ἢ ὁ πούς σου σκανδαλίζει σε, ἔκκοψον αὐτὰ καὶ βάλε ἀπὸ σοῦ· καλόν σοι ἐστὶν εἰσελθεῖν εἰς τὴν ζωὴν χωλὸν ἢ κυλλόν, ἢ δύο χεῖρας ἢ δύο πόδας ἔχοντα βληθῆναι εἰς τὸ πῦρ τὸ αἰώνιον. 9 Καὶ εἰ ὁ ὀφθαλμός σου σκανδαλίζει σε, ἔξελε αὐτὸν καὶ βάλε ἀπὸ σοῦ· καλόν σοι ἐστὶ μονόφθαλμον εἰς τὴν ζωὴν εἰσελθεῖν, ἢ δύο ὀφθαλμοὺς ἔχοντα βληθῆναι εἰς τὴν γέενναν τοῦ πυρός. (181/X) 10 Ὁρᾶτε μὴ καταφρονήσητε ἑνὸς τῶν μικρῶν human authority as man, He would show, by supplying the money not from the common purse, or from any other ordinary source, but from the sea, that He is supreme over all as God. And so He makes the example of His obedience more striking, exemplary, and instructive; and teaches another lesson on the great doctrine of the Unity of the Two Natures, Divine and Human, in His One Person.

---

Doubtless our Lord, Who obeyed the Law for Man, had paid the tribute (which was an annual one) in former years; and St. Peter, knowing this, answered as he did, ναί, yes.

St. Matthew does not say that the Miracle was done. No; he leaves that to be supposed. There is something sublime in this aposiopesis. He had just been relating the glories of Christ's Transfiguration, and His victory over the Evil Spirit in one of his fiercest forms, and he had recorded our Lord's rebuke to the multitude for want of faith. He supposes his reader to be so awe-struck and impressed by what he himself has seen, and heard, and written of Christ, that he deems it needless to say, and he does not suppose that any one will require to be told, that what Christ spake was done. And yet many now demand this, and are called intelligent and candid men! Not so the truly wise. By his reverential silence, St. Matthew shows his own faith, and exercises that of the reader in Christ, Who is the Word, and by Whom all things were made.

The practical bearing of this Divine Act on the question of 'Church-Rates' has been considered in the Editor's Occasional Sermons, No. xxxix.

— δὸς αὐτοῖς] Although the Temple Service was then administered by His enemies, who (as He had just told His Disciples, ch. xvi. 21) were about to conspire against Him and put Him to death.

CH. XVIII. 1. μείζων] greater than the rest. See xi. 11; xiii. 32; xxiii. 11. Ephes. iii. 8. Glass. Phil. Sacr. p. 274.

2. παιδίον] Mark ix. 36. Supposed by some to have been Ignatius, but this is refuted by Bp. Pearson (Vind. Ign. xii. p. 527, ed. Churton).

6. σκανδαλίσῃ] Cause to stumble, i. e. to sin.—σκάνδαλον is used by the LXX for מוֹקֵשׁ (mokesh) a trap, from root יָקַשׁ (yakash), and for מִכְשׁוֹל (michshol), from rad. כָּשַׁל (cashal), titubavit, a stumbling-stone; which is the sense of σκάνδαλον here. In Church matters, says Jul. Rom. apud Athanas. (c. Arian. p. 111), οὐ λόγων ἐπίδειξίς ἐστιν, ἀλλὰ κανόνες Ἀποστολικοί, καὶ σπουδὴ τοῦ μὴ σκανδαλίζειν ἵνα τῶν μικρῶν· συμφέρει γὰρ, and then he quotes this text.

— μικρῶν] My Disciples; however they may be despised by the world. See x. 42.

— πιστευόντων εἰς ἐμέ] So πιστεύειν ἐν, and πίστις εἰς, and ἐν. This use of the preposition is derived from that of the Hebrew ב. Vorst. de Hebr. pp. 668—677. Lutin Ecclesiastical writers do not distinguish between Credo in and Credo with a dative (see Bp. Pearson on the Creed, Art. i.); and the difference made between the two by Aug. (Joh. Tract. 29), "Credimus Paulo sed non credimus in Paulum," and Ruffinus (in Expositione Symbol.), "hâc præpositionis syllabâ (IN) Creator à creaturis secernitur," is derived from the language of the Greek Test. Cp. Jerome in Epist. ad Philemon. As Vorst. observes, p. 676, "Nunquam in Novo Fœdere phrasis Græca πιστεύειν εἴς τινα de Petro, Paulo, aliisque sanctis usurpatur, sed de Deo tantùm," and it is used often concerning Christ, as here—a proof of His Divinity.

— μύλος ὀνικός] A mill-stone too heavy to be turned by hand (see xxiv. 41), and requiring the power of an ὄνος to turn it.

St. Mark (ix. 42) has λίθος μυλικός.

Consider the aptness of the expression, Man puts a stumbling-stone in his brother's way, and he who does so had better have a mill-stone about his own neck.

On the punishment of καταποντισμός, see Casaubon, Sueton. Octav. 67.

7. οὐαὶ—ἀπό] ἀπὸ = מִן (min). See LXX in Exod. ii. 23. (Rosenm.)

"If it is necessary that offences must come, why, it may be said, does Our Lord commiserate the World, and not rather stretch out His hand to avert them?

"He became Man for us, He took the form of a servant and endured the worst sufferings for our sakes; He did all that it became Him to do for our salvation. And therefore He laments for the wicked, who will not be healed by Him; as a Physician bewails a sick man, who will not follow his advice, and be whole. In the latter case, however, there is little use in the commiseration, but here the denunciation of future Woe may excite the sinner, and heal him of his sins. And we are not to imagine that Christ's Prophecy brings the offences. No; the offences foreseen are the cause of the Prophecy. They will not come, because He foretells them; but He foretells them, because they will come. Because many would choose to remain incurable, therefore He forewarned us of the fact. But why does He not remove offences or avert them? For whose sake ought He to do so? For the sake of those who are hurt by them. But they who are hurt, are hurt by their own fault; and others are not hurt by them, but win glory by them: as Joseph and Job did, and all righteous men do. Offences are stimulants to the good. They make us watch, and quicken our steps, and walk warily. They try us; they distinguish the evil from the good.

"If evil does not arise through fault of our own wills, why do men ever reprove their servants or their children? Evils proceed from our evil will and evil acts. Men enquire what is the origin of evil? but no one who lives well will ask this question. They who lead vicious lives entangle themselves in these perplexing subtleties, which we solve not by words but deeds. For no one sins by necessity. If sins were necessary, our Lord would never have said, Woe to him by whom the offence cometh! Our Lord commiserates those who choose to be sinners. And He proves to them that sins are not necessary, by commanding us to cut off a right hand if it offends us, or causes us to sin." (Chrys.)

— ἀνάγκη ἐστί] Not absolutely, and per se, but ex hypothesi; i. e. on the supposition and previous foreknowledge of certain conditions, viz. the agency of Satan on man's evil passions. It is explained by St. Luke xvii. 1, ἀνέκδικτόν ἐστι. Cp. 1 Cor. xi. 19, δεῖ αἱρέσεις εἶναι[1].

8. εἰ—σκανδαλίζει σε] "Qui sibi a scandalo non cavet, aliis scandala objicit." (Cp. Beng.)

— καλόν—ἤ] Good to enter in halt; and better than, &c., Fritzsche, Meyer, Winer: but the phrase seems rather to be derived from the Hellenistic use of the LXX, Gen. xxix. 19; xlix. 12, where ἤ is the Hebrew טוֹב (Arnoldi), It is good, rather, &c.

---

[1] This use of ἀνάγκη explains the sense of the important and controverted passage of St. Irenæus. iii. 3, "Ad hanc Ecclesiam necesse est omnem convenire Ecclesiam;" i. e. it is certain that every Church does agree with this Church. Cp. the Editor's S. Hippolytus, &c. pp. 196—203, on the sense of ἀνάγκη, which has been much misunderstood.

See also on x. 34, and on Luke xii. 49.

τούτων· λέγω γὰρ ὑμῖν, ὅτι [d] οἱ ἄγγελοι αὐτῶν ἐν οὐρανοῖς διὰ παντὸς βλέπουσι τὸ πρόσωπον τοῦ Πατρός μου τοῦ ἐν οὐρανοῖς. 11 [e] Ἦλθε γὰρ ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου σῶσαι τὸ ἀπολωλός. (183/ν) 12 [f] Τί ὑμῖν δοκεῖ; ἐὰν γένηταί τινι ἀνθρώπῳ ἑκατὸν πρόβατα, καὶ πλανηθῇ ἓν ἐξ αὐτῶν, οὐχὶ, ἀφεὶς τὰ ἐνενηκονταεννέα, ἐπὶ τὰ ὄρη πορευθεὶς ζητεῖ τὸ πλανώμενον; 13 καὶ ἐὰν γένηται εὑρεῖν αὐτό, ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι χαίρει ἐπ' αὐτῷ μᾶλλον ἢ ἐπὶ τοῖς ἐνενηκονταεννέα τοῖς μὴ πεπλανημένοις· 14 οὕτως οὐκ ἔστι θέλημα ἔμπροσθεν τοῦ Πατρὸς ὑμῶν τοῦ ἐν οὐρανοῖς ἵνα ἀπόληται εἷς τῶν μικρῶν τούτων. (183/ν) 15 [g] Ἐὰν δὲ ἁμαρτήσῃ εἰς σὲ ὁ ἀδελφός σου, ὕπαγε καὶ ἔλεγξον αὐτὸν μεταξὺ σοῦ καὶ αὐτοῦ μόνου· (184/χ) 16 [h] ἐάν σου ἀκούσῃ, ἐκέρδησας τὸν ἀδελφόν σου· ἐὰν δὲ μὴ ἀκούσῃ, παράλαβε μετὰ σοῦ ἔτι ἕνα ἢ δύο, ἵνα ἐπὶ στόματος δύο μαρτύρων ἢ τριῶν σταθῇ πᾶν ῥῆμα· 17 [i] ἐὰν δὲ παρακούσῃ αὐτῶν, εἰπὲ τῇ ἐκκλησίᾳ· ἐὰν δὲ καὶ τῆς ἐκκλησίας παρακούσῃ, ἔστω σοι ὥσπερ ὁ ἐθνικὸς καὶ ὁ τελώνης. (185/νιι) 18 [k] Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅσα ἐὰν δήσητε ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς, ἔσται δεδεμένα ἐν τῷ οὐρανῷ, καὶ ὅσα ἐὰν λύσητε ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς, ἔσται λελυμένα ἐν τῷ d Luke 16. 22. Heb. 1. 14. Ps. 34. 7. Acts 12. 15. Dan. 10. 13, 20, 21. 1 Cor. 11. 10.

e Luke 19. 10.
f Luke 15. 4, &c.
g Luke 17. 3, 4. Lev. 19. 17.
h Deut. 19. 15. John 8. 17. 2 Cor. 13. 1.
i Rom. 16. 17.
k ch. 16. 19. John 20. 23.

---

10. οἱ ἄγγελοι αὐτῶν] i. e. the Angels appointed by God to minister to them (Heb. i. 14. Ps. xxxiv. 7; xci. 2), though sent forth to do God's errands, as His ἄγγελοι or messengers upon earth, yet they always enjoy the beatific vision of His countenance in heaven[1]; wherever they are, they carry their blessedness with them. (Gregor. Bernard. ap. Maldon.) ἄγγελος is used by the LXX for the Hebrew מַלְאָךְ (mal'ak), which also signifies a messenger.

Our Lord here shows the dignity of every Christian, however poor, especially of the weak, who cannot defend themselves when in danger, and teaches to revere them on account of the Angels who watch over them (Acts xii. 15); and St. Paul applies the same argument à fortiori to Christian Congregations (1 Cor. xi. 10). On the Ministry of Angels towards the Faithful, see Bp. Bull, Serm. xii. pp. 289—326.

He had before said that we must sacrifice what is nearest and dearest to us if it offends us, or causes us to sin; He now tempers that precept with mercy, and teaches us to seek the salvation of the souls of others by means of our own. Great is the worth of the soul, for it has an Angel assigned it by God. (Jerome.)

Our Lord excites us to be zealous for the salvation of others, however poor and despised they may be. He stimulates us to this by His own example. Observe the order of His precepts. By saying that no one can enter the kingdom of heaven, except he become as a little child, He brings down our pride. By telling us that offences must needs come, He excites our vigilance. By pronouncing Woe on him by whom the offence cometh, he teaches every one to take heed not to be a cause of stumbling to others. By commanding us to cut off whatever offends us, or makes us to sin, He makes our salvation easy; and by ordering us not to despise those who may offend us, or any, however humble, He makes us more eager in promoting the salvation of others. And He presents us the example of the Angels, and His own example and that of His Father for our imitation, in order to stimulate our zeal. (Chrys.)

11. τὸ ἀπολωλός] Observe τό. And since Infants are a part of the lost world, Christ came to save them: hence an argument for the Baptism of Infants.

12. τὰ ἐνενηκονταεννέα] The Son of Man has set an example of tender regard for a single soul. He left the ninety and nine (the Angels of whom He had just been speaking) to seek and save the human race, which is but as a single sheep of His fold. See Irenæus, Hilary, Ambrose, and others, cited by à Lapide. Join πορευθεὶς with ἐπὶ τὰ ὄρη.

13. χαίρει ἐπ' αὐτῷ μᾶλλον] He does not say πλέον, but μᾶλλον: not plus, but magis; not more, but rather; i. e. at the time of the recovery and restoration of the one lost sheep, His joy is rather directed to that particular sheep, than to all the rest: and why? Because that particular sheep is now delivered from that condition of misery, over which he had so much grieved, and because it is restored to the company and condition of the other sheep, who have not strayed, and in whom He joys so much.

Our Lord here speaks κατ' ἄνθρωπον, and by a mode of speech common in Scripture He transfers human feelings to God Himself. Cp. Luke xv. 7.

14. οὐκ ἔστι θέλημα] Not, 'it is not the will;' but He is unwilling that any should perish: πάντας θέλει σωθῆναι (1 Tim. ii. 4), He desires all to be saved.

15. ἁμαρτήσῃ εἰς] A Hebraism—חָטָא followed by ל

16. ἐπὶ στόματος] פִּי עַל (al-pi), the attestation,—as the cause of confirmation. Cp. Deut. xix. 15. 2 Cor. xiii. 1. John viii. 17. Heb. x. 28.

— πᾶν ῥῆμα] דָּבָר or res, π. ῥ. = every thing.

Our Lord had commanded His disciples not to give offence, and to cut off what is most dear—to separate from our nearest friend—if he offends us, i. e. causes us to sin. But lest they should proceed hastily and haughtily in this matter, He prescribes the course which they must pursue in the exercise of discipline. He calls the sinner their brother, and commands them to deal with him privately at first, and if he hearkens to them and confesses his sin, then He does not say, Thou hast inflicted punishment or obtained satisfaction, but thou hast gained thy brother. And the more refractory he may be, the more eager thou must also be as a patient and tender physician for the restoration of his spiritual health. If one remedy fails, try another, and another. Take with thee one or two more, that it may be manifest that thou art ready to do all on thy part that may conduce to amendment and restoration. But if he will not hear them, tell it to the Church—that, through fear of being cast out of Church by excommunication and of the binding in heaven, consequent on it, he may be so shamed, and lay aside his malice. Our Lord threatens the sinner with these punishments, in order that he may repent and escape them. Hence He does not cut off the sinner at once from the Church, but establishes a first, a second, and a third tribunal, in order that if he refuse to hear the first, he may hearken to the second or the third, and if he have no reverence for that, he may stand in awe of the future judgment of God. (Chrys.)

17. τῇ ἐκκλησίᾳ] Spoken prophetically. Our Lord had already prepared His Apostles for the use of this word ἐκκλησία (see above, xvi. 18), the Visible Society of His faithful people. He had informed them who were to bear office publicly in it for the exercise of godly discipline therein (cp. 1 Cor. v. 9. 1 Tim. v. 20) in His Name and for the general good[2].

— ὁ ἐθνικός] Observe ὁ. Not a heathen man, who may be a good man in his way, but as the heathen in his heathenism.

18. ὅσα ἐὰν λύσητε] He does not say λύητε—the power was not given yet. See on xvi. 19. The following authorities on this subject deserve the student's attention:—

Ordering of Priests, in the Book of Common Prayer of the United Church of England and Ireland. "Receive the Holy Ghost for the Office and Work of a Priest in the Church of God, now committed unto thee by the Imposition of our Hands. Whose sins thou dost forgive, they are forgiven; and whose sins thou dost retain, they are retained. And be thou a faithful Dispenser of the Word of God, and of His Holy Sacraments; in the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen." See also the Forms of Absolution in Morning and Evening Prayer; the Order for the Holy Communion; and the Office for the Visitation of the Sick.

Homily on Common Prayer, p. 330 (ed. 1822). "Absolution hath the promise of forgiveness of sins."

Abp. Cranmer on the Power of the Keyes, Catech. p. 202. "God hath given the keyes of the kingdom of heaven, and authority to forgyve sin, to the ministers of the Church. And when the minister does so, then I ought stedfastly to believe that my sins are truly forgyven me."—Compare Cranmer's Works, iv. p. 283, ed. Jenkyns.

Hooker, VI. iv. 1. "They that have the keys of the kingdom of heaven are hereby signified to be stewards of the house of God, under whom they guide, command, and judge His family. The souls of men are God's treasure, committed to the trust and fidelity of such as [1] This has been explained away as a mere metaphor derived from the language of Eastern Courts by some. But see Matt. v. 8. 1 Cor. xiii. 12. 1 John iii. 2.

---

[2] On the mode and measure of exercising discipline, and administering reproof public and private, see Chrys. here, and Aug. De Correptione, vol. x. p. 1316, and Serm. xiii. and lxxxii, and Epist. 95, and De Civ. Dei, i. 4, and Hooker vi. 4, on this text, and Hammond on Fraternal Correption, Works, i. p. 290, ed. 1684.

l ch. 21. 22. John 15. 7, 16. 1 John 3. 22. & 5. 14.

οὐρανῷ. (186 Χ) 19 [l] Πάλιν λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι ἐὰν δύο ὑμῶν συμφωνήσωσιν ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς περὶ παντὸς πράγματος οὗ ἐὰν αἰτήσωνται, γενήσεται αὐτοῖς παρὰ τοῦ Πατρός μου τοῦ ἐν οὐρανοῖς· 20 οὗ γάρ εἰσι δύο ἢ τρεῖς συνηγμένοι εἰς τὸ

m Luke 17. 3, 4.

ἐμὸν ὄνομα, ἐκεῖ εἰμι ἐν μέσῳ αὐτῶν. (187 Υ) 21 [m] Τότε προσελθὼν αὐτῷ ὁ Πέτρος εἶπε, Κύριε, ποσάκις ἁμαρτήσει εἰς ἐμὲ ὁ ἀδελφός μου, καὶ ἀφήσω αὐτῷ; ἕως ἑπτάκις; 22 Λέγει αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Οὐ λέγω σοι ἕως ἑπτάκις, ἀλλ' ἕως ἑβδομηκοντάκις ἑπτά. (188 Χ) 23 Διὰ τοῦτο ὡμοιώθη ἡ βασιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν ἀνθρώπῳ βασιλεῖ, ὃς ἠθέλησε συνᾶραι λόγον μετὰ τῶν δούλων αὐτοῦ· 24 ἀρξαμένου δὲ αὐτοῦ συναίρειν, προσηνέχθη αὐτῷ εἷς ὀφειλέτης μυρίων ταλάντων· n 2 Kings 4. 1.

25 [n] μὴ ἔχοντος δὲ αὐτοῦ ἀποδοῦναι, ἐκέλευσεν αὐτὸν ὁ κύριος αὐτοῦ πραθῆναι, καὶ τὴν γυναῖκα αὐτοῦ καὶ τὰ τέκνα, καὶ πάντα ὅσα εἶχε, καὶ ἀποδοθῆναι· 26 πεσὼν οὖν ὁ δοῦλος προσεκύνει αὐτῷ, λέγων, Κύριε, μακροθύμησον ἐπ' ἐμοί, καὶ πάντα σοι ἀποδώσω· 27 σπλαγχνισθεὶς δὲ ὁ κύριος τοῦ δούλου ἐκείνου ἀπέλυσεν αὐτὸν, καὶ τὸ δάνειον ἀφῆκεν αὐτῷ. 28 Ἐξελθὼν δὲ ὁ δοῦλος ἐκεῖνος εὗρεν ἕνα τῶν συνδούλων αὐτοῦ, ὃς ὤφειλεν αὐτῷ ἑκατὸν δηνάρια, καὶ κρατήσας αὐτὸν ἔπνιγε, λέγων, Ἀπόδος εἴ τι ὀφείλεις. 29 Πεσὼν οὖν ὁ σύνδουλος αὐτοῦ εἰς τοὺς πόδας αὐτοῦ παρεκάλει αὐτὸν λέγων, Μακροθύμησον ἐπ' ἐμοί, καὶ ἀποδώσω σοι. 30 Ὁ δὲ οὐκ ἤθελεν, ἀλλὰ ἀπελθὼν ἔβαλεν αὐτὸν εἰς φυλακὴν ἕως οὗ ἀποδῷ τὸ ὀφειλόμενον. 31 Ἰδόντες δὲ οἱ σύνδουλοι αὐτοῦ τὰ γενόμενα ἐλυπήθησαν σφόδρα, καὶ ἐλθόντες διεσάφησαν τῷ κυρίῳ αὐτῶν πάντα τὰ γενόμενα. 32 Τότε προσκαλεσάμενος αὐτὸν ὁ κύριος αὐτοῦ λέγει αὐτῷ, Δοῦλε πονηρέ, πᾶσαν τὴν ὀφειλὴν ἐκείνην ἀφῆκά σοι ἐπεὶ παρεκάλεσάς με· 33 οὐκ ἔδει καὶ σὲ ἐλεῆσαι τὸν σύνδουλόν σου, ὡς καὶ ἐγὼ σὲ ἠλέησα; 34 καὶ ὀργισθεὶς ὁ κύριος αὐτοῦ παρέδωκεν αὐτὸν τοῖς βασανισταῖς ἕως οὗ ἀποδῷ must render a strict account for the very least which is under their custody."

---

Hooker, VI. iv. 2. "Whether they remit or retain sins, whatsoever is done by way of orderly and lawful proceeding, the Lord Himself hath promised to ratify."

"The Priest gives pardon, not as a King, nor yet as a Messenger, i. e. not by way of authority, nor yet only by declaration; but as a physician gives health, i. e. he gives the remedies which God appoints." (Bp. Taylor on Repentance, x. § 4.)

Bp. Sparrow, Rationale, p. 14, ed. 1704. "If our confession be serious and hearty, this absolution is effectual, as if God did pronounce it from heaven: so says the Confession of Saxony, and Bohemia, and the Augsburgh Confession (xi. xii. xiii.);" and so says St. Chrysostom in his Fifth Homily on Esay, "Heaven waits and expects the Priest's sentence here on earth; and what the servant rightly binds or looses on earth, that the Lord confirms in heaven." St. Augustine and St. Cyprian, and general Antiquity, say the same.

Chillingworth, p. 409 (Serm. vii.). "Come to your spiritual physician, not only as to a learned man, experienced in the Scriptures, as one that can speak quieting words to you, but as to one who hath Authority delegated to him from God Himself, to absolve and acquit your sins."

19. ἐὰν δύο] viz. if they do His will and ask with faith and charity in Christ's Name, and if what they ask is according to His Will and expedient for them. See John ix. 31. James v. 16. 1 John iii. 22; v. 14.

— συμφωνήσωσιν] A beautiful word expressive of the holy music of hearts and voices, especially in public. Compare the eloquent exposition of it in St. Ignatius (ad Ephes. iv.): τὸ ἀξιονόμαστον ὑμῶν πρεσβυτέριον τοῦ Θεοῦ ἁξιων, οὕτως συνήρμοσται τῷ ἐπισκόπῳ ὡς χορδαὶ κιθάρᾳ· διὰ τοῦτο ἐν ὁμονοίᾳ ὑμῶν καὶ συμφώνῳ ἀγάπῃ Ἰησοῦς Χριστὸς ᾄδεται· καὶ οἱ κατ' ἄνδρα δὲ χοροὶ γίνεσθε, ἵνα σύμφωνοι ὄντες ἐν ὁμονοίᾳ χρῶμα Θεοῦ λαβόντες, ᾄδητε ἐν φωνῇ μιᾷ διὰ Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ τῷ Πατρί, ἵνα καὶ ὑμῶν ἀκούσῃ, καὶ ἐπιγινώσκων δι' ὧν εὖ πράσσετε μέλη ὄντας τοῦ υἱοῦ αὐτοῦ. χρήσιμον οὖν ἐστιν ὑμᾶς ἐν ἀμώμῳ ἑνότητι εἶναι ἵνα καὶ Θεοῦ πάντοτε μετέχητε.

20. εἰς τὸ ἐμὸν ὄνομα] i. e. not in their own name, or according to their own devices, or for their own glory, much less in a spirit of strife and division; but with yearnings of love to Me and of union with Me; in the manner appointed by Me in the unity of My Church, and in obedience to My law, and for the furtherance of My glory. See Hilary and Chrys. here.

On the use of εἰς τὸ ὄνομα (stronger than ἐν τῷ ὀνόματι), containing the idea of love to, and of incorporation into, see on x. 41 and xxviii. 19.

On the meaning of the phrase to "do any thing in Christ's Name," see Dr. Barrow, Sermon xxxiii. vol. ii. pp. 246—249.

— ἐν μέσῳ] Observe how our Lord reconciles sinners, not only through fear, but by love. Having declared the evils consequent on strife, He now displays the blessings of unity. By unity we persuade our Father to grant our prayers, and we have Christ in the midst of us. (Chrys.)

22. ἑβδομηκοντάκις ἑπτά] The number seven in Holy Scripture is used to signify completeness; and the multiplication of 70×7 here signifies that there is to be no stint or limit to the spirit of forgiveness.

The number ten times seven is used to express the fulness of retribution on Lamech (Gen. iv. 24). And for bringing in of forgiveness of sins into the world there are ten times seven generations from Adam to Christ. See on Luke iii. 23—38. (Hilary and Aug.)

But here the number is seventy times seven, the number of years from the rebuilding of the wall of Jerusalem unto Christ, who brought in the forgiveness of sins (Dan. ix. 24).

23. ἑκατὸν δηνάρια] About 1,250,000th part of the μυρία τάλαντα (v. 24).

In order to show the easiness and necessity of forgiveness, our Lord had introduced His own example, whence it appears that even if we forgive our brother seventy times seven, i. e. an indefinite number of times, our clemency is not so much as a drop of water compared with the ocean of God's goodness to us, without which we must be condemned hereafter. And now observe the difference between men's trespasses against us and our trespasses against God. The former are to the latter as a hundred pence to ten thousand talents. The difference is infinite; as appears from the difference of the persons, as well as from the frequency and greatness of the sin. Consider also the benefits we have received and do receive, public and private, spiritual and temporal, from God. (Chrys.)

— εἴ τι ὀφείλεις] εἴ τι has been rightly restored from the best MSS. for ὅ τι: you owe, therefore pay. The creditor is ashamed to mention the petty hundred pence. Therefore he does not say ὅ τι, but εἴ τι.—And thus the force of the parable, teaching the duty of equitably receding from the rigid enforcement of rights, is more clearly seen. Cp. Alford.

34. βασανισταῖς] See above, iv. 24, τοῖς βασ., "non modò custodibus." (Beng.)

Observe, past sins revive to the unforgiving. Cruelty to others cancels the grant of God's mercy to us.

Among men, the party who sues his debtors at law does not decide the cause; but GOD is not only our Creditor, but our Judge.

— ἕως οὗ ἀποδῷ] "torquendum donec solvisset." See v. 30. The 10,000 talents was a sum that never could be paid (Chrys.), and therefore this expression cannot be taken to intimate that sin, not repented of and not forgiven in this life, will be forgiven hereafter. See above, v. 26; xii. 32.

πᾶν τὸ ὀφειλόμενον αὐτῷ. 35 Οὕτω καὶ ὁ Πατήρ μου ὁ ἐπουράνιος ποιήσει ὑμῖν, ἐὰν μὴ ἀφῆτε ἕκαστος τῷ ἀδελφῷ αὐτοῦ ἀπὸ τῶν καρδιῶν ὑμῶν τὰ παραπτώματα αὐτῶν.

XIX. (189/VI) 1 a Καὶ ἐγένετο ὅτε ἐτέλεσεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς τοὺς λόγους τούτους, μετῆρεν ἀπὸ τῆς Γαλιλαίας, καὶ ἦλθεν εἰς τὰ ὅρια τῆς Ἰουδαίας πέραν τοῦ Ἰορδάνου· 2 καὶ ἠκολούθησαν αὐτῷ ὄχλοι πολλοί· καὶ ἐθεράπευσεν αὐτοὺς ἐκεῖ. 3 Καὶ προσῆλθον αὐτῷ οἱ Φαρισαῖοι, πειράζοντες αὐτὸν καὶ λέγοντες αὐτῷ, εἰ ἔξεστιν ἀνθρώπῳ ἀπολῦσαι τὴν γυναῖκα αὐτοῦ κατὰ πᾶσαν αἰτίαν; 4 b Ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Οὐκ ἀνέγνωτε, ὅτι ὁ ποιήσας ἀπ' ἀρχῆς ἄρσεν καὶ θῆλυ ἐποίησεν αὐτούς, 5 c καὶ εἶπεν, Ἕνεκεν τούτου καταλείψει ἄνθρωπος τὸν πατέρα καὶ τὴν μητέρα, καὶ κολληθήσεται τῇ γυναικὶ αὐτοῦ· καὶ ἔσονται οἱ δύο εἰς σάρκα μίαν; 6 ὥστε οὐκέτι εἰσὶ δύο, ἀλλὰ σὰρξ μία· ὃ οὖν ὁ Θεὸς συνέζευξεν, ἄνθρωπος μὴ χωριζέτω. 7 d Λέγουσιν αὐτῷ, Τί οὖν Μωϋσῆς ἐνετείλατο δοῦναι βιβλίον ἀποστασίου, καὶ ἀπολῦσαι αὐτήν; 8 Λέγει αὐτοῖς, Ὅτι Μωϋσῆς πρὸς τὴν σκληροκαρδίαν ὑμῶν ἐπέτρεψεν ὑμῖν ἀπολῦσαι τὰς γυναῖκας ὑμῶν· ἀπ' ἀρχῆς δὲ οὐ γέγονεν οὕτω. (190/II) 9 e Λέγω δὲ ὑμῖν, ὅτι ὃς ἂν ἀπολύσῃ τὴν γυναῖκα αὐτοῦ, μὴ ἐπὶ πορ-a Mark 10. 1, &c. John 10. 40—42.

b Gen. 1. 27. & 5. 2. Mal. 2. 15.

c Gen. 2. 24. Ephes. 5. 31. 1 Cor. 6. 16.

d Deut. 24. 1. ch. 5. 31.

e ch. 5. 32. Mark 10. 11. Luke 16. 18. 1 Cor. 7. 11.

---

35. ὁ Πατήρ μου] My heavenly Father. He does not say your Father, for the unforgiving servant has ceased to be a child of God. (Chrys.)

CH. XIX. 1. τὰ ὅρια κ.τ.λ.] On this circuit in Perœa see Note on Luke x. 1.

An exposition of this chapter to v. 12 will be found in Greg. Nazian. Orat. xxxvii. p. 645.

— πέραν τοῦ Ἰορδάνου] i. e. He crossed Jordan, and came into the confines of Judæa. See Mark x. 1. It is very doubtful whether any region east of Jordan was called Judæa. See Patrit. ii. 441. 489; and Arnoldi, p. 484.

3. πειράζοντες] tempting Him; for He had already forbidden divorce. (Matt. v. 32.) If He now allowed it, they would say, Why then didst thou forbid it before? If He repeated what He had before said, they would urge against Him the authority of Moses. (Chrys.)

Observe the wisdom of our Lord. He did not directly reply in the negative, but He began with showing them the original ordinance of God, and that His own teaching is in harmony with it; and not contrary to, but in unison with, the Law of Moses. And He proves this not only from creation but from primitive Legislation. He not only says that God made one man and one woman, but God also commanded that the one man should be coupled with the one woman. If God had been willing that the man should put away his wife and marry another, He would have made several women when He made one man; but by the terms of Creation as well as original Legislation, God declared that one man should continually dwell together with one woman, and never be put asunder. Observe also how our Lord expresses this: "He that made them in the beginning made them male and female; they sprang from one root and form one body, for He says they twain shall be one flesh (or rather joined into one flesh). He represents it as a heinous sin to despise this Legislation; for He says, What God hath joined together, let not man put asunder. And if you allege against Me the authority of Moses (He may be supposed to say), I show you here the God of Moses, and I confirm what I say by priority of time; for in the beginning God made them male and female. This law is the older law, though it may seem to you to be now first enacted by Me. And it was enacted with much solemnity; for God brought the woman to the man, and not only so, but commanded him to leave father and mother for her sake; and not only to come to her, but to cleave (κολληθῆναι) to her, —showing by the word used the indissolubility of the bond; and He proceeds to reiterate the law by His own authority,—"Wherefore they are no more twain, but one flesh." As then it is a sacrilegious thing for a man to mangle his own flesh (Lev. xxi. 5), so it is unlawful for him to put away his wife. (Chrys.)

— κατὰ πᾶσαν αἰτίαν] = עַל כָּל דָּבָר (al col dabhar), which was the exposition given of Deut. xxiv. 1, by the school of Rabbi Hillel, in opposition to the stricter school of Rabbi Schammai. See Buxtorf, de Syn. Jud. c. 29.

The Pharisees came to our Lord seemingly for a solution of this question between the two schools, but in fact to entangle Him in His words.

4. ἄρσεν καὶ θῆλυ] which is said only of Man (Gen. i. 27), not of any other animal.

Polygamy was first introduced in the family of Cain by Lamech the sixth from Adam (Gen. iv. 19), and is seen in connexion with murder (Gen. iv. 23), and God does not vouchsafe to trace its issue beyond the first generation.

For illustrations from the LXX of these verses 4—12, see Grinfield, pp. 117, 118.

5. εἶπεν] i. e. by the mouth of Adam. Gen. ii. 24. It is evident that God spake by Adam; for how could Adam then know, except by divine inspiration, that a man would have a father or mother to leave?

— κολληθήσεται] "pro Hebr. דָּבַק (dabhak), hæsit;" to cleave. Ruth i. 14. Prov. xviii. 24. "Arctissimo amoris *gluti*no conjungetur cum eâ copulatus." Cp. 1 Cor. vi. 16, κολλώμενος τῇ πόρνῃ. Rev. xviii. 5, ἐκολλήθησαν αἱ ἁμαρτίαι ἄχρι τοῦ οὐρανοῦ.

— εἰς σάρκα μίαν] εἰς = Hebr. ל. The words are more expressive than σὰρξ μία or ἐν σαρκὶ μιᾷ, and literally rendered from the Hebr. לְבָשָׂר אֶחָד (le-basar echad), joined into one, so as to be no longer twain, but one. Cp. Gen. ii. 24. On similar uses of εἰς, see Vorst. Hebr. p. 680. εἰς τὸ ὄνομα, xviii. 20. 1 Cor. xv. 45, ἐγένετο εἰς ψυχὴν ζῶσαν.

The LXX have inserted the words οἱ δύο, which are not in the original; and our Lord approves the insertion as giving the true sense. Observe οἱ here, 'the two.' Marriage is only 'inter duos;' a protest against Polygamy.

6. ὃ—χωριζέτω] What God hath joined together let not man put asunder. Man does put asunder when he divorces his wife, with desire of marrying another. (Jerome.)

7. ἐνετείλατο] Moses did not command absolutely to do so, but only permitted it (v. 8), and ex hypothesi, i. e. on supposition of a resolve to divorce a wife, he ordered that it should not be done hastily and passionately by mere word of mouth, but in a set form, with a written document properly prepared, attested, and executed before a magistrate; in order to give time to the husband to consider what he was doing, and to secure evidence to the wife that she had not left her husband of her own accord. See Vitringa, de Synagog. Jud. c. xl. and above, v. 31.

8. πρὸς τὴν σκληροκαρδίαν] πρὸς = Hebr. עַל (propter, contra) —i. e. lest you in your cruelty should rid yourselves of your wives by violent means (see on v. 31, 32); lest you should maltreat your wife. "He permitted divorce to avoid homicide." (Jerome.) Therefore the permission to which you appeal is a proof of your cruelty; that which you plead as your excuse is a proof of your sin, and an evidence of your own degradation; and if you were children of God it would not exist.

— ἐπέτρεψεν] a correction of ἐνετείλατο.

9. ὃς ἂν ἀπολύσῃ] See above, on ch. v. 31. Our Lord admits but one cause of divorcing a wife—fornication. And here we must understand, that if a woman leaves her husband on this single cause, for which divorce is allowed, she ought to remain unmarried, or be reconciled to her husband, either reformed or to be tolerated,—rather than marry another. And the Apostle adds, "Let not the husband put away his wife" (see 1 Cor. vii. 10—15),—intimating briefly in the case of the husband the same course as he had commanded in the case of the wife. St. Aug. (de divers. quæst. 83). See also Hermas Pastor. ii. Mand. iv. Concil. Eliber. can. 65. Neocæsar. can. 8. Epiphan. Hæret. lix. Lactant. Inst. vi. 23.

Our Lord says, that he who takes to wife a woman that has been divorced by her husband is the cause of her adultery, for he gives her occasion to sin; and if he did not receive her, she might return to her husband. (S. Clemens Alex. Strom. ii. p. 507.)

A wife may be put away for fornication; but a man who puts away his wife for fornication may not marry another during her life. And it is said by our Lord, that he who marries an adulteress is guilty of adultery. (Jerome.) By a marriage, which never could have taken place if the adulteress had remained faithful to her husνείᾳ, καὶ γαμήσῃ ἄλλην, μοιχᾶται· καὶ ὁ ἀπολελυμένην γαμήσας μοιχᾶται.

(191 X) 10 Λέγουσιν αὐτῷ οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ, Εἰ οὕτως ἐστὶν ἡ αἰτία τοῦ ἀνθρώπου
f 1 Cor. 7. 2, 7, 9, 17. μετὰ τῆς γυναικὸς, οὐ συμφέρει γαμῆσαι. 11 f Ὁ δὲ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Οὐ πάντες χωροῦσι τὸν λόγον τοῦτον, ἀλλ' οἷς δέδοται· 12 εἰσὶ γὰρ εὐνοῦχοι, οἵτινες g 1 Cor. 7. 32, 34. & 9. 5, 15. ἐκ κοιλίας μητρὸς ἐγεννήθησαν g οὕτω· καὶ εἰσιν εὐνοῦχοι, οἵτινες εὐνουχίσθησαν ὑπὸ τῶν ἀνθρώπων· καὶ εἰσιν εὐνοῦχοι, οἵτινες εὐνούχισαν ἑαυτοὺς διὰ τὴν βασιλείαν τῶν οὐρανῶν. Ὁ δυνάμενος χωρεῖν χωρείτω.
(198 II) 13 Τότε προσηνέχθη αὐτῷ παιδία, ἵνα τὰς χεῖρας ἐπιθῇ αὐτοῖς καὶ προσ-h Mark 10. 13. Luke 18. 15. ch. 18. 3. εύξηται· οἱ δὲ μαθηταὶ ἐπετίμησαν αὐτοῖς. 14 h Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν, Ἄφετε τὰ παιδία, καὶ μὴ κωλύετε αὐτὰ ἐλθεῖν πρός με· τῶν γὰρ τοιούτων ἐστὶν ἡ βασιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν. 15 Καὶ ἐπιθεὶς αὐτοῖς τὰς χεῖρας ἐπορεύθη ἐκεῖθεν.
i Mark 10. 17. Luke 18. 18. (198 II) 16 i Καὶ ἰδοὺ, εἷς προσελθὼν εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Διδάσκαλε ἀγαθὲ, τί ἀγαθὸν ποιήσω, ἵνα ἔχω ζωὴν αἰώνιον; 17 Ὁ δὲ εἶπεν αὐτῷ· Τί με ἐρωτᾷς περὶ τοῦ ἀγαθοῦ; εἷς ἐστιν ὁ ἀγαθὸς, ὁ Θεός. Εἰ δὲ θέλεις εἰς τὴν ζωὴν εἰσελθεῖν, k Exod. 20. 13. Deut. 5. 17. l ch. 15. 4. Ephes. 6. 2. Lev. 19. 18. ch. 22. 39. Rom. 13. 9. Gal. 5. 14. James 2. 8. m ch. 6. 20. Luke 12. 33. τήρησον τὰς ἐντολάς. 18 k Λέγει αὐτῷ· Ποίας; Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς εἶπε, Τὸ, οὐ φονεύσεις· οὐ μοιχεύσεις· οὐ κλέψεις· οὐ ψευδομαρτυρήσεις· 19 l τίμα τὸν πατέρα καὶ τὴν μητέρα· καὶ, ἀγαπήσεις τὸν πλησίον σου ὡς σεαυτόν. 20 Λέγει αὐτῷ ὁ νεανίσκος, Πάντα ταῦτα ἐφυλαξάμην ἐκ νεότητός μου· τί ἔτι ὑστερῶ; (194 II) 21 m Ἔφη αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Εἰ θέλεις τέ-band, he who marries her makes himself one flesh with an adulteress, and so is a partner in adultery, and causes her to commit adultery.

---

The sentence of our Lord is, that a wife is not to be put away except for fornication, and that she who is put away is not to be married to another. (Jerome, Epist. xxx. pro libris suis adv. Jovin.) We pronounce that man to be an adulterer who puts away his wife for any cause save fornication; but we do not therefore absolve from the taint of this sin ('non hujus peccati labe defendimus') him who has put away his wife for fornication and has married another. No one can deny that he is an adulterer who has married a woman whom her husband has put away for fornication. (Aug. de Conj. Adult. i. 9. 12; ii. 16.)

— μοιχᾶται] In Matt. v. 32, our Lord says ποιεῖ αὐτὴν μοιχᾶσθαι. This has been explained by the use of the Hiphil form for Kal (à Lapide); but both are very consistent. The man who divorces his wife and marries another commits adultery, inasmuch as he unites himself to another woman while he has a wife living; and he makes her commit adultery,—that is, he exposes her to the danger of doing so, by tempting her to unite herself to another man while she has a husband living,—and so, as far as in him lies, makes her an adulteress. "Apud Deum," says Grotius (in Marc. x. 11), "adulterii crimine tenetur, qui expulsæ præbet adulterii occasionem."

10. ἡ αἰτία] the case. Hebr. דְּבָרָה (dibrah).

11. χωροῦσι] A metaphor derived from the capacity of a vessel, σκεῦος, to which the human body is compared in N. T. 1 Thess. iv. 4. Cp. 1 Pet iii. 7. All are not capable of holding, i. e. of observing τοῦτον τὸν λόγον, viz. celibacy; but some are οἷς δέδοται, and then He gives certain examples. Cf. 1 Cor. vii. 2. 7. 9. 17.

12. εὐνοῦχοι] εὐνούχοι, Hebr. סָרִיס (saris), from סָרַס (saras), 'abscidit' (Gesen.); and thence,—because εὐνοῦχοι were often 'cubicularii,'—it signifies a chamberlain, and in such cases is not to be taken in the literal signification.

The word εὐνοῦχος had been already used by the LXX for chamberlain, εὐνὴν ἔχων, a lord of the bedchamber, a courtier generally, in numberless places of the O. T. See Gen. xxxix. 1, concerning Potiphar, who was married, and yet is called εὐνοῦχος Φαραώ; and cp. xl. 2. 7, concerning the chief butler and baker. See also 1 Sam. viii. 15. Esth. i. 10. 12. 15. In Gen. xxxvii. 36 and Isa. xxxix. 7 the LXX use σπάδων, and so mark the difference of meaning.

Thus it appears that the phrase εὐνούχισαν ἑαυτοὺς does not mean literally by amputation (heaven forbid!), but by the extirpation of sensual thoughts. They who act upon this literally give occasion to those who traduce creation, and encourage the heresy of the Manichæans, and fall into the sin of those among the Gentiles who violate themselves. (Chrys., doubtless with reference to the case of Origen.) See Euseb. vi. 8. Epiphan. Hær. lxiv. 3.

The phrase (εὐν. ἑαυτοὺς) in this verse signifies also those, both men and women, who abstain from married life and its cares, that they may attend with more assiduity on the service of the Marriage Chamber and Court of the Heavenly King. (Cf. Isa. lvi. 3, to which passage probably our Lord alludes.) Cp. Greg. Naz., p. 658, who says, τὸ μέχρι τῶν σωματικῶν εὐνούχων στῆσαι τὸν λόγον, μικρὸν καὶ ἀνάξιον λόγου.

13. παιδία] He had vindicated the rights of Marriage, and now defends that of its fruit; and so consecrates both.

— ἵνα τὰς χεῖρας ἐπιθῇ αὐτοῖς] As Jacob did on Ephraim and Manasseh (Gen. xlviii. 14, 15). Cf. Isa. xl. 11, a prophecy concerning the Messiah here fulfilled by our Lord.

14. ἄφετε τὰ παιδία] On this text, as an argument for Baptism of Infants, see St. Aug. Serm. 174, quoted below on Mark x. 14. Cp. Luke xviii. 17.

— τῶν τοιούτων] "Si talium, multo magis ipsorum (i. e. infantium)." (Cp. Beng.)

16. εἷς] emphatically; for he was an ἄρχων (Luke xviii. 18).

17. τί με ἐρωτᾷς περὶ τοῦ ἀγαθοῦ] This appears to be the true reading, and is received by Gb., Lachm., Tisch., and Alf. from B, D, L, and it is found in Syriac Curet., and in Origen, Euseb., Jerome, Aug., and others, for τί με λέγεις ἀγαθόν; Cp. Mark x. 17. Luke xviii. 18. See next note.

— εἷς ἐστιν ὁ ἀγαθός] This also appears to be the right reading, and is given by B, D, L, and Syr. Curet., and received by Tisch. 1856, for οὐδεὶς ἀγαθός, εἰ μὴ εἷς.

The ὁ ἀγαθὸς is God. Cp. 1 Pet. iii. 13, τίς ὑμᾶς ὁ κακώσων ἐὰν τοῦ ἀγαθοῦ μιμηταὶ γένησθε; St. Matt. gives our Lord's answer to the question; the other two Evangelists to the address of the young man. The sense is, "Do you ask me concerning the good that you should do in order to have life? There is One Who is good,—the good—God. He is the sole Source of good, and you need not any other Instructor but Him; and you must comply with His Law, and not rely on yourself, but pray for His grace in order to be enabled to do the least good."

This reply is very fitly followed by that in the other Gospels. Since God alone is good, why do you call Me good? or, if you call Me good, why do you not rise higher in your thoughts of Me and call Me, not Rabbi, but God? "Commodissimè igitur," says Aug. de Cons. Ev. ii. 63, "intelligitur utrumque dictum Quid dicis Me bonum? et Cur interrogas Me de bono?" (Cp. Aug. de Trin. i. 13.)

"Some blame this young man as a hypocrite; but we read in St. Mark that our Lord looked on him and loved him (Mark x. 21). His fault was that he doted on his possessions, which got the mastery over him. Wealth is a powerful tyrant, and blights many virtues.

"But why did our Lord say 'none is good?' Because he came to Him merely as a man—as a human teacher; He therefore speaks as a man; for He often replies to the thoughts of His hearers. When He says 'None is good,' He does not deny Himself to be good (heaven forbid!). He did not say, 'I am not good,' but 'None is good.' No man is good—much less in comparison with God. He thus elevates his thoughts and detaches him from earthly good, and fixes his mind on God, and teaches him what is the essence and source of good, and to ascribe honour to Him. So when He said, 'Call no man father on earth' (Matt. xxiii. 9), He was speaking in comparison with God, and teaching us what is the first principle of all things. The young man showed no small eagerness for good; for when others came for temporal blessings, he came to ask concerning eternal life. His mind was like good and fertile ground, but it was overgrown with thorns which choked the seed." (Chrys.)

18. οὐ φονεύσεις] To show him his imperfection He begins with the Second Table of the Law.

Christ sends the proud to the Law, and invites the humble to the Gospel.

21. εἰ θέλεις τέλειος εἶναι] If you desire to be; as much as to say that as yet he is not so, although he says τί ἔτι ὑστερῶ; τέλειος, for Hebr. תָּמִים (tamim), integer, used by the LXX of Noah, Gen. vi. 9; of Job, i. 1. Our Lord commands all His Disciples to be τέλειοι, v. 48; and so St. Paul. (Cf. 1 Cor. xiv. 20. Col. i. 28.) And the command here given was designed to reveal the young man λειος εἶναι, ὕπαγε, πώλησόν σου τὰ ὑπάρχοντα καὶ δὸς πτωχοῖς, καὶ ἕξεις θησαυρὸν ἐν οὐρανῷ· καὶ δεῦρο ἀκολούθει μοι. (195/II) 22 Ἀκούσας δὲ ὁ νεανίσκος τὸν λόγον ἀπῆλθε λυπούμενος· ἦν γὰρ ἔχων κτήματα πολλά.

23 n Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς εἶπε τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ, Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι δυσκόλως πλούσιος εἰσελεύσεται εἰς τὴν βασιλείαν τῶν οὐρανῶν. 24 Πάλιν δὲ λέγω ὑμῖν, εὐκοπώτερόν ἐστι κάμηλον διὰ τρυπήματος ῥαφίδος διελθεῖν, ἢ πλούσιον εἰς τὴν βασιλείαν τοῦ Θεοῦ εἰσελθεῖν. 25 Ἀκούσαντες δὲ οἱ μαθηταὶ ἐξεπλήσσοντο σφόδρα λέγοντες, Τίς ἄρα δύναται σωθῆναι; 26 o Ἐμβλέψας δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Παρὰ ἀνθρώποις τοῦτο ἀδύνατόν ἐστι, παρὰ δὲ Θεῷ πάντα δυνατά. 27 p Τότε ἀποκριθεὶς ὁ Πέτρος εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Ἰδοὺ, ἡμεῖς ἀφήκαμεν πάντα, καὶ ἠκολουθήσαμέν σοι· τί ἄρα ἔσται ἡμῖν; (196/X) 28 q Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι ὑμεῖς οἱ ἀκολουθήσαντές μοι, ἐν τῇ παλιγγενεσίᾳ ὅταν καθίσῃ ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἐπὶ θρόνου δόξης αὐτοῦ, (197/V) καθίσεσθε καὶ ὑμεῖς ἐπὶ δώδεκα θρόνους, κρίνοντες τὰς δώδεκα φυλὰς τοῦ Ἰσραήλ. (198/II) 29 Καὶ πᾶς ὅστις ἀφῆκεν οἰκίας, ἢ ἀδελφοὺς ἢ ἀδελφὰς, ἢ πατέρα ἢ μητέρα, ἢ γυναῖκα ἢ τέκνα, ἢ ἀγροὺς, ἕνεκεν τοῦ ὀνόματός μου, ἑκατονταπλασίονα λήψεται, καὶ ζωὴν αἰώνιον κληρονομήσει. (199/II) 30 r Πολλοὶ δὲ ἔσονται πρῶτοι ἔσχατοι, καὶ ἔσχατοι πρῶτοι. XX. (200/X) 1 Ὁμοία γάρ ἐστιν ἡ βασιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν ἀνθρώπῳ οἰκοδεσπότῃ, ὅστις ἐξῆλθεν ἅμα πρωὶ μισθώσασθαι ἐργάτας εἰς τὸν ἀμπελῶνα αὐτοῦ. 2 Συμφωνήσας δὲ μετὰ n Mark 10. 23, &c. Luke 18. 24, &c. 1 Tim. 6. 9, 10.

o Jer. 32. 17. Zech. 8. 6. Luke 1. 37.

p Mark 10. 28, &c. Luke 18. 28, &c.

q Acts 3. 21. 2 Pet. 3. 13. Rev. 21. 1. Luke 22. 29, 30.

r ch. 20. 16. Mark 10. 31. Luke 13. 30.

---

to himself. The young man's σκάνδαλον was his wealth, his besetting sin was covetousness; and our Lord touches him to the quick by piercing at once that besetting sin, and He thus shows Himself to be something more than 'Good Master,' and to be no other than God, Who trieth the very hearts and reins. And, like a good physician, He applies the special remedy adapted to this particular case. (Cp. xvi. 25, 26; xviii. 8.) "Præceptum est particulare, ad idiosyncrasiam hujus (rather say talis) animæ accommodatum." (Beng.)

The general inference therefore is that all Christians are so to hold every thing they have, that they may not be sorry but rejoice to surrender it, if Christ requires the surrender, or if it retards or impedes them in following Him. See further on Luke xii. 33.

Pelagius argued from our Lord's words that no rich man could be saved unless he sold his possessions and gave them to the poor. But this notion was refuted by Aug., Ep. ad Paulinum. (See à Lapide, and cp. Acts v. 4. 1 Tim. vi. 18.) And on the salvability of the rich, see Clem. Alex., "Quis dives salvetur?" ii. p. 935.

24. κάμηλον] To express an ἀδύνατον, or impossibility, the Rabbis used to say, "It is easier for an Elephant to pass through a needle's eye." See Talmud, Berachot. fol. 55. Bavamezia, fol. 38. Vorst. de Hebr. p. 764. The camel and needle are found in the Koran, Sur. 7. 38. Our Lord uses the word Camel as perhaps better known to the hearers and readers of His Gospel; and on account of the form of the Camel, the hump on its back being an apt emblem of worldly wealth as a heavy load and impediment to entrance through the narrow gate—the needle's eye—of life.

If a rich man cannot enter the kingdom of God any more than a camel pass through the eye of a needle, then no rich man could be saved. But Isaiah says (lx. 6) that the camels of Midian and Ephah shall come with their gifts and offerings to Zion; and they who before were crooked and bent and distorted enter its gates; so those camels, to which the rich are compared here, when they have cast off the load of their worldliness, may by the Divine clemency enter the straight gate which leadeth into life. (Jerome.) It is not a sin to be rich, for how can a man give largely without means? But it is a sin to covet wealth and to dote upon it. (Hilary.) — διελθεῖν—εἰσελθεῖν] Such appears to be the true reading. The comparison is between passing through one thing (the needle's eye) and entering into another, the kingdom of heaven. Cp. Mark x. 25. Luke xviii. 25.

26. ἀδύνατον] What is impossible with men, acting by their own unassisted aid, is possible to them with the Divine aid, for which they ought therefore to pray. (Chrys.)

28. ἐν τῇ παλιγγενεσίᾳ] At the new birth of the saints at the Resurrection,—in the new Jerusalem. (See 2 Pet. iii. 13. Rev. iii. 12; xxi. 2. 5.) That παλιγγενεσία is commenced in, and typified by, the Regeneration or new birth in the Church Visible on earth (Tit. iii. 5), cp. on Rom. viii. 22; and see Aug. de C. D. xxv. 5.

With the phrase ἐν τῇ παλιγ. ὅταν, cp. Mark xii. 23, ἐν τῇ ἀναστάσει, ὅταν.

— ὅταν καθίσῃ—καθίσεσθε] Observe, He uses the active when speaking of Himself; the middle voice, of His Apostles. (Beng.) — ἐπὶ δώδεκα θρόνους, κρίνοντες] Not that the Apostles are not first to be judged by Christ. See Rom. xiv. 10. 2 Cor. v. 10. 1 Cor. iv. 3, 4. 2 Tim. iv. 8. "Ineunte Judicio stabunt (Luke xxi. 36. 2 Cor. v. 10), tum, absoluti, considebunt." (Beng.) They will be set to judge, i. e. to reign and abide, on seats of glory and dignity in His Kingdom. See Dan. vii. 9, which speaks of Thrones being set, &c. Cf. Rev. iii. 21, and iv. 4. To judge is equivalent to reigning. See Rev. xx. 4. Wisdom iii. 8, κρινοῦσιν ἔθνη, καὶ κρατήσουσι λαῶν.

Κρίνειν, שָׁפַט (shaphat), to judge, signifies often to rule. Hence the Suffetes of Carthage, properly שופטים (shophetim), Judges, were Magistrates. So the Israelitish Judges.

We are not to suppose (says Aug. de Civ. Dei, xx. 5) that only twelve persons are to judge with Christ. But by the perfect number twelve, is signified the whole number of those who shall judge. Otherwise, as Matthias was elected into the place of Judas, the Apostle Paul, who laboured more abundantly than they all, should have no place to judge. But He shows that he, with the rest of the saints, is numbered among the Judges when He says, Know ye not that we shall judge Angels? 1 Cor. vi. 3. Cp. Aug. Serm. 351. Greg. Mar. x. 31.

— δώδεκα θρόνους] He says δώδεκα, although Judas would forfeit his throne. "Loquitur Christus, ut theologi solent, secundùm præsentem justitiam, et non tam de personis, quàm de personarum statu; quasi dicat Apostolorum officium hoc habere propositum præmium, ut qui eo bene functus fuerit, in Judicio super sedem sessurus sit." (Maldonat.)

He tells Peter that they should sit on twelve Thrones. He does not promise him One Throne by himself. Let the Bishop of Rome, who claims to be Peter's Successor, admit all other Bishops to be σύνθρονοι with himself; or else let him fear that he may forfeit his throne by covetousness,—as Judas did.

— δώδεκα φυλὰς τ. Ἰσραήλ] The literal Israel, judging, i. e. condemning them for not believing what you believe, i. e. the Gospel. (Jerome.) Cp. Matt. xii. 27.

The whole Visible Church. (Aug. de Civ. Dei, xx. 5.) See Rev. vii. 4—9, and xii. 12.

By the word παλιγγενεσία, our Lord had drawn off the minds of the Apostles from earthly hopes to spiritual joys; and He now speaks of the heavenly Jerusalem, the Israel of God, in which the Apostles will hold high places, and therefore their names are said to be written on the foundation stones of the heavenly city (Rev. xxi. 14).

29. πᾶς] Even the poorest of the poor.

— οἰκίας] Some recent Editors transpose οἰκίας to follow ἀγροὺς, but against the majority of MSS. and the structure of the sentence, which is one of ascent first, and then of descent.

— γυναῖκα] Some expunge γυναῖκα, as if a wife was never to be left; against the balance of MSS. and the tenor of the sentence; which is, that all must be left if Christ so requires—a condition implied in ἕνεκεν τοῦ ὀνόματός μου. And see Mark x. 29. Luke xiv. 26; xviii. 29, and therefore γυναῖκα has peculiar force.

— ἑκατονταπλασίονα] For all Christians are brothers and sisters in Christ.

30. πρῶτοι] not οἱ πρῶτοι here, as it is in xx. 16. See note there.

CH. XX. 1. ἀμπελῶνα] The Visible Church of God had been already compared to an ἀμπελὼν כֶּרֶם (kerem), in the Old Test. Is. v. 1—7. Cant. viii. 12.

2. συμφωνήσας—ἐκ δηναρίου τὴν ἡμέραν] The Lord is de-τῶν ἐργατῶν ἐκ δηναρίου τὴν ἡμέραν ἀπέστειλεν αὐτοὺς εἰς τὸν ἀμπελῶνα αὐτοῦ. 3 Καὶ ἐξελθὼν περὶ τρίτην ὥραν εἶδεν ἄλλους ἑστῶτας ἐν τῇ ἀγορᾷ ἀργούς· 4 κἀκείνοις εἶπεν, Ὑπάγετε καὶ ὑμεῖς εἰς τὸν ἀμπελῶνα, καὶ ὃ ἐὰν ᾖ δίκαιον, δώσω ὑμῖν· 5 οἱ δὲ ἀπῆλθον. Πάλιν ἐξελθὼν περὶ ἕκτην καὶ ἐνάτην ὥραν ἐποίησεν ὡσαύτως. 6 Περὶ δὲ τὴν ἑνδεκάτην ὥραν ἐξελθὼν εὗρεν ἄλλους ἑστῶτας ἀργούς, καὶ λέγει αὐτοῖς, Τί ὧδε ἑστήκατε ὅλην τὴν ἡμέραν ἀργοί; 7 Λέγουσιν αὐτῷ, Ὅτι οὐδεὶς ἡμᾶς ἐμισθώσατο. Λέγει αὐτοῖς, Ὑπάγετε καὶ ὑμεῖς εἰς τὸν ἀμπελῶνα, καὶ ὃ ἐὰν ᾖ δίκαιον λήψεσθε. 8 Ὀψίας δὲ γενομένης, λέγει ὁ κύριος τοῦ ἀμπελῶνος τῷ ἐπιτρόπῳ αὐτοῦ, Κάλεσον τοὺς ἐργάτας, καὶ ἀπόδος αὐτοῖς τὸν μισθὸν, ἀρξάμενος ἀπὸ τῶν ἐσχάτων ἕως τῶν πρώτων. 9 Καὶ ἐλθόντες οἱ περὶ τὴν ἑνδεκάτην ὥραν ἔλαβον ἀνὰ δηνάριον. 10 Ἐλθόντες δὲ οἱ πρῶτοι ἐνόμισαν ὅτι πλείονα λήψονται· καὶ ἔλαβον καὶ αὐτοὶ ἀνὰ δηνάριον. 11 λαβόντες δὲ ἐγόγγυζον κατὰ τοῦ οἰκοδεσπότου, 12 λέγοντες, Ὅτι οὗτοι οἱ ἔσχατοι μίαν ὥραν ἐποίησαν, καὶ ἴσους ἡμῖν αὐτοὺς ἐποίησας τοῖς βαστάσασι τὸ βάρος τῆς ἡμέρας καὶ τὸν καύσωνα. 13 Ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν ἑνὶ αὐτῶν, Ἑταῖρε, οὐκ ἀδικῶ σε· οὐχὶ δηναρίου συνεφώνησάς μοι; 14 ἆρον τὸ σὸν καὶ ὕπαγε· θέλω τούτῳ τῷ ἐσχάτῳ δοῦναι ὡς καὶ σοί. 15 [a] ἢ οὐκ ἔξεστί μοι ποιῆσαι ὃ θέλω ἐν τοῖς ἐμοῖς; [b] ἢ ὁ ὀφθαλμός σου

a Rom. 9. 21. James 1. 18.
b Deut. 15. 9. Prov. 23. 6. ch. 6. 23.

scribed as agreeing with those only who were hired first for a specific sum, a denarius, or drachma, by the day: the usual rate of wages for a day's labour (See Tobit v. 14. Rev. vi. 6. Tacit. Ann. i. 17.) To the others he promises to give ὃ ἐὰν ᾖ δίκαιον (ver. 4), and they enter his service in a trustful spirit, on these terms.

3. καὶ ἐξελθών] On this Parable, 1—16, see Chrys. v. 708. Orat. 101[1]. Greg. M. Homil. i. 19, p. 1510. Almighty God has been ever going forth, even from the beginning of the world, to call men into His Vineyard, that of the Visible Church.

This He did in the several successive dispensations of the various Hours of the World's Day. Adam was called at daybreak; then Noah; then the Patriarchs; then Moses and the Prophets; and last of all the Apostles and Evangelists; and the Gentile World by the Gospel preached at the eleventh hour, the καιροὶ ἔσχατοι (Heb. i. 2. 1 Pet. i. 5. Acts ii. 17. 1 John ii. 18) of the world's existence. "Extrema hora, salvatoris adventus." (Jerome, iv. 159.)

— τρίτην ὥραν] Nine o'clock. On the division of the Roman day, see Martial iv. 8. They had gone to the ἀγορά, and waited there, in order to be hired.

7. Λέγουσιν αὐτῷ, Ὅτι οὐδείς] Therefore, they would have gone into the Vineyard with the first, if they had been called. God not only knows how men act, but how they would have acted, under given circumstances. The readiness with which many of the Gentiles embraced the Gospel, when offered, is a very favourable circumstance for the case of those to whom it was not offered. The case of Cornelius (Acts x.) shows what the great men, soldiers of the Cornelia gens, the Scipios, &c. would have done, if the Gospel had been offered them. May we not say the same of Cicero, Horace, and many others? Hence may we not hope that Christ's merits may extend to them?

10. πλείονα] Tischendorf and others read not πλεῖον, but πλείονα, which has the best authority, and is more suitable than πλεῖον, as signifying an indefinite expectation of more, without any right to, or even anticipation of, any one particular greater sum.

11. ἐγόγγυζον] A word already used by the LXX for Hebr. לוּן (ragan), to murmur from discontent and in rebellion. Ps. cvi. 25. Isa. xxix. 24. "They that were called of old," says Jerome, i. e. the Jews, "envy the Gentiles, and are grieved at the grace of the Gospel;" as if the prize was impaired by its being imparted to others. This is prophetic of the jealous spirit of the Jews toward the Gentiles. See Acts xiii. 45, 46, and particularly 1 Thess. ii. 16, "forbidding us to preach to the Gentiles, that they may be saved."

15. ὀφθαλμὸς πονηρός] βάσκανος, invidus, see Deut. xxviii. 54. Prov. xxiii. 6. The Jews had an evil eye, being grieved at the call of the Gentiles to salvation. Therefore the Jews are rejected, as the Parable declares. The first shall be last, and the last first. The Jews, from being the head, are become the tail; and we Gentiles, from being the tail, are the head. Deut. xxviii. 13. 44. (Jerome.)

The scope of the Parable seems to be as follows:—

St. Peter had heard our Lord's answer to the young man, "Sell all that thou hast, and give to the poor, and follow Me, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven" (xix. 21. Mark x. 21. Luke xviii. 22); and he inferred therefrom, that he himself and his brother Apostles, who had done what Christ commanded the young man to do, i. e. had left all and followed Christ, would have large wages for their work: and he asks, What shall we have therefore? (v. 27.)

Our Lord tells him in vv. 27, 28, and adds, that not only they, but every one who makes sacrifices of worldly advantages for His sake, will have an abundant reward hereafter (v. 29. Mark x. 29—31. Luke xviii. 29, 30), and yet He warns him that at that Day, many who are now first shall be last, and many who are last be first.

For (He adds) the Visible Church on earth is like a Vineyard. And then He recites the Parable (xx. 1—16), at the close of which He says that the first shall be last, and the last first. Observe the article οἱ with πρῶτοι and with ἔσχατοι, showing that the words refer to two particular classes—i. e. the Jews and the Gentiles—a special case, illustrating the general proposition in xix. 30.

The one Denarius given to all cannot mean eternal Salvation; for Eternal life is never represented in Scripture as wages due for work; but as the free gift (χάρις) of God in Christ; and

The last are not represented as saved; and

There will be no murmuring in heaven (v. 11).

Rather, the one Denarius, given to all, represents, that there will be a great difference at the Last Day. For, if the last receive a Denarius for one hour, whereas the first receive the same sum for twelve hours, it is evident that the last do in fact receive twelve times as much as the first; for it comes to the same thing—and the difference is equally marked—whether men receive the same wages for different times of work, or different wages for the same time of work. And so the first are last, and the last first.

As to works,—all that any can claim as a right is an earthly coin, a miserable denarius, the wages of a day-labourer on earth. And the award of this one sum to all is a proof of the equal impotency of all human works, to merit heaven as wages due.

Besides this, the very fact of having a murmuring spirit is itself a punishment. Envy disqualifies for heaven,

"Invidus alterius macrescit rebus opimis,
Invidiâ Siculi non invenere tyranni Majus tormentum."

It is an inward hell. And so the Jews are lost, self-degraded, self-condemned, self-exiled from heaven; and they are condemned by the Almighty Judge, Who says, take thine own (τὸ σὸν) — thine own due—and go thy way (v. 14), depart from Me.

Further, these first-hired labourers boast of their own works. "We have borne the burden and heat of the day." Cp. the language of the elder brother in the Parable, Luke xv. 29. And so the Jews, going about to establish their own righteousness, have not submitted themselves unto the righteousness of God (Rom. x. 3), and have not attained to the law of righteousness (Rom. ix. 31); but the Gentiles, who have trusted in God, have attained to the righteousness of faith (ix. 30). And so the first are last, and the last first.

Thus the Parable is prophetic of an important fact in the history of the Church; viz. that among those who were first called (viz. the Jews), many would be last; and that among the last called (viz. the Gentiles), many would be first.

Thus also our Lord prepares His disciples for what He is about to reveal to them more fully, viz. that their Master Himself would suffer much from the Jews (see xx. 18). He Himself, the First, would seem to be last. He cheers them by what He has just said, and exhorts them not to be staggered, and cast down, though they themselves, who had left all to follow Him, should suffer as He was about to suffer. For in due time, they who suffered with Him should be rewarded, and all His enemies, who might now seem triumphant

[1] In expounding this Parable, S. Chrys. introduces a remark of general use for the interpretation of Parables. "We must remember that the discourse is a Parable, and we must not be too curious in pressing every particular in it literally, but must consider the general scope of the whole, and comprehend this in our grasp, and not be overscrupulous with the rest."

πονηρός ἐστιν, ὅτι ἐγὼ ἀγαθός εἰμι; 16 [c] Οὕτως ἔσονται οἱ ἔσχατοι πρῶτοι, καὶ οἱ πρῶτοι ἔσχατοι· πολλοὶ γάρ εἰσι κλητοί, ὀλίγοι δὲ ἐκλεκτοί. c ch. 19. 30. ch. 22. 14.

(201 II) 17 [d] Καὶ ἀναβαίνων ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἰς Ἰεροσόλυμα παρέλαβε τοὺς δώδεκα μαθητὰς κατ' ἰδίαν ἐν τῇ ὁδῷ, καὶ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, 18 Ἰδοὺ, ἀναβαίνομεν εἰς Ἰεροσόλυμα, καὶ ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου παραδοθήσεται τοῖς ἀρχιερεῦσι καὶ γραμματεῦσι, καὶ κατακρινοῦσιν αὐτὸν θανάτῳ, 19 [e] καὶ παραδώσουσιν αὐτὸν τοῖς ἔθνεσιν εἰς τὸ ἐμπαῖξαι καὶ μαστιγῶσαι καὶ σταυρῶσαι· καὶ τῇ τρίτῃ ἡμέρᾳ ἀναστήσεται. d Mark 10. 32. Luke 18. 31. John 12. 12. e John 18. 32.

(202 VI) 20 [f] Τότε προσῆλθεν αὐτῷ ἡ μήτηρ τῶν υἱῶν Ζεβεδαίου μετὰ τῶν υἱῶν αὐτῆς, προσκυνοῦσα καὶ αἰτοῦσά τι παρ' αὐτοῦ. 21 Ὁ δὲ εἶπεν αὐτῇ, Τί θέλεις; Λέγει αὐτῷ, Εἰπὲ ἵνα καθίσωσιν οὗτοι οἱ δύο υἱοί μου, εἷς ἐκ δεξιῶν σου καὶ εἷς ἐξ εὐωνύμων σου, ἐν τῇ βασιλείᾳ σου. 22 [g] Ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν, Οὐκ οἴδατε τί αἰτεῖσθε. Δύνασθε πιεῖν τὸ ποτήριον, ὃ ἐγὼ μέλλω πίνειν, καὶ τὸ βάπτισμα, ὃ ἐγὼ βαπτίζομαι, βαπτισθῆναι; λέγουσιν αὐτῷ, Δυνάμεθα. 23 Καὶ λέγει αὐτοῖς, Τὸ μὲν ποτήριόν μου πίεσθε, καὶ τὸ βάπτισμα, ὃ ἐγὼ βαπτίζομαι, βαπτισθήσεσθε· τὸ δὲ καθίσαι ἐκ δεξιῶν μου καὶ ἐξ εὐωνύμων μου, οὐκ ἔστιν ἐμὸν δοῦναι, ἀλλ' οἷς ἡτοίμασται ὑπὸ τοῦ Πατρός μου. f ch. 4. 21. Mark 10. 35, &c. g ch. 26. 39, 42. John 18. 11.

(203 II) 24 [h] Καὶ ἀκούσαντες οἱ δέκα ἠγανάκτησαν περὶ τῶν δύο ἀδελφῶν· 25 [i] ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς προσκαλεσάμενος αὐτοὺς εἶπεν, Οἴδατε, ὅτι οἱ ἄρχοντες τῶν ἐθνῶν κατακυριεύουσιν αὐτῶν, καὶ οἱ μεγάλοι κατεξουσιάζουσιν αὐτῶν· 26 οὐχ οὕτως δὲ ἔσται ἐν ὑμῖν· ἀλλ' ὃς ἐὰν θέλῃ ἐν ὑμῖν μέγας γενέσθαι, ἔστω ὑμῶν διάκονος, 27 καὶ ὃς ἐὰν θέλῃ ἐν ὑμῖν εἶναι πρῶτος, ἔστω ὑμῶν δοῦλος. h Mark 10. 41. Luke 22. 24. i Mark 10. 42. Luke 22. 25.

---

for a time, be punished; and so the first be last, and the last first.

This appears to be the primary scope of the Parable.

Subordinately, it may be applied to represent God's gracious dealings with each individual soul, in the successive stages of human life (see Greg. Hom. in Evang. i. 49).

Incidentally also St. Peter is reproved for asking τί ἔσται ἡμῖν; He should rather have trusted, as the labourers did (v. 4), that the Lord would give them ὁ ἐὰν ᾖ δίκαιον. And while the jealous and envious spirit of the Jews in murmuring against God, and imagining themselves aggrieved by the introduction of the Gentiles into the Vineyard, and by their participation in its blessings, and boasting of their own works (v. 12), is reproved and condemned, it is set forth as a warning against all envy and censoriousness, and all self-righteousness and all repining against God's free and gracious dispensations.

17. παρέλαβε] He took them aside.

19. σταυρῶσαι] Our Lord reveals the future by degrees, as His Apostles were able to bear it; i. e. in proportion as they were more and more schooled by His miracles in the doctrine of His Divinity, and in proportion as He drew nearer to His Passion. He had before told them that the Son of Man should be killed (xvi. 21), and He had said that His Disciples must take up the Cross and follow Him (x. 38; xvi. 24); and thus He had prepared them gradually for the revelation which He now makes to them at almost the close of His Ministry, that He Himself should be delivered to the Gentiles (Romans) to be mocked and scourged and crucified. How natural is all this! Here is one of the many silent proofs of the Truth of the Gospel History, as well as of the long-suffering, wisdom, and tenderness of Christ.

20. ἡ μήτηρ] For their father, Zebedee (as appears from Mark i. 20) had been left with the hired servants.

— προσκυνοῦσα] The request is attributed by St. Mark (x. 35) to the two Disciples; and St. Matthew implies that they took part in the request (v. 22, 23).

21. ἐκ δεξιῶν] See 2 Sam. xvi. 6. 1 Kings ii. 19; xxii. 19. 2 Chron. xviii. 18.

22. ποτήριον] See xxvi. 39—42. John xviii. 11. Rev. xiv. 10, used by the LXX for כּוֹס (cos), a cup of suffering or wrath (Ps. lxxv. 8).

— βάπτισμα] Luke xii. 50. The cup is the bitter water to be drunk; the Baptism is the Red Sea of His own Blood to be passed through. Cf. 1 Cor. x. 2; see Luke xii. 50.

The prophecy was fulfilled in the case of James, Acts xii. 2; in that of John, Rev. i. 9. Cp. Bede in Caten. Aur. here.

23. τὸ μὲν ποτήριόν μου πίεσθε] The one, St. James, was the first of the Apostles to drink the cup of suffering; the other, St. John, who survived the rest, drank the largest and deepest draught of it.

Our Lord here describes the two kinds of Christian Martyrdom; and all Christians must be prepared for one or the other of them. Every one must be a James or a John. Cp. St. Greg. in Luc. xxi. 9: "Si virtutem patientiæ servare contendimus, et in pace Ecclesiæ vivimus, martyrii palmam tenemus. Duo quippe sunt martyrii genera, unum in mente, aliud in mente simul et actione. Itaque esse martyres possumus, etiamsi nullo percutientium ferro trucidemur. Mori quippe à persequente, martyrium in aperto opere est; ferre verò contumelias, odientem diligere, martyrium est in occultâ cogitatione. Nam quia duo sunt martyrii genera, unum in occulto opere, aliud in publico testatur Veritas, quæ Zebedæi filios requirit, dicens: Potestis bibere calicem, quem ego bibiturus sum? Cui cùm protinus responderent (Matt. xx. 22), Possumus, illico Dominus respondet, dicens: Calicem quidem meum bibetis. Quid enim per calicem, nisi dolorem passionis accipimus? De quo aliàs dicit: Pater, si fieri potest, transeat à me calix iste (ib. xxvi. 39. Marc. xiv. 36). Et Zebedæi filii, id est Jacobus et Johannes, non uterque per martyrium occubuit, et tamen quòd uterque calicem biberet, audivit. Johannes namque nequaquam per martyrium vitam finivit, sed tamen martyr extitit; quia passionem, quam non suscepit in corpore, servavit in mente. Et nos ergo hoc exemplo sine ferro esse possumus martyres, si patientiam veraciter in animo custodimus."

— τὸ δὲ καθίσαι] Observe the active voice; and cp. xix. 28.

— δοῦναι] i. e. It is not for Me to give, but it is for Me to adjudge; it is not a boon to be gained by solicitation, but it will be assigned to those for whom it is prepared, according to certain laws prescribed by God. Cp. Basil. Seleuc. Orat. xxiv. p. 134, who says καμάτων ἄθλον ὁ ὑρόνος, οὐ φιλοτιμίας χάρισμα· ἐκ κατορθωμάτων, οὐκ ἐξ αἰτήσεως ἡ δόσις. Is not mine to give. It does not depend on the giver, but on the recipient. For there is no respect of persons with God, but he who is most worthy, not in person, but in practice, will receive it from Him. (Jerome.) No one will sit at Christ's right hand and left. No saint or apostle. No, not any Angel or Archangel. Why then does He speak of such a session? He condescends to their weakness, and replies according to their notions. They had heard that the Apostles would sit on twelve thrones, and they did not understand that saying, but claimed the primacy for themselves. What He says is this: Ye will suffer for My sake. But this will not entitle you to the chief place. Others may suffer more than you. And every man will be rewarded according to his works. We are not however to imagine that Christ will not be the giver of future rewards even the highest, for St. Paul says, "there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord the righteous Judge shall give me at that day" (2 Tim. iv. 8). And that no one will have a higher place than St. Paul, is, I suppose, manifest to all. (Chrys.)

24. οἱ δέκα] Observe St. Matthew's ingenuousness, recording his own failings and those of his brethren,—a proof of truth.

27. ὃς ἐὰν θέλῃ] He teaches (v. 25) that it is a heathen passion to seek pre-eminence; and He proposes His own practice as a pattern. The Son of Man was King of heaven, and condescended to become Man, and to be rejected, and suffer death for His enemies. Suffering was his road to Glory. Humility is the door of heaven. By desiring great things we lose them; by not seeking them we gain them. What is lower than the Devil? And how did he become so? By self-exaltation. And how are we enabled to tread him under foot? By humility. (Chrys.)

(204/IV) 28 k ὥσπερ ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου οὐκ ἦλθε διακονηθῆναι, ἀλλὰ διακονῆσαι, καὶ δοῦναι τὴν ψυχὴν αὐτοῦ λύτρον ἀντὶ πολλῶν.

(205/II) 29 l Καὶ ἐκπορευομένων αὐτῶν ἀπὸ Ἰεριχὼ ἠκολούθησεν αὐτῷ ὄχλος πολύς. 30 καὶ ἰδοὺ, δύο τυφλοὶ καθήμενοι παρὰ τὴν ὁδὸν, ἀκούσαντες ὅτι Ἰησοῦς παράγει ἔκραξαν λέγοντες, Ἐλέησον ἡμᾶς, Κύριε, υἱὸς Δαυΐδ· 31 Ὁ δὲ ὄχλος ἐπετίμησεν αὐτοῖς, ἵνα σιωπήσωσιν· οἱ δὲ μεῖζον ἔκραζον, λέγοντες, Ἐλέησον ἡμᾶς, Κύριε, υἱὸς Δαυΐδ· 32 Καὶ στὰς ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἐφώνησεν αὐτοὺς, καὶ εἶπε, Τί θέλετε ποιήσω ὑμῖν; 33 Λέγουσιν αὐτῷ, Κύριε, ἵνα ἀνοιχθῶσιν ἡμῶν οἱ ὀφθαλμοί. 34 Σπλαγχνισθεὶς δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἥψατο τῶν ὀφθαλμῶν αὐτῶν· καὶ εὐθέως ἀνέβλεψαν αὐτῶν οἱ ὀφθαλμοὶ, καὶ ἠκολούθησαν αὐτῷ.

XXI. (206/II) 1 a Καὶ ὅτε ἤγγισαν εἰς Ἱεροσόλυμα, καὶ ἦλθον εἰς Βηθφαγῆ πρὸς τὸ ὄρος τῶν ἐλαιῶν, τότε ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἀπέστειλε δύο μαθητὰς, 2 λέγων αὐτοῖς, Πορεύθητε εἰς τὴν κώμην τὴν ἀπέναντι ὑμῶν, καὶ εὐθέως εὑρήσετε ὄνον δεδεμένην, καὶ πῶλον μετ' αὐτῆς· λύσαντες ἀγάγετέ μοι. 3 Καὶ ἐάν τις ὑμῖν εἴπῃ τι, ἐρεῖτε, Ὅτι ὁ Κύριος αὐτῶν χρείαν ἔχει· εὐθέως δὲ ἀποστελεῖ αὐτούς. (207/VII) 4 Τοῦτο δὲ ὅλον γέγονεν, ἵνα πληρωθῇ τὸ ῥηθὲν διὰ τοῦ προφήτου λέγοντος, 5 b Εἴπατε τῇ θυγατρὶ Σιών, Ἰδοὺ, ὁ βασιλεύς σου ἔρχεταί σοι πραΰς, καὶ ἐπιβεβηκὼς ἐπὶ ὄνον, καὶ πῶλον υἱὸν ὑποζυ-k Phil. 2. 7. Luke 22. 27. 1 Tim. 2. 6. 1 Pet. 1. 19.

l Mark 10. 46, &c. Luke 18. 35, &c.
a Mark 11. 1, &c. Luke 19. 29, &c.
b Isa. 62. 11. & 40. 9. Zech. 9. 9. John 12. 13.

---

28. λύτρον ἀντὶ] λύτρον is the word used by the LXX for פִּדְיוֹן (pidhyon), a ransom (Exod. xxi. 30), from root פָּדָה (padhah), to pay a ransom, for which λυτροῦν is used in numerous passages by the LXX: Exod. xiii. 13. 15; xxxiv. 20. Lev. xix. 20; xxvii. 29. Numb. xviii. 15. 17. Deut. vii. 8; ix. 26. Ps. xxv. 22; xxvi. 11; xxxi. 5. Isa. li. 11. Jer. xv. 21. Cp. 1 Pet. i. 18, 19, which supplies the best comment on this passage, οὐ φθαρτοῖς, ἀργυρίῳ ἢ χρυσῷ, ἐλυτρώθητε, ἀλλὰ τιμίῳ αἵματι, ὡς ἀμνοῦ ἀμώμου καὶ ἀσπίλου, Χριστοῦ. Λύτρον is also something more; it is purchase money for some great benefit. See Grotius, de Satisfactione Christi, p. 162. A divine assertion of the doctrine of the Atonement; the life of Christ was given by Him as a price by which mankind is ransomed from the captivity and slavery of sin and death, and for the purchase of a glorious liberty and of life everlasting. The LXX use also the word כֹּפֶר (copher) for λύτρον, in the sense of covering an offence. (See Exod. xxi. 26; xxx. 10. 16.) And the Mercy-seat, as covering the Ark (the figure of the Church), and as that on which God reposes in mercy between the Cherubim, is called כַּפֹּרֶת (caporeth), Exod. xxv. 17—22, or covering, and also ἱλαστήριον (Heb. ix. 15), and is a fit type of the propitiation made by Christ. See Rom. iii. 25, ὃν προέθετο ὁ Θεὸς ἱλαστήριον.

— ἀντὶ πολλῶν] Why does He not say πάντων? That would be true; see Heb. ii. 9. Rom. viii. 32. 1 Tim. ii. 6, ὁ δοὺς ἑαυτὸν ἀντίλυτρον ὑπὲρ πάντων.

But the Sacrifice was not yet offered; when it had been, it would declare its own nature; and the Apostles would proclaim it. He makes His gracious revelations to them by degrees. (See xvi. 21 and xxvi. 2.) Cp. on xxvi. 28, περὶ πολλῶν ἐκχυνόμενον, and see how in this case οἱ πολλοὶ and πάντες are equivalent, Rom. v. 12—19.

29. καὶ ἐκπορευομένων αὐτῶν] At first sight there seems to be a difficulty in reconciling this narrative with that in St. Luke (xviii. 35—43) and St. Mark (x. 46—52), which see.

The solution seems to be as follows:

Our Lord on entering Jericho sees a blind man by the wayside begging (Luke xviii. 35—40). St. Luke says that our Lord paused after a time and healed him. St. Luke then goes back to give an account of Zacchæus, who was anxious to see Jesus as He was entering Jericho (Luke xix. 1). And St. Luke recounts how our Lord spends the night in the house of Zacchæus, probably at Jericho, and leaves the city for Jerusalem.

It seems probable that St. Luke desired to describe and put together the whole history of the blind man's cure, and so anticipates the result by a prolepsis common in Scripture, and that in fact the blind man was not healed immediately; but that our Lord tried his faith by postponing his cure till the next day, and that when our Lord, after His sojourn with Zacchæus, was going out the next day from Jericho, the same blind man, now attended by another blind man who had heard of our Lord's intention to go that way, and who had perhaps been invited by the other blind man to join him, was sitting near the gate which led out of Jericho toward Jerusalem (see Matt. xx. 29, 30), and that both were then healed.

See further on this subject the note on Mark x. 46, and on the situation of Jericho see on Luke xviii. 35.

In confirmation of the above remarks, it may be observed that nothing is more striking in sacred history (compared with human annals) than the practice of Anticipation and Recapitulation (see xxvi. 6). It belongs to the nature of the Divine Author of Scripture (ὁ ὢν καὶ ὁ ἦν καὶ ὁ ἐρχόμενος, Rev. i. 4), to Whom all time is present at once. Holy Scripture, to be rightly understood, must be read and interpreted accordingly. One of the Rabbis says well, "Non est prius, aut posterius, in Scriptura." (R. Jarchi, in Gen. vi.)

A similar instance of finishing off a subject may be seen in St. Matthew's narrative of the withering of the fig-tree (xxi. 20), which he connects with the remarks of the Disciples upon it, although those remarks were not made till the next day. (Mark xi. 20.)

See also a remarkable instance of Anticipation in St. Luke, iii. 19, and another xix. 45. By a similar prolepsis Mary is said, in John xi. 2, to have anointed Jesus, though the anointing did not take place till afterwards (xii. 3). See also Matt. xxvii. 52, 53.

31. οἱ δὲ μεῖζον ἔκραζον] A proof of faith. The blind men saw Jesus with the eye of faith, and prayed to Him as their Saviour, —while the world, who could see His person, saw Him not. And yet the blind world, which did not see Jesus, rebuked the blind men who saw and worshipped Him; but they were nothing daunted by the rebuke, but cried to Him the more earnestly. Thus the blind recovered sight; and they who saw became blind. John ix. 39.

Comp. the case of the faithful woman who alone touched Him (though it was but by the hem of His garment), while the profane crowd which pressed on Him touched Him not (ix. 20).

34. ἥψατο] He touched them as Man, and healed them as God.

CH. XXI. 1. ὅτε ἤγγισαν εἰς Ἱεροσόλυμα] This day seems to have been the tenth day of the month Abib or Nisan, on which the paschal lamb was to be taken up (Exod. xii. 1—5).

The true Paschal Lamb therefore now goes to Jerusalem to those who would slay Him; and to that city where alone the Passover could be sacrificed. He thus shows that He is the true Passover, and that He laid down His life willingly (John xviii. 1).

For Homilies on Palm Sunday (εἰς τὰ βαΐα), see St. Ephraimius ii. p. 251 and 301, and St. Methodius, p. 430. Cf. note on v. 9.

— Βηθφαγῆ] בֵּית פַּגֵּא (beth-phage) "locus grossorum," the place of Figs, at the foot of the Mount of Olives, to the west of Bethany. Among the Rabbinical Writers the term Bethphage is applied to a District (see Lightfoot) stretching from the Mount of Olives to Jerusalem. See further on xxvi. 6.

— ὄρος τῶν ἐλαιῶν] הַר הַזֵּיתִים (har-hazzeythim), (Zech. xiv. 4,) five furlongs east of Jerusalem (Acts i. 12. Joseph. Ant. xx. 8), and separated from it by the brook Kedron (Joseph. B. J. v. 2).

2. κώμην] Bethphage.

4. τὸ ῥηθὲν διὰ τοῦ προφήτου] Isa. lxii. 11. Zech. ix. 9. "Solent Scriptores N. T. ex duobus vel pluribus locis allegatis unum contexere." (Glass. Philol. Sacr. p. 960.) "Prophetam autem in singulari vocat, ut pulcherrimam vaticinionum harmoniam insinuet, et omnes prophetas uno Spiritu locutos fuisse ostendat." See on Mark i. 2.

5. τῇ θυγατρὶ Σιών] Jerusalem. Cp. Isa. xlvii. 1. Jer. xlvi. 24. Ps. cxxxvii. Vorst. de Hebr. 499.

— πραΰς] Zech. has עָנִי (ani), poor, rendered πραΰς by LXX.

— ὄνον] The riding on an Ass was a sign of peacefulness; as opposed to the use of the horse, the emblem of War; and a rebuke to the Jewish spirit, which in defiance of the Divine command not to multiply horses, put their trust in chariots and in horses (Ps. xx. 7), i. e. in worldly strength, and not in the Name of the Lord. See Bp. Sherlock On the Prophecies, Diss. iv.

Contrast this peaceful entry of our Lord, riding on the foal of an ass, with His majestic appearance (as described in Ps. xlv. 3—6) as a Conqueror, King, and God; and also as displayed in the Apocalypse, riding on the White Horse—conquering and to conquer (Rev. vi. 2; xix. 11), as King of kings and Lord of lords.

γίου. (208/II) 6 c Πορευθέντες δὲ οἱ μαθηταὶ, καὶ ποιήσαντες καθὼς προσέταξεν αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, 7 ἤγαγον τὴν ὄνον καὶ τὸν πῶλον, καὶ ἐπέθηκαν ἐπάνω αὐτῶν τὰ ἱμάτια αὐτῶν, καὶ ἐπεκάθισεν ἐπάνω αὐτῶν. 8 d Ὁ δὲ πλεῖστος ὄχλος ἔστρωσαν ἑαυτῶν τὰ ἱμάτια ἐν τῇ ὁδῷ· ἄλλοι δὲ ἔκοπτον κλάδους ἀπὸ τῶν δένδρων καὶ ἐστρώννυον ἐν τῇ ὁδῷ. (209/I) 9 e Οἱ δὲ ὄχλοι οἱ προάγοντες καὶ οἱ ἀκολουθοῦντες ἔκραζον, λέγοντες, Ὡσαννὰ τῷ υἱῷ Δαυΐδ· εὐλογημένος ὁ ἐρχόμενος ἐν ὀνόματι Κυρίου· Ὡσαννὰ ἐν τοῖς ὑψίστοις.

c Mark 11. 4. &c. Luke 19. 32, &c.

d John 12. 13.

e Ps. 118. 24, 25. ch. 23. 39.

(210/X) 10 Καὶ εἰσελθόντος αὐτοῦ εἰς Ἱεροσόλυμα, ἐσείσθη πᾶσα ἡ πόλις λέγουσα, Τίς ἐστιν οὗτος; 11 f Οἱ δὲ ὄχλοι ἔλεγον, Οὗτός ἐστιν Ἰησοῦς ὁ προφήτης, ὁ ἀπὸ Ναζαρὲθ τῆς Γαλιλαίας.

f ch. 2. 23.

(211/I) 12 g Καὶ εἰσῆλθεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἰς τὸ ἱερὸν τοῦ Θεοῦ, καὶ ἐξέβαλε πάντας τοὺς πωλοῦντας καὶ ἀγοράζοντας ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ, καὶ τὰς τραπέζας τῶν κολλυβιστῶν κατέστρεψε, καὶ τὰς καθέδρας τῶν πωλούντων τὰς περιστεράς· 13 h καὶ λέγει αὐτοῖς, Γέγραπται, Ὁ οἶκός μου οἶκος προσευχῆς κληθήσεται, ὑμεῖς δὲ αὐτὸν ἐποιήσατε σπήλαιον λῃστῶν. (212/X) 14 Καὶ προσῆλθον αὐτῷ τυφλοὶ καὶ χωλοὶ ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ, καὶ ἐθεράπευσεν αὐτούς. (213/V) 15 i Ἰδόντες δὲ οἱ ἀρχιερεῖς καὶ οἱ γραμματεῖς τὰ θαυμάσια ἃ ἐποίησε, καὶ τοὺς παῖδας κράζοντας ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ καὶ λέγοντας, Ὡσαννὰ τῷ υἱῷ Δαυΐδ, ἠγανάκτησαν, 16 j καὶ εἶπον αὐτῷ, Ἀκούεις τί οὗτοι λέγουσιν; Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς λέγει αὐτοῖς, Ναί· οὐδέποτε ἀνέγνωτε, Ὅτι ἐκ στόματος νηπίων καὶ θηλαζόντων κατηρτίσω αἶνον;

g Mark 11. 15. Luke 19. 45, &c. John 2. 13. Deut. 14. 25.

h Isa. 56. 7. Jer. 7. 11.

i Luke 19. 47.

j Ps. 8. 3.

— ὄνον, καὶ πῶλον] The conjunction καὶ does not express addition here (Vorst. Hebr. 382), but explanation (epexegesis); and the phrase may be rendered thus:—"He is thy King, but He does not come to thee riding on a horse, but on an ass; and not an ass of full age and size, which might be a noble creature, but even on the foal of an ass." Such is thy Messiah—in His meekness and humility!

7. ἐπέθηκαν—τὰ ἱμάτια] For illustration of this usage, see 2 Kings ix. 13. Grinf. p. 128. Lightfoot, i. p. 977.

— ἐπεκάθισεν ἐπάνω αὐτῶν] On the garments (Theophyl. Euthym.), not (as some have imagined) on the ass and its colt; for He rode only on the foal. (See John xii. 15, and Mark xi. 2. 4. 7.)

This act was typical and prophetical; see Justin Martyr c. Tryphon. 53.

He thus prophesied that the Gentiles would come to Him; for the colt symbolized the Gentile Church, which was unclean before it received Christ, Who sat upon it and sanctified it. (Chrys.) The ass, which had been tamed, was a figure of the Jewish people, which had received the yoke of the law; the foal of the ass on which none had ever sat, was the Gentile world. Christ sent His Apostles to both,—to one the Apostle of the circumcision, to the other the Apostle of the Gentiles. (Jerome.) St. Matthew, who wrote for the Jews, is the only one of the Evangelists who mentions the ass. The Hebrew nation, if it repents, will be saved by faith; and (as the ass follows the colt) it will be converted to Christ, when the fulness of the Gentiles is come into the Spiritual Sion. (Rom. xi. 25.) The Lord hath need of both.

8. ἔκοπτον κλάδους] They imitate the holy offices prescribed for the feast of Tabernacles. Levit. xxiii. 40. Cp. 1 Macc. xiii. 51. 2 Macc. x. 7; and see further on John xii. 13.

9. Ὡσαννὰ] הוֹשִׁיעָה נָּא (Hoshia-na), save now; from Ps. cxviii. 25, 26, which formed part of the great Hillel (i. e. Ps. cxiii.—cxviii.), or song of praise then sung. They acknowledge Him as Jesus (Jehoshua, Jeshua) or Saviour, and as Son of David and King; and as coming in the Name, i. e. with the power of, the Lord, Jehovah.

Perhaps the use of the solemnities of the Feast of Tabernacles on this occasion may have been providentially ordered as an intimation that their God and King was now manifest in the Tabernacle of Human Flesh. (John i. 14. Rev. vii. 15; xxi. 3.) See John vii. 53.

It is observable that our Lord made His triumphal entry into Jerusalem on a Sunday, the Sunday before His Passion. He then showed Himself as King, Saviour, and Conqueror, and rode on the foal of the ass (the type of the Gentile world; see on Mark xi. 2. John xii. 14) into Jerusalem, the city of God. Well might the Psalmist in the Spirit, hearing with the prophetic ear the future Hosannas of his own city at the triumphal entry of his own Son and King (see Ps. cxviii. 24. 26), exclaim, "This is the Day which the Lord hath made (the Lord's Day), we will rejoice and be glad in it." And may not this event be among those that were prophetic of the sanctity, dignity, beauty, and glory of the Christian Sunday?

On the events of the Holy Week, beginning with Palm-Sunday, see Dean Stanhope's Holy Week, and Williams' Holy Week, p. 24, &c.; and Adams, Rev. W., Warnings of Holy Week. See on v. 1.

12. εἰς τὸ ἱερὸν] St. Matthew appropriately proceeds from the triumphant entry to speak of our Lord's visit to the Temple—His Palace—in His own Capital—and thus brings out more clearly the meaning of the Withering of the Fig-tree, typical of the destruction of Jerusalem,—flourishing with the luxuriant foliage of a hypocritical show of Religion in the Services of the Temple, but barren of fruit.

— ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ] The outer court (not the ναὸς or sanctuary) in which the money-changers had erected their booths.

— κολλυβιστῶν] the κερματισταί, 'nummularii;' those who exchanged larger sums into smaller (κόλλυβοι or κέρματα), for the convenience of those who had to pay the half-shekel or Temple-rate (see above, xvii. 24, and Mishna de Siclis, cap. i. col. 7), or to buy doves (see Luke ii. 24. Levit. i. 14; v. 7), or other victims. "Auxerat emporium appropinquans Pascha." (Rosenm.) See further on John ii. 14—16.

— τὰς περιστερὰς] the doves; for oblations.

The Priests sold doves and victims to the people who came to the Temple for sacrifice; and they acted also as money-changers, to change money, in order that the people might buy, and to lend to those who had none. Our Lord overturned the seats (cathedras or chairs) of those who sold doves. The Dove is an emblem of the Holy Spirit. The seat is the place of teaching. He overturns the seats of all who sell the gifts of the Spirit, and who make a traffic of their ministry. He reproves and punishes simony,—that is, the selling of spiritual grace for money. He is ever entering into the Temple of His Father the Church, and casts out from His Church Bishops, Priests, Deacons, and laymen,—both sellers and buyers, who trade in spiritual things; for it is written, Freely ye have received, freely give. Matt. x. 8. (Hilary. Jerome.)

Deacons who do not well dispense the funds of the Church, but grow rich from the poor man's portion, are the money-changers in Christ's Temple, whose tables Christ overthrows. Bishops, who intrust Churches to unfit persons, are they who sell doves,—that is, spiritual grace—whose seats Christ overthrows. (Origen.)

13. σπήλαιον λῃστῶν] 'Speluncam latronum.' The term λῃστὴς, Hebr. פָּרִיץ (paríts), is a general term for a factious and lawless person in word and act.

These words are not only descriptive of the then state of the Temple, but are prophetic of its future desecration by the bands of factious robbers and assassins (λῃσταὶ, σικάριοι), who would occupy the Temple during the siege. It is remarkable that Josephus (Ant. v. 12) uses the word λῃσταὶ when speaking of them. Cp. Surenhus. p. 263.

Your holy House is deserted by Me; it is left for desolation. Comp. the remarkable words of Tacitus, Hist. v. 13, concerning the Temple of Jerusalem at the siege: "Expassæ repentè delubri fores, et audita major humanâ Vox, Excedere Deos."

14. προσῆλθον—τυφλοί] He first as a King purifies His Palace, and then dispenses royal gifts to His people. (Luc. Brug.)

16. οὐδέποτε ἀνέγνωτε—αἶνον] for κατηρτίσω αἶνον, the original (Ps. viii. 2) has יִסַּדְתָּ עֹז (yi-sadta oz), i. e. 'Thou hast found, established, strength.' Our Lord adopts the sense already given by the Jewish Translators, the LXX, as the correct one, as showing that the strength of the weak is in praise; and that the worship of Himself is strength. Cp. Mede, pp. 37—39. 266.

— ἐκ στόματος] From the mouth; for it was not done by their mind; but by divine power giving articulate sounds to lisping tongues; a figure of the Gentile world then stammering in infancy, but soon about to sing with faith. It was also a cheering encouragement to the Apostles. That they might not doubt whether, being illiterate men, they might be enabled to preach, God gives eloquence to babes. Remark the contrast. Infants sing praise to Christ, like k Mark 11. 13, &c.

(214/VI) 17 καὶ καταλιπὼν αὐτοὺς ἐξῆλθεν ἔξω τῆς πόλεως εἰς Βηθανίαν, καὶ ηὐλίσθη ἐκεῖ.

18 [k] Πρωΐας δὲ ἐπανάγων εἰς τὴν πόλιν, ἐπείνασε· 19 καὶ ἰδὼν συκῆν μίαν ἐπὶ τῆς ὁδοῦ, ἦλθεν ἐπ' αὐτὴν, καὶ οὐδὲν εὗρεν ἐν αὐτῇ, εἰ μὴ φύλλα μόνον· καὶ λέγει αὐτῇ, Μηκέτι ἐκ σοῦ καρπὸς γένηται εἰς τὸν αἰῶνα· καὶ ἐξηράνθη παραχρῆμα ἡ συκῆ. 20 Καὶ ἰδόντες οἱ μαθηταὶ ἐθαύμασαν λέγοντες, Πῶς παραχρῆμα ἐξηράνθη ἡ συκῆ· (215/VI) 21 Ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ἐὰν ἔχητε πίστιν καὶ μὴ διακριθῆτε, οὐ μόνον τὸ τῆς συκῆς ποιήσετε, ἀλλὰ κἂν τῷ ὄρει τούτῳ εἴπητε, Ἄρθητι καὶ βλήθητι εἰς τὴν θάλασσαν, γενήσεται· (216/IV) 22 [l] καὶ πάντα ὅσα ἂν αἰτήσητε ἐν τῇ προσευχῇ πιστεύοντες, λήψεσθε.

l ch. 7. 7. Mark 11. 22. Luke 11. 9. John 15. 7. 1 John 3. 22. & 5. 14.

(217/II) 23 [m] Καὶ ἐλθόντι αὐτῷ εἰς τὸ ἱερὸν, προσῆλθον· αὐτῷ διδάσκοντι οἱ ἀρχιερεῖς καὶ οἱ πρεσβύτεροι τοῦ λαοῦ, λέγοντες, Ἐν ποίᾳ ἐξουσίᾳ ταῦτα ποιεῖς; καὶ τίς σοι ἔδωκε τὴν ἐξουσίαν ταύτην; 24 Ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Ἐρωτήσω ὑμᾶς κἀγὼ λόγον ἕνα· ὃν ἐὰν εἴπητέ μοι, κἀγὼ ὑμῖν ἐρῶ ἐν ποίᾳ ἐξουσίᾳ ταῦτα ποιῶ· 25 τὸ βάπτισμα Ἰωάννου πόθεν ἦν; ἐξ οὐρανοῦ, ἢ ἐξ ἀνθρώπων; Οἱ δὲ διελογίζοντο παρ' ἑαυτοῖς, λέγοντες, [n] Ἐὰν εἴπωμεν, ἐξ οὐρανοῦ, ἐρεῖ ἡμῖν, Διατί οὖν οὐκ ἐπιστεύσατε αὐτῷ; 26 ἐὰν δὲ εἴπωμεν, ἐξ ἀνθρώπων,—φοβούμεθα τὸν ὄχλον, πάντες γὰρ ἔχουσι τὸν Ἰωάννην ὡς προφήτην. 27 Καὶ ἀποκριθέντες τῷ Ἰησοῦ εἶπον, Οὐκ οἴδαμεν. Ἔφη αὐτοῖς καὶ αὐτός, Οὐδὲ ἐγὼ λέγω ὑμῖν ἐν ποίᾳ ἐξουσίᾳ ταῦτα ποιῶ. (218/X) 28 Τί δὲ ὑμῖν δοκεῖ; Ἄνθρωπος εἶχε τέκνα δύο· καὶ προσελθὼν τῷ πρώτῳ, εἶπε, Τέκνον, ὕπαγε σήμερον ἐργάζου ἐν τῷ ἀμπελῶνί μου. 29 Ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς

m Mark 11. 27, &c. Luke 20. 1, &c.

n ch. 14. 5. Mark 6. 20. Luke 20. 6.

---

the Angels in heaven; and men reject Him. Christ is the Author of nature. He makes children speak wisdom in harmony with prophecy, while wise men become fools. (Chrys.) Holiness makes babes into men; and sin makes men into babes. Some reckon the Raising of Lazarus, or the giving of sight to one born blind, or the Transfiguration, as the greatest of our Lord's Miracles. But it seems to me that nothing was more marvellous than this. One man, then so despised in their eyes, that He was afterwards delivered to be crucified, did what He now does, while the Rulers rage against Him and see their gains destroyed. He ejects a multitude and overturns their tables and their seats, and does what a large force could hardly have done. Certainly a flame of fire and starry brightness flashed from His eyes, and the Majesty of the Godhead shone in His face. (Jerome.)

17. ἐξῆλθεν—Βηθανίαν] See on xxvi. 6. "Ex urbe autem Jesus discessit, ut omnem affectati regni terreni suspicionem à se amoveret. Præclarè ad h. l. notavit Michaëlis, templum munitissimum, et coacervatam fuisse in eo infinitam pecuniæ atque frumenti copiam, adeo ut qui templum, arcem urbis, occupasset, in ipsâ quoque urbe dominaretur. Jesum ergo, quem tam insignis multitudo hominum rerum novarum cupidissimorum, eumque Messiam agnoscentium, in templum comitata esset, si voluisset regnum terrenum affectare, opportunissimam tunc temporis occasionem nactum fuisse, seditionem movendi, præsertim cùm plus quàm decies centena millia, tempore festi Paschatos, Hierosolymis commorarentur; eum verò hâc occasione non usum esse, sed è templo, et ipsâ urbe, discessisse." (Kuin.) He went to Bethany. In the great city of Jerusalem—His own Metropolis—the King of the Jews and of Heaven itself has not where to lay His head, but He goes out to a small village in the suburbs for a lodging.

18, 19. συκῆν—ἐξηράνθη] A Parable and Prophecy in action. "Quod exsecrationem ipsam et consilium Christi ficum exsecrantis attinet, monent interpp. voluisse Jesum, qui per signa et symbola suam doctrinam adumbrare solebat, actione symbolicâ (cujusmodi actiones Orientalibus frequentes sunt, Ies. xx. 2 sqq.) depingere imminens Judæorum exitium, quòd pietatis fructus ferre noluissent, coll. Luc. xiii. 6 sqq. et ad hoc præsignificandum eum elegisse arborem in Judæa vilissimam, nulli propriam, in viâ publicâ stantem, quæ neque fructus ferret, neque promitteret; et parabolam Luc. l. l. notatam, discipulos consilium Christi ficum exsecrantis edocuisse." (Kuin.) See also below, notes on Mark xi. 13.

Our Lord withers a fig-tree, the most succulent of trees, in its full luxuriance of leaf, and near the public road, and thus the miracle was more striking. He here manifests His punitive power in order that the disciples may learn that He is able to wither the Jews who crucify Him. But He would not show this punitive power on any rational creature. The Evangelist St. Mark (xi. 13) says it was not yet the time for figs. But the Jewish people was here represented, and it was the time to look for the fruit of faith there. (Cp. St. Chrys.)

We here see a proof of our Lord's goodness. When He exercised His Mercy in His Miracles He did it on the bodies of men, but when He displayed the severity of His future judgment, it was done upon a Tree, in order that the danger of unbelief might be shown without damage to those whom He had come to redeem. (Hilary.) Trees were made for men; they have no volition, and therefore cannot sin, and have no feeling of punishment. And this barren fig-tree, withered by Christ's word, bears fruit for ever in the garden of Holy Scripture by the warning it gives against hypocritical ostentation and luxuriant unfruitfulness.

He was an hungered—showing His humanity, and that He yearned for the salvation of believers, and was grieved for the unbelief of Jerusalem. In the Fig-tree we see the Jewish Nation, standing near the Way—for it was planted by the Wayside of God's Law—and He came to it and found on it nothing but leaves, the rustling leaves of religious profession, the barren traditions of the Pharisees, the ostentatious display of the Law, and vain exuberance of words without the good fruit of works. He says to it, 'Let no man eat fruit of thee for ever.' And it was withered, because it had not the fruit for which Christ hungered. Our Lord was going to His crucifixion, and He therefore confirmed the minds of His disciples by this assurance of His power. If He had so willed He could have withered His enemies, who were about to crucify Him, but He waited for their salvation by Repentance.

19. μίαν] And so more conspicuous; and there was but one Jerusalem (of which the tree was a type) in the whole world. Single in favour,—and in sin.

— εἰ μὴ φύλλα μόνον] The leaves proved that it had received the sap of divine grace, enabling it, morally speaking, to bear fruit also; and so its own foliage condemned it for barrenness of fruit.

— μηκέτι] He hungers as Man, and withers the tree as God. Whenever He gives signs of Human infirmity, some proof of His Divine Power is always near.

21. ἐὰν ἔχητε πίστιν] The leafy and barren fig-tree, which looked so fair and flourishing, was withered by the breath of Christ, in order to teach the Apostles to have faith in Him; and to assure them that, although He Himself was now about, as it were, to be withered by the blighting scorn and scorching rage of the Jewish Nation, now seeming to flourish in prosperity and power, yet He could blast it in a moment, and would wither it if it did not bring forth fruits of Repentance. Let not therefore the Disciples of Christ faint; let them not be cast down by the temporary triumph of evil over good, but,—have faith in God. See further on Mark xi. 20—23.

— τῷ ὄρει τούτῳ] of Olives, far from the Sea. Cp. Zech. xiv. 4. Rev. vi. 14; viii. 8.

The moving of mountains, i. e. of impediments and difficulties, is characteristic of Faith. See 1 Cor. xiii. 2. Job ix. 5.

24. ἵνα] Not more—one will suffice—though you have assailed Me often.

28. ἄνθρωπος εἶχε τέκνα δύο] In this and the next Parable our Lord connects the reception of the Gentiles with the rejection of the Jews.

εἶπεν, Οὐ θέλω· ὕστερον δὲ μεταμεληθεὶς, ἀπῆλθε. 30 Καὶ προσελθὼν τῷ ἑτέρῳ εἶπεν ὡσαύτως. Ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν, ° Ἐγὼ, κύριε· καὶ οὐκ ἀπῆλθε. 31 Τίς ἐκ τῶν δύο ἐποίησε τὸ θέλημα τοῦ πατρός; Λέγουσιν αὐτῷ, Ὁ πρῶτος. Λέγει αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι οἱ τελῶναι καὶ αἱ πόρναι προάγουσιν ὑμᾶς εἰς τὴν βασιλείαν τοῦ Θεοῦ· 32 P ἦλθε γὰρ πρὸς ὑμᾶς Ἰωάννης ἐν ὁδῷ δικαιοσύνης, καὶ οὐκ ἐπιστεύσατε αὐτῷ· οἱ δὲ τελῶναι καὶ αἱ πόρναι ἐπίστευσαν αὐτῷ· ὑμεῖς δὲ ἰδόντες οὐ μετεμελήθητε ὕστερον, τοῦ πιστεῦσαι αὐτῷ.

(219/II) 33 q Ἄλλην παραβολὴν ἀκούσατε· Ἄνθρωπος ἦν οἰκοδεσπότης, ὅστις ἐφύτευσεν ἀμπελῶνα, καὶ φραγμὸν αὐτῷ περιέθηκε, καὶ ὤρυξεν ἐν αὐτῷ ληνὸν, καὶ ᾠκοδόμησε πύργον, καὶ ἐξέδοτο αὐτὸν γεωργοῖς, καὶ ἀπεδήμησεν. 34 Ὅτε δὲ ἤγγισεν ὁ καιρὸς τῶν καρπῶν, ἀπέστειλε τοὺς δούλους αὐτοῦ πρὸς τοὺς γεωργοὺς, λαβεῖν τοὺς καρποὺς αὐτοῦ. 35 Καὶ λαβόντες οἱ γεωργοὶ τοὺς δούλους αὐτοῦ, ὃν μὲν ἔδειραν, ὃν δὲ ἀπέκτειναν, ὃν δὲ ἐλιθοβόλησαν. 36 Πάλιν ἀπέστειλεν ἄλλους δούλους πλείονας τῶν πρώτων· καὶ ἐποίησαν αὐτοῖς ὡσαύτως. 37 Ὕστερον δὲ ἀπέστειλε πρὸς αὐτοὺς τὸν υἱὸν αὐτοῦ, λέγων, Ἐντραπήσονται τὸν υἱόν μου. 38 r Οἱ δὲ γεωργοὶ, ἰδόντες τὸν υἱὸν, εἶπον ἐν ἑαυτοῖς, Οὗτός ἐστιν ὁ κληρονόμος· δεῦτε, ἀποκτείνωμεν αὐτὸν, καὶ κατάσχωμεν τὴν κληρονομίαν αὐτοῦ. 39 Καὶ λαβόντες αὐτὸν ἐξέβαλον ἔξω τοῦ ἀμπελῶνος, καὶ ἀπέκτειναν. 40 Ὅταν οὖν ἔλθῃ ὁ κύριος τοῦ ἀμπελῶνος, τί ποιήσει τοῖς γεωργοῖς ἐκείνοις; 41 Λέγουσιν αὐτῷ, Κακοὺς κακῶς ἀπολέσει αὐτοὺς, καὶ τὸν ἀμπελῶνα ἐκδώσεται ἄλλοις γεωργοῖς, οἵτινες ἀποδώσουσιν αὐτῷ τοὺς καρποὺς ἐν τοῖς καιροῖς αὐτῶν. 42 s Λέγει αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Οὐδέποτε ἀνέγνωτε ἐν ταῖς γραφαῖς; Λίθον ὃν ἀπεδοκίμασαν οἱ οἰκοδομοῦντες, οὗτος ἐγενήθη εἰς κεφαλὴν γωνίας· παρὰ Κυρίου ἐγένετο αὕτη, καὶ ἔστι θαυμαστὴ ἐν ὀφθαλμοῖς ἡμῶν. 43 Διὰ τοῦτο λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι ἀρθήσεται ἀφ' ὑμῶν ἡ βασιλεία τοῦ Θεοῦ, καὶ δοθήσεται ἔθνει ποιοῦντι τοὺς καρποὺς αὐτῆς. 44 t Καὶ ὁ πεσὼν ἐπὶ τὸν λίθον τοῦτον, συνθλασθήσεται· ἐφ' ὃν δ' ἂν o Luke 7. 29, 30.

p Luke 3. 11, 13.

q Mark 12. 1. Luke 20. 9. Isa. 5. 1. Jer. 2. 21. Ps. 80. 9. Cant. 8. 11, 12.

r ch. 26. 3. & 27. 1. John 11. 53.

s Ps. 118. 22. Isa. 28. 16. Mark 12. 10. Luke 20. 17. Acts 4. 11. Rom. 9. 33. 1 Pet. 2. 7.

t Isa. 8. 15. Dan. 2. 34, 35. Luke 20. 18, 19.

---

30. τῷ ἑτέρῳ] So Tisch. and others on good MSS. authority for δευτέρῳ

31. ὁ πρῶτος] So the most and best MSS. and Versions, among which the old Syriac Curetun. And notwithstanding the ingenious observations of Tregelles (pp. 106—108), this reading cannot, I think, be set aside for ὁ ὕστερος, or ὁ δεύτερος, or ὁ ἔσχατος, which probably arose from a transposition of the paragraphs (v. 29), ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς—μεταμεληθεὶς ἀπῆλθεν, and (v. 30) ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς—οὐκ ἀπῆλθεν, a transposition which was very likely to occur, because both clauses begin and end with the same words. Besides, it might be thought reasonable by some that the invitation should be made first to those who represented the Pharisees. Hence another occasion for transposition.

— προάγουσιν ὑμᾶς] Show you the way.

32. ὁδῷ] דֶּרֶךְ (dherech), way, track, doctrine. Hence ἡ ὁδὸς, the way κατ' ἐξοχήν, the Gospel (Acts xix. 23).

33. ἀμπελῶνα] See above, xx. 1. Cp. Isa. v. 1—7. Ps. lxxx. 8—15.

34. τοὺς δούλους] The Prophets. (See Luke xiii. 34.) Servants —whom they beat as Jeremiah, or killed as Isaiah, or stoned as Naboth and Zechariah, whom they killed between the porch and the altar. Read the Epistle of St. Paul to the Hebrews and see what the servants suffered (Heb. xi.). (Jerome.)

— καρπούς] as rent. See Luke xvi. 5.

39. ἔξω τοῦ ἀμπελῶνος] A prophecy that He would suffer without the gate (Heb. xiii. 12).

42. λίθον] This quotation finds a very appropriate place here, being from the same Psalm (cxviii. 22) as the language of Hosanna, which had just been addressed to Christ. (See above, v. 9.) He then passes to another prophetical image concerning Himself represented as a Stone.

— εἰς κεφαλὴν γωνίας] This expression is synonymous with ἀκρογωνιαῖος, scil. λίθος, in Eph. ii. 20, and 1 Pet. ii. 6 (occurring also in Barnab. Epist. c. vi.), there quoted from Isa. xxviii. 16, where the Hebr. is אבן פנה, to which the Hebr. ראש פנה, corresponding to κεφ. γωνίας here is tantamount, since ראש there refers to the head-point, or angle, where two walls meet. Now a stone so placed may serve to bind the two walls, with which it is united, together; and hence the metaphor is highly suitable, since Christ is here represented as uniting Jews and Gentiles in Himself, so as to form one Body,—the Church of the faithful,—ἐν ᾧ πᾶσα ἡ οἰκοδομὴ συναρμολογουμένη αὔξει εἰς ναὸν ἅγιον ἐν Κυρίῳ, Eph. ii. 21. This view is confirmed by Euthym., who (after Chrys. and other ancient Fathers) explains: καθάπερ ἐκεῖνος (ὁ λίθος) ἐφ' ἑαυτῷ συνδεῖ τοίχους δύο, τὸν αὐτὸν τρόπον καὶ ὁ Χριστὸς ἐφ' ἑαυτῷ συνδεσμεῖ τοὺς δύο λαοὺς (Jews and Gentiles) καὶ συνενοῖ διὰ τῆς εἰς αὐτὸν πίστεως. The same view is expressed in nearly the same words by Theophylact. So also Origen ap. Catenam in Matt., Oxon., p. 176 (ed. Cramer): γωνία ἐστὶ συγκρότησις δύο τοίχων τὸ ἐξ Ἰσραὴλ λῆμμα (read λεῖμμα, and comp. Rom. xi. 5) καὶ τῶν ἐθνῶν πλήρωμα, εἰς ἓν συγκροτῶν ὁ λίθος Χριστὸς τὴν γωνίαν ποιήσας. (Bloomf.)

The head of the Corner. Christ is become the Corner stone, that He may join the two Walls of the two Peoples (Jews and Gentiles) in Himself. See Isa. xxviii. 16. 1 Pet. ii. 6. (Jerome.)

— αὕτη] A Hebraism, זאת (zoth), hæc, derived through the LXX (Ps. cxviii. 22). The feminine refers to the whole subject, not (as Meyer[1]) to γωνία or κεφαλή. Cp. John xvii. 3; and see Vorst. de Hebr. pp. 282—287; and Kuin.: "Hebræi fœminino sæpius ponere solent pro neutro, et hanc loquendi rationem secuti sunt quoque interpp. Alexandrini. 1 Sam. iv. 7, pro זֹאת, est τοιαύτη pro τοιοῦτο· ib. xi. 2, pro זֹאת, ἐν ταύτῃ· Judd. xix. 30, זֹאת, ὡς αὕτη· Gen. xxiv. 14, pro זֶה, ἐν τούτῳ· Ps. xxvii. 4, μίαν ᾐτησάμην παρὰ Κυρίου, ταύτην ἐκζητήσω· Hebr. זֹאת et זֶה."

44. ὁ πεσών] The unbeliever stumbles at Christ, and is shattered to pieces; and the Stone will crush him and winnow him like chaff by its judicial power at the Great Day.

— τὸν λίθον τοῦτον] i. e. Myself. (See above on xvi. 18.) He refers here also to the same prophecy of Daniel (as in the words ταύτῃ τῇ πέτρᾳ); and it is observable that in the translation of Dan. ii. 44 by Theodotion, the same word is used as here—λικμήσει —will become like a fan and winnow him away like chaff. The λίθος or stone cut out without hands (Dan. ii. 34—44), λιτυνεῖ καὶ λικμήσει πάσας τὰς βασιλείας. Cp. v. 35 in LXX, where the other kingdoms are described as so pulverized by the Stone, that they become λεπτότερα ἀχύρου ἐν ἅλωνι, i. e. λικμώμενα.

Cp. Matt. iii. 12, οὗ τὸ πτύον ἐ. τ. χειρὶ αὐτοῦ.

---

[1] In the 17th and 18th centuries there was a School of Interpreters, who found Hebraisms every where in the N. T. Now there is an error in the other extreme, which sees them no where. The truth seems to lie between the two. It was easy for Hebraisms to pass through the LXX Version, from the Old Testament into the New, as here.

πέσῃ, λικμήσει αὐτόν. (220/I) 45 Καὶ ἀκούσαντες οἱ ἀρχιερεῖς καὶ οἱ Φαρισαῖοι u Mark 12. 12. τὰς παραβολὰς αὐτοῦ, ἔγνωσαν ὅτι περὶ αὐτῶν λέγει· 46 u καὶ ζητοῦντες αὐτὸν κρατῆσαι, ἐφοβήθησαν τοὺς ὄχλους, ἐπειδὴ ὡς προφήτην αὐτὸν εἶχον.

XXII. (221/V) 1 Καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς ὁ Ἰησοῦς πάλιν εἶπεν αὐτοῖς ἐν παραβολαῖς, a Luke 14. 16. Rev. 19. 7—9. 2 Cor. 6. 2. λέγων, 2 a Ὡμοιώθη ἡ βασιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν ἀνθρώπῳ βασιλεῖ, ὅστις ἐποίησε γάμους τῷ υἱῷ αὐτοῦ· 3 καὶ ἀπέστειλε τοὺς δούλους αὐτοῦ καλέσαι τοὺς κεκληb Prov. 9. 2. μένους εἰς τοὺς γάμους· καὶ οὐκ ἤθελον ἐλθεῖν. 4 b Πάλιν ἀπέστειλεν ἄλλους δούλους, λέγων, Εἴπατε τοῖς κεκλημένοις, Ἰδοὺ, τὸ ἄριστόν μου ἡτοίμασα, οἱ ταῦροί μου καὶ τὰ σιτιστὰ τεθυμένα, καὶ πάντα ἕτοιμα· δεῦτε εἰς τοὺς γάμους.
5 Οἱ δὲ ἀμελήσαντες ἀπῆλθον, ὁ μὲν εἰς τὸν ἴδιον ἀγρὸν, ὁ δὲ εἰς τὴν ἐμπορίαν αὐτοῦ. 6 Οἱ δὲ λοιποὶ κρατήσαντες τοὺς δούλους αὐτοῦ ὕβρισαν καὶ ἀπέκτειναν.
7 Καὶ ἀκούσας ὁ βασιλεὺς ὠργίσθη· καὶ πέμψας τὰ στρατεύματα αὐτοῦ, ἀπώλεσε τοὺς φονεῖς ἐκείνους, καὶ τὴν πόλιν αὐτῶν ἐνέπρησε. 8 Τότε λέγει τοῖς δούλοις αὐτοῦ, Ὁ μὲν γάμος ἕτοιμός ἐστιν, οἱ δὲ κεκλημένοι οὐκ ἦσαν ἄξιοι. 9 Πορεύεσθε οὖν ἐπὶ τὰς διεξόδους τῶν ὁδῶν, καὶ ὅσους ἐὰν εὕρητε, καλέσατε εἰς τοὺς γάμους. 10 Καὶ ἐξελθόντες οἱ δοῦλοι ἐκεῖνοι εἰς τὰς ὁδοὺς, συνήγαγον πάντας ὅσους εὗρον, πονηρούς τε καὶ ἀγαθούς· καὶ ἐπλήσθη ὁ c 2 Cor. 5. 3. Ephes. 4. 24. Col. 3. 10, 12. Rev. 3. 4. & 16. 15. & 19. 8. d ch. 8. 12. & 13. 42. ch. 25. 30. γάμος ἀνακειμένων. (222/X) 11 c Εἰσελθὼν δὲ ὁ βασιλεὺς θεάσασθαι τοὺς ἀνακει-μένους, εἶδεν ἐκεῖ ἄνθρωπον οὐκ ἐνδεδυμένον ἔνδυμα γάμου· 12 καὶ λέγει αὐτῷ, Ἑταῖρε, πῶς εἰσῆλθες ὧδε μὴ ἔχων ἔνδυμα γάμου; Ὁ δὲ ἐφιμώθη. 13 d Τότε εἶπεν ὁ βασιλεὺς τοῖς διακόνοις, Δήσαντες αὐτοῦ πόδας καὶ χεῖρας ἄρατε αὐτὸν καὶ ἐκβάλετε εἰς τὸ σκότος τὸ ἐξώτερον· ἐκεῖ ἔσται ὁ κλαυθμὸς καὶ ὁ βρυγμὸς e ch. 20. 16. τῶν ὀδόντων· 14 e πολλοὶ γάρ εἰσι κλητοὶ, ὀλίγοι δὲ ἐκλεκτοί.
f Mark 12. 13, &c. Luke 20. 20, &c. (223/II) 15 f Τότε πορευθέντες οἱ Φαρισαῖοι συμβούλιον ἔλαβον, ὅπως αὐτὸν

CH. XXII. 2. ἐποίησε γάμους] See ix. 15. The word γάμοι had been used by LXX for a Marriage Feast מִשְׁתֶּה (mishteh), from root שָׁתָה (shathah) bibit, Gen. xxix. 22. Esther ii. 18.

On this Parable see Greg. M. Hom. in Ev. xxxviii.

Almighty God has made a Marriage Feast for our Lord Jesus Christ and His Church, which is gathered both from the Jews and Gentiles; and He has sent His servants, Moses and the Prophets, and other servants, the Apostles. His armies are the angels; or the Roman armies, under Vespasian and Titus, sent to destroy Jerusalem. (Jerome.)

10. πονηροὺς καὶ ἀγαθούς] Such is the state of the Visible Church on earth, a mixed company (see xiii. 3. 30), containing good and bad. "Arca in undis diluvii, Ecclesiæ typum gessit; in hâc Ecclesiâ nec mali sine bonis, nec boni sine malis." (Greg. M.)

11. ἔνδυμα γάμου] For ἔνδυμα γαμικόν. On this use of the genitive for an adjective, see Luke xvi. 9, μαμωνᾶς ἀδικίας. James i. 25, ἀκροατὴς ἐπιλησμονῆς. 2 Thess. ii. 3, ἄνθρωπος ἁμαρτίας. Heb. i. 8, ῥάβδος εὐθύτητος. 2 Pet. ii. 1, αἱρέσεις ἀπωλείας. 2 Thess. ii. 9, τέρατα ψεύδους. Matt. xxiv. 15, βδέλυγμα ἐρημώσεως. Cp. on Acts ix. 15, σκεῦος ἐκλογῆς. Acts vii. 2, Θεὸς δόξης. See Vorst. de Hebr. p. 247. Glass. Phil. Sac. p. 260, and 257. 599, and Schroeder. Inst. Hebr. p. 227, "Hebraici amant construere duo substantiva, quorum posterius adjectivi locum teneat." Exod. xxix. 29. 1 Sam. i. 11. Jerem. xii. 10. Humphry on Acts xxvi. 25.

The ἔνδυμα γάμου is a Marriage Robe, which the King had provided for his guests (cp. Zeph. i. 8), as was customary at Eastern audiences and entertainments. See Rosenmüller here, and the passages in Trench on the Parables, pp. 227, 228.

12. πῶς εἰσῆλθες ὧδε μὴ ἔχων ἔνδυμα γάμου;] How camest thou in hither, although thou hast not on an ἔνδυμα γάμου?

What is represented by the wedding garment? Many eminent Expositors say it is some inward affection, faith, or charity. Cp. Aug. Serm. xc. vol. v. pp. 702—706.

But this does not seem to be an adequate reply to the question. The Parable represents the Visible Church on Earth, in which are bad mingled with good (see v. 10). No doubt, all the good will be severed from the bad, when the King comes in to see the guests, i. e. at the Last Day. And this process of severance had been described by our Lord in many other Parables, viz. the Wheat and the Tares, the bad fish and the good fish (see Matt. xiii. 30—48).

But the aim of the present Parable is to represent a particular form of badness, viz. the refusal to wear the wedding garment, provided and appointed by the King for the guests. There were bad and good in the Guest-chamber; and bad as well as good had on the Wedding-garment. Therefore the Wedding-garment cannot represent internal goodness.

A garment is a visible thing; and this garment was provided for all; it was one which all may and must wear, and by which they would be distinguished from all others, as wearing the livery of the King; but which did not of itself make the bad to be good, and yet he who did not wear it was condemned as bad for not wearing it.

It must therefore be some outward mark, something which bad men may have as well as good, but without which, if wantonly and wilfully refused, when proffered by the King, none can hope to be saved.

We may conclude, therefore, that the ἔνδυμα γάμου means the Christian faith as publicly professed, and the Christian Sacraments duly received. Particularly it means Baptism, as the germ of all the means of spiritual grace.

The question, therefore, "Friend, how camest thou in hither not having a wedding garment?" may be understood as specially addressed to those who, bearing the Christian Name, and who, by virtue of certain articles of Christian Belief that they hold, are, so far, members of the Visible Church; yet reject the visible signs and means of spiritual grace, provided for, and prescribed to, all by the Great King, viz. the holy Sacraments.

And, considering the title the Quakers have taken for themselves, that of "Friends," may we not be allowed to say that this question has a solemn and awful sense in reference to them, "Friend, how camest thou in hither, not having a wedding garment?"

The white Marriage-Garment provided in the ancient Church [1] to be worn in Baptism, when the soul is espoused to Christ, may be referred to as illustrative of this interpretation. And so this parable is applied to the Baptismal Robe kept pure and unsullied, or if sullied by sin, washed by penitential tears and in the Blood of Christ, by Clemens R. ii. 6, ἐὰν μὴ τηρήσωμεν τὸ βάπτισμα ἀγνὸν καὶ ἀμίαντον ποίᾳ πεποιθήσει εἰσελευσόμεθα εἰς τὸ βασίλειον τοῦ Θεοῦ; and St. Cyril (Hieros. p. 3 and p. 39, and p. 12), who calls Baptism ἔνδυμα φωτεινόν. Cp. St. Paul ad Galat. iii. 27.

14. πολλοὶ γάρ εἰσι κλητοί] Christ commands to baptize all Nations (Matt. xxviii. 19). And He says, "Drink ye all of this" (Matt. xxvi. 27). He proffers the Marriage-Garment to all, and yet how many refuse it, and prefer their own clothes!

Besides, even of those who have the Wedding-Garment, some are described as πονηροί. Therefore ὀλίγοι ἐκλεκτοί. The κλητοί, or Ecclesia visibilis, is numerous, but how few are the chosen!

15, 16. Φαρισαῖοι — μετὰ τῶν Ἡρῳδιανῶν] They hated one another: the Pharisees, under pretence of zeal for Jehovah, being eager to rebel against Rome; the Herodians profaning the things of παγιδεύσωσιν ἐν λόγῳ. 16 Καὶ ἀποστέλλουσιν αὐτῷ τοὺς μαθητὰς αὐτῶν, μετὰ τῶν Ἡρωδιανῶν, λέγοντες, Διδάσκαλε, οἴδαμεν ὅτι ἀληθὴς εἶ, καὶ τὴν ὁδὸν τοῦ Θεοῦ ἐν ἀληθείᾳ διδάσκεις, καὶ οὐ μέλει σοι περὶ οὐδενός, οὐ γὰρ βλέπεις εἰς πρόσωπον ἀνθρώπων· 17 εἰπὲ οὖν ἡμῖν, τί σοι δοκεῖ; ἔξεστι δοῦναι κῆνσον Καίσαρι, ἢ οὔ; 18 Γνοὺς δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς τὴν πονηρίαν αὐτῶν, εἶπε, Τί με πειράζετε, ὑποκριταί; 19 ἐπιδείξατέ μοι τὸ νόμισμα τοῦ κήνσου· οἱ δὲ προσήνεγκαν αὐτῷ δηνάριον. 20 Καὶ λέγει αὐτοῖς, Τίνος ἡ εἰκὼν αὕτη καὶ ἡ ἐπιγραφή; 21 [g] Λέγουσιν αὐτῷ, Καίσαρος. Τότε λέγει αὐτοῖς, Ἀπόδοτε οὖν τὰ Καίσαρος Καίσαρι, καὶ τὰ τοῦ Θεοῦ τῷ Θεῷ. 22 Καὶ ἀκούσαντες ἐθαύμασαν· καὶ ἀφέντες αὐτὸν ἀπῆλθον. g Rom. 13. 7.

[1] Especially on Whitsunday, see Bingham XII. iv. Cp. the Chrysom in our own Church, mentioned in K. Edward VI.'s Prayer Books. Bp. Gibson's Codex, Tit. xviii. c. vii.

23 [h] Ἐν ἐκείνῃ τῇ ἡμέρᾳ προσῆλθον αὐτῷ Σαδδουκαῖοι, οἱ λέγοντες μὴ εἶναι ἀνάστασιν, καὶ ἐπηρώτησαν αὐτὸν, 24 λέγοντες, Διδάσκαλε, Μωϋσῆς εἶπεν, Ἐάν τις ἀποθάνῃ μὴ ἔχων τέκνα, ἐπιγαμβρεύσει ὁ ἀδελφὸς αὐτοῦ τὴν γυναῖκα αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἀναστήσει σπέρμα τῷ ἀδελφῷ αὐτοῦ. 25 Ἦσαν δὲ παρ' ἡμῖν ἑπτὰ ἀδελφοί· καὶ ὁ πρῶτος γαμήσας ἐτελεύτησε, καὶ μὴ ἔχων σπέρμα ἀφῆκε τὴν γυναῖκα αὐτοῦ τῷ ἀδελφῷ αὐτοῦ· 26 ὁμοίως καὶ ὁ δεύτερος, καὶ ὁ τρίτος, ἕως τῶν ἑπτά. 27 Ὕστερον δὲ πάντων ἀπέθανε καὶ ἡ γυνή. 28 Ἐν τῇ οὖν ἀναστάσει, τίνος τῶν ἑπτὰ ἔσται γυνή; πάντες γὰρ ἔσχον αὐτήν. 29 Ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Πλανᾶσθε, μὴ εἰδότες τὰς γραφὰς, μηδὲ τὴν δύναμιν τοῦ Θεοῦ· 30 ἐν γὰρ τῇ ἀναστάσει οὔτε γαμοῦσιν, οὔτε ἐκγαμίζονται· ἀλλ' ὡς ἄγγελοι τοῦ Θεοῦ ἐν οὐρανῷ εἰσι. 31 Περὶ δὲ τῆς ἀναστάσεως τῶν νεκρῶν, οὐκ ἀνέγνωτε τὸ ῥηθὲν ὑμῖν ὑπὸ τοῦ Θεοῦ, λέγοντος, 32 [i] Ἐγώ εἰμι ὁ Θεὸς Ἀβραὰμ, καὶ ὁ Θεὸς Ἰσαὰκ, καὶ ὁ Θεὸς Ἰακώβ; οὐκ ἔστιν ὁ Θεὸς Θεὸς νεκρῶν, h Mark 12. 18, &c. Luke 20. 27, &c. Acts 23. 8.

i Exod. 3. 6, 16. Mark 12. 26. Luke 20. 37. Acts 7. 32. Heb. 11. 16.

God, under plea of loyalty to Herod and to Rome; but they conspired together against Christ, who confounded them both by the force of Truth.

Observe Herodiani, a Latin termination, showing connexion with the Gentile world. So Christiani, a word first heard in a Gentile city (Acts xi. 26).

17. ἔξεστι] A dilemma. If He says No, the Herodians will accuse Him as a rebel against Cæsar. If Yes, the Pharisees will condemn Him as a traitor to God, whose Prophet and Son He professes to be. But see how He turns the horns of the dilemma against them both!

— κῆνσον] 'censum;' ἐπικεφάλαιον, a poll-tax. (Hesych.) — Καίσαρι] i. e. Tiberio.

19. νόμισμα τοῦ κήνσου] The money in which the Tax is to be paid. Not a Jewish shekel but a Roman coin; a Denarius having Cæsar's image; sometimes combined with heathen emblems, and showing that you are under his rule. "Ubicunque numisma regis alicujus obtinet" (says a Jewish writer, Maimonid. in Gezelah. v. 18), "illic incolæ regem istum pro domino agnoscunt."

20. τίνος ἡ εἰκών] He answers them by what they had in their hands, and with which they transacted their daily affairs—the current coin of the country—proving by its currency the subjection of their country to him whose coin it is.

21. ἀπόδοτε] They had talked of giving tribute to Cæsar, as if tribute was a boon! He corrects them by prefixing a preposition, ἀπό,—He does not say, δότε, but ἀπό-δοτε,—not date, but reddite. Tribute is not a gift, but a due. Render, therefore, tribute of your coin to Cæsar; and tribute of yourselves,—coined in the Divine Mint, and stamped with the Divine Image and Superscription (Gen. i. 26. 27; ix. 6. 1 Cor. xi. 7) to Cæsar's God. Tertullian says (de Idol. xv.), "Reddite imaginem Cæsari quæ in nummo est, et imaginem Dei Deo quæ in homine est." Cp. Aug. in Joann. Tract. xl. 9, and xli. 2; and Bp. Andrewes, "On giving Cæsar his Due," v. p. 127—140.

The Pharisees had sent their disciples with the Herodians preparing for Him a double snare, that if He answered according to the opinion of the Herodians, the disciples of the Pharisees might accuse Him; but if He replied in their favour, then the Herodians might arraign Him. But He, as God, knew their thoughts, and, as His custom was, replied to them out of their own mouths. He does not say, "Give to Cæsar, but render, as a due." And lest they should allege that He subjected them to man, He adds, "And render the things of God to God." So St. Paul (Rom. xiii. 7), "Render unto all their dues."—And when you hear that you are to render the things of Cæsar to Cæsar, you are to understand that our Lord means you are to render those things which are not prejudicial to holiness; for the surrender of any thing that is sacred is not Cæsar's tribute, but Satan's. (Chrys.)

Render to Cæsar.—Then Tiberius, under whom our Lord was crucified.—Render to Cæsar his due, tribute, custom; and to God His own,—namely, tithes and offerings. (Jerome.)

22. ἀπῆλθον] And yet they could afterwards accuse Him of forbidding to give tribute to Cæsar! See Luke xxiii. 2.

24. Μωϋσῆς εἶπεν] The reference is to Deut. xxv. 5, of which the substance is here given, not the exact words.

This method of quoting, common among the Jews, deserves attention, as showing that our Blessed Lord, and His Apostles and Evangelists, followed the practice usual among the Jews in citing Holy Scripture, and in giving the sense sometimes in an enlarged, sometimes in a compendious form, rather than the exact words. See Surenhus., and above on Matt. ii. 23.

29—32. μὴ εἰδότες τὰς γραφὰς] See Iren. iv. 5. 2, who thence argues against the Gnostics, that the God of the Old Testament is the same as He Whom Christ reveals as His Father in the New. Cp. Beveridge and Bourne on Art. vii.

32. ἐγώ εἰμι] I am the God of Abraham, who is dead; but since I am His God, and since all live in Me, therefore he will rise again.

God calls Himself the God of Abraham; and Abraham consists of body and soul; so that Abraham's body must rise again in order that God's promise may be true. (Theophyl. in Marc. xii.)

He proves also that Abraham's soul is still alive; for God calls Himself his God, and He is the God of the living, and so is inferred the resurrection of the body, which, together with the soul, had done good or evil. (Jerome.)

The Eternal "I AM" calls Himself their God, therefore they will exist for ever. (Cp. Hilary, Origen.)

God after their death desiring still to be called their God thereby acknowledgeth that He had a blessing and reward for them still, and consequently that He will raise them to another life in which they may receive it. Bp. Pearson on the Creed, Art. xi. p. 702—712.

"Nam non existenti beneficia tribui non possunt. (Rosenm.)

In this question the Sadducees were not content with putting a case of three or four husbands, they speak of seven, in order to throw ridicule on the doctrine of the Resurrection. Since they plead Moses and the Law, He shows that their question proceeds from ignorance of Scripture. It is not wonderful that through ignorance of Me you should tempt Me, since your question proves that you know not God's power nor Word. If you knew God, you would know that nothing is impossible with Him. And then He shews them from Scripture that they who are departed are still alive; for God says, I am (not I was) the God of Abraham, Isaac, and of Jacob; I am the God of them yet living. And He describes the manner of the Resurrection,—they do not marry nor are given in marriage, but are as the angels of God in heaven. Being as the angels they do not marry. The fashion of this world passeth away. 1 Cor. vii. 31. (Chrys.)

Our Lord chose this testimony from the Pentateuch to refute the Sadducees, who received only the five books of Moses. (Jerome.)

k ch. 7. 28.

ἀλλὰ ζώντων. 33 [k] Καὶ ἀκούσαντες οἱ ὄχλοι ἐξεπλήσσοντο ἐπὶ τῇ διδαχῇ αὐτοῦ.

l Mark 12. 28. Luke 10. 25.

(224/VI) 34 [l] Οἱ δὲ Φαρισαῖοι ἀκούσαντες ὅτι ἐφίμωσε τοὺς Σαδδουκαίους, συνήχθησαν ἐπὶ τὸ αὐτό, 35 καὶ ἐπηρώτησεν εἷς ἐξ αὐτῶν, νομικὸς, πειράζων αὐτὸν καὶ λέγων, 36 Διδάσκαλε, ποία ἐντολὴ μεγάλη ἐν τῷ νόμῳ; 37 [m] Ἔφη αὐτῷ Ἰησοῦς, Ἀγαπήσεις Κύριον τὸν Θεόν σου, ἐν ὅλῃ τῇ καρδίᾳ σου, καὶ ἐν ὅλῃ τῇ ψυχῇ σου, καὶ ἐν ὅλῃ τῇ διανοίᾳ σου. 38 Αὕτη ἐστὶν ἡ μεγάλη καὶ πρώτη ἐντολή. 39 [n] Δευτέρα δὲ ὁμοία αὐτῇ, Ἀγαπήσεις τὸν πλησίον σου ὡς σεαυτόν. 40 [o] Ἐν ταύταις ταῖς δυσὶν ἐντολαῖς ὅλος ὁ νόμος κρέμαται καὶ οἱ προφῆται.

m Deut. 6. 5. Luke 10. 27.

n Lev. 19. 18. Mark 12. 31. Luke 10. 27. Rom. 13. 9. Gal. 5. 14. 1 Tim. 1. 5. James 2. 8.

o ch. 7. 12.

(225/VI) 41 [p] Συνηγμένων δὲ τῶν Φαρισαίων, ἐπηρώτησεν αὐτοὺς ὁ Ἰησοῦς 42 λέγων, Τί ὑμῖν δοκεῖ περὶ τοῦ Χριστοῦ; τίνος υἱός ἐστι; λέγουσιν αὐτῷ, Τοῦ Δαυΐδ. 43 Λέγει αὐτοῖς, Πῶς οὖν Δαυὶδ ἐν πνεύματι Κύριον αὐτὸν καλεῖ λέγων, 44 [q] Εἶπεν ὁ Κύριος τῷ Κυρίῳ μου, Κάθου ἐκ δεξιῶν μου, ἕως ἂν θῶ τοὺς ἐχθρούς σου ὑποπόδιον τῶν ποδῶν σου; 45 Εἰ οὖν Δαυὶδ καλεῖ αὐτὸν Κύριον, πῶς υἱὸς αὐτοῦ ἐστι; (226/II) 46 Καὶ οὐδεὶς ἐδύνατο αὐτῷ ἀποκριθῆναι λόγον· οὐδὲ ἐτόλμησέ τις ἀπ' ἐκείνης τῆς ἡμέρας ἐπερωτῆσαι αὐτὸν οὐκέτι.

p Mark 12. 35, &c. Luke 20. 41, &c.

q Ps. 110. 1. Acts 1. 16. & 2. 34. 1 Cor. 15. 25. Heb. 1. 13. & 10. 12, 13.

XXIII. (227/X) 1 Τότε ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἐλάλησε τοῖς ὄχλοις καὶ τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ 2 λέγων, Ἐπὶ τῆς Μωϋσέως καθέδρας ἐκάθισαν οἱ Γραμματεῖς καὶ οἱ Φαρισαῖοι· 3 πάντα οὖν ὅσα ἐὰν εἴπωσιν ὑμῖν τηρεῖν, τηρεῖτε καὶ ποιεῖτε· κατὰ δὲ τὰ ἔργα αὐτῶν μὴ ποιεῖτε, λέγουσι γὰρ καὶ οὐ ποιοῦσι· (228/V) 4 [a] δεσμεύουσι γὰρ φορτία βαρέα καὶ δυσβάστακτα, καὶ ἐπιτιθέασιν ἐπὶ τοὺς ὤμους τῶν ἀνθρώπων· τῷ δὲ δακτύλῳ αὐτῶν οὐ θέλουσι κινῆσαι αὐτά. (229/II) 5 [b] Πάντα δὲ τὰ ἔργα αὐτῶν ποιοῦσι πρὸς τὸ θεαθῆναι τοῖς ἀνθρώποις· πλατύνουσι δὲ τὰ φυλακτήρια αὐτῶν, καὶ μεγαλύνουσι τὰ κράσπεδα τῶν ἱματίων αὐτῶν· 6 [c] φιλοῦσί τε τὴν πρωτοκλισίαν ἐν τοῖς δείπνοις, καὶ τὰς πρωτοκαθεδρίας ἐν ταῖς συναγωγαῖς, 7 καὶ a Luke 11. 46. Acts 15. 10. Rom. 2. 21—23. Gal. 6. 13.

b ch. 6. 1, 2, 5, 16. Numb. 15. 38. Deut. 6. 8. & 22. 12.

c Mark 12. 38. Luke 11. 43. & 20. 46. 3 John 9.

---

35. νομικός] The only passage in St. Matthew where the word occurs. He is called γραμματεὺς by St. Mark, xii. 28.

36. ποία ἐντολὴ μεγάλη] μεγάλη, specially so. (Heb. x. 21; xiii. 20.) Glass. Phil. Sacr., p. 274. Hence Mark xii. 28 has πρώτη.

The question of the Lawyer is conceived in the spirit of the same Jewish Doctors who taught that if a man was careful to keep some "one great precept," he might disregard the rest; see James ii. 10, where the Apostle teaches that if a man wilfully and habitually allows himself in the breach of any one commandment, he is guilty of all.

The offering of sacrifice was by many regarded as the paramount duty, as being placed first in Leviticus. (See Bede on Mark xii.) On this was founded the Gloss of the Corban (see above, xv. 5); and to this our Lord replies, v. 37. 39, from Deut. vi. 5, and approves the opinion of the scribe, Mark xii. 33, τὸ ἀγαπᾶν κ.τ.λ. πλεῖόν ἐστι πάντων τῶν ὁλοκαυμάτων καὶ τῶν θυσιῶν,—more than all the burnt-offerings and the sacrifices prescribed, as I well know, in the Law.

37. ἔφη αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς] So E, F, G, H, K, M, S, V, and others, not ὁ δὲ Ἰ. εἶπεν αὐτῷ.

38. αὕτη ἐστὶν ἡ μεγ. κ. πρώ.] So B, D, L, Z, and other MSS. and ancient Versions, among which the Syriac Cureton; and this appears to be preferable to the reading αὕτη ἐστὶ πρώτη καὶ μεγάλη.

40. ὅλος ὁ νόμος κρίμαται κ. οἱ προφῆται] All the Scripture hangs. On νόμ. κ. πρ., as equivalent to the whole Scripture, see vii. 12; xi. 13. κρίμαται in sing. and after νόμος, the reading of B, D, L, Z, Vulg., Syr. Cureton, &c., seems preferable to the other reading κρίμανται at the end of the sentence. The Lawyer had asked what was the great commandment in the Law. Our Lord recites the commandment on which hangs all the Law, and the Prophets besides.

44. εἶπεν ὁ Κύριος] i. e. Jehovah said to Adonai. (Ps. cx. 1.) Cp. Ps. ii. 4, where for Adonai the Chaldee Paraphrase has מֵימְרָא (meyimra), the Eternal Λόγος, or WORD of God; from root אֲמַר (amar), dixit. Cp. Acts ii. 34, where St. Peter applies the same prophecy to Christ; and see on John i. 1.

CH. XXIII. 2. ἐπὶ τῆς Μωϋσέως καθέδρας ἐκάθισαν] Μωϋσέως καθέδρας. Observe the alliteration מוֹשַׁב מֹשֶׁה (moshab moshe). ἐκάθισαν, the aorist, denoting continuance. Cf. εὐδόκησα, iii. 17, they sit, i. e. they are invested with official authority, as Teachers (Luke iv. 20. John viii. 2. Matt. xxvi. 55) and as Judges. Cp. Exod. xviii. 13. Matt. xxvii. 19.

And as far as they speak in the name of Moses, and in conformity with his doctrine, they are to be revered and obeyed. See above, xvi. 6—12, and St. Aug. (in S. Joann. Evang. Tract. xlvi. 6): "Multi quippe in Ecclesiâ commoda terrena sectantes, Christum tamen prædicant, et per eos vox Christi auditur: et sequuntur oves, non mercenarium, sed vocem PASTORIS per mercenarium. Audite mercenarios ab Ipso Domino demonstratos: Scribæ, inquit, et Pharisæi cathedram Moysi sedent: quæ igitur dicunt, facite; quæ autem faciunt, facere nolite. Quid aliud dixit, nisi, per mercenarios vocem Pastoris audite? Sedendo enim cathedram Moysi, legem Dei docent: ergo per illos Deus docet. Sua verò illi si velint docere, nolite audire, nolite facere. Quod enim facit malè, non prædicat de cathedrâ Christi: inde lædit unde mala facit, non unde bona dicit."

Hence also an argument may be derived for the Integrity of the Hebrew Text of the Old Testament. Our Lord refers His disciples to the Scribes as the guardians of the Sacred Volume. He recognizes it as existing in their hands. Cf. Lud. Viv. in Aug. De Civ. Dei, viii. 39: "Scribæ erant, qui sacrorum librorum literam docebant, nec ab eâ recedebant latum culmum."

The Pharisees had conspired with their enemies the Sadducees against Christ, as Herod and Pontius Pilate were made friends at the crucifixion. But what more meek and benign than Christ! He had been tempted by the Pharisees; and yet to maintain the honour of the priesthood and the dignity of its name He exhorts the people to submit to them, not in regard of their works, but their doctrine (as far as it was taught from the chair of Moses, i. e. consistently with the Law of God). (Jerome.)

5. πλατύνουσι—φυλακτήρια] The texts of Scripture embroidered on the Phylacteries (called Tephillim, from Tephillah, prayers); amulets of parchment which were braced with leather thongs over the arms, the heart, and the eyes (Deut. vi. 4—10; xi. 18—20. Exod. xiii. 9. 16). Cp. Joseph. Ant. iv. 8. Hieron. in Ezek. xxiv. 17. Buxtorf. Lex. Talm. p. 1743. Goodwin, Moses and Aaron, i. 101. Lightfoot, i. 944. Jahn, Archæol. § 320.

— μεγαλύνουσι τὰ κράσπεδα] They make their Fringes of an exorbitant size. The κράσπεδα (tsitsith) differ from the φυλακτήρια, being attached as fringes, of purple, to the garment (Numb. xv. 38. Deut. xxii. 12); whereas the φυλακτήρια were parchment strips bound over the arm, &c. with strings. See Jahn, Arch. § 122.

τοὺς ἀσπασμοὺς ἐν ταῖς ἀγοραῖς, καὶ καλεῖσθαι ὑπὸ τῶν ἀνθρώπων ῥαββί, ῥαββί. (230/X) 8 [a] Ὑμεῖς δὲ μὴ κληθῆτε ῥαββί· [d] εἷς γάρ ἐστιν ὑμῶν ὁ διδάσκαλος, πάντες δὲ ὑμεῖς ἀδελφοί ἐστε· 9 [e] καὶ πατέρα μὴ καλέσητε ὑμῶν ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς· εἷς γάρ ἐστιν ὁ Πατὴρ ὑμῶν, ὁ ἐν τοῖς οὐρανοῖς· 10 μηδὲ κληθῆτε καθηγηταί· εἷς γὰρ ὑμῶν ἐστιν ὁ καθηγητὴς, ὁ Χριστός. (231/Y) 11 [f] Ὁ δὲ μείζων ὑμῶν ἔσται ὑμῶν διάκονος. 12 [g] Ὅστις δὲ ὑψώσει ἑαυτὸν, ταπεινωθήσεται· καὶ ὅστις ταπεινώσει ἑαυτὸν, ὑψωθήσεται.

(232/Y) 13 [h] Οὐαὶ δὲ ὑμῖν, Γραμματεῖς καὶ Φαρισαῖοι, ὑποκριταί, ὅτι κατεσθίετε τὰς οἰκίας τῶν χηρῶν, καὶ προφάσει μακρὰ προσευχόμενοι· διὰ τοῦτο λήψεσθε περισσότερον κρῖμα. 14 [i] Οὐαὶ ὑμῖν, Γραμματεῖς καὶ Φαρισαῖοι, ὑποκριταί, ὅτι κλείετε τὴν βασιλείαν τῶν οὐρανῶν ἔμπροσθεν τῶν ἀνθρώπων· ὑμεῖς γὰρ οὐκ εἰσέρχεσθε, οὐδὲ τοὺς εἰσερχομένους ἀφίετε εἰσελθεῖν. (233/X) 15 Οὐαὶ ὑμῖν, Γραμματεῖς καὶ Φαρισαῖοι, ὑποκριταί, ὅτι περιάγετε τὴν θάλασσαν καὶ τὴν ξηρὰν, ποιῆσαι ἕνα προσήλυτον, καὶ ὅταν γένηται, ποιεῖτε αὐτὸν υἱὸν γεέννης διπλότερον ὑμῶν. 16 [k] Οὐαὶ ὑμῖν, ὁδηγοὶ τυφλοὶ, οἱ λέγοντες, Ὃς ἂν ὀμόσῃ ἐν τῷ ναῷ οὐδέν ἐστιν, ὃς δ' ἂν ὀμόσῃ ἐν τῷ χρυσῷ τοῦ ναοῦ, ὀφείλει. 17 μωροὶ καὶ τυφλοί, τίς γὰρ μείζων ἐστὶν, ὁ χρυσὸς, ἢ ὁ ναὸς ὁ ἁγιάζων τὸν χρυσόν; 18 καί, ὃς ἐὰν ὀμόσῃ ἐν τῷ θυσιαστηρίῳ, οὐδέν ἐστιν, ὃς δ' ἂν ὀμόσῃ ἐν τῷ δώρῳ τῷ ἐπάνω αὐτοῦ, ὀφείλει. 19 [l] μωροὶ καὶ τυφλοί, τί γὰρ μεῖζον, τὸ δῶρον, ἢ τὸ θυσιαστήριον τὸ ἁγιάζον τὸ δῶρον; 20 Ὁ οὖν ὀμόσας ἐν τῷ θυσιαστηρίῳ ὀμνύει ἐν αὐτῷ, καὶ ἐν πᾶσι τοῖς ἐπάνω αὐτοῦ· 21 [m] καὶ ὁ ὀμόσας ἐν τῷ ναῷ ὀμνύει ἐν αὐτῷ, καὶ ἐν τῷ κατοικήσαντι αὐτόν· 22 [n] καὶ ὁ ὀμόσας ἐν τῷ οὐρανῷ ὀμνύει ἐν τῷ θρόνῳ τοῦ Θεοῦ, καὶ ἐν τῷ καθημένῳ ἐπάνω αὐτοῦ.

(234/Y) 23 [o] Οὐαὶ ὑμῖν, Γραμματεῖς καὶ Φαρισαῖοι, ὑποκριταί, ὅτι ἀποδεκατοῦτε

d James 3. 1. 1 Cor. 3. 4.
e Mal. 1. 6.
f ch. 20. 26, 27.
g Luke 14. 11. & 18. 14. Job 22. 29. Prov. 29. 23. Eccles. 3. 18. James 4. 6. 1 Pet. 5. 5.
h Mark 12. 40. Luke 20. 47. Ezek. 22. 25. Tit. 1. 11.
i Luke 11. 52.
k ch. 15. 14. & 5. 33, 34.
l Exod. 29. 37.
m 1 Kings 8. 13. 2 Chron. 6. 2.
n ch. 5. 34.
o Luke 11. 42. Hos. 6. 6. Micah 6. 8. Jer. 22. 15, 16. ch. 9. 13.

---

7. ῥαββί] רַבִּי, My Master. Rabbi, from root רַב, rab = great; as Magister from magnus, μέγας.

8. μὴ κληθῆτε] Let not this be your ambition to be so called.

— εἷς ὁ διδάσκαλος] So Tischendorf and Alford for ὁ καθηγητής, and, it seems, rightly. There is but one, the only Magister or Teacher, Who inspires all true wisdom and enables you to receive it. He Who is the Wisdom of God. Cp. St. Augustine's Treatise de Magistro (i. 187), in which this argument is handled.

9. καὶ πατέρα μὴ καλέσητε] These prohibitions are to be understood from the practice of the Pharisees, who did not teach the people to look up to God, the sole Author of all good, but, in their ambitious desire of human glory and worldly titles, drew off the homage of the people from God to themselves, and usurped His place in the popular mind. Cp. 2 Cor. i. 24. James iii. 1. 1 Pet. v. 3.

That man may be said to call no man father upon earth, who does all his actions as in God's sight, and the language of whose life is, "Our Father which art in heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name!" (Cp. Origen.)

10. καθηγητής] The Pharisees claimed to be ὁδηγοί (Rom. ii. 19), and are called ὁδηγοὶ τυφλοί by Christ (xv. 14; xxiii. 16. 24), a warning to those who encroach upon the province of others in exercising spiritual direction—ἀλλοτριοεπίσκοποι (1 Pet. iv. 15), and particularly to those who usurp dominion over the conscience, or submit their conscience unreservedly to the will of others. See Bp. Sanderson, vol. iv. 62; de Conscient. Præl. iii. § 67.

— ὁ Χριστός] Our Lord now began to use the word Χριστὸς in speaking of Himself. (See xvi. 20. Mark ix. 4.) In the Gospels, when the word stands alone or with Ἰησοῦς, except in such cases as Matt. i. 1, Mark i. 1, John i. 17; xvii. 3, it generally has the article, but in the Epistles it is generally without the article.

The declaration that Christ alone is their Master and Guide is a plain declaration of the Divinity of Christ. St. Paul says, Who is Paul, who is Apollos, who is Cephas? are they not Ministers or Servants, not Masters? (1 Cor. iii. 5.) He means that we ought to know Him Whom we call Father, above all; God, the great cause of all Teachers and Fathers. And by adding that one is their Master, Christ, He equals Himself to God, and makes Himself one with God the Father. (Chrys.)

11. ὁ μείζων] He who is really greater than the rest shall become so by making himself less.

13. οὐαί] Used by the LXX for the Hebrew אוֹי or הוֹי. Our Lord had begun with Nine Beatitudes (Matt. v. 3—11). He now concludes with Eight Woes.

— ὑποκριταί] Our Lord repeats this word seven times here (vv. 13, 14, 15, 23, 25, 27, 29). On the term Hypocrisy applied to the Pharisees, not only as deceiving others, but as deluding themselves, being blinded by their evil passions; whence they are called blind guides (v. 16; see also xxiii. 26), see Bp. Butler's Serm. on Jan. 30, and note in Christian Institutes, iii. pp. 48, 49.

— καὶ πρ.] And this too ye do,—making long prayers for a pretext (Phil. i. 18) of religion; that is, ye add hypocrisy to rapacity, and therefore will receive greater damnation.

— περισσότερον] "Qui bono abutitur ad malum ornandum magis judicatur." (Beng.)

15. προσήλυτον] The word used by LXX for Hebrew גֵּר (ger), from גּוּר (gur), commorari (Exod. xii. 48, 49; xx. 10, and passim); and applied specially in our Saviour's time to the two classes of converts to Judaism, i. e. (1) the Proselytes of the Gate, גֵּר תּוֹשָׁב, who were not circumcised; and (2) the Proselytes of Righteousness, גֵּר צֶדֶק, who were circumcised and also baptized. Cf. Jahn, Archæol. § 325.

— υἱὸν γεέννης] Cp. υἱὸν ἀπωλείας (John xvii. 12. 2 Thess. ii. 3). So בֶּן מָוֶת (ben maveth), 'son of death;' i. e. "spiritu inferni commotum et alios ad infernum secum trahentem, et dignum pœnis inferni, iisque afficiendum." Cp. above on ix. 15 and on xvii. 12.

— διπλότερον ὑμῶν] The Pharisees made proselytes for their own advantage; and these proselytes, seeing the vices of those who converted them under a semblance of piety, became worse than before, and even than their masters (cp. Jerome). Or because, having seen your sins, he relapses into heathenism and becomes worse than before.

Twice as much a child of Hell. Hence we may infer degrees of punishment hereafter proportioned to degrees of sin. (Origen.) So Aug. Serm. 161. 4: "Duæ habitationes sunt, una in igne æterno, alia in regno æterno: ibi omnes cruciabuntur, minus ille, plus ille." He then cites x. 15 and this text, and adds, "alii duplo alii simplo." See above on x. 15.

18. τῷ δώρῳ] Their own gift was counted by them in their own self-righteousness of more worth than the divine honour.

23. ἀποδεκατοῦτε] "ἀποδεκατοῦν, verbum Alexandrinæ dialecto proprium, nam in scriptis Atticorum non legitur, respondet Hebr. עָשַׂר, significat et, decimas exigere, decimare, 1 Sam. viii. 15. Heb. vii. 5, et decimas dare, Gen. xxviii. 22, h. l. est, τὴν δεκάτην τελεῖν, ut dixit Josephus. Ant. iv. 4. Judæi sacerdotibus dare debebant decimas omnium frugum, vid. Lev. xxvii. 30. Num. xviii. 21. Deut. xiv. 22. Pharisæorum ii, qui non ex sacerdotum ordine erant, ut inprimis sancti et pii adversus Deum viderentur, hanc legem diligentissime observabant, ita ut etiam decimas minutissimorum olerum, quæ vulgo decimari non solebant, religiosissimè persolverent. Neque Jesus hanc eorum religionem vituperat, sed perstringit eorum simulationem, quòd negligerent virtutes, quarum studium et exercitatio longè majoris momenti esset." (Kuin.)

Mint, anise, and cummin are the seasoning of food, and not the substance. Our Lord approves the observance of what is least, but commands to keep what is chief, that is, "judgment, mercy, faith."

τὸ ἡδύοσμον καὶ τὸ ἄνηθον καὶ τὸ κύμινον, καὶ ἀφήκατε τὰ βαρύτερα τοῦ νόμου, τὴν κρίσιν καὶ τὸν ἔλεον καὶ τὴν πίστιν· ταῦτα δὲ ἔδει ποιῆσαι, κἀκεῖνα μὴ ἀφιέναι. (235 X) 24 Ὁδηγοὶ τυφλοί, οἱ διϋλίζοντες τὸν κώνωπα, τὴν δὲ κάμηλον p Luke 11. 39. ch. 15. 20. Mark 7. 4. καταπίνοντες. (236 V) 25 p Οὐαὶ ὑμῖν, Γραμματεῖς καὶ Φαρισαῖοι, ὑποκριταί, ὅτι καθαρίζετε τὸ ἔξωθεν τοῦ ποτηρίου καὶ τῆς παροψίδος, ἔσωθεν δὲ γέμουσιν q Jer. 4. 14. ἐξ ἁρπαγῆς καὶ ἀδικίας. 26 q Φαρισαῖε τυφλέ, καθάρισον πρῶτον τὸ ἐντὸς τοῦ ποτηρίου καὶ τῆς παροψίδος, ἵνα γένηται καὶ τὸ ἐκτὸς αὐτῶν καθαρόν.
r Luke 11. 44. (237 V) 27 r Οὐαὶ ὑμῖν, Γραμματεῖς καὶ Φαρισαῖοι, ὑποκριταί, ὅτι παρομοιάζετε τάφοις κεκονιαμένοις, οἵτινες ἔξωθεν μὲν φαίνονται ὡραῖοι, ἔσωθεν δὲ γέμουσιν ὀστέων νεκρῶν καὶ πάσης ἀκαθαρσίας· 28 οὕτω καὶ ὑμεῖς ἔξωθεν μὲν φαίνεσθε τοῖς ἀνθρώποις δίκαιοι, ἔσωθεν δὲ μεστοί ἐστε ὑποκρίσεως καὶ ἀνομίας.
s Luke 11. 47, 48. (238 V) 29 s Οὐαὶ ὑμῖν, Γραμματεῖς καὶ Φαρισαῖοι, ὑποκριταί, ὅτι οἰκοδομεῖτε τοὺς τάφους τῶν προφητῶν, καὶ κοσμεῖτε τὰ μνημεῖα τῶν δικαίων, 30 καὶ λέγετε, Εἰ ἤμεθα ἐν ταῖς ἡμέραις τῶν πατέρων ἡμῶν, οὐκ ἂν ἤμεθα κοινωνοὶ αὐτῶν t Acts 7. 51. 2 Chron. 24. 21. & 36. 16. Neh. 9. 26. ἐν τῷ αἵματι τῶν προφητῶν· 31 t ὥστε μαρτυρεῖτε ἑαυτοῖς, ὅτι υἱοί ἐστε τῶν φονευσάντων τοὺς προφήτας. (239 X) 32 καὶ ὑμεῖς πληρώσατε τὸ μέτρον τῶν u ch. 3. 7. πατέρων ὑμῶν. 33 u ὄφεις, γεννήματα ἐχιδνῶν, πῶς φύγητε ἀπὸ τῆς κρίσεως v Luke 11. 49. Acts 5. 40. & 22. 19. 2 Cor. 11. 24, 25. τῆς γεέννης; (240 V) 34 v Διὰ τοῦτο ἰδοὺ, ἐγὼ ἀποστέλλω πρὸς ὑμᾶς προφήτας καὶ σοφοὺς καὶ γραμματεῖς, καὶ ἐξ αὐτῶν ἀποκτενεῖτε καὶ σταυρώσετε, καὶ ἐξ αὐτῶν μαστιγώσετε ἐν ταῖς συναγωγαῖς ὑμῶν, καὶ διώξετε ἀπὸ πόλεως εἰς x Gen. 4. 8. Heb. 11. 4. 2 Chron. 24. 21, 22. πόλιν, 35 x ὅπως ἔλθῃ ἐφ' ὑμᾶς πᾶν αἷμα δίκαιον ἐκχυνόμενον ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς, ἀπὸ αἵματος Ἅβελ τοῦ δικαίου ἕως τοῦ αἵματος Ζαχαρίου υἱοῦ Βαραχίου, ὃν ἐφο-

---

24. διϋλίζοντες] The Vulgate rightly renders it excolantes, straining out, straining off. In Amos vi. 6, the LXX have πίνοντες διϋλισμένον οἶνον,—i. e. wine so carefully strained and filtered that no unclean animalcula could find their way into it so as to be swallowed by them. Buxtorf, Lex. Talmud. p. 516.

This was the practice of those who professed extraordinary sanctity. See Talmud in cap. Schabbath, "colant vinum per lintea;" and Maimon. de cibis vetitis, apud Vorst. de Hebr., p. 771.

. "Irridet," says St. Hilary, "Christus scribarum in colandis culicibus diligentiam quorum in glutiendis camelis esset incuria."

27. κεκονιαμένοις] κονία, "calce dealbatis," white-washed. So τοῖχε κεκονιαμένε (Acts xxiii. 3). Cp. Demosth. 36, 16; 689, 24. And see Pococke, i. 154, and Wetstein here. The graves were usually whitewashed in the month Adar (March), (cp. Lightf. and Schoëttgen.) in order to guar[1] persons from contracting pollution by proximity to the dead, see Numbers xix. 16.

The ceremonial ordinances of the Law were instituted for the sake of the moral law, i. e. for mercy and judgment; so that the former were of no use without the latter. He speaks thus to show that even before the Gospel, these ceremonial ordinances were not the main requisite, but were subordinate to moral duties. And this is what the ancient Prophets often teach, e. g. Micah vi. 8. Hos. vi. 6. We ought to be Temples;—how often are we but Tombs! (Chrys.)

29. τάφους — μνημεῖα] Ye build their tombs and adorn their monuments, but do not imitate their example; ye disobey their precepts, and slight their warnings, and rebel against their God, Who has sent you His Son, to Whom all the Prophets bear witness. And thus ye show yourselves the children of those who killed the Prophets, and are even worse than your fathers, because you add hypocrisy to impiety. Woe, therefore, to you Hypocrites!

30. ἤμεθα] "Pro ἦμεν in pluribus et optimis codd. h. l. et paulo post legitur ἤμεθα, quam Imperfecti formam rectè in textum receperunt Griesbachius et Matthæi. Attici enim veteres rarò dixerunt ἦμην pro ἦν, sed Alexandrina et communis dialectus hanc Imperfecti formam sibi tanquam propriam vindicavit. vid. Jos. v. 1. Neh. i. 4. ii. 11. Matt. xxv. 35 al. Moeris: ἦν, ἀντὶ τοῦ ἦμην, Ἀττικῶς· ἦμην, Ἑλληνικῶς." (Kuin.)

31. ὥστε μαρτυρεῖτε] Ye call them, who killed the Prophets, your Fathers; and rightly, because ye imitate their acts; and are therefore their children. Cp. v. 45. Rom. iv. 11, 12. He therefore identifies them with their fathers, and charges them with their fathers' sins. See v. 35, ὃν ἐφονεύσατε, ye killed even Zacharias. Cp. John vi. 32, "Moses gave you not," &c.

34. διὰ τοῦτο] There is a remarkable similitude between this passage and 2 Esdras i. 28—33. (Beng.) (Cp. Luke xi. 49.)

— μαστιγώσατε ἐν ταῖς συναγωγαῖς] See on Acts xxvi. 11.

35. Ζαχαρίου υἱοῦ Βαραχίου] Cf. Luke xi. 51.

Among the various opinions that have been adduced concerning this Zacharias, the most probable is, that our Lord refers to the Zacharias who was the son of Jehoiada the Priest, and was slain by command of King Joash, whom he had rebuked for his sins, and for those of his subjects. That Zachariah was slain in the court of the House of the Lord, our Lord describes it "between the Temple and the Altar," that is, in the Court of the Priests, between the Porch of the ναὸς and the brazen Altar of burnt-offering; and when he died he said, "The Lord look upon it and require it[1]." (2 Chron. xxiv. 20—22.)

The books of the Chronicles being regarded as the conclusion of the Historical Canon of the Old Testament, and the sum and colophon of all Jewish History ("Instrumenti Veteris Epitome," says St. Jerome ad Paulin.), our Lord in citing the history of the Martyrdom of Zacharias from that Book, and in going backward from it to the Martyrdom of Abel, as recorded in the Book of Genesis, comprises all Jewish History as narrated in the Inspired Canon of the Old Testament (cp. Bp. Cosin on the Canon, p. 13), and therefore combines the "Acts and Sufferings of all the Martyrs," whose blood "crieth from the ground" to God, as did that of Abel and Zachariah. (Gen. iv. 10. 2 Chron. xxiv. 22.)

The dying words of Zachariah seem to be prophetical of our Lord's allusion to his Martyrdom; and our Lord (in Luke xi. 51) appears to refer to those dying words, ναί, λέγω ὑμῖν, ἐκζητηθήσεται.

The words of Zachariah were spoken in the Temple where his blood was shed. Our Lord, the true Zacharias (from זָכַר zachar, recordatus fuit, and יָהּ Jehovah), or Remembrancer of God, and the true Son of Barachiah (from בָּרַךְ barak), benedixit, and יָהּ (jah), or Son of the Blessed (see Mark xiv. 61), takes up those words in the Temple, and predicts its doom there.

Kuin. well says, "Jesus igitur, ut significaret omnes cædes hominum sanctissimorum, easdemque crudelissimas, ut Lucæ verbis utamur, ἀπὸ καταβολῆς κόσμου, à Judæorum majoribus commissas, nominavit primam, maximè memorabilem, cædem in literis sacris commemoratam, et ultimam cædem, ad aras perpetratam, nempe Zachariæ. Altare etiam nocentibus, nisi atrocissimè deliquissent, asylum et tutela erat. vid. Exod. xxi. 14. 1 Regg. i. 51. ii. 28 sqq. Sic neque nos tangunt ea, quæ observarunt alii, Zachariam nimirum non fuisse ultimum prophetarum à Judæis interfectorum, Uriam quoque prophetam jussu Joïakimi trucidatum esse, coll. Jer. xxvi. 21 ss. 2 Paral. xxxvi. 4 ss. sed, quod probè notandum, non interfectus est ut Zacharias μεταξὺ τοῦ ναοῦ καὶ τοῦ θυσιαστηρίου."

But it may be asked, why does our Lord not call him Son of Jehoiada? Why does He call him Zachariah, the Son of Barachiah? from Hebr. בָּרַךְ, benedixit, and יָהּ, Dominus.

Because probably Jehoiada was also called Barachiah[2], and be-

---

[1] The words of Zachariah were יְהוָה יִרְדֹּשׁ רְאֵה (yere Yehovah veyidrash). And דָּרַשׁ (darash) = ζητέω, Lev. x. 16. Deut. xii. 2. 1 Chron. x. 13. And alluding to this our Lord says, ἐκζητηθήσεται (Luke xi. 51).

[2] For numerous instances of personæ διώνυμοι among the Jews, see Grotius here. Surenhus. p. 92. Glass. Philol. Patrit. de Evang. ii. p. 43.

νεύσατε μεταξὺ τοῦ ναοῦ καὶ τοῦ θυσιαστηρίου· 36 ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι ἥξει ταῦτα πάντα ἐπὶ τὴν γενεὰν ταύτην. (241/Γ) 37 [y] Ἰερουσαλὴμ, Ἰερουσαλήμ, ἡ ἀποκτείνουσα τοὺς προφήτας, καὶ λιθοβολοῦσα τοὺς ἀπεσταλμένους πρὸς αὐτὴν, ποσάκις ἠθέλησα ἐπισυναγαγεῖν τὰ τέκνα σου, ὃν τρόπον ἐπισυνάγει ὄρνις τὰ νοσσία αὐτῆς ὑπὸ τὰς πτέρυγας, καὶ οὐκ ἠθελήσατε; 38 Ἰδοὺ, ἀφίεται ὑμῖν ὁ οἶκος ὑμῶν [z] ἔρημος. 39 [zz] Λέγω γὰρ ὑμῖν, Οὐ μή με ἴδητε ἀπ' ἄρτι, ἕως ἂν εἴπητε· Εὐλογημένος ὁ ἐρχόμενος ἐν ὀνόματι Κυρίου.

y Luke 13. 34, 35. 2 Esdr. 1. 30. Deut. 32. 11, 12.

z ch. 24. 15. zz Ps. 118. 26. ch. 21. 9.

XXIV. (242/Π) 1 [a] Καὶ ἐξελθὼν ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἐπορεύετο ἀπὸ τοῦ ἱεροῦ· καὶ προσῆλθον οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ ἐπιδεῖξαι αὐτῷ τὰς οἰκοδομὰς τοῦ ἱεροῦ. 2 Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Οὐ βλέπετε πάντα ταῦτα; ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, οὐ μὴ ἀφεθῇ ὧδε λίθος ἐπὶ λίθον, ὃς οὐ καταλυθήσεται. (243/Π) 3 Καθημένου δὲ αὐτοῦ ἐπὶ τοῦ ὄρους τῶν ἐλαιῶν, προσῆλθον αὐτῷ οἱ μαθηταὶ κατ' ἰδίαν, λέγοντες, Εἰπὲ ἡμῖν, πότε ταῦτα ἔσται; καὶ τί τὸ σημεῖον τῆς σῆς παρουσίας, καὶ τῆς a Mark 13. 1, &c. Luke 21. 5, &c.

---

cause, as Abel 'the righteous,' the good shepherd, slain by his brother Cain, was a type of Christ (Heb. xii. 24), so Zacharias, in his name, his priestly office, his preaching, and in his death, was a type of Christ Himself. The words, 'Son of Barachiah,' mean 'Son of the Blessed,' and this was a name of CHRIST Himself (see Mark xiv. 61). Barachias (says Jerome) signifies 'Blessed of the Lord;' and the righteousness of Jehoiada the Priest is expressed by this Hebrew word. And in the Gospel used by the Nazarenes we find 'Son of Jehoiada,' instead of 'Son of Barachias.'

Our Lord had just been uttering maledictions against the hypocrisy of the Scribes and Pharisees; and He now intimates that they who suffer for the truth are children of "the Blessed," and that He Himself Whom they were about to put to death as accursed,—for, cursed is he that hangeth on a tree (Gal. iii. 13. Deut. xxi. 33), is the 'Son of the Blessed,' and had been typified in His testimony and His sufferings by all the Martyrs of the Old Testament, from Abel to Zacharias, the Son of the Blessed; and that His own murder would be the crowning sin which would fill up the cup of God's wrath to the brim, and make it overflow with vengeance upon them. And He concludes with saying that they should not see Him till they acknowledge Him to be 'the Son of Barachias,' and say, "BLESSED is He that cometh in the Name of the LORD" (see v. 39). For an interesting inquiry into this text, see Dr. Jackson on the Creed, book xi. ch. xliii. vol. xi. pp. 256—287. Cp. Lightfoot, i. 2040; ii. 237. 436. Thilo, Codex. Apoc. N. T. lxiv.

36. ταῦτα πάντα] See on xxiv. 15. It may be asked why the blood of Abel and Zechariah, which was not shed by the Jews of that generation, should be required of it? Because they, who in their conduct to the Apostles imitate Cain and Joash, are considered as one and the same generation with them. (Jerome.)

Our Lord encouraged and comforted His disciples, by showing them that whatever they might suffer, no less had been suffered by saints of old. And He warned the Jews, by predicting that as the persecutors of the ancient Saints were destroyed, so would they be punished also. They who see how others have been chastised for sin, and yet commit the same sin, or worse, will suffer worse punishment than those whose examples they have been permitted to see. (Chrys.)

37. Ἰερουσαλὴμ, Ἰερουσαλήμ] This repetition of the name marks intense love. (Chrys.)

— ποσάκις] 'How often!' For Christ came to the Jews in Moses and the Prophets, and in the Angels themselves, ministering to their salvation in every age. (Origen.)

— ὄρνις τὰ νοσσία] Not only because He would have covered her with His Wings, but (as Aug. says, Serm. 264) "quia gallina propter infirmitatem pullorum ipsa infirmatur, et infirmatur cum pullis, et Dominus propter infirmitatem nostram et Ipse susceptione carnis infirmari dignatus est." Cp. 2 Esd. i. 30. He derives the image from the bird who most loves her offspring, and from the language of the Prophets and Psalms, which speak of the people being safe under the wings and feathers, i. e. the providence and protection of God. Ps. xvii. 8; lvii. 1; lxi. 4; xci. 4. What Christ then prophesied has already come to pass; who can deny it? And as surely will His other prophecies be fulfilled. As surely as, according to His prophecies, Jerusalem has been destroyed, so surely, therefore, will He come again to judgment. (Chrys.)

38. ὁ οἶκος ὑμῶν] particularly the Temple; your holy House, which was God's House, but is now become your house, by being made 'a den of thieves,' that is now left to you, being deserted by God. See on xxiv. 15, and above, xxi. 13.

The Veil of the Temple was about to be rent in twain; and though after the Ascension the Apostles still resorted to it for prayer, yet in fact the virtue of the daily sacrifice ceased (Dan. ix. 27) at the Crucifixion, when the Type was merged in the Antitype, and when the Jewish Temple became the Cenotaph of the Law, and the Christian Church was made the Oracle of God.

39. οὐ μή με ἴδητε] You will not know Me, before you welcome Me as the Messiah, and adore Me as God. You may crucify Me as Man, but that is because you are blind, and see Me not. But in order to see Me, you must look at Me with the eye of faith; you must worship Me as God. And this will be, when with broken hearts and weeping eyes, you "look on Him Whom you have pierced." Zech. xii. 10. John xix. 37. Hos. iv. 3.

— εὐλογημένος—Κυρίου] The solemn salutation of the Messiah (Ps. cxviii. See xxi. 9). A reference to the name Βαραχίας, mentioned v. 35.

What He says is this,—Unless ye repent, and confess Me, of whom the Prophets wrote, as the Son of God Almighty, ye shall not see My face. The Jews have now time given them for repentance; let them confess Christ to be the Blessed One Who cometh in the Name of the Lord, and they will see His face. (Jerome.)

The Jewish Nation has ceased to be God's household; and remaining in the obstinacy of unbelief, they will not behold Christ till they bless Him coming in the name of the Lord. (Hilary.)

CH. XXIV. 1. τὰς οἰκοδομὰς τοῦ ἱεροῦ] Whose solidity and magnificence is described by Josephus, B. J. v. 5. Antiq. xv. 14.

As Bengel observes, the word οἰκοδομὰς intimates that the work of building was even then going on (cp. John ii. 20). "Fortasse magis opus fervebat, ob Pascha instans." While they were building it, He was prophesying its destruction. Because our Lord had just said to the Jews, "Your house is left desolate," therefore the Apostles, surprised by such an announcement, come and show Him the buildings of the Temple; as if in doubt whether so much glory could fade. He therefore proceeds to predict its entire destruction. Ye are surprised at the announcement—but not one stone will be left on another. The Apostles appear to have then supposed that the day of Jerusalem's destruction would be the day of His Second Coming. They imagined this would be so because He had said, "Ye shall not see Me henceforth, till ye say Blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord" (xxiii. 39). But our Lord corrects this notion by saying, "The end is not yet" (xxiv. 6).

On former occasions, Jerusalem had been restored from time to time, and the Temple had been rebuilt; but He now predicts that the next destruction would be total. (Chrys. v. 16.)

3. τῶν ἐλαιῶν] Observe, that the Siege began at the place where this prophecy was delivered, i. e. the Mount of Olives (see Josephus B. J. v. 2 and 3);

And, at the time, the Passover (Ibid. vi. 9. 3.),

And that many hundreds were destroyed by the same death as they were now about to inflict upon Christ, viz. Crucifixion (Ibid. v. 11).

Titus, the Son and successor of the Roman Emperor Vespasian, regarded himself as the executioner of God's Judgment on Jerusalem. The destruction of the Temple was a more striking fulfilment of Christ's prophecy, because it was effected by Roman soldiers in opposition to the orders of Titus, who wished to spare it. And the woes with which Jerusalem was visited were more remarkable, as being brought about by the agency of one who was distinguished for clemency, and was called "deliciæ humani generis."—Vespasian, his father, who began the Jewish war, seems also to have been specially raised up by God to be the minister of his purposes against Jerusalem; and it is observable that he alone of the Roman Cæsars was permitted to bequeathe the Empire to his sons. Cp. Dr. Jackson on the Creed, Book I. xxiii. and Serm. vi. vol. vi. p. 169. For the passages of Josephus which illustrate this prophecy, see Grinfield, Schol. Hellenist. pp. 60. 63, and Whitby, Notes to Chap. xxiv.

— πότε ταῦτα ἔσται; καὶ τί τὸ σημεῖον τῆς σῆς παρουσίας,

Burgon. p. 565. W. and Kuin. here: "Constat apud Hebræos multas personas fuisse binomines, vid. interpp. ad Marc. ii. 26. Wolfium in Curis, et Grotium ad h. l. Scholiast. cod. Mosquensis: Ζαχαρίαν δὲ τὸν Ἰωδαὲ λέγει, δυώνυμος γὰρ ἦν. Hinc Zacharias 2 Par. l. l. Joïadæ, h. l. autem Barachiæ filius nominatur, quoniam nimirum pater ipsius duo nomina habuit, et Judæis, qui Christi ætate plurimum studii genealogiis impendebant, utrumque nomen satis notum erat."

Some Critics recklessly cut the knot by saying, "Wahrscheinlich hat Jesus selbst den väterlichen Namen gar nicht genannt." Meyer ad loc. 3rd Ed. p. 378.

συντελείας τοῦ αἰῶνος; [4] [b] Καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Βλέπετε μή τις ὑμᾶς πλανήσῃ· [5] πολλοὶ γὰρ ἐλεύσονται ἐπὶ τῷ ὀνόματί μου, λέγοντες, Ἐγώ εἰμι ὁ Χριστός· καὶ πολλοὺς πλανήσουσι. [6] [c] Μελλήσετε δὲ ἀκούειν πολέμους καὶ ἀκοὰς πολέμων· ὁρᾶτε, μὴ θροεῖσθε· δεῖ γὰρ πάντα γενέσθαι· ἀλλ' οὔπω ἐστὶ τὸ τέλος. [7] Ἐγερθήσεται γὰρ ἔθνος ἐπὶ ἔθνος, καὶ βασιλεία ἐπὶ βασιλείαν, καὶ ἔσονται λιμοὶ καὶ λοιμοὶ, καὶ σεισμοὶ κατὰ τόπους· [8] πάντα δὲ ταῦτα ἀρχὴ ὠδίνων. (ΚΔ) [9] [d] Τότε παραδώσουσιν ὑμᾶς εἰς θλῖψιν, καὶ ἀποκτενοῦσιν ὑμᾶς, καὶ ἔσεσθε μισούμενοι ὑπὸ πάντων τῶν ἐθνῶν διὰ τὸ ὄνομά μου· (ΚΕ) [10] καὶ τότε σκανδαλισθήσονται πολλοὶ, καὶ ἀλλήλους παραδώσουσι, καὶ μισήσουσιν ἀλλήλους· [11] καὶ πολλοὶ ψευδοπροφῆται ἐγερθήσονται, καὶ πλανήσουσι πολλούς· [12] καὶ, διὰ τὸ πληθυνθῆναι τὴν ἀνομίαν, ψυγήσεται ἡ ἀγάπη τῶν πολλῶν· [13] ὁ δὲ ὑπομείνας εἰς τέλος, οὗτος σωθήσεται. (ΚΕΣ) [14] Καὶ κηρυχθήσεται τοῦτο τὸ εὐαγγέλιον τῆς βασιλείας ἐν ὅλῃ τῇ οἰκουμένῃ, εἰς μαρτύριον πᾶσι τοῖς ἔθνεσι, καὶ τότε ἥξει τὸ τέλος. (ΚΖ) [15] [e] Ὅταν

b Mark 13. 5, &c. Luke 21. 8, &c. Eph. 5, 6. Col. 2. 8, 18. 2 Thess. 2. 3. 1 John 4. 1.
c Jer. 4. 27. & 5. 10, 18.
d ch. 10. 17. John 15. 20. & 16. 2. Acts 4. 2, 3. & 7. 59. & 12. 1, &c. e Mark 13. 14. Luke 21. 20. Dan. 9. 27. & 12. 11.

καὶ τῆς συντελείας τοῦ αἰῶνος;] Here is the clue to the interpretation of this chapter. Our Lord's prophecy has a double reference,—

To the judgment of Jerusalem. And

To that of which that judgment was a type, viz. His second coming to judge the world.

The Apostles, indeed, then supposed that the taking of Jerusalem, and the end of the world, and Christ's coming to judgment, would be simultaneous (cf. v. 6);

It is to be observed, that several Future Events, however distant from each other, seem to be represented by Prophecy as contemporaneous, till one of them is near, and detaches itself from the other.

Future Events in Time may be compared to distant objects in place. In a mountainous country, two ridges of hills rising the one above the other, are seen in the horizon almost as one, although there may be many miles between them; and it is only when the spectator arrives at the summit of the first ridge that he is aware of the chasm between them. So it is with Future Events.

The Prophets of the Old Testament pass rapidly from describing the first Advent of Christ to the Second Advent, so that the two Advents seem to be blended together in one.

But when the predictions concerning the first Advent had been accomplished by the manifestation of Christ in the world, then the prophecies concerning the Second Advent became more distinct.

Yet even then the coming of Christ to judge Jerusalem seemed to be blended with His coming to the Universal Judgment, of which the judgment of Jerusalem was a type, and is so treated by Himself in the present Chapter.

It is only in the Scriptures written after the taking of Jerusalem (viz. the Revelation of St. John) that the transactions of the Great Day stand forth alone in all their grand and awful majesty. And as there is a gradual process of clearing up in the prophecies concerning the coming of Christ, so is there a similar process of elucidation in the successive prophecies concerning the coming of Anti-Christ. And there is reason to believe that the prophecies concerning the coming of Anti-Christ will be brought to a climax at about the same time as those concerning the coming of Christ.

5. ἐπὶ τῷ ὀνόματί μου] Not εἰς τὸ ὄνομα (see xviii. 20), but ἐπὶ τῷ ὀνόματι. Standing upon it, and usurping it. See note on v. 11.

6. πάντα] all that I predict.

— οὔπω ἐστὶ τὸ τέλος] Cp. Mark xiii. 7. 10. Luke xxi. 9. Our Lord, therefore, did not predict (as some have ventured to say) that He would come again to judgment immediately. He said the contrary, as here; nor did His Apostles afterwards. See 2 Thess. ii. 2.

8. ἀρχὴ ὠδίνων] Observe the word ὠδῖνες (pains of parturition) as very appropriate and significant; because the circumstances of the World on the eve of Christ's coming will be like those of a woman in travail (see 1 Thess. v. 3), and because after them the New Creation will be born,—the παλιγγενεσία (see xix. 28) will ensue.

Lest the disciples should be absorbed in dwelling on the punishments in reserve for the Jews, and suppose that they themselves would be exempt from suffering, our Lord warns them of coming woes and trials for themselves (v. 9 and 12), and thus stimulates them to watchfulness and courage. And in order to show that the calamities which would overtake the Jews were divinely-appointed judgments for their sins, He specifies not only wars, but famines and earthquakes; and adds, "Verily I say unto you, all these will come upon this generation,"—i. e. for their cruelty to Himself. And lest the Apostles should imagine that the Gospel would be imperilled by these calamities, He says, "Be not terrified." (Chrys.)

The signs of which our Lord here speaks are to be understood both literally and figuratively; there will be famines of bread, and also of "hearing the Word of God." (Amos viii. 11.) So also with regard to pestilences and earthquakes there will be false teachers, "whose word eats as doth a canker" (2 Tim. ii. 17), and commotions of the world, and falling of many from the faith. (Jerome.)

11. ψευδοπροφῆται] Cp. v. 24. Here was one main cause of the miseries of the Jews. They had killed the true Prophet and the true Christ, Who had come for their salvation; and, for a retribution of their sin, they were deceived by false prophets and false Christs, to their own destruction. (See Acts v. 36; xxi. 38. Joseph. B. J. ii. 13. 4; vii. 11. 3.) They rightly expected that the Messiah would appear at this time; and that He would come to His Temple, for so the prophets had foretold; but they knew Him not; and because they expected the Messiah and had not known Him, they were more easily deluded by impostors professing to be Christ; and they imagined it impossible that Jerusalem should ever be taken by the Romans, and even to the last believed that the Messiah would interfere to save them and to destroy their enemies.

12. τὴν ἀνομίαν] lawlessness. Cf. Zech. v. 8, where the LXX use the word for רִשְׁעָה (risheah), wickedness. Sometimes they use it for שֶׁקֶר (sheker), falsehood, lying.

In proportion as the end approaches, errors will increase, terrors will increase, iniquity and infidelity will increase, and the darkness of hatred among brethren. (St. Aug. in Joan xxv.)

— τῶν πολλῶν] of the world.

13. ὁ δὲ ὑπομείνας κ. τ.] Intimating that many would fall away.

14. τοῦτο τὸ εὐαγγέλιον] Not St. Matthew's Gospel, as De Wette objects, who charges the Evangelist with forgetting himself here. The Gospel is present to our Lord's eye here and xxvi. 13, as the great purpose of His coming into the world.

Our Lord predicts a threefold struggle—from open enemies, from impostors, from false brethren. See St. Paul's declaration, 2 Cor. vii. 5; xi. 13. And yet He assures them that so far from the Gospel being extinguished by this conflict, it will be preached every where (v. 14); but He does not say it will be believed every where. It will be preached as a witness,—a witness to those who reject it,—it will be preached to their condemnation. Those who believe will be like witnesses against those who do not believe, and will condemn them. (Chrys.)

Observe how many difficulties beset the Gospel. Deceivers, Roman armies, Famines, Plagues and Pestilences, and Earthquakes, Tribulations, Treachery, Hatred, Dissensions, Failure of Love, Abundance of Iniquity; and yet the Gospel triumphs, and will be preached in all the world. (Chrys.)

The Preaching of the Gospel throughout the world is a sign of Christ's coming to judgment. (Jerome.)

15. ὅταν οὖν ἴδητε τὸ βδέλυγμα τῆς ἐρημώσεως, τὸ ῥηθὲν διὰ Δανιὴλ τοῦ προφήτου, ἑστὼς ἐν τόπῳ ἁγίῳ] τόπος ἅγιος is the הַקֹּדֶשׁ (hak-kodesh), "the Holy Place" (Exod xxvi. 33; xxviii. 29. 35, and passim),—i. e. the ναὸς, or part of the Temple where the Golden Altar of incense, &c. stood, and called מָקוֹם (makom), or place κατ' ἐξοχήν, in Isa. xxvi. 21, rendered by the LXX τὸ ἅγιον.

βδέλυγμα, or abominatio, is the Hebrew שֶׁקֶץ (shekkets), which signifies an unclean thing (Lev. vii. 21; xi. 10. 13. 41, 42), and is specially applied to denote an object of idolatrous worship (1 Kings xi. 5. 7. 2 Kings xxiii. 13. 2 Chron. xv. 8), or an act of uncleanness and idolatry (Jer. iv. 1; xiii. 27. Ezek. v. 11).

ἐρήμωσις, or desolation, is the Hebr. שִׁמָּמָה (shemamah), which signifies a devastation that causes astonishment and awe.

βδέλυγμα ἐρημώσεως is a Hebraism for βδέλυγμα ἐρημοῦν, a desolating abomination. On this use of the genitive see above, xxii. 11.

The Prophet Daniel speaks of such a βδέλυγμα in three passages (ix. 27; xi. 31; xii. 11), which appear to refer to three different times.

The prophecies concerning the setting up of "the abomination of desolation" in the holy place, was doubtless fulfilled in the first instance by the setting up of an idol statue of Jupiter in the Temple by Antiochus Epiphanes; cp. 1 Macc. i. 54, where that idol is expressly οὖν ἴδητε τὸ βδέλυγμα τῆς ἐρημώσεως, τὸ ῥηθὲν διὰ Δανιὴλ τοῦ προφήτου, ἑστὸς ἐν τόπῳ ἁγίῳ, ὁ ἀναγινώσκων νοείτω,—[16] τότε οἱ ἐν τῇ Ἰουδαίᾳ φευγέcalled βδέλυγμα ἐρημώσεως ἐπὶ τὸ θυσιαστήριον. Cp. Grinfield here, p. 152.

But the reference to Daniel made by our Lord in this His prophecy concerning Judæa and the World, shows that Daniel's prediction was not yet exhausted, but was to have a further accomplishment

In Jerusalem, and also

In the Church at large.

With respect to Jerusalem, He declares that the Abomination which would make the Temple desolate, or be the cause of its being deserted and destroyed, would stand in "the Holy Place." Cp. Mark xiii. 14, ὅπου οὐ δεῖ.

It cannot therefore mean the Roman armies. The passage in Luke xxi. 20, speaking of Jerusalem encompassed with armies, refers to a different circumstance.

Our Lord also says that it should be a sign and warning to His disciples that they should escape. "Then let them that be in Judæa flee to the mountains" (v. 16).

The passage in Daniel which appears to refer to the siege of Jerusalem by the Romans, and to have been specially in our Lord's eye, is ix. 27[1], which first speaks of the cessation of the daily sacrifice; and, literally interpreted, proceeds thus: "and upon the wing of abominations (i. e. upon the abominable wing), the desolator," and it is added, that it (i. e. God's wrath) shall flow, or be poured out upon the desolator.

This seems to be further described in Dan. xii. 11, which speaks of the taking away of the daily sacrifice, and of the abomination that maketh desolate being set up, where the LXX and Theodotion use the words afterwards employed here by St. Matthew, βδέλυγμα ἐρημώσεως. Their original here is שִׁקּוּץ שֹׁמֵם, i. e. the abomination that maketh desolate.

To what particulars in the siege of Jerusalem does this Prophecy refer?

The daily sacrifice was taken away in the siege of Jerusalem (see Joseph. B. J. vi. 2), three years and a half after the beginning of the war; and this was done by the factious zealots among the Jews themselves, headed by John, who had seized the Temple under plea of defending it and the city. (See Joseph. B. J. v. 6. 1, and v. 3. 1; cp. Ant. x. 11. 7.)

What, then, is the wing of abomination that maketh desolate,—upon which the divine anger was poured?

A Wing (Hebr. canaph) is an emblem of covering, and defence, and love (see Ps. xvii. 8; xxxvi. 7. Ruth ii. 12); and God's presence rested in the Temple, in the Holy of Holies, on the Mercy-seat, upon the Ark, between the Wings of the Cherubim. (Exod. xxv. 20; xxxvii. 9. 1 Kings viii. 7.)

Hence the figure of a Wing is "allocutio admodum familiaris," applied to the Schechinah, or Divine Presence, by other Jewish writers. See Schoettgen, p. 208; e. g. "Nidus est Templum, Israelitæ sunt pulli quibus mater insidet, et gentiles conversi sub alas Schechinæ venisse dicuntur."

And just before our Lord delivered this prophecy, He had said, "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings (Matt. xxiii. 37), but ye would not!"

It is observable that He adds, as a consequence of their refusal to be gathered under His wings, "henceforth your house," i. e. specially your Temple, is left unto you ἔρημος, desolate." Your Holy House; that House of which He had said (xxi. 13), "My house shall be called the house of Prayer, but ye have made it a den of thieves;" ye have polluted it, made it to become abominable; that Holy House which was once the House of God, but being made a den of thieves, is now οἶκος ὑμῶν, your house, the house of you, is left to you desolate, being deserted by God (see Theoph. on Luke xiii. 35); a camp of assassins (λῃσταί, Joseph. B. J. v. 13), the scene of robbery and blood. (See Matt. xxi. 13.)

Therefore "the Wing of abomination that would make desolate" is that power to which the Jews in their trouble and in the Siege looked for shelter and defence, instead of taking refuge under the Wings of the Cherubim and the Wings of Christ.

Our Lord prophesies here, that this abominable and desolating Wing would be in the Temple, in the Holy Place (Matt. xxiv. 15. Mark xiii. 14).

Now we find that in Holy Scripture the word Wing is often used for a military power, on account of its rapid flight, whether for aggression or defence, and because it is, as it were, overspread to shelter those for whom it fights. See Isa. viii. 8. Jer. xlviii. 40; xlix. 22; and Ps. xci. 4, concerning the Lord of Hosts.

Hence, also, in other languages, the alæ or wings of an army. The Wing therefore of which our Lord speaks is that Army of Zealots and Assassins whom the Jews themselves invited to defend them against the Romans, and to whom they resorted for help, and under whom they took refuge and shelter, and which stationed itself and hovered and brooded, as it were, with an abominable wing over the Holy Place during the Siege, and defiled it with all manner of abominations; by whose agency the daily sacrifice ceased and was taken away. (See Dan. ix. 27. Josephus, B. J. vi. 2; x. 11. 30.)

Josephus appears to confirm this interpretation, for he remarks (B. J. iv. 6. 3) that there was an ancient saying then current, that the city would be taken and the Temple destroyed when it had been defiled by the hands of Jews themselves. And this exposition of Daniel's prophecy—for such it appears to be—was adopted even by the Zealots who defiled the Temple under pretence of defending it. (Joseph. B. J. iv. 6. 3. Cp. Hengstenberg, Christol. 708, 709.)

The Jews themselves were always the proper authors of their own miseries. "O Israel, thou hast destroyed thyself" (Hos. xiii. 9). The same principle is applicable to Christian Nations. Their βδέλυγμα ἐρημώσεως has ever been from within.

The interpretation to which these considerations lead is also confirmed by what He had just said concerning Zacharias, the son of Barachias. They had profaned the Temple with his innocent blood (xxiii. 35. 2 Chron. xxiv. 20, 21). And all those things there mentioned were to come on this generation. And fitly; because they were guilty of more than the same sin—in defiling the City and Holy House with innocent blood.

The people had refused to shelter themselves under the Wings of the Lord of Hosts, and under the Wings of Christ; under which they would have been secure from their enemies, for He would have "defended them under His Wings, and they should have been safe under His Feathers" (Ps. xci. 4), as Mede well says (p. 298): "The Wing of abominations (Dan. ix. 27) overwhelmed not the city of Jerusalem, until Christ had long laboured in vain to gather them under His Wings as a Hen gathereth her chickens." But they would not have Jehovah, the Lord of Hosts, for their God; they chose to flee for refuge to the wings of those who changed God's Holy House into a Den of Thieves; they made them to be, as it were, their God, their Idol, their βδέλυγμα; and they whom they thus preferred to God were therefore not an Army of Defence, but an Abomination of Desolation.

In the Christian Church the prophecy of our Lord concerning the setting up of an Abomination of Desolation in the Holy Place appears to have been in part fulfilled by the setting up of the Bishop of Rome upon the Altar of God in St. Peter's Church, in order that, there sitting, he may be adored—on his inauguration to the Papacy, and by the "gross and grievous abominations" (Hooker) of his heretical doctrines[2] and idolatrous worship which he enforces as terms of communion, and so makes the Church desolate. Cp. 2 Thess. ii. 3. The Apostle speaks of this abomination of desolation in the Church when he speaks of the Man of Sin as sitting in the Temple of God. (2 Thess. ii. 4.)

The word "abomination" in Scripture means an idol; and it is called "of desolation," because it is placed in the temple made desolate.

By "abomination of desolation" we may understand, in a spiritual sense, perverse doctrine, which when we see standing in the holy place, that is, the Church, and shewing itself as God, we ought to flee from Judæa to the mountains, that is, the everlasting hills, where is the light of God.

We ought also to be upon the house-top (i. e. for prayer and meditation), where the fiery darts of the wicked cannot reach us, and not to come down from thence, nor to turn back for those things which we have left behind. And we ought to meditate in the spiritual field of Holy Scripture, that we may reap fruit therefrom. (Jerome, Hilary, Bede, in Mark xiii.)

15. Δανιὴλ τοῦ προφήτου] Our blessed Lord, the Divine Prophet, here gives the title, "the Prophet," to Daniel; and condemns by anticipation all who, like Porphyry in ancient times, and some in modern, either reject the Book of Daniel, or ascribe it to another and later author than he[3].

— ὁ ἀναγινώσκων νοείτω] Probably a reference to the words of the Angel to Daniel (ix. 25), "Know therefore and understand."

16. φευγέτωσαν] Not only those in Jerusalem, but they in Judæa also were to fly. The Christians did flee to Pella beyond Jordan, and so were saved (see Euseb. iii. 5. Epiphan. Hær. 29, 30); whereas, on the contrary, many hundreds of thousands of Jews resorted to Jerusalem (against our Lord's warning, Luke xxi. 21) for protection and for the Passover. See above, v. 2, and the summary in Euseb. iii. 5, and his remarks.

This warning was very necessary, for after that the λῃσταί and στασιασταί had for some time established themselves in the Holy Place, they would not allow any one to quit the city. (Josephus, B. J. v. 12.)

[1] וְעַל כְּנַף שִׁקּוּצִים מְשֹׁמֵם The LXX and Theodotion paraphrase this as follows: καὶ, ἐπὶ τὸ ἱερὸν, βδέλυγμα τῶν ἐρημώσεων. Some interpret this, "the desolator shall come on the abominable wing," but it seems that the word 'desolator' is put in apposition with the abominable wing, and describes its character, and that the sentence may be thus paraphrased. And upon the Wing of Abominations that maketh desolate it shall be (i. e. God's wrath shall be), and it shall flow out or be poured out upon the desolator.

[2] This is our Lord's interpretation of the passage when He speaks of the Abomination of Desolation.

[2] "Abominatio hæreticæ perversæque Doctrinæ in Ecclesiâ." St. Jerome, iv. 194. 204.

[3] On the genuineness of the Book of Daniel, see also Bp. Butler's Analogy, ii. c. 7. Dr. Mill's Dissertations, ii. pp. 64—72, in reply to Strauss, and the Works of Hengstenberg, Hävernick, and Dr. Tregelles on this subject.

τωσαν ἐπὶ τὰ ὄρη, (248/II) 17 ὁ ἐπὶ τοῦ δώματος, μὴ καταβαινέτω ἆραι τὰ ἐκ τῆς οἰκίας αὐτοῦ, 18 καὶ ὁ ἐν τῷ ἀγρῷ, μὴ ἐπιστρεψάτω ὀπίσω ἆραι τὰ ἱμάτια αὐτοῦ. (249/II) 19 Οὐαὶ δὲ ταῖς ἐν γαστρὶ ἐχούσαις, καὶ ταῖς θηλαζούσαις, ἐν f Acts 1. 12. ἐκείναις ταῖς ἡμέραις· (250/VI) 20 f προσεύχεσθε δὲ ἵνα μὴ γένηται ἡ φυγὴ ὑμῶν g Dan. 12. 1. χειμῶνος, μηδὲ σαββάτῳ. (251/II) 21 g ἔσται γὰρ τότε θλῖψις μεγάλη, οἵα οὐ γέγονεν ἀπ' ἀρχῆς κόσμου ἕως τοῦ νῦν, οὐδ' οὐ μὴ γένηται. (252/VI) 22 καὶ, εἰ μὴ ἐκολοβώθησαν αἱ ἡμέραι ἐκεῖναι, οὐκ ἂν ἐσώθη πᾶσα σάρξ· διὰ δὲ τοὺς h Mark 13. 21. Luke 17. 23. & 21. 8. ἐκλεκτοὺς κολοβωθήσονται αἱ ἡμέραι ἐκεῖναι. (253/II) 23 h Τότε ἐάν τις ὑμῖν εἴπῃ, i Mark 13. 22. Ἰδοὺ, ὧδε ὁ Χριστὸς, ἢ ὧδε, μὴ πιστεύσητε· (254/VI) 24 i ἐγερθήσονται γὰρ ψευδόχριστοι καὶ ψευδοπροφῆται, καὶ δώσουσι σημεῖα μεγάλα καὶ τέρατα, ὥστε j Job 39. 33. Luke 17. 37. k Mark 13. 24, 26. Luke 21. 25. Isa. 13. 10. Ezek. 32. 7. Joel 2. 31. & 3. 15. Acts 2. 20. πλανῆσαι, εἰ δυνατὸν, καὶ τοὺς ἐκλεκτούς. 25 Ἰδοὺ, προείρηκα ὑμῖν. (255/V) 26 ἐὰν οὖν εἴπωσιν ὑμῖν, Ἰδοὺ, ἐν τῇ ἐρήμῳ ἐστὶ, μὴ ἐξέλθητε· Ἰδοὺ, ἐν τοῖς ταμείοις, μὴ πιστεύσητε. (256/V) 27 ὥσπερ γὰρ ἡ ἀστραπὴ ἐξέρχεται ἀπὸ ἀνατολῶν, καὶ φαίνεται ἕως δυσμῶν, οὕτως ἔσται ἡ παρουσία τοῦ Υἱοῦ τοῦ ἀνθρώπου· (257/V) 28 j ὅπου γὰρ ἐὰν ᾖ τὸ πτῶμα, ἐκεῖ συναχθήσονται οἱ ἀετοί. (258/II) 29 k Εὐ-

17. μὴ καταβαινέτω ἆραι] But let him flee without any regard to his goods, i. e. with all expedition.

For the spiritual meaning of this and the following verse, see on Luke xvii. 31.

18. τὰ ἱμάτια] his pallium, or outer garment.

19. ταῖς ἐν γαστρὶ] See Josephus, B. J. v. 10. 12, 13; vi. 3. Euseb. iii. 6, 7, for the horrors of the siege—especially with regard to mothers and children. Cp. Deut. xxviii. 53—58.

20. σαββάτῳ] A prophecy that this would be the case with some. He speaks to them as yet as Jews who scrupled to travel more than 2000 cubits on that day. (See on Acts i. 12.) Similarly (Luke xxii. 36) He speaks of buying a sword,—not that the Apostles of Christ were to go armed,—but to show the dangers to which they would be exposed, in which other men would procure weapons of defence.

Besides, even though they themselves might have no scruple to travel on the seventh day, yet others would be unwilling to assist them in their flight on that day, on which the gates of cities in Judæa were shut. (Cp. Nehem. xiii. 19—22.)

On the spiritual sense of vv. 19, 20, see Jerome, iv. 193. Greg. M. Hom. i. 12: "Videte ne tunc quæratis peccata vestra fugere, quando jam non licet ambulare. Ne tunc quæramus ad bene agendum vivere, cùm jam compellimur de corpore exire."

These warnings may be understood both literally and spiritually. Woe unto them that are with child, i. e. loaded with a heavy burden, and not able to escape from their pursuers. Woe also to the souls which are yet in travail with the rudiments of faith. (Jerome.) Woe to them that are with child: by these we may understand persons who are loaded with worldly hopes; and by those who give suck, persons who enjoy what they have desired. (Aug. Psalm xxxix.)

Pray that your flight may not be in the winter or on the sabbath, i. e. that you may not be embarrassed by earthly impediments. (Aug. Qu. Ev.)

As far as this refers to the taking of Jerusalem, this might well be their prayer, that they might not be prevented by the law of sabbatical rest or winter's cold from fleeing to the mountains. And spiritually we must pray that our faith may not grow cold, and we ourselves become torpid in doing the work of the Lord; and that our flight, i. e. our death, may not happen when we are in this unhappy state of spiritual winter. (Jerome, Aug., Hilary, Bede.)

21. θλῖψις μεγάλη, οἵα οὐ γέγονεν] as Josephus confesses, B. J. v. 10. 5.

22. ἐκολοβώθησαν] So in the time of Christ's absence in the grave, "the three days" were compressed, as it were, into the smallest possible compass.

From various passages of Holy Scripture it has been inferred that the Church will have to suffer three years and a half of severe suffering before the end. See Bede here.

— οὐκ ἂν ἐσώθη πᾶσα σάρξ] i. e. nulla. A double Hebraism, or πᾶς=none (Ps. cxliii. 2. Jer. ix. 13; li. 43. Luke i. 37). Rom. iii. 9, οὐ πάντως: iii. 20, ἐξ ἔργων νόμου οὐ δικαιωθήσεται πᾶσα σάρξ. (Vorst. Hebr. p. 529. Schroeder. Inst. Hebr. p. 316. Glass. Phil. Sacr. p. 463.)

And on the use of σὰρξ = כָּל־בָּשָׂר for homo, see Vorst. de Hebr. 124.

— διὰ δὲ τοὺς ἐκλεκτούς] Lest any should object, as the heathens did, that these calamities were due to the preaching of Christianity, He says that those days of affliction should only be shortened for the sake of Christians; and if it were not for these Christians, all the nation of the Jews would perish.

Observe that the Evangelist St. John has recorded none of these predictions, lest he should seem to write prophecy from history; for he lived for a long time after the destruction of Jerusalem. But these prophecies are written by the Evangelists who died before the taking of Jerusalem, and saw nothing of what they wrote; so that the splendour of the prophecy might shine forth more brightly. (Chrys.) 24. δώσουσι] A Hebraism—διδόναι, i. q. Hebr. נָתַן (nathan), to give, used for to show (Deut. xiii. 1. Joel ii. 30. See Acts ii. 19, δώσω τέρατα). Cp. Ephes. i. 22; iv. 11. Vorst. Hebr. p. 167.

26. ἰδοὺ, ἐν τῇ ἐρήμῳ] Our Lord passes from the destruction of Jerusalem to the times a little preceding His own Second Advent. And these prophecies are addressed not only to the Apostles, but to us. He declares the characteristics of that future coming, which will not be like the first coming at Bethlehem, in a corner of the world known only to a few, but glorious and universal. Among the signs of His approach will be signs and wonders of Deceivers. He is here speaking of Antichrist and his ministers. And observe, He does not say,—Go out, and believe not, i. e. be not misled by those false wonders. But, Go ye not out after them; for there is great delusion where are the signs of delusion. But these signs will be only local. The wonder of Christ's presence will be universal. It will be like lightning, which requires no preannouncement, but shows itself to all who are sitting in houses and secret chambers in the twinkling of an eye. (Chrys.)

If any would persuade you that Christ is to be found in the wilderness of incredulity and sceptical Philosophy, or in the secret chambers of heresy, believe them not; the faith of Christ shines from east to west in the Catholic Churches of the world. It is absurd to look in a corner for Him Who is the light of the World. (Jerome.)

Our Lord teaches us that He Himself is not limited to any particular place, or visible only to certain individuals, but that He is like lightning shining from East to West. And lest we should be ignorant where to look for Him, He proceeds to add, that wheresoever the Body is, the Eagles will be gathered together; calling His Saints Eagles, soaring, as it were, to Him, the Body, by a spiritual flight. (Hilary.) See note on v. 28.

By the "secret chambers" and the "desert" our Lord signifies the obscure and occult conventicles of heretics; by the name of "the lightning," He may designate first, the manifestation of His Church, by which He now comes and shows Himself in the clouds and darkness of this world (Aug. Quæst. Ev.), and secondly, His Coming to Judgement.

A very interesting Exposition of this and the succeeding prophecies will be found in St. Aug. Epist. 199, and in his Work de Civitate Dei, lib. xx.

28. ὅπου γὰρ ἐὰν ᾖ τὸ πτῶμα, ἐκεῖ συναχθήσονται οἱ ἀετοί] Our Lord had been warning them not to follow false Christs, either to the wilderness or to the secret chamber. And He adds that wherever the πτῶμα is, there the ἀετοί will be. That is, as keen as is the sense of Eagles for the πτῶμα, so sharp-sighted will be true Christians to discern, and flock to, the body of Christ.

He calls Himself here πτῶμα, and He also calls Himself σῶμα in the parallel passage of St. Luke xvii. 37. The reason is, Christ saves us by His death. His body is σῶμα (ὃ σώζει), because it is πτῶμα (ὃ πίπτει). The corn doth not quicken except it fall into the earth and die (John xii. 24), and then it brings forth much fruit. By His fall we rise, by His death we live. Christ's πτῶμα is our σῶμα; and here is an answer to the objection which has been made to our Lord's saying, viz. that Eagles do not feed on dead bodies. But to Christ's Body, which is Himself, in His Church, His Word, His Sacraments—all who are the Eagles of the Gospel will be gathered together, as the Eagle hasteth to its prey (Job ix. 26); they will flock to Him with eagles' wings (Deut xxxii. 11); and they that wait upon Him shall renew their strength, and mount up with wings as Eagles (Isa. xl. 31), even to heaven itself.

The following may be cited in support of the above exposition:

The congregated Eagles are the assembly of Saints and Martyrs. (Chrys.) Christ is calléd the Great Eagle (Rev. xii. 14), and Christians are compared to Eagles because they partake in the royalty of Christ. (Cp. Origen here.) Eagles are the Saints whose youth is renewed like the Eagles' (Ps. ciii. 5); and who, according to the saying of Isaiah (xl. 31), mount up with wings as Eagles, that they may ascend to Christ. (Jerome.) In Christ we are renewed θέως δὲ μετὰ τὴν θλῖψιν τῶν ἡμερῶν ἐκείνων ὁ ἥλιος σκοτισθήσεται, καὶ ἡ σελήνη οὐ δώσει τὸ φέγγος αὐτῆς, καὶ οἱ ἀστέρες πεσοῦνται ἀπὸ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ, καὶ αἱ δυνάμεις τῶν οὐρανῶν σαλευθήσονται. 30 [l] Καὶ τότε φανήσεται τὸ σημεῖον τοῦ Υἱοῦ τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἐν τῷ οὐρανῷ· (259/II) καὶ τότε κόψονται πᾶσαι αἱ φυλαὶ τῆς γῆς, καὶ ὄψονται τὸν Υἱὸν τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἐρχόμενον ἐπὶ τῶν νεφελῶν τοῦ οὐρανοῦ μετὰ δυνάμεως καὶ δόξης πολλῆς· 31 [m] καὶ ἀποστελεῖ τοὺς ἀγγέλους αὐτοῦ μετὰ σάλπιγγος φωνῆς μεγάλης, καὶ ἐπισυνάξουσι τοὺς ἐκλεκτοὺς αὐτοῦ ἐκ τῶν τεσσάρων ἀνέμων, ἀπ' ἄκρων οὐρανῶν ἕως ἄκρων αὐτῶν.

l Rev. 1. 7.

m ch. 16. 41. 1 Cor. 15. 52. 1 Thess. 4. 16.

32 Ἀπὸ δὲ τῆς συκῆς μάθετε τὴν παραβολήν· ὅταν ἤδη ὁ κλάδος αὐτῆς γένηται ἁπαλὸς, καὶ τὰ φύλλα ἐκφύῃ, γινώσκετε ὅτι ἐγγὺς τὸ θέρος· 33 [n] οὕτω καὶ ὑμεῖς, ὅταν ἴδητε πάντα ταῦτα, γινώσκετε ὅτι ἐγγύς ἐστιν, ἐπὶ θύραις.

n James 5. 9.

34 [o] Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, οὐ μὴ παρέλθῃ ἡ γενεὰ αὕτη, ἕως ἂν πάντα ταῦτα γένηται.

o Mark 13. 30, 31. Luke 21. 32, 33.

35 [p] Ὁ οὐρανὸς καὶ ἡ γῆ παρελεύσονται, οἱ δὲ λόγοι μου οὐ μὴ παρέλθωσι.

p ch. 5. 19.

(260/VI) 36 [q] Περὶ δὲ τῆς ἡμέρας ἐκείνης καὶ τῆς ὥρας οὐδεὶς οἶδεν,—οὐδὲ οἱ

q Mark 13. 32.

---

like Eagles, and cast off the plumage of our old age (i. e. of the old man). (Ambrose in Luke xvii.) Christ's Body crucified is that of which it is said, 'My flesh is meat indeed' (John vi. 55). The Eagles, which fly on the wings of the Spirit, flock to this body. To this body the Eagles are gathered who believe Christ to have come in the flesh (1 John iv. 2). They fly to Him as to a dead body, because He died for us, so all the Saints fly to Christ wherever He is, and hereafter, as eagles, will be caught up with Him in the clouds. (St. Aug. Quæst. Ev. in loc. Theophyl. and on Luke xvii. and in Euthym. Zyg. in Luke xvii. 37. Greg. Moral. xxxi. 53.) And as the Eagle bears its young on its wings, so the true children of Christ will mount with Him on Eagles' wings to heaven, Deut. xxxii. 11. Exod. xix. 4. (Chrys.)

Eagles are said to snuff the smell of a body even across the ocean, and to fly to it. How much more ought we and all the flock of believers to hasten to Him Whose light shines from East to West! By the term "body," or, as it is in the original, πτῶμα, or dead body, we may understand the death of Christ, to which we are all called. (Jerome.)

Ὅπου τὸ σῶμα ἐκεῖ κ.τ.λ. τουτέστιν εἰς ἀπάντησίν Μου, εἰς δορυφορίαν καὶ παρὰ πομπήν. Ἀετοὺς γὰρ ὠνόμασε τοὺς δικαίους ὡς ὑψηλοὺς ταῖς ἀρεταῖς καὶ βασιλικούς, σῶμα δὲ Ἑαυτὸν ὡς συναγωγὸν τῶν τοιούτων ἀετῶν· πτῶμα δὲ τὸ σῶμα ἴγραψεν ὁ Ματθαῖος, on which nearly the same words are repeated by Euthymius, adding, that Christ is τροφὴ πνευματικὴ τῶν τοιούτων ἀετῶν καὶ ζωὴ αἰώνιος. (Euthym. Zygab. in Luc. xvii. 37.)

Ὅπου τὸ πτῶμα,—τοῦτ' ἐστιν, ὅπου ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου, ἐκεῖ πάντες οἱ ἅγιοι οἱ κοῦφοι καὶ ὑψιπετεῖς—ὥσπερ σώματος νεκροῦ κειμένου πάντες οἱ σαρκοβόροι ὄρνεις ἐπ' αὐτὸ φέρονται,—οὕτω καὶ τοῦ υἱοῦ τοῦ ἀνθρώπου τοῦ δι' ἡμᾶς νεκρωθέντος καὶ ἀπ' οὐρανοῦ φανέντος πάντες οἱ ἅγιοι συναχθήσονται. (Theophyl. in Luc. xvii.)

The modern notion that Jerusalem is the πτῶμα, and the ἀετοί the Romans, has been rightly rejected by Meyer, p. 398.

29. εὐθέως] "Non ad nostrum computum, sed divinum, in quo dies mille sicut unus dies." Ps. xc. 4. 2 Pet. iii. 8. (Glass. Phil. Sacr. p. 447.) Hence the whole interval between the first Advent and the second, is called in the Scriptures the last time (cp. 1 John ii. 18. Acts ii. 17. 1 Cor. x. 11. Phil. iv. 5. Heb. i. 2. James v. 8. 1 Pet. iv. 7), ἰσχάτη ὥρα, and the Judge is described as at the door. So it is also in the mind of the Church. For example, in the Creed, after "He ascended into heaven, and sitteth on the right hand of God the Father Almighty," we say immediately, "from thence He shall come again to judge the quick and the dead." So the Holy Ghost writes. And we ought to read Prophecy with the same mind as that with which it is written.

The εὐθέως is connected with what has immediately preceded, which by many of the Fathers (e. g. Chrys.) is regarded as a description of the Antichristian persecution in the last days, immediately before the second Advent of Christ.

Besides, observe ἐκείνων,—those days, i. e. those great days of trial, whenever they may be, as ἡμέρα ἐκείνη is that Day, that great Day, the Day of Judgment, whenever it may be. 2 Thess. i. 10.

They who (like Meyer and others) argue from this verse, and from v. 34, that our Lord represents His second coming as immediate, not merely neglect all these considerations, but contradict the express words of Scripture. See xxiv. 6. 2 Thess. ii. 2. 2 Pet. iii. 8, 9.

— ὁ ἥλιος σκοτισθήσεται] See Mark xiii. 24, and on Luke xxi. 25. Rev. vi. 12; viii. 12. These Prophecies appear to have a double sense,

First, to describe commotions and woes at Jerusalem, and the signs physical and political (Joseph. B. J. vi. 5. 3. Euseb. iii. 8) before its destruction;

And secondly, troubles, alarms, and defections in the Church before the End. The sun shall be darkened,—i. e. the solar light of Christ's Truth shall be dimmed, the lunar orb of the Church shall be obscured by heresy and unbelief, and some who once shone brightly as stars in the firmament of the Church shall fall from their place.

30. σημεῖον τοῦ Υἱοῦ τοῦ ἀνθρώπου] (i. e. Υἱὸς τ. ἀ., Glass. Phil. Sac. 250.) Unbelieving men ask Me for a sign from heaven (xii. 38; xvi. 1), they shall then see one, and mourn at the sight. It is supposed by some that this sign will be the cross. The sign of the Son of Man is the cross shining more gloriously than the sun. Christ comes to judgment bearing his wounds, and showing the manner of his ignominious death, that Sin may be self-condemned. Then the tribes of the earth will wail because they pierced Him whom they ought to have adored (Zech. xii. 10. John xix. 37), and did not profit by His death for them. He mentions the Cross to be revealed hereafter in glory, that His disciples may not be ashamed of the cross here. (Hilary, Jerome, Chrys.) They ask for a sign from heaven,—they shall then see Me coming from heaven.

— φυλαὶ τῆς γῆς] Observe γῆς,—i. e. the children of this world as contrasted with those of heaven. So in Rev. xi. 10, "they that dwell on the earth" are they who dote on earthly things, and have not their hearts, their treasure, and their conversation, in heaven. (Cp. Jerome.)

31. τοὺς ἀγγέλους] See Rev. vii. 1.

32. ἀπὸ δὲ τῆς συκῆς] Though these are heavenly things, yet you may learn wisdom concerning them from a common shrub on earth.

— τὴν παραβολήν] its parable,—the parable it is designed to teach. Thus our Lord reminds us, that every thing on earth, however lowly, has to attentive minds its appropriate moral—its parable—concerning the kingdom of heaven. See Matt. vi. 28.

— τὰ φύλλα] its leaves.

33. ἐγγύς ἐστιν] He is near, and even at the door. See v. 30; cp. James v. 9. There is something solemn in the brevity of the phrase, without the nominative expressed.

34. ἡ γενεὰ αὕτη] This, like most other expressions in this prophecy, has a double sense.

First, relative to Jerusalem destroyed by Christ coming to judge it about forty years after this was said,—and

Secondly, to the world at large;

As to the first, it affirms that the generation of the literal Israel then living would not pass before the woes here predicted would fall on Jerusalem;

As to the second, it declares that the spiritual Israel, "the generation of them that seek the Lord" (Ps. xxiv. 16, where γενεὰ is used by LXX. So Ps. lxxii. 5, γενεὰ τῶν υἱῶν σου), would not pass away,—i. e. that the faithful seed of Abraham would survive, and that the blessings of the Gospel would be preserved intact, notwithstanding all trials and afflictions of the Church, even to the End.

The generation of the Church will survive the world; but all other generations, especially that of the tribes of the earth, will pass away. (Origen.)

The generation of the faithful, notwithstanding all the afflictions which he has described, will remain constant even to the end. (Cp. Matt. xvi. 18.) Our Lord says, "heaven and earth shall pass away," to show that His Church is dearer to Him than the elements, whose Lord He is. She is more precious in His eyes than any creature; for all the creation will be dissolved, but the Church will remain unimpaired. (Chrys. Theophyl. in Luke xxi. Mark xiii.)

Christ's words have been already fulfilled in great measure. From what is past, let us believe the future. (Chrys.)

36. ὥρας] See Rev. ix. 15.

— οὐδὲ οἱ ἄγγελοι—εἰ μὴ ὁ Πατήρ μου μόνος] which does not exclude the Son of God as the Agnoëtæ imagined. Christ does not know it as Man, and it is not His office to declare it, as Son of God. See on Mark xiii. 32.

By saying that the Angels do not know it, He checked the dis-r Luke 17. 26. 1 Pet. 3. 20. Gen. 6. 3—5. & 7. 5.

ἄγγελοι τῶν οὐρανῶν, εἰ μὴ ὁ Πατήρ μου μόνος. (261/V) 37 r Ὥσπερ δὲ αἱ ἡμέραι τοῦ Νῶε, οὕτως ἔσται καὶ ἡ παρουσία τοῦ Υἱοῦ τοῦ ἀνθρώπου· 38 ὥσπερ γὰρ ἦσαν ἐν ταῖς ἡμέραις ταῖς πρὸ τοῦ κατακλυσμοῦ τρώγοντες καὶ πίνοντες, γαμοῦντες καὶ ἐκγαμίζοντες, ἄχρι ἧς ἡμέρας εἰσῆλθε Νῶε εἰς τὴν κιβωτὸν, 39 καὶ οὐκ ἔγνωσαν ἕως ἦλθεν ὁ κατακλυσμὸς καὶ ἦρεν ἅπαντας, οὕτως ἔσται

s Luke 17. 36.

καὶ ἡ παρουσία τοῦ Υἱοῦ τοῦ ἀνθρώπου. (262/V) 40 s Τότε δύο ἔσονται ἐν τῷ ἀγρῷ, ὁ εἷς παραλαμβάνεται, καὶ ὁ εἷς ἀφίεται. 41 δύο ἀλήθουσαι ἐν τῷ μυλῶνι, μία παραλαμβάνεται, καὶ μία ἀφίεται.

t ch. 25. 13. Mark 13. 33, 35.

(263/VI) 42 t Γρηγορεῖτε οὖν, ὅτι οὐκ οἴδατε ποίᾳ ὥρᾳ ὁ Κύριος ὑμῶν ἔρχεται·

u 1 Thess. 5. 2. 2 Pet. 3. 10. Luke 12. 39. Rev. 3. 3. & 16. 15.

(264/II) 43 u ἐκεῖνο δὲ γινώσκετε, ὅτι εἰ ᾔδει ὁ οἰκοδεσπότης ποίᾳ φυλακῇ ὁ κλέπτης ἔρχεται, ἐγρηγόρησεν ἄν, καὶ οὐκ ἂν εἴασε διορυγῆναι τὴν οἰκίαν αὐτοῦ· 44 διὰ τοῦτο καὶ ὑμεῖς γίνεσθε ἕτοιμοι· ὅτι, ᾗ ὥρᾳ οὐ δοκεῖτε, ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ v Luke 12. 42, &c.

ἀνθρώπου ἔρχεται. (265/V) 45 v Τίς ἄρα ἐστὶν ὁ πιστὸς δοῦλος καὶ φρόνιμος, ὃν κατέστησεν ὁ κύριος αὐτοῦ ἐπὶ τῆς θεραπείας αὐτοῦ, τοῦ διδόναι αὐτοῖς τὴν x Rev. 16. 15.

τροφὴν ἐν καιρῷ; (266/V) 46 x μακάριος ὁ δοῦλος ἐκεῖνος, ὃν ἐλθὼν ὁ κύριος αὐτοῦ

y ch. 25. 21. Luke 22. 29, 30.

εὑρήσει ποιοῦντα οὕτως· 47 y ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι ἐπὶ πᾶσι τοῖς ὑπάρχουσιν αὐτοῦ καταστήσει αὐτόν· (267/V) 48 ἐὰν δὲ εἴπῃ ὁ κακὸς δοῦλος ἐκεῖνος ἐν τῇ καρδίᾳ αὐτοῦ, Χρονίζει ὁ κύριος μου ἐλθεῖν, 49 καὶ ἄρξηται τύπτειν τοὺς συνz ch. 8. 12. & 13. 42. ch. 25. 30.

δούλους αὐτοῦ, ἐσθίῃ δὲ καὶ πίνῃ μετὰ τῶν μεθυόντων, 50 ἥξει ὁ κύριος τοῦ δούλου ἐκείνου ἐν ἡμέρᾳ ᾗ οὐ προσδοκᾷ, καὶ ἐν ὥρᾳ ᾗ οὐ γινώσκει, 51 z καὶ διχοτομήσει αὐτὸν, καὶ τὸ μέρος αὐτοῦ μετὰ τῶν ὑποκριτῶν θήσει· ἐκεῖ ἔσται ὁ κλαυθμὸς καὶ ὁ βρυγμὸς τῶν ὀδόντων.

a Rev. 19. 7.

XXV. (268/X) 1 a Τότε ὁμοιωθήσεται ἡ βασιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν δέκα παρθένοις, ciples from desiring to know it. He knew that they would be inquisitive concerning it, and restrains their curiosity. The times and seasons are in the Father's own power, and they are not therefore for the Son to reveal. It is in this sense only that He says that they are not known by Him. (Chrys. citing Luke x. 22.)

---

The Arians say that the Son cannot be equal with the Father, if the Son does not know what the Father knows. To whom we reply that by the Son all things were made (John i. 3); and therefore all times are made by Him, and all things are delivered to Him of the Father (Matt. xi. 27), and all the treasures of wisdom are hid in Him (Col. ii. 3). And when He says it is not for His Apostles to know the times and seasons which the Father has put in His own power (Acts i. 7), He intimates that He Himself knows them; but it is not expedient for the Apostles to know them, in order that, being always uncertain when the Judge will come, we may so live every day as if we were to be judged on that day. (Jerome; see v. 44.)

37. Νῶε] He thus describes the suddenness of His coming. So the Apostle, 1 Thess. v. 3, 4. But how is it that He speaks of the tribulation of those days and yet compares them to two periods of luxury? Because such will be the condition of the world, there will be great excess, and surfeiting, and debauchery, and insensibility, imaginary "peace and safety," and yet great tribulation, especially to the godly, as Noah and Lot. Such will be the times of Antichrist. (Chrys.)

40. τότε δύο] Men may make the same profession of faith, but with different hearts. The mill represents the world of secular labour; the housetop a life of contemplation; the field a spiritual office in the Church. (Aug. Ps. xxxvi. cxxxii. Quæst. Ev. Cp. Ambrose, in Luke xvii. 35.)

From all ranks of life some will be taken and some left. (Chrys., who compares Exod. xi. 5.)

Men may labour side by side in the field, but not be rewarded together at the Harvest. Let no one, therefore, plead their profession as an excuse for sin. (Jerome.)

Observe the present tense (παραλαμβάνεται) in these prophecies —denoting Certainty.

42. γρηγορεῖτε] "For such as you are at your death, such will you be at the day of judgment; and therefore, since Death is near, Judgment is near; therefore, watch."

45. πιστὸς δοῦλος καὶ φρόνιμος] Called οἰκονόμος by St. Luke, xii. 42; and these sentences specially concern the οἰκονόμοι, or stewards of Christ's Mysteries,—the Bishops and Pastors of the Church. See St. Ambrose in Luke xii. 49, and Theophyl. on Luke xii. 42. Observe ὁ π. δ. κ. φ., faithfulness is prudence.

Our Lord here is speaking concerning the proper use of worldly substance, and of reason, power, graces, and all other talents common to each man's trust. These words are specially applicable to Evil Rulers, who ought to use all that they possess, whether wisdom, or office, or riches, for the general weal. Hence He requires of them prudence and fidelity. He speaks also to the Clergy, and to the Rich. If, when the Clergy spend larger sums for Christ, you are not willing to make your offerings, where will be your excuse at the great day? On the other hand, He speaks of rewards to the wise and faithful servant, He will set him over all His goods. Who can conceive the blessedness of such an exaltation? (Chrys.)

The layman is a steward of his own property, not less than he is who dispenses the offerings of the Church. As the priest is not authorized to scatter as He chooses what you offer for the poor, neither are you justified in so dealing with your own wealth. For, although you received it as an inheritance from your parents, yet all your wealth is the property of God. And if you exact from others an account of your offerings to them, will not God require, with much greater accuracy, a reckoning of His bounties from you? Do you suppose that He will tolerate waste there? No! what He has committed, He has entrusted on this condition, that you should give to others their meat in due season. He has confided it to you in love, as an occasion for the manifestation of your own love, and that He might thus kindle the love of man for man, and make it burn more warmly. (Chrys.)

He here warns you of the severe punishment due to uncharitableness and self-indulgence. Do you imagine that you have any thing of your own? No! what you have you hold in trust for the good of the poor. Could not God immediately take it from you? Yes; but He graciously lends it to you that you may gain eternal glory by charity. Think not, therefore, your property to be yours, but give to God His own. He hath lent it to you as a talent, that you may trade with it for Heaven. Nothing more offends Him than neglect of our brother's salvation. Thus we forfeit our own. God will be wroth with the evil servant, and command him to be cut asunder: for God makes love the characteristic of His own disciples: and if a man really loves, He will have a tender care for the things of him whom He loves. (Chrys., who quotes 1 Cor. x. 24; xiii. 3. Rom. xv. 2, 3. Phil. i. 23, 24. John xxi. 15, as inculcating the duty of zeal for the salvation of others.)

48. χρονίζει ὁ κύριος] On the proper temper of mind to be cherished with regard to these prophecies, concerning the Second Advent, see St. Augustine's admirable Epistle (cxcix.) to his brother bishop, Hesychius, deserving the careful attention of all students of prophecy. "Veniet dies" (he says, Serm. xlvi.) "quo cuncta adducentur in Judicium. Et ille dies, si sæculo longè est, unicuique homini, vitæ suæ ultimus, prope est. Utrumque latere Deus voluit. Vis non timere diem occultum? Cùm venerit, inveniat te paratum."

51. διχοτομήσει] See 1 Sam. xv. 33. 2 Sam. xii. 31. 1 Chron. xx. 3. Dan. ii. 5; iii. 29, "supplicium in διψύχους conveniens," (Bengel), and for those who make divisions. And yet it cannot mean "utterly destroy," or annihilate; for he is described afterwards as having his part with hypocrites, where is that dreadful weeping, and that endless gnashing of teeth.

CH. XXV. 1. παρθένοις] 1—13, On this Parable, see Greg. M. in Evan. i. 12.

αἵτινες λαβοῦσαι τὰς λαμπάδας αὐτῶν ἐξῆλθον εἰς ἀπάντησιν τοῦ νυμφίου.
2 [b] Πέντε δὲ ἦσαν ἐξ αὐτῶν φρόνιμοι, καὶ πέντε μωραί· 3 αἵτινες μωραὶ b ch. 13. 47—50.
λαβοῦσαι τὰς λαμπάδας αὐτῶν οὐκ ἔλαβον μεθ' ἑαυτῶν ἔλαιον· 4 αἱ δὲ φρόνιμοι ἔλαβον ἔλαιον ἐν τοῖς ἀγγείοις αὐτῶν μετὰ τῶν λαμπάδων αὐτῶν. 5 Χρονί-ζοντος δὲ τοῦ νυμφίου, ἐνύσταξαν πᾶσαι καὶ ἐκάθευδον. 6 [c] Μέσης δὲ νυκτὸς c ch. 24. 31.
κραυγὴ γέγονεν, Ἰδοὺ, ὁ νυμφίος ἔρχεται, ἐξέρχεσθε εἰς ἀπάντησιν αὐτοῦ.
7 Τότε ἠγέρθησαν πᾶσαι αἱ παρθένοι ἐκεῖναι, καὶ ἐκόσμησαν τὰς λαμπάδας αὐτῶν. 8 Αἱ δὲ μωραὶ ταῖς φρονίμοις εἶπον, Δότε ἡμῖν ἐκ τοῦ ἐλαίου ὑμῶν, ὅτι αἱ λαμπάδες ἡμῶν σβέννυνται. 9 Ἀπεκρίθησαν δὲ αἱ φρόνιμοι λέγουσαι, Μήποτε οὐ μὴ ἀρκέσῃ ἡμῖν καὶ ὑμῖν· πορεύεσθε μᾶλλον πρὸς τοὺς πωλοῦντας, καὶ ἀγοράσατε ἑαυταῖς. 10 [d] Ἀπερχομένων δὲ αὐτῶν ἀγοράσαι, ἦλθεν ὁ d Luke 13. 25.
νυμφίος· καὶ αἱ ἕτοιμοι εἰσῆλθον μετ' αὐτοῦ εἰς τοὺς γάμους· καὶ ἐκλείσθη ἡ θύρα. 11 Ὕστερον δὲ ἔρχονται καὶ αἱ λοιπαὶ παρθένοι, λέγουσαι, Κύριε, κύριε, ἄνοιξον ἡμῖν. 12 [e] Ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν, Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, οὐκ οἶδα e ch. 7. 23.
ὑμᾶς. 13 [f] Γρηγορεῖτε οὖν, ὅτι οὐκ οἴδατε τὴν ἡμέραν οὐδὲ τὴν ὥραν, ἐν ᾗ f ch. 24. 42.
ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἔρχεται. (269/11) 14 [g] Ὥσπερ γὰρ ἄνθρωπος ἀποδημῶν Mark 13. 33, 35.
ἐκάλεσε τοὺς ἰδίους δούλους, καὶ παρέδωκεν αὐτοῖς τὰ ὑπάρχοντα αὐτοῦ, Luke 21. 36.
(270/V) 15 καὶ ᾧ μὲν ἔδωκε πέντε τάλαντα, ᾧ δὲ δύο, ᾧ δὲ ἕν, ἑκάστῳ κατὰ τὴν 1 Cor. 16. 13.
ἰδίαν δύναμιν, καὶ ἀπεδήμησεν εὐθέως. 16 Πορευθεὶς δὲ ὁ τὰ πέντε τάλαντα 1 Pet. 5. 8.
λαβὼν εἰργάσατο ἐν αὐτοῖς, καὶ ἐποίησεν ἄλλα πέντε τάλαντα. 17 [h] Ὡσαύτως Rev. 16. 15.
g Luke 19. 12.
h 2 Pet. 3. 18.

Our Lord proceeds to inculcate still farther the need of communicating to the spiritual and temporal good of others. The Virgins must have oil in their lamps. (Chrys.)

By the Virgins He means all in the Visible Church; by the wise who have oil, those who have faith and works; by the foolish who have lamps but no oil, those who appear to confess God with the same faith as the wise, but do not maintain good works. (Jerome.)

They are called Virgins, because the souls of Christians are espoused in baptism as chaste Virgins to Christ (2 Cor. xi. 2), and wait for the coming of the Νυμφίος from heaven, Rev. xxii. 17.

Comp. Milton's beautiful Sonnet "to a Virtuous young Lady," Sonnet ix.

— εἰς ἀπάντησιν] On these nuptial rites, see Jahn, Archæol. § 154. Judges xiv. 11. Ps. xlv. 15, cf. Isa. lxi. 10.

3. λαμπάδας—ἔλαιον] The lamps being probably of earthenware (terra cotta), fitly represent men, who are ὀστράκινα σκεύη, earthen vessels (2 Cor. iv. 7), and yet have the treasures of the gifts of the Holy Spirit, the pure and holy oil (1 John ii. 20. 27) of spiritual grace, which, duly cherished, sheds forth the light of good works (2 Pet. i. 3. 8), which are the fruit of the Spirit, for the glory of God (Matt. v. 16). "Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord, even so saith the Spirit, for their works do follow them" (Rev. xiv. 13). Their lamp never goes out, but burns more brightly in Paradise, where they wait in patience and joy, like wise Virgins, for their Lord till He comes from heaven, to lead His Bride to the Marriage. Rev. xix. 7; xxi. 2. 9; xxii. 17. Cf. Greg. Nazian. Or. xl. pp. 728, 729.

The following is from St. Hilary. The Bridegroom is Christ. Oil is the fruit of good works. The Vessels are our human bodies, within which we ought to have the treasure of a good conscience. The wedding is the institution of a glorious immortality. The delay of the Bridegroom is the time of repentance. The sleep of those who wait is the rest of believers, and the temporary death of all, in the time of repentance. The shout at midnight is the uncertainty of the last trump. The taking of the lamps is the resumption of our bodies. Their light is the manifestation of good works. The wise Virgins are they who have the opportunities given them of working out their salvation, and have prepared themselves for the coming of their Lord. The foolish are they who have only thought of present and worldly things, and have made no provision for the Resurrection, when no one will be benefited by the works of another. Every one must provide oil for his own lamp.

5. ἐνύσταξαν καὶ ἐκάθευδον] They fell asleep in death. (Hilary.) "Dormire enim mori est." So Greg. M. l. c. "expectantium somnus credentium quies est." Cf. 1 Thess. v. 10.

6. μέσης δὲ νυκτός] Suddenly, as it were at midnight, when all are in a sleep of security, the Advent of Christ will be proclaimed by the shout of angels and the sound of the trump. It is a tradition of the Jews that the Messiah will come at midnight, as the destroying Angel came to the Egyptians. (Jerome.)

— νυμφίος] "Christus, die judicii tanquam fur in nocte" (Greg. M.).—ἔρχεται is not found in some ancient MSS. and Versions, and may perhaps be a subsequent addition.

8. αἱ λαμπάδες ἡμῶν σβέννυνται] i. e. they had died in a careless unprofitable condition, and their lamps were gone out, and now it was too late to ask for oil: "Excesserat emendi tempus, nec adveniente die judicii locus erit pœnitentiæ." (Hieron.)

9. μήποτε οὐ μὴ ἀρκέσῃ ἡμῖν καὶ ὑμῖν] "Non possunt in die judicii aliorum virtutes aliorum vitia sublevare." (Hieron.)

— πορ.] δὲ is added by Elz., but is not found in A, B, D, G, H, K, S, V, and other MSS.

No one in the other world will be able to be an advocate for those who are delivered up for judgment by their own works. No one, however charitably disposed, will plead for us then, not because no one will be willing, but because no one will be able. This is what Abraham intimates in the parable (Luke xvi. 29). And although after our death we ourselves may be charitably disposed, as the rich man was for the salvation of his relations, this will be of no avail. He had neglected the beggar at his gate in his lifetime, and he could do nothing for his brethren or himself after his death. (Chrys.)

12. οὐκ οἶδα ὑμᾶς] "Quid prodest voce invocare Quem operibus neges? Novit Dominus qui sunt Ejus (2 Tim. ii. 19) et qui Eum ignorat, ignorabitur ab Eo." At the Great Day, every one will be rewarded according to his works. And although men may be as Virgins, both in purity of body and in the profession of the true faith, yet if they have not oil, they will not be acknowledged by Christ. (Jerome.)

13. γρηγορεῖτε οὖν] As our Lord says, Luke xii. 35, "Let your loins be girded about, and your lights burning, and be ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their Lord." "Semper extremum diem debemus metuere, quem nunquam possumus prævidere." (Greg. M.)

— ὅτι οὐκ οἴδατε τὴν ἡμέραν] "Latet ultimus dies, ut observentur omnes dies." (Aug.)

— ἐν ᾗ—ἔρχεται] omitted by A, B, L, X, and some other MSS. and Versions.

14. ἄνθρωπος ἀποδημῶν] Christ, in leaving this world at His Ascension, gave gifts to men (Eph. iv. 8), and now in Heaven dispenses talents to each severally, of which, when He comes again, He will require an account.

Compare the Parable of the Pounds (Minæ), Luke xix. 11—28, and see notes there. Some of the most remarkable points of difference between these two Parables are as follows,

That of the Talents was spoken to the disciples;

That of the Pounds to the Multitude when they drew near Jerusalem, and thought the kingdom of God should immediately appear, and that our Lord would immediately display Himself as King of the Jews.

In the Parable of the Talents, all men are represented as slaves (δοῦλοι) of Christ, called simply ἄνθρωποι, and among them He distributes His goods; and they who do not improve His gifts, but bury them in the ground, are cast out into outer darkness.

In that of the Pounds, Christ, here called an ἄνθρωπος εὐγενὴς, selects ten servants who are contrasted with His πολῖται—the citizens of this world, who hate Him, and oppose His claims to the Kingdom; and the judgment of the unprofitable servant who hides his pound in a napkin, and the reward of the faithful who remain steadfast in their Lord's absence, notwithstanding the opposition of the world, is combined with the destruction of all His enemies who would not have Him to reign over them.

14—30.] On this Parable see the Homily of Greg. M. in Evang. i. 9, p. 1463.

i Ecclus. 20. 30.

καὶ ὁ τὰ δύο ἐκέρδησε καὶ αὐτὸς ἄλλα δύο. 18 [i] Ὁ δὲ τὸ ἓν λαβὼν ἀπελθὼν ὤρυξεν ἐν τῇ γῇ, καὶ ἀπέκρυψε τὸ ἀργύριον τοῦ κυρίου αὐτοῦ. 19 Μετὰ δὲ χρόνον πολὺν ἔρχεται ὁ κύριος τῶν δούλων ἐκείνων, καὶ συναίρει μετ' αὐτῶν λόγον. 20 Καὶ προσελθὼν ὁ τὰ πέντε τάλαντα λαβὼν, προσήνεγκεν ἄλλα πέντε τάλαντα, λέγων, Κύριε, πέντε τάλαντά μοι παρέδωκας· ἴδε, ἄλλα πέντε j ch. 24. 47. Luke 22. 29, 30.

τάλαντα ἐκέρδησα ἐπ' αὐτοῖς. 21 [j] Ἔφη αὐτῷ ὁ κύριος αὐτοῦ, Εὖ, δοῦλε ἀγαθὲ καὶ πιστὲ, ἐπὶ ὀλίγα ἦς πιστὸς, ἐπὶ πολλῶν σε καταστήσω· εἴσελθε εἰς τὴν χαρὰν τοῦ κυρίου σου. 22 Προσελθὼν δὲ καὶ ὁ τὰ δύο τάλαντα λαβὼν, εἶπε, Κύριε, δύο τάλαντά μοι παρέδωκας· ἴδε, ἄλλα δύο τάλαντα ἐκέρδησα ἐπ' αὐτοῖς. 23 Ἔφη αὐτῷ ὁ κύριος αὐτοῦ, Εὖ, δοῦλε ἀγαθὲ καὶ πιστὲ, ἐπὶ ὀλίγα ἦς πιστὸς, ἐπὶ πολλῶν σε καταστήσω, εἴσελθε εἰς τὴν χαρὰν τοῦ κυρίου σου. 24 Προσελθὼν δὲ καὶ ὁ τὸ ἓν τάλαντον εἰληφὼς, εἶπε, Κύριε, ἔγνων σε ὅτι σκληρὸς εἶ ἄνθρωπος, θερίζων ὅπου οὐκ ἔσπειρας, καὶ συνάγων ὅθεν οὐ διεσκόρπισας· 25 καὶ φοβηθεὶς, ἀπελθὼν ἔκρυψα τὸ τάλαντόν σου ἐν τῇ γῇ· ἴδε, ἔχεις k Luke 19. 22. Jude 15.

τὸ σόν. 26 [k] Ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ ὁ κύριος αὐτοῦ εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Πονηρὲ δοῦλε καὶ ὀκνηρὲ, ᾔδεις ὅτι θερίζω ὅπου οὐκ ἔσπειρα, καὶ συνάγω ὅθεν οὐ διεσκόρπισα· 27 ἔδει οὖν σε βαλεῖν τὸ ἀργύριόν μου τοῖς τραπεζίταις· καὶ ἐλθὼν ἐγὼ ἐκομισάμην ἂν τὸ ἐμὸν σὺν τόκῳ· 28 ἄρατε οὖν ἀπ' αὐτοῦ τὸ τάλαντον, καὶ δότε l ch. 13. 12. Mark 4. 25. Luke 8. 18. & 19. 26. John 15. 2.

τῷ ἔχοντι τὰ δέκα τάλαντα. (271/II) 29 [l] Τῷ γὰρ ἔχοντι παντὶ δοθήσεται, καὶ περισσευθήσεται· ἀπὸ δὲ τοῦ μὴ ἔχοντος καὶ ὃ ἔχει ἀρθήσεται ἀπ' αὐτοῦ. (272/V) m ch. 8. 12. & 13. 42. & 22. 13.

30 [m] Καὶ τὸν ἀχρεῖον δοῦλον ἐκβάλετε εἰς τὸ σκότος τὸ ἐξώτερον· ἐκεῖ ἔσται ὁ κλαυθμὸς καὶ ὁ βρυγμὸς τῶν ὀδόντων.

n Zech. 14. 5. ch. 16. 27. 1 Thess. 4. 16. 2 Thess. 1. 7. Jude 14. Rev. 1. 7.

(273/X) 31 [n] Ὅταν δὲ ἔλθῃ ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἐν τῇ δόξῃ αὐτοῦ, καὶ πάντες οἱ ἅγιοι ἄγγελοι μετ' αὐτοῦ, τότε καθίσει ἐπὶ θρόνου δόξης αὐτοῦ, 32 [o] καὶ o Rom. 14. 10. 2 Cor. 5. 10. Ezek. 34. 17, 20. ch. 13. 49.

συναχθήσεται ἔμπροσθεν αὐτοῦ πάντα τὰ ἔθνη· καὶ ἀφοριεῖ αὐτοὺς ἀπ' ἀλλήλων, ὥσπερ ὁ ποιμὴν ἀφορίζει τὰ πρόβατα ἀπὸ τῶν ἐρίφων· 33 καὶ στήσει p 1 Pet. 1. 4, 9. Heb. 11. 16.

τὰ μὲν πρόβατα ἐκ δεξιῶν αὐτοῦ, τὰ δὲ ἐρίφια ἐξ εὐωνύμων. 34 [p] Τότε ἐρεῖ ὁ βασιλεὺς τοῖς ἐκ δεξιῶν αὐτοῦ, Δεῦτε, οἱ εὐλογημένοι τοῦ Πατρός μου, κληρονομήσατε τὴν ἡτοιμασμένην ὑμῖν βασιλείαν ἀπὸ καταβολῆς κόσμου· 35 [q] ἐπείνασα γὰρ, καὶ ἐδώκατέ μοι φαγεῖν· ἐδίψησα, καὶ ἐποτίσατέ με· ξένος ἤμην, q Isa. 58. 7. Ezek. 18. 7. Eccles. 7. 39. James 1. 27.

καὶ συνηγάγετέ με· 36 γυμνὸς, καὶ περιεβάλετέ με· ἠσθένησα, καὶ ἐπεσκέψασθέ με· ἐν φυλακῇ ἤμην, καὶ ἤλθετε πρός με. 37 Τότε ἀποκριθήσονται αὐτῷ οἱ δίκαιοι, λέγοντες, Κύριε, πότε σὲ εἴδομεν πεινῶντα, καὶ ἐθρέψαμεν; ἢ διψῶντα, καὶ ἐποτίσαμεν; 38 πότε δέ σε εἴδομεν ξένον, καὶ συνηγάγομεν; ἢ γυμνὸν, καὶ περιεβάλομεν; 39 πότε δέ σε εἴδομεν ἀσθενῆ, ἢ ἐν φυλακῇ, καὶ ἤλθομεν r Prov. 19. 17. Heb. 6. 10.

πρός σε; 40 [r] Καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς ὁ βασιλεὺς ἐρεῖ αὐτοῖς, Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ἐφ' ὅσον ἐποιήσατε ἑνὶ τούτων τῶν ἀδελφῶν μου τῶν ἐλαχίστων, ἐμοὶ ἐποιήσατε.

s ch. 7. 23. Luke 13. 27. Ps. 6. 8. 2 Pet. 2. 4.

41 [s] Τότε ἐρεῖ καὶ τοῖς ἐξ εὐωνύμων, Πορεύεσθε ἀπ' ἐμοῦ οἱ κατηραμένοι εἰς τὸ πῦρ τὸ αἰώνιον τὸ ἡτοιμασμένον τῷ Διαβόλῳ καὶ τοῖς ἀγγέλοις αὐτοῦ·

---

21. ἔφη] Some MSS. add δέ.

24. θερίζων—διασκόρπισας] a Hebrew proverb (see Vorst. p. 822). διασκορπίζω is the Hebrew זָרָה (paradh), or זָרָה (zarah), (Ruth iii. 2). Chald. זְרַי (berar), 'ventilare,' 'vannare,' to winnow. Dan. ii. 35.

25. φοβηθείς] See on Luke xix. 20.

26. ὀκνηρέ] ὄκνος, φυγὴ πόνων. (Phavorin.)

Observe, it is not only the sinner who is cast into outer darkness, but he also who does not do good. Nothing is so pleasing to God as edification. Let us listen to the warning while we have time; let us have oil in our lamps, and improve our talents in the salvation of others, and for the glory of God. (Chrys.)

27. τοῖς τραπεζίταις—τόκῳ] This question of our Lord may throw some light on the question concerning the lawfulness of usury. On which see Bp. Andrewes, "De Usuris," ed. 1629. Bp. Sanderson, "Case of Usury," ii. 132; iii. 121; v. 127. Grotius, in Luc. vi. 34. Gerhard's Loci Theol. vi. p. 645. Pocock's Life, p. 346. One of our Lord's reputed sayings was γίγνισθε δόκιμοι τραπεζῖται. Origen in Matth. xxii. See Fabric. Cod. Apoc. p. 330.

31. ἅγιοι] Omitted by B, D, L.

33. ἐρίφια] "Sheep," says Chrys., "are profitable by their wool, their milk, their offspring. Not so goats; they represent unfruitfulness of life." Euthym. adds δυσωδία, in opposition to the sweet and fragrant sacrifice of holy and charitable deeds. See Phil. iv. 18, ὀσμὴν εὐωδίας θυσίαν δεκτὴν,—also ἀσέλγεια in opposition to chastity and holiness of life. "Ipsi mali dæmones hirci שְׂעִירִים Hebræis dicuntur." (Rosen.)

34, 35. δεῦτε, οἱ εὐλογημένοι—ἐπείνασα γάρ] See St. Aug. Serm. xviii. 4 and lx. 9, and Dr. Barrow's Sermon xxxi. vol. ii. p. 153, "On the Duty and Reward of Bounty to the Poor."

41. τὸ πῦρ τὸ αἰώνιον] the fire, that is everlasting; much stronger than πῦρ αἰώνιον.

— τὸ πῦρ τὸ αἰώνιον τὸ ἡτοιμασμένον τῷ Διαβόλῳ]

In verse 34 He describes the joys of heaven as a κληρονομία prepared for men by God even from the beginning. But the pains of hell are not described as prepared for men, but for the Devil and his Angels. God designs eternal happiness for men; they incur eternal misery by their own acts.

42 ἐπείνασα γὰρ, καὶ οὐκ ἐδώκατέ μοι φαγεῖν· ἐδίψησα, καὶ οὐκ ἐποτίσατέ με· 43 ξένος ἤμην, καὶ οὐ συνηγάγετέ με· γυμνὸς, καὶ οὐ περιεβάλετέ με· ἀσθενὴς καὶ ἐν φυλακῇ, καὶ οὐκ ἐπεσκέψασθέ με. 44 Τότε ἀποκριθήσονται καὶ αὐτοὶ, λέγοντες, Κύριε, πότε σὲ εἴδομεν πεινῶντα, ἢ διψῶντα, ἢ ξένον, ἢ γυμνὸν, ἢ ἀσθενῆ, ἢ ἐν φυλακῇ, καὶ οὐ διηκονήσαμέν σοι; 45 Τότε ἀποκριθήσεται αὐτοῖς, λέγων, Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ἐφ' ὅσον οὐκ ἐποιήσατε ἑνὶ τούτων τῶν ἐλαχίστων, οὐδὲ ἐμοὶ ἐποιήσατε. 46 [t] Καὶ ἀπελεύσονται οὗτοι εἰς κόλασιν αἰώνιον, οἱ δὲ t John 5. 29. Dan. 12. 2.
δίκαιοι εἰς ζωὴν αἰώνιον.

XXVI. (274/1) 1 [a] Καὶ ἐγένετο, ὅτε ἐτέλεσεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς πάντας τοὺς λόγους a Mark 14. 1. Luke 22. 1.
τούτους, εἶπε τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ, 2 Οἴδατε ὅτι μετὰ δύο ἡμέρας τὸ πάσχα γίνεται· καὶ ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου παραδίδοται εἰς τὸ σταυρωθῆναι. (275/VI) 3 [b] Τότε b Ps. 2. 2. John 11. 47. Acts 4. 25, &c. συνήχθησαν οἱ ἀρχιερεῖς καὶ οἱ γραμματεῖς καὶ οἱ πρεσβύτεροι τοῦ λαοῦ εἰς τὴν αὐλὴν τοῦ ἀρχιερέως, τοῦ λεγομένου Καϊάφα, 4 καὶ συνεβουλεύσαντο ἵνα τὸν Ἰησοῦν δόλῳ κρατήσωσι καὶ ἀποκτείνωσιν· 5 [c] ἔλεγον δέ, Μὴ ἐν τῇ c Mark 14. 2.
ἑορτῇ, ἵνα μὴ θόρυβος γένηται ἐν τῷ λαῷ.

(276/1) 6 [d] Τοῦ δὲ Ἰησοῦ γενομένου ἐν Βηθανίᾳ ἐν οἰκίᾳ Σίμωνος τοῦ λεπροῦ, d Mark 14. 3. John 11. 1, 2. & 12. 3.
7 προσῆλθεν αὐτῷ γυνὴ ἀλάβαστρον μύρου ἔχουσα βαρυτίμου, καὶ κατέχεεν

---

44. ἀποκριθήσονται] Some MSS. add αὐτῷ, but the balance of evidence is against it.

46. αἰώνιον] The same word is used by our Future Judge to describe the duration of heavenly joys and of hell torments. Cf. Rev. xx. 10. Dan. xii. 2, where the word αἰώνιος is used twice in the LXX as it is here by our Lord. In the original the word עוֹלָם (olam) is used twice. Indeed, our Lord's words here are a solemn iteration of those in Dan. xii. 2, πολλοὶ τῶν καθευδόντων ἀναστήσονται, οἱ μὲν εἰς ζωὴν αἰώνιον, οἱ δὲ εἰς αἰσχύνην αἰώνιον. The punishment of hell and the joys of heaven are both of them eternal. (Aug. de Fide et Op. 15; de Civ. Dei, xix. 11; xxi. 3—11. Greg. Moral. xxxiv.)

The word αἰὼν (as was observed above, xii. 32) corresponds to the Hebrew עוֹלָם (olam), which appears to be derived from the unused root עָלַם (alam), to conceal; so that the radical idea in αἰὼν, as used in Holy Scripture, is indefinite time; and thus the word αἰὼν comes to be fitly applied to this world, of which we do not know the duration; and also to the world to come, of which no end is visible, because that World is Eternal. This consideration may perhaps check speculations concerning the duration of future Punishments. What the sense of the Christian Church has been on this subject we know from its sentiments expressed concerning Origen, who denied their Eternity. (See Theophyl. here.) Cf. Minucius Felix. § 35. St. Aug. de Spiritu, c. 56. Lact. vii. 21. Prosper. de Vit. Cont. ii. 12, and St. Hippolytus, Philosophumena, p. 338, and de Universo, p. 221, ed. Fabric. St. Clem. Rom. i. 25. Cf. Dr. Horbery's Treatise on this subject. Works, vol. ii. 7—273, ed. Oxf. 1828.

CH. XXVI. 2. τὸ πάσχα] Hebr. פֶּסַח (pesah), transitus, from root פָּסַח (pasah), transiit (Exod. xii. 11[1]). As the sufferings of our Blessed Lord, the Lamb of God, were typified by the death of the Paschal Lamb, a bone of which was not to be broken, and whose blood was to be sprinkled on the door-posts of the houses that the destroying Angel might pass over them when he smote the Egyptians and delivered Israel, it is not surprising that some of the Greek and Latin Fathers connected the Passover with the word πάσχω, to suffer, and with the sufferings of Christ, the true Passover, Whose blood reconciles us to God, and saves us from everlasting death, and purchases for us life eternal. Almighty God is the Author of Language, and there may be a superintending providence, and even a prophetic character in its uses; and there seems to be a paronomasia in Luke xxii. 15, ἐπιθυμίᾳ ἐπεθύμησα τοῦτο τὸ πάσχα φαγεῖν μεθ' ὑμῶν, πρὸ τοῦ με παθεῖν. The Holy Spirit loves to use this figure in the Sacred Oracles. See Gen. ix. 6. 27; xviii. 27; and the numerous other instances at the close of Dr. Wilson's Bible Student's Guide. Lond. 1850, p. DXCI.

After His description of the last Judgment, and of future rewards and punishments, our Lord speaks of His own Passion. Thus He suggests the question,—If such glory is in store for you hereafter, why should you fear present suffering? He does not say,—You know that after two days I shall be delivered to be crucified; but—After two days is the Passover, and the Son of Man shall be delivered, showing that what would take place was a Mystery, a Festival celebrated for the salvation of the World; and that His Passion is our Liberation from innumerable woes; by mentioning the Passover, He reminds them of the deliverance of old from Egypt.

He thus showed also that all that He suffered He foreknew; and that He suffered by His own will. (Chrys., and on v. 17.)

3. ἀρχιερέως, τοῦ λεγομένου Καϊάφα] It was necessary to record his name; for the high-priests were now frequently displaced by the Romans, and others put in their room. (See Joseph. B. J. xviii. 2.) Annas had been deposed A.D. 14 by Valerius Gratus; then Ismael was appointed; then Eleazar, son of Annas; then Simon; then (A.D. 26) Joseph or Caiaphas, son-in-law of Annas, to the year A.D. 36. (Joseph. Ant. xviii. 4.)

5. μὴ ἐν τῇ ἑορτῇ] Observe Christ's power over His enemies in His death. Oftentimes when they endeavoured to take Him, He escaped from them, for He would not then be taken (John x. 39). But at the time when they had desired not to take Him, viz. at the Passover (cp. Luke xxii. 6), then He willed to be taken, and they, though unwilling, took Him (Euthym.); and so they fulfilled the Prophecies in killing Him Who is the true Passover, and in proving Him to be the Christ. (Cp. Leo, Serm. lviii. Theophyl. in Marc. xiv. 2.)

Observe also: the Jews were accustomed to have executions at the Passover in order to inspire terror into a larger number of people then collected at Jerusalem, and for a salutary example to them. (Rosen.) They now desire to deviate from their usual practice. But God does not allow them to do so—in order that the Death of Christ may be more public and illustrious.

— μὴ θόρυβος] Not because it was a holy season.

Hence it appears that they had no religious scruples against transacting judicial business at the Passover.

6. τοῦ δὲ Ἰησοῦ γενομένου] Here is an instance of recapitulation. See above on xx. 29. This incident took place some days before our Lord's betrayal, but St. Matthew introduces it here to mark the contrast between Mary and Judas. Judas murmured against her (John xii. 4) because she had bestowed on our Lord the offering of this precious ointment which might have been sold for three hundred pence (Mark xiv. 5), and He sells his Master for thirty pieces of silver, or sixty pence. See xxvii. 3, and on Mark xiv. 5.

— ἐν Βηθανίᾳ] the Place of Dates, of Palms; see above, Matt. xxi. 17; hence the βαΐα φοινίκων (John xii. 13) strewed in our Lord's path the following day.

— Σίμωνος τοῦ λεπροῦ] Not that he was a leper then, but who had been a leper; and perhaps he had been healed of his leprosy by Christ, as Matthew is called the Publican (x. 3), though he had been called by Christ from being a Publican to be an Apostle. Cp. on Mark ii. 26.

7. γυνὴ] Mary, the sister of Martha and Lazarus. John xii. 2—8.

— ἀλάβαστρον] A cruse of alabaster, ἀγγεῖον μυροθήκον.

---

[1] The following account of the use of the word πάσχα in the N. T. is from Kuinoel.

"Vocabulum πάσχα est origine Hebraicum, פֶּסַח Exod. xii. 11, et prop.

"Notat transitum, transgressum, a פָּסַח, transiit, pepercit, liberavit, unde Symmach. Ex. l. c. vertit ὑπέρβασις· et Joseph. Ant. ii. 14. 6. usus est voc. ὑπερβασία.

"Deinde πάσχα dicebatur agnus paschalis, quotannis à Judæis die XIV. mensis Nisan, post occasum solis, cùm ergo jam esset dies XV. mensis Nisan, comedendus, vid. Exod. xii. 6. Num. ix. 5, agnus paschalis hoc nomine insigniebatur, quia cruor ejus, quo imbuti erant postes forium domuum Israelitarum ex Ægypto migraturorum, defendebat ab iis cædem, ita, ut angelus mortis, Ægyptiorum primogenitos percutiens, Israelitarum domos præteriret, vid. interpp. ad Ex. l. c.

"Denique πάσχα nominabatur etiam ut b. l. ipsum Paschatos festum, quòd septem diebus, quibus Judæi vesci debebant panibus infermentatis, vid. Deut. xvi. 6. Exod. xii. 18, absolvebatur, unde et festum ipsum vocabatur τὰ ἄζυμα v. 17. ἡ ἑορτὴ τῶν ἀζύμων Luc. xxii. 1. γίνεται vim habet futuri γενήσεται, nostis post biduum Pascha celebrari, etenim γίνεσθαι positum est pro ἄγεσθαι, agitari, celebrari, atque respondet Hebr. עָשָׂה 2 Regg. xxiii. 22, ubi Alex. οὐκ ἐγενήθη τὸ πάσχα τοῦτο."

e Mark 14. 4, &c. John 12. 4. ἐπὶ τὴν κεφαλὴν αὐτοῦ ἀνακειμένου. 8 e Ἰδόντες δὲ οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ, ἠγανάκτησαν, λέγοντες, Εἰς τί ἡ ἀπώλεια αὕτη; 9 ἠδύνατο γὰρ τοῦτο πραθῆναι πολλοῦ, καὶ δοθῆναι τοῖς πτωχοῖς. 10 Γνοὺς δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Τί κόπους παρέχετε τῇ γυναικί; ἔργον γὰρ καλὸν εἰργάσατο εἰς ἐμέ· 11 f πάντοτε γὰρ τοὺς πτωχοὺς ἔχετε μεθ' ἑαυτῶν· g ἐμὲ δὲ οὐ πάντοτε ἔχετε· (277/IV) 12 βαλοῦσα γὰρ αὕτη τὸ μύρον τοῦτο ἐπὶ τοῦ σώματός μου, πρὸς τὸ ἐνταφιάσαι με ἐποίησεν· 13 ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅπου ἐὰν κηρυχθῇ τὸ εὐαγγέλιον τοῦτο ἐν ὅλῳ τῷ κόσμῳ, λαληθήσεται καὶ ὃ ἐποίησεν αὕτη εἰς μνημόσυνον αὐτῆς.

f Deut. 15. 11. John 12. 8.

g ch. 18. 20. & 28. 20.

h Mark 14. 10, &c. Luke 22. 3, &c.

(278/II) 14 h Τότε πορευθεὶς εἷς τῶν δώδεκα, ὁ λεγόμενος Ἰούδας Ἰσκαριώτης, πρὸς τοὺς ἀρχιερεῖς, 15 εἶπε, i Τί θέλετέ μοι δοῦναι, κἀγὼ ὑμῖν παραδώσω αὐτόν; Οἱ δὲ ἔστησαν αὐτῷ τριάκοντα ἀργύρια· 16 καὶ ἀπὸ τότε ἐζήτει εὐκαιρίαν ἵνα αὐτὸν παραδῷ.

i Zech. 11. 12. ch. 27. 3. Luke 12. 15. 1 Tim. 6. 9.

17 Τῇ δὲ πρώτῃ τῶν ἀζύμων προσῆλθον οἱ μαθηταὶ τῷ Ἰησοῦ λέγοντες, Ποῦ θέλεις ἑτοιμάσωμέν σοι φαγεῖν τὸ πάσχα; 18 Ὁ δὲ εἶπεν, Ὑπάγετε εἰς τὴν πόλιν πρὸς τὸν δεῖνα, καὶ εἴπατε αὐτῷ, Ὁ διδάσκαλος λέγει, Ὁ καιρός μου ἐγγύς ἐστι, πρὸς σὲ ποιῶ τὸ πάσχα μετὰ τῶν μαθητῶν μου. 19 Καὶ ἐποίησαν οἱ μαθηταὶ ὡς συνέταξεν αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς· καὶ ἡτοίμασαν τὸ πάσχα.

j Mark 14. 17, &c. Luke 22. 14. John 13. 21.

20 j Ὀψίας δὲ γενομένης ἀνέκειτο μετὰ τῶν δώδεκα· (279/IV) 21 καὶ, ἐσθιόντων αὐτῶν, εἶπεν, Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι εἷς ἐξ ὑμῶν παραδώσει με. (280/I) 22 καὶ (Euthym.) "Unguenta optimè servantur in alabastris." (Plin. N. H. xiii. 3.) "Nardi parvus onyx eliciet cadum." (Horat. Od. iv. 12. 17.) See further on Mark xiv. 3.

8. ἀπώλεια] A fit question for the υἱὸς ἀπωλείας, John xvii. 12.

11. ἐμὲ δὲ οὐ πάντοτε ἔχετε] How then could He afterwards say to His Apostles, "I am with you always?" Matt. xxviii. 20. Because He is now speaking of His corporal presence. See 2 Cor. v. 16. (Jerome.) My Divine Presence will be with you for ever, but you will not always have My human body, which she has anointed.

Can He then be said to be present and carnally in the Holy Eucharist, which is to be celebrated in His Church even till He come? (1 Cor. xi. 26.) And may not this saying be designed as a caution against such a notion concerning that Sacrament which He was now about to institute?

12. πρὸς τὸ ἐνταφ.] to embalm Me, from a divinely vouchsafed instinct and presentiment of My death; a reward for her love.

13. εὐαγγέλιον—ὅλῳ τῷ κόσμῳ] When St. Matthew wrote and published this prophecy, the Gospel was not preached in the whole world, and it was not a century old. But it has now been preached for eighteen centuries, and has been circulated in many hundreds of Versions in the principal languages and countries of the world; and in this fulfilment of the prophecy we see an evidence of its truth.

15. ἔστησαν] An allusion to the words of the prophecy, Zech. xi. 12 (Scholef.), "they weighed for my price." See below, xxvii. 9.

— τριάκοντα ἀργύρια] thirty shekels; the price of a slave. Exod. xxi. 32. (Jerome.) Comp. also the sale of Joseph by his brethren, Gen. xxxvii. 28.

Judas wished thus to compensate in part what he thought he had lost by the effusion of the ointment. (Jerome.) See on xxvii. 3.

Rationalist Interpreters object that the conduct of Judas is incredible in selling his Master for so paltry a sum; but they forget that when Satan has entered into a man's heart he triumphs over his victim by infatuating him, and making him sell his birthright for a mess of pottage.

A respectable Roman Catholic Expositor calls this the objection of "many Protestant Interpreters." Arnoldi, p. 500, and see p. 576, "Recent Protestant Expositors pronounce the Gospel account of the sealing of the sepulchre (Matt. xxvii. 66), and the bribery of the soldiers to be legendary, because if it had been true, the women would never have come to embalm the Body." Into that contempt has Rationalism brought the name of Protestant!

17. τῇ πρώτῃ τῶν ἀζύμων] See on Mark xiv. 12.

They reckon the beginning of the day from the evening. They come on the fifth day of the week. Our Lord ate the Passover in order to show, even to the end, that He did not contravene the Law. He has no place of His own where to lay His head, and therefore He sends to some persons unknown. (Chrys.)

— φαγεῖν τὸ πάσχα] This and other passages,—xxvi. 19. Mark xiv. 12—16. Luke xxii. 7, 8, 11, 13, 15,—prove that our Lord did not (as some suppose[1]) anticipate the paschal meal by one day, for such anticipation would have been a breach of the Law which He came to fulfil. As Tertullian says (c. Marc. iv. 39), "O Legis destructorem qui concupierat etiam in Paschâ servare!" (Luke xxii. 7.)

But He ate the paschal Lamb with His Disciples on the day prescribed by the Law, i. e. on the 14th of Nisan, in the evening. (Exod. xii. 6. 17, 18. Deut. xvi. 6. Lev. xxiii. 5. Numb. xxviii. 16.)

On the difficulty supposed to arise from John xviii. 28, see note on that passage. It may be objected, "Was not Christ Himself the true Passover?" (1 Cor. v. 7.) And being so, why did He eat the Passover, and not suffer as the Passover, on the day appointed by the Levitical Law for killing the Passover, i. e. on the 14th of Nisan, as some say that He did? See Routh, R. S. i. 160. 168, 169; and St. Hippolytus and the Church of Rome, p. 67, 68, note.

Our Lord instituted the Blessed Sacrament in commemoration of His own death on the day when the Lamb was killed; and He spoke of His Body as already broken, and of His Blood already shed for the sins of the whole world. Cp. Theophyl., who says on Matt. xxviii., "Our Lord, when He instituted His Supper, said to His Disciples, 'Take, eat, this is My Body;' so that He may be said to have then offered Himself, for no one eats what has not first been killed." And it is well said by Remigius, "If the Paschal Lamb was a type of Christ, how was it He did not suffer on the day when the Paschal Lamb was killed,—i. e. on the 14th day of the month? The fact is, He did institute the mysteries of His Flesh and Blood on that night, and on that night He was seized and bound by the Jews, and so consecrated the commencement of His sacrifice."

His agony in the Garden may rightly be called a part of His Passion. The cup of His Passion (v. 39) was then presented to His lips, He suffered then by anticipation. He then said, "My soul is sorrowful unto death" (Matt. xxvi. 38), and, "the Hour is come." Matt. xxvi. 45. Mark xiv. 41. John xii. 23; xvii. 1.

Perhaps also it may be said that, in a special sense, our Lord, by suffering from Thursday at Gethsemane, to Friday on Calvary, fulfilled the command that the Passover should be slain between the two evenings. (Exod. xii. 6. Numb. ix. 3; xxviii. 16.)

18. ποιῶ τὸ πάσχα] A Hebraism. See Vorst. p. 163. St. Luke, xxii. 11, has φάγω τ. π.

20. ἀνέκειτο] reclined,—a deviation from the attitude prescribed Exod. xii. 11. God had commanded the attitude of standing in the reception of the paschal meal; the Jewish Church having come to the Land of Promise, and being there at rest, reclined at that festival, and our Lord conformed to that practice,—a proof that positive commands of a ceremonial kind, even of Divine origin, are not immutable if they are not in order to a permanent end. See Hooker, iii. x. and iii. xi. and iv. xi., and Bp. Sanderson, Prælect. iii. vol. iv. p. 54, 55; ii. 159; iii. 285. 301.

— μετὰ τῶν δώδεκα] Cp. Mark xiv. 17. Luke xxii. 14. It is generally supposed by the Fathers that Judas, whose sin was not yet public, was admitted to partake of the Holy Eucharist. See the authorities in à Lap. and Bp. Taylor, Life of Christ, Disc. xix. p. 435, and below on John xiii. 30, and Bengel here, and Williams, Holy Week, p. 420.

21. εἷς ἐξ ὑμῶν παραδώσει με] Observe how tenderly He deals

---

[1] e. g. "Caussa vero, ob quam Christus cœnam Paschalem prius celebraverit, incerta est. Probabilitate tamen magnopere sese commendat eorum opinio, qui statuunt Sadducæos s. Karæos l. scripturarios, soli verbo scripto adhærescentes et cum iis facientes, etiam hoc anno Christi emortuali, ut sæpiùs, agnum mactasse unum diem priùs quàm Pharisæos et Judæorum plurimos, nempe die Jovis, cùm hic dies iis esset XIV. mensis Nisan, quòd novilunium hujus mensis uno die citius constituissent, atque adeo mensem per unum diem prius incepissent, eosque Jesum, qui mortem suam instantem prævideret Joh. xiii. 1. Luc. xxii. 15, esse secutum." (Kuin., so also Rosenm.) On the other hand, see Patrit. de Evang. lib. iii. diss. 50.

λυπούμενοι σφόδρα, ἤρξαντο λέγειν αὐτῷ ἕκαστος αὐτῶν, Μήτι ἐγώ εἰμι, Κύριε; (281/II) 23 k Ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν, Ὁ ἐμβάψας μετ' ἐμοῦ ἐν τῷ τρυβλίῳ τὴν χεῖρα, οὗτός με παραδώσει. 24 Ὁ μὲν Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ὑπάγει, [1] καθὼς γέγραπται περὶ αὐτοῦ· οὐαὶ δὲ τῷ ἀνθρώπῳ ἐκείνῳ, δι' οὗ ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου παραδίδοται· (282/VI) καλὸν ἦν αὐτῷ εἰ οὐκ ἐγεννήθη ὁ ἄνθρωπος ἐκεῖνος. (283/X) 25 Ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ Ἰούδας ὁ παραδιδοὺς αὐτὸν, εἶπε, Μήτι ἐγώ εἰμι, ῥαββί; λέγει αὐτῷ, Σὺ εἶπας.

k Mark 14. 20, 21. Luke 22. 21, 22.

1 Ps. 22. 1—3. Isa. 53. 8. Dan. 9. 26. Zech. 13. 7.

(284/I) 26 m Ἐσθιόντων δὲ αὐτῶν, λαβὼν ὁ Ἰησοῦς τὸν ἄρτον, καὶ εὐλογήσας, ἔκλασε καὶ ἐδίδου τοῖς μαθηταῖς, καὶ εἶπε, Λάβετε, φάγετε, τοῦτό ἐστι τὸ σῶμά μου. (285/II) 27 Καὶ λαβὼν τὸ ποτήριον, καὶ εὐχαριστήσας, ἔδωκεν αὐτοῖς, λέγων, Πίετε ἐξ αὐτοῦ πάντες, 28 τοῦτο γάρ ἐστι τὸ αἷμά μου, τὸ τῆς καινῆς διαθήκης, τὸ περὶ πολλῶν ἐκχυνόμενον εἰς ἄφεσιν ἁμαρτιῶν. 29 n Λέγω δὲ ὑμῖν, ὅτι οὐ m Mark 14. 22, &c. Luke 22. 19, 20.

n Mark 14. 25. Luke 22. 18.

---

with the traitor. Before supper He washed His feet; and He did not say, he will betray Me, but "one of you,"—in order to give him an opportunity for repentance; and He terrifies them all, in order that He may save one. And when He produced no effect on his insensibility by this indefinite intimation, yet, still desirous of touching his heart, He draws the mask off from the traitor, and endeavours to rescue him by denunciations. (Chrys., and on v. 26.)

23. τρυβλίῳ] See Ps. xli. 9; Jv. 13. The word τρυβλίον had been always used by the LXX for Hebr. קְעָרָה (kearah); from root (not used) קָעַר (kaar), 'to be deep;' cp. Lat. trulla.

25. σὺ εἶπας] yes. Exod. x. 29. See xxvi. 64, and Beng. there. Mark xv. 2, σὺ λέγεις.

26. τὸν ἄρτον] The one and same loaf for all; probably one of the loaves or cakes provided for the Paschal meal.

He had already prepared them for this action by saying (John vi. 35), Ἐγώ εἰμι ὁ Ἄρτος τῆς ζωῆς: and 51, Ἐγώ εἰμι ὁ Ἄρτος ὁ ζῶν, καὶ ὁ Ἄρτος ὃν Ἐγὼ δώσω ἡ σάρξ μου ἐστὶν ἣν Ἐγὼ δώσω ὑπὲρ τῆς τοῦ κόσμου ζωῆς: and 58, ὁ τρώγων τοῦτον τὸν ἄρτον ζήσεται εἰς τὸν αἰῶνα. See Notes on that chapter of St. John.

Besides, this consecration of bread and wine had been already prefigured by Melchizedeck, the Priest of the Most High God, the type of CHRIST (Ps. cx. 4. Heb. vii. 1—15) before the Law; who blessed Abraham, and who brought forth bread and wine (Gen. xiv. 18),—the first mention of bread in Holy Scripture. And so, in a certain sense, the mysteries of the Gospel were before the Law,—as the priesthood of Melchizedeck, the type of Christ, was before that of Aaron, who was blessed in Abraham (Heb. vii. 7—9) by Melchizedeck, and so was inferior to him. Hence St. Jerome thus speaks: "After the typical Passover was over, and He had eaten the flesh of the Lamb with His Apostles, He takes bread, which strengthens man's heart, and passes to the true sacrament of the Passover, in order that as Melchizedeck the Priest of the Most High God had done when He offered bread and wine, so He Himself might represent the truth of His own body and blood."

— εὐλογήσας, ἔκλασε] Luke xxii. 19, and 1 Cor. xi. 24, εὐχαριστήσας ἔκλασε, and τοῦτό μου ἐστὶ τὸ σῶμα (for τοῦτό ἐστι τὸ σῶμά μου) τὸ ὑπὲρ ὑμῶν κλώμενον.

He brake the bread "post benedictionem; contra transubstantiationem. Accidens enim, quale post benedictionem panem esse volunt, non potest frangi." (Beng.)

On this subject see also Bp. Cosin, Historia Transubstantiationis Papalis. Works, vol. iv. pp. 1—147.

— ἐδίδου] ἐδίδου τὸν ἄρτον, but v. 27, ἔδωκε τὸ ποτήριον. He was distributing the one to each. He gave the other once for all to all. (Humphry.)

— λάβετε, φάγετε] This He said and did in order to transform the Levitical sacrifice prefiguring His death into an Evangelical Sacrament representing that Death, and in order to perpetuate the memory of His death, and to convey the benefits of it to all faithful receivers, to declare and strengthen their federal union as members with Christ their Head, and with each other in Him; to heal the wounds, and satisfy the hunger of their souls; to invigorate and refresh them with Divine virtue and grace flowing from Himself, God Incarnate, and to preserve their souls and bodies to everlasting life.

If one clause of this sentence is to be understood corporeally, the latter ought to be so understood; i. e. if the bread was literally changed into Christ's human body, the Disciples were to take and eat it. But that body was standing before them, and gave them what they did eat, and remained with them visible and entire after they had eaten, and afterwards died on the cross. Compare St. Paul's language, 1 Cor. x. 4, "They all drank of that Spiritual Rock that followed them: and that Rock was Christ."

St. Paul in that chapter gives a divinely inspired exposition of our Blessed Lord's words, "The Cup of Blessing which we bless, is it not the κοινωνία, communicatio, of the Blood of Christ? The Bread which we break" (the Apostle does not scruple to call it Bread after consecration), "is it not the κοινωνία of the Body of Christ? For we being many are one Bread and one Body; for we are all partakers of that one Bread" (1 Cor. x. 17).

On the true sense of the words see Hooker, V. lvi. "Christ as God and Man is that true Vine whereof we both spiritually and corporally are Branches. The mixture of His bodily substance with ours is a thing which the ancient Fathers disclaim. . . . And (V. lvi.), "The Bread and Cup are His Body and Blood, because they are causes instrumental, upon the receipt whereof the participation of His Body and Blood ensueth. Every cause is in the effect which groweth from it. Our souls and bodies quickened to eternal life are effects, the cause whereof is the Person of Christ; His Body and Blood are the true well-spring out of which this life floweth. . . . What merit, force, or virtue soever there is in His sacrificed Body and Blood, we freely, fully, and wholly have by this sacrament; and, because the Sacrament itself is but a corruptible and earthly creature, must needs be thought an unlikely instrument to work so admirable effects in men, we are therefore to rest ourselves altogether upon the strength of His glorious power Who is able and will bring to pass, that the Bread and Cup which He giveth us shall be truly the thing He promiseth." . . . And (V. lv. 8), "There is no stint which can be set to the value or merit of the sacrificed Body of Christ, bounds of efficacy unto life it knoweth none, but is infinite in possibility of application."

28. τοῦτο—τὸ αἷμά μου] The sense in which these words were spoken is explained by the Holy Spirit thus paraphrasing them (Luke xxii. 20 and 1 Cor. xi. 25): τοῦτο τὸ ποτήριον ἡ καινὴ διαθήκη ἐστὶν ἐν τῷ αἵματί μου τὸ ὑπὲρ ὑμῶν ἐκχυνόμενον: "Præsens in S. Cœnâ ea vis est, ac si eo momento Christi sanguis effunderetur;" for then what has been shed once is applied to the soul of the faithful receiver, of whatsoever age or country he may be, and so the fountain opened at Calvary is perennially flowing in the Church.

Διαθήκη is the Hebrew בְּרִית (berith), a covenant, perhaps from root בָּרָא (bara), to cut, from the slaying of victims in the ratifying of covenants by sacrifice, Gen. xv. 10. Exod. xxiv. 8. Heb. ix. 20; and specially applicable to the New Covenant of the Gospel, all the blessings of which flow from the death of the One, Heavenly, Holy Victim smitten for our sakes.

He calls it the new covenant, because the Evangelical Sacrament succeeds to, and supersedes the Levitical sacrifice, now become old and ready to vanish away (Heb. viii. 13), as the husk and the blossom vanish when the fruit succeeds.

The Cup in the Holy Eucharist is appointed for the conveyance of the blessing of remission of sins in the new Covenant,—that is the Covenant of Grace,—ratified between God and Man by the shedding of the blood of Christ.

Either then Christ did what was superfluous (which it would be impiety to imagine) when He gave the Cup as well as the Bread to His Disciples, and commanded them all to drink of it (xxvi. 27), "and they all drank of it" (Mark xiv. 23); or else the benefits of the New Covenant are not fully conveyed when the Cup is not administered to the people.

Cp. Bp. Cosin, Works, iv. 319—330, "On Communicating in one Kind."

It may be asked, Why should the Holy Spirit have given varying reports of the words used by Christ in the Institution of the Holy Eucharist? (Cp. Matt. xxvi. 26—28. Mark xiv. 22—24. Luke xxii. 19, 20. 1 Cor. xi. 23. 25.) The reason seems to be that He designed to afford the full sense of the words by paraphrasing them in different ways. He has dealt with them in the New Testament as He has treated prophecies delivered by Himself in the Old (see above, ii. 23); and by presenting them in various outward forms He has given us a clearer view of the one inward sense. . . . But which of the Apostles or Evangelists would have ventured to do this without the Inspiration of the Holy Ghost?

— πολλῶν] i. e. all. See Isa. liii. 12, cp. with v. 6. Dan. xii. 2. 2 Cor. v. 15. Matt. xx. 16; and above, note on xx. 28. Rom. v. 15. 18, 19; viii. 29. As St. Augustine observes, Civ. Dei, xx. 23, Abraham is called (Gen. xvii. 5) a father of many nations; and in Gen. xxii. 18, all nations are blessed in him. So τις is for any one whatsoever (John vi. 50). Cp. Glass. Phil. Sacr. p. 887; and Barrow's Sermons of Universal Redemption (Serm. lxxi.—lxxiv.), vol. iii. pp. 350—426. And see note below on Rom. viii. 29.

μὴ πίω ἀπ' ἄρτι ἐκ τούτου τοῦ γενήματος τῆς ἀμπέλου, ἕως τῆς ἡμέρας ἐκείνης, ὅταν αὐτὸ πίνω μεθ' ὑμῶν καινὸν ἐν τῇ βασιλείᾳ τοῦ Πατρός μου.

o Mark 14. 26, 27. Luke 22. 39. John 16. 32.

(286/VI) 30 ° Καὶ ὑμνήσαντες, ἐξῆλθον εἰς τὸ ὄρος τῶν ἐλαιῶν. (287/IV) 31 Τότε λέγει αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Πάντες ὑμεῖς σκανδαλισθήσεσθε ἐν ἐμοὶ ἐν τῇ νυκτὶ ταύτῃ· γέγραπται γάρ, p Πατάξω τὸν ποιμένα, καὶ διασκορπισθήσεται τὰ πρόβατα τῆς ποίμνης. (288/VI) 32 q Μετὰ δὲ τὸ ἐγερθῆναί με, προάξω ὑμᾶς εἰς τὴν Γαλιλαίαν. (289/I) 33 Ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ ὁ Πέτρος εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Εἰ πάντες σκανδαλισθήσονται ἐν σοί, ἐγὼ οὐδέποτε σκανδαλισθήσομαι. 34 r Ἔφη αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Ἀμὴν λέγω σοι, ὅτι ἐν ταύτῃ τῇ νυκτὶ, πρὶν ἀλέκτορα φωνῆσαι, τρὶς ἀπαρνήσῃ με. (290/VI) 35 Λέγει αὐτῷ ὁ Πέτρος, Κἂν δέῃ με σὺν σοὶ ἀποθανεῖν, οὐ μή σε ἀπαρνήσομαι. Ὁμοίως δὲ καὶ πάντες οἱ μαθηταὶ εἶπον.

p Zech. 13. 7.

q ch. 28. 10, 16. Mark 14. 28, &c. & 16. 7.

r Mark 14. 30, &c. Luke 22. 34. John 13. 38.

(291/I) 36 s Τότε ἔρχεται μετ' αὐτῶν ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἰς χωρίον λεγόμενον Γεθσημανεῖ, καὶ λέγει τοῖς μαθηταῖς, Καθίσατε αὐτοῦ, ἕως οὗ ἀπελθὼν προσεύξωμαι ἐκεῖ. (292/VI) 37 t Καὶ παραλαβὼν τὸν Πέτρον καὶ τοὺς δύο υἱοὺς Ζεβεδαίου, ἤρξατο λυπεῖσθαι καὶ ἀδημονεῖν. (293/IV) 38 Τότε λέγει αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Περίλυπός ἐστιν ἡ ψυχή μου ἕως θανάτου· μείνατε ὧδε, καὶ γρηγορεῖτε μετ' ἐμοῦ. (294/I) 39 u Καὶ προελθὼν μικρὸν, ἔπεσεν ἐπὶ πρόσωπον αὐτοῦ, προσευχόμενος καὶ λέγων, (295/I) Πάτερ μου, εἰ δυνατόν ἐστι, παρελθέτω ἀπ' ἐμοῦ τὸ ποτήριον τοῦτο· πλὴν οὐχ ὡς ἐγὼ θέλω, ἀλλ' ὡς σύ. (296/II) 40 Καὶ ἔρχεται πρὸς τοὺς

s Mark 14. 32—35. Luke 22. 39. John 18. 1.

t ch. 4. 21. John 12. 27.

u Mark 14. 36, 37. Luke 22. 41, 42. Heb. 5. 7, 8. John 12. 27.

---

29. ὅταν αὐτὸ πίνω μεθ' ὑμῶν καινόν] See above, xix. 28.

Our Lord did eat and drink with them after His Resurrection (John xxi. 12), in one case to give proof of His Resurrection, and in another in the Holy Eucharist (Luke xxiv. 43), when the Kingdom was come more nearly by the glory of His Resurrection.

Thus St. Chrys.: "He had spoken of His crucifixion, He now speaks of His Resurrection; and assures them that they will see Him again, and be with Him. I will then drink with you the fruit of the vine new; that is, I will do it in a new manner; not having any longer a body liable to suffering, but an incorruptible body, and one that does not require nourishment. Why, then, did He eat and drink with them?—to assure them of His Resurrection."

And further; He made all things new (Rev. xxi. 5) by His Resurrection. He here promises them a participation in the joys of the New Jerusalem (Rev. xxi. 1), concerning which He says, Ye shall eat and drink at My Table in My Kingdom (Matt. viii. 11. Luke xxii. 30. Rev. xix. 9) at the Marriage Supper of the Lamb, when they will sing a new Song (Rev. v. 9; xiv. 3), and dwell in the new heavens and new earth (2 Pet. iii. 13).

See also on Luke xxii. 16.

30. ὑμνήσαντες] Psalms cxvi.—cxviii., the second part of the great hymn of praise or Hallel; the former part (Ps. cxiii.—cxv.) was sung before the Paschal feast.

Observe how the use of the Psalms is commended to the Church by Christ. Cp. below, xxvii. 46.

31. γέγραπται] Zech. xiii. 7, from LXX. Cp. Surenhus. p. 279.

32. προάξω] as your Shepherd. "Verbum pastorale." (Beng.) Cp. v. 31, ποιμένα—πρόβατα. John x. 4. The promise now given was fulfilled Matt. xxviii. 7.

34. ἀλέκτορα] Rare, but not unknown at Jerusalem. (Lightfoot.) Before a cock crows, i. e. about midnight. The ἀλεκτοροφωνία (Mark xiii. 35; xiv. 30), or second crowing, was later, but before πρωΐ.

35. δέ] δὲ is excluded by some Editors; but it is found in the majority of MSS., and it has a peculiar value and interest, as suggesting an extenuation for St. Peter's fault from a brother Apostle, St. Matthew;—as much as to say, he made these professions, but we all did the same.

36. Γεθσημανεῖ] On the western foot of the Mount of Olives, and on the east of the Brook Kedron. The name is from Hebr. גַּת (gath), torcular or press, and שֶׁמֶן (shemen), oleum; e. g. the Olive Press.

The Press, in which Olives were crushed and bruised, is used in Holy Scripture and in the Christian Fathers as an emblem of trial, distress, and agony (Isa. lxiii. 3. Lam. i. 15. Joel iii. 13). See also St. Aug. Serm. xv., where he compares the Church to a Torcular, an Olive Press, in which by the crushing of trials and persecutions the dark amurca or lees are separated from the "Oleum sanctitatis." Therefore there was something in the name of Gethsemane very fitting for the place in which the Man of Sorrows was bruised by His agony, from which flowed those precious drops which proved the reality of His Manhood, and the intensity of His love.

A few words here on the Names of principal places in our Lord's History. Christ was born at Bethlehem. The Bread of Life was first given to the world at Bethlehem, the House of Bread. (See Matt. ii. 1.) The Man Whose Name is Netser, the Branch, grew up at Nazareth (see on ii. 23), whose name, derived from its branching shrubs and trees, may have shadowed forth that circumstance in His life. He chose His Apostles to be fishers of men from Beth-saida, the House of Fishing (see xi. 21; xiv. 13). He dwelt at Capernaum (iv. 13), the town of Consolation. He healed the impotent man at Beth-esda, the House of Mercy (John v. 2). Beth-any, the place of Palm Dates, speaks of the palms and hosannas of His triumphal entry into Jerusalem on Palm Sunday, and of the Victory and triumphal glory of His Ascension. In Beth-phage, the House of Figs, we may see a memento of the warning that He gave to Jerusalem and the World by the withering of the Barren Fig-tree. And now in Geth-semane the Press of Oil is witness of His agony in which it pleased God to bruise Him for our sakes[1] (Isa. liii. 10), that Oil might flow from His wounds to heal our souls. At Golgotha He rolled away our shame (see on xxvii. 33). And on the Mount of Olives Christ went up to heaven, whence He holds forth the Olive branch of Peace between God and Man.

Was there not therefore some providential and prophetical adaptation in these names to the Birth, Sufferings, and Victory of Him Who is the Everlasting Word of God, and became Man for us?

38. περίλυπός ἐστιν] The Soul of our Blessed Lord and Divine Head was troubled and sorrowful unto death, and His sorrow has been recorded in Scripture in compassion to us, in order that we, His Members, might not despair if we find ourselves sorrowful in affliction and at the approach of death, and that we might not be tempted by Satan to imagine that God has deserted us. (St. Aug. Serm. xxxi.) "Tristis est, non Ipse, sed anima," says St. Ambrose on Luke xxii. 42. "Non suscipiens, sed suscepta, turbatur; anima enim obnoxia passionibus, Divinitas libera." Knowing the sinfulness of sin, Christ felt proportionably the bitterness of its sting—death.

Our Lord was very sorrowful,—to prove the truth of His Humanity. He was very sorrowful, not through fear, but for the sake of the unhappy Judas, and for the rejection of the Jews, and for the destruction of Jerusalem. But, returning to Himself, He acquiesces as a Son in that from which in His Human nature He had shrunk; and He says, Let not that be which I speak from human feeling, but let that be for which I came down from heaven, by Thy Will. (Jerome.) They had said that they would die with Him; and yet they are not able to watch with Him. But He prays earnestly. And in order that His grief may be known to be real, His sweat falls to the ground, and this in drops as of blood, and an Angel comes to strengthen Him. For the same cause He prays; and by saying "if it be possible let this cup pass from Me," He shows His human nature; and by adding "not as I will," He teaches us submission to God, even though our Nature draws us in an opposite direction. Since His countenance might not give evidence enough to the incredulous, He adds words and actions, in order that the Sceptic might believe that He was really Man and suffered death. (Chrys.)

39. πλὴν οὐχ] The agony of Christ shows that prayer may be lawful and in faith without express promise of obtaining that which is prayed for; and also proves the existence of Two Wills in Christ's

---

[1] God ordered it that the cemetery of strangers at Jerusalem should, by its name, Aceldama, or Field of Blood, bear a perpetual record of the confession of Judas, and of the innocence of Christ. "I have sinned, in that I have betrayed the innocent blood." (Matt. xxvii. 4.)

μαθητὰς, καὶ εὑρίσκει αὐτοὺς καθεύδοντας, καὶ λέγει τῷ Πέτρῳ, Οὕτως οὐκ ἰσχύσατε μίαν ὥραν γρηγορῆσαι μετ' ἐμοῦ; (297/IV) 41 [v] γρηγορεῖτε καὶ προσεύχεσθε, ἵνα μὴ εἰσέλθητε εἰς πειρασμόν· τὸ μὲν πνεῦμα πρόθυμον, ἡ δὲ σὰρξ ἀσθενής. (298/VI) 42 Πάλιν ἐκ δευτέρου ἀπελθὼν, προσηύξατο λέγων, Πάτερ μου, εἰ οὐ δύναται τοῦτο τὸ ποτήριον παρελθεῖν ἀπ' ἐμοῦ, ἐὰν μὴ αὐτὸ πίω, γενηθήτω τὸ θέλημά σου. 43 Καὶ ἐλθὼν εὑρίσκει αὐτοὺς πάλιν καθεύδοντας· ἦσαν γὰρ αὐτῶν οἱ ὀφθαλμοὶ βεβαρημένοι· 44 καὶ ἀφεὶς αὐτοὺς, ἀπελθὼν πάλιν προσηύξατο ἐκ τρίτου, τὸν αὐτὸν λόγον εἰπών. (299/IV) 45 Τότε ἔρχεται πρὸς τοὺς μαθητὰς αὐτοῦ, καὶ λέγει αὐτοῖς, Καθεύδετε τὸ λοιπὸν καὶ ἀναπαύεσθε·—ἰδοὺ, ἤγγικεν ἡ ὥρα, καὶ ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου παραδίδοται εἰς χεῖρας ἁμαρτωλῶν. (300/I) 46 Ἐγείρεσθε, ἄγωμεν, ἰδοὺ, ἤγγικεν ὁ παραδιδούς με.

v Mark 13. 33. & 14. 38, &c. Luke 22. 40, 46. Ephes. 6. 18. 1 Pet. 5. 8, 9.

47 [w] Καὶ ἔτι αὐτοῦ λαλοῦντος, ἰδοὺ Ἰούδας εἷς τῶν δώδεκα ἦλθε, καὶ μετ' αὐτοῦ ὄχλος πολὺς μετὰ μαχαιρῶν καὶ ξύλων, ἀπὸ τῶν ἀρχιερέων καὶ πρεσβυτέρων τοῦ λαοῦ. (301/II) 48 Ὁ δὲ παραδιδοὺς αὐτὸν ἔδωκεν αὐτοῖς σημεῖον, λέγων, [a] Ὃν ἂν φιλήσω, αὐτός ἐστι· κρατήσατε αὐτόν. 49 καὶ εὐθέως προσελθὼν τῷ Ἰησοῦ, εἶπε, Χαῖρε, ῥαββί· καὶ κατεφίλησεν αὐτόν. 50 [x] Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Ἑταῖρε, ἐφ' ὃ πάρει; Τότε προσελθόντες ἐπέβαλον τὰς χεῖρας ἐπὶ τὸν Ἰησοῦν, καὶ ἐκράτησαν αὐτόν. (302/I) 51 [y] Καὶ ἰδοὺ, εἷς τῶν μετὰ Ἰησοῦ, ἐκτείνας τὴν χεῖρα, ἀπέσπασε τὴν μάχαιραν αὐτοῦ, καὶ πατάξας τὸν δοῦλον τοῦ ἀρχιερέως, ἀφεῖλεν αὐτοῦ τὸ ὠτίον. (303/X) 52 Τότε λέγει αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Ἀπόστρεψόν σου τὴν μάχαιραν εἰς τὸν τόπον αὐτῆς· [z] πάντες γὰρ οἱ λαβόντες μάχαιραν ἐν μαχαίρᾳ ἀπολοῦνται. 53 [a] Ἢ δοκεῖς ὅτι οὐ δύναμαι ἄρτι παρακαλέσαι τὸν Πατέρα μου, καὶ παραστήσει μοι [zz] πλείους ἢ δώδεκα λεγεῶνας ἀγγέλων; 54 Πῶς οὖν πληρωθῶσιν αἱ γραφαὶ, [a] ὅτι οὕτω δεῖ γενέσθαι;

w Mark 14. 43. Luke 22. 47. John 18. 3. Acts 1. 16.
x Ps. 41. 9. & 55. 13.
y John 18. 10. Mark 14. 47. Luke 22. 50.
z Gen. 9. 6. Rev. 13. 10.
zz 2 Kings 6. 17. Dan. 7. 10.
a Isa. 53. 7, &c. ver. 24. Luke 24. 25, 44, 46.

(304/I) 55 Ἐν ἐκείνῃ τῇ ὥρᾳ εἶπεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς τοῖς ὄχλοις, Ὡς ἐπὶ λῃστὴν ἐξήλθετε μετὰ μαχαιρῶν καὶ ξύλων συλλαβεῖν με; Καθ' ἡμέραν πρὸς ὑμᾶς ἐκαθεζόμην διδάσκων ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ, καὶ οὐκ ἐκρατήσατέ με. (305/VI) 56 [b] τοῦτο δὲ ὅλον γέγονεν, ἵνα πληρωθῶσιν αἱ γραφαὶ τῶν προφητῶν. [c] Τότε οἱ μαθηταὶ πάντες ἀφέντες αὐτὸν ἔφυγον.

b Lam. 4. 20. ver. 24.
c John 18. 15.

(306/I) 57 [d] Οἱ δὲ κρατήσαντες τὸν Ἰησοῦν ἀπήγαγον πρὸς Καϊάφαν τὸν ἀρχιερέα, ὅπου οἱ γραμματεῖς καὶ οἱ πρεσβύτεροι συνήχθησαν. (307/IV) 58 [e] Ὁ δὲ Πέτρος ἠκολούθει αὐτῷ ἀπὸ μακρόθεν, ἕως τῆς αὐλῆς τοῦ ἀρχιερέως· καὶ εἰσελθὼν ἔσω ἐκάθητο μετὰ τῶν ὑπηρετῶν, ἰδεῖν τὸ τέλος. (308/II) 59 Οἱ δὲ d Mark 14. 53, &c. Luke 22. 54, 55. John 18. 12, 13, 24.

Person, viz. His Human Will, and the Divine Will, which were indeed distinct, but not at variance with each other; but were perfectly reconciled by His exemplary Resignation. "Non Mea Voluntas, sed Tua; Suam Voluntatem," says St. Ambrose on Luke xxii. 42, "ad hominem retulit; Patris ad divinitatem." Cp. Aug. in Ps. xxxii. and Leo, Serm. 58; and see Athanas. p. 1009. "Christ intimates here His Two Wills, the one Human, the other Divine; the Human Will from infirmity shrinks from the Passion, the Divine Will is eager for it."

Hence is refuted the Heresy of the Monothelites.

See on Luke ii. 52; and Hooker, V. xlviii.; and below, xxvii. 46, and on John xii. 27.

41. τὸ μὲν πνεῦμα] Quoted by Polycarp, Phil. 7.

45. καθεύδετε] St. Chrys. understands this as spoken ironicè. (Cp. Zech. xi. 13. Mark vii. 9. John vii. 28. Glass. Phil. Sacr. p. 710.) Not so St. Augustine (de Consens. Evang. iii. 4), who supposes that our Lord allowed them to sleep till Judas came. Some read the words interrogatively. So Grotwell and Robinson.

Perhaps they may have a deeper meaning. Now you may hope for sleep and rest, for I am about to die; to sleep in death for you, and so to procure true rest for you here, and eternal rest for you in heaven.

— ἰδοὺ—ἁμαρτωλῶν] To prove to them that (with all their professions) they would not be able to endure the sight of danger, and would fly for fear, and that He does not need their assistance. And in order to show that, though all was foreknown by Him and preordained, yet that the agents of His death are responsible and guilty, He says, 'the Son of Man is delivered into the hands of wicked men.' (Chrys.) He adds, 'Arise,' i. e. that they may not find us as it were terrified; but let us go on willingly to death. He says this that they may see His confidence and joy when He was about to suffer. (Jerome.)

47. Ἰούδας] Judas came to Gethsemane, and at night, because he sought an opportunity to betray Him without the knowledge of the multitude. (Cp. vv. 5. 16. Luke xxii. 6.)

49. κατεφίλησε] More emphatic than ἐφίλησε.

50. ἑταῖρε] Used in remonstrance, Matt. xx. 13; xxii. 12. See also Luke xxii. 48.

— ἐφ' ὅ] ᾧ Elz., but ὅ has the preponderance of authority.

51. εἷς] Not specified as Peter (cp. Mark xiv. 47. Luke xxii. 50) till St. John wrote xviii. 10, an evidence of the comparative lateness of St. John's Gospel.

52. οἱ λαβόντες μάχαιραν] i. e. they who take it of their own motion, without authority from God, Who alone gives commission to bear the sword (Rom. xiii. 4), they shall perish by the sword of divine retribution. Cp. Gen. ix. 6.

53. δώδεκα λεγεῶνας ἀγγέλων] Twelve legions of Angels, in lieu of twelve Apostles. (Jerome.)

56. τοῦτο—πληρωθῶσιν] The Passion of Christ is the Pleroma of Prophecy.

57. κρατήσαντες] See on Luke xxii. 54.

— Καϊάφαν] After He had been before Annas. See that incident supplied by John xviii. 13.

— ὅπου οἱ γραμματεῖς] i. e. the Great Sanhedrim of seventy with the President (Numb. xi. 16). The members were the High Priest; the High Priests emeriti; the twenty-four Presidents of the twenty-four ἐφημερίαι of Priests (called ἀρχιερεῖς); Heads of Tribes or Families, πρεσβύτεροι and γραμματεῖς. (Cp. Mishna Cod. Sanhedrim, cap. 1. Selden de Synedrio. Jahn, Archæol. § 244. Winer, R. W. ii. 551.)

ἀρχιερεῖς καὶ οἱ πρεσβύτεροι, καὶ τὸ συνέδριον ὅλον, ἐζήτουν ψευδομαρτυρίαν e Ps. 27. 12. & 35. 11. Mark 14. 55, &c. κατὰ τοῦ Ἰησοῦ, ὅπως θανατώσωσιν αὐτόν, 60 καὶ οὐχ εὗρον· καὶ, e πολλῶν ψευδομαρτύρων προσελθόντων, οὐχ εὗρον. Ὕστερον δὲ προσελθόντες δύο f ch. 27. 40. John 2. 19. Mark 14. 58, &c. ψευδομάρτυρες 61 εἶπον, (309/VI) Οὗτος ἔφη, f Δύναμαι καταλῦσαι τὸν ναὸν τοῦ Θεοῦ, καὶ διὰ τριῶν ἡμερῶν οἰκοδομῆσαι αὐτόν. 62 Καὶ ἀναστὰς ὁ ἀρχιερεὺς g Isa. 53. 7. ch. 27. 14. εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Οὐδὲν ἀποκρίνῃ τί οὗτοί σου καταμαρτυροῦσιν; 63 g ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς ἐσιώπα. Καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς ὁ ἀρχιερεὺς εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Ἐξορκίζω σε κατὰ τοῦ Θεοῦ τοῦ ζῶντος, ἵνα ἡμῖν εἴπῃς, εἰ σὺ εἶ ὁ Χριστὸς, ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ Θεοῦ.
h Dan. 7. 13. ch. 16. 27. & 24. 30. & 25. 31. Luke 21. 27. John 1. 51. Rom. 14. 10. 1 Thess. 4. 16. Rev. 1. 7. (310/I) 64 Λέγει αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Σὺ εἶπας. πλὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, h ἀπ' ἄρτι ὄψεσθε τὸν Υἱὸν τοῦ ἀνθρώπου καθήμενον ἐκ δεξιῶν τῆς δυνάμεως, καὶ ἐρχόμενον ἐπὶ τῶν νεφελῶν τοῦ οὐρανοῦ. (311/VI) 65 Τότε ὁ ἀρχιερεὺς διέῤῥηξε τὰ ἱμάτια αὐτοῦ, λέγων, ὅτι ἐβλασφήμησε, τί ἔτι χρείαν ἔχομεν μαρτύρων; ἴδε, νῦν ἠκούσατε τὴν βλασφημίαν αὐτοῦ. 66 τί ὑμῖν δοκεῖ; (312/II) οἱ δὲ ἀποκριθέντες εἶπον, Ἔνοχος θανάτου ἐστί. (313/I) 67 Τότε ἐνέπτυσαν εἰς τὸ πρόσωπον αὐτοῦ, i Mark 14. 65. Luke 22. 64. καὶ ἐκολάφισαν αὐτόν, οἱ δὲ ἐῤῥάπισαν, 68 λέγοντες, (314/I) i Προφήτευσον ἡμῖν, Χριστὲ, τίς ἐστιν ὁ παίσας σε;
k Mark 14. 66. Luke 22. 55, 56. John 18. 16, 17, 25. 69 k Ὁ δὲ Πέτρος ἔξω ἐκάθητο ἐν τῇ αὐλῇ, καὶ προσῆλθεν αὐτῷ μία παιδίσκη, λέγουσα, Καὶ σὺ ἦσθα μετὰ Ἰησοῦ τοῦ Γαλιλαίου· 70 ὁ δὲ ἠρνήσατο ἔμπροσθεν πάντων, λέγων, Οὐκ οἶδα τί λέγεις. (315/I) 71 Ἐξελθόντα δὲ αὐτὸν εἰς τὸν πυλῶνα εἶδεν αὐτὸν ἄλλη, καὶ λέγει αὐτοῖς ἐκεῖ, καὶ οὗτος ἦν μετὰ Ἰησοῦ τοῦ Ναζωραίου· 72 καὶ πάλιν ἠρνήσατο μεθ' ὅρκου, ὅτι Οὐκ οἶδα τὸν ἄνθρωπον.
73 Μετὰ μικρὸν δὲ προσελθόντες οἱ ἑστῶτες εἶπον τῷ Πέτρῳ, Ἀληθῶς καὶ l Luke 22. 59. σὺ ἐξ αὐτῶν εἶ, καὶ γὰρ l ἡ λαλιά σου δῆλόν σε ποιεῖ. 74 m Τότε ἤρξατο m Mark 14. 71, 72. καταθεματίζειν καὶ ὀμνύειν, ὅτι Οὐκ οἶδα τὸν ἄνθρωπον. καὶ εὐθέως ἀλέκτωρ ἐφώνησε. (316/II) 75 Καὶ ἐμνήσθη ὁ Πέτρος τοῦ ῥήματος τοῦ Ἰησοῦ εἰρηκότος n ver. 34. Mark 14. 30. Luke 22. 61, 62. John 13. 38. αὐτῷ, Ὅτι n πρὶν ἀλέκτορα φωνῆσαι, τρὶς ἀπαρνήσῃ με· καὶ ἐξελθὼν ἔξω ἔκλαυσε πικρῶς.

---

60. οὐχ εὗρον] The second οὐχ εὗρον is cancelled by some Editors; but in solemn matters the Holy Spirit often uses Repetition. Cp. on Acts x. 16. And the repetition here shows the eagerness of the search—and its vanity.

61. καταλῦσαι τὸν ναόν] See John ii. 19. Our Lord did not undeceive them as to the meaning of this saying, which was cast in His teeth even on the cross (xxvii. 40). Their time of trial was past.

63. ἐξορκίζω σε] Our Lord, Who had before been silent and answered nothing, being adjured by the High Priest officially, replies.

On the practical inferences from this, as to the legality of Oaths in Courts of Justice, see Bp. Andrewes, de Jurejurando, Lond. 1629, p. 92: "Bellum et Jusjurandum spontanea, mala sunt; et ut bona sint, ἐπακτὰ esse debent, id est, pressa et expressa (ut scitè Augustinus de Juramentis) vel auctoritate deferentis vel saltem duritie non credentis." See above, v. 34.

64. ὄψεσθε] As Daniel has prophesied, vii. 13. Our Lord said this δεικτικῶς, i. e. referring to Himself, as in that other reference to Daniel, Matt. xvi. 18, ἐπὶ ταύτῃ τῇ πέτρᾳ, κ.τ.λ. Thou, O Caiaphas, and ye, O Priests, who sit there to judge Me, will then be summoned to stand before My judgment-seat.

65. διέῤῥηξε τὰ ἱμάτια] St. Mark has διέῤῥηξε τοὺς χιτῶνας. The plural appears to be according to Hebrew usage (cp. Mark v. 30. John ix. 23; xiii. 4. Acts xviii. 6). "Hebræi" (says Rosenmüller, on John xiii. 4) "pallium plurali numero בְּגָדִים et שִׂמְלָה notarunt quia hæc vestis magnificentior." Cp. Shroeder. Inst. Ling. Hebr. p. 130, and pp. 236, 237. Glass. Phil. Sacr. p. 285.

The High Priest Caiaphas did what was unlawful for a High Priest to do in a private grief (Lev. x. 6; xxi. 10). To him the declaration of the Son of Man's coming hereafter to judgment, was a worse woe to him than the loss of a son. He, the High Priest of God, was conspiring against the True High Priest. Perhaps, also, there was something significant in the act, showing that the Priesthood itself was now about to be rent from him and the Jewish Nation. (Jerome, Chrys.) — ἐβλασφήμησε—βλασφημίαν] Here is an instance of an use of the word Blasphemy, for assumption of what belongs to another, especially to God, see ix. 3. This use is frequent in the Apocalypse, ii. 9; xiii. 1, 5, 6; xvii. 3. For the cause of the High Priest's imputation of blasphemy, see on xvi. 14.

66. θανάτου] By the Law (Lev. xxiv. 13. 16) it would have been by stoning. As St. Stephen was stoned (Acts vii. 58), and as Christ Himself had been menaced with stoning (John viii. 59; x. 31), for what they called blasphemy. But God ordered that the death of Him Who was the true Paschal Lamb, should not be by stoning, but by crucifixion; a death not usually inflicted by the Jews, but a heathen punishment, and yet, wonderful to say, precisely typified in the slaying and death of the Paschal Lamb (Exod. xii. 9), and that without the breaking of a bone (Exod. xii. 46). See the parallel between the killing of the Lamb and crucifixion, traced by Justin Martyr. Dial. Tryphon. § 40.

69. ἔξω ἐκάθητο] Some Editors read ἐκάθ. ἔξω, but without sufficient authority; and the emphatic word here is not ἔξω, but ἐκάθητο. While His Master was standing before the High Priest, and undergoing these indignities, he ἔξω ἐκάθητο.

— μία παιδίσκη] A special one, for she kept the door. See John xviii. 17.

71. ἄλλη] For the reconcilement of a seeming discrepancy here, see on John xviii. 25.

— αὐτοῖς ἐκεῖ] So the best MSS. Elz. τοῖς ἐ. The sense is, she says to persons stationed at the πυλῶν (i. e. officials) there,—not to all that were there. On this use of αὐτὸς, see Matt. xii. 15; xix. 2. Winer, Gr. Gr. p. 133.

72. μεθ' ὅρκου] Peter volunteers an oath, and denies Christ with one. Our Lord is put on His Oath by the High Priest, and confesses Himself to be Christ. See above, v. 63.

73. ἡ λαλιά σου] St. Peter was now terrified by a woman, and was not able to speak his own Syro-Chaldaic language with correctness, and he denies Christ. But afterwards, when Christ was glorified, and the Holy Ghost was given, he was enabled to confront and confound those who slew Christ, and to convert three thousand Jews from every country under heaven by his eloquence in their languages. See on Acts ii. 24—41.

75. ἔκλαυσε] Even soon after he had received the Holy Communion he denied his Master. But he repented, and was pardoned. Hence then we may confute the Novatians, who refuse to restore those who fall into grievous sin after Baptism and the Holy Communion. And St. Peter's sin, and the sins of other saints, are written in Holy Scripture that we may not be high-minded, but fear; and that when we fall into sin we may repent. (Cp. Theophyl., Mark xiv. 72.) The grace given in the Holy Communion was improved by St. Peter into the means of godly repentance; but it was perverted by Judas to his own destruction. It was used as medicine by the one; and was abused into poison by the other.

XXVII. (317/II) [1] [a] Πρωΐας δὲ γενομένης, συμβούλιον ἔλαβον πάντες οἱ ἀρχιερεῖς καὶ οἱ πρεσβύτεροι τοῦ λαοῦ κατὰ τοῦ Ἰησοῦ ὥστε θανατῶσαι αὐτόν, (318/I) [2] [b] καὶ δήσαντες αὐτὸν ἀπήγαγον, καὶ παρέδωκαν αὐτὸν Ποντίῳ Πιλάτῳ τῷ ἡγεμόνι. a Mark 15. 1. Luke 22. 66. & 23. 1. John 18. 28. b ch. 20. 19. Acts 3. 13.

(319/V) [3] Τότε ἰδὼν Ἰούδας, ὁ παραδιδοὺς αὐτὸν, ὅτι κατεκρίθη, μεταμεληθεὶς ἀπέστρεψε τὰ τριάκοντα ἀργύρια τοῖς ἀρχιερεῦσι καὶ τοῖς πρεσβυτέροις, [4] λέγων, Ἥμαρτον παραδοὺς αἷμα ἀθῶον. Οἱ δὲ εἶπον, Τί πρὸς ἡμᾶς; σὺ ὄψει. [5] [c] Καὶ ῥίψας τὰ ἀργύρια ἐν τῷ ναῷ, ἀνεχώρησε, καὶ ἀπελθὼν ἀπήγξατο. c 2 Sam. 17. 23. [6] [d] Οἱ δὲ ἀρχιερεῖς, λαβόντες τὰ ἀργύρια, εἶπον, Οὐκ ἔξεστι βαλεῖν αὐτὰ εἰς τὸν κορβανᾶν, ἐπεὶ τιμὴ αἵματός ἐστι. [7] Συμβούλιον δὲ λαβόντες ἠγόρασαν ἐξ αὐτῶν τὸν ἀγρὸν τοῦ κεραμέως, εἰς ταφὴν τοῖς ξένοις. [8] [e] Διὸ ἐκλήθη ὁ ἀγρὸς ἐκεῖνος Ἀγρὸς αἵματος ἕως τῆς σήμερον. [9] [f] Τότε ἐπληρώθη τὸ ῥηθὲν d Acts 1. 18. e Acts 1. 19. f Zech. 11. 13.

Ch. XXVII. 2. Ποντίῳ Πιλάτῳ] The successor of Valerius Gratus, as Procurator of Judæa (Tacit. Ann. xv. 54, "Christus, Tiberio imperante, per Pontium Pilatum Procuratorem supplicio affectus est." Joseph. Ant. xviii. 4); he held that office from A.D. 25 to A.D. 36; he was deprived of it for cruelty, and is said to have destroyed himself at Vienne, in Gaul, in the first year of the Emperor Caligula. See Euseb. ii. 7, and Bp. Pearson on the Creed, Art. iv., who observes, as an eminent act of the providence of God, that the full power of Judicature in Judæa (jus gladii) was left in the hands of the resident Procurator, which was not usually the case.

The Procurator's residence was at Cæsarea, but he had come to Jerusalem for the Passover, to maintain order in the city.

3. μεταμεληθείς] He does not say μετανοήσας. On the difference between true and false repentance, see Bp. Sanderson, iii. 13—25.

— τὰ τριάκοντα ἀργύρια] σίκλοι, or shekels (see above, xxvi. 15). A shekel was two drachmas (Gen. LXX. xxiii. 15, 16), or two denarii. See xvii. 24, and Winer, Lex. i. 266; ii. 445.

4. αἷμα ἀθῶον] more than an innocent man. I am guilty of his blood,—εἰς τὸ χυθῆναι. (Euthym.)

5. ἀπήγξατο] See on Acts i. 17, and cp. the ancient author adv. Cataphryg. in Routh, R. S. ii. 188, λόγος ἀναρτῆσαι ἑαυτὸν, Ἰούδα προδότου δίκην—καὶ διασχυθέντα κακῶς τελευτῆσαι.

The following, on the death of Judas, from Leo M. (Sermo lii. p. 121), contains some important historical statements, as well as doctrinal truths. "Unde scelestior omnibus, Juda, et infelicior extitisti, quem non pœnitentia revocavit ad Dominum, sed desperatio traxit ad laqueum? Expectasses consummationem criminis tui; donec sanguis Christi pro omnibus funderetur peccatoribus, informis lethi suspendium distulisses. Cùmque conscientiam tuam tot Domini miracula, tot dona torquerent, illa saltem te à præcipitio tuo revocassent, quæ in Paschali cœnâ jam de perfidiâ tuâ signo divinæ scientiæ detectus acceperas. Cur de ejus bonitate diffidis, qui te à corporis et sanguinis sui communione non repulit? qui tibi ad comprehendendum se cum turbis et armatorum (Joan. xviii. 5) cohorte venienti, pacis osculum non negavit? Sed homo inconvertibilis, spiritus vadens et non revertens, cordis tui secutus es rabiem, et stante diabolo à dextris tuis, iniquitatem, quam in sanctorum omnium armaveras caput, in tuum verticem retorsisti: ut quia facinus tuum omnem mensuram ultionis excesserat, te paveret impietas tua judicem, te pateretur tua pœna carnificem."

Judas, a type of the Jews, in his sin and end. See on Acts i. 20.

6. κορβανᾶν] Hebr. קָרְבָּן (korban); from root קָרַב (karab), appropinquavit; and in Hiphil הִקְרִיב (hikerib), appropinquare fecit; i. e. obtulit; whence Corban is either an offering (Mark vii. 11) or oblation; or the place where oblations were received,—the Treasury of the Temple, as here.

If the money had been cast into the treasury, the circumstance of the betrayal would not have been so notorious; but by the purchase of the field they perpetuated its memory to posterity, and fulfilled the prophecy; and this they did with deliberation—having called a council—and so they bear public testimony against themselves. (Chrys.)

8. ἀγρὸς αἵματος] Akel-dama. See Acts i. 19.

— ἕως] Bengel. Cp. xxviii. 15. In both these cases the clause follows an aorist, indicating that the act then begun had been continued without interruption till the time of the writing of the Gospel. It does not necessarily intimate a long time; for it was a remarkable circumstance, that the Rulers of the Jews in one case were not able, in the other were not willing, to put an end, even after a short interval, to what reflected so much disgrace on themselves. It also shows a continuity of knowledge on the part of the Evangelist.

9. τότε ἐπληρώθη τὸ ῥηθὲν διὰ Ἱερεμίου] Not now read in Jeremiah, but in Zechariah xi. 12, 13.

The Messiah is introduced asking for the wages due to Him as Shepherd of His people; and the wages paid Him are thirty pieces of silver; and Jehovah says to Him, "Cast them to the Potter[1], a goodly price at which I have been priced by them!"

Thus then Jehovah identifies Himself with the Shepherd—the Messiah—and speaks of this contempt shown to the Messiah as an insult to Himself. "Then I took the thirty pieces of silver and cast them in the House of Jehovah to the Potter."

No one can doubt the general adaptation of this prophecy to the death of Christ, the Good Shepherd laying down his life for His sheep. (John x. 11. 15.)

It is the practice of the Holy Ghost, especially in St. Matthew's Gospel, written primarily for Hebrew use, to give the sense rather than the exact words of the Hebrew Prophecies, which He Himself had dictated in the Old Testament (see above, on ii. 23); and in this passage He intimates, that though the parties concerned in the present transaction recorded in the Gospel were Judas and the Priests, yet all that was done by them in the rejection of Christ, was foreseen by God, and was done with "His determinate counsel and foreknowledge." (Acts ii. 23.) As St. Augustine says, "Pater tradidit Filium; Ipse seipsum tradidit pro nobis; et Judas tradidit."

But how is it to be explained, that a prophecy written by Zechariah is ascribed by St. Matthew to Jeremiah?

If (as some do not scruple to say[2]) St. Matthew had written Jeremiah by mistake, such an error as this—in a matter obvious to every reader of the Old Testament—would have been pointed out to him by those who read his Gospel in primitive times, and the text would have been corrected accordingly, and have been so read in the Church. For (as Antiquity testifies) St. Matthew published his Gospel originally in Hebrew, and afterwards in Greek. The present Gospel is a Translation of that Hebrew original. The error (if error it had been) would have been pointed out in the first edition—the Hebrew—and would never have appeared in the second edition—the Greek. Such errors, committed by Historians and Editors in their first editions, are amended in subsequent revisions; and if this had been an error, it would not now stand in the transcripts of the Gospel.

(Cp. Aug. de Consens. Ev. iii. 7.)

It is observable, that though the Prophet Zechariah is three times quoted by St. Matthew (xxi. 5; xxvi. 31; xxvii. 9), he is never quoted by name; nor is he even once quoted by name in the whole of the New Testament. Indeed, the Holy Spirit in the Gospels, in quoting the prophecies, is not accustomed to particularize the names of the Prophets by whose instrumentality He had delivered them; and thus it is probable He intends to teach, that all prophecies proceed from One Spirit, and that those by whom they were uttered are not sources, but only channels of the same Divine truth.

For a similar reason, it may seem, the Holy Spirit in the New Testament often combines prophecies spoken by different Prophets in the Old Testament, and introduces them as spoken by "the Prophet," or by one of the two Prophets, and treats them as coming from the same Author. See, for instance, Matt. xxi. 45, in which passage we see that a prophecy of Zechariah is coupled with one of Isaiah, and both are said to be διὰ τοῦ προφήτου. So Matt. xxi. 13 is formed out of Isa. lvi. 7, and Jer. vii. 11. Cp. Glass. Phil. Sacr. p. 960, and Junii Parallela; and the Parallela in Mr. Grinfield's Editio Hellenistica N. T. Lond., 1843. So He speaks of what is written in one Prophet (e. g. Habbakuk i. 5), as "written in the Prophets." Acts xiii. 40. Again, in quoting two prophecies, written by two Prophets, He mentions only one of the two Prophets. See Mark i. 2.

We may infer from the manner in which the Prophets of the Old Testament are treated by the Holy Spirit in the New, that He designed to teach us that, as in the Gospel Paul is nothing, and Apollos is nothing, so, in the Old Testament, Jeremiah is nothing, Zechariah is nothing, but God's ministers, holy men, who all spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost (2 Pet. i. 21); and that there are diversities of gifts, but the same Spirit; and diversities

---

[1] The LXX has χωνευτήριον, for an explanation of which see St. Cyril, Hieros. Cat. 13, pp. 188, 189.

[2] e. g. Meyer, p. 464; and Alford, p. 265, who says, "The citation is not from Jeremiah, and is probably quoted from memory and inaccurately. We have similar mistakes in the apology of St. Stephen, Acts vii. 4. 16. Various modes have been resorted to of evading this which are not worth recounting."

As to the supposed mistakes in St. Stephen's speech, see Note there.

διὰ Ἱερεμίου τοῦ προφήτου λέγοντος, Καὶ ἔλαβον τὰ τριάκοντα ἀργύρια, τὴν τιμὴν τοῦ τετιμημένου, ὃν ἐτιμήσαντο ἀπὸ υἱῶν Ἰσραήλ, 10 καὶ ἔδωκαν αὐτὰ εἰς τὸν ἀγρὸν τοῦ κεραμέως, καθὰ συνέταξέ μοι Κύριος.

(320/I) 11 g Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς ἔστη ἔμπροσθεν τοῦ ἡγεμόνος· καὶ ἐπερώτησεν αὐτὸν ὁ ἡγεμών, λέγων, Σὺ εἶ ὁ βασιλεὺς τῶν Ἰουδαίων; Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς ἔφη αὐτῷ, Σὺ λέγεις. (321/IV) 12 h Καὶ, ἐν τῷ κατηγορεῖσθαι αὐτὸν ὑπὸ τῶν ἀρχιερέων καὶ τῶν πρεσβυτέρων, i οὐδὲν ἀπεκρίνατο. 13 Τότε λέγει αὐτῷ ὁ Πιλάτος, Οὐκ ἀκούεις πόσα σου καταμαρτυροῦσι; 14 Καὶ οὐκ ἀπεκρίθη αὐτῷ πρὸς οὐδὲ ἓν ῥῆμα, ὥστε θαυμάζειν τὸν ἡγεμόνα λίαν.

(322/II) 15 k Κατὰ δὲ ἑορτὴν εἰώθει ὁ ἡγεμὼν ἀπολύειν ἕνα τῷ ὄχλῳ δέσμιον, ὃν ἤθελον· (323/IV) 16 εἶχον δὲ τότε δέσμιον ἐπίσημον, λεγόμενον Βαραββᾶν· 17 Συνηγμένων οὖν αὐτῶν, εἶπεν αὐτοῖς ὁ Πιλάτος, Τίνα θέλετε ἀπολύσω ὑμῖν; Βαραββᾶν, ἢ Ἰησοῦν τὸν λεγόμενον Χριστόν; 18 l ᾔδει γὰρ, ὅτι διὰ φθόνον παρέδωκαν αὐτόν. (324/X) 19 Καθημένου δὲ αὐτοῦ ἐπὶ τοῦ βήματος, ἀπέστειλε πρὸς αὐτὸν ἡ γυνὴ αὐτοῦ, λέγουσα, Μηδὲν σοὶ καὶ τῷ δικαίῳ ἐκείνῳ, πολλὰ γὰρ ἔπαθον σήμερον κατ' ὄναρ δι' αὐτόν. (325/I) 20 m Οἱ δὲ ἀρχιερεῖς καὶ οἱ πρεσβύτεροι ἔπεισαν τοὺς ὄχλους, ἵνα αἰτήσωνται τὸν Βαραββᾶν, τὸν δὲ Ἰησοῦν ἀπολέσωσιν. 21 Ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ ὁ ἡγεμὼν εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Τίνα θέλετε ἀπὸ τῶν δύο ἀπολύσω ὑμῖν; οἱ δὲ εἶπον· Βαραββᾶν. (326/I) 22 λέγει αὐτοῖς ὁ Πιλάτος, Τί οὖν ποιήσω Ἰησοῦν τὸν λεγόμενον Χριστόν; λέγουσιν αὐτῷ g Mark 15. 2, &c. Luke 23. 3.

h John 18. 37. 1 Tim. 6. 13.
i ch. 26. 63. John 19. 9.
k Mark 15. 6, &c. Luke 23. 17. John 18. 30.
l Acts 3. 13.
m Mark 15. 11, &c. Luke 23. 18. John 18. 40. Acts 3. 14.

---

of ministries and operations, but it is the same God which worketh all in all. (1 Cor. xii. 6.)

Again, in the New Testament, the Holy Spirit sometimes cites Prophecies which were delivered of old to the world, and of which we have no written record in the Old Testament. See Jude 14.

Also, there appears to have been a tradition among the Jews that prophecies now read in Zechariah had been in the first instance delivered by Jeremiah; for it was a saying current with them, "Zechariam habuisse Spiritum Jeremiæ." (See Surenhus. p. 282.) And the words quoted by St. Matthew were seen by St. Jerome in a copy of Jeremiah used by the Nazarenes. See also Rosenm., "Huic sententiæ favet locus insignis Lectionarii Coptici à cel. Woide notatus." Vid. Michaelis, Bibl. Orient. iv. 288. Cp. Hammond, p. 135. Burgon. ad loc.

On the whole, there is reason to believe[1] with St. Chrysostom and Eusebius (D. E. x. 5), that the prophecy which we read in Zechariah (xi. 12, 13) had, in the first instance, been delivered by Jeremiah; and that by referring here not to Zechariah, where we read it, but to Jeremiah, where we do not read it, the Holy Spirit teaches us not to regard the Prophets as the Authors of their prophecies, but to trace their prophecies backwards and upwards, flowing in different channels from age to age, till we see them all at length springing forth from the one living Fountain of wisdom and knowledge,—the Divine Well-spring of Inspiration in the Godhead Itself[2].

Thus this passage, like others in the Written Word of God, appears to be set (as the Incarnate Word is set), for the fall and rising of many in Israel (Luke ii. 34). They are set for our moral probation, which supposes difficulty, "ut fides, non mediocri præmio destinata, difficultate constaret" (Tertul. Apol. 21). And so these difficulties are the leaves and flowers of which the crown of glory is woven. They are set for our fall, if with a partial eye to single difficulties, and without due regard to the general evidence and scope of Revelation taken as a whole, and presuming too much on ourselves, we thence take occasion to deny the Inspiration of the Gospels. They are set for our rising, if we thence are led to distrust ourselves, and to feel the weakness of our own faculties, and our need of divine grace, to exercise humility and faith, to recognize the same Spirit speaking by all the Writers of Holy Scripture, and to look forward with patience and hope to the time when all that is dark in Holy Scripture will be cleared away, and we shall see the truth as it is, and know even as we are known (1 Cor. xiii. 12).

11. σὺ λέγεις] See xxvi. 64. John xviii. 37; and 1 Tim. vi. 13.

16. Βαραββᾶν] From בַּר (bar), filius, and אַבָּא (abba), pater. They rejected the True Son of the Father, and chose a robber, who bare the name of Father's Son, in His place.

In some MSS. and Versions there is a remarkable reading here, i. e. Ἰησοῦν prefixed to Barabbas; and this is received by Tisch. in the text, and approved by Fritzsche, Meyer, and others. "Codices ante Origenem habuerunt Ἰησοῦν Βαραββᾶν." (Rosenm.)

If this reading is correct (and it is not improbable), the contrast is still more striking. Whom will ye? Jesus who is called Barabbas, or Jesus Who is called Christ, the Son of the Living God?

19. ἐπὶ τοῦ βήματος] The cause itself was heard in the prætorium, or palace of the Governor, but judgment was pronounced from the βῆμα, or tribunal, which was in an elevated place outside the prætorium.

— ἡ γυνὴ αὐτοῦ] Whose name is said to have been Procla, or Claudia Procula. (Niceph. i. 30. Evang. Nicod. 2. Libr. Apocryph. ed. Thilo. p. 522, sqq.)

In the whole history of the Passion of Christ no one pleads for Him but a woman—the wife of a Heathen.

How many things took place that ought to have made the Chief Priests pause! Together with the examination and inquiry by Pilate came this dream of his wife; sent to her perhaps because she was holier than her husband, and because, if sent to him, it might never have been divulged. And not only did she see the vision, but suffered many things, in that very night, because of Christ. Pilate desired to let Him go, but they importuned to have released unto them a notable prisoner—one infamous for his crimes—and preferred Barabbas to the Saviour of the World. (Chrys.)

Observe how many things were done by Christ to deter the Jews from this sanguinary deed. They saw Pilate washing his hands; they heard his protest of Christ's innocence; they saw the death of Judas the Traitor, stung in conscience for betraying Him; they beheld the majestic silence of Christ, and yet they prefer Barabbas to Christ, and imprecate a curse on themselves and their children. This curse is still of force upon the Jews even to this day; as Isaiah says (i. 15), "When ye make many prayers, I will not hear: your hands are full of blood." This is the legacy which the Jews have bequeathed to their posterity, "His blood be upon us and upon our children!" (Jerome.)

Barabbas the murderer and robber is acquitted by the Jews, and Jesus is killed by them. But He is acquitted by the voice of Pilate's wife, and is pronounced innocent by Pilate, the Roman Governor, and is acknowledged by the Roman centurion to be "truly the Son of God." The act of the Jews was suggested by the Evil One, who still reigns over them, and therefore they cannot have peace. (Jerome.)

---

[1] Various other replies to the question here considered may be seen in Glass. Philol. Sacra, p. 99, and in Surenhus. Καταλλαγὴ, p. 280. Cornelius à Lapide in Zechar. xi. 12. Dr. Jackson on the Creed, book viii. ch. xxvii. Minter. Lexicon voc. Ἱερεμίας. Archbishop Newcome on Zech. xi. 13. Hengstenberg, Christologie ii. 258. 465.

Some (e. g. Olshausen here) suppose the text of St. Matthew to be corrupt; others, that our Lord mentions one Book for all of the same class; thus He speaks of "the Psalms," for all books of the same class; i. e. the Hagiographa (Luke xxiv. 43): viz. Psalms, Proverbs, Ecclesiastes, Canticles, Job, Ezra, Esther, Chronicles. See Bp. Cosin on the Canon, pp. 12. 21, 22.

[2] Comp. St. Aug. de Consens. Evang. iii. 7. St. Jerome says, ad Pammachium, vol. iv. p. 251, "Accusent Apostolum Matthæum falsitatis quòd nec cum Hebraico nec cum Septuaginta congruat Translatoribus, et (quod his majus est) erret in nomine, pro Zachariâ quippe Jeremiam posuit—Sed absit hoc de pedissequo Christi dicere!"

St. Jerome then refers to another passage of Zechariah, where the Evangelist leaves the precise words of the Prophecy. See Matt. xxvi. 31. And he says, "Sermonum varietas Spiritûs unitate concordat."

πάντες, Σταυρωθήτω. 23 Ὁ δὲ ἡγεμὼν ἔφη, Τί γὰρ κακὸν ἐποίησεν; οἱ δὲ περισσῶς ἔκραζον, λέγοντες, Σταυρωθήτω· (327/X) 24 Ἰδὼν δὲ ὁ Πιλάτος ὅτι οὐδὲν ὠφελεῖ, ἀλλὰ μᾶλλον θόρυβος γίνεται, [n] λαβὼν ὕδωρ ἀπενίψατο τὰς χεῖρας ἀπέναντι τοῦ ὄχλου, λέγων, Ἀθῶός εἰμι ἀπὸ τοῦ αἵματος τοῦ δικαίου τούτου· ὑμεῖς ὄψεσθε· 25 καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς πᾶς ὁ λαὸς εἶπε, [o] Τὸ αἷμα αὐτοῦ ἐφ' ἡμᾶς καὶ ἐπὶ τὰ τέκνα ἡμῶν. (328/I) 26 Τότε ἀπέλυσεν αὐτοῖς τὸν Βαραββᾶν, [p] τὸν δὲ Ἰησοῦν φραγελλώσας παρέδωκεν ἵνα σταυρωθῇ.

(329/IV) 27 Τότε οἱ στρατιῶται τοῦ ἡγεμόνος, παραλαβόντες τὸν Ἰησοῦν εἰς τὸ πραιτώριον, συνήγαγον ἐπ' αὐτὸν ὅλην τὴν σπεῖραν. 28 καὶ ἐκδύσαντες αὐτὸν, περιέθηκαν αὐτῷ χλαμύδα κοκκίνην, 29 καὶ πλέξαντες στέφανον ἐξ ἀκανθῶν, ἐπέθηκαν ἐπὶ τὴν κεφαλὴν αὐτοῦ, καὶ κάλαμον ἐπὶ τὴν δεξιὰν αὐτοῦ, καὶ γονυπετήσαντες ἔμπροσθεν αὐτοῦ, ἐνέπαιζον αὐτῷ, λέγοντες, Χαῖρε, ὁ βασιλεὺς τῶν Ἰουδαίων· (330/VI) 30 καὶ ἐμπτύσαντες εἰς αὐτὸν, ἔλαβον τὸν κάλαμον, καὶ ἔτυπτον εἰς τὴν κεφαλὴν αὐτοῦ· 31 καὶ ὅτε ἐνέπαιξαν αὐτῷ, ἐξέδυσαν αὐτὸν τὴν χλαμύδα, καὶ ἐνέδυσαν αὐτὸν τὰ ἱμάτια αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἀπήγαγον αὐτὸν εἰς τὸ σταυρῶσαι. (331/I) 32 Ἐξερχόμενοι δὲ [q] εὗρον ἄνθρωπον Κυρηναῖον, ὀνόματι Σίμωνα· τοῦτον ἠγγάρευσαν, ἵνα ἄρῃ τὸν σταυρὸν αὐτοῦ.

(332/I) 33 [r] Καὶ ἐλθόντες εἰς τόπον λεγόμενον Γολγοθᾶ, ὅ ἐστι λεγόμενος Κρανίου τόπος, (333/IV) 34 [s] ἔδωκαν αὐτῷ πιεῖν ὄξος μετὰ χολῆς μεμιγμένον· καὶ γευσά-n Deut. 21. 6.

o Deut. 19. 10. Josh. 2. 19. 1 Kings 2. 32. 2 Sam. 1. 16. Acts 3. 17, 18. & 5. 28.

p Isa. 53. 5. Mark 15. 15, &c. Luke 23. 16, 24, 25. John 19. 1, 16.

q Mark 15. 21.

r Mark 15. 22, &c. Luke 23. 33, &c. John 19. 17, &c.

s Ps. 69. 21. ver. 48.

---

23. ἔκραζον] Then were fulfilled the words of Isaiah (v. 7), "He looked for judgment, but behold oppression; for righteousness, but behold a cry." (Jerome.)

24. ἀπενίψατο τὰς χεῖρας] His hands, but not his heart. He was guilty of crucifying Christ, by delivering to be crucified Him Whom he pronounced innocent; and so in delivering up Christ he condemned himself. Sense of guilt made him a coward (see John xix. 12).

26. φραγελλώσας] as was usually done to slaves before crucifixion. See Kuin. here.

On the time of the scourging see on Luke xxiii. 16. Cp. John xix. 1.

"Φραγελλοῦν vox origine Latinâ, id. qd. μαστιγοῦν xx. 19. Joan. xix. 1. Flagella erant aculeata, ossiculis pecuinis fere catenata, unde horribile flagellum dixit Horat. Sat. i. 3. 119. Flagellis cædebantur apud Romanos servi (liberi virgis) et fere capite damnati, nudi et ad columnam adstricti, antequàm in crucem agerentur. Cic. Verr. v. 66, Facinus est vinciri civem Romanum, scelus verberari, prope parricidium necari, quid dicam in crucem tollere? Liv. xxxiii. 36, Conjuratio servorum—multi occisi, multi capti, alios verberatos cruci affixit, qui principes conjurationis erant. Val. Max. i. 7, servum verberibus multatum sub furcâ ad supplicium egit. Pilatus ergo more Romanorum pœnam flagellorum Christo in crucem agendo irrogabat. Attamen cùm flagellis esset cæsus, ultimâ vice tentabat Procurator, an ad commiserationem flectere posset Judæorum animos, ideoque Jesum flagellatum in conspectum populi producebat, sed rursus eum spes fallebat, denuntiabant ei Cæsaris iram; hanc metuens, eum in crucem agi jussit, coll. v. 31. Joh. xix. 12, sqq." (Kuin.)

According to the Roman laws, they who were to be crucified were first scourged. Jesus was delivered to the soldiers, and thus that most holy body was torn by the scourge. But this was done that "by His stripes we might be healed" (Isa. liii. 5). (Jerome.)

27. στρατιῶται—σπεῖραν] "Marc. xv. 16 dicuntur οἱ στρατιῶται milites prætoriani. τὸ πραιτώριον vox origine Latinâ, est domus, palatium Procuratoris. Hoc prætorium fuerat olim regia Herodis, in superiori urbis parte magnificè exstructa, ex quâ aditus patebat in arcem Antoniam, templo junctam, vid. Joseph. Ant. xv. 9. 3. B. J. i. 21. 1; v. 4. 3. Procuratores Romani, qui Cæsareæ degebant, quotiescunque iis Hierosolymis versandum esset, hoc palatium sibi deligebant domicilium.

"Tribunal erat extra prætorium v. 19, abducebatur ergo Jesus in interiorem partem prætorii, in aulam. συνήγαγον ἐπ' αὐτὸν ὅλην τὴν σπεῖραν, totam cohortem ad eum illudendum coëgerunt. Cohortem Romanam, quæ erat decima pars legionis, et constabat quadringentis viginti quinque militibus, interdum sexcentis, etiam mille, si legiones majores erant, vid. Lipsius de Militiâ Romanâ i. 4. Joseph. B. J. iii. 4. 2. Quinque cohortes Cæsareæ erant, una Hierosolymis, cademque major, tempore festi Paschatos, vid. Joseph. B. J. ii. 15. 6; v. 5. 8. Act. xxiii. 23." (Kuin.)

28. χλαμύδα] 'Sagum,' 'paludamentum,' a round military cloak of dyed wool, fastened on the right shoulder with a fibula, so as to cover the left side, and thrown over the other dress.

— κοκκίνην] As military Imperator, or King—in mockery. It is called πορφύρα by St. Mark xv. 17, and was probably of scarlet, with purple clavi, or stripes. See Eutrop. ix. 26. Winer, Lex. i. p. 664.

All these things, done in mockery, were so ordered by God as to have a divine meaning. He is clothed in scarlet and purple, for He is a military Conqueror and King; He is crowned with thorns, for He has a diadem won by suffering, the diadem of the world; He has a reed in His Hand, for He wields a royal Sceptre, earned by the weakness of humanity (see Phil. ii. 8—11). The cross is laid on His shoulder, for this is the sign of the Son of Man, the trophy of His Victory, by which He takes away sin and conquers Satan; His titles are inscribed on the Cross, "King of the Jews," for He is the Sovereign Lord of Abraham and all his seed. In all these circumstances, as St. Hilary says, He is worshipped while He is mocked. The purple is the dress of royal honour; His crown of victory is woven with thorns. As St. Ambrose says (in Luke xxiii. 11), "illudentes, adorant."

32. Κυρηναῖον] The Cyrenians, who had now come up to the Passover, had a synagogue at Jerusalem. Cp. Acts ii. 10; vi. 9.

— ἠγγάρευσαν] See above, v. 41. Mark xv. 21. His Cross was laid on a stranger. The Jews were not worthy to bear it. (Hilary.) — ἵνα ἄρῃ] Criminals were obliged to carry their own cross to the place of execution. It is probable that when our Lord was oppressed by the burden, the soldiers, meeting Simon coming from the country, pressed him into the service as a Disciple of Jesus.

33. Γολγοθᾶ] from rad. גָּלַל (galal), volvit; whence the word Gilgal, Golgoltha, and euphonicè Golgotha, a rolling; and Gulgoleth, a skull (2 Kings ix. 35), from its roundness.

Golgotha was outside the walls of the city (Heb. xiii. 12), and probably on the N.W. of Mount Sion. See Williams, Holy City, p. 253. Some Expositors suppose that Golgotha derived its name from its conical form (Reland, Palæst. p. 860), and that for this reason it is called κράνιον by St. Luke, xxiii. 33; there is no evidence from Scripture that it was a hill. (Cp. Stanley, Palestine, p. 454.)

There was an ancient tradition (see Origen, Tertullian, Athanas., August.) that the bones of Adam had been buried there. St. Jerome is of opinion that it was called Calvary because it was a place of public executions, and many head-sculls of criminals who had been beheaded might be seen there, perhaps exposed in terrorem.

Perhaps by recording the name Golgotha, the Holy Spirit may intend a reference to the words of Joshua the type of Jesus, at the hill Gilgal, when he circumcised the people (Josh. v. 9), and had his camp. "Behold, I have to-day rolled away (גַּלֹּתִי) the reproach of Egypt; therefore the name of the place is called Gilgal. And by our Jesus at Golgotha the shame and guilt of sin was rolled away from the Israel of God; and there—where He was crucified—was His camp;—for He conquered by the Cross.

Observe, our Lord was crucified on Golgotha, and He ascended into heaven from the Mount of Olives. The Sun of Righteousness went down in the west, and arose to heaven on the east of Jerusalem.

34. ὄξος μετὰ χολῆς] οἶνον ἐσμυρνισμένον (Mark xv. 23),—i. e. bitter. Ps. lxix. 21, "sive quòd aversaretur malitiam; sive quia volebat majorem pati sitim in cruce, ut nobis mortificationis vivum daret exemplum." (à Lapide.)

Perhaps, that it might not be said by His enemies that He had not suffered all the agonies of crucifixion, and that some drugged potion had been given Him by His friends to stupify His senses, and to deaden His pain till just before He died (see below, v. 48. John xix. 28), and so He would not drink. Such potions were often given to those who were crucified. See Lightfoot. "Vinum myrrhâ conditum mentem turbat. Solebant supplicio afficiendis porrigere vinum, herbis temulentiam procreantibus mixtum, quò minùs sentirent doμενος οὐκ ἤθελε πιεῖν. (334 I) 35 Σταυρώσαντες δὲ αὐτὸν, διεμερίσαντο τὰ ἱμάτια αὐτοῦ, βάλλοντες κλῆρον· ἵνα πληρωθῇ τὸ ῥηθὲν ὑπὸ τοῦ προφήτου, t Ps. 22. 18. [t] Διεμερίσαντο τὰ ἱμάτιά μου ἑαυτοῖς, καὶ ἐπὶ τὸν ἱματισμόν μου ἔβαλον κλῆρον· 36 καὶ καθήμενοι, ἐτήρουν αὐτὸν ἐκεῖ, (335 I) 37 καὶ ἐπέθηκαν ἐπάνω τῆς κεφαλῆς αὐτοῦ τὴν αἰτίαν αὐτοῦ γεγραμμένην, ΟΥΤΟΣ ΕΣΤΙΝ ΙΗΣΟΥΣ Ο ΒΑΣΙΛΕΥΣ ΤΩΝ ΙΟΥΔΑΙΩΝ. (336 I) 38 Τότε σταυροῦνται σὺν αὐτῷ δύο λῃσταὶ, εἷς ἐκ δεξιῶν καὶ εἷς ἐξ εὐωνύμων.

u Ps. 22. 7, &c. & 109. 25. Mark 15. 29, &c. Luke 23 35, &c. v ch. 26. 61. John 2. 19.
(337 VI) 39 [u] Οἱ δὲ παραπορευόμενοι ἐβλασφήμουν αὐτὸν, κινοῦντες τὰς κεφαλὰς αὐτῶν 40 καὶ λέγοντες, [v] Ὁ καταλύων τὸν ναὸν καὶ ἐν τρισὶν ἡμέραις οἰκοδομῶν, σῶσον σεαυτόν· εἰ Υἱὸς εἶ τοῦ Θεοῦ, κατάβηθι ἀπὸ τοῦ σταυροῦ. (338 II) 41 Ὁμοίως δὲ καὶ οἱ ἀρχιερεῖς ἐμπαίζοντες, μετὰ τῶν γραμματέων καὶ πρεσβυτέρων, ἔλεγον, 42 Ἄλλους ἔσωσεν, ἑαυτὸν οὐ δύναται σῶσαι· εἰ βασιλεὺς Ἰσραήλ ἐστι, καταβάτω νῦν ἀπὸ τοῦ σταυροῦ, καὶ πιστεύσομεν ἐπ᾽ αὐτῷ. 43 πέποιθεν ἐπὶ τὸν Θεόν, ῥυσάσθω νῦν αὐτὸν, εἰ θέλει αὐτόν, εἶπε γάρ, Ὅτι Θεοῦ εἰμι Υἱός. (339 II) 44 Τὸ δ᾽ αὐτὸ καὶ οἱ λῃσταὶ, οἱ συσταυρωθέντες αὐτῷ, ὠνείδιζον αὐτόν.

w Mark 15. 33, &c. Luke 23. 44.
(340 II) 45 [w] Ἀπὸ δὲ ἕκτης ὥρας σκότος ἐγένετο ἐπὶ πᾶσαν τὴν γῆν ἕως ὥρας ἐννάτης. (341 VI) 46 περὶ δὲ τὴν ἐννάτην ὥραν ἀνεβόησεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς φωνῇ μεγάλῃ, λέγων, Ἠλὶ, Ἠλὶ, λαμὰ σαβαχθανί; τοῦτ᾽ ἔστι· Θεέ μου, Θεέ μου, ἱνατί με lores. Tr. Sanhedrin c. 6. Dixit R. Chasda: qui ducitur ad mortem, ei datur bibendum granum turis in poculo vini, ut distrahatur mens ejus, quia dictum est Prov. xxxi. 6, Date siceram perituro, et vinum illis qui sunt amaro animo." Merillius. Casaubonus, Exercitt. Antibaron. xvi. 80. "Jesus verò, qui doloris sensu rationisque usu privari hoc modo nolebat, sed animo forti fatum subire volebat, vino leviter degustato, calicem epotare recusabat." (Kuin.)

---

35. σταυρώσαντες] For a description of the cross and of crucifixion, see Bp. Pearson on the Creed, Art. iv. and the Notes. That the feet were nailed as well as the hands, see Justin c. Tryphon. 97. Tertullian c. Marcion. iii. 19. Plaut. Mostell. ii. 1. 13. Cp. Ps. xxii. 17. Luke xxiv. 39.

See on Luke xxiii. 33.

"Per lignum servi facti sumus; per crucem liberi." (Aug.)

"Ut non sibi sed omnibus vinceret Christus, manus in cruce tetendit." (Ambrose.)

"Ipsa species crucis, quid est nisi forma quadrata mundi? unde S. Apostolus, (Ephes. iii. 18) quæ sit altitudo et latitudo amoris Christi." (Hieron.) See John xii. 32.

"Crux patientis fit cathedra docentis, et tribunal judicantis, et currus triumphantis." (Aug.)

On the Passion of our Blessed Saviour, see Leo M. Serm. l.—lxviii. St. Cyril, Hieros. Catech. 13, p. 182—203. Dr. Barrow's Sermon xxxii. vol. ii. p. 206, and vol. v. p. 566—603; and Bp. Andrewes' Sermons, ii. p. 120—184, and Westcott on the Canon, pp. 61. 120, for primitive testimonies concerning it.

— ἵνα πληρωθῇ—κλῆρον] not found in A, B, D, E, F, G, H, K, L, M, S, U, V—and probably not from St. Matthew.

36. ἐτήρουν αὐτόν] They watched Him. The vigilance of the soldiers and Priests has proved of great use to us, as giving us clearer evidence of the Resurrection, and of Christ's power therein. (Jerome.)

37. οὗτός ἐστιν—Ἰουδαίων] See St. Aug. in Joan. xix. 19.

Thus by Pilate's voice the Gentile World (represented by him as Roman Governor) replies to the Jews. "Whether ye will or no, Jesus is King of the Jews,—the Lord of all who believe." (Jerome, referring to the derivation of the word Jew, one who confesses and praises God.)

It is well said by Dr. Jackson (on the Creed, bk. vii. c. 32), "The first authorized title of 'King of Judah' after the captivity of king Zedekiah, was that Inscription written on our Saviour's cross by the command of Pilate (the Representative in Judæa of Cæsar, the world's Governor), so that the Jews could not get a change of it in any of the three languages in which it was written. That which the world might conceive was written in jest, the God of Israel made good by making this Jesus, Whom Pilate crucified, both Lord and Christ (Acts ii. 36; iv. 10); that is, a far greater King than Cæsar, whom they acknowledge their only king!"

38. δύο λῃσταί] "Nam crux pœna latronum. Vocabantur λῃστῶν et sicariorum nomine qui injussu publico arma cepissent." (Rosenm.) These rebels and assassins were executed at the Passover for a public example at that great festival.

42. καταβατω—καὶ πιστεύσομεν] A false promise. For which was greater, to come down from the cross, or to raise Himself from the dead? He rose again, and ye did not believe. If He had come down from the cross, ye would not have believed. Perhaps the Spirits of Evil suggested these words; for, as soon as the Lord was crucified, they felt the power of the Cross, and that their own power was broken thereby; they would then that He should come down from the Cross. But Christ remains on the Cross in order to destroy the Devil, and in order that the world may believe and be saved. (Jerome.) Cp. 1 Cor. ii. 8.

— ἐπ᾽ αὐτῷ] we will become believers in Him; a stronger expression than the reading of some MSS. π. αὐτῷ.

43.] Quoted by Clem. Roman. 16, p. 71.

44. λῃσταί] one of them. See on Luke xxiii. 39. St. Aug. de Consens. Evang. iii. 16, and St. Ambrose in Luc. lib. x. For similar uses of the plural see above, ii. 20, Acts xvii. 18, and Matt. xxvi. 8, where it is said that "the disciples murmured,"—viz. Judas, one of them, did. Acts xiii. 40, "It is written in the Prophets,"—i. e. in one of them, Habakkuk i. 5.

In the two Thieves, one blaspheming, the other confessing Christ, some of the Fathers see a figure of the "duo populi," the Jew and the Gentile, ἀμφότεροι γὰρ ἄνομοι (says Theophyl. in Marc. xv.) ἀλλ᾽ ὁ μὲν ἐθνικὸς εὐγνώμων, ὁ δὲ Ἰουδαϊκὸς βλάσφημος.

St. Jerome's remarks here are not unworthy of attention. At first, both the malefactors reviled on Him; but afterwards, one of them (Luke xxiii. 39), moved by the prodigies which he saw (the darkness and the earthquake, &c.), was penitent, and rebuked the other. So, first, Jews and Gentiles reviled Christ; but now the Gentiles repent, and plead with the Jew.

45. ἀπὸ δὲ ἕκτης ὥρας σκότος ἐγένετο] i. e. from twelve o'clock, when our Lord was crucified, to three, when He expired.

Concerning this darkness, which could not have been an eclipse, the moon being then full, see Jul. African. in Routh, R. S. ii. 297, 298, ἦν σκότος θαυποίητον, ibid. ii. 477, and iv. 7. Euseb. Chron. ad A. D. 33.

Cf. Tertullian, Apol. 21, who appeals for the fact to the Roman Archives.

St. Cyril, Hieron. p. 195, sees here a fulfilment of Zech. xiv. 6, 7, and Amos viii. 9.

By πᾶσαν τὴν γῆν, St. Matthew probably meant the Land of Judæa (Origen, Chrys.), and see Matt. ix. 26. Luke iv. 25; so that it is not surprising that no mention of it is made in Heathen Historians.

At the first Passover the Hebrews had light in their dwellings, while the rest of Egypt was dark; but now, when the True Passover is killed by them, they are in darkness; and the light of the Gospel is about to be poured on the Gentile world.

Observe, the Passover was to be killed at the full moon. When Christ suffered the moon was full. Christ the Sun of Righteousness illumines the Church typified in Scripture by the moon; and she receives the fulness of her light from the death of Christ.

46. λαμὰ σαβαχθανί] Ps. xxii. 1. Our Lord cries out, "My God, why hast thou forsaken me?" using the words of the Psalmist, in order that He might show with His last breath that He acknowledges the Old Testament. (Chrys.)

Our Lord, with His dying breath, taught us to refer this Psalm to the Messiah; it is therefore impiety not to apply it to Him. (Jerome.)

It would seem from this, and from Mark xv. 34, Ἐλωΐ, Ἐλωΐ, that our Lord used the vernacular, or Syro-Chaldaic words: "Hæc verba deprompta sunt è Ps. xxii. 1, et Jesus, hanc vocem emittens, utebatur dialecto, quæ tunc in Judæâ vigebat, atque verba ipsa ut Galilæus pronuntiabat. Pro Ἠλὶ, Ηλὶ, Hebr. אֵלִי, אֵלִי ap. Marc. xv.

ἐγκατέλιπες; 47 Τινὲς δὲ τῶν ἐκεῖ ἑστώτων ἀκούσαντες ἔλεγον, Ὅτι Ἠλίαν φωνεῖ οὗτος. (843 II) 48 [x] Καὶ εὐθέως δραμὼν εἷς ἐξ αὐτῶν, καὶ λαβὼν σπόγγον, πλήσας τε ὄξους καὶ περιθεὶς καλάμῳ, ἐπότιζεν αὐτόν. 49 Οἱ δὲ λοιποὶ ἔλεγον, Ἄφες ἴδωμεν εἰ ἔρχεται Ἠλίας σώσων αὐτόν. (843 I) 50 Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς πάλιν κράξας φωνῇ μεγάλῃ, ἀφῆκε τὸ πνεῦμα. (844 II) 51 Καὶ ἰδοὺ, τὸ καταπέτασμα τοῦ ναοῦ ἐσχίσθη εἰς δύο ἀπὸ ἄνωθεν ἕως κάτω· καὶ ἡ γῆ ἐσείσθη, καὶ αἱ πέτραι ἐσχίσθησαν, (845 X) 52 καὶ τὰ μνημεῖα ἀνεῴχθησαν, καὶ πολλὰ σώματα τῶν κεκοιμημένων ἁγίων ἠγέρθη, 53 καὶ ἐξελθόντες ἐκ τῶν μνημείων, μετὰ τὴν ἔγερσιν αὐτοῦ, εἰσῆλθον εἰς τὴν ἁγίαν πόλιν, καὶ ἐνεφανίσθησαν πολλοῖς.

x Ps. 22. 1. & 69. 21. Mark 15. 36, &c. Luke 23. 36. John 19. 29.

(846 II) 54 [y] Ὁ δὲ ἑκατόνταρχος καὶ οἱ μετ' αὐτοῦ τηροῦντες τὸν Ἰησοῦν, ἰδόντες τὸν σεισμὸν καὶ τὰ γενόμενα, ἐφοβήθησαν σφόδρα, λέγοντες, Ἀληθῶς Θεοῦ Υἱὸς ἦν οὗτος.

y ver. 36. & ch. 14. 33. Mark 15. 39. Luke 23. 47.

(847 VI) 55 [z] Ἦσαν δὲ ἐκεῖ γυναῖκες πολλαὶ ἀπὸ μακρόθεν θεωροῦσαι, αἵτινες ἠκολούθησαν τῷ Ἰησοῦ ἀπὸ τῆς Γαλιλαίας, διακονοῦσαι αὐτῷ, 56 ἐν αἷς ἦν Μαρία ἡ Μαγδαληνὴ, καὶ Μαρία ἡ τοῦ Ἰακώβου καὶ Ἰωσῆ μήτηρ, καὶ ἡ μήτηρ τῶν υἱῶν Ζεβεδαίου.

z Luke 8. 23. & 23. 49. Mark 15. 40.

(848 I) 57 [a] Ὀψίας δὲ γενομένης, ἦλθεν ἄνθρωπος πλούσιος ἀπὸ Ἀριμαθαίας τοὔνομα Ἰωσὴφ, ὃς καὶ αὐτὸς ἐμαθήτευσε τῷ Ἰησοῦ. 58 Οὗτος προσελθὼν τῷ Πιλάτῳ, ἠτήσατο τὸ σῶμα τοῦ Ἰησοῦ. Τότε ὁ Πιλάτος ἐκέλευσεν ἀποa Mark 15. 42—47. Luke 23. 50—55. John 19. 38. Isa. 53. 9.

34, legitur, Ἐλωΐ, Ἐλωΐ; quod est Chald. אֱלָהִי, אֱלָהִי; Jesus verò pronuntiabat, v. ad xxvi. 73, אֱלָהִי. Apud Marcum legitur λαμμὰ, quia Hebr. et Chald. scribitur לָמָּה. Pro Hebraico אַזְבַּחְתָּנִי usus est Jesus Chaldaico שְׁבַקְתָּנִי." (Rosen., Kuin.)

May not this be an argument also for the use of vernacular Scriptures?

This voice is for our sakes; that we may know that Christ was perfect Man, having a human body and human soul, to the last. He spoke in our name. (Greg. Naz. 543. Athanas. adv. Arian. iii. pp. 478—480.) And that we should never despair, even if God hides His face from us. For Christ, Who uttered these words, was the Beloved Son in Whom He was well pleased; and with reverence be it said, the Father was never more pleased with Him than in this His act of humility and perfect obedience. And He was then heard (Heb. v. 7), and because He was obedient to death, even the death of the Cross, therefore God highly exalted Him, and gave Him a Name above every name (Phil. ii. 9).

48. καλάμῳ] This is probably the stem of the ὕσσωπος, mentioned by St. John xix. 29, which grew from a stalk into a tuft; and, the cross not being high, might be reached by a person holding it. Dodonæus de Stirp. iv. 19, "Hyssopus caules erigit dodrantales aut altiores, duros ac lignosos." See Mintert and Winer in v.

50. φωνῇ μεγάλῃ] To show that He laid down His life by His own will, not from exhaustion of natural force.

He cried with a loud voice, and thus proved the truth of what He had said, No one taketh away My life from Me; I have power to lay down My life, and have power to take it again (John x. 17). Pilate, therefore, wondered that He was so soon dead (Mark xv. 44), and the centurion was the rather led to believe, because He died with power (Mark xv. 39).

This cry rent the veil of the Temple; and opened the graves, and made the house of the Jews desolate. He showed His might by the raising of the dead, and by the quenching of the sun's light, and by the earthquake, and by a revolution in the elements.

He who rent the rocks and shook the earth, could have also destroyed His enemies; but in His mercy He spared them, and wrought these wonders for their conversion, and yet their hearts were hardened. (Chrys., Jerome.)

51. τὸ καταπέτασμα—ἐσχίσθη] The Veil of the Holy of Holies. "Duo erant templi vela; interius, quo velatum erat Sanctum Sanctorum, quod Hebr. פָּרֹכֶת, ab Alex. καταπέτασμα dicitur, alterium exterius, quod erat ad introitum templi et Hebr. מָסָךְ, ab Alexandrinis κάλυμμα Exod. xxvi. 31. 33. 35, à Philone ἐπίσπαστρον vocatur. Hoc loco intelligi debet illud velum, quod oppansum erat Sancto Sanctorum, quod simpliciter καταπέτασμα nuncupabatur, vid. Philo de Vit. Mos. 2, p. 667, C. Joseph. Ant. v. 5. 4." See Heb. ix. 3.

"Velum Templi scissum est, et omnia Legis revelata mysteria ut universis Gentibus proderentur." (Jerome, iv. 176.) "Liber jam aditus in Sancta." (Bengel.)

The veil was rent. Thus our Lord showed His power and wrath, and at the same time His love. He intimated that what was before inaccessible, was now made easy of access, and that Heaven would be opened, and that He our Great High Priest would now enter the true Holy of Holies. They had said, "If He be King of Israel, let Him come down from the Cross;" but He proves Himself King of the World. They had derided Him, saying, "Thou that destroyest the Temple," He showed that it would be desolate by rending the Veil. (Chrys.)

52. κεκοιμημένων] a Hebraism. κοιμᾶσθαι = שָׁכַב, to sleep in death, 1 Kings xi. 43, and passim. Vorst. pp. 199. 202. John xi. 11. 14. Acts vii. 60; xiii. 36. 1 Cor. vii. 39; xi. 30.

— ἠγέρθη] a prolepsis. This is the eighth Resurrection recorded in Holy Scripture. The preceding ones are as follows:—

1. The Son of the Widow of Sarepta. 1 Kings xvii.
2. The Shunamite's Son. 2 Kings iv.
3. That caused by the bones of Elisha. 2 Kings xiii.
4. Jairus' Daughter. Mark v.
5. The Widow's Son at Nain. Luke vii.
6. Lazarus. John xi.
7. Christ Himself.
8. The bodies of the saints,—a rehearsal of the general Resurrection consequent on the Resurrection of Christ. The Chief Priests had said, "He saved others, Himself He cannot save." He hanging upon the Cross raised the Saints from their graves, and thus gave a sign of the Resurrection.

The risen Saints enter the Holy City and appear to many—as a pledge that all the bodies of the Saints will be raised hereafter, and enter the true heavenly Jerusalem.

Although the graves were opened, yet none of the bodies of the Saints arose before the Resurrection of Christ, in order that He might be the first-born from the dead. (Col. i. 18. 1 Cor. xv. 20. 23.) They did not appear generally to all persons, but to some chosen for that honour. (Jerome.)

53. ἐξελθόντες] the masculine, after σώματα, indicating personal life and action. Cp. on Mark ix. 26.

— ἁγίαν πόλιν] "The Holy City"—Jerusalem, so called here by the Holy Ghost, even in the History of the Crucifixion. She was still the Holy City, because of God's goodness to her in the gifts and graces of the Holy Scripture, and of the Temple and its sacred offices, which she enjoyed, and still by His mercy retained, though miserably abused by her who had received them, and who by her sins would, ere long, bring destruction from heaven upon herself.

An important passage with regard to the true doctrine concerning particular Churches, which make up the Church Visible on earth. Every such Church, as long as it retains the Word and the Sacraments of Christ, is a Holy City, but any one of such Churches may be rejected and destroyed for her sins.

But the Visible Church of God was not destroyed by the taking of Jerusalem, nor will the Universal Church ever fail, though any one particular Church may.

— ἐνεφανίσθησαν] Whether they died again, or were received into glory, the Fathers are not agreed. See Aug. Epist. ad Euodium 99. Theophyl. for the former opinion; cf. Heb. xi. 40, and Origen, Jerome, and others (apud à Lapide) for the latter.

57. Ἀριμαθαίας] Probably the native place of Samuel, in Mount Ephraim (1 Sam. i. 1), sometimes called Rama רָמָה, from Hebr. רוּם (rum), elatum esse.

See further on Luke xxiii. 51.

For a beautiful Homily on the Burial of Christ, ἐν τῷ ἁγίῳ καὶ μεγάλῳ σαββάτῳ, see S. Epiphan. ii. 259.

δοθῆναι τὸ σῶμα. (349 I) 59 Καὶ λαβὼν τὸ σῶμα ὁ Ἰωσὴφ, ἐνετύλιξεν αὐτὸ σινδόνι καθαρᾷ, 60 καὶ ἔθηκεν αὐτὸ ἐν τῷ καινῷ αὐτοῦ μνημείῳ, ὃ ἐλατόμησεν ἐν τῇ πέτρᾳ, καὶ προσκυλίσας λίθον μέγαν τῇ θύρᾳ τοῦ μνημείου, ἀπῆλθεν. (350 VI) 61 Ἦν δὲ ἐκεῖ Μαρία ἡ Μαγδαληνὴ, καὶ ἡ ἄλλη Μαρία, καθήμεναι ἀπέναντι τοῦ τάφου.

(351 X) 62 Τῇ δὲ ἐπαύριον, ἥτις ἐστὶ μετὰ τὴν παρασκευὴν, συνήχθησαν οἱ ἀρχιερεῖς καὶ οἱ Φαρισαῖοι πρὸς Πιλάτον, 63 λέγοντες, Κύριε, ἐμνήσθημεν ὅτι ἐκεῖνος ὁ πλάνος εἶπεν ἔτι ζῶν, [b] Μετὰ τρεῖς ἡμέρας ἐγείρομαι. 64 Κέλευσον οὖν ἀσφαλισθῆναι τὸν τάφον ἕως τῆς τρίτης ἡμέρας, μήποτε ἐλθόντες οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ νυκτὸς κλέψωσιν αὐτὸν, καὶ εἴπωσι τῷ λαῷ, Ἠγέρθη ἀπὸ τῶν νεκρῶν· καὶ ἔσται ἡ ἐσχάτη πλάνη χείρων τῆς πρώτης. 65 Ἔφη αὐτοῖς ὁ Πιλάτος, Ἔχετε κουστωδίαν, ὑπάγετε, ἀσφαλίσασθε ὡς οἴδατε. 66 Οἱ δὲ πορευθέντες ἠσφαλίσαντο τὸν τάφον, σφραγίσαντες τὸν λίθον, μετὰ τῆς κουστωδίας.

b ch. 12. 40. & 16. 21. & 17. 23. & 20. 19. & 26. 61. Mark 8. 31. & 10. 34. Luke 9. 22. & 18. 33. & 24. 6, 7. John 2. 19.

XXVIII. (352 I) 1 [a] Ὀψὲ δὲ σαββάτων, τῇ ἐπιφωσκούσῃ εἰς μίαν σαββάτων, ἦλθε Μαρία ἡ Μαγδαληνὴ, καὶ ἡ ἄλλη Μαρία, θεωρῆσαι τὸν τάφον. 2 Καὶ a Mark 16. 1. Luke 24. 1. John 20. 1.

---

59. σινδόνι καθαρᾷ] σινδὼν is the word used by the LXX for the Hebr. סָדִין (sadhin), and seems to be derived from it, from root סָדַן (sadan), to cover. Arab. wool. The LXX sometimes used ὀθόνιον (Jud. xiv. 13), as St. John does here, xix. 40, for σινδών. Some of the Fathers applied this κατ' ἀναγωγὴν to the preparation to be made for the reception of Christ's mystical body in the Holy Eucharist.

By this simple burial of the Lord, a rebuke is given to those who cannot dispense with luxury, even in their graves. And, spiritually, we may say that whoever receives the body of Christ with a pure heart, wraps it in clean linen. (Jerome.)

60. καινῷ] New, free from corruption; and lest it should be said that some one of the saints had risen for Him, or had been the cause of His Resurrection. Cp. Elisha, 2 Kings xiii. 21. (See Bengel.)

A new tomb, in which none was ever laid. And thence He arose to everlasting life, as He had been born from the Virgin's womb. (Jerome.) Christ rose from the new tomb, without moving away the stone. He who, as man, entered life through the closed gate of the Virgin's womb, rose to immortality from a sealed sepulchre.

— ἐν τῇ πέτρᾳ] In the Rock there. On the Holy Sepulchre and the Church there built, see S. Cyril of Jerusalem, Cat. 14, pp. 211. 216, and the authors there cited in the notes.

62. παρασκευήν] The Preparation, i. e. for the Sabbath; hence Friday has this name in the Eastern Church, and was observed in memory of the Crucifixion, "ab antiquo et ubique," says Routh, R. S. iv. 500; iii. 457. 467. 470; iv. 45. 74.

On the sixth day of the week (Friday) the first Adam was created; and on the seventh day God rested. Christ, the second Adam, He who by dying is become to us the Prince of Life, died on the sixth day, and on the seventh He rested in the tomb.

The following are from Authors of the third century. Victorinus (Routh, iii. 457): "Dies sextus paraceue dicitur: hoc die, ob passionem Domini, aut stationem Deo aut jejunium facimus. Die septimo requievit ab omnibus operibus suis. Hoc die solemus superponere, ut Die Dominico cum gratiarum actione ad panem exeamus: eâ die resurrexit quâ lucem fecit." St. Peter Alex. (Routh, iv. p. 45), τὴν τετράδα νηστεύομεν διὰ τὸ γενόμενον συμβούλιον ὑπὸ τῶν Ἰουδαίων ἐπὶ τῇ προδοσίᾳ τοῦ Κυρίου, τὴν δὲ παρασκευὴν διὰ τὸ πεπονθέναι αὐτὸν ὑπὲρ ἡμῶν· τὴν γὰρ Κυριακὴν χαρμοσύνης ἡμέραν ἄγομεν διὰ τὸν ἀναστάντα ἐν αὐτῇ.

The Jewish seventh-day Sabbath died and was buried with Christ, and rose again with Him the first day of the week, and became the LORD'S DAY. Cp. on xxviii. 1.

64. νυκτός] Not in some of the most ancient MSS.; cp. xxviii. 13.

— πλάνη] cp. πλάνος, v. 63. That will be worse for us than His former πλάνη in calling Himself the Messiah.

65. ὡς οἴδατε] "Uti nostis—nam ego quidem de istâ re nihil laboro, vos attinet, me nihil spectat."

66. ἠσφαλίσαντο] A divine dispensation; that the evidence of Christ's power in His Resurrection might be more glorious.

The more strictly He is guarded by His enemies, the more clearly the power of His Resurrection is proved by us. (Jerome.)

It has been asked, If the stone was sealed and the watch set, how was it that the women came to anoint the body? (Mark xvi. 1. Luke xxiv. 1.) The sealing did not take place on Friday, but on the Sabbath, the great Sabbath (xxvii. 62). The women had returned home (Luke xxiii. 56) on Friday afternoon, and prepared spices, and rested during the Sabbath, "according to the commandment," while the Priests were busy negotiating with Pilate for the watch, and in setting the seal on the tomb; and it is not probable that the women knew any thing of the matter. (Cp. Arnoldi, p. 576.)

CH. XXVIII. 1. ὀψέ] i. e. "nocte in auroram vergente." See Mark xvi. 2, λίαν πρωΐ. The word ὀψὲ is equivalent to the Hebrew עֶרֶב (ereb), and together with the morning makes the day. Gen. i. 5.

— τῇ ἐπιφωσκούσῃ] A remarkable expression. The Sabbath is illuminated, not taken away, by Christ; it dawns into the Lord's Day, and shines in the whole Church.

— μίαν σαββάτων] μία = πρώτη, אַחַת, "non una tantùm, sed prima." Vorst. de Hebr. p. 47. See on Acts xx. 7. Thence called ἡ Κυριακὴ, 'dies Dominica' (dimanche), 'the Lord's Day.' Rev. i. 10. Cp. above, note on xxvii. 62.

On the due observance of the Lord's Day, see the excellent remarks in Serm. 280, p. 3100, in Appendix to Sermons of St. Augustine. "Dominicum diem Apostoli et Apostolici viri ideo religiosâ solemnitate habendum sanxerunt, quia in eodem Redemptor Noster à mortuis resurrexit, quique ideo Dominicus appellatur, ut in eo, à terrenis operibus vel mundi illecebris abstinentes, tantùm divinis cultibus serviamus, dantes scilicet diei huic honorem et reverentiam propter spem Resurrectionis nostræ quam habemus in illâ.

"Nam sicut Ipse Dominus, Jesus Christus et Salvator, resurrexit à mortuis, ita et nos resurrecturos in novissimo die speramus. Apparet autem hunc diem etiam in Scripturis Sanctis esse solemnem. Ipse enim est primus dies sæculi, in ipso formata sunt elementa mundi, in ipso à mortuis resurrexit Christus, in ipso de cœlis Spiritus Sanctus super Apostolos descendit. Manna in eodem in eremo primùm de cœlo datum est. Ideo sancti doctores Ecclesiæ decreverunt omnem gloriam Judaici Sabbati in illam transferre, ut quòd ipsi in figurâ, nos celebraremus in veritate; quia hinc erit Requies nostra vera, quando Resurrectio fuerit perpetrata, et remuneratio in animâ et corpore simul perfecta. Observemus ergo diem dominicam, et sanctificemus illam sicut antiquis est de Sabbato præceptum." (Levit. xxiii. 32. 35.)

Christ resting in the grave consecrated to us the true Sabbath, which is rest from sin and rest in Christ; that we may rise again to newness of life here, and to glory everlasting hereafter, for an eternal Lord's Day. And therefore Christ says, "Come unto Me,—and ye shall find Rest for your souls." (See Macar. Hom. 35, "On the Old and New Sabbath," p. 191.)

On the "case of the Sabbath," see Bp. Sanderson, v. 40; and on the divine Institution and perpetual obligation of the Lord's Day, Bp. Cosin, Works, iv. p. 451—461, and v. p. 529. Bingham, Ant. xx. 2.

— σαββάτων] The Sabbath, or seventh day in the paschal week, was a high day. On that day, the second day of unleavened bread, and falling on that year on a Saturday, the first ripe sheaf of the harvest was to be waved before the Lord (Levit. xxiii. 10—12),—a prophecy of our Lord's Resurrection, and of our Resurrection also. (1 Cor. xv. 20.) Cp. Hos. vi. 2, quoted by St. Cyril. Hierosol. p. 212. Bp. Pearson, on the Creed (Art. v. p. 486), appears to be of opinion that this year the sheaf was waved on the First Day of the week—the day of the Resurrection; and this perhaps may be explained by what is stated by Bp. Patrick on Levit. xxiii. 16.

— ἡ ἄλλη Μαρία] The mother of James and Joses, and, probably, the wife of Cleophas or Alphæus. (Cp. xxvii. 56. 61. Mark xv. 40. John xix. 25.)

On the supposed discrepancy in the history of these events, see Chrys. v. 740. Orat. 115.

The women are said by the Evangelists to have come to the tomb at different times; this is no sign of error on their part (as is profanely alleged by some), but it is a proof of the zeal and love of those who could not bear to be long absent from the tomb of their Lord. (Jerome.) ἰδοὺ, σεισμὸς ἐγένετο μέγας· [b] ἄγγελος γὰρ Κυρίου καταβὰς ἐξ οὐρανοῦ, προσελθὼν ἀπεκύλισε τὸν λίθον ἀπὸ τῆς θύρας, καὶ ἐκάθητο ἐπάνω αὐτοῦ. [3] [c] Ἦν δὲ ἡ ἰδέα αὐτοῦ ὡς ἀστραπὴ, καὶ τὸ ἔνδυμα αὐτοῦ λευκὸν ὡσεὶ χιών. [4] Ἀπὸ δὲ τοῦ φόβου αὐτοῦ ἐσείσθησαν οἱ τηροῦντες, καὶ ἐγένοντο ὡσεὶ νεκροί. (358/II) [5] Ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ ὁ ἄγγελος εἶπε ταῖς γυναιξί, Μὴ φοβεῖσθε ὑμεῖς· οἶδα γὰρ ὅτι Ἰησοῦν τὸν ἐσταυρωμένον ζητεῖτε· [6] οὐκ ἔστιν ὧδε· ἠγέρθη γὰρ, [d] καθὼς εἶπε· δεῦτε ἴδετε τὸν τόπον ὅπου ἔκειτο ὁ Κύριος· [7] καὶ ταχὺ πορευθεῖσαι εἴπατε τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ, ὅτι ἠγέρθη ἀπὸ τῶν νεκρῶν· καὶ ἰδοὺ, προάγει ὑμᾶς εἰς τὴν Γαλιλαίαν· ἐκεῖ αὐτὸν ὄψεσθε· ἰδοὺ, εἶπον ὑμῖν. (354/II) [8] Καὶ ἐξελθοῦσαι ταχὺ ἀπὸ τοῦ μνημείου μετὰ φόβου καὶ χαρᾶς μεγάλης, ἔδραμον ἀπαγγεῖλαι τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ. (356/X) [9] Ὡς δὲ ἐπορεύοντο ἀπαγγεῖλαι τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἰδοὺ [e] ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἀπήντησεν αὐταῖς, λέγων, Χαίρετε. Αἱ δὲ προσελθοῦσαι ἐκράτησαν αὐτοῦ τοὺς πόδας, καὶ προσεκύνησαν αὐτῷ. [10] [f] Τότε λέγει αὐταῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Μὴ φοβεῖσθε· ὑπάγετε ἀπαγγείλατε τοῖς ἀδελφοῖς μου, ἵνα ἀπέλθωσιν εἰς τὴν Γαλιλαίαν, κἀκεῖ με ὄψονται.

b Mark 16. 5—8. Luke 24. 4. John 20. 12. c Dan. 10. 6.
d ch. 12. 40. & 16. 21. & 17. 23. & 20. 19.
e Mark 16. 9. John 20. 14.
f John 20. 17. Acts 1. 3. Heb. 2. 11.

[11] Πορευομένων δὲ αὐτῶν, ἰδοὺ τινὲς τῆς κουστωδίας ἐλθόντες εἰς τὴν πόλιν ἀπήγγειλαν τοῖς ἀρχιερεῦσιν ἅπαντα τὰ γενόμενα. [12] Καὶ συναχθέντες μετὰ τῶν πρεσβυτέρων, συμβούλιόν τε λαβόντες, ἀργύρια ἱκανὰ ἔδωκαν τοῖς στρατιώταις, [13] λέγοντες, Εἴπατε, ὅτι οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ νυκτὸς ἐλθόντες ἔκλεψαν αὐτὸν, ἡμῶν κοιμωμένων. [14] Καὶ ἐὰν ἀκουσθῇ τοῦτο ἐπὶ τοῦ ἡγεμόνος, ἡμεῖς πείσομεν αὐτὸν, καὶ ὑμᾶς ἀμερίμνους ποιήσομεν. [15] Οἱ δὲ λαβόντες τὰ ἀργύρια, ἐποίησαν ὡς ἐδιδάχθησαν. Καὶ διεφημίσθη ὁ λόγος οὗτος παρὰ Ἰουδαίοις μέχρι τῆς σήμερον.

[16] [g] Οἱ δὲ ἕνδεκα μαθηταὶ ἐπορεύθησαν εἰς τὴν Γαλιλαίαν, εἰς τὸ ὄρος οὗ ἐτάξατο αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς. [17] Καὶ ἰδόντες αὐτὸν προσεκύνησαν αὐτῷ· οἱ δὲ

g ch. 26. 32.

For Homilies on the Resurrection, see Epiphan. ii. 276. St. Cyril. Hieros. Cat. 14, p. 205—216, and Bp. Andrewes, Serm. ii. 185—427; iii. 1—103.

2. ἄγγελος] Our Lord, who is one and the same person, both Son of God and Son of Man, according to His two natures, at one time shows signs of His greatness, at another of His humility. As Man He is crucified and buried, inclosed in a tomb sealed with a stone; but the deeds done in the outer world prove Him the Son of God. The sun hiding his face; the darkness covering the earth; the earth itself rocked by an earthquake; the veil torn; the rocks rent; the dead raised; the ministry of Angels. Angels attended Him at His birth. An Angel was sent to Mary, to Joseph, to the Shepherds. He is tempted in the wilderness, and after His victory Angels minister unto Him. Now an Angel comes to guard His tomb, and by his white raiment intimates the glory of His triumph; and at His ascension two Angels appear to the Apostles and give a promise of the second coming of Christ, when He will appear with legions of Angels. (Jerome.)

— ἀπεκύλισε τὸν λίθον] rolled away. St. Matthew goes back to an earlier point; not that Christ might rise, for He had risen, but that they might go in and see where He had lain.

In the case of Lazarus, the stone was removed before he was raised by Christ; but Christ raised Himself, and the stone was removed afterwards.

The Fathers observe here an analogy to His birth from the Blessed Virgin, "ut ex clauso Virginis utero natus, sic ex clauso sepulchro resurrexit in quo nemo conditus fuerat, et postquàm resurrexisset se per clausas fores in conspectum Apostolorum induxit." Cp. Ezech. xliv. 2. (See Greg. M.)

St. Epiphan. (in Sepulch. Christi, tom. ii. p. 262) observes that Christ arose without breaking the seal of the tomb,—ὥσπερ ἐσφραγισμένων τῶν κλείθρων τῆς παρθενικῆς φύσεως ἐκ παρθένου γεγένηται,—and he also remarks, that as forty days after His πρώτη γένησις He was presented in the Temple of the earthly Jerusalem, so after forty days from His δευτέρα γένησις, or birth from the grave, He presented Himself in the Temple of the heavenly Jerusalem.

5. ὑμεῖς] emphatic: Let the Roman soldiers fear (v. 4)—not ye,—weak women though ye be.

— ἐσταυρωμένον] After the Resurrection the Angel came and rolled away the Stone, in order that the women might see the tomb empty, and might believe that He was risen. And they were rejoiced (v. 8) when they saw it, for they were persuaded that no one could have taken away the body while the soldiers were watching the grave. And the Angel says, I know that ye seek Jesus who was crucified; he is not ashamed to speak of the cross; for this is the source of our blessings. (Chrys.)

6. ἠγέρθη] Death began with woman; and to woman the first announcement is made of Resurrection. (Hilary.)

— ὁ Κύριος] Where lay the Lord: yours and ours; the Lord of life and death; and now declared to be such by His glorious Resurrection. See ver. 2, where this angel is called ἄγγελος Κυρίου, and so Christ is acknowledged to be one with Jehovah.

7. Γαλιλαίαν· ἐκεῖ αὐτὸν ὄψεσθε] In Galilee of the Gentiles, despised by the Jews; in Galilee, the scene of His earthly ministry, not in Judæa;—an intimation that the Gospel, refused by the Jews, would be preached to the heathen.

8. ἐξελθοῦσαι] having come out of the sepulchre. St. Matthew does not tell us that they had gone in, but this circumstance is supplied by St. Luke xxiv. 3.

9. ἀπήντησεν αὐταῖς] After He had appeared specially to Mary Magdalene. (See Mark xvi. 9. John xx. 1. 11—18.) That previous appearance accounts for the readiness with which the women here acknowledge Jesus as risen.

— χαίρετε] The women receive the reward of their constancy and faith; they were the first to see the sepulchre open, and to carry the good tidings of what they heard and saw. And Jesus Himself met them, and said, "All hail!" Observe, how our Lord elevates the weaker sex, which had fallen into dishonour through the transgression of Eve; and how He inspires it with hope, and heals its sorrows, and makes women to be messengers of glad tidings to His disciples. They hold Him by the Feet. We may perhaps wish to have been with them. And we may hold Christ now by receiving the holy eucharist with a pure heart; and if we are merciful to His members, we shall see Him coming with the Holy Angels at the great day, and not only receive His salutation, "All hail!" but hear the gracious words, "Come, ye blessed children of My Father, receive the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world." (Chrys.)

13. εἴπατε—σήμερον] Cp. Justin Martyr c. Tryphon. §§ 17. 108. "Veritatem absconderunt, mendacium vendiderunt, mendacium cæci cæcis. O vanitas vendens veritatem vanitati. Hodieque hoc est apud Judæos. Testimonium Martyrum nolunt audire, ut vivant; et testimonium dormientium audiunt, ut pereant. Si dormierunt custodes, unde potuerant scire quis illum tulerit? Aut vigilabatis et custodire debebatis; aut dormiebatis, et quid sit factum nescitis." (Aug. Serm. 44 and 129.)

For an answer, by implication, to this calumny of the Chief Priests, see John xx. 6, 7.

ἐδίστασαν. 18 h Καὶ προσελθὼν ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἐλάλησεν αὐτοῖς, λέγων, Ἐδόθη μοι πᾶσα ἐξουσία ἐν οὐρανῷ καὶ ἐπὶ γῆς. 19 i Πορευθέντες οὖν μαθητεύσατε πάντα τὰ ἔθνη, βαπτίζοντες αὐτοὺς εἰς τὸ ὄνομα τοῦ Πατρὸς καὶ τοῦ Υἱοῦ καὶ τοῦ ἁγίου Πνεύματος, 20 k διδάσκοντες αὐτοὺς τηρεῖν πάντα ὅσα ἐνετειλάμην ὑμῖν. Καὶ ἰδοὺ, ἐγὼ μεθ' ὑμῶν εἰμι πάσας τὰς ἡμέρας, ἕως τῆς συντελείας τοῦ αἰῶνος. Ἀμήν.

h ch. 11. 27. Luke 10. 22. John 3. 35. & 13. 3. & 17. 2, 5, 24. Heb. 1. 2. & 2. 8. Dan. 7. 14. i Mark 16. 15. Luke 24. 47. Isa. 52. 10. Acts 2. 38, 39. k Acts 2. 42.

---

17. ἐδίστασαν] "Dubitatum est ab illis ne dubitaretur à nobis." (Leo. M. Serm. lxxi. in Ascens. p. 152.)

18. ἐδόθη μοι] Given to Me as Man; for as God He had it from everlasting. Given to Him it is in virtue of His Incarnation and humiliation, and of His perfect obedience as Man (Phil. ii. 8. Acts ii. 36; xiii. 33. 1 Pet. iii. 22). Given to Him it is for the protection of His Church and the subjugation of His adversaries (John xvii. 2). Cp. Athanas. c. Arian. Orat. i. p. 354, 355, who says, "Christ, as Son of Man, is said to receive, because He has a human body, which is by nature capable of reception; but He Himself as the WORD possessed all things from the beginning because of His Divinity and perfection." This is enlarged upon by Athanas. adv. Arianos iii. pp. 26. 40. 456. 467. See also St. Basil de Spiritu Sancto, vol. iii. pp. 23—28.

This is His Mediatorial Kingdom, which He will exercise till the last Day (1 Cor. xv. 24. 28), when all His enemies shall be put under His Feet (Ps. ii. 6. 9; cx. 1. Heb. x. 13. Bp. Pearson on the Creed, Art. vi., and below on Acts iii. 21). But his kingdom absolutely, in that He is God and Man for ever and ever, will have no end.

19. πορευθέντες οὖν] The οὖν is not found in some MSS.—A, E, F, H, K, M, S, V, and may perhaps have been inserted in others to mark the connexion.—Since I, as God-Man, am universal Lord, therefore, go and bring all Nations under subjection to My sway, by the ministry of the Word and Sacraments. He Who before His Passion said, "Go not into the way of the Gentiles" (Matt. x. 5), now that He has suffered and is risen, and about to ascend, says, "Go, teach (μαθητεύσατε), make disciples of all Nations."

Here is an assertion of Christ's Universal Sovereignty, and of His claim to public homage from all Nations of the World. He now, as King of the Universe, demands obedience and honour from All Nations; and hereafter before Him as Judge of the World will "be gathered All Nations" (xxv. 32).

— μαθητεύσατε] make disciples of. μαθητεῦσαι is preparatory to διδάσκειν, which marks a continual habit. See the use of the word μαθητεῦσαι, ch. xxvii. 57.

— εἰς τὸ ὄνομα] Not in, but into; and not Names (plural), but into the One Name; i. e. admit them by the Sacrament of Baptism into the privileges and duties of Faith in, and Obedience to, the Name of the One God, in three Persons, the Father, and the Son, and the Holy Ghost (St. Hieron., St. Cyril. Alex. in Joh. i., Euthym.), and into participation of, and communion with, the Divine Nature. On ὄνομα, see above, vi. 9; xviii. 20, on εἰς τὸ ὄνομα. "Christ," says Athanas. p. 555, "has founded and rooted His Church in belief in the Holy Trinity."

— καὶ τοῦ Υἱοῦ] From this junction of the Son with the Father, St. Athanas. (adv. Arian. ii. 41, p. 402) demonstrates the Godhead of the Son. The same may be said of the Holy Ghost. (See Athanas. ad Serapion. § 12, pp. 528. 541, 542. 553; and Greg. Naz. Orat. xxxi. de Spiritu Sancto, et Orat. xxxiii. p. 615.) And on the difference between the doctrine of the Trinity and Tritheism on the one side and Arianism on the other, see ibid. p. 447. See also Barrow, Defence of the Blessed Trinity, iii. 495—519.

On the privileges founded on Christian Baptism, see, among others, the beautiful Sermon in St. Hippolyt. i. p. 261, and Greg. Nazian. pp. 692. 729, Orat. xl. St. Jerome, ad Lucifer., says, p. 292, "In Patre et Filio et Spiritu Sancto baptizatus homo Templum Domini fit; quùm veteri æde destructâ novum Trinitatis delubrum ædificatur."

20. μεθ' ὑμῶν] with you, and with those in whom your Apostolic authority to preach and administer the Sacraments will be continued to the end, and in whom therefore it will live by My Power.

— πάσας τὰς ἡμέρας] 'all the days.' I shall never be absent from you a single day; I shall never be absent in any of the days of the greatest trial and affliction of the Church; but I shall remain with her till the last Day, when you will see Me again in bodily presence.

— ἕως] And much less shall I be ever absent from you after it. (Greg. Nazian. p. 542.) See above on i. 25, and xvi. 28.

Christ is now with us; hereafter, if we continue His to the end, we shall be with Him. (Cp. Beng.)

Why did not St. Matthew mention the Ascension? Why did not St. John? They were both present at it; which St. Mark and St. Luke, who describe it, were not. The Holy Spirit inspired St. Matthew and St. John. And He inspired St. Mark and St. Luke to describe what they did not see. They saw it and describe it by the Spirit's aid. And when He was writing by St. Matthew He knew that He would describe the Ascension by St. Mark and St. Luke; and when He was writing by St. John He knew that He had sufficiently described it by them. And St. John takes it for granted as a fact well known to the Church. (See John vi. 62; xx. 17.) St. Matthew's silence is that of foresight; St. John's silence is that of assent. "And blessed are they who have not seen, and yet have believed" (John xx. 29).

ΤΟ ΚΑΤΑ ΜΑΡΚΟΝ

ΕΥΑΓΓΕΛΙΟΝ.

I. ($\frac{1}{11}$) [1] Ἀρχὴ τοῦ εὐαγγελίου Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ, Υἱοῦ τοῦ Θεοῦ—[2] ὡς γέγραπται ἐν Ἡσαΐᾳ τῷ προφήτῃ, Ἰδοὺ, ἐγὼ ἀποστέλλω τὸν ἄγγελόν

INTRODUCTORY NOTE TO ST. MARK'S GOSPEL.

On St. Mark's Gospel it may be observed,—

That the narrative coincides in a great measure with that of St. Matthew in substance and in language.

That even in those portions where this coincidence is most exact, certain minute and graphic particulars are inserted, which show that the narrator St. Mark was an eye-witness of what he narrates, or received his narrative from an eye-witness. (See note on ii. 2, 3.)

Hence St. Mark is wont to introduce Syro-chaldaic words, probably the very words used by Christ (see on ii. 3; ix. 23), and abrupt expressions, marking strongly the operations of feeling in the Speakers, especially in their entreaties to Christ for aid. (See v. 24; viii. 24.)

He is also frequent in his use of the present tense in the narrative (see x. 16; xi. 3. 7; xii. 13, 14; xv. 47)—placing the events described before the reader's eye. These and other characteristics indicating personal knowledge, eagerness of temper, and fervour of spirit, strongly confirm the testimony of Christian Antiquity (see below), that St. Mark's Gospel was written under the direction or at the dictation of St. Peter; whose failings are described more fully in this Gospel than in any other.

Hence it appears that where St. Mark's Gospel coincides with St. Matthew's, this is not because St. Mark had not the means of writing independently, but because he was convinced from personal knowledge that St. Matthew's Gospel was a true account of what he designed to relate (cp. Rosenm. pp. 4. 576), and that he intended to confirm St. Matthew's history. The coincidences in St. Mark with St. Matthew are the vouchers of an eye-witness to St. Matthew's veracity. And out of the mouth of two witnesses the truth is established.

St. Mark, who follows St. Matthew, is also followed by St. Luke. Thus the Gospels, like the Living Creatures which make in the vision of Ezekiel the Chariot of the Lord, mutually support, and are interwoven with, each other; and (to use St. Jerome's words, ad Paulin. iv. p. 574) they are, as it were, the chariot of God on which He rides, as on the Cherubim, throughout the world.

See further on this subject the General Remarks prefixed to the Gospels.

On St. Mark's personal history:—

St. Mark the Evangelist was the son of Mary, who received the Apostles in her house, as is stated in the Acts, xii. 12. At first he followed Barnabas, his uncle, and Paul, as the book of the Acts relates (xii. 25; xiii. 5. 13; xv. 37. 39); and he is mentioned by Paul in his Epistle to the Colossians (iv. 10; cp. Philemon 24), and the second to Timothy (2 Tim. iv. 11). He was afterwards with Peter at Rome, as Peter's first Epistle shows (1 Pet. v. 13), in which he calls Mark his son in the Spirit, and from him Mark received the whole history of the Gospel (cp. Routh, R. S. i. 13. 37. 40), as Clement relates (Clem. Alex. Hypotypos. vi.) in Rome itself; or, according to Chrysostom, in Egypt, at the desire of the faithful, he wrote his Gospel. (Euthymius Zyg. p. 1, ed. Athen. 1842.)

That Mark the Evangelist is the same as John Mark of the Acts of the Apostles, and as the Mark of St. Peter's Epistle and St. Paul's, see Lightfoot, Lardner, Wetstein, Michaelis, Marsh, Rosenmüller, and Meyer, on Mark, p. 1. His Hebrew name was John; and it is probable that he received that of Marcus—a Roman name, in addition, because he was designed to have intercourse with the Roman Church, and to write a Gospel for their use; as Saul took the Roman name of Paul because he was to be the Apostle of the Gentiles. See on Acts xiii. 9.

Hence probably his use of Latin words. (See on ii. 4.)

If it be asked,—

Why, if he wrote specially for Roman use, he did not write in Latin? the answer is, "Romæ vix quisquam erat Græcè non intelligens" (Grot.); and he wrote also for the world at large; and because (as Cicero pro Archiâ says, § 5) the knowledge of the Latin tongue was confined within narrow limits, but Greek was read every where.

The following are ancient testimonies on this subject:—

Papias ap. Euseb. H. E. iii. 39, Μάρκος μὲν ἑρμηνευτὴς Πέτρου γενόμενος, ὅσα ἐμνημόνευσεν, ἀκριβῶς ἔγραψεν—οὔτε ἤκουσε τοῦ Κυρίου, οὔτε παρηκολούθησεν αὐτῷ, ὕστερον δὲ, ὡς ἔφην, Πέτρῳ. Irenæus, adv. Hæres. iii. 1, μετὰ τὴν τούτων (Πέτρου καὶ Παύλου) ἔξοδον, Μάρκος ὁ μαθητὴς καὶ ἑρμηνευτὴς Πέτρου, καὶ αὐτὸς τὰ παρὰ Πέτρου κηρυσσόμενα ἐγγράφως ἡμῖν παραδέδωκε. Tertullianus adv. Marcion. iv. 5, "Marcus quod edidit Evangelium, Petri affirmatur, cujus interpres Marcus. Cœpit magistrorum videri, quæ discipuli promulgarint." Clemens Alex. ap. Euseb. H. E. ii. 15, relates that Mark was requested by the Romans to commit to writing the Gospel which Peter had preached to them, and that Peter approved the Work to be read in the Church. Origenes ap. Euseb. H. E. vi. 25, δεύτερον δὲ τὸ κατὰ Μάρκον εὐαγγέλιον, ὡς Πέτρος ὑφηγήσατο αὐτῷ ποιήσαντα. Hieronymus, Ep. ad Hedibiam, c. 2, "Habebat interpretem beatus Petrus Marcum, cujus Evangelium, Petro narrante, et illo scribente, compositum est." Epiphan. Hæres. li. p. 428, εὐθὺς δὲ μετὰ τὸν Ματθαῖον, ἀκόλουθος γενόμενος ὁ Μάρκος τῷ ἁγίῳ Πέτρῳ ἐν Ῥώμῃ ἐπιτρέπεται τὸ εὐαγγέλιον ἐκθέσθαι· καὶ γράψας ἀποστέλλεται ὑπὸ τοῦ ἁγίου Πέτρου εἰς τὴν Αἰγυπτίων χώραν. Hieronymus de Viris Illustribus, c. 8, "Marcus discipulus et interpres Petri, juxta quod Petrum referentem audierat, rogatus Romæ à fratribus, breve scripsit Evangelium. Quod cùm Petrus audisset, probavit, et ecclesiis legendum suâ auctoritate edidit, sicut Clemens in sexto hypotyposeon scribit. Assumpto igitur Evangelio, quod ipse confecerat, perrexit ad Ægyptum, et primus Alexandriæ Christum annuntians, constituit ecclesiam tantâ doctrinæ et vitæ continentiâ, ut omnes sectatores Christi ad exemplum sui cogeret." μου πρὸ προσώπου σου, ὃς κατασκευάσει τὴν ὁδόν σου· (2/I) 3 Φωνὴ βοῶντος ἐν τῇ ἐρήμῳ, Ἑτοιμάσατε τὴν ὁδὸν Κυρίου, εὐθείας ποιεῖτε τὰς τρίβους αὐτοῦ—(8/VI) 4 ἐγένετο Ἰωάννης βαπτίζων ἐν τῇ ἐρήμῳ, καὶ κηρύσσων βάπτισμα μετανοίας εἰς ἄφεσιν ἁμαρτιῶν. 5 Καὶ ἐξεπορεύετο πρὸς αὐτὸν πᾶσα ἡ Ἰουδαία χώρα, καὶ οἱ Ἱεροσολυμῖται, καὶ ἐβαπτίζοντο πάντες ἐν τῷ Ἰορδάνῃ ποταμῷ ὑπ' αὐτοῦ, ἐξομολογούμενοι τὰς ἁμαρτίας αὐτῶν. 6 Ἦν δὲ Ἰωάννης ἐνδεδυμένος τρίχας καμήλου, καὶ ζώνην δερματίνην περὶ τὴν ὀσφὺν αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἐσθίων ἀκρίδας καὶ μέλι ἄγριον. (4/I) 7 Καὶ ἐκήρυσσε λέγων, Ἔρχεται ὁ ἰσχυρότερός μου ὀπίσω μου, οὗ οὐκ εἰμὶ ἱκανὸς κύψας λῦσαι τὸν ἱμάντα τῶν ὑποδημάτων αὐτοῦ. 8 [a] Ἐγὼ μὲν ἐβάπτισα ὑμᾶς ἐν ὕδατι, αὐτὸς δὲ βαπτίσει ὑμᾶς ἐν Πνεύματι ἁγίῳ. (5/I) 9 Καὶ ἐγένετο ἐν ἐκείναις ταῖς ἡμέραις, ἦλθεν Ἰησοῦς ἀπὸ Ναζαρὲθ τῆς Γαλιλαίας, καὶ ἐβαπτίσθη ὑπὸ Ἰωάννου εἰς τὸν Ἰορδάνην. 10 Καὶ εὐθέως ἀναβαίνων ἀπὸ τοῦ ὕδατος εἶδε σχιζομένους τοὺς οὐρανούς, καὶ τὸ Πνεῦμα ὡσεὶ περιστερὰν καταβαῖνον ἐπ' αὐτόν· 11 καὶ φωνὴ ἐγένετο ἐκ τῶν οὐρανῶν, Σὺ εἶ ὁ Υἱός μου ὁ ἀγαπητός, ἐν ᾧ εὐδόκησα. (6/II) 12 Καὶ εὐθέως τὸ Πνεῦμα αὐτὸν ἐκβάλλει εἰς τὴν ἔρημον. (7/VI) 13 Καὶ ἦν ἐκεῖ ἐν τῇ ἐρήμῳ ἡμέρας τεσσαράκοντα, πειραζόμενος ὑπὸ τοῦ Σατανᾶ, καὶ ἦν μετὰ τῶν θηρίων· καὶ οἱ ἄγγελοι διηκόνουν αὐτῷ.

(8/IV) 14 Μετὰ δὲ τὸ παραδοθῆναι τὸν Ἰωάννην, ἦλθεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἰς τὴν Γαλιλαίαν, κηρύσσων τὸ εὐαγγέλιον τῆς βασιλείας τοῦ Θεοῦ, (9/VI) 15 καὶ λέγων, Ὅτι πεπλήρωται ὁ καιρὸς, καὶ ἤγγικεν ἡ βασιλεία τοῦ Θεοῦ· μετανοεῖτε, καὶ πιστεύετε ἐν τῷ εὐαγγελίῳ.

16 Περιπατῶν δὲ παρὰ τὴν θάλασσαν τῆς Γαλιλαίας, εἶδε Σίμωνα καὶ Ἀνδρέαν τὸν ἀδελφὸν Σίμωνος ἀμφιβάλλοντας ἀμφίβληστρον ἐν τῇ θαλάσσῃ, ἦσαν γὰρ ἁλιεῖς. (10/II) 17 Καὶ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Δεῦτε ὀπίσω μου, καὶ ποιήσω

	MATT.	LUKE.
	III. 3	III. 4
	5	3
	4
	11	16
[a] Acts 1. 5. & 2. 4.
	13
	16	21
		22
	17
	IV. 1	IV. 1
	2	2
	11 12
	17
	18
	19

Ch. I. 1. ἀρχὴ τοῦ εὐαγγελίου] St. Matthew and St. John, the Apostolical Evangelists, begin the Gospel with the Generation of Christ; St. Matthew with His Human Generation; St. John with His Divine.

St. Luke begins the Gospel with John the Baptist; St. Mark with an appeal to ancient Prophecy. Hence Irenæus thus speaks (iii. 10. 6): "Marcus Interpres et sectator Petri, initium Evangelicæ conscriptionis fecit sic—Initium Evangelii, &c., manifestè initium Evangelii faciens Sanctorum Prophetarum Voces."

He observes also that St. Mark concludes his Gospel with the Ascension (he therefore regarded the conclusion as genuine), and with a reference to the words of ancient prophecy predicting it, "He sat down at the right hand of God." Cp. Ps. cx. 1; see also Bede here.

Hence Irenæus shows, against the Gnostic heresies, that the God of the Old and the New Testament is One and the Same: "Unus et idem Deus et Pater, à Prophetis annuntiatus, ab Evangelio traditus, quem Christiani colimus, et diligimus ex toto corde, Factorem cœli et terræ et omnium quæ in eis sunt."

On the use of the word εὐαγγέλιον by St. Mark, see below, x. 29.

2. ἐν Ἡσαΐᾳ] Mal. iii. 1. Isa. xl. 3. The Holy Spirit in the New Testament often combines two or more prophecies from different books of the Old Testament, and only specifies one Prophet by name. See above on Matt. xxvii. 9.

As Bede[1] observes here, all the Prophecies delivered by the Prophets are from One and the Same Spirit; and therefore the Evangelists do not specify minutely in detail the names of the Prophets through whom the several Prophecies come: "Quæcunque per eos Sanctus Spiritus dicit et singula sunt omnium et omnia singulorum."

4. ἐγένετο Ἰωάννης βαπτίζων] For an excellent exposition of this text, showing how John's Baptism was ἀρχὴ εὐαγγελίου, see Cyril. Hierosol. Cat. 3, p. 42.

— βάπτισμα μετανοίας εἰς ἄφεσιν] A Baptism exacting, as a condition of its reception, a change of mind and life with a view to pardon from Christ. And thus he acknowledged that his baptism was only temporary and manuductory to the Baptism of Christ, which brings remission of sins (see v. 8). (Theophylact.) Cp. Jerome adv. Lucifer. p. 293.

To speak (says Gregory Nazian. Orat. 39) on the difference of Baptisms. Moses baptized in the water, the cloud, and the sea, but this was done figuratively. John baptized, not according to the Jewish rite, but for the remission of sins, but not with the Spirit. Jesus baptized with Water and the Spirit. There is a fourth Baptism—that of Blood—of Martyrdom for Christ.

5. πᾶσα] And below, v. 33, πόλις ὅλη. See Matt. iii. 5, πάντες, i. e. πολλοί.

It may suffice to observe here once for all, that the notes on St. Matthew may be consulted in this and other very numerous parallel places which are noted in the margin of St. Mark.

7. ὁ ἰσχυρότερος] More emphatic than ἰσχυρότερος. He who is stronger κατ' ἐξοχήν:—the stronger: and who is stronger than all.

12. ἐκβάλλει] Matt. ix. 38.

13. θηρίων] Unhurt by them as Adam in Paradise. (Cf. Job v. 22). "Inter bestias commoratur ut homo, sed ministerio utitur Angelico ut Deus." (Bede.)

The mention of this incident, that our Lord was with the wild beasts, suggests an argument against the opinion that the region between Jerusalem and Jericho was the Scene of the Temptation.

It is more probable that it was in the wilderness of Arabia, where the Israelites were proved by God forty years.

Our Lord, the Son of God, was the Head of the Israel of God. See Matt. ii. 15, ἐξ Αἰγύπτου ἐκάλεσα τὸν Υἱόν μου. The literal Israel was forty years ἐν τῇ ἐρήμῳ, our Lord was forty days in the wilderness. The Law was given to the literal Israel, but that law was disobeyed by the people; and their carcases fell in the wilderness (Heb. iii. 17). In the wilderness Christ used the Law as His Weapon against the Tempter; and He conquers Satan by it. In the wilderness Moses and Elias fasted forty days, and Christ fasts forty days in the wilderness. Perhaps it was in the same wilderness; that of Arabia. And this is not at variance with the language with which the Holy Spirit describes His passage from Jordan to the wilderness, —ἤγετο ἐν τῷ Πνεύματι,—ὑπὸ τοῦ Πν.—ἐκβάλλει αὐτὸν τὸ Πν., which may describe a rapid translation, such as that by which Prophets and Evangelists were caught up (1 Kings xviii. 12. 2 Kings ii. 16. Acts viii. 39). Cp. Webster here; and Milton, P. R. i. 350.

15. πιστεύετε ἐν τ. ε.] Something more than πιστεύ. τ. ε.—Repose your faith in—build your belief on—the Gospel. Cp. Vorst, Hebr. p. 670.

16. Σίμωνα] He calls Peter, and afterwards John (v. 19). The Fathers regard Peter as the Apostolic σύμβολον πρακτικῆς, and John as σύμβολον θεωρίας, and say that they must both be united; but that πρακτικὴ must precede θεωρία. See Theophyl. here, and Aug. in John xxi.

17. δεῦτε—ἁλιεῖς] σαγηνεύει ἁλιεῖς, ἵνα ἁλιεῖς ἀνθρώπων γένωνται.

---

[1] The Exposition of Bede on St. Mark is a catena. See his Epistola Dedicatoria. And therefore what is cited as from Bede, is for the most part of an earlier age.

MATT. LUKE.

IV. IV. ὑμᾶς γενέσθαι ἁλιεῖς ἀνθρώπων. 18 Καὶ εὐθέως ἀφέντες τὰ δίκτυα αὐτῶν, 20 21 ἠκολούθησαν αὐτῷ. (11/VI) 19 Καὶ προβὰς ἐκεῖθεν ὀλίγον, εἶδε Ἰάκωβον τὸν τοῦ Ζεβεδαίου, καὶ Ἰωάννην τὸν ἀδελφὸν αὐτοῦ, καὶ αὐτοὺς ἐν τῷ πλοίῳ 22 καταρτίζοντας τὰ δίκτυα. 20 Καὶ εὐθέως ἐκάλεσεν αὐτούς· καὶ ἀφέντες τὸν πατέρα αὐτῶν Ζεβεδαῖον ἐν τῷ πλοίῳ μετὰ τῶν μισθωτῶν, ἀπῆλθον ὀπίσω αὐτοῦ.

31 · (12/VIII) 21 Καὶ εἰσπορεύονται εἰς Καφαρναούμ· καὶ εὐθέως τοῖς σάββασιν VII.
29 32 εἰσελθὼν εἰς τὴν συναγωγὴν ἐδίδασκε· (13/II) 22 Καὶ ἐξεπλήσσοντο ἐπὶ τῇ διδαχῇ αὐτοῦ· ἦν γὰρ διδάσκων αὐτοὺς ὡς ἐξουσίαν ἔχων, καὶ οὐχ ὡς οἱ 33 Γραμματεῖς. (14/VIII) 23 Καὶ ἦν ἐν τῇ συναγωγῇ αὐτῶν ἄνθρωπος ἐν πνεύματι 34 ἀκαθάρτῳ, καὶ ἀνέκραξε 24 λέγων, Ἔα, τί ἡμῖν καὶ σοί, Ἰησοῦ Ναζαρηνέ; 35 ἦλθες ἀπολέσαι ἡμᾶς; οἶδά σε τίς εἶ, ὁ ἅγιος τοῦ Θεοῦ. 25 Καὶ ἐπετίμησεν αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, λέγων, Φιμώθητι, καὶ ἔξελθε ἐξ αὐτοῦ. 26 Καὶ σπαράξαν αὐτὸν τὸ πνεῦμα τὸ ἀκάθαρτον, καὶ κράξαν φωνῇ μεγάλῃ, ἐξῆλθεν ἐξ αὐτοῦ.
36 27 Καὶ ἐθαμβήθησαν πάντες, ὥστε συζητεῖν πρὸς ἑαυτοὺς λέγοντας, Τί ἐστι τοῦτο; τίς ἡ διδαχὴ ἡ καινὴ αὕτη; ὅτι κατ' ἐξουσίαν καὶ τοῖς πνεύμασι τοῖς 37 ἀκαθάρτοις ἐπιτάσσει, καὶ ὑπακούουσιν αὐτῷ; 28 Ἐξῆλθε δὲ ἡ ἀκοὴ αὐτοῦ εὐθὺς εἰς ὅλην τὴν περίχωρον τῆς Γαλιλαίας.

14 38 (15/II) 29 Καὶ εὐθέως ἐκ τῆς συναγωγῆς ἐξελθόντες, ἦλθον εἰς τὴν οἰκίαν Σίμωνος καὶ Ἀνδρέου, μετὰ Ἰακώβου καὶ Ἰωάννου. 30 Ἡ δὲ πενθερὰ Σίμωνος
39 κατέκειτο πυρέσσουσα· καὶ εὐθέως λέγουσιν αὐτῷ περὶ αὐτῆς. 31 Καὶ προσ-15 ελθὼν ἤγειρεν αὐτὴν, κρατήσας τῆς χειρὸς αὐτῆς· καὶ ἀφῆκεν αὐτὴν ὁ πυρετὸς 16 40 εὐθέως, καὶ διηκόνει αὐτοῖς. 32 Ὀψίας δὲ γενομένης ὅτε ἔδυ ὁ ἥλιος, ἔφερον πρὸς αὐτὸν πάντας τοὺς κακῶς ἔχοντας, καὶ τοὺς δαιμονιζομένους· 33 καὶ ἡ 41 πόλις ὅλη ἐπισυνηγμένη ἦν πρὸς τὴν θύραν. (16/VIII) 34 Καὶ ἐθεράπευσε πολλοὺς κακῶς ἔχοντας ποικίλαις νόσοις, καὶ δαιμόνια πολλὰ ἐξέβαλε· καὶ οὐκ ἤφιε λαλεῖν τὰ δαιμόνια, ὅτι ᾔδεισαν αὐτόν.

42 (17/VIII) 35 Καὶ πρωῒ ἔννυχον λίαν ἀναστὰς ἐξῆλθε, καὶ ἀπῆλθεν εἰς ἔρημον τόπον, κἀκεῖ προσηύχετο. 36 Καὶ κατεδίωξαν αὐτὸν ὁ Σίμων καὶ οἱ μετ' αὐτοῦ.
37 καὶ εὑρόντες αὐτὸν, λέγουσιν αὐτῷ, Ὅτι πάντες σὲ ζητοῦσι. 38 Καὶ λέγει
43 αὐτοῖς, Ἄγωμεν εἰς τὰς ἐχομένας κωμοπόλεις, ἵνα καὶ ἐκεῖ κηρύξω, εἰς τοῦτο
44 γὰρ ἐξελήλυθα. 39 Καὶ ἦν κηρύσσων εἰς τὰς συναγωγὰς αὐτῶν εἰς ὅλην τὴν Γαλιλαίαν, καὶ τὰ δαιμόνια ἐκβάλλων.

VIII. V. (18/II) 40 Καὶ ἔρχεται πρὸς αὐτὸν λεπρὸς παρακαλῶν αὐτὸν καὶ γονυπετῶν
2 12
3 13 αὐτὸν, καὶ λέγων αὐτῷ, Ὅτι ἐὰν θέλῃς δύνασαί με καθαρίσαι. 41 Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς σπλαγχνισθεὶς, ἐκτείνας τὴν χεῖρα, ἥψατο αὐτοῦ, καὶ λέγει αὐτῷ, Θέλω, καθ-

---

23. ἐν πνεύματι ἀκ.] as in a prison. (See ch. v. 2.) The preposition ἐν is the more appropriate, because Roman prisoners were chained to their keepers (see Acts xii. 6), and were thus in their grasp.

24. ἔα] not from ἐάω, but חַ, ah!

— ὁ ἅγιος] Theophylact observes the force of the definite article here. Thou art ὁ μόνος ἅγιος, ὁ ὡρισμένος.

25. φιμώθητι] See on Matt. xxii. 12. Cf. v. 34.

In addition to the reasons suggested for this charge, Matt. viii. 4, μηδενὶ εἴπῃς, it may be observed that our Lord had special reasons for refusing the testimony of devils, because some countenance might thus seem to be given to the calumny of His enemies, that He acted in collusion with them, and cast out devils by Beelzebub (Matt. xii. 24. Mark iii. 22). And, lest if the devil's testimony is approved when he speaks true (for he sometimes uses truth as a bait, Euthym.), he may more easily deceive when it is false. (See Athanas. Epist. Encycl. p. 215.) Our Lord shows also that though He accepts praise from the humble and sincere heart, He is not to be beguiled by the flattery of hypocrites from punishing their sins. In like manner St. Paul stopped the mouth of the πνεῦμα Πύθωνος, who tried to conciliate him by calling him the Servant of the Most High God. See on Acts xvi. 16.

27. διδαχή] See Acts xiii. 12.

28. ἐξῆλθε δέ] Some read καὶ ἐξῆλ. But since καὶ at the beginning of a sentence is so common with St. Mark, especially in this chapter, it is not likely to have been altered by the copyists.

32. ὅτε ἔδυ ὁ ἥλιος] When the Sabbath was over. See v. 29.

34. ὅτι ᾔδεισαν] Because they knew Him. See above, v. 24. The devils,—probably from the defeat of their prince and leader Satan, at the temptation,—had a clearer knowledge than men had of Christ's person at this time. (See on Matt. iv. 24.) He would not allow Evil Spirits to be His preachers, lest He might be supposed to be in league with them, instead of having come into the world to destroy their power, and to free men from it.

35. πρωΐ] On the first day of the week. It may deserve inquiry, whether our blessed Lord did not give some prophetic intimations, even before His Resurrection, of the future sanctification of this day as the Lord's Day.

37. σέ] emphatic. Thou art the object of their search: a preferable reading to ζητοῦσί σε.

38. ἐχομένας κωμοπόλεις] ἐχόμενος = ἐγγύς, Suid. So ἐχομένη ἡμέρα (χθές). Acts xxi. 26. See also Luke xiii. 33. Acts xx. 15. Christ came to preach to the poor in villages, as well as to the rich in towns. Cp. Matt. ix. 35. The words pagus and paganism show the need of attention to this example. And one of the best tests of a Church is,—does it imitate Him in this respect?

39. εἰς τὰς συναγωγάς] A preferable reading to ἐν ταῖς συν., which would hardly have been altered by the copyists to εἰς τ. σ. It means something more than in the synagogues: He proclaimed the glad tidings of the Gospel to the synagogues of the Jews, where hitherto had only been heard the voice of Law and the Prophets. Cp. xiii. 9, διαρήσεσθε εἰς συν. xiv. 9, κηρυχθῇ εἰς κόσμον. Luke iv. 44; vii. 1, εἰς ἀκοάς. xi. 7, εἰς κοίτην.

	MATT.	LUKE.
ἀρίσθητι· 42 Καὶ εἰπόντος αὐτοῦ εὐθέως ἀπῆλθεν ἀπ' αὐτοῦ ἡ λέπρα καὶ ἐκαθα-	VIII.	V.
ρίσθη. 43 Καὶ ἐμβριμησάμενος αὐτῷ εὐθέως ἐξέβαλεν αὐτὸν, 44 καὶ λέγει αὐτῷ,	4	14
Ὅρα μηδενὶ μηδὲν εἴπῃς, ἀλλ' ὕπαγε, σεαυτὸν δεῖξον τῷ ἱερεῖ, καὶ προσένεγκε περὶ τοῦ καθαρισμοῦ σου ἃ προσέταξε Μωϋσῆς, εἰς μαρτύριον αὐτοῖς.
(19/X) 45 Ὁ δὲ ἐξελθὼν ἤρξατο κηρύσσειν πολλὰ καὶ διαφημίζειν τὸν λόγον,		15
ὥστε μηκέτι αὐτὸν δύνασθαι φανερῶς εἰς πόλιν εἰσελθεῖν· ἀλλ' ἔξω ἐν ἐρήμοις τόποις ἦν, καὶ ἤρχοντο πρὸς αὐτὸν πανταχόθεν.
II. (20/I) 1 Καὶ πάλιν εἰσῆλθε εἰς Καφαρναοὺμ δι' ἡμερῶν· καὶ ἠκούσθη ὅτι εἰς οἶκόν ἐστι. 2 Καὶ εὐθέως συνήχθησαν πολλοὶ ὥστε μηκέτι χωρεῖν μηδὲ	IX.
τὰ πρὸς τὴν θύραν· καὶ ἐλάλει αὐτοῖς τὸν λόγον. 3 Καὶ ἔρχονται πρὸς αὐτὸν	2	18
παραλυτικὸν φέροντες αἰρόμενον ὑπὸ τεσσάρων· 4 Καὶ μὴ δυνάμενοι προσ-		19
εγγίσαι αὐτῷ διὰ τὸν ὄχλον ἀπεστέγασαν τὴν στέγην ὅπου ἦν, καὶ ἐξορύξαντες χαλῶσι τὸν κράβαττον ἐφ' ᾧ ὁ παραλυτικὸς κατέκειτο. 5 Ἰδὼν δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς		20
τὴν πίστιν αὐτῶν, λέγει τῷ παραλυτικῷ, Τέκνον, ἀφέωνταί σοι αἱ ἁμαρτίαι
σου. 6 Ἦσαν δέ τινες τῶν Γραμματέων ἐκεῖ καθήμενοι, καὶ διαλογιζόμενοι	3	21
ἐν ταῖς καρδίαις αὐτῶν, 7 Τί οὗτος οὕτω λαλεῖ βλασφημίας; τίς δύναται ἀφιέναι ἁμαρτίας εἰ μὴ εἷς ὁ Θεός; 8 Καὶ εὐθέως ἐπιγνοὺς ὁ Ἰησοῦς	4	22
τῷ πνεύματι αὐτοῦ ὅτι οὕτως αὐτοὶ διαλογίζονται ἐν ἑαυτοῖς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Τί ταῦτα διαλογίζεσθε ἐν ταῖς καρδίαις ὑμῶν; 9 Τί ἐστιν εὐκοπώτερον, εἰπεῖν	5	23
τῷ παραλυτικῷ, Ἀφέωνταί σοι αἱ ἁμαρτίαι, ἢ εἰπεῖν, Ἔγειρε, ἆρον σοῦ τὸν κράβαττον, καὶ περιπάτει; 10 Ἵνα δὲ εἰδῆτε, ὅτι ἐξουσίαν ἔχει ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ	6	24 ἀνθρώπου ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς ἀφιέναι ἁμαρτίας,—λέγει τῷ παραλυτικῷ, 11 Σοὶ λέγω,

---

43. ἐμβριμησάμενος αὐτῷ εὐθέως ἐξέβαλεν] αὐστηρῶς ἐμβλέψας καὶ ἐπισείσας τὴν κεφαλὴν (says Euthym. ad Matt. ix. 30), "graviter interminatus cum indignatione expulit,"—a remarkable expression, showing that nothing of worldly applause was sought by our Lord from those whom He healed. Cp. Matt. viii. 4.

45. ἤρξατο κηρύσσειν] Our Lord, by vehemently and even indignantly charging the Leper to tell no man, had openly shown (v. 43) that He had no desire for worldly praise; and thus He had proved that He did not resemble the vain Teachers of the Jewish Nation, who loved the praise of men, and to be called Rabbi, Rabbi (John xii. 43. Matt. xxiii. 7); and that in His wisdom and charity He would not minister any occasion to their envy and rancour against Him by any ambitious aspirations of rivalry; and so He gave us a lesson of humility, prudence, and tender consideration for our enemies.

But though it became Him to show no desire for worldly fame, but to decline it on His own part, yet it was to be expected, and indeed was requisite,—that the knowledge of His mighty works, being the evidence of His mission, should be diffused by others; and since the diffusion of that knowledge without His consent, and indeed against His command, would have greater effect on the minds of many, especially in Palestine, on that very account, He did not refuse to do works of mercy to those whom He foreknew would divulge them against His command, and publish them the more because He forbade the publication. (See Mark vii. 36.)

Perhaps also the Holy Spirit thus designs to teach, that the true way to obtain glory is to shun it; and that in proportion as we decline praise here on earth, the more we shall receive it hereafter in heaven, when our Father, Who seeth in secret, will reward us openly. (Cf. Matt. vi. 4—6.)

CH. II. 1. εἰς οἶκον] At home,—whence He had been absent for some time.

2. χωρεῖν μηδὲ τὰ πρὸς τὴν θύραν] i. e. not only the house was not able to contain them; not even its court-yard and approaches were able to do so. On this use of χωρέω see John xxi. 25.

These minute notices, which are introduced particularly by St. Mark in his narratives of our Lord's miraculous works, seem to be recorded by the Evangelist with a studied design, lest it should be supposed that, because he incorporates so much which is in St. Matthew's Gospel, he was only a copyist; and in order to show that he did so because he knew from ocular testimony that St. Matthew's narrative was adequate and accurate.

3. ὑπὸ τεσσάρων] i. e. unable to help himself in any respect. Another minute particular, showing that the narrative is an independent one, and from an eye-witness.

For other similar minute notices in St. Mark's Gospel see iv. 38, ἦν αὐτὸς ἐπὶ τῇ πρύμνῃ ἐπὶ τὸ προσκεφάλαιον καθεύδων. vi. 39, συμπόσια συμπόσια, ἐπὶ τῷ χλωρῷ χόρτῳ. viii. 14, εἰ μὴ ἕνα ἄρτον. ix. 24, μετὰ δακρύων, and the whole of the narrative, ix. 17—27. x. 16, ἐναγκαλισάμενος αὐτὰ, τιθεὶς τὰς χεῖρας ἐπ' αὐτὰ, εὐλογεῖ αὐτά. x. 17, προσδραμὼν εἷς καὶ γονυπετήσας αὐτόν.

Hence also St. Mark often gives, and alone gives, the ipsissima verba used by our blessed Lord on certain solemn occasions in the Syro-Chaldaic or Aramaic dialect, then spoken in Palestine. See iii. 17, βοανηργές. v. 41, ταλιθὰ κοῦμι. vii. 34, ἐφφαθά. vii. 11, κορβάν.

St. Mark also has shown his independence by relating some miracles, and that in a most minute and graphic manner, which are not mentioned by any other Evangelist. See vii. 32; viii. 22.

4. ἀπεστέγασαν τὴν στέγην ὅπου ἦν, καὶ ἐξορύξαντες] This cannot mean (as some interpret it) took off the breastwork (lorica, Deut. xxii. 8) of the house, and let the man into the court-yard (atrium); but, as Luke also shows (v. 19), it signifies, took off a part of the tiled roof, and let him down through the aperture thus made. Our Lord was teaching in a house (εἰς οἶκον, vv. 1. 2); it was not possible for any to approach Him by the door for the crowd (v. 2). The four men who carried the paralytic mounted with their charge to the flat roof of the house (Luke v. 19), probably by means of an access from a contiguous house. Perhaps the στέγη, or roof of tiles, in which an opening was made (Luke v. 19), was the covering of the four-sided interior colonnade of the atrium or court-yard in which the people were while our Lord was teaching beneath the covering of one side of the colonnade.

— κράβαττον] grabātum. (Catull. x. 23. Cic. Div. ii. 63.) See below, vi. 55. Used by Aquila and Vulg. in Amos iii. 12. The Attic word is σκίμπους (Mœris, Hesych., Phrynich. in v.), called κλίνη by St. Matthew, ix. 6; Hebr. מִטָּה (mittah), for which κλίνη is used in the LXX, and by St. Luke, v. 24, κλινίδιον. This may serve as a specimen of the modifying influence exercised by the Evangelists to accommodate their diction to the respective hearers and readers for whom their Gospels were primarily written. Other Roman words in St. Mark are σπεκουλάτωρα (vi. 27), ξεστῶν (vii. 4), χαλκὸν, used for money (Latin æs), vi. 8; xii. 41, κεντυρίων (xv. 39).

On St. Mark's connexion with Italy, and St. Luke's with Achaia, see Greg. Naz. p. 611, and above, Preliminary Note, p. 93.

7. τί οὗτος οὕτω λαλεῖ βλασφημίας] B, D, L, and other MSS. have λαλεῖ βλασφημεῖ, which is received by some Editors. The true reading may be τί οὗτος οὕτω λαλεῖ; τίς δ. The word βλασφημεῖ was probably an explanation of λαλεῖ, and thence found its way into the text.

8. αὐτοὶ—ἐν ἑαυτοῖς] ipsi secum. There is a peculiar force in αὐτοί, bringing out more clearly His Omniscience.

9. ἔγειρε] This form is commended by excellent MS. authority in St. Mark (see iii. 3; v. 41; x. 49), where Elz. has ἔγειραι: and it is more likely that ἔγειρε should have been changed into ἔγειραι, than vice versâ: ε and αι had the same sound, and were easily confused.

— ἆρον σοῦ τὸν κράβαττον] Erroneously altered by some into ἆρον τὸν κράββατόν σου. Σοῦ is emphatic. Take up thy bed,—the bed of thee, a paralytic, on which thou hast lain, bedridden; take thou up and carry that which has so long carried thee.

MATT. LUKE.

IX. V. ἔγειρε, ἆρον τὸν κράββατόν σου, καὶ ὕπαγε εἰς τὸν οἶκόν σου. 12 Καὶ ἠγέρθη
7 25
8 26 εὐθέως, καὶ ἄρας τὸν κράββατον ἐξῆλθεν ἐναντίον πάντων, ὥστε ἐξίστασθαι πάντας, καὶ δοξάζειν τὸν Θεὸν λέγοντας, Ὅτι οὐδέποτε οὕτως εἴδομεν.
(21/II) 13 Καὶ ἐξῆλθε πάλιν παρὰ τὴν θάλασσαν, καὶ πᾶς ὁ ὄχλος ἤρχετο πρὸς 9 27 αὐτὸν, καὶ ἐδίδασκεν αὐτούς. 14 Καὶ παράγων εἶδε Λευὶν τὸν τοῦ Ἁλφαίου καθήμενον ἐπὶ τὸ τελώνιον, καὶ λέγει αὐτῷ, Ἀκολούθει μοι· καὶ ἀναστὰς 28 ἠκολούθησεν αὐτῷ. (22/II) 15 Καὶ ἐγένετο, ἐν τῷ κατακεῖσθαι αὐτὸν ἐν τῇ οἰκίᾳ
10 29 αὐτοῦ, καὶ πολλοὶ τελῶναι καὶ ἁμαρτωλοὶ συνανέκειντο τῷ Ἰησοῦ καὶ τοῖς 11 30 μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ· ἦσαν γὰρ πολλοὶ, καὶ ἠκολούθησαν αὐτῷ. 16 Καὶ οἱ Γραμματεῖς καὶ οἱ Φαρισαῖοι ἰδόντες αὐτὸν ἐσθίοντα μετὰ τῶν τελωνῶν καὶ ἁμαρτωλῶν, ἔλεγον τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ, Τί ὅτι μετὰ τῶν τελωνῶν καὶ ἁμαρτωλῶν 12 31 ἐσθίει καὶ πίνει; (23/II) 17 Καὶ ἀκούσας ὁ Ἰησοῦς λέγει αὐτοῖς, Οὐ χρείαν
13 32 ἔχουσιν οἱ ἰσχύοντες ἰατροῦ, ἀλλ' οἱ κακῶς ἔχοντες. οὐκ ἦλθον καλέσαι
14 δικαίους, ἀλλὰ ἁμαρτωλούς. 18 Καὶ ἦσαν οἱ μαθηταὶ Ἰωάννου καὶ οἱ Φαρισαῖοι 33 νηστεύοντες· καὶ ἔρχονται καὶ λέγουσιν αὐτῷ, Διατί οἱ μαθηταὶ Ἰωάννου καὶ οἱ τῶν Φαρισαίων νηστεύουσιν, οἱ δὲ σοὶ μαθηταὶ οὐ νηστεύουσι; 19 Καὶ 15 34 εἶπεν αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Μὴ δύνανται οἱ υἱοὶ τοῦ νυμφῶνος, ἐν ᾧ ὁ νυμφίος μετ' αὐτῶν ἐστι, νηστεύειν; Ὅσον χρόνον μεθ' ἑαυτῶν ἔχουσι τὸν νυμφίον, 35 οὐ δύνανται νηστεύειν. 20 ἐλεύσονται δὲ ἡμέραι ὅταν ἀπαρθῇ ἀπ' αὐτῶν ὁ νυμφίος, καὶ τότε νηστεύσουσιν ἐν ἐκείνῃ τῇ ἡμέρᾳ. 21 Καὶ οὐδεὶς ἐπίβλημα ῥάκους ἀγνάφου ἐπιῤῥάπτει ἐπὶ ἱματίῳ παλαιῷ· εἰ δὲ μὴ, αἴρει τὸ πλήρωμα αὐτοῦ τὸ καινὸν τοῦ παλαιοῦ, καὶ χεῖρον σχίσμα γίνεται. 22 Καὶ 17 37 οὐδεὶς βάλλει οἶνον νέον εἰς ἀσκοὺς παλαιούς· εἰ δὲ μὴ, ῥήσσει ὁ οἶνος ὁ νέος τοὺς ἀσκοὺς, καὶ ὁ οἶνος ἐκχεῖται, καὶ οἱ ἀσκοὶ ἀπολοῦνται· ἀλλὰ οἶνον νέον εἰς ἀσκοὺς καινοὺς βλητέον.

XII. VI.
1 1 (24/II) 23 Καὶ ἐγένετο παραπορεύεσθαι αὐτὸν ἐν τοῖς σάββασι διὰ τῶν σπορί-μων, καὶ ἤρξαντο οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ ὁδὸν ποιεῖν τίλλοντες τοὺς στάχυας.
2 2 24 Καὶ οἱ Φαρισαῖοι ἔλεγον αὐτῷ, Ἴδε, τί ποιοῦσιν ἐν τοῖς σάββασιν ὃ οὐκ
3 3 ἔξεστι; 25 Καὶ αὐτὸς ἔλεγεν αὐτοῖς, Οὐδέποτε ἀνέγνωτε τί ἐποίησε Δαυὶδ, ὅτε a 1 Sam. 21. 6. χρείαν ἔσχε καὶ ἐπείνασεν αὐτὸς καὶ οἱ μετ' αὐτοῦ; 26 πῶς [a] εἰσῆλθεν εἰς τὸν
1
4 4 οἶκον τοῦ Θεοῦ ἐπὶ Ἀβιάθαρ ἀρχιερέως, καὶ τοὺς ἄρτους τῆς προθέσεως ἔφαγεν,

---

14. Λευὶν] See Matt. ix. 9.

It is probable that Levi, on his call by Christ, when he left his old life and engaged in a new one, took a new name (ὄνομα καινὸν) Matthew; signifying the Gift of God, and very expressive of a feeling of thankfulness for God's mercy to him a publican; and that in leaving all for Christ, he had received a great gift, gained a great treasure from God.

19. μὴ δύνανται—νηστεύειν] Luke v. 34, μὴ δύνασθε ποιῆσαι νηστεύειν. Conj. Hiphil for Kal. A thing is often said in Scripture to be impossible which cannot be done rightly. See 1 Cor. iii. 1. 2 Cor. xiii. 8. Acts iv. 16. 20. Gen. xxiv. 50. So conversely a thing is said to be done which ought to be done. Heb. v. 4. Rom. xiv. 7. Malachi i. 6.

21. καί] καὶ introduces an additional reason, and therefore is not to be cancelled.

— ῥάκους ἀγνάφου] Matt. ix. 16.

— χεῖρον σχ. γ.] a worse rent ensues.

23. παραπορεύεσθαι—ἐν τοῖς σάββασι—ὁδὸν ποιεῖν] Matt. xii. 1. Luke vi. 1. Our Lord Himself παραπορεύετο, passed by, along the path, without touching the corn; but His disciples ἤρξαντο ὁδὸν ποιεῖν, began to make a way for themselves, τίλλοντες, plucking the corn. Therefore the Pharisees did not censure Him but them; and He did not defend Himself but them.

26. ἐπὶ Ἀβιαθαρ ἀρχιερέως] In the days of Chief Priest Abiathar. On this use of ἐπὶ, see Luke iii. 2; iv. 27. Acts xi. 28. St. Mark has been charged with an anachronism [1], because this event took place in the High Priesthood of Ahimelech, the Father of Abiathar (1 Sam. xxi. 1).

But the Evangelist does not say that it occurred ἐπὶ ἀρχιερέως Ἀβιάθαρ, i. e. in the High Priesthood of Abiathar, as he would have written, if he had thought that Abiathar was High Priest at the time. Cp. ἐπὶ ἀρχιερέως Ἄννα, Luke iii. 2. But he says that it happened ἐπὶ Ἀβιάθαρ ἀρχιερέως, which indeed intimates that it was in the days of Abiathar; but it rather suggests that he was not the High Priest then, and the reference is made to him as a celebrated High Priest; and, indeed, he is mentioned in the next Chapter of the History, as the High Priest who followed David with the Urim and Thummim, when he was persecuted by Saul (1 Sam. xxii. 20; xxx. 7).

The note of Bede on this passage deserves attention. "Quòd Dominus Abiathar principem sacerdotum appellat nihil habet dissonantiæ; ambo enim fuerunt illic cùm veniens David panes petiit et accepit, Ahimelech videlicet princeps Sacerdotum et Abiathar filius ejus. Occiso autem Ahimelech à Saule, cum viris domus suæ generis sacerdotalis octoginta quinque, fugit Abiathar ad David, et comes factus est totius exilii ejus. Postea regnante eo summi sacerdotii et ipse gradum accepit, ac toto tempore regni illius in pontificatu perseverans multo majoris excellentiæ quàm pater suus effectus est; ideòque dignus fuit cujus memoriam Dominus etiam vivente patre quasi summi faceret Sacerdotis."

Zadok and Abiathar are both mentioned as High Priests at the same time (2 Sam. xv. 29. 35; xx. 25. 1 Kings iv. 4). It is true

---

[1] The following is from Meyer (3rd ed. p. 33): "ἐπὶ Ἀβιάθαρ τ. α., tempore Abjatharis pontificis maximi, d. i. unter dem Pontificate des Abiathar. Freilich war nach 1. Sam. 21, 1 ff. der damalige Oberpriester nicht Abiathar, sondern dessen Vater (Joseph. Antt. 6, 12, 6.) Achimelech. Mark. hat diese beiden irrthümlich verwechselt. S. Korb in Winer's krit. Journ. IV. p. 295 ff., Paulus, Fritzsche, de Wette u. u. St. Die Annahme aber, dass Vater und Sohn, Beide, beide Namen gehabt haben (Vict. Ant., Euth. Zig., Theophyl., Beza, Jansen, Heum., Kuinoel u. M.), wird nur scheinbar durch 2. Sam. 8, 17. 1. Chron. 18, 16. vrgl. 24, 6. 31. unterstützt, da diese Stellen offenbar eine irrige Angabe haben (vrgl. Themius d. Bücher Sam. p. 166), die Beziehung unsers Citats aber auf keine andere Stelle als auf 1. Sam. 21. geht. Grot. meinte, der Sohn sei der Vicarius des Vaters gewesen. Eben so unglücklich hat man durch eine andere Deutung von ἐπὶ helfen wollen; denn soll es coram sein (Wetst., Schoïx), so steht 1. Sam. 1. 1. geschichtlich entgegen; soll es aber heissen: beim Abiathar, d. h. da, wo von ihm die Rede ist (12, 26. Luk. 20, 37), so widerstreitet dieselbe geschichtliche Instanz, und dass die Worte nicht schon nach ἀνέγνωτε stehen (gegen Mich. u. Snunier Quellen d. Mark. p. 58.)". . . Thus the Old Testament is set against the New by Expositors of Holy Scripture, and the authority of both is undermined at the same time.

MATT. LUKE.

οὓς οὐκ ἔξεστι φαγεῖν εἰ μὴ τοῖς ἱερεῦσι, καὶ ἔδωκε καὶ τοῖς σὺν αὐτῷ οὖσι; XII. VI.

(26 II) 27 [b] Καὶ ἔλεγεν αὐτοῖς, Τὸ σάββατον διὰ τὸν ἄνθρωπον ἐγένετο, οὐχ ὁ ἄνθρωπος διὰ τὸ σάββατον, 28 ὥστε κύριός ἐστιν ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου καὶ τοῦ σαββάτου. 8 5

[b] Exod. 29. 32. Lev. 8. 31. & 24. 5.

III. 1 Καὶ εἰσῆλθε πάλιν εἰς τὴν συναγωγήν, καὶ ἦν ἐκεῖ ἄνθρωπος ἐξηραμμένην ἔχων τὴν χεῖρα· 2 καὶ παρετήρουν αὐτὸν, εἰ τοῖς σάββασι θεραπεύσει αὐτὸν, ἵνα κατηγορήσωσιν αὐτοῦ. 3 Καὶ λέγει τῷ ἀνθρώπῳ τῷ ἐξηραμμένην ἔχοντι τὴν χεῖρα, Ἔγειραι εἰς τὸ μέσον. 4 Καὶ λέγει αὐτοῖς, Ἔξεστι τοῖς σάββασιν ἀγαθοποιῆσαι, ἢ κακοποιῆσαι; ψυχὴν σῶσαι, ἢ ἀποκτεῖναι; οἱ δὲ ἐσιώπων. 5 Καὶ περιβλεψάμενος αὐτοὺς μετ' ὀργῆς, συλλυπούμενος ἐπὶ τῇ πωρώσει τῆς καρδίας αὐτῶν, λέγει τῷ ἀνθρώπῳ, Ἔκτεινον τὴν χεῖρά σου· καὶ ἐξέτεινε, καὶ ἀπεκατεστάθη ἡ χεὶρ αὐτοῦ. 9 6 10 7 12 10 13 14

(26 IV) 6 Καὶ ἐξελθόντες οἱ Φαρισαῖοι εὐθέως μετὰ τῶν Ἡρωδιανῶν συμβούλιον ἐποίουν κατ' αὐτοῦ, ὅπως αὐτὸν ἀπολέσωσι.

(27 I) 7 Καὶ ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἀνεχώρησε μετὰ τῶν μαθητῶν αὐτοῦ πρὸς τὴν θάλασσαν· καὶ πολὺ πλῆθος ἀπὸ τῆς Γαλιλαίας ἠκολούθησαν αὐτῷ, καὶ ἀπὸ τῆς Ἰουδαίας, 8 καὶ ἀπὸ Ἱεροσολύμων, καὶ ἀπὸ τῆς Ἰδουμαίας, καὶ πέραν τοῦ Ἰορδάνου, καὶ οἱ περὶ Τύρον καὶ Σιδῶνα, πλῆθος πολὺ, ἀκούσαντες ὅσα ἐποίει, ἦλθον πρὸς αὐτόν. 9 Καὶ εἶπε τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ ἵνα πλοιάριον προσκαρτερῇ αὐτῷ διὰ τὸν ὄχλον ἵνα μὴ θλίβωσιν αὐτόν· 10 πολλοὺς γὰρ ἐθεράπευσεν, ὥστε ἐπιπίπτειν αὐτῷ ἵνα αὐτοῦ ἅψωνται ὅσοι εἶχον μάστιγας. 15 17 19

(28 VIII) 11 Καὶ τὰ πνεύματα τὰ ἀκάθαρτα, ὅταν αὐτὸν ἐθεώρουν, προσέπιπτον αὐτῷ καὶ ἔκραζον, λέγοντα, Ὅτι σὺ εἶ ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ Θεοῦ. 12 Καὶ πολλὰ ἐπετίμα αὐτοῖς, ἵνα μὴ φανερὸν αὐτὸν ποιήσωσι. 18

(29 II) 13 Καὶ ἀναβαίνει εἰς τὸ ὄρος, καὶ προσκαλεῖται οὓς ἤθελεν αὐτός· καὶ ἀπῆλθον πρὸς αὐτόν. 14 Καὶ ἐποίησε δώδεκα, ἵνα ὦσι μετ' αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἵνα ἀποστέλλῃ αὐτοὺς κηρύσσειν, 15 καὶ ἔχειν ἐξουσίαν θεραπεύειν τὰς νόσους, καὶ ἐκβάλλειν τὰ δαιμόνια· 12 13 (30 II) 16 καὶ ἐπέθηκε τῷ Σίμωνι ὄνομα Πέτρον· 17 καὶ Ἰάκωβον τὸν τοῦ Ζεβεδαίου, καὶ Ἰωάννην τὸν 14

---

they were of different lines, from Aaron; but the fact renders it not improbable that Abiathar may have acted as High Priest with his father Ahimelech.

Besides, we must not forget that our Lord was reasoning with the Pharisees. And one of their errors was to judge of actions by worldly success. If our Lord had mentioned Ahimelech—their answer might have been, that Ahimelech was punished by God for this profanation of sacred things; he and his were soon overtaken by divine vengeance and slain. But by specifying Abiathar, who was present with his father at the time, and who (we may reasonably infer from our Blessed Lord's words, which are the Words of Him Who knows all History) was a party to his father's act, and was afterwards blessed by God in his escape, and in a long and glorious Priesthood, our Lord obviates the objection of the worldly-minded Pharisees, and strengthens his own argument, by reminding them that this action took place in the days of one whom they held in reverence, as zealous for the honour of God, and as approved and rewarded by Him for his piety.

There is a similar expression in 1 Macc. xiii. 42, ἐπὶ Σίμωνος, ἀρχιερέως μεγάλου καὶ στρατηγοῦ καὶ ἡγουμένου τῶν Ἰουδαίων, "in the days of Simon, the great High Priest and General, and Ruler of the Jews," and it does not intimate that what is there recorded was contemporary with his High Priesthood as such.

Further; we must remember that the word ἀρχιερεὺς, as used in the Gospels, has a very wide signification. See on Matt. ii. 4. And though Abiathar could not be called ὁ ἀρχιερεὺς at the time of David's visit, yet, according to the language of the New Testament, he might be termed an ἀρχιερεὺς even then. In the New Testament the word ἱερεὺς is not common; it is used only twice by St. Mark, and once by St. John. And ἀρχιερεὺς has in the New Testament nearly the same signification as ἱερεὺς has in the Old, where the word ἀρχιερεὺς occurs only once in LXX (Lev. iv. 3). Thus (1 Sam. i. 9) Eli, the father of Hophni and Phineas, is called the Priest (ὁ ἱερεύς); but Hophni and Phineas, his sons, are at the same time called Priests (ἱερεῖς, 1 Sam. i. 3). And in the language of the New Testament Eli would be called ὁ ἀρχιερεὺς, but Hophni and Phineas would be called ἀρχιερεῖς, as being of his family.

Some MSS., in this passage of St. Mark, insert the article τοῦ before Ἀβιάθαρ. If this is the true reading, the sense is, that this event took place in the days of Abiathar, who was the celebrated High Priest; though not the High Priest at that time; and we may compare Matt. xxvi. 6, ἐν οἰκίᾳ Σίμωνος τοῦ λεπροῦ, i. e. of Simon, who was not then a leper, but was known by that name. So in the Apostolic Catalogue (Matt. x. 3), Ματθαῖος ὁ τελώνης, Matthew, the publican, although he had been called from the seat of custom, and from the office of publican to be an Apostle. No objection could be made to the expression—"such an event occurred in the days of Cato the Censor," although Cato was not Censor then. For examples of prolepsis in the names of places in Sacred History, see Glass. p. 612, and cp. the notes on Virgil, Æn. i. 2; viii. 361.

On the whole, such seeming difficulties as these are doubtless left in Holy Writ by the Holy Ghost—for moral purposes—to exercise our humility and try our faith. If we are disposed to be wise in our own conceits, we shall pronounce confidently that they are mistakes; but if we have the spirit of meekness, which is the first requisite to wisdom and learning, we shall seek for a solution by patient inquiry, with prayer to the Holy Ghost, the Divine Author of Scripture, and "in His light we shall see light." And if, for the further trial of our faith, He should not vouchsafe to give us a solution now, we shall believe that He may give it to some others after us, and that He will give it to ourselves in that day when we shall see the light of His countenance, and our knowledge will be perfected in the sight.

Ch. III. 5. πωρώσει] πωρόω is used by LXX for עִוֵּר (ɔaḥak), Job xvii. 7, i.e. to have a film and dimness over the eyes, to be purblind, cf. Gen. xxvii. 1; cp. Rom. xi. 25. Eph. iv. 18. Euseb. i. 18. Hesych. ἐπωρώθησαν, ἐτυφλώθησαν.

7. πρὸς] altered by some to εἰς, but without adequate reason or authority.

12. ἐπέτιμα] See above, i. 25. 34.

14. ἐποίησε] Hebr. עָשָׂה (asah), 'fecit,' the word used to signify creation, Gen. i. 7. 11, 12. 16. 25, 26. 31; ii. 2—4; iii. 1. 7. 1 Sam. xii. 6. "The Lord who made Moses and Aaron," i. e. appointed and invested them with power. The word intimates that the power which the Twelve exercised was due to Christ, Who created and made them to be all that they were as Apostles. See Matt. x. 1.

16. καὶ ἐπέθηκε τῷ Σίμωνι—Πέτρον] Partly to distinguish him from the other Simon (v. 18), and partly to mark him as a θεμέλιον λίθον in building the Church. St. Mark, who was the son of St. Peter in the faith (1 Pet. v. 13), and whose Gospel is said to have been dictated by St. Peter (Euseb. ii. 15; iii. 39. See above, Prelim.

MATT. LUKE.
XII. VI. ἀδελφὸν τοῦ Ἰακώβου καὶ ἐπέθηκεν αὐτοῖς ὀνόματα Βοανεργές, ὅ ἐστιν υἱοὶ 15 βροντῆς· 18 καὶ Ἀνδρέαν, καὶ Φίλιππον, καὶ Βαρθολομαῖον, καὶ Ματθαῖον, καὶ Θωμᾶν, καὶ Ἰάκωβον τὸν τοῦ Ἀλφαίου, καὶ Θαδδαῖον, καὶ Σίμωνα τὸν Κανανίτην, 19 καὶ Ἰούδαν Ἰσκαριώτην, ὃς καὶ παρέδωκεν αὐτόν.
(21/X) 20 Καὶ ἔρχονται εἰς οἶκον· καὶ συνέρχεται πάλιν ὄχλος, ὥστε μὴ δύ-
XI. νασθαι αὐτοὺς μηδὲ ἄρτον φαγεῖν. 21 Καὶ ἀκούσαντες οἱ παρ' αὐτοῦ ἐξῆλθον 24 15 κρατῆσαι αὐτόν· ἔλεγον γὰρ, ὅτι ἐξέστη. (22/II) 22 Καὶ οἱ Γραμματεῖς οἱ ἀπὸ Ἱεροσολύμων καταβάντες ἔλεγον, Ὅτι Βεελζεβοὺλ ἔχει, καὶ ὅτι ἐν τῷ ἄρχοντι 25 17 τῶν δαιμονίων ἐκβάλλει τὰ δαιμόνια. (23/II) 23 Καὶ προσκαλεσάμενος αὐτοὺς ἐν παραβολαῖς ἔλεγεν αὐτοῖς, Πῶς δύναται Σατανᾶς Σατανᾶν ἐκβάλλειν; 24 καὶ ἐὰν βασιλεία ἐφ' ἑαυτὴν μερισθῇ, οὐ δύναται σταθῆναι ἡ βασιλεία ἐκείνη· 25 καὶ 26 18 ἐὰν οἰκία ἐφ' ἑαυτὴν μερισθῇ, οὐ δύναται σταθῆναι ἡ οἰκία ἐκείνη· 26 καὶ εἰ ὁ Σατανᾶς ἀνέστη ἐφ' ἑαυτὸν καὶ μεμέρισται, οὐ δύναται σταθῆναι, ἀλλὰ τέλος 29 21 ἔχει. 27 Οὐδεὶς δύναται τὰ σκεύη τοῦ ἰσχυροῦ εἰσελθὼν εἰς τὴν οἰκίαν αὐτοῦ
22 διαρπάσαι, ἐὰν μὴ πρῶτον τὸν ἰσχυρὸν δήσῃ· καὶ τότε τὴν οἰκίαν αὐτοῦ 31 διαρπάσει. (24/II) 28 Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι πάντα ἀφεθήσεται τοῖς υἱοῖς τῶν ἀνθρώπων τὰ ἁμαρτήματα, καὶ αἱ βλασφημίαι ὅσας ἂν βλασφημήσωσιν· 29 ὃς δ' ἂν βλασφημήσῃ εἰς τὸ Πνεῦμα τὸ ἅγιον, οὐκ ἔχει ἄφεσιν εἰς τὸν αἰῶνα, 46 VIII. 19 ἀλλ' ἔνοχός ἐστιν αἰωνίου ἁμαρτήματος· 30 ὅτι ἔλεγον, Πνεῦμα ἀκάθαρτον ἔχει.
(25/II) 31 Ἔρχονται οὖν οἱ ἀδελφοὶ καὶ ἡ μήτηρ αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἔξω ἑστῶτες ἀπέστειλαν
47 20 πρὸς αὐτὸν, φωνοῦντες αὐτόν. 32 Καὶ ἐκάθητο ὄχλος περὶ αὐτὸν, εἶπον δὲ αὐτῷ, 48 21 Ἰδοὺ, ἡ μήτηρ σου καὶ οἱ ἀδελφοί σου καὶ αἱ ἀδελφαί σου ἔξω ζητοῦσί σε.
49 · 33 Καὶ ἀπεκρίθη αὐτοῖς λέγων, Τίς ἐστιν ἡ μήτηρ μου ἢ οἱ ἀδελφοί μου; 34 Καὶ
50 περιβλεψάμενος κύκλῳ τοὺς περὶ αὐτὸν καθημένους λέγει, Ἴδε ἡ μήτηρ μου καὶ οἱ ἀδελφοί μου. 35 Ὅς γὰρ ἂν ποιήσῃ τὸ θέλημα τοῦ Θεοῦ, οὗτος ἀδελφός μου καὶ ἀδελφή μου καὶ μήτηρ ἐστί.
XIII. IV. (26/II) 1 Καὶ πάλιν ἤρξατο διδάσκειν παρὰ τὴν θάλασσαν· καὶ συνήχθη
2 4 πρὸς αὐτὸν ὄχλος πολὺς, ὥστε αὐτὸν ἐμβάντα εἰς τὸ πλοῖον καθῆσθαι ἐν τῇ
3 θαλάσσῃ· καὶ πᾶς ὁ ὄχλος πρὸς τὴν θάλασσαν ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς ἦν. 2 Καὶ ἐδίδασκεν αὐτοὺς ἐν παραβολαῖς πολλὰ, καὶ ἔλεγεν αὐτοῖς ἐν τῇ διδαχῇ αὐτοῦ, 3 Ἀκούετε·

Note, p. 93), does not repeat St. Matthew's expression, x. 2, πρῶτος Σίμων, nor record Christ's words to him, Matt. xvi. 18.

17. Βοανεργές] a Syro-Chaldaic word from בְּנֵי (b'ne) 'filii' (the sheva being represented by oa), and רְגְזָא (rigzé), strepitus, and by a metathesis of the ρ, ἐργές; see Vorst. Hebr. 479, and Rosenm. p. 594. Many modern expositors (referred to by Olshausen) have supposed that Βοανεργές was given as a name of censure (with reference to Luke ix. 55); but this notion, which was unknown to Christian antiquity, is alien from the Spirit and practice of Christ, Who doubtless designed by giving a new name to His Disciples, to remind them that they were called to a new life, indicated in Scripture by ὄνομα καινόν, Rev. ii. 17; iii. 12. The name was, as it were, a Christian name, or baptismal name.

Thunder is called in Scripture קוֹל (kol), vox; i. e. the Voice of God. See Exod. ix. 23. Jer. x. 13. Ps. xxix. 3. And the Law was given with thunder, Exod. xix. 16; xx. 18; and from the throne of God in the Apocalypse come forth thunderings, Rev. iv. 5; viii. 5; xi. 19; xix. 6. And in Rev. x. 3, 4, the seven Thunders are probably the seven inspired Writers of the New Testament, whose words St. John was commanded to seal.

St. James therefore and St. John are called Boanerges, as being enabled to declare with power God's will to the world. ὁ μὲν Ἰάκωβος ἀγράφως, ὁ δὲ Ἰωάννης ἐγγράφως. (Euthym.)

Their natural temper as sons of thunder showed itself in a desire to bring down fire from heaven on the village of the Samaritans (Luke ix. 54), and in their ambitious request (Matt. xx. 21), and in St. John's appeal to Christ (Mark ix. 38). But these flashes of natural heat were changed into golden tongues by divine grace.

On the names of the Apostles see on Matt. x. 2—4.

18. Ἰάκωβον—Ἀλφαίου] James, afterward Bishop of Jerusalem. Thaddæus, the same as Jude. (Bede.)

21. κρατῆσαι] Cp. ix. 27. Luke xxiv. 16. John xx. 23. 2 Kings iv. 8, where, it is remarkable, the word is connected, as here, with eating bread, and the Septuagint Version has ἐκράτησεν αὐτὸν (Ἐλισαιὲ) ἡ γυνὴ ἄρτον φαγεῖν, suggesting that the Mother of Christ supposed that she was imitating the good Shunamite in her conduct to the Prophet Elisha.

— ἐξέστη] i. e. φρενῶν παρεφρόνησε, Euthym. Ps. lxix. 9. μαίνεται, Phavorin. 2 Cor. v. 13, εἴτε ἐξέστημεν, θεῷ. Cp. John x. 20, μαίνεται. Acts xxvi. 24, μαίνῃ, Παῦλε. A mark of truth. The Evangelist records what tells to their disadvantage.

28. ἀμὴν λέγω] See Matt. xii. 31.

29. αἰῶνα—αἰωνίου] See Matt. xxv. 46.

— ἁμαρτήματος] So B, C, and many Versions, for κρίσεως,—and this is the reading preferred by Grotius, Lachm., Tisch., and Alf. Not that ἁμάρτημα is to be interpreted here sin (for it would be a Novatian error to assert that sin is αἰώνιον); but as Kuin. has observed, "ἁμάρτημα in versione Alexandrinâ respondet Hebræorum vocabulis חַטָּאת et עָוֹן, quæ non tantùm peccatum indicant, ut חַטָּאת Gen. xxxi. 36, עָוֹן Ex. xxviii. 38, sed etiam peccati pœnam, ut חַטָּאת legitur Zach. xiv. 19, עָוֹן Ps. xl. 12. quo posteriori loco LXX habent ἀνομία: de peccati pœnâ ἁμαρτία quoque occurrit. v. not. ad Matt. ix. 2. Rectè igitur de peccatore, qui οὐκ ἔχει ἄφεσιν εἰς τὸν αἰῶνα, dici poterat ἔνοχον αὐτὸν εἶναι αἰωνίου ἁμαρτήματος i.e. suppliciis æternis obnoxium. Hoc autem ipsum nomen ἁμάρτημα grammatici interpretati sunt vocabulis κρίσις et κόλασις, quæ interpretamenta librarii in textum receperunt, alii verò loco vocabuli rariùs occurrentis ἁμάρτημα scripserunt ἁμαρτία."

32. ἡ μήτηρ] See on Matt. xii. 46. His Mother and brethren did not come in to hear his discourse, but standing without, sent to Him a message desiring Him to come out to them. They wished perhaps to participate in His fame, and to show to the people their connexion with Him and their influence over Him. But His public duties were not to be foregone or omitted for private respects; and as Son of God He knew no other relatives but the children of God to whom the performance of His will and the promotion of His glory is the first of all duties, and the moving principle of their lives. The love which Christ bare to His earthly Mother—as shown on the cross—brings out in stronger relief the love due to God, by being as nothing when compared with it; and His conduct to His beloved Mother brings out more clearly the awful Majesty of His Divine Sonship.

See on John ii. 4. Luke xi. 27.

CH. IV. 2. ἐν τῇ διδαχῇ] See on xii. 38.

	MATT. XIII.	LUKE VIII.
ἰδοὺ ἐξῆλθεν ὁ σπείρων τοῦ σπεῖραι· 4 καὶ ἐγένετο ἐν τῷ σπείρειν, ὃ μὲν ἔπεσε		5
παρὰ τὴν ὁδὸν, καὶ ἦλθε τὰ πετεινὰ καὶ κατέφαγεν αὐτό· 5 ἄλλο δὲ ἔπεσεν	4
ἐπὶ τὸ πετρῶδες, ὅπου οὐκ εἶχε γῆν πολλὴν, καὶ εὐθέως ἐξανέτειλε, διὰ τὸ μὴ	5	6
ἔχειν βάθος γῆς· 6 ἡλίου δὲ ἀνατείλαντος ἐκαυματίσθη, καὶ διὰ τὸ μὴ ἔχειν	6
ῥίζαν ἐξηράνθη. 7 Καὶ ἄλλο ἔπεσεν εἰς τὰς ἀκάνθας, καὶ ἀνέβησαν αἱ ἄκανθαι	7	7
καὶ συνέπνιξαν αὐτὸ, καὶ καρπὸν οὐκ ἔδωκε. 8 Καὶ ἄλλο ἔπεσεν εἰς τὴν γῆν	8	8
τὴν καλὴν, καὶ ἐδίδου καρπὸν ἀναβαίνοντα καὶ αὐξάνοντα, καὶ ἔφερεν ἓν τριάκοντα, καὶ ἓν ἑξήκοντα, καὶ ἓν ἑκατόν. 9 Καὶ ἔλεγεν, Ὁ ἔχων ὦτα ἀκούειν, ἀκουέτω. 10 Ὅτε δὲ ἐγένετο κατὰ μόνας, ἠρώτησαν αὐτὸν οἱ περὶ αὐτὸν σὺν	9
τοῖς δώδεκα τὴν παραβολήν. (87 I) 11 Καὶ ἔλεγεν αὐτοῖς, Ὑμῖν δέδοται γνῶναι	10 11	9 10
τὸ μυστήριον τῆς βασιλείας τοῦ Θεοῦ, ἐκείνοις δὲ τοῖς ἔξω ἐν παραβολαῖς τὰ πάντα γίνεται, 12 ἵνα βλέποντες βλέπωσι, καὶ μὴ ἴδωσι· καὶ ἀκού-	13
οντες ἀκούωσι, καὶ μὴ συνιῶσι· μήποτε ἐπιστρέψωσι, καὶ ἀφεθῇ αὐτοῖς τὰ ἁμαρτήματα. 13 Καὶ λέγει αὐτοῖς, Οὐκ οἴδατε τὴν παραβολὴν ταύτην; καὶ πῶς πάσας τὰς παραβολὰς γνώσεσθε; (88 II) 14 Ὁ σπείρων τὸν	19	12
λόγον σπείρει. 15 Οὗτοι δέ εἰσιν οἱ παρὰ τὴν ὁδὸν, ὅπου σπείρεται ὁ λόγος, καὶ ὅταν ἀκούσωσιν, εὐθέως ἔρχεται ὁ Σατανᾶς καὶ αἴρει τὸν λόγον τὸν ἐσπαρ-μένον ἐν ταῖς καρδίαις αὐτῶν. 16 Καὶ οὗτοί εἰσιν ὁμοίως οἱ ἐπὶ τὰ πετρώδη	20	13
σπειρόμενοι, οἳ ὅταν ἀκούσωσι τὸν λόγον εὐθέως μετὰ χαρᾶς λαμβάνουσιν αὐτὸν, 17 καὶ οὐκ ἔχουσι ῥίζαν ἐν ἑαυτοῖς, ἀλλὰ πρόσκαιροί εἰσιν· εἶτα γενο-	21
μένης θλίψεως ἢ διωγμοῦ διὰ τὸν λόγον εὐθέως σκανδαλίζονται. 18 Καὶ ἄλλοι	22	14 εἰσὶν οἱ εἰς τὰς ἀκάνθας σπειρόμενοι· οὗτοί εἰσιν οἱ τὸν λόγον ἀκούοντες, 19 καὶ αἱ μέριμναι τοῦ αἰῶνος τούτου, καὶ ἡ ἀπάτη τοῦ πλούτου, καὶ αἱ περὶ τὰ λοιπὰ ἐπιθυμίαι εἰσπορευόμεναι συμπνίγουσι τὸν λόγον, καὶ ἄκαρπος γίνεται.
20 Καὶ οὗτοί εἰσιν οἱ ἐπὶ τὴν γῆν τὴν καλὴν σπαρέντες, οἵτινες ἀκούουσι τὸν	23	15 λόγον καὶ παραδέχονται, καὶ καρποφοροῦσιν, ἓν τριάκοντα, καὶ ἓν ἑξήκοντα, καὶ ἓν ἑκατόν. (89 II) 21 Καὶ ἔλεγεν αὐτοῖς, Μήτι ὁ λύχνος ἔρχεται, ἵνα ὑπὸ τὸν		16 μόδιον τεθῇ ἢ ὑπὸ τὴν κλίνην, οὐχ ἵνα ἐπὶ τὴν λυχνίαν τεθῇ; (90 II) 22 Οὐ γάρ ἐστί τι κρυπτὸν, ὃ ἐὰν μὴ φανερωθῇ, οὐδὲ ἐγένετο ἀπόκρυφον, ἀλλ' ἵνα εἰς		17
φανερὸν ἔλθῃ. 23 Εἴτις ἔχει ὦτα ἀκούειν, ἀκουέτω. (91 II) 24 Καὶ ἔλεγεν αὐτοῖς,		18
Βλέπετε, τί ἀκούετε. Ἐν ᾧ μέτρῳ μετρεῖτε, μετρηθήσεται ὑμῖν, καὶ προστεθήσεται ὑμῖν τοῖς ἀκούουσιν. (92 II) 25 Ὃς γὰρ ἂν ἔχῃ, δοθήσεται αὐτῷ, καὶ ὃς οὐκ ἔχει, καὶ ὃ ἔχει ἀρθήσεται ἀπ' αὐτοῦ.
(93 X) 26 Καὶ ἔλεγεν, Οὕτως ἐστὶν ἡ βασιλεία τοῦ Θεοῦ, ὡς ἐὰν ἄνθρωπος βάλῃ τὸν σπόρον ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς, 27 καὶ καθεύδῃ καὶ ἐγείρηται νύκτα καὶ ἡμέραν· καὶ ὁ σπόρος βλαστάνῃ καὶ μηκύνηται, ὡς οὐκ οἶδεν αὐτός· 28 αὐτομάτη γὰρ ἡ γῆ καρποφορεῖ, πρῶτον χόρτον, εἶτα στάχυν, εἶτα πλήρη σῖτον ἐν τῷ στάχυϊ·

---

3. ἰδού] See Matt. xiii. 3.

4. ὃ μὲν ἔπεσε] Observe the four cases of the seed: the first, οὐκ ἀνέβαινε: the second, ἀνέβαινε μὲν ἀλλ' οὐκ ηὔξανε: the third, ἀνέβαινε καὶ ηὔξανε ἀλλὰ καρπὸν οὐκ ἔδωκε: the fourth, ἀνέβαινεν, ηὔξανε καὶ καρπὸν ἔδωκε . . . τέταρτον μόνον, διασωθέν. (Theoph.)

12. ἵνα βλέποντες] Is. vi. 9, 10. The sense of ἵνα here may be seen from Matt. xiii. 15. See Rev. xxii. 11. Hos. xiv. 9. Ps. xviii. 26. 2 Tim. iii. 13.

He spake by Parables—to prove them, and to show them to others and to themselves, and to recompense them judicially according to their respective tempers and moral dispositions; to reward the docile, the truth-loving, and the humble, with larger measures of knowledge and grace (see here, v. 34), and to punish the proud and the wilfully blind by their own pride and blindness. See Glass. Phil., p. 221, 222. Bp. Butler, Analogy, pt. ii. ch. vi.

13. πάσας τὰς π.] all My Parables; e. g. those in Matt. xiii. 24—52.

15. ὁ Σατανᾶς] St. Matt. (xiii. 19) has ὁ πονηρός: St. Luke has (viii. 12) ὁ Διάβολος here,—a variety perhaps designed to show the identity and attributes of the person who bears these different names.

16. οὗτοι] See on Matt. xiii. 19.

21. λύχνος ἔρχεται] ἔρχεται, comes, intimating spiritually that the light in our souls is not of our kindling, but comes from God, in order that it may be manifested by men to the world, to His glory. Take heed, therefore, βλέπετε, examine well, what ye hear from Me; i. e. consider it, and digest it well in your hearts (τί, i. q. ὅ, id quod; St. Luke has πῶς, viii. 18), in order that you may preach it to others; and may receive more abundant measures of knowledge according as yourselves are more attentive in receiving, and faithful in dispensing it to others. For as you do this, so your reward will be. (Cp. Theophyl., Euthym., and Bede).

24. ἐν ᾧ μέτρῳ] "Quantum fidei capacis afferimus, tantum gratiæ inundantis haurimus." (Cyprian.)

26—29. καὶ ἔλεγεν—ὁ θερισμός] This Parable concerning the mysterious and divine growth of the seed of the Gospel in the heart and the world, even to the end, is supplied by St. Mark alone.

When we conceive good desires, we put seed into the ground; when we begin to act, we are the blade; when we finish a good work, we are in the ear; when we are matured in the habit of good, we are the full corn in the ear. (Greg. M., Bede.)

MATT. XIII. LUKE. XIII.

29 ὅταν δὲ παραδῷ ὁ καρπὸς, εὐθέως ἀποστέλλει τὸ δρέπανον, ὅτι παρέστηκεν ὁ θερισμός.

31 18 (44/II) 30 Καὶ ἔλεγε, Τίνι ὁμοιώσωμεν τὴν βασιλείαν τοῦ Θεοῦ; ἢ ἐν ποίᾳ
32 19 παραβολῇ παραβάλωμεν αὐτήν; 31 ὡς κόκκον σινάπεως, ὃς, ὅταν σπαρῇ ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς, μικρότερος πάντων τῶν σπερμάτων ἐστὶ τῶν ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς· 32 καὶ ὅταν 34 σπαρῇ, ἀναβαίνει, καὶ γίνεται πάντων τῶν λαχάνων μείζων, καὶ ποιεῖ κλάδους μεγάλους, ὥστε δύνασθαι ὑπὸ τὴν σκιὰν αὐτοῦ τὰ πετεινὰ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ κατασκηνοῦν. (45/VI) 33 Καὶ τοιαύταις παραβολαῖς πολλαῖς ἐλάλει αὐτοῖς τὸν λόγον, καθὼς ἠδύναντο ἀκούειν. (46/X) 34 χωρὶς δὲ παραβολῆς οὐκ ἐλάλει αὐτοῖς· κατ' ἰδίαν δὲ τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ ἐπέλυε πάντα.

VIII. 18 VIII. 22 35 Καὶ λέγει αὐτοῖς ἐν ἐκείνῃ τῇ ἡμέρᾳ ὀψίας γενομένης, Διέλθωμεν εἰς τὸ
23 πέραν. (47/II) 36 Καὶ ἀφέντες τὸν ὄχλον παραλαμβάνουσιν αὐτὸν ὡς ἦν ἐν τῷ πλοίῳ· καὶ ἄλλα δὲ πλοιάρια ἦν μετ' αὐτοῦ. 37 Καὶ γίνεται λαῖλαψ ἀνέμου 24 23 μεγάλη· τὰ δὲ κύματα ἐπέβαλλεν εἰς τὸ πλοῖον, ὥστε αὐτὸ ἤδη γεμίζεσθαι.
38 Καὶ ἦν αὐτὸς ἐν τῇ πρύμνῃ ἐπὶ τὸ προσκεφάλαιον καθεύδων· καὶ διεγείρουσιν
25 24 αὐτὸν, καὶ λέγουσιν αὐτῷ, Διδάσκαλε, οὐ μέλει σοι ὅτι ἀπολλύμεθα; 39 Καὶ
26 διεγερθεὶς ἐπετίμησε τῷ ἀνέμῳ, καὶ εἶπε τῇ θαλάσσῃ, Σιώπα, πεφίμωσο. Καὶ
25 ἐκόπασεν ὁ ἄνεμος, καὶ ἐγένετο γαλήνη μεγάλη. 40 Καὶ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Τί δειλοί 27 ἐστε οὕτω; πῶς οὐκ ἔχετε πίστιν; 41 Καὶ ἐφοβήθησαν φόβον μέγαν, καὶ ἔλεγον πρὸς ἀλλήλους, Τίς ἄρα οὗτός ἐστιν, ὅτι καὶ ὁ ἄνεμος καὶ ἡ θάλασσα ὑπακούουσιν αὐτῷ;

28 26 V. 1 Καὶ ἦλθον εἰς τὸ πέραν τῆς θαλάσσης εἰς τὴν χώραν τῶν Γαδαρηνῶν.
27 2 Καὶ ἐξελθόντι αὐτῷ ἐκ τοῦ πλοίου εὐθέως ἀπήντησεν αὐτῷ ἐκ τῶν μνημείων ἄνθρωπος ἐν πνεύματι ἀκαθάρτῳ, 3 ὃς τὴν κατοίκησιν εἶχεν ἐν τοῖς μνήμασι· καὶ οὐδὲ ἁλύσεσιν οὐδεὶς ἠδύνατο αὐτὸν δῆσαι, 4 διὰ τὸ αὐτὸν πολλάκις πέδαις
29 καὶ ἁλύσεσι δεδέσθαι, καὶ διεσπάσθαι ὑπ' αὐτοῦ τὰς ἁλύσεις, καὶ τὰς πέδας συντετρίφθαι· καὶ οὐδεὶς αὐτὸν ἴσχυε δαμάσαι. 5 Καὶ διαπαντὸς νυκτὸς καὶ ἡμέρας ἐν τοῖς μνήμασι καὶ ἐν τοῖς ὄρεσιν ἦν, κράζων καὶ κατακόπτων ἑαυτὸν
28 λίθοις. 6 Ἰδὼν δὲ τὸν Ἰησοῦν ἀπὸ μακρόθεν ἔδραμε καὶ προσεκύνησεν αὐτῷ, 29 7 καὶ κράξας φωνῇ μεγάλῃ λέγει, Τί ἐμοὶ καὶ σοί, Ἰησοῦ Υἱὲ τοῦ Θεοῦ τοῦ ὑψίστου; ὁρκίζω σε τὸν Θεὸν, μή με βασανίσῃς· 8 ἔλεγε γὰρ αὐτῷ, Ἔξελθε, 30 τὸ πνεῦμα τὸ ἀκάθαρτον, ἐκ τοῦ ἀνθρώπου. 9 Καὶ ἐπηρώτα αὐτὸν, Τί σοι

---

29. παραδῷ] gives itself to the sickle. "Multa adeò gelidâ melius se nocte dedere" Virg. Georg. i. 287; see below on xiv. 72.

34. ἐπέλυε] "Discipulis explicabat. ἐπιλύειν, explicare, interpretari, in vers. Alex. respondet Hebr. פתר Gen. xli. 12. ubi sermo est de interpretatione somniorum; verbum simplex λύειν, ut sit ænigma solvere, usurpavit Libanius ep. 38. et nomen ἐπίλυσις, quo Aquila Gen. xl. 8. expressit Hebr. פתרון." (Kuin.) Cp. 2 Pet. i. 20, πᾶσα προφητεία γραφῆς ἰδίας ἐπιλύσεως οὐ γίγνεται.

36. ὡς ἦν ἐν τῷ πλοίῳ] They convey Him with them as He was —without any further preparation; perhaps He was asleep (see v. 38), weary with preaching, for it was evening—in the ship where he had been teaching (iv. 1)—his migratory Church.

— πλοιάρια] Altered by some into πλοῖα, but the ἄλλα πλοιάρια show that our Lord's vessel also was a small one,—a circumstance of interest in the miracle.

38. τὸ προσκεφάλαιον] Probaby the cushion of the steersman. See Cratin. ap. Polluc. Onomast. x. 40. (Kuin.)

— καθεύδων] Some of the Fathers give also a spiritual meaning to this circumstance. When the storm of Satan's fury raged most fiercely against the bark of the Church, Christ was reclining in the sleep of death on the wooden προσκεφάλαιον of the Cross. But He awoke from the slumber of death, and rebuked the waves and the winds, and there was a great calm.

39. εἶπε τῇ θαλάσσῃ] Not by means of a rod, as Moses; or by prayer, as Elisha; or by the ark, as Joshua;—but by a word.

— πεφίμωσο] See i. 25. The Perfect tense, indicating that before the word was uttered the work was done.

— γαλήνη μεγάλη] As in His Miracles of Healing there was no interval of convalescence, but perfect health was restored at once, so after the quelling of the storm there was no gradual subsiding of the waves, but immediately there was a great calm. See on Matt. viii. 15, a striking evidence of the reality of His Miracles.

40. πῶς οὐκ ἔχετε πίστιν] He rebukes His disciples for not having faith; for if they had had faith they would have known that though asleep He could preserve them. (Theophyl.) How is it ye have no faith? i. e. faith in My divine power, which never slumbers nor sleeps (Ps. cxxi. 4), and by which I can quell the storm which I have raised to try your faith. You treat the Son of God as if He were like Baal, of whom Elijah said (1 Kings xviii. 27), "Peradventure he sleepeth, and must be awaked."—How is it that you have no faith? See on Matt. viii. 26.

CH. V. 1. Γαδαρηνῶν] See Matt. viii. 28.

2. ἄνθρωπος] St. Matthew speaks of two, St. Mark and St. Luke (viii. 28) of one. This one lived at Gadara (see v. 19, 20. Luke viii. 27, ἀνήρ τις ἐκ τῆς πόλεως), perhaps the other did not; and the design of the Holy Spirit writing by St. Mark and St. Luke, for Romans and Greeks, seems to have been to show the love of Christ, by this example, to the Gentile world, to which this Gadarene belonged, as is intimated by the circumstance that these Gadarenes kept swine, which was not lawful to the Jews. Cf. Levit. xi. 7. Deut. xiv. 8.

Compare the parallel case of the two Blind men at Jericho. St. Matthew mentions two, St. Mark and St. Luke only one. See note Mark x. 46. Matt. xx. 29.

7. μή με βασανίσῃς] The devil forces the man to speak the devil's feeling and language, the very reverse of the man's own proper feelings and language; and to call himself by a devil's name (see v. 9), i. e. the devil so possessed the man, as to make him speak as a devil, not as a man; but as the enemy of man, and specially of himself. This is demoniacal possession, and is quite a different thing

	MATT. VIII.	LUKE VIII.
ὄνομα; καὶ λέγει αὐτῷ, Λεγεὼν ὄνομά μοι, ὅτι πολλοί ἐσμεν. 10 καὶ παρεκάλει αὐτὸν πολλὰ, ἵνα μὴ αὐτοὺς ἀποστείλῃ ἔξω τῆς χώρας. 11 Ἦν δὲ ἐκεῖ πρὸς τῷ ὄρει ἀγέλη χοίρων μεγάλη βοσκομένη· 12 καὶ παρεκάλεσαν αὐτὸν οἱ δαίμονες λέγοντες, Πέμψον ἡμᾶς εἰς τοὺς χοίρους, ἵνα εἰς αὐτοὺς εἰσέλθωμεν. 13 Καὶ ἐπέτρεψεν αὐτοῖς εὐθέως ὁ Ἰησοῦς. Καὶ ἐξελθόντα τὰ πνεύματα τὰ ἀκάθαρτα εἰσῆλθον εἰς τοὺς χοίρους· καὶ ὥρμησεν ἡ ἀγέλη κατὰ τοῦ κρημνοῦ εἰς τὴν θάλασσαν, ἦσαν δὲ ὡς δισχίλιοι, καὶ ἐπνίγοντο ἐν τῇ θαλάσσῃ. 14 Οἱ δὲ βόσκοντες τοὺς χοίρους ἔφυγον, καὶ ἀπήγγειλαν εἰς τὴν πόλιν καὶ εἰς τοὺς ἀγρούς. καὶ ἐξῆλθον ἰδεῖν τί ἐστι τὸ γεγονός. 15 Καὶ ἔρχονται πρὸς τὸν Ἰησοῦν, καὶ θεωροῦσι τὸν δαιμονιζόμενον καθήμενον, καὶ ἱματισμένον καὶ σωφρονοῦντα, τὸν ἐσχηκότα τὸν λεγεῶνα· καὶ ἐφοβήθησαν. 16 Καὶ διηγήσαντο αὐτοῖς οἱ ἰδόντες, πῶς ἐγένετο τῷ δαιμονιζομένῳ, καὶ περὶ τῶν χοίρων. 17 καὶ ἤρξαντο παρακαλεῖν αὐτὸν ἀπελθεῖν ἀπὸ τῶν ὁρίων αὐτῶν. (48/VIII) 18 Καὶ ἐμβαίνοντος αὐτοῦ εἰς τὸ πλοῖον, παρεκάλει αὐτὸν ὁ δαιμονισθεὶς ἵνα ᾖ μετ' αὐτοῦ· 19 ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς οὐκ ἀφῆκεν αὐτὸν, ἀλλὰ λέγει αὐτῷ, Ὕπαγε εἰς τὸν οἶκόν σου πρὸς τοὺς σοὺς, καὶ ἀπάγγειλον αὐτοῖς, ὅσα σοι ὁ Κύριος πεποίηκε, καὶ ἠλέησέ σε. 20 Καὶ ἀπῆλθε καὶ ἤρξατο κηρύσσειν ἐν τῇ Δεκαπόλει ὅσα ἐποίησεν αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς· καὶ πάντες ἐθαύμαζον.	31 30 31 32 33 34 33 34 34 35 36 37 38 39 IX. 1 40 18 41 42 19 20 43 44 21 45 46
(49/II) 21 Καὶ διαπεράσαντος τοῦ Ἰησοῦ ἐν τῷ πλοίῳ πάλιν εἰς τὸ πέραν, συνήχθη ὄχλος πολὺς ἐπ' αὐτόν· καὶ ἦν παρὰ τὴν θάλασσαν. 22 Καὶ ἰδοὺ ἔρχεται εἷς τῶν ἀρχισυναγώγων ὀνόματι Ἰάειρος, καὶ ἰδὼν αὐτὸν πίπτει πρὸς τοὺς πόδας αὐτοῦ, 23 καὶ παρεκάλει αὐτὸν πολλὰ λέγων,—Ὅτι τὸ θυγάτριόν μου ἐσχάτως ἔχει, ἵνα ἐλθὼν ἐπιθῇς αὐτῇ τὰς χεῖρας ὅπως σωθῇ, καὶ ζήσεται. 24 Καὶ ἀπῆλθε μετ' αὐτοῦ· καὶ ἠκολούθει αὐτῷ ὄχλος πολὺς, καὶ συνέθλιβον αὐτόν. 25 Καὶ γυνή τις οὖσα ἐν ῥύσει αἵματος ἔτη δώδεκα, 26 καὶ πολλὰ παθοῦσα ὑπὸ πολλῶν ἰατρῶν, καὶ δαπανήσασα τὰ παρ' αὐτῆς πάντα, καὶ μηδὲν ὠφεληθεῖσα, ἀλλὰ μᾶλλον εἰς τὸ χεῖρον ἐλθοῦσα, 27 ἀκούσασα περὶ τοῦ Ἰησοῦ, ἐλθοῦσα ἐν τῷ ὄχλῳ ὄπισθεν, ἥψατο τοῦ ἱματίου αὐτοῦ· 28 ἔλεγε γάρ, Ὅτι κἂν τῶν ἱματίων αὐτοῦ ἅψωμαι, σωθήσομαι. 29 Καὶ εὐθέως ἐξηράνθη ἡ πηγὴ τοῦ αἵματος αὐτῆς, καὶ ἔγνω τῷ σώματι ὅτι ἴαται ἀπὸ τῆς μάστιγος. 30 Καὶ εὐθέως ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἐπιγνοὺς ἐν ἑαυτῷ τὴν ἐξ αὐτοῦ δύναμιν ἐξελθοῦσαν, ἐπιστραφεὶς ἐν τῷ ὄχλῳ ἔλεγε, Τίς μου ἥψατο τῶν ἱματίων; 31 καὶ ἔλεγον αὐτῷ	1 40 18 41 42 19 20 43 44 21 45 46

from any physical disease. (Cp. on Matt. iv. 24, and below on ix. 20.) See the change of the man after the devil was cast out of him, vv. 15. 18.

9. λεγεών] Legio (about 6000 soldiers). One of the Roman words in St. Mark's Gospel. See on ii. 4. Our Lord asked the question, not as if He needed to be informed of any thing, but that the by-standers might know that this one man had become the habitation of a host of devils.

The Gentile World was now possessed, as it were, with a Legion of evil spirits; it could not be bound by any laws, it tore their bonds asunder. Christ came from heaven to deliver it from those evil spirits and to cast them out; so that being clothed in the robe of faith and in its right mind, it might come and sit at His feet.

13. ὡς δισχίλιοι] This is mentioned by St. Mark alone.

18. ἐμβαίνοντος] as He was embarking—a preferable reading to ἐμβάντος.

18, 19. ἵνα ᾖ μετ' αὐτοῦ—οὐκ ἀφῆκεν] Fearing that the devils would return after the departure of Christ. But Christ would teach him by his absence that He was present with him in Divine power, by which He had cast out the Legion; and so would exercise his faith.

19. ἀπάγγειλον] Contrast this with i. 25. 44.

He would not allow devils to proclaim what He was, but He commands the man to do so, who had been delivered from them; and this He does in Gadara, where were no Scribes and Pharisees (see above, i. 45), and as a prophetical intimation that the Gospel was in due time to be preached to all the Nations of the world, who were to be delivered by it from the dominion of a Legion of Evil Spirits to which they were now in bondage.

22. ἀρχισυναγώγων] רֹאשׁ הַכְּנֶסֶת (rosh haccenesseth), from root כָּנַס (canas), to collect; 'caput synagogæ.' (See Vitringa, Archisyn. Franecq. 1684.) He appears to have been the president of a College or board, or vestry, who provided for the maintenance of, or attendance at, the Synagogue, and also for the superintendence of the Service and the teaching in it.

— ὀνόματι Ἰάειρος] The name (not mentioned by St. Matthew) is added by St. Mark for the further proof of the miracle.

23. ὅτι—ἵνα] Two sentences put together abruptly, and characteristic of the hurried eagerness of the suppliant father. Cp. a similarly broken phrase, viii. 24.

26. τὰ παρ' αὐτῆς] All that could be supplied from herself—all her own resources. She had spent them all; and had no hope but in Christ. And when all other aid failed, she came to Him and He healed her. An emblem of human nature antecedently to, and independently of, Divine Grace.

29. ἴαται] Not ἰᾶται, present, but perfect, 'has been healed,' sanata est—marking the miraculous suddenness of the cure.

30. ἐπιγνοὺς—τὴν—ἐξελθοῦσαν] Having perceived the virtue that had gone out of Himself. Christ's eye sees invisible grace in all its secret operations. He beholds the breath of the Spirit moving in the Word and Sacraments, and in the human heart of the recipient. We only see its effects. He sees the wind; we only perceive what is stirred by it.

— τίς μου ἥψατο] Christ puts a question here (as often), not in order to learn any thing from the answer, but that the grace which He had given to the woman might be made manifest, to the spiritual healing of many.

The word ἅπτομαι signifies something more than touch,—to fasten oneself eagerly to a thing, to cling to it with a desire to derive something from it. See μή μου ἅπτου, John xx. 17.

Our Lord's question with St. Peter's reply (v. 31. Luke viii. 45) serve together to bring out the truth, that the worldly crowd which familiarly presses on Christ's human body as Man, throngs Him, but it is only the hand of that Faith which believes in His divine power

MATT. LUKE.
IX. VIII. οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ, Βλέπεις τὸν ὄχλον συνθλίβοντά σε, καὶ λέγεις, Τίς μου 47 ἥψατο; 32 Καὶ περιεβλέπετο ἰδεῖν τὴν τοῦτο ποιήσασαν. 33 Ἡ δὲ γυνὴ φοβηθεῖσα καὶ τρέμουσα εἰδυῖα ὃ γέγονεν ἐπ' αὐτῇ ἦλθε καὶ προσέπεσεν αὐτῷ, 22 48 καὶ εἶπεν αὐτῷ πᾶσαν τὴν ἀλήθειαν. 34 Ὁ δὲ εἶπεν αὐτῇ, Θύγατερ, ἡ πίστις σου σέσωκέ σε, ὕπαγε εἰς εἰρήνην, καὶ ἴσθι ὑγιὴς ἀπὸ τῆς μάστιγός σου.
49
50 35 Ἔτι αὐτοῦ λαλοῦντος, ἔρχονται ἀπὸ τοῦ ἀρχισυναγώγου λέγοντες, Ὅτι ἡ θυγάτηρ σου ἀπέθανε· τί ἔτι σκύλλεις τὸν διδάσκαλον; 36 Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς εὐθέως, ἀκούσας τὸν λόγον λαλούμενον, λέγει τῷ ἀρχισυναγώγῳ, Μὴ φοβοῦ, μόνον πίστευε. 37 Καὶ οὐκ ἀφῆκεν οὐδένα αὐτῷ συνακολουθῆσαι εἰ μὴ Πέτρον 23 51 καὶ Ἰάκωβον καὶ Ἰωάννην τὸν ἀδελφὸν Ἰακώβου. 38 Καὶ ἔρχεται εἰς τὸν οἶκον τοῦ ἀρχισυναγώγου, καὶ θεωρεῖ θόρυβον, κλαίοντας καὶ ἀλαλάζοντας 24 52 πολλά· 39 καὶ εἰσελθὼν λέγει αὐτοῖς, Τί θορυβεῖσθε καὶ κλαίετε; τὸ παιδίον
53 οὐκ ἀπέθανεν ἀλλὰ καθεύδει. 40 Καὶ κατεγέλων αὐτοῦ. Ὁ δὲ ἐκβαλὼν 25 54 πάντας παραλαμβάνει τὸν πατέρα τοῦ παιδίου καὶ τὴν μητέρα, καὶ τοὺς μετ' αὐτοῦ, καὶ εἰσπορεύεται ὅπου ἦν τὸ παιδίον ἀνακείμενον. 41 Καὶ κρατήσας τῆς χειρὸς τοῦ παιδίου λέγει αὐτῇ, Ταλιθὰ κοῦμι,—ὅ ἐστι μεθερμηνευόμενον, 55 Τὸ κοράσιον, σοὶ λέγω, ἔγειρε. 42 Καὶ εὐθέως ἀνέστη τὸ κοράσιον καὶ περι-26 επάτει, ἦν γὰρ ἐτῶν δώδεκα, καὶ ἐξέστησαν ἐκστάσει μεγάλῃ. 43 Καὶ διεστείa Matt. 8. 4. & 9. 30. & 12. 16. ch. 3. 12. & 7. 36.
56 λατο αὐτοῖς [a] πολλὰ, ἵνα μηδεὶς γνῷ τοῦτο· καὶ εἶπε δοθῆναι αὐτῇ φαγεῖν.
XIII. IV.
54 16 VI. (50/I) 1 Καὶ ἐξῆλθεν ἐκεῖθεν, καὶ ἔρχεται εἰς τὴν πατρίδα αὐτοῦ· καὶ ἀκολουθοῦσιν αὐτῷ οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ. 2 Καὶ γενομένου σαββάτου ἤρξατο ἐν τῇ συναγωγῇ διδάσκειν· καὶ πολλοὶ ἀκούοντες ἐξεπλήσσοντο, λέγοντες, Πόθεν τούτῳ ταῦτα; καὶ τίς ἡ σοφία ἡ δοθεῖσα αὐτῷ καὶ δυνάμεις τοιαῦται διὰ τῶν χειρῶν αὐτοῦ 55 γίνονται; 3 Οὐχ οὗτός ἐστιν ὁ τέκτων [a], ὁ υἱὸς Μαρίας, ἀδελφὸς δὲ Ἰακώβου a John 6. 42.
56 καὶ Ἰωσῆ καὶ Ἰούδα καὶ Σίμωνος; καὶ οὐκ εἰσὶν αἱ ἀδελφαὶ αὐτοῦ ὧδε πρὸς 57 24 ἡμᾶς; καὶ ἐσκανδαλίζοντο ἐν αὐτῷ. (51/I) 4 Ἔλεγε δὲ αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Ὅτι οὐκ b John 4. 44.
ἔστι προφήτης ἄτιμος, εἰ μὴ ἐν τῇ πατρίδι [b] αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἐν τοῖς συγγενέσι, καὶ 58 ἐν τῇ οἰκίᾳ αὐτοῦ. 5 Καὶ οὐκ ἠδύνατο ἐκεῖ οὐδεμίαν δύναμιν ποιῆσαι, εἰ μὴ ὀλίγοις ἀῤῥώστοις ἐπιθεὶς τὰς χεῖρας ἐθεράπευσε. (52/II) 6 Καὶ ἐθαύμαζε διὰ τὴν ἀπιστίαν αὐτῶν· καὶ περιῆγε τὰς κώμας κύκλῳ διδάσκων.
X. IX.
1 1 (53/II) 7 Καὶ προσκαλεῖται τοὺς δώδεκα, καὶ ἤρξατο αὐτοὺς ἀποστέλλειν δύο δύο· to heal the soul and body, that touches Him, although it touch not His human body—His carnal substance—but only the hem of His garment; and that wherever there is such a touch, divine virtue will go out of Him by the hem of His Garment, to heal. This may be applied to those who crave a carnal presence in the Holy Eucharist. (Cp. St. Augustine, Sermones, lxii. 5.) Christ says, "Tangentem quæro, non prementem; caro premit, Fides tangit. Erigite oculos fidei, tangite extremam fimbriam vestimenti; sufficiet ad salutem." Cp. St. Aug. Serm. ccxlii. and ccxliii.

It was, indeed, a high degree of faith to believe in Christ's Deity, when He was in Human Flesh on earth, and that was the faith of this woman. This example shows indeed that our Lord, when on earth, could be touched by faith, and virtue would go out of Him responsive to the touch. But it might be thought, that after His departure from earth by His Ascension into Heaven He could no longer be touched; and therefore our Lord provides an answer to this supposition after His Resurrection by another example. He does this in His words to another woman, Mary Magdalene (John xx. 17): "Touch Me not, for I am not yet ascended." The true trial of faith is not bodily presence, but bodily absence; therefore the most exquisite touch of faith is that which is exercised after the Ascension. Thus the case of Mary Magdalene comes in as supplementary to the case of the faithful woman before us. See on John xx. 17, μή μου ἅπτου.

Our Lord, now ministering in the heavenly Temple as our great High Priest, is described as clad in a long garment descending to His feet (Rev. i. 13); and Divine Grace descends from the Anointed One to the least and lowest of His members,—as the precious ointment upon the head of Aaron, which ran down to the skirts of his clothing (Ps. cxxxiii. 2); and divine virtue goes out of Christ to all who touch Him by faith, in Prayer, and in His Word and Sacraments,—which are the hems of His garment.

34. εἰς εἰρήνην] Something more than in peace. The Hebrew שָׁלוֹם (Shalom), for peace. Gen. xliv. 17, Exod. iv. 18. 1 Sam. i. 17, and passim.

40. ἐκβαλὼν πάντας—μετ' αὐτοῦ] Excluding some, in order to discourage vain curiosity, and to teach a lesson of modesty in doing good; and admitting others, carefully chosen, as witnesses of the miracle. The manner in which Christ's miracles are done is exemplary to all, though they cannot exert miraculous power.

41. ταλιθὰ κοῦμι] טְלִיתָא (talîtha), puella; קוּמִי (cumî), imperative from קוּם (surgere). 'Puella, surge!' St Mark alone gives the ipsissima verba uttered by Christ, and probably recited by St. Peter, an eye-witness of the miracle (v. 37) to the Evangelist.

43. εἶπε—φαγεῖν] To show that she was not only restored to life, but to perfect health,—a proof of the miracle.

CH. VI. 1. πατρίδα] Nazareth.

3. οὐχ οὗτός ἐστιν ὁ τέκτων] A proof of the manhood of Christ. "Error hæreticorum, nostra salus." There is also a truth, more than they knew of, in their words. For οὐχ οὗτος ὁ τέκτων; Is He not the τέκτων of the Universe?

— ἀδελφός] See Matt. xii. 46; xiii. 55.

5. ἠδύνατο] οὐχ ὅτι ἐκεῖνοι ἀσθενῆς, ἀλλ' ὅτι ἐκεῖνοι ἄπιστοι. (Theoph.)

Cp. John vii. 7, of moral inability. To show the power and necessity of faith, our Lord regulated the exercise of His Omnipotence according to men's belief in it. See ix. 23, where He even vouchsafes to invest faith with His own Omnipotence, πάντα δυνατὰ τῷ πιστεύοντι. Cf. Matt. xiii. 58. In this expression is an evidence of inspiration. The Holy Spirit alone Who knows the mind of Christ, would have spoken thus of His power, and of the laws by which He is pleased to limit and control its manifestation.

6. ἐθαύμαζε] See on Matt. viii. 10.

7. δύο δύο] i. e. binos; a Hebraism, where the Greeks use ἀνά, Luke x. 1. Cp. Gen. vii. 2; xxxii. 16. Num. xvii. 2; xxviii. 21. See below, v. 39, 40, συμπόσια συμπόσια.

καὶ ἐδίδου αὐτοῖς ἐξουσίαν τῶν πνευμάτων τῶν ἀκαθάρτων. [8] Καὶ παρήγγειλεν αὐτοῖς, ἵνα μηδὲν αἴρωσιν εἰς ὁδὸν, εἰ μὴ ῥάβδον μόνον· μὴ πήραν, μὴ ἄρτον, μὴ εἰς τὴν ζώνην χαλκόν· [9] ἀλλ' ὑποδεδεμένους σανδάλια, καὶ μὴ ἐνδύσησθε δύο χιτῶνας. (54/II) [10] Καὶ ἔλεγεν αὐτοῖς, Ὅπου ἐὰν εἰσέλθητε εἰς οἰκίαν, ἐκεῖ μένετε ἕως ἂν ἐξέλθητε ἐκεῖθεν. (55/II) [11] Καὶ ὅσοι ἂν μὴ δέξωνται ὑμᾶς μηδὲ ἀκούσωσιν ὑμῶν, ἐκπορευόμενοι ἐκεῖθεν ἐκτινάξατε τὸν χοῦν τὸν ὑποκάτω τῶν ποδῶν ὑμῶν, εἰς μαρτύριον αὐτοῖς. Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ἀνεκτότερον ἔσται Σοδόμοις ἢ Γομόρροις ἐν ἡμέρᾳ κρίσεως, ἢ τῇ πόλει ἐκείνῃ. (56/VIII) [12] Καὶ ἐξελθόντες ἐκήρυσσον ἵνα μετανοήσωσι, [13] καὶ δαιμόνια πολλὰ ἐξέβαλλον, καὶ ἤλειφον [a] ἐλαίῳ πολλοὺς ἀῤῥώστους καὶ ἐθεράπευον.

(57/II) [14] Καὶ ἤκουσεν ὁ βασιλεὺς Ἡρῴδης, φανερὸν γὰρ ἐγένετο τὸ ὄνομα αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἔλεγεν, ὅτι Ἰωάννης ὁ βαπτίζων ἐκ νεκρῶν ἠγέρθη, καὶ διὰ τοῦτο ἐνεργοῦσιν αἱ δυνάμεις ἐν αὐτῷ. [15] Ἄλλοι δὲ ἔλεγον, Ὅτι Ἠλίας ἐστίν· ἄλλοι δὲ ἔλεγον, Ὅτι προφήτης ἐστὶν, ὡς εἷς τῶν προφητῶν. (58/X) [16] Ἀκούσας δὲ ὁ Ἡρῴδης εἶπεν, Ὅτι ὃν ἐγὼ ἀπεκεφάλισα Ἰωάννην οὗτός ἐστιν, αὐτὸς ἠγέρθη ἐκ νεκρῶν. (59/II) [17] Αὐτὸς γὰρ ὁ Ἡρῴδης ἀποστείλας ἐκράτησε τὸν Ἰωάννην, καὶ ἔδησεν αὐτὸν ἐν φυλακῇ, διὰ Ἡρωδιάδα τὴν γυναῖκα Φιλίππου τοῦ ἀδελφοῦ αὐτοῦ, ὅτι αὐτὴν ἐγάμησεν. [18] Ἔλεγε γὰρ ὁ Ἰωάννης τῷ Ἡρῴδῃ, Ὅτι [c] οὐκ ἔξεστί σοι ἔχειν τὴν γυναῖκα τοῦ ἀδελφοῦ σου. [19] Ἡ δὲ Ἡρωδιὰς ἐνεῖχεν αὐτῷ, καὶ ἤθελεν αὐτὸν ἀποκτεῖναι, καὶ οὐκ ἠδύνατο· [20] ὁ γὰρ Ἡρῴδης ἐφοβεῖτο τὸν Ἰωάννην, εἰδὼς αὐτὸν ἄνδρα δίκαιον καὶ ἅγιον, καὶ συνετήρει αὐτὸν, καὶ ἀκούσας αὐτοῦ πολλὰ ἐποίει καὶ ἡδέως αὐτοῦ ἤκουε. (60/VI) [21] Καὶ, γενομένης ἡμέρας εὐκαίρου, ὅτε Ἡρῴδης τοῖς [d] γενεσίοις αὐτοῦ δεῖπνον ἐποίει τοῖς μεγιστᾶσιν αὐτοῦ καὶ τοῖς χιλιάρχοις καὶ τοῖς πρώτοις τῆς Γαλιλαίας, [22] καὶ εἰσελθούσης τῆς θυγατρὸς αὐτῆς τῆς Ἡρωδιάδος καὶ ὀρχησαμένης, καὶ ἀρεσάσης τῷ Ἡρῴδῃ καὶ τοῖς συνανακειμένοις, εἶπεν ὁ βασιλεὺς τῷ κορασίῳ, Αἴτησόν με ὃ ἐὰν θέλῃς καὶ δώσω σοι· [23] καὶ ὤμοσεν αὐτῇ, Ὅτι ὃ ἐὰν με αἰτήσῃς δώσω σοι ἕως ἡμίσους τῆς βασιλείας μου. [24] Ἡ δὲ ἐξελθοῦσα εἶπε τῇ μητρὶ αὐτῆς, Τί αἰτήσωμαι; ἡ δὲ εἶπε, Τὴν κεφαλὴν Ἰωάννου τοῦ βαπτιστοῦ. [25] Καὶ εἰσελθοῦσα εὐθέως μετὰ σπουδῆς πρὸς τὸν βασιλέα, ᾐτήσατο λέγουσα, Θέλω ἵνα μοι δῷς ἐξαυτῆς ἐπὶ πίνακι τὴν κεφαλὴν Ἰωάννου τοῦ βαπτιστοῦ. [26] Καὶ περίλυπος γενόμενος ὁ βασιλεὺς διὰ τοὺς ὅρκους καὶ τοὺς συνανακειμένους οὐκ ἠθέλησεν αὐτὴν ἀθετῆσαι. [27] Καὶ εὐθέως ἀποστείλας ὁ βασιλεὺς σπεκουλάτορα ἐπέταξεν ἐνεχθῆναι τὴν κεφαλὴν αὐτοῦ. [28] Ὁ δὲ ἀπελθὼν ἀπεκεφάλισεν αὐτὸν ἐν τῇ φυλακῇ, καὶ ἤνεγκε τὴν κεφαλὴν αὐτοῦ ἐπὶ πίνακι, καὶ ἔδωκεν αὐτὴν τῷ κορασίῳ, καὶ τὸ κοράσιον ἔδωκεν αὐτὴν τῇ μητρὶ αὐτῆς.

MATT. X.	LUKE IX.
9	3
10
11	4
14 6
a James 5. 14.
XIV. 1	7
2
	8 9
3
4 c Lev. 18. 16. & 20. 21.
5
6 d Gen. 40. 20.
7
8 9 10
11

St. Mark relates here that the Apostles were sent forth in pairs. St. Matthew (ix. 3) gives the names of the pairs,—an undesigned coincidence and evidence of truth.

8. χαλκόν] money, the Roman æs. St. Luke, writing for the Greeks, uses ἀργύριον, x. 4. See below, xii. 41.

9. σανδάλια] See Matt. x. 10.

13. ἤλειφον ἐλαίῳ] ἔστιν ἔλαιον πρὸς κόπους ὠφέλιμον, καὶ φωτὸς αἴτιον, καὶ ἰλαρότητος πρόξενον, καὶ σημαίνει τὸ ἔλεος τοῦ Θεοῦ. (Theophyl.) The Apostles used it to show by the application of an appropriate visible sign, that the healing was effected by their instrumentality, in the Name of Christ, the Messiah or anointed one of God (Ps. ii. 6; xlv. 7. Acts iv. 27; x. 38), and in His power Who had sent them; and because the oil itself was significant of God's mercy and spiritual comfort, light, and joy (Euthym., Theophyl.), and of grace given to the soul and body in answer to fervent prayer. 2 Cor. i. 21. 1 John ii. 20. 27.

For the bearing of this text on 'Extreme Unction,' see note on James v. 14.

15. ὡς εἷς τῶν πρ.] equal to one of the old Prophets.

18. ἔλεγε] dicebat, a repeated warning; met by Herodias with habitual hatred and malicious machinations against him' (v. 19).

20. συνετήρει] 'kept him in custody.' τήρησις, a prison. Acts iv. 3; v. 18. See 2 Pet. ii. 4. 9. See here v. 17. Perhaps also on a plea that his life was in peril from Herodias (v. 19), but also because he resented John's rebuke, and feared its effects on the people. Herod would have killed John before, but he feared the people. (Matt. xiv. 3. 5.)

Another proof of John's unwavering constancy and undaunted courage even unto death. (Cp. on Matt. xi. 2—6.)

— ἤκουε] Used to hear—listened to him.

22. αὐτῆς τῆς Ἡρ.] Of Herodias herself. The mother herself did not scruple to use her daughter for this licentious and cruel purpose.

25. ἐξαυτῆς] Immediately; lest Herod should relent.

26. περίλυπος] Not sorry for his sin, or for John's death, but because he feared the people who held John as a prophet (see on v. 20, and Matt. xiv. 5); and perhaps with a sense of indignity in sacrificing the prophet to the malice of Herodias, and in being entrapped by her wiliness in a revel, exposing him to the contempt and hatred of his subjects.

27. σπεκουλάτορα] Suidas, σπεκουλάτωρ, δορυφόρος, i. e. à spiculo; but other glossaries render it κατάσκοπος, à speculando. Executioners were called speculatores. Seneca de Benefic. iii. 25: "Speculatoribus occurrit, nihil se deprecari, quò minùs imperata perageret, dixit, et deinde cervicem porrexit." De Ira i. 16: "Centurio supplicio præpositus, condere gladium speculatorem jubet." Julius Firmicus viii. 26: "Speculatores faciet, qui nudato gladio hominum amputant cervices." (Kuin.)

MATT. XIV. 12 | LUKE. IX. 10 | (61/VIII) 30 Καὶ συνάγονται οἱ ἀπόστολοι πρὸς τὸν Ἰησοῦν, καὶ ἀπήγγειλαν αὐτῷ πάντα, ὅσα ἐποίησαν καὶ ὅσα ἐδίδαξαν. (62/X) 31 Καὶ λέγει αὐτοῖς, Δεῦτε ὑμεῖς αὐτοὶ κατ' ἰδίαν εἰς ἔρημον τόπον καὶ ἀναπαύεσθε ὀλίγον· ἦσαν γὰρ οἱ ἐρχόμενοι καὶ οἱ ὑπάγοντες πολλοὶ, καὶ οὐδὲ φαγεῖν ηὐκαίρουν. 32 Καὶ 13 ἀπῆλθον εἰς ἔρημον τόπον τῷ πλοίῳ κατ' ἰδίαν· 33 καὶ εἶδον αὐτοὺς ὑπάγοντας 11 καὶ ἐπέγνωσαν αὐτὸν πολλοί· καὶ πεζῇ ἀπὸ πασῶν τῶν πόλεων συνέδραμον 14 ἐκεῖ, καὶ προῆλθον αὐτοὺς, καὶ συνῆλθον πρὸς αὐτόν. (63/VI) 34 Καὶ ἐξελθὼν εἶδεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς πολὺν ὄχλον, καὶ ἐσπλαγχνίσθη ἐπ' αὐτοῖς, ὅτι ἦσαν ὡς πρόβατα 15 12 μὴ ἔχοντα ποιμένα· καὶ ἤρξατο διδάσκειν αὐτοὺς πολλά. (64/I) 35 Καὶ ἤδη ὥρας πολλῆς γενομένης, προσελθόντες αὐτῷ οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ λέγουσιν, Ὅτι ἔρημός ἐστιν ὁ τόπος, καὶ ἤδη ὥρα πολλή, 36 ἀπόλυσον αὐτοὺς, ἵνα ἀπελθόντες εἰς τοὺς κύκλῳ ἀγροὺς καὶ κώμας ἀγοράσωσιν ἑαυτοῖς ἄρτους· τί γὰρ φάγωσιν 16 13 οὐκ ἔχουσιν. 37 Ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Δότε αὐτοῖς ὑμεῖς φαγεῖν. Καὶ λέγουσιν αὐτῷ, Ἀπελθόντες ἀγοράσωμεν διακοσίων δηναρίων ἄρτους, καὶ δῶμεν αὐτοῖς φαγεῖν; 38 Ὁ δὲ λέγει αὐτοῖς, Πόσους ἄρτους ἔχετε; ὑπάγετε καὶ ἴδετε. 17 Καὶ γνόντες λέγουσι, Πέντε, καὶ δύο ἰχθύας. 39 Καὶ ἐπέταξεν αὐτοῖς ἀνακλῖναι 19 14 πάντας, συμπόσια συμπόσια, ἐπὶ τῷ χλωρῷ χόρτῳ. 40 Καὶ ἀνέπεσον πρασιαὶ πρασιαὶ, ἀνὰ ἑκατὸν καὶ ἀνὰ πεντήκοντα. 41 Καὶ λαβὼν τοὺς πέντε ἄρτους καὶ τοὺς δύο ἰχθύας, ἀναβλέψας εἰς τὸν οὐρανὸν εὐλόγησε, καὶ κατέκλασε τοὺς ἄρτους, καὶ ἐδίδου τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ, ἵνα παραθῶσιν αὐτοῖς, καὶ τοὺς δύο 20 17 ἰχθύας ἐμέρισε πᾶσι. 42 Καὶ ἔφαγον πάντες καὶ ἐχορτάσθησαν. 43 Καὶ ἦραν 21 24 κλασμάτων δώδεκα κοφίνους πλήρεις, καὶ ἀπὸ τῶν ἰχθύων. 44 Καὶ ἦσαν οἱ 22 φαγόντες τοὺς ἄρτους πεντακισχίλιοι ἄνδρες. (65/VI) 45 Καὶ εὐθέως ἠνάγκασε τοὺς μαθητὰς αὐτοῦ ἐμβῆναι εἰς τὸ πλοῖον, καὶ προάγειν εἰς τὸ πέραν πρὸς 23 Βηθσαϊδὰν, ἕως αὐτὸς ἀπολύσῃ τὸν ὄχλον. (66/II) 46 Καὶ ἀποταξάμενος αὐτοῖς 24 ἀπῆλθεν εἰς τὸ ὄρος προσεύξασθαι. (67/IV) 47 Καὶ ὀψίας γενομένης ἦν τὸ πλοῖον 25 ἐν μέσῳ τῆς θαλάσσης, καὶ αὐτὸς μόνος ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς. 48 Καὶ εἶδεν αὐτοὺς βασανιζομένους ἐν τῷ ἐλαύνειν, ἦν γὰρ ὁ ἄνεμος ἐναντίος αὐτοῖς. Καὶ περὶ τετάρτην φυλακὴν τῆς νυκτὸς ἔρχεται πρὸς αὐτοὺς περιπατῶν ἐπὶ τῆς θαλάσσης, 26 καὶ ἤθελε παρελθεῖν αὐτούς. 49 Οἱ δὲ, ἰδόντες αὐτὸν περιπατοῦντα ἐπὶ τῆς 27 θαλάσσης, ἔδοξαν φάντασμα εἶναι καὶ ἀνέκραξαν· 50 πάντες γὰρ αὐτὸν εἶδον καὶ ἐταράχθησαν. Καὶ εὐθέως ἐλάλησε μετ' αὐτῶν, καὶ λέγει αὐτοῖς, Θαρ- 32 σεῖτε, ἐγώ εἰμι, μὴ φοβεῖσθε. (68/VI) 51 Καὶ ἀνέβη πρὸς αὐτοὺς εἰς τὸ πλοῖον,

---

32. ἔρημον τόπον] Near Bethsaida Julias, N. E. of the Lake. See Luke ix. 10. Matt. xiv. 13.

33. ἐπέγνωσαν αὐτόν] See below, v. 54. πεζῇ, i. e. not by water.

34. ἐξελθών] having disembarked. See vi. 54.

35. ὥρας πολλῆς] See Matt. xiv. 15.

40. πρασιαί] "Nominativus Hebraicus." Glass. Phil. p. 286. The reduplication is for the Greek ἀνά. Vorst. Hebr. p. 312; and above on v. 7.

The word πρασιὰ is derived by some from πέρας, terminus (Passow); by others from πράσον, porrum.

It seems rather, like παράδεισος, to be of Oriental origin, and to be formed, by a metathesis of the letter ρ, from the root פרס (paras), or ברס (paras), to divide or portion out into compartments; whence pars, partior, and perhaps pratum, a field: πρασιαὶ are areolæ; viridaria, parterres (τὰ ἐν κήποις κόμματα, Theophyl.), in which, as in a garden, the seed was sown by the hand of the Apostles, and ripened into an instantaneous harvest by the almighty power and divine benediction of Christ.

The Holy Spirit, by the use of this word πρασιαὶ, appears to call attention to the fact, that our Lord, Who then multiplied the five loaves to be food for five thousand, is the same Divine Person Who, in a manner less striking, because more gradual and regular, but certainly not less wonderful, ripens all the seeds in all the Gardens and Orchards, and in all the Vineyards and Meadows of this world in successive seasons, ever since man dwelt in Paradise, to minister food to His creatures.

The πρασιαὶ are arranged in symmetrical order and beauty—and typify the different Churches which together make up the Catholic Church, and are all fed with the Word and Sacraments of Christ, ministered to them by Apostolic hands. Cf. Balaam's sublime description of the Ancient Church in the wilderness, Numb. xxiv. 5, and see Gregor. Moral. xvi. 55, and Bede.

41. κατέκλασε—ἐδίδου] He broke and distributed; literally, was distributing, in repeated acts, the loaves to His disciples to set before the multitude, but He ἐμέρισε, disparted by one act the two fishes to all. Cp. below, viii. 6. Matt. xiv. 19 has ἔδωκε τοῖς μαθηταῖς here; and John vi. 11 has διέδωκε τ. μ. concerning the loaves. But ἐδίδου used by St. Mark, and St. Luke ix. 16, expresses something more than the act of giving, and the effect; it describes the manner of it.

Cp. on Matt. xxvi. 26, 27, with regard to the distribution of the elements at the Sacramental Supper.

45. καὶ εὐθέως] See Matt. xiv. 22.

— Βηθσαϊδάν] the other Bethsaida, on the west of the Lake.

48. ἤθελε παρελθεῖν] He designed, and was about to pass by them. Cp. Luke xxiv. 28, and Glass., Phil. pp. 699, 700. This idiomatic use of θέλω remains in the language of modern Greece; ἤθελε να, and more briefly by θὲ νὰ and by θά.

A silent note of Inspiration. He was about to pass by them. He intended so to do. But what man could say this? Who knoweth the mind of Christ but the Spirit of God? (Cp. 1 Cor. ii. 11.)

καὶ ἐκόπασεν ὁ ἄνεμος· καὶ λίαν ἐκ περισσοῦ ἐν ἑαυτοῖς ἐξίσταντο καὶ ἐθαύ- MATT. XIV. 34 μαζον, 52 οὐ γὰρ συνῆκαν [e] ἐπὶ τοῖς ἄρτοις, ἦν γὰρ ἡ καρδία αὐτῶν πεπω- e ch. 8. 17. & 8. 5.
ρωμένη. (ⁿ⁄₁₁) 53 Καὶ διαπεράσαντες ἦλθον ἐπὶ τὴν γῆν Γεννησαρὲτ, καὶ προσωρμίσθησαν.

54 Καὶ ἐξελθόντων αὐτῶν ἐκ τοῦ πλοίου εὐθέως ἐπιγνόντες αὐτὸν, 55 περι- 35 δραμόντες ὅλην τὴν περίχωρον ἐκείνην ἤρξαντο ἐπὶ τοῖς κραβάττοις τοὺς κακῶς ἔχοντας περιφέρειν ὅπου ἤκουον ὅτι ἐκεῖ ἐστι· 56 καὶ ὅπου ἂν εἰσεπορεύετο εἰς κώμας ἢ πόλεις ἢ ἀγροὺς, ἐν ταῖς ἀγοραῖς ἐτίθουν τοὺς ἀσθενοῦντας, καὶ παρεκάλουν αὐτὸν ἵνα κἂν τοῦ κρασπέδου τοῦ ἱματίου αὐτοῦ ἅψωνται [f], καὶ 36 f Matt. 9. 20. ch. 5. 27, 28.
ὅσοι ἂν ἥπτοντο αὐτοῦ ἐσώζοντο.

VII. (ⁿ⁄₁₀) 1 Καὶ συνάγονται πρὸς αὐτὸν οἱ Φαρισαῖοι, καί τινες τῶν Γραμ- XV. 1 ματέων, ἐλθόντες ἀπὸ Ἱεροσολύμων, 2 καὶ ἰδόντες τινὰς τῶν μαθητῶν αὐτοῦ 2 κοιναῖς χερσὶ, τοῦτ' ἔστιν ἀνίπτοις, ἐσθίοντας ἄρτους. 3 οἱ γὰρ Φαρισαῖοι καὶ πάντες οἱ Ἰουδαῖοι ἐὰν μὴ πυγμῇ νίψωνται τὰς χεῖρας οὐκ ἐσθίουσι, κρατοῦντες τὴν παράδοσιν τῶν πρεσβυτέρων· 4 καὶ ἀπὸ ἀγορᾶς ἐὰν μὴ βαπτί- 4 σωνται οὐκ ἐσθίουσι· καὶ ἄλλα πολλά ἐστιν ἃ παρέλαβον κρατεῖν, βαπτισμοὺς ποτηρίων καὶ ξεστῶν καὶ χαλκίων καὶ κλινῶν· (ⁿ⁄₁₁) 5 ἔπειτα ἐπερωτῶσιν αὐτὸν 5 οἱ Φαρισαῖοι καὶ οἱ Γραμματεῖς, Διατί οἱ μαθηταί σου οὐ περιπατοῦσι κατὰ τὴν παράδοσιν τῶν πρεσβυτέρων, ἀλλὰ κοιναῖς χερσὶν ἐσθίουσι τὸν ἄρτον; 6 Ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Ὅτι καλῶς προεφήτευσεν Ἡσαΐας περὶ ὑμῶν 7 τῶν ὑποκριτῶν, ὡς γέγραπται, Οὗτος ὁ λαὸς τοῖς χείλεσί με τιμᾷ, ἡ δὲ 8 καρδία αὐτῶν πόρρω ἀπέχει ἀπ' ἐμοῦ. 7 Μάτην δὲ σέβονταί με, 9 διδάσκοντες διδασκαλίας ἐντάλματα ἀνθρώπων. 8 Ἀφέντες γὰρ τὴν ἐντολὴν τοῦ Θεοῦ κρατεῖτε τὴν παράδοσιν τῶν ἀνθρώπων, βαπτισμοὺς ξεστῶν καὶ ποτηρίων· καὶ ἄλλα παρόμοια τοιαῦτα πολλὰ ποιεῖτε. 9 Καὶ ἔλεγεν αὐτοῖς, 3 Καλῶς ἀθετεῖτε τὴν ἐντολὴν τοῦ Θεοῦ, ἵνα τὴν παράδοσιν ὑμῶν τηρήσητε.
10 Μωϋσῆς γὰρ εἶπε, Τίμα τὸν πατέρα σου καὶ τὴν μητέρα σου· καὶ ὁ 4 κακολογῶν πατέρα ἢ μητέρα θανάτῳ τελευτάτω· 11 ὑμεῖς δὲ λέγετε, 5 Ἐὰν εἴπῃ ἄνθρωπος τῷ πατρὶ ἢ τῇ μητρὶ, Κορβᾶν [a] (ὅ ἐστι, δῶρον), ὃ ἐὰν ἐξ a Matt. 23. 18.
ἐμοῦ ὠφεληθῇς—12 καὶ οὐκέτι ἀφίετε αὐτὸν οὐδὲν ποιῆσαι τῷ πατρὶ αὐτοῦ ἢ τῇ μητρὶ αὐτοῦ, 13 ἀκυροῦντες τὸν λόγον τοῦ Θεοῦ τῇ παραδόσει ὑμῶν ᾗ παρ- 9 εδώκατε· καὶ παρόμοια τοιαῦτα πολλὰ ποιεῖτε. 14 Καὶ προσκαλεσάμενος πάντα 10 τὸν ὄχλον, ἔλεγεν αὐτοῖς, Ἀκούετέ μου πάντες καὶ συνίετε. 15 Οὐδέν ἐστιν 11 ἔξωθεν τοῦ ἀνθρώπου εἰσπορευόμενον εἰς αὐτὸν, ὃ δύναται αὐτὸν κοινῶσαι· ἀλλὰ τὰ ἐκπορευόμενα ἀπ' αὐτοῦ, ἐκεῖνά ἐστι τὰ κοινοῦντα τὸν ἄνθρωπον.
16 Εἴ τις ἔχει ὦτα ἀκούειν, ἀκουέτω. (ⁿ⁄₁₂) 17 Καὶ ὅτε εἰσῆλθεν εἰς οἶκον ἀπὸ 15 τοῦ ὄχλου, ἐπηρώτων αὐτὸν οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ περὶ τῆς παραβολῆς. 18 Καὶ 16 λέγει αὐτοῖς, Οὕτω καὶ ὑμεῖς ἀσύνετοί ἐστε; οὐ νοεῖτε, ὅτι πᾶν τὸ ἔξωθεν 17

---

55. τοῖς κραβάττοις] 'their beds;' i.e. the beds to which they were confined.

— ὅπου—ἐκεῖ] On this Hebraism see Vorst. p. 558. Cf. Rev. xii. 14. The ἐκεῖ is emphatic.

CH. VII. 2. κοιναῖς] Already used by LXX for Hebr. חֻלִּין (tamé), 'unclean,' 1 Macc. i. 47. 62.

3. πυγμῇ] properly, with the fist; as the LXX Version shows, Exod. xxi. 18. Isa. lviii. 4; the knuckles of one hand being applied to the palm of the other, so that by hard rubbing both may be cleansed. Cp. Kuin. who says, "πυγμὴ est prop. pugnus (Hesychius: πυγμή, ἤγουν τὸ συγκεκλεῖσθαι τοὺς δακτύλους) et in versione Alexandrinâ respondet Hebr. אֶגְרֹף v. Exod. xxi. 18. Ies. lviii. 4, atque adeo πυγμῇ propriè significat manu in pugnum contracta: illud ipsum nomen אֶגְרֹף etiam de robore, fortitudine adhibetur, et homines robusti in scriptis Rabbinorum dicuntur גִּבּוֹרֵי אֶגְרוֹף, vid. Buxtorfius Lex. Talm. p. 483, hinc πυγμῇ commodè reddi potest, fortiter, accuratè et sedulò; certè Syrus interpres vertit, ⁷ﻟﺤﻤﺎﻣﺎ quo adverbio Luc. xv. 8, expressit etiam adverbium ἐπιμελῶς. Cf. et Glassius Phil. S. p. 364."

4. ἀπὸ ἀγορᾶς] (so ἀπὸ δείπνου, Herod. i. 126) returning home from the ἀγορά, where they may have come into contact with heathens, publicans, and others, whom they regard as unclean.

— ξεστῶν] a Roman word (see ii. 4), sextariorum, ½ of the Epha, and ⅙ of the Kab. See Joseph. Ant. ix. 4. This explanation of a Jewish custom (vv. 3—5) is peculiar to St. Mark, and shows that he was not writing only for Jews: and the word ξεστὴς, with others of like origin in his gospel, suggests that he was writing specially for Romans. Cp. on ii. 4.

— χαλκίων] "Cautè dictum, nam testacea frangebantur." (Rosen.)

5. περιπατοῦσι] walk, live. The Hebr. הָלַךְ.

9. καλῶς] irony.

11. Κορβᾶν] See Matt. xxvii. 6, and xv. 5, and above, ii. 3, and Pococke, i. 251.

St. Ambrose (on Luke xviii.), applying the word to Christian times, well says, "Dicis te quod eras Parentibus collaturus, Ecclesiæ velle conferre. Non quærit donum Deus de fame parentum.

"Multi ut prædicentur ab hominibus, Ecclesiæ conferunt quæ suis auferunt; cùm misericordia à domestico progredi debeat pietatis officio. Sed ut pascendos Scriptura dicit parentes, ita propter Deum relinquendos parentes, si impediant devotæ mentis affectus."

MATT. XV.

εἰσπορευόμενον εἰς τὸν ἄνθρωπον οὐ δύναται αὐτὸν κοινῶσαι; 19 ὅτι οὐκ εἰσπορεύεται αὐτοῦ εἰς τὴν καρδίαν, ἀλλ' εἰς τὴν κοιλίαν, καὶ εἰς τὸν ἀφεδρῶνα
18 ἐκπορεύεται, καθαρίζον πάντα τὰ βρώματα. 20 Ἔλεγε δέ, Ὅτι τὸ ἐκ τοῦ 19 ἀνθρώπου ἐκπορευόμενον, ἐκεῖνο κοινοῖ τὸν ἄνθρωπον· 21 ἔσωθεν γὰρ, ἐκ τῆς καρδίας τῶν ἀνθρώπων, οἱ διαλογισμοὶ οἱ κακοὶ ἐκπορεύονται, μοιχεῖαι, πορ-νεῖαι, φόνοι, 22 κλοπαὶ, πλεονεξίαι, πονηρίαι, δόλος, ἀσέλγεια, ὀφθαλμὸς 20 πονηρὸς, βλασφημία, ὑπερηφανία, ἀφροσύνη· 23 πάντα ταῦτα τὰ πονηρὰ ἔσωθεν ἐκπορεύεται, καὶ κοινοῖ τὸν ἄνθρωπον.

21 24 Καὶ ἐκεῖθεν ἀναστὰς ἀπῆλθεν εἰς τὰ μεθόρια Τύρου καὶ Σιδῶνος· καὶ εἰσελθὼν εἰς οἰκίαν, οὐδένα ἤθελε γνῶναι, καὶ οὐκ ἠδυνήθη λαθεῖν. 25 Ἀκού-σασα γὰρ γυνὴ περὶ αὐτοῦ, ἧς εἶχε τὸ θυγάτριον αὐτῆς πνεῦμα ἀκάθαρτον, 22 ἐλθοῦσα προσέπεσε πρὸς τοὺς πόδας αὐτοῦ· (73/VI) 26 ἦν δὲ ἡ γυνὴ Ἑλληνὶς, Συροφοινίκισσα τῷ γένει· καὶ ἠρώτα αὐτὸν ἵνα τὸ δαιμόνιον ἐκβάλῃ ἐκ τῆς
26 θυγατρὸς αὐτῆς. 27 Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτῇ, Ἄφες πρῶτον χορτασθῆναι τὰ τέκνα, οὐ γὰρ καλόν ἐστι λαβεῖν τὸν ἄρτον τῶν τέκνων, καὶ βαλεῖν τοῖς
27 κυναρίοις. 28 Ἡ δὲ ἀπεκρίθη καὶ λέγει αὐτῷ, Ναὶ, Κύριε, καὶ γὰρ τὰ κυνάρια
28 ὑποκάτω τῆς τραπέζης ἐσθίει ἀπὸ τῶν ψιχίων τῶν παιδίων. 29 Καὶ εἶπεν αὐτῇ, Διὰ τοῦτον τὸν λόγον ὕπαγε· ἐξελήλυθε τὸ δαιμόνιον ἐκ τῆς θυγατρός σου.
30 Καὶ ἀπελθοῦσα εἰς τὸν οἶκον αὐτῆς εὗρε τὸ δαιμόνιον ἐξεληλυθὸς, καὶ τὴν θυγατέρα βεβλημένην ἐπὶ τῆς κλίνης.

(74/X) 31 Καὶ πάλιν ἐξελθὼν ἐκ τῶν ὁρίων Τύρου καὶ Σιδῶνος ἦλθε πρὸς τὴν 29 θάλασσαν τῆς Γαλιλαίας, ἀνὰ μέσον τῶν ὁρίων Δεκαπόλεως. 32 Καὶ φέρουσιν αὐτῷ κωφὸν μογιλάλον, καὶ παρακαλοῦσιν αὐτὸν ἵνα ἐπιθῇ αὐτῷ τὴν χεῖρα.
33 Καὶ ἀπολαβόμενος αὐτὸν ἀπὸ τοῦ ὄχλου κατ' ἰδίαν, ἔβαλε τοὺς δακτύλους αὐτοῦ εἰς τὰ ὦτα αὐτοῦ, καὶ πτύσας ἥψατο τῆς γλώσσης αὐτοῦ, 34 καὶ ἀνα-βλέψας εἰς τὸν οὐρανὸν ἐστέναξε καὶ λέγει αὐτῷ, Ἐφφαθὰ, ὅ ἐστι διανοίχθητι. 35 Καὶ εὐθέως διηνοίχθησαν αὐτοῦ αἱ ἀκοαὶ, καὶ ἐλύθη ὁ δεσμὸς τῆς b ch. 5. 43. γλώσσης αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἐλάλει ὀρθῶς. (75/VIII) 36 Καὶ διεστείλατο [b] αὐτοῖς ἵνα μηδενὶ εἴπωσιν· ὅσον δὲ αὐτὸς διεστέλλετο, μᾶλλον περισσότερον ἐκήρυσσον· 37 καὶ ὑπερπερισσῶς ἐξεπλήσσοντο λέγοντες, Καλῶς πάντα πεποίηκε· καὶ τοὺς κωφοὺς ποιεῖ ἀκούειν, καὶ τοὺς ἀλάλους λαλεῖν.

VIII. (76/VI) 1 Ἐν ἐκείναις ταῖς ἡμέραις, παμπόλλου ὄχλου ὄντος, καὶ μὴ ἐχόντων τί φάγωσι, προσκαλεσάμενος τοὺς μαθητὰς αὐτοῦ λέγει αὐτοῖς, 32 2 Σπλαγχνίζομαι ἐπὶ τὸν ὄχλον, ὅτι ἤδη ἡμέραι τρεῖς προσμένουσί μοι καὶ οὐκ ἔχουσι τί φάγωσι· 3 καὶ ἐὰν ἀπολύσω αὐτοὺς νήστεις εἰς οἶκον αὐτῶν, 33 ἐκλυθήσονται ἐν τῇ ὁδῷ, τινὲς γὰρ αὐτῶν μακρόθεν ἥκουσι. 4 Καὶ ἀπεκρί-θησαν αὐτῷ οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ, Πόθεν τούτους δυνήσεταί τις ὧδε χορτάσαι 34 ἄρτων ἐπ' ἐρημίας; 5 Καὶ ἐπηρώτα αὐτούς, Πόσους ἔχετε ἄρτους; οἱ δὲ εἶπον,

---

19. καθαρίζον π. τ. βρώματα] Some (e. g. Kuin.) interpret this, as equivalent to ὃ καθαρίζει, "id quod purgat." Cp. 2 Tim. ii. 14. Others (e. g. Meyer) read καθαρίζων, and connect it with ἀφεδρῶν. But it seems rather to mean, "exitu suo puras relinquens omnes escas" (cp. Bede, à Lapide). Every thing that cometh in from without defecates and clarifies itself in its passage εἰς τὸν ἀφεδρῶνα, and so leaves pure πάντα τὰ βρώματα, i. e. every thing that is converted by man into food, and enters into his system.

21. πορνεῖαι] See Rom. i. 29.

24. μεθόρια] the confines: he does not seem to have crossed the border.

25. ἧς—αὐτῆς] On this Hebraism, see Acts xv. 17.

26. Ἑλληνίς] St. Matthew calls her Χαναναία (xv. 22), to show his Jewish readers that the mercies of the Gospel were for those whom their forefathers had extirpated. St. Mark calls her Ἑλληνίς, a Syrophœnician, of Tyre, to assure his Gentile readers that Christ offers salvation to them, and to every nation of the world.

— Συροφοινίκισσα] Φοινίκισσα from φοινίκη, and Συροφ., as distinguished from the Libyan Phœnicians, of Carthage, better known to the Romans, and colonists from the Phœnicians of Syria, in the mother cities of Tyre and Sidon, whence Horat. ii. 2. 11, "uterque Pœnus serviat uni."

32—37.] This miracle, so graphically described, is recorded by St. Mark alone (see viii. 22).

34. Ἐφφαθά] "Imperativus conjugationis Ethpael, ܐܬܦܬܚ, ethphathah, ἐθφαθὰ, litera ס, cum Græcè scribatur, in φ mutata, à verbo ܦܬܚ aperuit." Hebr. פָּתַח (pathah), whence Latin pateo. See above, ii. 3, and cf. Isa. xxxv. 5, and Vorst. de Hebr. p. 699.

CH. VIII. 1—9. ἐν ἐκείναις] See Matt. xv. 32—38.

— παμπόλλου] Some MSS. and Edd. have πάλιν πολλοῦ. But it is less likely that such a simple expression as πάλιν πολλοῦ should have been altered by Copyists into παμπόλλου than vice versâ. On the confusion of παμ, and παλι, see Porson, Eurip. Hec. 1169.

2. ἡμέραι τρεῖς—μοι] literally, 'there are now three days to them remaining (dat. plur. part.) with Me, and not having any thing to eat.' See Matt. xv. 32. Acts xxiv. 11, οὐ πλείους εἰσί μοι ἡμέραι ἢ δεκαδύο, and cp. Matth. G. G. § 390. Soph. Philoct. 354, ἦν δ' ἦμαρ ἤδη δεύτερον πλέοντί μοι.

MATT. LUKE.

Ἑπτά. 6 Καὶ παρήγγειλε τῷ ὄχλῳ ἀναπεσεῖν ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς· καὶ λαβὼν τοὺς ἑπτὰ ἄρτους εὐχαριστήσας ἔκλασε, καὶ ἐδίδου τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ ἵνα παραθῶσι· καὶ παρέθηκαν τῷ ὄχλῳ. 7 Καὶ εἶχον ἰχθύδια ὀλίγα· καὶ εὐλογήσας εἶπε παραθεῖναι καὶ αὐτά. 8 Ἔφαγον δὲ καὶ ἐχορτάσθησαν· καὶ ἦραν περισσεύματα κλασμάτων ἑπτὰ σπυρίδας. 9 Ἦσαν δὲ οἱ φαγόντες ὡς τετρακισχίλιοι· καὶ ἀπέλυσεν αὐτούς.

10 Καὶ εὐθέως ἐμβὰς εἰς τὸ πλοῖον μετὰ τῶν μαθητῶν αὐτοῦ, ἦλθεν εἰς τὰ μέρη Δαλμανουθά. (77/IV) 11 Καὶ ἐξῆλθον οἱ Φαρισαῖοι, καὶ ἤρξαντο συζητεῖν αὐτῷ, ζητοῦντες παρ' αὐτοῦ σημεῖον ἀπὸ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ πειράζοντες αὐτόν. (78/VI) 12 Καὶ ἀναστενάξας τῷ πνεύματι αὐτοῦ λέγει, Τί ἡ γενεὰ αὕτη σημεῖον ἐπιζητεῖ; Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, εἰ δοθήσεται τῇ γενεᾷ ταύτῃ σημεῖον. 13 Καὶ ἀφεὶς αὐτοὺς ἐμβὰς πάλιν εἰς τὸ πλοῖον, ἀπῆλθεν εἰς τὸ πέραν.

14 Καὶ ἐπελάθοντο λαβεῖν ἄρτους· καὶ εἰ μὴ ἕνα ἄρτον οὐκ εἶχον μεθ' ἑαυτῶν ἐν τῷ πλοίῳ. (79/II) 15 Καὶ διεστέλλετο αὐτοῖς λέγων, Ὁρᾶτε, βλέπετε ἀπὸ τῆς ζύμης τῶν Φαρισαίων, καὶ τῆς ζύμης Ἡρώδου. (80/VI) 16 Καὶ διελογίζοντο πρὸς ἀλλήλους λέγοντες, Ὅτι ἄρτους οὐκ ἔχομεν. 17 Καὶ γνοὺς ὁ Ἰησοῦς λέγει αὐτοῖς, Τί διαλογίζεσθε ὅτι ἄρτους οὐκ ἔχετε; Οὔπω νοεῖτε οὐδὲ συνίετε; ἔτι πεπωρωμένην [a] ἔχετε τὴν καρδίαν ὑμῶν; 18 ὀφθαλμοὺς ἔχοντες οὐ βλέπετε, καὶ ὦτα ἔχοντες οὐκ ἀκούετε, καὶ οὐ μνημονεύετε; 19 ὅτε τοὺς πέντε ἄρτους ἔκλασα εἰς τοὺς πεντακισχιλίους, πόσους κοφίνους πλήρεις κλασμάτων ἤρατε; Λέγουσιν αὐτῷ, Δώδεκα. 20 Ὅτε δὲ τοὺς ἑπτὰ εἰς τοὺς τετρακισχιλίους, πόσων σπυρίδων πληρώματα κλασμάτων ἤρατε; Οἱ δὲ εἶπον, Ἑπτά. 21 Καὶ ἔλεγεν αὐτοῖς, Πῶς οὐ συνίετε;

(81/X) 22 Καὶ ἔρχεται εἰς Βηθσαϊδάν· καὶ φέρουσιν αὐτῷ τυφλὸν, καὶ παρακαλοῦσιν αὐτὸν ἵνα αὐτοῦ ἅψηται. 23 Καὶ ἐπιλαβόμενος τῆς χειρὸς τοῦ τυφλοῦ ἐξήγαγεν αὐτὸν ἔξω τῆς κώμης, καὶ πτύσας εἰς τὰ ὄμματα αὐτοῦ, ἐπιθεὶς τὰς χεῖρας αὐτῷ, ἐπηρώτα αὐτὸν εἴ τι βλέπει; 24 καὶ ἀναβλέψας ἔλεγε, Βλέπω τοὺς ἀνθρώπους, ὅτι ὡς δένδρα ὁρῶ, περιπατοῦντας. 25 Εἶτα πάλιν ἐπέθηκε τὰς χεῖρας ἐπὶ τοὺς ὀφθαλμοὺς αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἐποίησεν αὐτὸν ἀναβλέψαι· καὶ ἀποκατεστάθη καὶ ἐνέβλεψε τηλαυγῶς ἅπαντα. 26 Καὶ ἀπέστειλεν αὐτὸν εἰς οἶκον αὐτοῦ, λέγων, Μηδὲ εἰς τὴν κώμην εἰσέλθῃς, μηδὲ εἴπῃς τινὶ ἐν τῇ κώμῃ.

(82/I) 27 Καὶ ἐξῆλθεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς καὶ οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ εἰς τὰς κώμας Καισαρείας τῆς Φιλίππου· καὶ ἐν τῇ ὁδῷ ἐπηρώτα τοὺς μαθητὰς αὐτοῦ, λέγων αὐτοῖς, Τίνα μὲ λέγουσιν οἱ ἄνθρωποι εἶναι; 28 Οἱ δὲ ἀπεκρίθησαν, Ἰωάννην τὸν βαπτιστὴν, καὶ ἄλλοι Ἠλίαν, ἄλλοι δὲ ἕνα τῶν προφητῶν. 29 Καὶ αὐτὸς λέγει αὐτοῖς, Ὑμεῖς δὲ τίνα μὲ λέγετε εἶναι; Ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ ὁ Πέτρος λέγει αὐτῷ, Σὺ εἶ ὁ Χριστός.

MATT. XV. 35 36 37 38 39 — XVI. 1 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 — 13 14 15 — LUKE IX. 36 37 38 39 — 1 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 — 12 13 14 15 18 19 20

[a] ch. 6. 52.

---

6. ἐδίδου] See on vi. 41.

8. σπυρίδας] made of rushes and palm leaves. (Bede.)

10. μέρη Δαλμανουθά] See Matt. xv. 39. ὅρια Μαγδαλά. St. Mark adds therefore to St. Matthew's narrative, to show his independent knowledge of the fact. The conversation took place in the confines of Magdala, toward Dalmanutha. In Matt. xv. 21 we have μέρη Τύρου κ. Σ. In Mark vii. 24, μεθόρια Τ. κ. Σ.

12. ἐπιζητεῖ] seeks a sign in addition to those given it.

— εἰ δοθήσεται] si Hebr. אִם (im), si; often used as a strong negation—'ne vivam si.' See Gen. xxi. 23; xxiv. 37. Deut. i. 34. Isa. xiv. 24. 1 Kings i. 51, and is interpreted 'not' in the Syriac Version.

22—26. καὶ ἔρχεται] This miracle so minutely described is recorded by St. Mark alone. See vii. 32.

— Βηθσαϊδάν] Supposed by many to be the northern Bethsaida, or Julias, concerning which see on Matt. xiv. 13. Luke ix. 10.

24. βλέπω τοὺς ἀ., ὁ. ὡ. δ. ὁ., περιπατοῦντας] An abrupt expression, or rather three sentences, suitable to the case, in which new powers of vision suddenly succeeded; and characteristic of St. Mark's literal accuracy, cf. v. 23. I see men. I see them standing still, and dimly, as trees. I now see them walking.

The reason why our Lord worked this cure by degrees seems to be, that He thus brought forth from the man's own lips, for the benefit of the readers of the Gospel, words showing the process of the cure from darkness to glimmering light, and thence to perfect vision.

26. μηδὲ εἰς τ. κώμην] Our Lord had led the blind man out of Bethsaida to heal him, and tells him not to enter the village after he is healed, in order to warn us, that if men will not attend to the evidence of the Gospel, and use the means of grace proffered to them, those blessings slighted by them will be withdrawn from them. If this miracle was wrought near the western Bethsaida, then cp. Matt. xi. 21.

27. μέ] emphatic, and so placed.

29. σὺ εἶ ὁ Χριστός] It has been already observed on Matt. xvi. 18, that St. Mark, the disciple of St. Peter (1 Pet. v. 13, ἑρμηνευτὴς Πέτρου. Euseb. iii. 39; v. 8), does not record our Lord's words in reply to St. Peter.

The Divines of Rome in interpreting these words, Σὺ εἶ Πέτρος, καὶ ἐπὶ ταύτῃ τῇ πέτρᾳ οἰκοδομήσω μοῦ τὴν ἐκκλησίαν, build much on the supposition that our Lord, speaking in the Syro-chaldaic tongue, used the same word כֵּיפָא (Cepha) for Πέτρος and πέτρα.

This supposition is improbable.

If our Lord had used the same word, it is unlikely that the Holy Ghost would have used two different words, as He does in reciting our Lord's reply, Matt. xvi. 18.

It is remarkable that St. Matthew does use a Syro-chaldaic word, בַּר, βάρ, in the verse immediately preceding—βὰρ Ἰωνᾶ. Why then did he not go on to write, Σὺ εἶ Κηφᾶ, καὶ ἐπὶ τούτῳ τῷ Κήφᾳ ο. μ. τ. ἐ.? He ought to have done so,—with reverence be it said,—if our Lord used the same word in both members of the sentence, and if so much is to be grounded on this supposed use of the same word, as

MATT. XVI. 20 | LUKE. IX. 21

(88/II) 30 Καὶ ἐπετίμησεν αὐτοῖς ἵνα μηδενὶ λέγωσι περὶ αὐτοῦ. 31 Καὶ ἤρξατο διδάσκειν αὐτοὺς ὅτι δεῖ τὸν Υἱὸν τοῦ ἀνθρώπου πολλὰ παθεῖν, καὶ ἀποδοκιμασθῆναι
21 | 22 ἀπὸ τῶν πρεσβυτέρων καὶ τῶν ἀρχιερέων καὶ τῶν γραμματέων, καὶ ἀποκτανθῆναι· καὶ μετὰ τρεῖς ἡμέρας ἀναστῆναι· (84/VI) 32 καὶ παῤῥησίᾳ τὸν λόγον
23 ἐλάλει. Καὶ προσλαβόμενος αὐτὸν ὁ Πέτρος ἤρξατο ἐπιτιμᾶν αὐτῷ. 33 Ὁ δὲ ἐπιστραφεὶς καὶ ἰδὼν τοὺς μαθητὰς αὐτοῦ ἐπετίμησε τῷ Πέτρῳ λέγων, Ὕπαγε ὀπίσω μου, σατανᾶ, ὅτι οὐ φρονεῖς τὰ τοῦ Θεοῦ, ἀλλὰ τὰ τῶν ἀνθρώπων.
24 (85/II) 34 Καὶ προσκαλεσάμενος τὸν ὄχλον σὺν τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, 23 Ὅστις θέλει ὀπίσω μου ἀκολουθεῖν ἀπαρνησάσθω ἑαυτὸν, καὶ ἀράτω τὸν σταυ-
25 | 24 ρὸν αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἀκολουθείτω μοι· 35 ὃς [b] γὰρ ἂν θέλῃ τὴν ψυχὴν αὐτοῦ σῶσαι,
[b] John 12. 25. ἀπολέσει αὐτήν· ὃς δ' ἂν ἀπολέσῃ τὴν ἑαυτοῦ ψυχὴν ἕνεκεν ἐμοῦ καὶ τοῦ εὐαγγε-
26 | 25 λίου, σώσει αὐτήν· 36 τί γὰρ ὠφελήσει ἄνθρωπον, ἐὰν κερδήσῃ τὸν κόσμον ὅλον, καὶ ζημιωθῇ τὴν ψυχὴν αὐτοῦ; 37 ἢ τί δώσει ἄνθρωπος ἀντάλλαγμα τῆς
26 ψυχῆς αὐτοῦ; (86/II) 38 Ὃς γὰρ ἂν ἐπαισχυνθῇ με καὶ τοὺς ἐμοὺς λόγους ἐν τῇ γενεᾷ ταύτῃ τῇ μοιχαλίδι καὶ ἁμαρτωλῷ, καὶ ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἐπαισχυνθήσεται αὐτὸν, ὅταν ἔλθῃ ἐν τῇ δόξῃ τοῦ Πατρὸς αὐτοῦ μετὰ τῶν ἀγγέλων τῶν
28 | 27 ἁγίων· IX. (87/II) 1 καὶ ἔλεγεν αὐτοῖς, Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι εἰσί τινες τῶν ὧδε ἑστηκότων, οἵτινες οὐ μὴ γεύσωνται θανάτου, ἕως ἂν ἴδωσι τὴν βασιλείαν τοῦ Θεοῦ ἐληλυθυῖαν ἐν δυνάμει.

XVII.
1 | 28 2 Καὶ μεθ' ἡμέρας ἓξ παραλαμβάνει ὁ Ἰησοῦς τὸν Πέτρον καὶ τὸν
2 Ἰάκωβον καὶ τὸν Ἰωάννην, καὶ ἀναφέρει αὐτοὺς εἰς ὄρος ὑψηλὸν κατ' ἰδίαν 29 μόνους· καὶ μετεμορφώθη ἔμπροσθεν αὐτῶν· 3 καὶ τὰ ἱμάτια αὐτοῦ ἐγένετο στίλβοντα, λευκὰ λίαν ὡς χιὼν, οἷα γναφεὺς ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς οὐ δύναται λευκᾶναι.
3 | 30 4 Καὶ ὤφθη αὐτοῖς Ἠλίας σὺν Μωϋσεῖ· καὶ ἦσαν συλλαλοῦντες τῷ Ἰησοῦ.
4 | 33 5 Καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς ὁ Πέτρος λέγει τῷ Ἰησοῦ, Ῥαββὶ, καλόν ἐστιν ἡμᾶς ὧδε εἶναι· καὶ ποιήσωμεν σκηνὰς τρεῖς, σοὶ μίαν, καὶ Μωϋσεῖ μίαν, καὶ Ἠλίᾳ μίαν· 6 οὐ
5 | 34 γὰρ ᾔδει τί λαλήσῃ, ἦσαν γὰρ ἔκφοβοι. 7 Καὶ ἐγένετο νεφέλη ἐπισκιάζουσα
35 αὐτοῖς, καὶ ἦλθε φωνὴ ἐκ τῆς νεφέλης, Οὗτός ἐστιν ὁ Υἱός μου ὁ ἀγαπητὸς,
8 | 36 αὐτοῦ ἀκούετε. 8 Καὶ ἐξάπινα περιβλεψάμενοι οὐκέτι οὐδένα εἶδον ἀλλὰ τὸν
9 Ἰησοῦν μόνον μεθ' ἑαυτῶν. 9 Καταβαινόντων δὲ αὐτῶν ἀπὸ τοῦ ὄρους, διεστείλατο αὐτοῖς ἵνα μηδενὶ διηγήσωνται ἃ εἶδον, εἰ μὴ ὅταν ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἐκ νεκρῶν ἀναστῇ. (88/X) 10 Καὶ τὸν λόγον ἐκράτησαν, πρὸς ἑαυτοὺς συζη-
10 τοῦντες τί ἐστι τὸ ἐκ νεκρῶν ἀναστῆναι. (89/VI) 11 Καὶ ἐπηρώτων αὐτὸν λέγοντες, Ὅτι λέγουσιν οἱ Γραμματεῖς ὅτι Ἠλίαν δεῖ ἐλθεῖν πρῶτον; 12 ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς 11 εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Ἠλίας μὲν ἐλθὼν πρῶτον ἀποκαθιστᾷ πάντα, καὶ πῶς γέγραπται

---

the Divines of Rome build from it, making it almost the principal among the fundamental doctrines of Christianity.

St. Mark, the disciple of St. Peter, as we have seen, is wont to introduce Syro-chaldaic words into his Gospel (see above, ii. 3), he uses four such words in this and the preceding Chapter; and he specially notices that two of St. Peter's brother Apostles were called Βοανηργὲς (a Syro-chaldaic name), and explains what it means (iii. 17). If therefore any additional light was to be derived concerning so important a matter as the relation of his master, the Apostle St. Peter, to the other Apostles and the Church at large, he would have introduced here a Syro-chaldaic word. And since he has not done so, we have additional proof from St. Mark's silence that St. Matthew's divinely inspired Greek[1] gives a true and full representation of our Lord's words to St. Peter.

It is observable that St. Mark, and he alone, records our Lord's saying to the Twelve when they afterwards argued among themselves who of them should be greatest; which they were not very likely to have done if our Lord had already settled that matter by making St. Peter to be supreme. "If any one desires to be first, he shall be last of all" (Mark ix. 34, 35).

31. καὶ ἤρξατο] See Matt. xvi. 21.

33. ὕπαγε—σατανᾶ] Observe what it is to be ashamed of the cross of Christ. "Get thee behind Me, Satan," says our Lord to St. Peter. St. Mark, the disciple of St. Peter, carefully records what tells to the disadvantage of Peter—a proof of his veracity, and of St. Peter's humility. Cp. Chrys. on Matt. xvii. 27, and the remarkable passages in Euseb. Theophan. (ed. Lee), pp. 220. 324, 325.

34. καὶ προσκαλεσάμενος] See Matt. xvi. 24.

CH. IX. 1. ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν] See on Matt. xvi. 28.

11. ὅ τι] = διότι, why. So used by LXX (Gen. xii. 18) for מַדּוּעַ, τί τοῦτο ἐποίησας; (See v. 28.)

— Ἠλίαν] Matt. xvii. 10.

12. ἀποκαθιστᾷ] "præsens indefinitum, ut Matt. ii. 4," Bengel, is not only the restorer,—but completes, consummates, brings up to the state designed by God according to His promise and ancient prophecy. See on Acts i. 6.

— καὶ πῶς] πῶς for ὅπως, how, as often in St. Mark. See ii. 26; v. 16; xi. 18; xii. 41; xiv. 1. 11; and so used by LXX, Deut. ii. 7, διάγνωθι πῶς διῆλθες. The πῶς here depends on εἶπεν: "He declared to them how it is written." The sense is as follows:

The three disciples are in doubt,—How can Jesus be the Christ? For it is the received opinion of the Jews, that before the Coming of [1] I have said "divinely inspired Greek;"—and let me record here a persuasion, that the more attentively the Scriptures are studied, the deeper will become the conviction that the writers of Scripture have been preserved from all error in the use of language, as well as in the substance of what they wrote; and that they have been guided by the Holy Ghost to employ words that would best express the truths which He revealed or recalled to their minds. In the words of Hooker (II. viii. 6), "The Scripture, yea, every sentence thereof, is perfect, and wanteth nothing that is requisite for that purpose for which God hath delivered the same." Cp. his Sermon v. 4.

---

ἐπὶ τὸν Υἱὸν τοῦ ἀνθρώπου, ἵνα πολλὰ πάθῃ καὶ ἐξουδενωθῇ· 13 ἀλλὰ λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι καὶ Ἠλίας ἐλήλυθε, καὶ ἐποίησαν αὐτῷ ὅσα ἠθέλησαν, καθὼς γέγραπται ἐπ' αὐτόν. MATT. XVII. 12 LUKE IX.

(90/X) 14 Καὶ ἐλθὼν πρὸς τοὺς μαθητὰς εἶδεν ὄχλον πολὺν περὶ αὐτοὺς, καὶ γραμματεῖς συζητοῦντας αὐτοῖς. 15 Καὶ εὐθέως πᾶς ὁ ὄχλος ἰδὼν αὐτὸν ἐξεθαμβήθη, καὶ προστρέχοντες ἠσπάζοντο αὐτόν. 16 Καὶ ἐπηρώτησε τοὺς γραμματεῖς, Τί συζητεῖτε πρὸς αὐτούς; (91/II) 17 Καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς εἷς ἐκ τοῦ ὄχλου εἶπε, Διδάσκαλε, ἤνεγκα τὸν υἱόν μου πρός σε, ἔχοντα πνεῦμα ἄλαλον· 18 καὶ ὅπου ἂν αὐτὸν καταλάβῃ, ῥήσσει αὐτὸν, καὶ ἀφρίζει, καὶ τρίζει τοὺς ὀδόντας αὐτοῦ, καὶ ξηραίνεται· καὶ εἶπον τοῖς μαθηταῖς σου ἵνα αὐτὸ ἐκβάλωσι, καὶ οὐκ ἴσχυσαν. 19 Ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς αὐτοῖς λέγει, Ὦ γενεὰ ἄπιστος, ἕως πότε πρὸς ὑμᾶς ἔσομαι, ἕως πότε ἀνέξομαι ὑμῶν; φέρετε αὐτὸν πρὸς μέ· 20 καὶ ἤνεγκαν αὐτὸν πρὸς αὐτόν· καὶ ἰδὼν αὐτὸν εὐθέως τὸ πνεῦμα ἐσπάραξεν αὐτὸν, καὶ πεσὼν ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς ἐκυλίετο ἀφρίζων. 21 Καὶ ἐπηρώτησε τὸν πατέρα αὐτοῦ, Πόσος χρόνος ἐστὶν, ὡς τοῦτο γέγονεν αὐτῷ; Ὁ δὲ εἶπε, ἐκ παιδιόθεν· 22 καὶ πολλάκις αὐτὸν καὶ εἰς πῦρ ἔβαλε καὶ εἰς ὕδατα ἵνα ἀπολέσῃ αὐτόν· ἀλλ' εἴ τι δύνασαι βοήθησον ἡμῖν σπλαγχνισθεὶς ἐφ' ἡμᾶς. 23 Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτῷ τὸ, Εἰ δύνασαι πιστεῦσαι πάντα δυνατὰ τῷ πιστεύοντι· 24 καὶ εὐθέως κράξας ὁ πατὴρ τοῦ παιδίου μετὰ δακρύων ἔλεγε, Πιστεύω Κύριε βοήθει μοῦ τῇ ἀπιστίᾳ. 25 Ἰδὼν δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς ὅτι ἐπισυντρέχει ὄχλος, ἐπετίμησε τῷ πνεύματι τῷ ἀκαθάρτῳ, λέγων αὐτῷ, Τὸ πνεῦμα τὸ ἄλαλον καὶ κωφὸν, ἐγὼ σοὶ ἐπιτάσσω, ἔξελθε ἐξ αὐτοῦ, καὶ μηκέτι εἰσέλθῃς εἰς αὐτόν. 26 Καὶ κράξας καὶ πολλὰ σπαράξας αὐτὸν ἐξῆλθε· καὶ ἐγένετο ὡσεὶ νεκρός, ὥστε πολλοὺς λέγειν ὅτι ἀπέθανεν· 27 ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς κρατήσας αὐτὸν τῆς χειρὸς ἤγειρεν αὐτόν· καὶ ἀνέστη. (92/X) 28 Καὶ εἰσελθόντα αὐτὸν εἰς οἶκον οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ ἐπηρώτων αὐτὸν κατ' ἰδίαν, Ὅ τι ἡμεῖς οὐκ ἠδυνήθημεν ἐκβαλεῖν αὐτό; 29 καὶ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Τοῦτο τὸ γένος ἐν οὐδενὶ δύναται ἐξελθεῖν, εἰ μὴ ἐν προσευχῇ καὶ νηστείᾳ.

(93/II) 30 Καὶ ἐκεῖθεν ἐξελθόντες παρεπορεύοντο διὰ τῆς Γαλιλαίας, καὶ οὐκ ἤθελεν ἵνα τὶς γνῷ· 31 ἐδίδασκε γὰρ τοὺς μαθητὰς αὐτοῦ καὶ ἔλεγεν αὐτοῖς, Ὅτι ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου παραδίδοται εἰς χεῖρας ἀνθρώπων, καὶ ἀποκτενοῦσιν αὐτὸν, καὶ ἀποκτανθεὶς τῇ τρίτῃ ἡμέρᾳ ἀναστήσεται. 32 Οἱ δὲ ἠγνόουν τὸ ῥῆμα, καὶ ἐφοβοῦντο αὐτὸν ἐπερωτῆσαι.

(94/X) 33 Καὶ ἦλθεν εἰς Καφαρναούμ· καὶ ἐν τῇ οἰκίᾳ γενόμενος ἐπηρώτα αὐτοὺς, Τί ἐν τῇ ὁδῷ πρὸς ἑαυτοὺς διελογίζεσθε; (95/II) 34 Οἱ δὲ ἐσιώπων· πρὸς

Christ Elias shall appear. If Thou art the Messiah, how is it that "the Scribes say that Elias must first come?" We have just seen him in the Transfiguration; but he is not yet come into the world; and since he who is to be the forerunner of the Messiah is not yet come, how can it be said that the Messiah, whom he is to precede, is come? How is it that the Scribes have not acknowledged that either the one or the other is come?

Our Lord's reply is,—The Precursor is come. He has fulfilled the office of Elias in turning the hearts of the fathers to the children. See Luke i. 16, 17, from Malachi iv. 5, where, it is to be observed, the LXX have ἀποκαταστήσει,—the word here used by Christ.

He is come—and the Scribes have not known, have not recognized him; and what is more, Holy Scripture bears witness, that they will not know Him whose way the Elias of the Gospel has come to prepare; they will not acknowledge Christ. As is foretold in Scripture, He will be rejected and suffer many things at their hands.

Do not therefore be perplexed. Elias is come. Christ is come. The Scribes say true when they assert that Elias must precede Christ. But they have not known the Coming of Elias. And they do not know the Coming of Christ. Do not be surprised at this. It has been predicted by the Holy Ghost. In not knowing Elias and Christ, they prove the Coming of those whom they reject; for that rejection is prophesied in the Scriptures, which the Scribes have in their hands.

13. καὶ] Elias also is come, and they have done to him what they listed—and so will it be with Christ, Who is come likewise.

— καθὼς γέγραπται] i. e. in the Scriptural records of the persecutions endured by Elijah it is virtually prophesied that his antitype the Baptist, who came in his power and spirit, would suffer in like manner.

15. ἰδὼν αὐτὸν ἐξεθαμβήθη] Perhaps from some remains of the Divine Glory of the Transfiguration on His countenance; as the Israelites were dazzled by the appearance of Moses when He came down from the holy mount (Exod. xxxiv. 29, 30. 2 Cor. iii. 7. 13). See further below on x. 32.

17. διδάσκαλε] This miracle (17—27) is described much more fully and minutely by St. Mark than by any other Evangelist. See ii. 3.

20. ἰδὼν αὐτὸν—τὸ πνεῦμα] The masculine participle with the neuter noun (πνεῦμα) indicates more forcibly the personal vitality and agency of the Spirit, and refutes the notion that these evil spirits were mere qualities, or influences, or diseases. See above, v. 4—10, and below, ix. 26, and Luke viii. 33. For another use of this combination, see Matt. xxvii. 52, 53, σώματα ἐξελθόντες.

23. εἶπεν αὐτῷ τό] 'He said to him this.' The τό is used by the Evangelist to mark more emphatically the reply of our Blessed Lord,—probably His very words. Τό is used in this way Matt. xix. 18, ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπε τό, οὐ φονεύσεις. See Gal. v. 14, ὁ πᾶς νόμος πεπλήρωται ἐν τῷ, ἀγαπήσεις τὸν πλ. σου. Luke i. 62, ἐνένευον τῷ πατρὶ αὐτοῦ τό, τί ἂν θέλοι καλεῖσθαι αὐτόν. ix. 46, εἰσῆλθε διαλογισμὸς τό, τίς ἂν εἴη μείζων. See also xxii. 2. 4. 23.

24. βοήθει μοῦ τῇ ἀπιστίᾳ] Much more pathetic and expressive than β. τ. ἀ. μου. Cp. Matt. xvi. 18.

26. κράξας—σπαράξας] So B, D, L, Δ, and other MSS., and Griesb., Lach., Tisch., Alf., for Elz. κράξαν—σπαράξαν. On the sense implied in the masculine participle, rendered more emphatic, and marked more strongly, by its combination with a neuter noun, see above on v. 20.

MATT. LUKE.

ἀλλήλους γὰρ διελέχθησαν ἐν τῇ ὁδῷ, τίς μείζων; 35 Καὶ καθίσας ἐφώνησε XVIII. IX. τοὺς δώδεκα, καὶ λέγει αὐτοῖς, Εἴ τις θέλει πρῶτος εἶναι, ἔσται πάντων ἔσχατος
2 47 καὶ πάντων διάκονος. 36 Καὶ λαβὼν παιδίον, ἔστησεν αὐτὸ ἐν μέσῳ αὐτῶν, 5 48 καὶ ἐναγκαλισάμενος αὐτὸ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, (96/I) 37 Ὃς ἐὰν ἓν τῶν τοιούτων παιδίων δέξηται ἐπὶ τῷ ὀνόματί μου ἐμὲ δέχεται· καὶ ὃς ἐὰν ἐμὲ δέξηται, οὐκ ἐμὲ δέχεται, ἀλλὰ τὸν ἀποστείλαντά με.

49 (97/VIII) 38 Ἀπεκρίθη δὲ αὐτῷ Ἰωάννης λέγων, Διδάσκαλε, εἴδομέν τινα ἐν τῷ ὀνόματί σου ἐκβάλλοντα δαιμόνια, ὃς οὐκ ἀκολουθεῖ ἡμῖν, καὶ ἐκωλύσαμεν 50 αὐτὸν ὅτι οὐκ ἀκολουθεῖ ἡμῖν. 39 Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς εἶπε, Μὴ κωλύετε αὐτὸν, οὐδεὶς γάρ ἐστιν ὃς ποιήσει δύναμιν ἐπὶ τῷ ὀνόματί μου, καὶ δυνήσεται ταχὺ κακολογῆσαί με. 40 Ὃς γὰρ οὐκ ἔστι καθ' ἡμῶν ὑπὲρ ἡμῶν ἐστιν. (98/VI) 41 Ὃς γὰρ ἂν ποτίσῃ ὑμᾶς ποτήριον ὕδατος ἐν ὀνόματί μου, ὅτι Χριστοῦ ἐστε, ἀμὴν 6 λέγω ὑμῖν οὐ μὴ ἀπολέσῃ τὸν μισθὸν αὐτοῦ. (99/II) 42 Καὶ ὃς ἂν σκανδαλίσῃ ἕνα τῶν μικρῶν τῶν πιστευόντων εἰς ἐμὲ, καλόν ἐστιν αὐτῷ μᾶλλον εἰ περίκειται λίθος μυλικὸς περὶ τὸν τράχηλον αὐτοῦ, καὶ βέβληται εἰς τὴν θάλασσαν.
8 (100/VI) 43 Καὶ ἐὰν σκανδαλίζῃ σε ἡ χείρ σου, ἀπόκοψον αὐτήν· καλόν σοι ἐστὶ κυλλὸν εἰς τὴν ζωὴν εἰσελθεῖν, ἢ τὰς δύο χεῖρας ἔχοντα ἀπελθεῖν εἰς τὴν γέενναν, εἰς τὸ πῦρ τὸ ἄσβεστον. (101/X) 44 ὅπου ὁ σκώληξ αὐτῶν οὐ τελευτᾷ, καὶ τὸ πῦρ οὐ σβέννυται. 45 Καὶ ἐὰν ὁ πούς σου σκανδαλίζῃ σε, ἀπόκοψον αὐτόν· καλόν ἐστί σοι εἰσελθεῖν εἰς τὴν ζωὴν χωλὸν, ἢ τοὺς δύο πόδας ἔχοντα βληθῆναι εἰς τὴν γέενναν, εἰς τὸ πῦρ τὸ ἄσβεστον, 46 ὅπου ὁ σκώληξ αὐτῶν

---

35. εἴ τις θέλει] See above, viii. 29.

38. ἐν τῷ ὀνόματί σου] ἐν is omitted by A, E, F, G, K, M, S, V, X,—perhaps rightly.

These words are important. He was casting out Devils in and by Thy Name; not in his own name. Thus while they censure the man, they praise him; for they confess that what he did was done in Christ's Name; that is, in obedience to His will, and for the promotion of His glory. The only fault they could find was—"he followeth not us."

— ἐκωλύσαμεν] According to their own confession, they forbad the man to work miracles in Christ's Name, because he did not follow them. They do not say that they forbad his separation, but that they forbad his use of miraculous powers exercised in Christ's Name.

40. ὃς οὐκ ἔστι καθ' ἡμῶν] If a man is not against Me—as those persons are who stand neutral, and are not with Me when they ought to join Me in My warfare against Satan and sin (see Matt. xii. 30)—he is on our side; i. e. his actions tend to our benefit and honour. Luke xi. 23 (ὑπὲρ ἡμῶν).

Observe, in the one case our Lord uses the pronoun Me, in the other, us: he who is not with Me, Who am present in My Church at all times and in all places, he is against Me. But he who is not against us (as every one is who is not with Me) is on our side; he is on the side of you My Apostles as well as on Mine.

The complaint against the man was, "he followeth not us,"—us the Apostles; the complaint says nothing of following Christ. There was a spirit of envy and selfishness in this remark, which would have restrained Christ's favours to the persons of the Apostles and their immediate adherents.

But our Lord reminds the complainants, that the man wrought miracles in their Master's Name, as they themselves had owned (v. 38); i. e. he wrought miracles in conformity to Christ's will, and for the promotion of Christ's glory,—that is, in union with Christ,—and not for any private end; therefore the man was with Christ, though he did not personally follow in the company of the Apostles, just as St. John the Baptist was with Christ, though not in person; and as all the Apostles preaching the Gospel and administering the Sacraments of Christ in Christ's Name in all parts of the world were with one another and with Christ, after He had ascended into heaven.

The man was not neuter in the cause, and therefore was not against them, and their Master had authorized him openly by enabling him to work in His Name; and therefore the man was with Him, and therefore with His Apostles in heart and spirit, though not in person and presence, and was not to be forbidden or discouraged.

For ἡμῶν—ἡμῶν we find ὑμῶν—ὑμῶν in A, D, E, F, G, H, K, M, S, V, and some other MSS.; and this reading is received by Matth., Griesb., Scholz. and Luchmann,—and if it is correct, it strengthens the above remark. This man, though he does not follow you in person, yet is not against you, for he works miracles in your Master's name, and therefore in spirit is with you. See also on Luke ix. 50.

Thus our Blessed Lord delivered a warning against that sectarian spirit which is eager for its own ends rather than for Christ's; and would limit Christ's graces to personal communion with itself, instead of inquiring whether those whom it would exclude from grace are not working in Christ's Name,—that is, in obedience to His laws, and for the promotion of His glory; and in the unity of His Church, and in the full and free administration of His Word and Sacraments, and so in communion with Him.

Besides,—even if the man was separated from their communion, and worked miracles in separation (which does not appear to have been the case, for he worked in the Name of Christ); what they ought to have forbidden was the being in separation, and not the working miracles.

If a man, separated from Christ and His Church, preaches Christ, then Christ approves His own Word, preached by one in separation; but He does not approve the separation itself, any more than God approved the sins of Balaam, Saul, and Caiaphas, or Judas, when He prophesied and preached by their mouths. As St. Augustine says (de Consens. Evang. iv. 5, and elsewhere), the Church Catholic does not disapprove the Word and Sacraments in heretics and schismatics, but she condemns their heresy and schism; and she would bring them back to the unity of the Church, in order that the Sacraments and other graces, which do not profit them in schism, may begin to profit them in unity. Cp. Aug. c. Donat. iv. 24, "Salus extra Ecclesiam non est, et ideo, quæcunque ipsius Ecclesiæ habentur extra Ecclesiam, non valent ad salutem; aliud enim est habere, aliud utiliter habere;" and Tract. in Joann. vi. "Rem Columbæ (i. e. of the Church) sed præter Columbam habes" (i. e. Thou hast some privileges of the Church, but thou hast them not in unity with the Church). "Veni igitur ad Columbam, ut prodesse incipiat quod habes." So Bede here: "In hæreticis et malis Catholicis non Sacramenta Communia, in quibus nobiscum sunt et adversum nos non sunt, sed divisiones pacis veritati contrarias, quibus adversum nos sunt et Dominum non sequuntur nobiscum, detestari debemus."

41. ἐν ὀνόματί μου] These words form the connexion with what goes before. Not only do I command you not to forbid those who work miracles in My Name, for they are wrought in our behalf; but no one will do any thing, however small, in My Name,—i. e. in love and obedience to Me,—and lose his reward. (Theophyl.)

42. λίθος μυλικός] See Matt. xviii. 6. μύλος ὀνικὸς, B, C, D, L, Δ, Lach., Tisch., Alf.

44. σκώληξ] Isa. lxvi. 24, where the LXX has ὁ σκώληξ αὐτῶν οὐ τελευτήσει, καὶ τὸ πῦρ αὐτῶν οὐ σβεσθήσεται. The word σκώληξ represents the Hebr. תּוֹלַעַת (toleah), a worm (Exod. xvi. 20. Deut. xxviii. 39. Ps. xxii. 6. Jonah iv. 7), specially the worm kermes, used in dyeing tola or scarlet.

The σκώληξ, as applied to the torments of Gehenna, is described by the Christian Fathers as ἀπαύστῳ ὀδύνῃ ἐκ σώματος ἐκβρασσων, Hippolyt. (de universo i. 221, ed. Fabr.) and Philosophumen. p. 339, σώματος ἀπουσία (i. e. an excretion of the body), ἐπιστρεφόμενον ἐπὶ τὸ ἐκβράσαν σῶμα. Observe, He says, σκώληξ αὐτῶν, to intimate that as the instrument of punishment is eternal, so they (αὐτοί) who suffer it will exist for ever.

In order to enforce this awful truth more solemnly, he repeats it three times.

On the duration of future punishment, see above, on Matt. xxv. 46, and Bp. Pearson on the Creed, Art. xii. p. 592.

MATT.

οὐ τελευτᾷ, καὶ τὸ πῦρ οὐ σβέννυται. 47 Καὶ ἐὰν ὁ ὀφθαλμός σου XVIII. 9 σκανδαλίζῃ σε, ἔκβαλε αὐτόν· καλόν σοι ἐστὶ μονόφθαλμον εἰσελθεῖν εἰς τὴν βασιλείαν τοῦ Θεοῦ, ἢ δύο ὀφθαλμοὺς ἔχοντα βληθῆναι εἰς τὴν γέενναν τοῦ πυρὸς, 48 ὅπου ὁ σκώληξ αὐτῶν οὐ τελευτᾷ, καὶ τὸ πῦρ οὐ σβέν-νυται. 49 Πᾶς γὰρ πυρὶ ἁλισθήσεται, καὶ πᾶσα θυσία ἁλὶ [a] ἁλισθήσεται. a Lev. 2. 13. Ezek. 43. 24.
(102/II) 50 Καλὸν τὸ ἅλας· ἐὰν δὲ τὸ [b] ἅλας ἄναλον γένηται, ἐν τίνι αὐτὸ ἀρτύσετε; b Matt. 5. 13.
Ἔχετε ἐν ἑαυτοῖς ἅλας [c], καὶ εἰρηνεύετε ἐν ἀλλήλοις. c Eph. 4. 29. Col. 4. 6.

X. (108/VI) 1 Καὶ ἐκεῖθεν ἀναστὰς ἔρχεται εἰς τὰ ὅρια τῆς Ἰουδαίας διὰ τοῦ XIX. 1 πέραν τοῦ Ἰορδάνου· καὶ συμπορεύονται πάλιν ὄχλοι πρὸς αὐτὸν, καὶ ὡς εἰώθει 3 πάλιν ἐδίδασκεν αὐτούς. 2 Καὶ προσελθόντες Φαρισαῖοι ἐπηρώτησαν αὐτὸν, 7 εἰ ἔξεστιν ἀνδρὶ γυναῖκα ἀπολῦσαι, πειράζοντες αὐτόν. 3 Ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς 8 εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Τί ὑμῖν ἐνετείλατο Μωϋσῆς; 4 Οἱ δὲ εἶπον, Μωϋσῆς ἐπέτρεψε 4 βιβλίον ἀποστασίου γράψαι, καὶ ἀπολῦσαι. 5 Καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν 5 αὐτοῖς, Πρὸς τὴν σκληροκαρδίαν ὑμῶν ἔγραψεν ὑμῖν τὴν ἐντολὴν ταύτην, 6 ἀπὸ 6 δὲ ἀρχῆς κτίσεως ἄρσεν καὶ θῆλυ ἐποίησεν αὐτοὺς ὁ Θεός· 7 Ἕνεκεν τούτου 7 καταλείψει ἄνθρωπος τὸν πατέρα αὐτοῦ καὶ τὴν μητέρα, καὶ προσ- 8 κολληθήσεται πρὸς τὴν γυναῖκα αὐτοῦ, 8 καὶ ἔσονται οἱ δύο εἰς σάρκα μίαν, ὥστε οὐκέτι εἰσὶ δύο, ἀλλὰ μία σάρξ. (104/X) 9 Ὃ οὖν ὁ Θεὸς 9 συνέζευξεν, ἄνθρωπος μὴ χωριζέτω. 10 Καὶ ἐν τῇ οἰκίᾳ πάλιν οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ περὶ τοῦ αὐτοῦ ἐπηρώτησαν αὐτόν. (105/II) 11 Καὶ λέγει αὐτοῖς, Ὃς ἐὰν ἀπολύσῃ 11 τὴν γυναῖκα αὐτοῦ καὶ γαμήσῃ ἄλλην, μοιχᾶται ἐπ' αὐτήν· 12 καὶ ἐὰν γυνὴ 12 ἀπολύσῃ τὸν ἄνδρα αὐτῆς καὶ γαμηθῇ ἄλλῳ, μοιχᾶται.

---

49. πᾶς πυρὶ ἁλισθήσεται] St. John the Baptist said of Christ, He shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost and with fire. (Matt. iii. 11.) And our Lord baptized His Apostles with fire at Pentecost, and He baptizes all Christians with the light and flame of divine knowledge, zeal, and love, which are gifts of the Holy Ghost.

Secondly, St. Peter says (1 Pet. iv. 12), "Think it not strange concerning the fiery trial which is to try you;" and (1 Pet. i. 7) "for a season ye are in heaviness through manifold trials; that the trial of your faith being much more precious than of gold that perisheth, though it be tried with fire, might be found unto praise and honour and glory at the appearing of Jesus Christ." Cp. Job xxiii. 10. Ps. lxvi. 9. Prov. xvii. 3. Isa. xlviii. 10. Jer. xxiii. 29. Zech. xiii. 9.

Hence it will appear that the sense of this passage is, that men are to be baptized in this world with the Holy Ghost and fire, that is, with the purifying flame of love and zeal, cleansing and smelting away the dross, or worldly and carnal affections, and with the sanctifying illuminations of the Holy Ghost; and they are also tried in this world in the furnace of suffering, in order that they may be presented a reasonable and holy sacrifice acceptable to God, as of a sweet smelling savour. Rom. xii. 1. 2 Cor. ii. 15. Ephes. v. 2. 1 Pet. ii. 5. And if this is not the result of God's grace, and of the temporary fire of the trials of this life, they will be reserved for God's severe and righteous judgment, for πῦρ ἄσβεστον, everlasting fire, in the world to come. "For our God is a consuming fire" (Heb. xii. 29).

The word ἁλισθήσεται, 'shall be salted,' appears to be used for the same reason as πῦρ, on account of its double sense: ἁλίζω is the Hebrew מָלַח (malah), 'to salt.' In the Old Test. this word is used,

First, for cleansing, seasoning, and preserving (Lev. ii. 13), and there spoken of sacrifices (cp. Ezek. xliii. 24). And so it is here appropriately applied to the fire of God's Spirit and of earthly trials, which are designed by God to season men, and render them acceptable sacrifices to Him. "Altare Dei cor electorum." Bede.

And, secondly, the word malah, is also used for what is perpetually barren and bituminous, and its effect on the earth is described by burning. Deut. xxix. 22. Job xxxix. 6. Ezek. xlvii. 11. Jer. xvii. 6. Ps. cvii. 34. "Omnis locus, in quo reperitur sal, sterilis est" (Plin. N. H. xxxi. 7); and thence captive cities were sown with salt. Judges ix. 45. And the word malah is specially applied to the Dead Sea, the Lacus Asphaltites, which is called the Sea of Malah (i. e. of Salt), יָם הַמֶּלַח (yam hammelah). Gen. xiv. 3. Numb. xxxiv. 12, and Lot's wife became a pillar of salt (melah, Gen. xix. 26), a monument of an unbelieving soul. (Wisd. x. 7.)

The Dead Sea, or Sea of Salt, is an emblem of Gehenna, or the Lake of Fire (cp. Jude 7. Luke xvii. 29. 2 Pet. ii. 6).

Our Lord's meaning therefore is, If men will not be seasoned by the refining fire of God's Spirit, and of this world's trials, they will be salted with the fire of Tophet, "the fire and brimstone" (Rev. xx. 10), the Dead Sea, or Salt Sea, of Gehenna, the Lake of Fire (Rev. xxi. 8), that fire which has the property of salt, in that it does not consume but preserve its victims—even for evermore.

Hence the ungodly are often spoken of as ὁλοκαυτώματα, burnt sacrifices to God's justice, which is compared to fire. Heb. xii. 29. Isa. xxxiv. 6. Jer. xii. 3; xlvi. 10. Ezek. xxi. 9, 10; xxxix. 6.

50. ἔχετε ἐν ἑαυτοῖς ἅλας] On account of the cleansing and purifying effect of salt, the Levitical sacrifices were to be seasoned with it (Lev. ii. 13. Ezek. xliii. 24); an emblem of that purity which is necessary to make a sacrifice acceptable to God. This spiritual salt is to be preserved in the heart, and to season the life and conversation (Col. iv. 6), so that nothing that is σαπρὸν (σήπω, putrefacio) may proceed from the mouth (Eph. iv. 29), and so the disciples of Christ may be the salt of the earth. (Matt. v. 13.)

CH. X. 1. τὰ ὅρια] On this circuit in Perræa, see note on Luke x. 1.

— διὰ τοῦ πέραν τ. Ἰ.] There does not seem any reason for altering this reading, which signifies, He comes to the borders of Judæa by Perræa. Cp. Matt. xix. 1, τὸ πέραν, the 'regio trans Jordanem' is of frequent occurrence in St. Mark, iv. 35; v. 1. 21; vi. 45; viii. 13. Our Lord was now on His last journey towards Jerusalem. He makes a circuit in Perræa, and then crosses the Jordan again, and comes to Jericho and Bethany, and then makes His triumphal entry into Jerusalem.

2—10. καὶ προσελθόντες] See Matt. xix. 3—12.

10. τῇ οἰκίᾳ] the house, as distinguished from the public place where He had been teaching.

11, 12. ὃς ἐὰν ἀπολύσῃ—μοιχᾶται] The Holy Spirit omits the clause εἰ μὴ ἐπὶ πορνείᾳ, recited in St. Matt. xix. 9 ("una solummodò causa dimittendi, fornicatio." Bede). By this omission He appears to intimate that, although the permission contained in that clause is not revoked, yet it is only a permission, not a precept; and that Almighty God will be better pleased if it is not used; and that the marriage union ought to be so religiously made and maintained that it may be indissoluble. For, as Hooker says (III. viii. 5), "God approves much more than He commands; and disapproves much more than He forbids." And this inference is strengthened by the fact, that no such permission of divorce and remarriage is granted in express terms to the woman, in case of unfaithfulness on the part of her husband; but it is said absolutely, ἐὰν γυνὴ ἀπολύσῃ τὸν ἄνδρα αὐτῆς, καὶ γαμηθῇ ἄλλῳ, μοιχᾶται. See on St. Matthew, v. 31; xix. 9.

Some MSS. (B, C, L) have γαμήσῃ ἄλλον for γαμηθῇ ἄλλῳ, but see Fritz. and Bloomf.

The Jews did not allow a woman to divorce her husband (ἀπολύειν τὸν ἄνδρα). St. Matthew speaks nine times concerning a husband putting away his wife, but not once concerning a wife putting away her husband. (Rosen.) But our Lord spoke to the World. And St. Mark wrote generally to the Gentiles, and specially the Romans, among whom such divorces were not rare. Cp. 1 Cor. vii. 11.

MATT. XIX. 13 14 — LUKE. XVIII. 15 16

(106/II) 13 Καὶ προσέφερον αὐτῷ παιδία, ἵνα ἅψηται αὐτῶν· οἱ δὲ μαθηταὶ ἐπετίμων τοῖς προσφέρουσιν. 14 Ἰδὼν δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἠγανάκτησε καὶ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Ἄφετε τὰ παιδία ἔρχεσθαι πρός με, μὴ κωλύετε αὐτά, τῶν γὰρ τοιούτων ἐστὶν ἡ 17 βασιλεία τοῦ Θεοῦ. 15 Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ὃς ἐὰν μὴ δέξηται τὴν βασιλείαν τοῦ 15 Θεοῦ ὡς παιδίον, οὐ μὴ εἰσέλθῃ εἰς αὐτήν. 16 Καὶ ἐναγκαλισάμενος αὐτὰ τιθεὶς τὰς χεῖρας ἐπ' αὐτὰ εὐλογεῖ αὐτά.

16 (107/II) 17 Καὶ, ἐκπορευομένου αὐτοῦ εἰς ὁδὸν, προσδραμὼν εἷς καὶ γονυπετήσας 18 αὐτὸν ἐπηρώτα αὐτόν, Διδάσκαλε ἀγαθὲ, τί ποιήσω, ἵνα ζωὴν αἰώνιον κληρονομήσω; 18 Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Τί με λέγεις ἀγαθόν; οὐδεὶς ἀγαθὸς, εἰ 17 19 μὴ εἷς, ὁ Θεός. 19 Τὰς ἐντολὰς οἶδας· Μὴ μοιχεύσῃς· μὴ φονεύσῃς· μὴ
18 20 κλέψῃς· μὴ ψευδομαρτυρήσῃς· μὴ ἀποστερήσῃς· τίμα τὸν πατέρα
19 σου καὶ τὴν μητέρα. 20 Ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Διδάσκαλε, ταῦτα
20 21 πάντα ἐφυλαξάμην ἐκ νεότητός μου. (108/II) 21 Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς ἐμβλέψας αὐτῷ 21 22 ἠγάπησεν αὐτὸν, καὶ εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Ἓν σοι ὑστερεῖ· ὕπαγε, ὅσα ἔχεις πώλησον, καὶ δὸς πτωχοῖς, καὶ ἕξεις θησαυρὸν ἐν οὐρανῷ· καὶ δεῦρο ἀκολούθει μοι ἄρας 22 23 τὸν σταυρόν. (109/II) 22 Ὁ δὲ στυγνάσας ἐπὶ τῷ λόγῳ ἀπῆλθε λυπούμενος· ἦν 23 24 γὰρ ἔχων κτήματα πολλά. 23 Καὶ περιβλεψάμενος ὁ Ἰησοῦς λέγει τοῖς μαθη-ταῖς αὐτοῦ, Πῶς δυσκόλως οἱ τὰ χρήματα ἔχοντες εἰς τὴν βασιλείαν τοῦ Θεοῦ εἰσελεύσονται. 24 Οἱ δὲ μαθηταὶ ἐθαμβοῦντο ἐπὶ τοῖς λόγοις αὐτοῦ. Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς πάλιν ἀποκριθεὶς λέγει αὐτοῖς, Τέκνα, πῶς δύσκολόν ἐστι τοὺς πεποι-24 25 θότας ἐπὶ τοῖς χρήμασιν εἰς τὴν βασιλείαν τοῦ Θεοῦ εἰσελθεῖν· 25 εὐκοπώτερόν ἐστι κάμηλον διὰ τῆς τρυμαλιᾶς τῆς ῥαφίδος διελθεῖν, ἢ πλούσιον εἰς τὴν 25 26 βασιλείαν τοῦ Θεοῦ εἰσελθεῖν. 26 Οἱ δὲ περισσῶς ἐξεπλήσσοντο, λέγοντες 26 27 πρὸς ἑαυτούς, Καὶ τίς δύναται σωθῆναι; 27 Ἐμβλέψας δὲ αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς λέγει, Παρὰ ἀνθρώποις ἀδύνατον, ἀλλ' οὐ παρὰ Θεῷ· πάντα γὰρ δυνατά ἐστι 27 28 παρὰ τῷ Θεῷ. 28 Ἤρξατο ὁ Πέτρος λέγειν αὐτῷ, Ἰδοὺ ἡμεῖς ἀφήκαμεν πάντα, 28 29 καὶ ἠκολουθήσαμέν σοι. (110/II) 29 Ἀποκριθεὶς ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν, Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, 29 οὐδείς ἐστιν ὃς ἀφῆκεν οἰκίαν, ἢ ἀδελφοὺς, ἢ ἀδελφὰς, ἢ πατέρα, ἢ μητέρα, ἢ 30 γυναῖκα, ἢ τέκνα, ἢ ἀγροὺς, ἕνεκεν ἐμοῦ καὶ τοῦ εὐαγγελίου, 30 ἐὰν μὴ λάβῃ

---

13. παιδία] "Hast thou an infant? Let it be sanctified and consecrated by the Holy Ghost. Dost thou fear the seal of Baptism for it on account of its weakness? O faint-hearted mother and feeble in faith! Anna dedicated Samuel to God before his birth. You need no other safeguards; give your infant to the Holy Trinity, its best Protector." The original has δὸς αὐτῷ τὴν ἁγίαν Τριάδα. Greg. Nazian. (p. 703), where he examines the pleas made by some for delay of Baptism, and considers the case of unbaptized infants, dying without Baptism (p. 708).

14. ἄφετε—αὐτά] Elz. has καὶ before μὴ, but the best MSS. have it not, and the sense gains in force by the omission[1].

16. εὐλογεῖ] Elz. ηὐλ.—The best MSS. have εὐλόγει. The Present Tense gives more life to the picture, and is in St. Mark's style. See xi. 7. Cp. Office for "Public Baptism of Infants" in Book of Common Prayer.

17. προσδραμὼν εἷς] See Matt. xix. 16.

From St. Matt. xix. 20. 22, we learn that he was a young man, and St. Matt. calls him, with the definite article, ὁ νεανίσκος, being present, as such, to the Evangelist's own mind, who had probably seen him; and from St. Mark here we learn that he ran and kneeled. So each Evangelist contributes some incident of his own.

18. τί με—ἀγαθόν] "Non se bonum negat, sed Deum significat." (Bede.)

21. ἠγάπησεν αὐτόν] Perhaps He showed His love by some external sign, as the Rabbis did to their scholars when they answered well, by kissing the head. (See Lightfoot.) The same had been suggested by Origen (in Matt. tom. xv. 14; tom. iii. p. 356, ed. Lomm.), "dilexit eum, vel osculatus est eum."

22. στυγνάσας] with a sullen look. Cp. Matt. xvi. 3, οὐρανὸς στυγνάζων, a lowering sky.

23. βασιλείαν τοῦ Θεοῦ] So St. Luke (xviii. 24) also, for St. Matthew's expression βασιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν, a phrase well suited to the Jewish mind, but which might have been perverted to give countenance to anthropomorphism by Greek and Roman readers, accustomed to give local habitations—such as particular cities, islands, mountains, rivers, and seas—to their deities.

29. ἐμοῦ καὶ τοῦ εὐαγγελίου] See above, viii. 35, where the phrase καὶ τοῦ εὐαγγελίου (not found in the other Evangelists, see Matt. xvi. 25. Luke ix. 24) is inserted by St. Mark. Perhaps it made a greater impression upon his mind, because he had formerly shrunk from suffering ἔνεκεν τοῦ εὐαγγελίου. (See Acts xiii. 13; xv. 38.) St. Mark also alone here inserts our Lord's words, μετὰ διωγμῶν, perhaps from a recollection that he had been once affrighted by persecution from doing the work of the Gospel; and desiring to prepare others to encounter trials which for a time had mastered himself.

It may be observed here that only two of the Evangelists use the word Evangelium. St. Matthew employs it four times (iv. 23; ix. 35; xxiv. 14; xxvi. 13), and only once (xxvi. 13) without the adjunct τῆς βασιλείας. St. Mark uses it more frequently (i. 1. 14, 15; viii. 35; x. 29; xiii. 10; xiv. 9; xvi. 15); and only once (i. 14) with the adjunct τῆς βασιλείᾳ, which is not in some MSS.

The word εὐαγγέλιον was used by Greek Writers for "pretium boni nuntii;" and therefore St. Luke seems to have declined the use of it in his Gospel, written for well-educated Greeks. He employs the term εὐαγγελίζομαι, and not of κηρύσσειν τὸ εὐαγγέλιον.

---

[1] The following beautiful exposition, inculcating the doctrines of Original Sin, of Universal Redemption, and of Infant Baptism, is from St. Augustine (Serm. 174): "Commendaverim Charitati vestræ causam eorum qui pro se loqui non possunt. Omnes parvuli tanquam pupilli considerentur, etiam qui nondum parentes proprios extulerunt.

"Omnis prædestinatorum numerus parvulorum populum Dei quærit salvatorem, qui exspectat Dominum Salvatorem. Universam massam generis humani in homine primo venenator ille percussit; nemo ad secundum transit à primo, nisi per Baptismatis sacramentum. In parvulis natis et nondum baptizatis agnoscatur Adam; in parvulis natis et baptizatis et ob hoc renatis agnoscatur Christus. Qui Adam non agnoscit in parvulis natis, nec Christum agnoscere poterit in renatis.

"Sed quare, inquiunt, jam baptizatus homo fidelis, jam dimisso peccato, generat eum qui est cum primi hominis peccato? Quia carne illum generat non spiritu. Quod natum est de carne, caro est. (John iii. 6.) Et si exterior homo noster, ait Apostolus, corrumpitur, sed interior renovatur de die in diem. (2 Cor. iv. 16.) Ex eo quod in te corrumpitur, generas parvulum. Tu ut non in æternum moriaris natus es, et renatus es: ille adhuc natus, renatus nondum est. Si tu renascendo vivis, sine ut et ille renascatur et vivat; sine, inquam, renascatur, sine renascatur. Quare contradicis? Quare novis disputationibus antiquam fidei regulam frangere conaris? Quid est enim quod dicis, Parvuli non habent omnino vel originale peccatum? Quid est quod dicis, nisi ut non accedant ad Jesum? Sed tibi clamat Jesus, Sine parvulos venire ad me." ἑκατονταπλασίονα νῦν ἐν τῷ καιρῷ τούτῳ, οἰκίας καὶ ἀδελφοὺς καὶ ἀδελφὰς καὶ μητέρας καὶ τέκνα καὶ ἀγροὺς, μετὰ διωγμῶν, καὶ ἐν τῷ αἰῶνι τῷ ἐρχομένῳ ζωὴν αἰώνιον. (111/II) 31 Πολλοὶ δὲ ἔσονται πρῶτοι ἔσχατοι, καὶ ἔσχατοι πρῶτοι.

(112/II) 32 Ἦσαν δὲ ἐν τῇ ὁδῷ ἀναβαίνοντες εἰς Ἱεροσόλυμα· καὶ ἦν προάγων αὐτοὺς ὁ Ἰησοῦς· καὶ ἐθαμβοῦντο, καὶ ἀκολουθοῦντες ἐφοβοῦντο. Καὶ παραλαβὼν πάλιν τοὺς δώδεκα, ἤρξατο αὐτοῖς λέγειν [a] τὰ μέλλοντα αὐτῷ συμβαίνειν, 33 ὅτι ἰδοὺ ἀναβαίνομεν εἰς Ἱεροσόλυμα, καὶ ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου παραδοθήσεται τοῖς ἀρχιερεῦσι καὶ τοῖς γραμματεῦσι, καὶ κατακρινοῦσιν αὐτὸν θανάτῳ, καὶ παραδώσουσιν αὐτὸν τοῖς ἔθνεσι, 34 καὶ ἐμπαίξουσιν αὐτῷ, καὶ μαστιγώσουσιν αὐτὸν, καὶ ἐμπτύσουσιν αὐτῷ, καὶ ἀποκτενοῦσιν αὐτὸν, καὶ τῇ τρίτῃ ἡμέρᾳ ἀναστήσεται.

(113/VI) 35 Καὶ προσπορεύονται αὐτῷ Ἰάκωβος καὶ Ἰωάννης, οἱ υἱοὶ Ζεβεδαίου, λέγοντες, Διδάσκαλε, θέλομεν ἵνα ὃ ἐὰν αἰτήσωμεν ποιήσῃς ἡμῖν. 36 Ὁ δὲ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Τί θέλετε ποιῆσαί με ὑμῖν; 37 Οἱ δὲ εἶπον αὐτῷ, Δὸς ἡμῖν ἵνα εἷς ἐκ δεξιῶν σου καὶ εἷς ἐξ εὐωνύμων σου καθίσωμεν ἐν τῇ δόξῃ σου. 38 ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Οὐκ οἴδατε τί αἰτεῖσθε· δύνασθε πιεῖν τὸ ποτήριον ὃ ἐγὼ πίνω, καὶ τὸ βάπτισμα ὃ ἐγὼ βαπτίζομαι βαπτισθῆναι; 39 οἱ δὲ εἶπον αὐτῷ, Δυνάμεθα· ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Τὸ μὲν ποτήριον ὃ ἐγὼ πίνω πίεσθε, καὶ τὸ βάπτισμα ὃ ἐγὼ βαπτίζομαι βαπτισθήσεσθε· 40 τὸ δὲ καθίσαι ἐκ δεξιῶν μου καὶ ἐξ εὐωνύμων οὐκ ἔστιν ἐμὸν δοῦναι ἀλλ' οἷς ἡτοίμασται. (114/II) 41 Καὶ ἀκούσαντες οἱ δέκα ἤρξαντο ἀγανακτεῖν περὶ Ἰακώβου καὶ Ἰωάννου· 42 ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς προσκαλεσάμενος αὐτοὺς λέγει αὐτοῖς, Οἴδατε ὅτι οἱ δοκοῦντες ἄρχειν τῶν ἐθνῶν κατακυριεύουσιν αὐτῶν, καὶ οἱ μεγάλοι αὐτῶν κατεξουσιάζουσιν αὐτῶν· 43 οὐχ οὕτω δὲ ἔσται ἐν ὑμῖν· ἀλλ' ὃς ἐὰν θέλῃ γενέσθαι μέγας ἐν ὑμῖν ἔσται ὑμῶν διάκονος· (115/IV) 44 καὶ ὃς ἂν θέλῃ ὑμῶν γενέσθαι πρῶτος ἔσται πάντων δοῦλος· 45 καὶ γὰρ ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου οὐκ ἦλθε διακονηθῆναι ἀλλὰ διακονῆσαι, καὶ δοῦναι τὴν ψυχὴν αὐτοῦ λύτρον ἀντὶ πολλῶν.

(116/II) 46 Καὶ ἔρχονται εἰς Ἱεριχώ, καὶ ἐκπορευομένου αὐτοῦ ἀπὸ Ἱεριχὼ καὶ τῶν μαθητῶν αὐτοῦ καὶ ὄχλου ἱκανοῦ, ὁ υἱὸς Τιμαίου Βαρτίμαιος ὁ τυφλὸς

MATT. XIX.	LUKE XVIII.
30
XX. 17
	31 a ch. 8. 31. & 9. 31. Luke 9. 22.
18
19	32
	33 20 21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28
29	35

And it was probably not till some time after the Ascension that the word εὐαγγέλιον was generally current in the Church,—as it now is,—for the Gospel.

30. οἰκίας—καὶ ἀδελφάς] i. e. what is equivalent to them, in My presence and in My love. (See above, iii. 35.) Besides, if he loves Me, he will have many brothers and sisters and mothers (Rom. xvi. 13) in the affectionate regard of the faithful members of My Church, who will love him in Me and for My sake. Our Lord does not repeat the word γυναῖκας, and thus shows that this is the sense of His saying, and precludes the infidel cavil of Julian, "Shall he have a hundred wives?" (See Theophyl.) And He adds μετὰ διωγμῶν to spiritualize the whole.

31. καὶ ἔσχατοι] Some MSS. have οἱ before ἔσχ., but the sense seems better without it. Many who are first will be last, and many who are last will be first.

32. ἦσαν] See Matt. xx. 17—19.

— ἦν προάγων αὐτούς] Going before them and leading them to the conflict, as an intrepid general leads his army to the battle.

— ἐθαμβοῦντο] They were amazed—. Perhaps from our Blessed Lord's majestic bearing, solemn manner, and awful aspect, now that He was approaching the end of His ministry, leading them up to Jerusalem, to offer Himself on the cross for the sins of the world. Though very little is said in the Gospels concerning our Lord's external appearance and deportment, yet there are frequent indications of its effects on others. We do not see His glory in itself,—it could not be described,—but we read the reflection of it in them. See on Matt. ix. 9, on the call of St. Matthew; and Matt. xxi. 12, on the purging of the Temple; and Mark ix. 15, on the feeling and behaviour of the crowd towards Him after the Transfiguration. The climax is at the betrayal (John xviii. 6), when, after His utterance of those words—Ἐγώ εἰμι—the soldiers start back, and fall to the ground.

35. Ἰάκωβος] Who thought that He was now going up to Jerusalem to declare Himself King of the Jews. See Matt. xx. 20; and below, Mark xv. 40.

40. ἀλλ' οἷς] except to them. It is therefore His to give.

42. οἱ δοκοῦντες ἄρχειν] 'they who claim rule.' See on Matt. iii. 9. 1 Cor. xi. 16. Gal. ii. 9. Heb. iv. 1.

46. Βαρτίμαιος ὁ τυφλός] The Evangelists do not often mention the names of those who were healed by Christ. When they do, doubtless it is for some special reason. It is evident from St. Mark's words here that this person was well known. (Euthym. Cp. Aug. de Consens. Ev. ii. 65.) Perhaps he had declined from affluence to poverty, and was well known from his blindness and penury to the inhabitants of the great city Jericho (Aug.); and since he was well known, there was good reason why he should be brought forward as he is by the Evangelist.

Perhaps also he was instrumental in bringing the other blind man, of whom St. Matthew speaks (xx. 30), to Jesus in order to be healed; and so the healing of both may have been mainly due to his patience, constancy, charity, and faith. It would seem from the picturesque circumstances mentioned v. 50, that St. Mark was an eye-witness of the miracle, or heard the account from an eye-witness; and that there was something in the action and history of Bartimæus which had made a vivid impression on his mind, and led him to place him so prominently in the picture.

Some have imagined that there are discrepancies in the several narratives of this miracle by the Evangelists. But this history may be illustrated by their similar treatment of the circumstances of our Lord's triumphal entry into Jerusalem, which followed shortly after this miracle.

St. Matthew speaks of an ass and its colt (Matt. xxi. 2—7), and for a good reason, because there was a symbolic meaning in both (see note there); and this meaning nearly concerned the Jews, for whom especially St. Matthew wrote.

The other three Evangelists describe the Triumphal entry; they all mention the Foal, and the Foal only. None of them mentions the mother. In their narratives the Foal occupies the chief place in the picture; because our Lord rode on it, and on it alone; because also it was a type of the Gentile world (for whom they wrote), as yet untamed, never ridden by any, loosed by Christ's command, made subject to Him by the ministry of His Apostles, and ridden on by Him into the gates of Jerusalem—the City and Church of the living God. (See Mark xi. 2.)

There is no more discrepancy in the one case than in the other.

MATT. LUKE.
XX. XVIII. 30 36 37 38 31 39 32 40 41 33 34 42 43 XXI. XIX. 1 29 2 30 3 31 6 32

ἐκάθητο παρὰ τὴν ὁδὸν προσαιτῶν· 47 καὶ ἀκούσας ὅτι Ἰησοῦς ὁ Ναζωραῖός ἐστιν, ἤρξατο κράζειν καὶ λέγειν, Ὁ υἱὸς Δαυὶδ Ἰησοῦ ἐλέησόν με· 48 καὶ ἐπετίμων αὐτῷ πολλοὶ ἵνα σιωπήσῃ· ὁ δὲ πολλῷ μᾶλλον ἔκραζεν, Υἱὲ Δαυὶδ, ἐλέησόν με. 49 Καὶ στὰς ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτὸν φωνηθῆναι· καὶ φωνοῦσι τὸν τυφλὸν λέγοντες αὐτῷ, Θάρσει, ἔγειρε, φωνεῖ σε· 50 ὁ δὲ ἀποβαλὼν τὸ ἱμάτιον αὐτοῦ, ἀναστὰς ἦλθε πρὸς τὸν Ἰησοῦν· 51 καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς λέγει αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Τί θέλεις ποιήσω σοι; ὁ δὲ τυφλὸς εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Ῥαββουνὶ, ἵνα ἀναβλέψω· 52 ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Ὕπαγε, ἡ πίστις σου σέσωκέ σε· καὶ εὐθέως ἀνέβλεψε, καὶ ἠκολούθει τῷ Ἰησοῦ ἐν τῇ ὁδῷ.

XI. (117/II) 1 Καὶ ὅτε ἐγγίζουσιν εἰς Ἱερουσαλὴμ, εἰς Βηθφαγὴ καὶ Βηθανίαν πρὸς τὸ ὄρος τῶν Ἐλαιῶν, ἀποστέλλει δύο τῶν μαθητῶν αὐτοῦ, 2 καὶ λέγει αὐτοῖς, Ὑπάγετε εἰς τὴν κώμην τὴν κατέναντι ὑμῶν, καὶ εὐθέως εἰσπορευόμενοι εἰς αὐτὴν εὑρήσετε πῶλον δεδεμένον, ἐφ' ὃν οὐδεὶς ἀνθρώπων κεκάθικε· λύσαντες αὐτὸν ἀγάγετε· 3 καὶ ἐάν τις ὑμῖν εἴπῃ, Τί ποιεῖτε τοῦτο; εἴπατε, ὅτι ὁ κύριος αὐτοῦ χρείαν ἔχει· καὶ εὐθέως αὐτὸν ἀποστέλλει ὧδε. (118/II) 4 Ἀπῆλθον δὲ καὶ

The colt is a principal figure in one case, Bartimæus in the other. The Evangelists who mention only one blind man, do not deny that there were two, as St. Matthew affirms, any more than in mentioning the colt alone, they deny that the ass was with her, as the same Evangelist relates.

Again: in St. Matthew's and St. Mark's Gospels, it is distinctly said that this miracle was wrought by our Lord as He was going out (ἐκπορευόμενος) from Jericho toward Jerusalem (Matt. xx. 29. Mark x. 46). In St. Luke's Gospel it stands in connexion with the record of our Lord's entry[1] into Jericho (Luke xviii. 35). The reason of this seems to be, that this same blind man, Bartimæus, the son of Timæus, of whom St. Mark speaks, had commenced his appeal to Jesus on His entry into Jericho; that our Lord had not immediately granted his prayer, but at first dealt with him as He did with the woman of Canaan (Matt. xv. 22), to exercise and manifest his faith, struggling with difficulties and surmounting them, and forming a beautiful and striking contrast—as did that of the woman of Canaan—to the language of the many who would have silenced the prayer to Jesus. Jesus foreknew that Bartimæus would wait for Him with another blind companion. He went out of Jericho, which, as St. Luke says (xix. 1), He was only passing through (διήρχετο). He postponed his cure till He had been with Zacchæus, and then on His departure from Jericho, healed Bartimæus with another blind man, whom the faith and charity of Bartimæus had brought to await our Lord's exit at the western gate of Jericho.

If this is so, then we see why the blind man here is called so emphatically by St. Mark υἱὸς Τιμαίου, Βαρτίμαιος ὁ τυφλός. And it is observable, that St. Matthew and St. Mark furnish us here with an example of anticipation similar to that here supposed in St. Luke. For they proceed immediately after the record of the miracle to speak of our Lord's Triumphal Entry, which did not take place till He had been at the house of Simon at Bethany for a night,—an event which they do not record till a later period in the narrative. See Matt. xxvi. 6—13. Mark xiv. 3—9, compared with John xii. 1—8.

Probably all our Lord's Miracles are more or less figurative and prophetical. They are Parables and Prophecies in action: Particularly those that were wrought at the close of His ministry; e. g.

The Triumphal Entry on the Foal;
And the withering of the Fig-tree.

The healing of the blind man may be regarded in this light. The great city of Jericho is a Scriptural figure of this world. Christ leaving Jericho, is Christ about to quit this world; His healing of two blind men is His healing of the blindness of the two Nations,—that is, of the Jewish and Gentile world. St. Matthew, writing for the Jews, speaks of both; St. Luke and St. Mark, writing for the Gentiles, speak of one; this one is the Gentile world, ὁ τυφλός, the Son of Timæus (a Greek name). The unbelieving Jews would silence and check the Gentiles in coming to Christ (1 Thess. ii. 16. Acts xvii. 5. 13). But the Gentile world prays and perseveres; and not only is itself healed through faith, but it provokes the Jew to godly jealousy, so that the veil may be taken from his heart. Blindness is happened unto Israel until the fulness of the Gentiles shall come in, and so all Israel shall be saved. Rom. x. 19; xi. 25.

The above remarks are further illustrated by those already made in the parallel case of the demoniacs of Gadara. St. Matthew mentions two, St. Mark and St. Luke only one; the reason for which is suggested in note to Mark v. 2.

Let me conclude this note by observing, that there are certain canons of sacred criticism which appear to be of great value in reconciling, to use a common phrase, the discrepancies of the Sacred Writers. "Nos non debemus accusatores fieri, sed typum quærere," as St. Irenæus says in a somewhat similar matter (iv. 50). Let us endeavour to ascertain the final cause of the action related. Let us be sure that it has its own peculiar spiritual sense. Let us consider who the writer is, and for whom specially he is writing.

Such considerations as these will generally lead to a probable account of the variety of circumstances under which the same act is presented by the same Spirit, directing and animating the Evangelists and other Writers of Holy Scripture. Cp. note on xiv. 3.

50. ἀποβαλὼν τὸ ἱμάτιον] "Lætitiæ plenus, quo celerius ad Jesum perveniret, abjecit vestem superiorem, pallium, quo sedens se velarat. ἱμάτιον, vid. ad Matt. ix. 20. Pro ἀναστὰς in codd. recensionis Alexandrinæ et Occidentalis, ac versionibus nonnullis legitur ἀναπηδήσας, exsiliens, quæ lectio, alacritatem hominis vividè depingens, et apprimè conveniens verbis præcedentibus ἀποβαλὼν τὸ ἱμάτιον, verior videtur." (Kuin.)

51. Ῥαββουνί] "Ῥαββονὶ, sive ut Galilæi pronuntiabant, Ῥαββουνὶ, quam posteriorem scripturam optimi et plurimi codd. tuentur, est vocabulum Syro-Chaldaicum, compositum ex רַבּוֹן (Rabbon), magister, doctor, διδάσκαλος. Joh. xx. 16, et affixo primæ personæ י. E Rabbinorum sententia רַבּוֹן erat nomen honorificentius quàm רַבִּי (ῥαββὶ) et hoc honorificentius quàm רַב (Rab). v. Drusius ad h. l. Lightfootus Horr. Hebr. et Talm. ad Matt. xxiii. 6. Buxtorf. de Abbrev. Hebr. p. 148." (Kuin.)

CH. XI. 1. καὶ ὅτε—εἰς Βηθφαγὴ καὶ Βηθανίαν] See Matt. xxi. 1; xxvi. 6. Luke xix. 29.

It seems that our Lord had spent the evening (Saturday before the Passover) at Bethany (see John xii. 1—14), and that He was now coming from Bethany to Jerusalem. He comes to "Bethphage and Bethany,"—that is, to the point where these two districts touched one another. Bethphage was the nearer of the two to Jerusalem (see Lightfoot, i. 252; ii. 36. 485). Indeed, Bethphage was generally reckoned as a suburb of Jerusalem.

The reason why Bethphage is here mentioned first, seems to be that the term "Bethphage and Bethany" was one familiar to the Jews, as marking the point of contact between these two neighbouring regions, and they naturally mentioned Bethphage first as nearest to the city.

Our Lord, having mounted the colt, is described as being "at the descent of the Mount of Olives" (Luke xix. 37). It would seem, therefore, that the point of contact between Bethphage and Bethany was on the western side of the mountain.

2. ἐφ' ὃν οὐδείς] See above, x. 46, and Matt. xxi. 5. All the circumstances connected with the foal are significant (cp. Theophyl. and others here). Our Lord thus showed that He would ride on the Gentile world, which as yet was untamed and untaught, and was standing bound by its sins outside the house, in the way, and was to be brought to Christ from the lanes and alleys of Heathenism (Luke xiv. 21); was to be loosed by the hands of Christ's Disciples by the ministry of Baptism and Faith; and, whereas before it was bare and naked, is now to be clothed with Apostolic garments,—that is, with Christian graces and virtues, and to be ridden on by Christ, and is now to be guided by Him, with hosannas of triumph and praise, to Jerusalem, the city of God.

See further on John xii. 14.

3. ἀποστέλλει] So the best MSS. Elz. ἀποστελεῖ. This use of the present tense, which is characteristic of St. Mark (cp. x. 16; xi. 7), gives life to the saying; it speaks of the prophecy as already fulfilled in the Divine mind of the speaker.

---

[1] That is, on the supposition that the blind man in St. Luke is the same as in St. Mark; if not, there is of course no discrepancy.

εὗρον πῶλον δεδεμένον πρὸς τὴν θύραν ἔξω ἐπὶ τοῦ ἀμφόδου, καὶ λύουσιν αὐτόν· [5] καί τινες τῶν ἐκεῖ ἑστηκότων ἔλεγον αὐτοῖς, Τί ποιεῖτε λύοντες τὸν πῶλον; [6] οἱ δὲ εἶπον αὐτοῖς καθὼς ἐνετείλατο ὁ Ἰησοῦς· καὶ ἀφῆκαν αὐτούς. [7] Καὶ ἤγαγον τὸν πῶλον πρὸς τὸν Ἰησοῦν, καὶ ἐπιβάλλουσιν αὐτῷ τὰ ἱμάτια αὐτῶν, καὶ ἐκάθισεν ἐπ' αὐτῷ. [8] Πολλοὶ δὲ τὰ ἱμάτια αὐτῶν ἔστρωσαν εἰς τὴν ὁδὸν, ἄλλοι δὲ στοιβάδας ἔκοπτον ἐκ τῶν δένδρων, καὶ ἐστρώννυον εἰς τὴν ὁδόν· (119/I) [9] καὶ οἱ προάγοντες καὶ οἱ ἀκολουθοῦντες ἔκραζον, λέγοντες, Ὡσαννά, εὐλογημένος ὁ ἐρχόμενος ἐν ὀνόματι Κυρίου, [10] εὐλογημένη ἡ ἐρχομένη βασιλεία τοῦ πατρὸς ἡμῶν Δαυὶδ, Ὡσαννὰ ἐν τοῖς ὑψίστοις. (120/VI) [11] Καὶ εἰσῆλθεν εἰς Ἱεροσόλυμα ὁ Ἰησοῦς καὶ εἰς τὸ ἱερὸν, καὶ περιβλεψάμενος πάντα ὀψίας ἤδη οὔσης τῆς ὥρας ἐξῆλθεν εἰς Βηθανίαν μετὰ τῶν δώδεκα. [12] Καὶ τῇ ἐπαύριον ἐξελθόντων αὐτῶν ἀπὸ Βηθανίας ἐπείνασε, [13] καὶ ἰδὼν συκῆν μακρόθεν ἔχουσαν φύλλα ἦλθεν εἰ ἄρα εὑρήσει τι ἐν αὐτῇ· καὶ ἐλθὼν ἐπ' αὐτὴν οὐδὲν εὗρεν εἰ μὴ φύλλα· οὐ γὰρ ἦν καιρὸς σύκων. [14] Καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν αὐτῇ, Μηκέτι ἐκ σοῦ εἰς τὸν αἰῶνα μηδεὶς καρπὸν φάγοι· καὶ ἤκουον οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ. (121/I) [15] Καὶ ἔρχονται εἰς Ἱεροσόλυμα· καὶ εἰσελθὼν ὁ

MATT.	LUKE.
XXI.	XIX. 33
	34
7	35
8	36
9	37
	38
17
18 19
12	45

4. ἐπὶ τοῦ ἀμφόδου] The colt was at the entrance of the village, Matt. xxi. 2, Luke xix. 30, tied at the door of a house, outside, ἐπὶ τοῦ ἀμφόδου. The word ἄμφοδος is interpreted ῥύμη, ἀγυιὰ, δίοδος (Hesych.) and λαύρα (Epiphan.). Hence two meanings have been assigned to the word in this passage,—

First, ambitus, or way that went round the house;

Secondly, bivium, a place where two ways meet. (Vulg.)

The article τοῦ before ἀμφόδου seems to confirm the former of the two interpretations. The sense then is; They went and found a foal tied at the door, without, not in the high way, ἐπὶ τῆς ὁδοῦ, in front of the house, but ἐπὶ τοῦ ἀμφόδου, in the backway, which went round the house. These minute circumstances appear to be mentioned as signs of veracity, and also to show Christ's prescience.

The condition of the colt is specified; it had never been ridden: it would be found tied; not in the court-yard, but outside; at the door of the house; not in the highway, but in a back lane or alley skirting the house. And some persons would be near it; and the words which they would speak are predicted; and the answer is prompted which the Apostles were to make—minute incidents showing that the foreknowledge of Christ extends to the least circumstances of common life.

The πῶλος, untamed, and yet tied at the back gate (cp. Luke xiv. 21), as if ready for a rider, was a fit emblem of the Gentile World waiting for Christ. It appears from St. Matthew that the mother was tied also, by the side of the foal (Matt. xxi. 2), and that both were loosed by the Apostles, and both were brought to Christ. But though the mother had doubtless been broken in, and the colt had not, yet Christ chose the colt, and rode upon it to Jerusalem—a symbolical intimation, it would seem (as the Fathers suggest), that the Gentile world would first acknowledge Christ.

8. ἐκ τῶν δένδρων] Some few MSS. have ἀγρῶν, which has been received into the text of some recent editions. But it is perhaps only a gloss in a corrupt form. What writer would say they cut branches off the fields[1]?

ἀγρῶν may have arisen from arvorum, a corruption of arborum (as has been suggested by others), but it is more likely that (as Kuin. describes it) it is the conjecture of a sciolist, who did not understand the word στοιβάδας as used here for κλάδους (Matt. xxi. 8), but supposed it to mean grass, as στιβάς, the more common form, often does. Cp. Hesych. στιβάς, ἀπὸ ῥάβδων (i. e. boughs) καὶ χλωρῶν χόρτων στρῶσις καὶ φύλλων, and Photius interprets it by δένδρων ἀκρέμονες, its meaning here. And Theophyl. rightly interprets these στοιβάδας, as branches, i. e. the palm branches (John xii. 13), the emblem of His future Victory over the World.

9. Ὡσαννά] See Matt. xxi. 9.

12. ἐπείνασε] as usual, showing His humanity, when about to give a proof of His Deity; that we may believe Him to be both God and Man.

Showing also that He longed to find fruit on the Jewish Church, as signified by the Fig-tree.

13. οὐ γὰρ ἦν καιρὸς σύκων] It had no ripe fruit, but it had an exuberance of leaves, seen from afar (μακρόθεν). It had no ripe fruit, because it was not yet the time for fruit. But then neither was it the season for leaves, for it was spring, and not summer, at the approach of which the Fig-tree puts forth leaves. Matt. xxiv. 32. Mark xiii. 28.

It had no figs, because it was not the time for figs. But why then had it such a show of leaves?

The fact of its having abundance of leaves and no fruit, is what is here brought out. And the sin of the fig-tree (so to speak) was that while it had the power given it to bring forth leaves, it had not the will to bring forth fruit. It spent all its sap and strength in making a barren and ostentatious display of exuberant foliage, inviting the hungry passer-by from a distance to quit the road and to come and look for fruit, and then baulking him with barrenness when he came to examine it.

Again, the Evangelist says, he found nothing but leaves, for it was not yet the time for fruit. Yet our Lord immediately says, Let no one eat fruit of thee for ever! Thus Christ cursed the tree for not bearing fruit, at a time when, by the laws of nature, of which He is the Author, it could not be expected that it would bear fruit. The use of this moral unfitness and injustice (so to speak), thus pointedly displayed by St. Mark, was to show that the Tree was not the end of Christ's action, that it was only the means to an end. The end of all trees being to bear fruit to man, the fig-tree, by its withered leaves, was designed by Christ to bear spiritual fruit to all ages in the reading of the Gospel. The end which He so designed was pointed out by Christ, Who had come from Jerusalem the day before, and Who, as St. Mark significantly observes, there "looked round about upon all things" (Mark xi. 11), that is, looked carefully about for fruit there; and Who went immediately from the Fig-tree to Jerusalem, and specially to the Temple. He went straight from the Type to the Antitype. He thus showed that Jerusalem, especially in its Temple Services, was symbolized by the Fig-tree, luxuriant in leaves, but barren of fruit, and being so it would be cursed and withered by Him, Who now for three years had come seeking fruit upon it,—hungering for its salvation—but found none. (Luke xiii. 7.)

Hence St. Augustine says (Serm. lxxxix.), "Non istam arborem maledixi (i. e. this was not the final cause of Christ's action), non arbori non sentienti pœnas inflixi, sed te terrui." And, again (Serm. xcviii.), "Non erat illius pomi tempus, sicut Evangelista testatur; et tamen esuriens poma quæsivit Christus. Christus nesciebat quod rusticus sciebat? Cùm ergo esuriens poma quæsivit in arbore, significavit se aliquid esurire, et aliquid aliud quærere. Arborem illam maledixit, et aruit. Quæ culpa arboris infecunditas? Illorum est culpa sterilitas, quorum fecunditas est voluntas. Erant ergo Judæi, habentes verba Legis et facta non habentes, pleni foliis, et fructus non ferentes.

"Hoc dixi ut persuaderem, Dominum nostrum ideò miracula fecisse, ut aliquid illis miraculis significaret; et ut, excepto quod divina erant, aliquid inde etiam disceremus."

As St. Gregory (lib. viii. cp. 42), "Per ficum Dominus in Synagogâ fructum quærebat, quæ folia legis habuit, sed fructum operis non habebat." Eusebius Emisenus says well (see Chemnit. Harmon. ad loc.), "Dominus, qui nunquam sine ratione aliquid agit, quando sine ratione agere videtur, alicujus magnæ rei significatio est." When Christ has thus brought us from the Type to the Antitype—from the Tree to the Temple—we find that the moral injustice which led us to see in the Fig-tree something other than the Fig-tree, and typified by the Fig-tree, disappears. For (as the passage just quoted from St. Luke shows) it was the time for figs (καιρὸς σύκων), it was the season in which much fruit might have been expected from the spiritual Fig-tree, the Jewish Church, for it was now the end of Christ's ministry. He had been three years seeking fruit on it, and therefore, since on examination He found no fruit upon it, but only an hypocritical and ostentatious display of leaves, it was cursed and withered by Him! Let no man eat fruit of thee for ever!

A solemn warning to all Nations and Churches,—to all Societies and Individuals,—who make a profession of piety, but do not bring forth the fruits of Faith and Obedience in their lives.

On the withering of the Fig-tree, see also notes above on Matt. xxi. 17—21.

[1] Other instances,—unhappily, far too numerous,—might be cited, where corrupt Glosses and Barbarisms have been recently received as improvements into the Sacred Text.

MATT. LUKE.
XXI. XIX.

Ἰησοῦς εἰς τὸ ἱερὸν ἤρξατο ἐκβάλλειν τοὺς πωλοῦντας καὶ ἀγοράζοντας ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ, καὶ τὰς τραπέζας τῶν κολλυβιστῶν καὶ τὰς καθέδρας τῶν πωλούντων τὰς περιστερὰς κατέστρεψε, [16] καὶ οὐκ ἤφιεν ἵνα τὶς διενέγκῃ σκεῦος διὰ τοῦ
13 46 ἱεροῦ· [17] καὶ ἐδίδασκε λέγων αὐτοῖς, Οὐ γέγραπται ὅτι ὁ οἶκός μου οἶκος προσευχῆς κληθήσεται πᾶσι τοῖς ἔθνεσιν; ὑμεῖς δὲ ἐποιήσατε αὐτὸν
47 σπήλαιον λῃστῶν. (122/I) [18] Καὶ ἤκουσαν οἱ Γραμματεῖς καὶ οἱ ἀρχιερεῖς, καὶ 48 ἐζήτουν πῶς αὐτὸν ἀπολέσωσιν· ἐφοβοῦντο γὰρ αὐτὸν, ὅτι πᾶς ὁ ὄχλος ἐξεπλήσσετο ἐπὶ τῇ διδαχῇ αὐτοῦ.

(123/X) [19] Καὶ ὅτε ὀψὲ ἐγένετο, ἐξεπορεύετο ἔξω τῆς πόλεως. [20] Καὶ πρωὶ παραπο-
20 ρευόμενοι εἶδον τὴν συκῆν ἐξηραμμένην ἐκ ῥιζῶν· [21] καὶ ἀναμνησθεὶς ὁ Πέτρος
21 λέγει αὐτῷ, Ῥαββὶ ἴδε ἡ συκῆ ἣν κατηράσω ἐξήρανται. (124/VI) [22] Καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς ὁ Ἰησοῦς λέγει αὐτοῖς, Ἔχετε πίστιν Θεοῦ· [23] ἀμὴν γὰρ λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι ὃς ἂν εἴπῃ τῷ ὄρει τούτῳ, Ἄρθητι καὶ βλήθητι εἰς τὴν θάλασσαν, καὶ μὴ διακριθῇ ἐν τῇ καρδίᾳ αὐτοῦ, ἀλλὰ πιστεύσῃ ὅτι ἃ λέγει γίνεται, ἔσται αὐτῷ ὃ ἐὰν εἴπῃ.
22 (125/IV) [24] Διὰ τοῦτο λέγω ὑμῖν, Πάντα ὅσα ἂν προσευχόμενοι αἰτεῖσθε, πιστεύετε ὅτι λαμβάνετε, καὶ ἔσται ὑμῖν. (126/VI) [25] Καὶ ὅταν στήκητε προσευχόμενοι, ἀφίετε εἴ τι ἔχετε κατά τινος, ἵνα καὶ ὁ Πατὴρ ὑμῶν ὁ ἐν τοῖς οὐρανοῖς ἀφῇ ὑμῖν τὰ παραπτώματα ὑμῶν· [26] εἰ δὲ ὑμεῖς οὐκ ἀφίετε, οὐδὲ ὁ Πατὴρ ὑμῶν ὁ ἐν τοῖς οὐρανοῖς ἀφήσει τὰ παραπτώματα ὑμῶν.

XX.
23 1 (127/II) [27] Καὶ ἔρχονται πάλιν εἰς Ἱεροσόλυμα· καὶ ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ περιπατοῦντος αὐτοῦ ἔρχονται πρὸς αὐτὸν οἱ ἀρχιερεῖς καὶ οἱ Γραμματεῖς καὶ οἱ πρεσβύτεροι,
2 [28] καὶ λέγουσιν αὐτῷ, Ἐν ποίᾳ ἐξουσίᾳ ταῦτα ποιεῖς; καὶ τίς σοι τὴν ἐξουσίαν
24 3 ταύτην ἔδωκεν ἵνα ταῦτα ποιῇς; [29] Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Ἐπερωτήσω ὑμᾶς κἀγὼ ἕνα λόγον, καὶ ἀποκρίθητέ μοι· καὶ ἐρῶ ὑμῖν ἐν ποίᾳ
25 4 ἐξουσίᾳ ταῦτα ποιῶ· [30] τὸ βάπτισμα τὸ Ἰωάννου ἐξ οὐρανοῦ ἦν, ἢ ἐξ ἀνθρώ-
5 πων; ἀποκρίθητέ μοι. [31] Καὶ διελογίζοντο πρὸς ἑαυτοὺς λέγοντες, Ἐὰν εἴπω-
26 6 μεν, Ἐξ οὐρανοῦ, ἐρεῖ, Διατί οὐκ ἐπιστεύσατε αὐτῷ; [32] ἀλλ' εἴπωμεν, Ἐξ ἀνθρώπων,—ἐφοβοῦντο τὸν λαόν· ἅπαντες γὰρ εἶχον τὸν Ἰωάννην ὅτι ὄντως
27 7 προφήτης ἦν. [33] Καὶ ἀποκριθέντες λέγουσι τῷ Ἰησοῦ, Οὐκ οἴδαμεν. Καὶ ὁ
8 Ἰησοῦς ἀποκριθεὶς λέγει αὐτοῖς, Οὐδὲ ἐγὼ λέγω ὑμῖν ἐν ποίᾳ ἐξουσίᾳ ταῦτα ποιῶ.

9 XII. (128/II) [1] Καὶ ἤρξατο αὐτοῖς ἐν παραβολαῖς λέγειν· Ἀμπελῶνα ἐφύτευσεν 33 ἄνθρωπος, καὶ περιέθηκε φραγμὸν, καὶ ὤρυξεν ὑπολήνιον, καὶ ᾠκοδόμησε πύρ-
34 10 γον, καὶ ἐξέδοτο αὐτὸν γεωργοῖς καὶ ἀπεδήμησε. [2] Καὶ ἀπέστειλε πρὸς τοὺς γεωργοὺς τῷ καιρῷ δοῦλον, ἵνα παρὰ τῶν γεωργῶν λάβῃ ἀπὸ τοῦ καρποῦ
35 τοῦ ἀμπελῶνος. [3] Οἱ δὲ λαβόντες αὐτὸν ἔδειραν καὶ ἀπέστειλαν κενόν. [4] Καὶ 36 11 πάλιν ἀπέστειλε πρὸς αὐτοὺς ἄλλον δοῦλον· κἀκεῖνον λιθοβολήσαντες ἐκεφα-

---

15. κολλυβιστῶν] See Matt. xxi. 12.

17. πᾶσι τοῖς ἔθνεσι] The sacrilegious traffic here punished by our Lord was not carried on in the ναὸς or sanctuary, but in the ἱερὸν, as distinguished from it; i.e. in the outer courts, or court of the Gentiles, and these three words πᾶσι τοῖς ἔθνεσι, not cited by St. Matthew, with those that precede from Isa. lvi. 7, appear to be quoted by St. Mark writing for the Gentiles, in order to assure them that the God of the Jews is represented even by the Jewish Scriptures as the God of all Nations, and that the Court of the Gentiles, which had been profaned by these acts of Jewish profaneness, was holy to the Lord, and was an integral part of His House of Prayer. Cp. Mede, p. 44, Disc. xi.

22. ἔχετε πίστιν Θεοῦ] faith in God. On the genitive, see Rom. iii. 22. Do not be staggered and perplexed when ye see Me,—as you are now in a few days about to see Me,—scoffed at, buffeted, and crucified. Have faith in God. They who are now about to revile Me may appear for a time to flourish like this green Fig-tree, they may even seem to have withered Me. But here is the trial of your patience. Have faith in God. Believe in Me. In Mine own due time, they who now look so green will be withered by Me, and all Mine Enemies will be blighted, with the same ease as I have withered this Fig-tree.

The words of our Lord are addressed to all who are perplexed by the prevalence of evil in the world, and the oppression of good. (Cp. Ps. xxxvii. 1—9.) "Fret not thyself because of the ungodly. . . . For they shall soon be cut down as the grass and wither as the green herb. Trust in the Lord and be doing good, &c. For wicked doers shall be rooted out; and they that patiently abide in the Lord, they shall inherit the land."

"I have seen the ungodly in great power and flourishing like a green bay-tree. I went by, and lo! he was gone; I sought him, but his place could no where be found" (Ps. xxxvii. 35). "As for me, I am like a green olive-tree in the house of God; my trust is in the tender mercy of God for ever" (Ps. lii. 9).

30. τὸ Ἰωάννου] The art. τὸ, restored by Lach., Tisch., Alf., Bloomf., marks the distinction between John's Baptism and Christ's.

32. εἴπωμεν] Let us say—put the case that we say. An abrupt speech, showing confusion; like others recorded by St. Mark, v. 24; viii. 24. Or it may be a question, as xii. 14, δῶμεν;

CH. XII. 1. καὶ ἤρξατο] See Matt. xxi. 33.

4. ἐκεφαλαίωσαν] 'wounded him on the head.' "Lucæ loco parallelo xx. 12 verbo κεφαλαιοῦν respondet verbum τραυματίζειν, vulnerare, et versiones antiquæ, ut Syr. Arab. Vulg. ἐκεφαλαίωσαν interpretantur: in capite vulnerarunt. Itaque sicuti γναθόω, à

	MATT.	LUKE.
λαίωσαν καὶ ἀπέστειλαν ἠτιμωμένον. 5 Καὶ πάλιν ἄλλον ἀπέστειλε· κἀκεῖνον	XXI.	XX.
ἀπέκτειναν. καὶ πολλοὺς ἄλλους, τοὺς μὲν δέροντες, τοὺς δὲ ἀποκτείνοντες.		12
6 Ἔτι οὖν ἕνα υἱὸν ἔχων ἀγαπητὸν αὐτοῦ, ἀπέστειλε καὶ αὐτὸν πρὸς αὐτοὺς	37	13
ἔσχατον, λέγων, Ὅτι ἐντραπήσονται τὸν υἱόν μου. 7 Ἐκεῖνοι δὲ οἱ γεωργοὶ	38	14
εἶπον πρὸς ἑαυτούς, Ὅτι οὗτός ἐστιν ὁ κληρονόμος· δεῦτε ἀποκτείνωμεν αὐτὸν, καὶ ἡμῶν ἔσται ἡ κληρονομία. 8 Καὶ λαβόντες αὐτὸν ἀπέκτειναν, καὶ ἐξέβαλον	39	15
ἔξω τοῦ ἀμπελῶνος. 9 Τί οὖν ποιήσει ὁ κύριος τοῦ ἀμπελῶνος; ἐλεύσεται	40
καὶ ἀπολέσει τοὺς γεωργοὺς, καὶ δώσει τὸν ἀμπελῶνα ἄλλοις. 10 Οὐδὲ τὴν	41	16
γραφὴν ταύτην ἀνέγνωτε; Λίθον ὃν ἀπεδοκίμασαν οἱ οἰκοδομοῦντες,	42	17
οὗτος ἐγενήθη εἰς κεφαλὴν γωνίας· 11 παρὰ Κυρίου ἐγένετο αὕτη·
καὶ ἔστι θαυμαστὴ ἐν ὀφθαλμοῖς ἡμῶν. (129/I) 12 Καὶ ἐζήτουν αὐτὸν κρα-	46	19
τῆσαι καὶ ἐφοβήθησαν τὸν ὄχλον, ἔγνωσαν γὰρ ὅτι πρὸς αὐτοὺς τὴν παρα-βολὴν εἶπε, καὶ ἀφέντες αὐτὸν ἀπῆλθον.
(180/II) 13 Καὶ ἀποστέλλουσι πρὸς αὐτὸν τινὰς τῶν Φαρισαίων καὶ τῶν Ἡρω-	XXII. 16	20
διανῶν ἵνα αὐτὸν ἀγρεύσωσι λόγῳ· 14 οἱ δὲ ἐλθόντες λέγουσιν αὐτῷ, Διδάσκαλε,		21 οἴδαμεν ὅτι ἀληθὴς εἶ, καὶ οὐ μέλει σοι περὶ οὐδενός· οὐ γὰρ βλέπεις εἰς πρόσωπον ἀνθρώπων, ἀλλ' ἐπ' ἀληθείας τὴν ὁδὸν τοῦ Θεοῦ διδάσκεις· ἔξεστι κῆνσον Καίσαρι δοῦναι, ἢ οὔ; δῶμεν, ἢ μὴ δῶμεν; 15 Ὁ δὲ εἰδὼς αὐτῶν τὴν	17	22
ὑπόκρισιν εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Τί με πειράζετε; φέρετέ μοι δηνάριον ἵνα ἴδω· 16 οἱ δὲ	18 19	23 24
ἤνεγκαν· καὶ λέγει αὐτοῖς, Τίνος ἡ εἰκὼν αὕτη καὶ ἡ ἐπιγραφή; οἱ δὲ εἶπον	20
αὐτῷ, Καίσαρος· 17 καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Ἀπόδοτε τὰ Καίσαρος	21	25
Καίσαρι, καὶ τὰ τοῦ Θεοῦ τῷ Θεῷ· καὶ ἐθαύμασαν ἐπ' αὐτῷ.	22	26
18 Καὶ ἔρχονται Σαδδουκαῖοι πρὸς αὐτὸν, οἵτινες λέγουσιν ἀνάστασιν μὴ	23	27
εἶναι, καὶ ἐπηρώτησαν αὐτὸν λέγοντες, 19 Διδάσκαλε, Μωϋσῆς ἔγραψεν ἡμῖν,	24	28
ὅτι ἐάν τινος ἀδελφὸς ἀποθάνῃ, καὶ καταλίπῃ γυναῖκα, καὶ τέκνα μὴ ἀφῇ, ἵνα λάβῃ ὁ ἀδελφὸς αὐτοῦ τὴν γυναῖκα αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἐξαναστήσῃ σπέρμα τῷ ἀδελφῷ αὐτοῦ. 20 Ἑπτὰ οὖν ἀδελφοὶ ἦσαν· καὶ ὁ πρῶτος ἔλαβε γυναῖκα, καὶ ἀποθνή-	25	29
σκων οὐκ ἀφῆκε σπέρμα· 21 καὶ ὁ δεύτερος ἔλαβεν αὐτὴν, καὶ ἀπέθανε, καὶ	26	30
οὐδὲ αὐτὸς ἀφῆκε σπέρμα· καὶ ὁ τρίτος ὡσαύτως· 22 καὶ ἔλαβον αὐτὴν οἱ ἑπτὰ,		31
καὶ οὐκ ἀφῆκαν σπέρμα· ἐσχάτη πάντων ἀπέθανε καὶ ἡ γυνή. 23 Ἐν τῇ οὖν	27	32
ἀναστάσει, ὅταν ἀναστῶσι, τίνος αὐτῶν ἔσται γυνή; οἱ γὰρ ἑπτὰ ἔσχον αὐτὴν	28	33
γυναῖκα. 24 Καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Οὐ διὰ τοῦτο πλανᾶσθε,	29	34
μὴ εἰδότες τὰς γραφὰς μηδὲ τὴν δύναμιν τοῦ Θεοῦ; 25 ὅταν γὰρ ἐκ νεκρῶν	30	35
ἀναστῶσιν, οὔτε γαμοῦσιν οὔτε γαμίσκονται, ἀλλ' εἰσὶν ὡς ἄγγελοι οἱ ἐν τοῖς οὐρανοῖς. 26 Περὶ δὲ τῶν νεκρῶν ὅτι ἐγείρονται, οὐκ ἀνέγνωτε ἐν τῇ βίβλῳ	31	37
Μωϋσέως ἐπὶ τοῦ Βάτου, ὡς εἶπεν αὐτῷ ὁ Θεὸς, λέγων· Ἐγὼ ὁ Θεὸς	32
Ἀβραὰμ, καὶ Θεὸς Ἰσαὰκ, καὶ Θεὸς Ἰακώβ; 27 οὐκ ἔστιν Θεὸς νεκρῶν		38
ἀλλὰ ζώντων· ὑμεῖς οὖν πολὺ πλανᾶσθε.
(181/VI) 28 Καὶ προσελθὼν εἷς τῶν Γραμματέων ἀκούσας αὐτῶν συζητούντων, εἰδὼς	34
ὅτι καλῶς αὐτοῖς ἀπεκρίθη, ἐπηρώτησεν αὐτόν, Ποία ἐστὶ πρώτη πάντων ἐντολή;	35

γνάθος, est, auctore Hesychio, εἰς γνάθους τύπτω, cædo in malas, et γαστρίζω est, γαστέρα τύπτω, cf. schol. ad Aristoph. Equitt. v. 173, add. Aristoph. Vespp. 1519. Diog. Laërt. vii. 172, et Casaubonus ad h. l.; ita quoque κεφαλαιοῦν, est vulnerare caput." (Kuin., Rosen.)

6. ἔσχατον] No other revelation therefore is now to be expected from God. (Cp. Heb. i. 2. 1 Pet. i. 20.) If Christianity, as preached by Christ and His Apostles, is true, then all additions to it (in the way of new articles of faith) are false and antichristian.

12. ἔγνωσαν] Our Lord's later parables appear to have been designedly made clearer than the earlier ones; so that even they who were most blinded by prejudice could not fail to see their meaning; and were warned by Him even to the end. It is added here that "they left Him," not He them.

13. ἀποστέλλουσι] Matt. xxii. 15.

19. Μωϋσῆς ἔγραψεν] So St. Luke xx. 28; but St. Matthew has here (xxii. 24) Μωϋσῆς εἶπεν, Moses spake to the forefathers of those for whom St. Matthew specially wrote, and Moses spake to them in their synagogues, 'being read there every Sabbath day' (Acts xv. 21); but he was only known to the Gentiles by his writings.

24. μὴ εἰδότες τ. γ.] 'because you do not know the Scriptures.' Ignorance of them is the root of error.

26. ἐπὶ τοῦ Βάτου] St. Mark mentions the book of Moses (cf. Luke xx. 42), and a particular section of it, which may perhaps have been called ὁ Βάτος from its subject, Exod. iii.; as a particular song of David seems to have been called 'the bow,' from its subject. (2 Sam. i. 18. See there, ver. 22.) Some compare Rom. xi. 2, ἐν Ἠλίᾳ—the section concerning Elias.

— ἐγὼ ὁ Θεός] See Matt. xxii. 32.

28. καὶ προσελθών] See Matt. xxii. 34.

— πρώτη πάντων ἐντολή] Elz. πασῶν, but πάντων has been restored from the best MSS., and means not only, what is the first of commandments (ἐντολῶν), but something more than that,—viz. what is the first commandment, and principal of all things? Cp. Lucian. Piac. 13, μία πάντων ἡ γε ἀληθὴς φιλοσοφία. Winer, Gr. Gr. p. 160.

MATT. XXII. 36 37 — LUKE. XX. — 29 ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς ἀπεκρίθη αὐτῷ, Ὅτι πρώτη πάντων ἐντολή, Ἄκουε, Ἰσραήλ· Κύριος ὁ Θεὸς ἡμῶν Κύριος εἷς ἐστι· 30 καὶ ἀγαπήσεις Κύριον τὸν Θεόν σου ἐξ ὅλης τῆς καρδίας σου, καὶ ἐξ ὅλης τῆς ψυχῆς σου, καὶ ἐξ ὅλης τῆς διανοίας σου, καὶ ἐξ ὅλης τῆς ἰσχύος σου· αὕτη 38 39 40 πρώτη ἐντολή· 31 καὶ δευτέρα ὁμοία αὕτη, Ἀγαπήσεις τὸν πλησίον σου ὡς σεαυτόν· μείζων τούτων ἄλλη ἐντολὴ οὐκ ἔστι. (133/X) 32 Καὶ εἶπεν αὐτῷ ὁ γραμματεύς, Καλῶς διδάσκαλε, ἐπ' ἀληθείας εἶπας, ὅτι εἷς ἐστι, καὶ οὐκ ἔστιν ἄλλος πλὴν αὐτοῦ· 33 καὶ τὸ ἀγαπᾶν αὐτὸν ἐξ ὅλης τῆς καρδίας, καὶ ἐξ ὅλης τῆς συνέσεως, καὶ ἐξ ὅλης τῆς ψυχῆς, καὶ ἐξ ὅλης τῆς ἰσχύος, καὶ τὸ ἀγαπᾶν τὸν πλησίον ὡς ἑαυτόν, πλεῖόν ἐστι πάντων τῶν ὁλοκαυτωμάτων καὶ θυσιῶν. (133/II) 34 Καὶ ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἰδὼν αὐτὸν ὅτι νουνεχῶς ἀπεκρίθη εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Οὐ μακρὰν 40 εἶ ἀπὸ τῆς βασιλείας τοῦ Θεοῦ. Καὶ οὐδεὶς οὐκέτι ἐτόλμα αὐτὸν ἐπερωτῆσαι.

42 41 (134/II) 35 Καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἔλεγε, διδάσκων ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ· Πῶς λέγουσιν 43 42 οἱ Γραμματεῖς, ὅτι ὁ Χριστὸς υἱός ἐστι Δαυΐδ; 36 αὐτὸς γὰρ Δαυὶδ λέγει ἐν 44 πνεύματι ἁγίῳ, Εἶπεν ὁ Κύριος τῷ κυρίῳ μου, Κάθου ἐκ δεξιῶν μου, 43 ἕως ἂν θῶ τοὺς ἐχθρούς σου ὑποπόδιον τῶν ποδῶν σου. 45 44 37 Αὐτὸς οὖν Δαυὶδ λέγει αὐτὸν κύριον, καὶ πόθεν υἱὸς αὐτοῦ ἐστι; Καὶ ὁ πολὺς ὄχλος ἤκουεν αὐτοῦ ἡδέως.

46 (135/II) 38 Καὶ ἔλεγεν αὐτοῖς ἐν τῇ διδαχῇ αὐτοῦ, Βλέπετε ἀπὸ τῶν Γραμματέων, XXIII. 6 τῶν θελόντων ἐν στολαῖς περιπατεῖν, καὶ ἀσπασμοὺς ἐν ταῖς ἀγοραῖς, 39 καὶ 7 14 47 πρωτοκαθεδρίας ἐν ταῖς συναγωγαῖς, καὶ πρωτοκλισίας ἐν τοῖς δείπνοις· 40 οἱ κατεσθίοντες τὰς οἰκίας τῶν χηρῶν καὶ προφάσει μακρὰ προσευχόμενοι, οὗτοι λήψονται περισσότερον κρῖμα.

XXI. 1 (136/VIII) 41 Καὶ καθίσας ὁ Ἰησοῦς κατέναντι τοῦ γαζοφυλακίου, ἐθεώρει πῶς ὁ ὄχλος βάλλει χαλκὸν εἰς τὸ γαζοφυλάκιον, καὶ πολλοὶ πλούσιοι ἔβαλλον 2 πολλά· 42 καὶ ἐλθοῦσα μία χήρα πτωχὴ ἔβαλε λεπτὰ δύο, ὅ ἐστι κοδράντης· 3 43 καὶ προσκαλεσάμενος τοὺς μαθητὰς αὐτοῦ λέγει αὐτοῖς, Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι ἡ χήρα αὕτη ἡ πτωχὴ πλεῖον πάντων βέβληκε τῶν βαλλόντων εἰς τὸ γαζο- 4 φυλάκιον· 44 πάντες γὰρ ἐκ τοῦ περισσεύοντος αὐτοῖς ἔβαλον, αὕτη δὲ ἐκ τῆς ὑστερήσεως αὐτῆς πάντα ὅσα εἶχεν ἔβαλεν, ὅλον τὸν βίον αὐτῆς.

XXIV. 1 5 XIII. (137/II) 1 Καὶ ἐκπορευομένου αὐτοῦ ἐκ τοῦ ἱεροῦ, λέγει αὐτῷ εἷς τῶν 2 μαθητῶν αὐτοῦ· Διδάσκαλε, ἴδε, ποταποὶ λίθοι καὶ ποταπαὶ οἰκοδομαί· 2 καὶ ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Βλέπεις ταύτας τὰς μεγάλας οἰκοδομάς; 3 6 (138/II) οὐ μὴ ἀφεθῇ λίθος ἐπὶ λίθῳ, ὃς οὐ μὴ καταλυθῇ. 3 Καὶ, καθημένου αὐτοῦ 7 εἰς τὸ ὄρος τῶν Ἐλαιῶν κατέναντι τοῦ ἱεροῦ, ἐπηρώτων αὐτὸν κατ' ἰδίαν Πέτρος καὶ Ἰάκωβος καὶ Ἰωάννης καὶ Ἀνδρέας, 4 Εἰπὲ ἡμῖν, πότε ταῦτα ἔσται; καὶ 8 τί τὸ σημεῖον ὅταν μέλλῃ πάντα ταῦτα συντελεῖσθαι; 5 ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς ἀποκριθεὶς 4 αὐτοῖς ἤρξατο λέγειν, Βλέπετε μή τις ὑμᾶς πλανήσῃ· 6 πολλοὶ γὰρ ἐλεύσονται 5 9 ἐπὶ τῷ ὀνόματί μου λέγοντες, Ὅτι ἐγώ εἰμι· καὶ πολλοὺς πλανήσουσιν. 7 Ὅταν

---

29. ἄκουε, Ἰσραήλ] Deut. vi. 4, a remarkable text, which was recited twice a day by every Israelite; and called, from its first word, שמע (shema), i. e. 'hear.' (Goodwin, Moses, p. 92. Buxtorf, Syn. c. 9.) Perhaps our Lord in saying this pointed to the Tephillim, or Phylacteries, of the Scribe, on which the words were written.

38. ἐν τῇ διδαχῇ] i. q. ἐν τῷ διδάσκειν, i. e. publicly; or, as St. Luke says (xx. 45), ἀκούοντος παντὸς τοῦ λαοῦ. At the commencement of His Ministry He spake in Parables of a general import (cp. iv. 2); but His warnings to the People and to their Teachers (xi. 12) were more solemn and clear at the close of His ministry.

— θελόντων] θέλω in LXX = אהב (haphets), loving. "Cupidè studentium; ex fastu et tumore animi." Glass. Phil. p. 362. See x. 35, θέλομεν, e. g. 'valdè optamus."

— ἐν στολαῖς] "Vestibus promissis ad talos et fimbriatis." See Matt. xxiii. 5.

40. οἱ κατεσθίοντες] Those devourers of widows' houses—they shall receive greater damnation. A common use of the article with the Vocative. Matt. vii. 23; xxiii. 24, οἱ διϋλίζοντες. Luke vi. 20. 25. James iv. 13; and the use of it here places them before the eye, and indeed they seem to have been present. Cp. Matt. xxiii. 14.

41. τοῦ γαζοφυλακίου] The Corban, of which there were several, for several uses; probably in the court of the women, beyond which this widow would not have been permitted to go. See Lightfoot.

— χαλκόν] Not brass, or copper merely. (See Luke xxi. 1, τὰ δῶρα, and here πολλά.) It is used here as the Roman as for money generally of whatever metal, as the Greek ἄργυρος, and French Argent. See above, vi. 8.

42. κοδράντης] A Roman word, quadrans. See ii. 4, one-fourth of the as.

43. πλεῖον—βέβληκε] 2 Cor. viii. 12. "Uberior est nummus è parvo, quàm thesaurus è maximo; quia non quantum detur sed quantum resideat, expenditur." (Ambrose.)

CH. XIII. 1. καὶ ἐκπορευομένου] See Matt. xxiv. 1.

3. Πέτρος] St. Peter, St. Mark's master, was present at this discourse. He gives a testimony to St. Matthew's accuracy by adopting his report with some additions, showing his own independent knowledge (vv. 9—13), which are in like manner embodied by St. Luke in his recital (xxi. 12—17).

	MATT. XXIV.	LUKE XXI.
δὲ ἀκούσητε πολέμους καὶ ἀκοὰς πολέμων, μὴ θροεῖσθε· δεῖ γὰρ γενέσθαι· ἀλλ'	7	10 οὔπω τὸ τέλος· [8] ἐγερθήσεται γὰρ ἔθνος ἐπὶ ἔθνος καὶ βασιλεία ἐπὶ βασιλείαν, καὶ ἔσονται σεισμοὶ κατὰ τόπους, καὶ ἔσονται λιμοὶ καὶ ταραχαί· (139/I) [9] ἀρχαὶ	8	11
ὠδίνων ταῦτα. Βλέπετε δὲ ὑμεῖς ἑαυτούς· παραδώσουσι γὰρ ὑμᾶς εἰς συνέδρια, καὶ εἰς συναγωγὰς δαρήσεσθε, καὶ ἐπὶ ἡγεμόνων καὶ βασιλέων σταθήσεσθε	9	12
ἕνεκεν ἐμοῦ εἰς μαρτύριον αὐτοῖς. (140/VI) [10] Καὶ εἰς πάντα τὰ ἔθνη δεῖ πρῶτον	14	13
κηρυχθῆναι τὸ εὐαγγέλιον. (141/II) [11] Ὅταν δὲ ἄγωσιν ὑμᾶς παραδιδόντες, μὴ		14
προμεριμνᾶτε τί λαλήσητε, μηδὲ μελετᾶτε· ἀλλ' ὃ ἐὰν δοθῇ ὑμῖν ἐν ἐκείνῃ		15
τῇ ὥρᾳ, τοῦτο λαλεῖτε· οὐ γάρ ἐστε ὑμεῖς οἱ λαλοῦντες, ἀλλὰ τὸ Πνεῦμα τὸ ἅγιον. [12] Παραδώσει δὲ ἀδελφὸς ἀδελφὸν εἰς θάνατον, καὶ πατὴρ τέκνον·		6
καὶ ἐπαναστήσονται τέκνα ἐπὶ γονεῖς, καὶ θανατώσουσιν αὐτούς. [13] Καὶ ἔσεσθε	9
μισούμενοι ὑπὸ πάντων διὰ τὸ ὄνομά μου· ὁ δὲ ὑπομείνας εἰς τέλος, οὗτος	13 σωθήσεται.
(142/VI) [14] Ὅταν δὲ ἴδητε τὸ βδέλυγμα τῆς ἐρημώσεως, (143/II) τὸ ῥηθὲν ὑπὸ	15	20
Δανιὴλ τοῦ προφήτου, ἑστὸς ὅπου οὐ δεῖ, ὁ ἀναγινώσκων νοείτω, τότε οἱ
ἐν τῇ Ἰουδαίᾳ φευγέτωσαν εἰς τὰ ὄρη, [15] ὁ δὲ ἐπὶ τοῦ δώματος μὴ καταβάτω	17	21
εἰς τὴν οἰκίαν, μηδὲ εἰσελθέτω ἆραί τι ἐκ τῆς οἰκίας αὐτοῦ, [16] καὶ ὁ εἰς τὸν	18
ἀγρὸν ὢν μὴ ἐπιστρεψάτω εἰς τὰ ὀπίσω ἆραι τὸ ἱμάτιον αὐτοῦ. (144/II) [17] Οὐαὶ	19	23
δὲ ταῖς ἐν γαστρὶ ἐχούσαις καὶ ταῖς θηλαζούσαις ἐν ἐκείναις ταῖς ἡμέραις.
(145/VI) [18] Προσεύχεσθε δὲ ἵνα μὴ γένηται ἡ φυγὴ ὑμῶν χειμῶνος. (146/II) [19] Ἔσον-	20
ται γὰρ αἱ ἡμέραι ἐκεῖναι θλῖψις, οἵα οὐ γέγονε τοιαύτη ἀπ' ἀρχῆς κτίσεως	21	23
ἧς ἔκτισεν ὁ Θεὸς ἕως τοῦ νῦν, καὶ οὐ μὴ γένηται· (147/II) [20] καὶ εἰ μὴ Κύριος	22 ἐκολόβωσε τὰς ἡμέρας, οὐκ ἂν ἐσώθη πᾶσα σάρξ· ἀλλὰ διὰ τοὺς ἐκλεκτοὺς, οὓς ἐξελέξατο, ἐκολόβωσε τὰς ἡμέρας. (148/II) [21] Καὶ τότε ἐάν τις ὑμῖν εἴπῃ,	23
Ἰδοὺ ὧδε ὁ Χριστὸς, ἤ· ἰδοὺ ἐκεῖ, μὴ πιστεύετε· (149/VI) [22] ἐγερθήσονται γὰρ	24
ψευδόχριστοι καὶ ψευδοπροφῆται, καὶ δώσουσι σημεῖα καὶ τέρατα, πρὸς τὸ ἀποπλανᾶν, εἰ δυνατὸν, καὶ τοὺς ἐκλεκτούς. (150/II) [23] Ὑμεῖς δὲ βλέπετε· ἰδοὺ	25
προείρηκα ὑμῖν πάντα. [24] Ἀλλ' ἐν ἐκείναις ταῖς ἡμέραις, μετὰ τὴν θλῖψιν	29	25
ἐκείνην, ὁ ἥλιος σκοτισθήσεται, καὶ ἡ σελήνη οὐ δώσει τὸ φέγγος αὐτῆς,	26
[25] καὶ οἱ ἀστέρες τοῦ οὐρανοῦ ἔσονται ἐκπίπτοντες, καὶ αἱ δυνάμεις αἱ ἐν τοῖς οὐρανοῖς σαλευθήσονται. (151/II) [26] Καὶ τότε ὄψονται τὸν Υἱὸν τοῦ ἀνθρώπου	30	27
ἐρχόμενον ἐν νεφέλαις μετὰ δυνάμεως πολλῆς καὶ δόξης. [27] Καὶ τότε ἀπο-	31
στελεῖ τοὺς ἀγγέλους αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἐπισυνάξει τοὺς ἐκλεκτοὺς αὐτοῦ ἐκ τῶν τεσσάρων ἀνέμων, ἀπ' ἄκρου γῆς ἕως ἄκρου οὐρανοῦ. [28] Ἀπὸ δὲ τῆς συκῆς	32	29
μάθετε τὴν παραβολήν· ὅταν αὐτῆς ἤδη ὁ κλάδος ἁπαλὸς γένηται, καὶ ἐκφυῇ		30
τὰ φύλλα, γινώσκετε ὅτι ἐγγὺς τὸ θέρος ἐστίν· [29] οὕτω καὶ ὑμεῖς, ὅταν ταῦτα	33	31
ἴδητε γινόμενα, γινώσκετε ὅτι ἐγγύς ἐστιν ἐπὶ θύραις. [30] Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν,	34	32
ὅτι οὐ μὴ παρέλθῃ ἡ γενεὰ αὕτη, μέχρις οὗ πάντα ταῦτα γένηται. [31] Ὁ οὐρανὸς	35	33 καὶ ἡ γῆ παρελεύσεται, οἱ δὲ λόγοι μου οὐ μὴ παρέλθωσι.
(152/VI) [32] Περὶ δὲ τῆς ἡμέρας ἐκείνης ἢ τῆς ὥρας οὐδεὶς οἶδεν, οὐδὲ οἱ ἄγγελοι	36
οἱ ἐν οὐρανῷ, οὐδὲ ὁ Υἱὸς, εἰ μὴ ὁ Πατήρ.

9. εἰς συναγωγὰς δαρήσεσθε] εἰς σ. is something more than ἐν συναγ.—'Εν συν. would mean, ye shall be beaten in the Synagogues, i. e. in the Buildings, without any reference to people in them. But δαρήσεσθε εἰς is, Ye will be exposed to public punishment before the eyes of congregations in Synagogues, for their pleasure. Cp. above on i. 39, κηρύσσων εἰς τὰς συναγωγὰς.

11. μὴ προμεριμνᾶτε] They were to take heed not to premeditate, because it should be given them what to say. For it would not be they who spake, but the Holy Ghost, and they should have a mouth and wisdom which none of their enemies (for enemies they should have) would be able to gainsay or resist. An argument for the Inspiration of Holy Scripture. For if this divine wisdom and utterance was given them to enable them to address a comparatively small number of persons in their own age, how much more in their writings for the use of all nations in all ages of the World!

14. τὸ βδέλυγμα τῆς ἐρημώσεως] See on Matt. xxiv. 15.

25. ἔσονται ἐκπίπτοντες] A Hebraism, as ἔσεσθε μισούμενοι, Matt. xxiv. 9. Mark xiii. 13.

32. οὐδὲ ὁ Υἱός] A sentence perverted by the Arians and Agnoëtæ, who affirmed that Christ's knowledge, not only as Son of Man (cf. Luke ii. 52), but as Son of God, was limited.

The sense appears to be,—the Son, Who is the Eternal Λόγος, or Word, the 'Dei Legatus,' and so the only Minister and Messenger of Divine Revelation to man, does not know it so as to reveal it to you; it is no part of his office to do so. August. de Trin. xii. 3, "Non ita sciebat, ut tunc discipulis indicaret; sicut dictum est ad Abraham (Gen. xxii. 12), Nunc cognovi, quòd timeas Deum, quia et ipse Abraham sibi in illâ probatione probatus innotuit." And in Ps. vi., "Hoc ideo dictum est, quia per Filium hominis hoc non discunt; non quod apud seipsum non noverit, sed secundum illud locutionem Tentat nos Deus ut sciat, hoc est,—scire nos faciat." Cf. Glass. Philol. p. 102, and see note on Matt. xxiv. 36.

MATT. XXVI. LUKE. XXII.

(168/VI) 33 Βλέπετε, ἀγρυπνεῖτε καὶ προσεύχεσθε· οὐκ οἴδατε γὰρ πότε ὁ καιρός ἐστιν. (164/II) 34 Ὡς ἄνθρωπος ἀπόδημος ἀφεὶς τὴν οἰκίαν αὐτοῦ, καὶ δοὺς τοῖς δούλοις αὐτοῦ τὴν ἐξουσίαν καὶ ἑκάστῳ τὸ ἔργον αὐτοῦ, καὶ τῷ θυρωρῷ ἐνετείλατο ἵνα γρηγορῇ. (155/II) 35 Γρηγορεῖτε οὖν· οὐκ οἴδατε γὰρ πότε ὁ κύριος τῆς οἰκίας ἔρχεται· ὀψὲ, ἢ μεσονυκτίου, ἢ ἀλεκτοροφωνίας, ἢ πρωΐ· 36 μὴ ἐλθὼν ἐξαίφνης εὕρῃ ὑμᾶς καθεύδοντας. 37 Ὃ δὲ ὑμῖν λέγω, πᾶσι λέγω, Γρηγορεῖτε.

2 1 XIV. (156/I) 1 Ἦν δὲ τὸ πάσχα καὶ τὰ ἄζυμα μετὰ δύο ἡμέρας· καὶ ἐζήτουν
3 2 οἱ ἀρχιερεῖς καὶ οἱ γραμματεῖς πῶς αὐτὸν ἐν δόλῳ κρατήσαντες ἀποκτείνωσιν·
4 (157/VI) 2 ἔλεγον δὲ, Μὴ ἐν τῇ ἑορτῇ, μήποτε θόρυβος ἔσται τοῦ λαοῦ. (158/I) 3 Καὶ
5
6 ὄντος αὐτοῦ ἐν Βηθανίᾳ, ἐν τῇ οἰκίᾳ Σίμωνος τοῦ λεπροῦ κατακειμένου αὐτοῦ
7 ἦλθε γυνὴ ἔχουσα ἀλάβαστρον μύρου νάρδου πιστικῆς πολυτελοῦς, καὶ συν-
8 τρίψασα τὸν ἀλάβαστρον κατέχεεν αὐτοῦ κατὰ τῆς κεφαλῆς. 4 Ἦσαν δέ τινες ἀγανακτοῦντες πρὸς ἑαυτοὺς καὶ λέγοντες, Εἰς τί ἡ ἀπώλεια αὕτη τοῦ μύρου

Similarly, our Lord says that "the Father judgeth no man, but hath committed all judgment to the Son" (John v. 22. 27). And yet He says that to sit on His right hand is not His to give, except to those for whom it has been prepared of His Father. (See on Matt. xx. 23. Mark x. 40.) And so while in a certain sense the Father does not judge the world, but the Son judges it, yet it is also true that the Father will judge the world (Acts xvii. 31), because He will do it by the Son. So it is also true that the Son, as Son, knoweth not the Day of Judgment, because the Father "hath put the times and seasons in His own power" (Acts i. 7), and the Father will reveal them when He thinks meet; and therefore it is no part of the office of the Son to know, i. e. to reveal the Day of Judgment. And yet in the Son absolutely (though not relatively to us) are hid all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge (Col. ii. 3). He is the Power of God and the Wisdom of God (1 Cor. i. 24). It pleased the Father that in Him should all fulness dwell (Col. i. 19). And the Father showeth Him all things that Himself doth (John v. 20). And therefore as St. Ambrose (on Luke xvii. 31) says, "Quomodo Filius nescire potest quod Pater novit, cùm in Patre Filius sit? sed cur nolit dicere ostendit alio loco" (Acts i. 7). And see also the passage of St. Luke (x. 22) cited by Athanas., p. 472, and 1 Cor. i. 24. As St. Augustine says, "in Patre Filius scit;" though it is no part of His office to reveal it "à Patre."

Christ is the One Divine Teacher of the World (see Matt. xxiii. 8—10), and He teaches by silence as well as by eloquence; He instructs us by concealing certain things as well as by revealing others. He thus exercises our faith and hope, as Aug says (ad Ps. xxxvi.): "Quia Dominus noster Jesus Christus Magister nobis missus est, etiam Filium hominis dixit nescire illum diem, quia in magisterio ejus non erat ut per eum sciretur à nobis. Neque enim aliquid scit Pater quod Filius nescit, cùm ipsa scientia Patris illa sit quæ sapientia Ejus est: est autem Sapientia Ejus, Filius Ejus, Verbum Ejus. Sed sicut quia nobis scire non proderat quod quidem Ille noverat, qui nos docere venerat non tamen hoc quod nobis nosse non proderat; non solùm sicut Magister aliquid docuit, sed sicut magister aliquid non docuit."

37. γρηγορεῖτε] On the date of St. Mark's Gospel, as far as it may be determinable from these prophecies, see on Matt. xxiv. 22.

CH. XIV. 3. καὶ ὄντος] See Matt. xxvi. 6.

— ἀλάβαστρον] Rendered by some a flask of alabaster; but it seems rather to have been a vase. Both forms, ἀλάβαστρον and ἀλάβαστρος, are in use; and ἀλάβαστρον is explained by Hesych. by μυροθήκη, a box or vase for unguent. Hence Theocr. xv. 10, Συρίῳ δὲ μύρῳ χρύσει' ἀλάβαστρα: and Euthym. renders it by ἀγγεῖον μυρόδοχον (cp. on Matt. xxvi. 7); and Bede says here, "Est alabastrum genus marmoris candidi, quod ad vasa unguentaria cavari solet, eò quòd optimè servare ea incorrupta dicitur;" lest the virtue of the aromatic nard, which was probably of a volatile quality, should escape. Hence we may explain συντρίψασα in this verse; see note on that word.

The word ἀλάβαστρον signifying the material (alabaster) is used in the same way as the word a glass with us (and so v. 13, κεράμιον ὕδατος); it was probably a vase scooped out of alabaster, white and almost transparent, and closed up with the same substance.

— πιστικῆς] ἀδόλου, καὶ μετὰ πίστεως κατασκευασθείσης. (Theophyl.), genuine; and in this sense it is rendered in the Syriac and other Versions; and so Winer, G. G., p. 89. Observe, it is the nard, the "frutex aromatica" (see Bede), and not the μύρον, or unguent, which is described by this epithet: and this consideration seems to exclude the interpretation potable, liquid (from πίνω, πιστός, Æschyl. Prom. 488). νάρδος πιστική contrasted with pseudo-nardus (on which see Plin. N. H. xii. 26). Eusebius (Dem. Ev. 9) describes the Gospel as the εὐφροσύνη τοῦ πιστικοῦ τῆς καινῆς διαθήκης κράματος.

There were many kinds of nard: "Sunt multa ejus genera sed omnia hebetiora præter Indicum quod pretiosius est" (Bede), and it was often adulterated (Dioscor. Mat. Med. i. 6. Meyer). Therefore it is not without good reason that the Evangelists, St. Mark and St. John (xii. 3), observe that this nard was πιστική. Perhaps also, as the action had a spiritual meaning, being, as our Lord declares, of a prophetic character, the word πιστική may be designed to serve as a memento that offerings (προσφοραὶ) to Christ should be not only costly (πολυτελεῖς), but should also be πιστικαὶ, genuine, sincere; the fruits of a lively and loving πίστις, or faith, in Him. It is observable, that a faithful woman is called γυνὴ πιστικὴ (Artemidor. ii. 33); and, as Bede says, "devotio hæc Mariæ Domino ministrantis fidem et pietatem designat Ecclesiæ."

Herod's offerings to the Temple were πολυτελεῖς, but they were not πιστικαί. And is not this the case too often in the Church?

— συντρίψασα] Having broken the vase in order to show that the nard was genuine and unadulterated, and as imported from its native land. This action was like that of breaking the seal, by which a vessel containing foreign aromatic liquids has been secured by those who made them.

There seems also to be something significant in the act described by συντρίψασα. Some Expositors, indeed, suppose that the nard was contained in a flask, and that only the neck of the flask was broken off, and a portion of the contents poured out. But the verb συντρίβω means more than this. It is used by the LXX for the Hebrew שָׁבַר (shabhar), to shiver in pieces. Gen. xix. 9. Exod. ix. 25. Lev. vi. 28. See also the passages where it is used in the New Testament, Matt. xii. 20, of a reed; Mark v. 4, of fetters; John xix. 36, of a bone; Rev. ii. 27, of potter's vessels. In fact, συντρίβω indicates that the affectionate Mary, in the devout prodigality of her love, gave—not a part—but the whole of the precious contents, and did not spare the vase itself, in which they were held, and which was broken in the service of Christ.

Thus also she took care in her reverence for Christ that the nard and the vessel (things of precious value, and of frequent use in banquets and festive pleasures of this world for man's gratification and luxury) having now been used for this sacred service of anointing the Body of Christ, should never be applied to any other less holy use.

This act of Mary providing that what had been consecrated to the unction of Christ's Body should never be afterwards employed in secular uses, is exemplary to us; and the same spirit of reverence appears to have guided the Church in setting apart, from all profane and common uses, by consecration, places and things for the service of Christ's mystical Body, and for the entertainment of His presence.

It seems also to have directed her in reverently consuming at the Lord's Table what remains of the consecrated elements in the Communion of His Body and Blood.

The word συντρίψασα, here used by the Holy Spirit, can hardly fail to suggest another reflection. It corresponds exactly to the Latin term contero, to bruise together; whence the word contrition is derived,—and is applied specially, in a spiritual sense, to the heart, both in the Old and New Testament. Thus Isaiah (lxi. 1) and St. Luke (iv. 18) declare that Christ came to heal the contrite, or bruised, or broken in heart,—τοὺς συντετριμμένους τὴν καρδίαν.

In this respect the alabaster vase in Mary's hand, broken, and pouring out in loving abundance and unsparing effusion the whole of its precious contents on Christ's Head, is a beautiful emblem of the contrite and broken heart, pouring out itself in acts of penitential love on Christ and His members, and thinking nothing too costly for that holy and blessed service. The Church says to Christ in the Canticles (i. 12), "While the King sitteth at His table, my spikenard sendeth forth the smell thereof." She imitates Mary; and every pious soul imitates her,—and by its offerings of love to Christ, especially at His table, it pours forth "an odour of a sweet smell, a sacrifice acceptable, well pleasing to God." (Phil. iv. 18. Eph. v. 2.)

γέγονεν; [5] ἠδύνατο γὰρ τοῦτο τὸ μύρον πραθῆναι ἐπάνω τριακοσίων δηναρίων, καὶ δοθῆναι τοῖς πτωχοῖς· καὶ ἐνεβριμῶντο αὐτῇ. [6] Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν, Ἄφετε αὐτὴν, τί αὐτῇ κόπους παρέχετε; καλὸν ἔργον εἰργάσατο ἐν ἐμοί· [7] πάντοτε γὰρ τοὺς πτωχοὺς ἔχετε μεθ' ἑαυτῶν, καὶ ὅταν θέλητε δύνασθε αὐτοὺς εὖ ποιῆσαι· ἐμὲ δὲ οὐ πάντοτε ἔχετε. (159/IV) [8] Ὃ ἔσχεν αὕτη ἐποίησε, προέλαβε μυρίσαι μου τὸ σῶμα εἰς τὸν ἐνταφιασμόν. [9] Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅπου ἂν κηρυχθῇ τὸ εὐαγγέλιον τοῦτο εἰς ὅλον τὸν κόσμον, καὶ ὃ ἐποίησεν αὕτη λαληθήσεται εἰς μνημόσυνον αὐτῆς. (160/II) [10] Καὶ Ἰούδας ὁ Ἰσκαριώτης εἷς τῶν δώδεκα ἀπῆλθε πρὸς τοὺς ἀρχιερεῖς ἵνα παραδῷ αὐτὸν αὐτοῖς· [11] οἱ δὲ ἀκούσαντες ἐχάρησαν, καὶ ἐπηγγείλαντο αὐτῷ ἀργύριον δοῦναι, καὶ ἐζήτει πῶς εὐκαίρως αὐτὸν παραδῷ.

[12] Καὶ τῇ πρώτῃ ἡμέρᾳ τῶν ἀζύμων, ὅτε τὸ πάσχα ἔθυον, λέγουσιν αὐτῷ οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ, Ποῦ θέλεις ἀπελθόντες ἑτοιμάσωμεν ἵνα φάγῃς τὸ πάσχα; [13] καὶ ἀποστέλλει δύο τῶν μαθητῶν αὐτοῦ, καὶ λέγει αὐτοῖς, Ὑπάγετε εἰς τὴν πόλιν, καὶ ἀπαντήσει ὑμῖν ἄνθρωπος κεράμιον ὕδατος βαστάζων· ἀκολουθήσατε αὐτῷ, [14] καὶ ὅπου ἐὰν εἰσέλθῃ, εἴπατε τῷ οἰκοδεσπότῃ ὅτι ὁ διδάσκαλος λέγει, Ποῦ ἐστι τὸ κατάλυμα, ὅπου τὸ πάσχα μετὰ τῶν μαθητῶν μου φάγω; [15] καὶ αὐτὸς ὑμῖν δείξει ἀνώγεον μέγα ἐστρωμένον ἕτοιμον· ἐκεῖ ἑτοιμάσατε ἡμῖν. [16] Καὶ ἐξῆλθον οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἦλθον εἰς τὴν πόλιν, καὶ εὗρον καθὼς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, καὶ ἡτοίμασαν τὸ πάσχα.

[17] Καὶ ὀψίας γενομένης ἔρχεται μετὰ τῶν δώδεκα· (161/IV) [18] καὶ ἀνακειμένων αὐτῶν καὶ ἐσθιόντων, εἶπεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν ὅτι εἷς ἐξ ὑμῶν παραδώσει με, ὁ ἐσθίων μετ' ἐμοῦ· (162/II) [19] οἱ δὲ ἤρξαντο λυπεῖσθαι, καὶ λέγειν αὐτῷ εἷς καθ' εἷς, Μήτι ἐγώ; καὶ ἄλλος, Μήτι ἐγώ; (163/II) [20] ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Εἷς ἐκ τῶν δώδεκα, ὁ ἐμβαπτόμενος μετ' ἐμοῦ εἰς τὸ τρυβλίον. (164/VI) [21] ὁ μὲν Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ὑπάγει, καθὼς γέγραπται περὶ αὐτοῦ· οὐαὶ δὲ τῷ ἀνθρώπῳ ἐκείνῳ δι' οὗ ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου παραδίδοται· καλὸν ἦν αὐτῷ εἰ οὐκ ἐγεννήθη ὁ ἄνθρωπος ἐκεῖνος.

(165/I) [22] Καὶ ἐσθιόντων αὐτῶν, λαβὼν ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἄρτον εὐλογήσας ἔκλασε, καὶ

MATT.	LUKE.
XXVI.	XXII.
9 10 11 12 13
14	3
	4
15	5
16	6
17	7
	9
18	8 10
	11 12 19
	13
20	14
21
22	23
23
24	21
26

---

5. τριακοσίων δηναρίων] These words of Judas afford the clue to the reason for the transfer of this incident (which took place on the day before the triumphal entry described chap. xi. 2—11) to this place in the Evangelist's narrative. See on Matt. xxvi. 6, where the contrast is similarly marked by the juxta-position of Mary and Judas, and of the three hundred pence and the thirty pieces of silver.

Thus Christ is justified in His divine dealings with the traitor His Apostle, "one of the twelve" (v. 10), whose sordid sin is silently condemned by the large and liberal love of this faithful woman. And in speaking of her, our Lord addressed silently and indirectly a rebuke and warning to Judas, without publishing the traitor's evil thoughts,—and thus the spirit of love strove with him to the last.

9. ὅπου ἂν κηρυχθῇ] A prophecy that the Gospel would be preached throughout the world. Therefore its propagation is a proof of His truth, and of its truth.

10. καί] Notwithstanding what he had seen done by Mary, and heard from Christ concerning her, and notwithstanding that he was εἷς τῶν δώδεκα. How much is suggested by these words,—how little expressed!

12. τῇ πρώτῃ ἡμέρᾳ τῶν ἀζύμων] The 15th of Nisan or Abib, as appears from what follows here, ὅτε τὸ πάσχα ἔθυον, and from St. Luke (xxii. 7), ἐν ᾗ ἔδει θύεσθαι τὸ πάσχα. Cp. Exod. xii. 6. 15—17. Deut. xvi. 1—6. Levit. xxiii. 5. Num. ix. 3; xxviii. 16.

The paschal lambs were to be slain on the 15th day of Abib, "in the place which the Lord should choose,"—i. e. at Jerusalem, in the Temple, "between the two evenings," בֵּין הָעַרְבָּיִם (bein haarebayim, at "the going down of the sun." Exod. xii. 6; xvi. 12; xxix. 39. Levit. xxiii. 5. Deut. xvi. 6, 7. They were to be eaten in the night,—i. e. on the 15th of the month before sunrise; the commencement of the 15th being dated from the sunset of the 14th. Joseph. Ant. iii. 10; xi. 4; ii. 15.

The Evangelists (Mark xiv. 12. Luke xxii. 7) distinguish between θύειν τὸ πάσχα and φαγεῖν τὸ πάσχα,—the paschal lamb of each household ἐθύετο on the 14th in the Temple; but ἐφάγετο on the 15th in private houses, by their several households.

13. κεράμιον ὕδατος] An earthen vessel containing water. The Fathers consider this as symbolical of the ὕδωρ βαπτίσματος, as manuductory to the Christian Passover or holy Eucharist. See Cyril, in Caten., Euthym., Theophyl., Bede, and St. Ambrose on Luke xxii. 13.

The grace given in the ὕδωρ βαπτίσματος is contained in κεράμια, or ὀστράκινα σκεύη. We have this treasure of baptismal grace in earthen vessels (2 Cor. iv. 7), and therefore it is to be guarded carefully. Cp. Luke xxii. 10. But it leads on to other graces,—even to the Communion of Christ's Blessed Body and Blood, which makes us to dwell in Him, and gives a gracious pledge of a glorious Resurrection, when our earthen vessels, our vile bodies of clay, may be made like unto His glorious body. (Phil. iii. 21.)

15. ἀνώγειον] Many MSS. have ἀνάγαιον: but αι and ε had the same sound; and therefore this can hardly be called a various reading. Many MSS. have ἀνάγαιον,—an uncommon form, but sufficiently authorized, and received by Griesb. and others, perhaps rightly. Cp. Luke xxii. 12. Suidas interprets it as ὑπερῷον οἴκημα.

Observe, it is called μέγα here, and by St. Luke. There seems to be something significant in this mention of its being large; for, for thirteen persons it need not have been so; and this may perhaps be explained by the circumstance stated by ancient authorities (see on Acts i. 13; ii. 2. 46; v. 42) that this ἀνώγειον, belonging as is probable to one who was or became a disciple of our Lord's, and would give such a place for holy uses, was no other than the ὑπερῷον, οἶκος, or chamber, where our Lord appeared after His Resurrection, and where the Apostles met after the Ascension, and where the Holy Ghost descended on the Day of Pentecost, and where they met for Prayer and for the celebration of the Holy Communion, and which became afterwards well known as a Christian Church,—the Mother Church of Christendom. See Joseph Mede's Works, p. 321, 322; and see on Acts ii. 44; iv. 32. 34, 35.

— ἐστρωμένον] With couches, στρώματα, &c., for reclining at table.

22. λαβὼν ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἄρτον] See Matt. xxvi. 26. He changed the Levitical Sacrifice into an Evangelical Sacrament; taking bread and wine, and thus showing the abolition of the Aaronical Priesthood, and that He is a Priest for ever, after the order of Melchizedek. See Gen. xiv. 18. Ps. cx. 4. Heb. v. 6—10; vi. 20.

— ἔκλασε] He brake the bread with His own hands,—showing that His death was voluntary. (Bede.)

MATT. XXVI. 27 | LUKE. XXII. | ἔδωκεν αὐτοῖς καὶ εἶπε, Λάβετε, τοῦτό ἐστι τὸ σῶμά μου. (166/II) 23 Καὶ λαβὼν τὸ ποτήριον εὐχαριστήσας ἔδωκεν αὐτοῖς· καὶ ἔπιον ἐξ αὐτοῦ πάντες. 24 Καὶ
28 | εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Τοῦτό ἐστι τὸ αἷμά μου τὸ τῆς καινῆς διαθήκης τὸ περὶ πολλῶν
29 | ἐκχυνόμενον. 25 Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι οὐκέτι οὐ μὴ πίω ἐκ τοῦ γενήματος τῆς ἀμπέλου ἕως τῆς ἡμέρας ἐκείνης ὅταν αὐτὸ πίνω καινὸν ἐν τῇ βασιλείᾳ τοῦ Θεοῦ.
30 | 39 | (167/VI) 26 Καὶ ὑμνήσαντες ἐξῆλθον εἰς τὸ ὄρος τῶν Ἐλαιῶν. (168/IV) 27 Καὶ λέγει
31 | αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Ὅτι πάντες σκανδαλισθήσεσθε ἐν ἐμοὶ ἐν τῇ νυκτὶ ταύτῃ, ὅτι γέγραπται, Πατάξω τὸν ποιμένα, καὶ διασκορπισθήσεται τὰ πρό-
32 | βατα· (169/VI) 28 ἀλλὰ μετὰ τὸ ἐγερθῆναί με προάξω ὑμᾶς εἰς τὴν Γαλιλαίαν.
33 | (170/I) 29 Ὁ δὲ Πέτρος ἔφη αὐτῷ, Καὶ εἰ πάντες σκανδαλισθήσονται, ἀλλ' οὐκ
34 | ἐγώ· 30 καὶ λέγει αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Ἀμὴν λέγω σοι, ὅτι σὺ σήμερον ἐν τῇ
35 | νυκτὶ ταύτῃ, πρὶν ἢ δὶς ἀλέκτορα φωνῆσαι, τρὶς ἀπαρνήσῃ με· (171/VI) 31 ὁ δὲ ἐκ περισσοῦ ἔλεγε μᾶλλον, Ἐάν με δέῃ συναποθανεῖν σοι οὐ μή σε ἀπαρνήσομαι· ὡσαύτως δὲ καὶ πάντες ἔλεγον.
36 | 40 | (172/I) 32 Καὶ ἔρχονται εἰς χωρίον οὗ τὸ ὄνομα Γεθσημανῆ· καὶ λέγει τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ, Καθίσατε ὧδε ἕως προσεύξωμαι· (173/VI) 33 καὶ παραλαμβάνει
37 | τὸν Πέτρον καὶ Ἰάκωβον καὶ Ἰωάννην μεθ' ἑαυτοῦ, καὶ ἤρξατο ἐκθαμβεῖσθαι
38 | καὶ ἀδημονεῖν· 34 καὶ λέγει αὐτοῖς· (174/IV) Περίλυπός ἐστιν ἡ ψυχή μου ἕως
39 | 41 | θανάτου· μείνατε ὧδε καὶ γρηγορεῖτε. (175/I) 35 Καὶ προελθὼν μικρὸν ἔπεσεν ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς, καὶ προσηύχετο ἵνα εἰ δυνατόν ἐστι παρέλθῃ ἀπ' αὐτοῦ ἡ ὥρα·
42 | 36 καὶ ἔλεγεν, Ἀββᾶ ὁ Πατήρ, Πάντα δυνατά σοι· παρένεγκε τὸ ποτήριον
40 | 45 | ἀπ' ἐμοῦ τοῦτο. ἀλλ' οὐ τί ἐγὼ θέλω, ἀλλὰ τί σύ· (176/I) 37 καὶ ἔρχεται καὶ
46 | εὑρίσκει αὐτοὺς καθεύδοντας, καὶ λέγει τῷ Πέτρῳ, Σίμων, καθεύδεις; οὐκ
41 | ἴσχυσας μίαν ὥραν γρηγορῆσαι; (177/II) 38 Γρηγορεῖτε καὶ προσεύχεσθε, ἵνα μὴ εἰσέλθητε εἰς πειρασμόν· τὸ μὲν πνεῦμα πρόθυμον, ἡ δὲ σὰρξ ἀσθενής.
42 | 43 | (178/IV) 39 Καὶ πάλιν ἀπελθὼν προσηύξατο, τὸν αὐτὸν λόγον εἰπών. (179/VI) 40 Καὶ ὑποστρέψας εὗρεν αὐτοὺς πάλιν καθεύδοντας· ἦσαν γὰρ οἱ ὀφθαλμοὶ αὐτῶν βεβαρημένοι· καὶ οὐκ ἤδεισαν τί αὐτῷ ἀποκριθῶσι.
45 | (180/IV) 41 Καὶ ἔρχεται τὸ τρίτον καὶ λέγει αὐτοῖς, Καθεύδετε τὸ λοιπὸν καὶ ἀναπαύεσθε· ἀπέχει· ἦλθεν ἡ ὥρα· ἰδοὺ, παραδίδοται ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου
46 | εἰς τὰς χεῖρας τῶν ἁμαρτωλῶν.—42 Ἐγείρεσθε, ἄγωμεν, ἰδοὺ ὁ παραδιδούς με ἤγγικε.
47 | 47 | (181/I) 43 Καὶ εὐθέως ἔτι αὐτοῦ λαλοῦντος παραγίνεται Ἰούδας, εἷς ὢν τῶν δώδεκα, καὶ μετ' αὐτοῦ ὄχλος πολὺς μετὰ μαχαιρῶν καὶ ξύλων, παρὰ τῶν
48 | ἀρχιερέων καὶ τῶν γραμματέων καὶ τῶν πρεσβυτέρων. (182/II) 44 Δεδώκει δὲ ὁ παραδιδοὺς αὐτὸν σύσσημον αὐτοῖς λέγων, Ὃν ἂν φιλήσω αὐτός ἐστι· κρα-
49 | τήσατε αὐτὸν, καὶ ἀπαγάγετε ἀσφαλῶς. 45 Καὶ ἐλθὼν εὐθέως προσελθὼν αὐτῷ
50 | λέγει, Ῥαββὶ, ῥαββὶ, καὶ κατεφίλησεν αὐτόν· 46 οἱ δὲ ἐπέβαλον ἐπ' αὐτὸν τὰς χεῖρας αὐτῶν καὶ ἐκράτησαν αὐτόν.
51 | 50 | (183/I) 47 Εἷς δέ τις τῶν παρεστηκότων σπασάμενος τὴν μάχαιραν ἔπαισε τὸν
55 | 52 | δοῦλον τοῦ ἀρχιερέως, καὶ ἀφεῖλεν αὐτοῦ τὸ ὠτίον· (184/I) 48 Καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς
53 | ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Ὡς ἐπὶ λῃστὴν ἐξήλθετε μετὰ μαχαιρῶν καὶ ξύλων, συλλαβεῖν με; 49 Καθ' ἡμέραν ἤμην πρὸς ὑμᾶς ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ διδάσκων, καὶ οὐκ ἐκρατήσατέ με· ἀλλ' ἵνα πληρωθῶσιν αἱ γραφαί. (185/VI) 50 Καὶ ἀφέντες αὐτὸν πάντες ἔφυγον. (186/X) 51 Καὶ εἷς τις νεανίσκος ἠκολούθησεν αὐτῷ, περι-

---

24. τοῦτό ἐστι τὸ αἷμά μου] See Matt. xxvi. 28.
— πολλῶν] i. e. all. See Matt. xx. 28; xxvi. 28.
32. καὶ ἔρχονται] See Matt. xxvi. 36.
36. Ἀββᾶ ὁ Πατήρ] See on Rom. viii. 15.
39. τὸν αὐτὸν λόγον εἰπών] This incident, as well as the use of the word Ἀββᾶ (v. 36), is mentioned only by St. Mark, who thus shows his own independent knowledge here, and who in other respects adopts the narrative of St. Matt. xxvi. 36—51, and thus gives a testimony to St. Matthew's accuracy.

Christ teaches us, by His example, in our agonies of mind and body, to pray; and He will have mercy on us, though from human weakness we can do no more than repeat the same words.

41. ἀπέχει] ἀπόχρη, ἐξαρκεῖ. (Hesych.)
51. εἷς τις νεανίσκος ἠκολούθησεν] This young man could not have βεβλημένος σινδόνα ἐπὶ γυμνοῦ· καὶ κρατοῦσιν αὐτὸν οἱ νεανίσκοι· 52 ὁ δὲ καταλιπὼν τὴν σινδόνα γυμνὸς ἔφυγεν ἀπ' αὐτῶν. XXVI. XXII.

MATT. LUKE.

(187/I) 53 Καὶ ἀπήγαγον τὸν Ἰησοῦν πρὸς τὸν ἀρχιερέα· καὶ συνέρχονται αὐτῷ 57 54 πάντες οἱ ἀρχιερεῖς καὶ οἱ πρεσβύτεροι καὶ οἱ Γραμματεῖς. (188/IV) 54 Καὶ ὁ 58
Πέτρος ἀπὸ μακρόθεν ἠκολούθησεν αὐτῷ ἕως ἔσω εἰς τὴν αὐλὴν τοῦ ἀρχιερέως· καὶ ἦν συγκαθήμενος μετὰ τῶν ὑπηρετῶν, καὶ θερμαινόμενος πρὸς τὸ φῶς.
(189/II) 55 Οἱ δὲ ἀρχιερεῖς καὶ ὅλον τὸ συνέδριον ἐζήτουν κατὰ τοῦ Ἰησοῦ μαρτυ- 55 ρίαν εἰς τὸ θανατῶσαι αὐτόν· καὶ οὐχ εὕρισκον· 56 πολλοὶ γὰρ ἐψευδομαρ- 59 60 τύρουν κατ' αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἴσαι αἱ μαρτυρίαι οὐκ ἦσαν· (190/VI) 57 καί τινες ἀνα-στάντες ἐψευδομαρτύρουν κατ' αὐτοῦ, λέγοντες, 58 Ὅτι ἡμεῖς ἠκούσαμεν αὐτοῦ 61 λέγοντος, Ὅτι ἐγὼ καταλύσω τὸν ναὸν τοῦτον τὸν χειροποίητον, καὶ διὰ τριῶν ἡμερῶν ἄλλον ἀχειροποίητον οἰκοδομήσω· 59 καὶ οὐδὲ οὕτως ἴση ἦν ἡ μαρ-τυρία αὐτῶν. 60 Καὶ ἀναστὰς ὁ ἀρχιερεὺς εἰς μέσον ἐπηρώτησε τὸν Ἰησοῦν 62 λέγων, Οὐκ ἀποκρίνῃ οὐδέν; τί οὗτοί σου καταμαρτυροῦσιν; 61 ὁ δὲ ἐσιώπα 63 καὶ οὐδὲν ἀπεκρίνατο. Πάλιν ὁ ἀρχιερεὺς ἐπηρώτα αὐτὸν, καὶ λέγει αὐτῷ, Σὺ εἶ ὁ Χριστὸς ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ Εὐλογητοῦ; (191/I) 62 ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν, Ἐγώ 64 εἰμι· καὶ ὄψεσθε τὸν Υἱὸν τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἐκ δεξιῶν καθήμενον τῆς δυνάμεως, καὶ ἐρχόμενον μετὰ τῶν νεφελῶν τοῦ οὐρανοῦ· (192/VI) 63 ὁ δὲ ἀρχιερεὺς διαρ- 65 ρήξας τοὺς χιτῶνας αὐτοῦ λέγει, Τί ἔτι χρείαν ἔχομεν μαρτύρων; (193/II) 64 ἠκούσατε τῆς βλασφημίας· τί ὑμῖν φαίνεται; οἱ δὲ πάντες κατέκριναν αὐτὸν εἶναι 66 ἔνοχον θανάτου. (194/I) 65 Καὶ ἤρξαντό τινες ἐμπτύειν αὐτῷ, καὶ περικαλύπτειν 67 τὸ πρόσωπον αὐτοῦ καὶ κολαφίζειν αὐτὸν, καὶ λέγειν αὐτῷ, Προφήτευσον. καὶ 68 οἱ ὑπηρέται ῥαπίσμασιν αὐτὸν ἔβαλλον.

(196/I) 66 Καὶ ὄντος τοῦ Πέτρου ἐν τῇ αὐλῇ κάτω ἔρχεται μία τῶν παιδισκῶν 69 56
τοῦ ἀρχιερέως, 67 καὶ ἰδοῦσα τὸν Πέτρον θερμαινόμενον ἐμβλέψασα αὐτῷ λέγει, Καὶ σὺ μετὰ τοῦ Ναζαρηνοῦ Ἰησοῦ ἦσθα· (196/I) 68 ὁ δὲ ἠρνήσατο λέγων, Οὐκ 70 57 οἶδα οὐδὲ ἐπίσταμαι τί σὺ λέγεις· καὶ ἐξῆλθεν ἔξω εἰς τὸ προαύλιον· καὶ ἀλέκτωρ ἐφώνησε. 69 Καὶ ἡ παιδίσκη ἰδοῦσα αὐτὸν πάλιν ἤρξατο λέγειν τοῖς 71 58 παρεστηκόσιν, Ὅτι οὗτος ἐξ αὐτῶν ἐστιν· 70 ὁ δὲ πάλιν ἠρνεῖτο. Καὶ μετὰ 72 59 μικρὸν πάλιν οἱ παρεστῶτες ἔλεγον τῷ Πέτρῳ, Ἀληθῶς ἐξ αὐτῶν εἶ, καὶ γὰρ 73 Γαλιλαῖος εἶ, καὶ ἡ λαλιά σου ὁμοιάζει· 71 ὁ δὲ ἤρξατο ἀναθεματίζειν καὶ ὀμνύναι· Ὅτι οὐκ οἶδα τὸν ἄνθρωπον τοῦτον ὃν λέγετε· (197/II) 72 καὶ ἐκ δευτέρου 74 60 ἀλέκτωρ ἐφώνησε. Καὶ ἀνεμνήσθη ὁ Πέτρος τὸ ῥῆμα ὃ εἶπεν αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς· Ὅτι πρὶν ἀλέκτορα φωνῆσαι δὶς, ἀπαρνήσῃ με τρίς· καὶ ἐπιβαλὼν ἔκλαιε. 75

---

been St. John or St. James the Less, as some have conjectured, or any Apostle, for the Apostles had fled.

If this young man who followed our Lord was St. Mark himself, as some suppose, and as seems probable, then this incident affords evidence of St. Matthew's accuracy; for St. Mark, with one or two additions of his own, adopts here St. Matthew's narrative of transactions, which this young man, supposed to be St. Mark himself, must have witnessed. This probably is the reason why an incident otherwise seemingly so unimportant, is introduced by the Evangelist.

Suppose also that the young man was not St. Mark, yet it is certain that only a person well acquainted with the scene from personal knowledge, probably as an eye-witness, would have introduced into his account of it so slight an incident as this. And therefore we have here a testimony to St. Matthew's accuracy, whether we suppose the young man to have been St. Mark or not.

— νεανίσκοι] for נְעָרִים (neârim), young men, soldiers (2 Sam. ii. 14. Gen. xiv. 24). The attendants in Acts v. 10 are also called νεανίσκοι.

52. γυμνός] i. e. with only a χιτών, or tunic. "Adhibetur hoc vocabulum, ut Hebr. עֵרֹם et Lat. nudus, etiam de eo, qui veste exteriore caret, v. 1 Sam. xix. 24. Es. xx. 3. Joh. xxi. 7. Hesiod. Ἔργ. 391, γυμνὸν σπείρειν, γυμνὸν δὲ βοωτεῖν Γυμνὸν δ' ἀμᾶσαι. Virg. Georg. i. 299, nudus ara, sere nudus. Cic. p. Deiot. 9, Rex saltavit nudus. Plin. epp. iii. 1, Spurinna in sole ambulabat nudus." (Kuin.)

53. τὸν ἀρχιερέα] Caiaphas. See Matt. xxvi. 57, and for notes to the end of this Chapter.

54. φῶς] By which his countenance was more easily recognized.

56. ἴσαι] consistent; thus ἴσοι is used by LXX for חֻמִּים (tummim), twins, pairs (Exod. xxvi. 24). Two witnesses at least were necessary (Deut. xvii. 6; xix. 15).

62—64. τὸν Υἱὸν τοῦ ἀνθρώπου—βλασφημίας] Our Lord, it would appear, spoke δεικτικῶς, identifying Himself with the Son of Man (as described by Daniel, vii. 10), and confessing Himself to be the Christ; and this confirms the exposition given of Matt. xvi. 18. Thus, in the opinion of the High Priest, He was guilty of blasphemy. For this sense of βλασφημία, see note on Matt. xxvi. 65.

72. ἀνεμ.—τὸ ῥῆμα ὅ] So D, E, F, G, H, K, and others,—a stronger expression than ἀν. τοῦ ῥήματος, the reading of Elz.; ἀναμιμνήσκομαι is used with the accusative 2 Cor. vii. 15. Heb. x. 32. It is something more than remembered; he called to mind, and dwelt upon in his thoughts. An act of godly sorrow, and true repentance.

— ἐπιβαλών[1]] The meaning seems to be, He did not delay his

---

[1] The following summary of interpretations of this much controverted expression is from Meyer, p. 171. It will be observed, that after reciting them all he adopts that which has been received by the English Authorized Version: "ἐπι. ἔκλαιε nicht: cœpit flere (Vulg., Syr., Euth. Zig., Luther, Castal., Heins., Beng., Lucas., Mich., Kuinoel u. M.), da ἐπίβαλε κλαίειν stehen müsste, und dieses heissen würde: er warf sich darauf, betrieb es, zu weinen (vrgl. Erasm. u. Vatabl.: 'prorupit in fletum'): auch nicht: cùm se foras projecisset (Beza, Raphel, Vater u. M.), da ἐπιβαλὼν wohl heissen könnte: als er darauf los gestürzt war, nicht aber, als er hinausgestürzt war, zu welcher Alteration Matth. 26, 75. Luk. 22, 62 keineswegs berechtigen; auch nicht: vest- capiti injecta flevit (Theophyl., Salmas. de Hellen. Trap. p. 272, Calov., L. Bos, Wolf, Elsn., Krebs,

MATT. XXVII. 1 | LUKE. XXIII. 1

XV. (198/II) [1] Καὶ εὐθέως ἐπὶ τὸ πρωὶ συμβούλιον ποιήσαντες οἱ ἀρχιερεῖς μετὰ τῶν πρεσβυτέρων καὶ Γραμματέων, (199/I) καὶ ὅλον τὸ συνέδριον, δήσαντες τὸν Ἰησοῦν ἀπήνεγκαν καὶ παρέδωκαν τῷ Πιλάτῳ. (200/I) [2] καὶ ἐπηρώτησεν αὐτὸν ὁ Πιλάτος, Σὺ εἶ ὁ βασιλεὺς τῶν Ἰουδαίων; Ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Σὺ λέγεις. [3] Καὶ κατηγόρουν αὐτοῦ οἱ ἀρχιερεῖς πολλά. (201/IV) [4] Ὁ δὲ Πιλάτος πάλιν ἐπηρώτησεν αὐτὸν, λέγων, Οὐκ ἀποκρίνῃ οὐδέν; ἴδε, πόσα σου καταμαρτυροῦσιν· (202/II) [5] ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς οὐκέτι οὐδὲν ἀπεκρίθη, ὥστε θαυμάζειν τὸν Πιλάτον.

15 | 17 (203/IV) [6] Κατὰ δὲ ἑορτὴν ἀπέλυεν αὐτοῖς ἕνα δέσμιον ὃνπερ ἠτοῦντο. [7] Ἦν
16 | δὲ ὁ λεγόμενος Βαραββᾶς μετὰ τῶν συστασιαστῶν δεδεμένος, οἵτινες ἐν τῇ
 | 19 στάσει φόνον πεποιήκεισαν. [8] Καὶ ἀναβοήσας ὁ ὄχλος ἤρξατο αἰτεῖσθαι
 | καθὼς ἀεὶ ἐποίει αὐτοῖς· [9] ὁ δὲ Πιλάτος ἀπεκρίθη αὐτοῖς λέγων, Θέλετε ἀπολύσω
18 | ὑμῖν τὸν βασιλέα τῶν Ἰουδαίων; [10] ἐγίνωσκε γὰρ ὅτι διὰ φθόνον παραδεδώ-
20 | 18 κεισαν αὐτὸν οἱ ἀρχιερεῖς· (204/I) [11] οἱ δὲ ἀρχιερεῖς ἀνέσεισαν τὸν ὄχλον ἵνα
21 | 20 μᾶλλον τὸν Βαραββᾶν ἀπολύσῃ αὐτοῖς· (205/I) [12] ὁ δὲ Πιλάτος ἀποκριθεὶς πάλιν
22 | εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Τί οὖν θέλετε ποιήσω ὃν λέγετε βασιλέα τῶν Ἰουδαίων; [13] οἱ δὲ
23 | 21 22 πάλιν ἔκραξαν, Σταύρωσον αὐτόν· ὁ δὲ Πιλάτος ἔλεγεν αὐτοῖς, Τί γὰρ κακὸν
 | 23 ἐποίησεν; [14] οἱ δὲ περισσοτέρως ἔκραξαν, Σταύρωσον αὐτόν· (206/I) [15] ὁ δὲ
26 | 24 25 Πιλάτος, βουλόμενος τῷ ὄχλῳ τὸ ἱκανὸν ποιῆσαι, ἀπέλυσεν αὐτοῖς τὸν Βαραββᾶν, καὶ παρέδωκε τὸν Ἰησοῦν φραγελλώσας ἵνα σταυρωθῇ.

27 (207/IV) [16] Οἱ δὲ στρατιῶται ἀπήγαγον αὐτὸν ἔσω τῆς αὐλῆς, ὅ ἐστι πραιτώριον,
28 | καὶ συγκαλοῦσιν ὅλην τὴν σπεῖραν, [17] καὶ ἐνδύουσιν αὐτὸν πορφύραν, καὶ
29 | περιτιθέασιν αὐτῷ πλέξαντες ἀκάνθινον στέφανον, [18] καὶ ἤρξαντο ἀσπάζεσθαι
30 | αὐτόν, Χαῖρε, ὁ βασιλεὺς τῶν Ἰουδαίων. [19] Καὶ ἔτυπτον αὐτοῦ τὴν κεφαλὴν καλάμῳ, καὶ ἐνέπτυον αὐτῷ, καὶ τιθέντες τὰ γόνατα προσεκύνουν αὐτῷ·
31 | (208/VI) [20] καὶ ὅτε ἐνέπαιξαν αὐτῷ, ἐξέδυσαν αὐτὸν τὴν πορφύραν καὶ ἐνέδυσαν αὐτὸν τὰ ἱμάτια τὰ ἴδια, (209/I) καὶ ἐξάγουσιν αὐτὸν ἵνα σταυρώσωσιν αὐτόν.
32 | 26 [21] Καὶ ἀγγαρεύουσι παράγοντά τινα Σίμωνα Κυρηναῖον, ἐρχόμενον ἀπ' ἀγροῦ,
33 | 33 τὸν πατέρα Ἀλεξάνδρου καὶ Ῥούφου, ἵνα ἄρῃ τὸν σταυρὸν αὐτοῦ. (210/I) [22] Καὶ
 | φέρουσιν αὐτὸν ἐπὶ Γολγοθᾶ τόπον, ὅ ἐστι μεθερμηνευόμενον Κρανίου τόπος.
34 | (211/IV) [23] Καὶ ἐδίδουν αὐτῷ πιεῖν ἐσμυρνισμένον οἶνον· ὁ δὲ οὐκ ἔλαβε.
35 | (212/I) [24] Καὶ σταυρώσαντες αὐτὸν διαμερίζονται τὰ ἱμάτια αὐτοῦ, βάλλοντες

---

repentance, but immediately, although in the presence of persons who were thirsting for his Master's blood, he made public profession of sorrow and shame for his sin. He did not dismiss the thought of it from his mind (οὐκ ἀπέβαλε), but on the contrary he gave his mind to it; he, as it were, threw his whole mind and soul on his sin; ἀπέβαλε, injecit se. So Acts xxvii. 14, ἔβαλε κατ' αὐτῆς ἄνεμος, and Mark himself has (iv. 37), τὰ κύματα ἐπέβαλλεν εἰς τὸ πλοῖον. So παραδοὺς (sc. ἑαυτόν), Mark iv. 29. So Acts iv. 15; xxvii. 18, συνέβαλλον, and Acts xxvii. 43, ἀπορρίψαντας, i. e. having cast themselves out (of the ship). So ἔστρεψε Θεὸς (Acts vii. 42), God turned Himself, and ἀναστρέψαντες (Acts v. 22). And so ἔγειρε is used often by St. Mark (ii. 9. 11; iii. 3; v. 41; x. 49) for arise. Thus St. Peter presents a noble example of public penitence for a public sin; and commends the duty of consideration of our sins, and of cherishing a sense of them in our hearts, and of endeavouring to feel their guilt, instead of attempting to stifle the recollection of them, and of hardening our hearts against the motions and strivings of Conscience and God's Holy Spirit within us.

In the word ἐπιβαλὼν may there not also be a contrast of St. Peter's case with that of Judas? the one an encouragement to true repentance (μετάνοια), the other a warning against false (μεταμέλεια). (Cp. 2 Cor. vii. 10.) St. Peter ἐπιβαλὼν ἔκλαιε. Judas ῥίψας τὰ ἀργύρια ἀπήγξατο (Matt. xxvii. 5), he threw down the silver—and cast himself down, πρηνὴς γενόμενος, ἐλάκησε μέσος (Acts i. 18). The one was godly dejection and sorrow unto life; the other was worldly sorrow and self-precipitation unto death.

— ἔκλαιε] wept, and continued weeping; something more than ἔκλαυσε.

Ch. XV. 1. πρωΐ] See Matt. xxvii. 1.

18. χαῖρε, ὁ βασιλεύς] Thou that art the King—the reading of A, C, E, F, G, and other MSS.—a stronger expression than χαῖρε βασιλεῦ (Elz.), and a more remarkable confession of the truth; though they who uttered it knew it not.

19. τιθέντες τὰ γόνατα προσεκύνουν] This is mentioned only by St. Mark, who also particularizes the place from which Simon came and his sons, and in other respects adopts St. Matthew's narrative here.

21. ἀγγαρεύουσι] See Matt. v. 41.

— Ἀλεξάνδρου καὶ Ῥούφου] Perhaps members of the Roman Church. (See Rom. xvi. 13.) A confirmation of the opinion that St. Mark wrote for the Romans; he refers to some among them for a testimony to his truth.

Fischer, Rosenm., Paulus, Fritzsche u. M.), was eine im Contexte nicht berechtigte und bei ἐπιβάλλειν beispiellose Suppletion voraussetzt; auch nicht, und zwar aus demselben Grunde: nachdem er die Augen auf Jesum geworfen (Hammond, Palair.); auch nicht: addens, i. e. præterea (Grot.), was sprachwidrig ist, oder repetitis vicibus flevit (Cleric., Heupel, Münth.), was ein schon vorhergegangenes Weinen voraussetzen würde (Theophr. Char. 8. Diod. Sic. p. 345. B.). Sprachrichtig Ewald: einfallend mit den Thränen tiefer Reue in den Laut des ihn weckenden Hahns. S. Polyb. 1, 80, 1. 23, 1, 8. Stephan. Thes. ed. Hase III. p. 1526. Schweigh. Lex. Polyb. p. 244 f. So würde an ein lautes, dem Hahnenrufe gleichsam antwortendes Weinen zu denken sein. Sprachrichtig auch schon Casaub. (κατανοήσας], dann Wetst. ('cùm animadvertisset'), Kypke, Glöckl., de Wette, Bornem. (in d. Stud. u. Krit. 1843, p. 139): als er darauf gemerkt hatte, nämlich auf dieses ῥῆμα Jesu, als er seine Erwägung darauf gerichtet hatte (S. d. Beispiele zu diesem unzweifelhaften Gebrauch von ἐπιβάλλειν mit und ohne τὸν νοῦν oder τὴν διάνοιαν b. Wetst. p. 632 f. Kypke I. p. 196 f.). Letztere Fassung erscheint contextmässiger, weil ἀνεμνήσθη etc. vorhergeht, so dass ἐπιβαλὼν dem ἀνεμνήσθη als die sicht daran knüpfende weitere geistige Thätigkeit, die nun das Weinen zur Folge hatte, entspricht. Petrus erinnert sich des Wortes, sinnt nach darüber, weint." κλῆρον ἐπ' αὐτὰ τίς τί ἄρῃ. (215/X) 25 Ἦν δὲ ὥρα τρίτη καὶ ἐσταύρωσαν αὐτόν. XXVII. XXIII.

MATT. LUKE.

(214/I) 26 Καὶ ἦν ἡ ἐπιγραφὴ τῆς αἰτίας αὐτοῦ ἐπιγεγραμμένη, Ὁ ΒΑΣΙΛΕΥΣ 34
ΤΩΝ ΙΟΥΔΑΙΩΝ. (215/I) 27 Καὶ σὺν αὐτῷ σταυροῦσι δύο λῃστάς, ἕνα ἐκ 37 δεξιῶν καὶ ἕνα ἐξ εὐωνύμων αὐτοῦ. (216/VIII) 28 Καὶ ἐπληρώθη ἡ γραφὴ ἡ λέγουσα, 38 Καὶ μετὰ ἀνόμων ἐλογίσθη. (217/VI) 29 Καὶ οἱ παραπορευόμενοι ἐβλασφή- 39 35 μουν αὐτὸν, κινοῦντες τὰς κεφαλὰς αὐτῶν καὶ λέγοντες, Οὐὰ, ὁ καταλύων τὸν 40 ναὸν καὶ ἐν τρισὶν ἡμέραις οἰκοδομῶν, 30 σῶσον σεαυτὸν, καὶ κατάβα ἀπὸ τοῦ 37 σταυροῦ. (218/II) 31 Ὁμοίως καὶ οἱ ἀρχιερεῖς ἐμπαίζοντες πρὸς ἀλλήλους, μετὰ 41 τῶν Γραμματέων, ἔλεγον, Ἄλλους ἔσωσεν, ἑαυτὸν οὐ δύναται σῶσαι. (219/II) 32 Ὁ 42 Χριστὸς, ὁ βασιλεὺς τοῦ Ἰσραὴλ, καταβάτω νῦν ἀπὸ τοῦ σταυροῦ, ἵνα ἴδωμεν καὶ πιστεύσωμεν. (220/II) Καὶ οἱ συνεσταυρωμένοι αὐτῷ ὠνείδιζον αὐτόν. 33 Γε- 44 39 νομένης δὲ ὥρας ἕκτης, σκότος ἐγένετο ἐφ' ὅλην τὴν γῆν, ἕως ὥρας ἐννάτης· 45 44
(221/VI) 34 καὶ τῇ ὥρᾳ τῇ ἐννάτῃ ἐβόησεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς φωνῇ μεγάλῃ, λέγων, Ἐλωΐ 46
Ἐλωΐ, λαμᾶ σαβαχθανί; ὅ ἐστι, μεθερμηνευόμενον, Ὁ Θεός μου, ὁ Θεός μου, εἰς τί με ἐγκατέλιπες; 35 καὶ τινὲς τῶν παρεστηκότων ἀκούσαντες ἔλεγον, 47 Ἰδοὺ, Ἠλίαν φωνεῖ· (222/II) 36 δραμὼν δὲ εἷς καὶ γεμίσας σπόγγον ὄξους, περιθείς 48 τε καλάμῳ, ἐπότιζεν αὐτὸν λέγων, Ἄφετε, ἴδωμεν εἰ ἔρχεται Ἠλίας καθελεῖν 49 αὐτόν.
(223/I) 37 Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς ἀφεὶς φωνὴν μεγάλην ἐξέπνευσε. (224/II) 38 Καὶ τὸ κατα- 50 46 πέτασμα τοῦ ναοῦ ἐσχίσθη εἰς δύο ἀπὸ ἄνωθεν ἕως κάτω. (225/II) 39 Ἰδὼν δὲ 51 54 47
ὁ κεντυρίων ὁ παρεστηκὼς ἐξ ἐναντίας αὐτοῦ ὅτι οὕτω κράξας ἐξέπνευσεν, εἶπεν, Ἀληθῶς ὁ ἄνθρωπος οὗτος Υἱὸς ἦν Θεοῦ, (226/VI) 40 ἦσαν δὲ καὶ γυναῖκες 55 49
ἀπὸ μακρόθεν θεωροῦσαι, ἐν αἷς ἦν καὶ Μαρία ἡ Μαγδαληνὴ, καὶ Μαρία ἡ 56 τοῦ Ἰακώβου τοῦ μικροῦ καὶ Ἰωσῆ μήτηρ, καὶ Σαλώμη, 41 αἳ καὶ ὅτε ἦν ἐν τῇ Γαλιλαίᾳ ἠκολούθουν αὐτῷ καὶ διηκόνουν αὐτῷ· καὶ ἄλλαι πολλαὶ αἱ συν-αναβᾶσαι αὐτῷ εἰς Ἱεροσόλυμα.
(227/I) 42 Καὶ ἤδη ὀψίας γενομένης, ἐπεὶ ἦν παρασκευὴ, ὅ ἐστι προσάββατον, 57 54
43 ἐλθὼν Ἰωσὴφ ὁ ἀπὸ Ἀριμαθαίας, εὐσχήμων βουλευτὴς, ὃς καὶ αὐτὸς ἦν 50 51 προσδεχόμενος τὴν βασιλείαν τοῦ Θεοῦ, τολμήσας εἰσῆλθε πρὸς Πιλάτον, 58 52 καὶ ᾐτήσατο τὸ σῶμα τοῦ Ἰησοῦ· 44 ὁ δὲ Πιλάτος ἐθαύμασεν εἰ ἤδη τέθνηκε· καὶ προσκαλεσάμενος τὸν κεντυρίωνα, ἐπηρώτησεν αὐτὸν εἰ πάλαι ἀπέθανε· 45 καὶ γνοὺς ἀπὸ τοῦ κεντυρίωνος ἐδωρήσατο τὸ σῶμα τῷ Ἰωσήφ. (228/I) 46 Καὶ 59 53 ἀγοράσας σινδόνα, καθελὼν αὐτὸν ἐνείλησε τῇ σινδόνι, καὶ κατέθηκεν αὐτὸν 60 ἐν μνημείῳ ὃ ἦν λελατομημένον ἐκ πέτρας, καὶ προσεκύλισε λίθον ἐπὶ τὴν θύραν τοῦ μνημείου. (229/VI) 47 Ἡ δὲ Μαρία ἡ Μαγδαληνὴ καὶ Μαρία Ἰωσῆ 61 65 ἐθεώρουν ποῦ τίθεται.

---

25. ὥρα τρίτη] See on John xix. 14.

28. μετὰ ἀνόμων] Isa. liii. 12, where the LXX has ἐν τοῖς ἀνόμοις ἐλογίσθη. Ἐν τοῖς ἀνόμοις is the Hebr. אֶת־פֹּשְׁעִים (eth-posheim), from root פָּשַׁע (pasha), to revolt or rebel. (Cp. Gen. xviii. 23. 25.) The sense therefore is, He who was a perfect example of obedience was counted a rebel, and punished as such.

29. καί] See Matt. xxvii. 39.

33. ὥρας ἕκτης] St. Mark had related above (xv. 25), that He was crucified at the third hour, nine o'clock; the darkness began at noon and continued till three o'clock (Matt. xxvii. 45. Mark xv. 33. Luke xxiii. 44), when our Lord expired.

34. Ἐλωΐ] St. Mark uses the Syriac or vernacular form, Hebr. Ἠλί. See Matt. xxvii. 46. Glass. Phil. p. 150. "Even to His last breath," says Theophyl., "Christ honours the Hebrew Scripture."

39. κεντυρίων] St. Matt. (xxvii. 54) and St. Luke (xxiii. 47) have ἑκατόνταρχος here. (Cf. vv. 44, 45. See above, ii. 3.)

40. τοῦ μικροῦ] This epithet is added by St. Mark (cp. Matt. xv. 40), and appears to show that the other James, the son of Zebedee, had been made generally known to the Church in some remarkable manner when St. Mark wrote—probably by his martyrdom (Acts xii. 2); and perhaps the other St. James, when elevated to be Bishop of Jerusalem, had taken the name ὁ μικρὸς, in humility to distinguish him from the other Apostle of the same name. (Cp. James i. 9.)

— Σαλώμη] St. Matt. has here (xxvii. 56) μήτηρ τῶν υἱῶν Ζεβεδαίου. When St. Mark wrote they were known more generally by their own names; and it is probable that their mother's name was then commonly known to be Salome. He mentions her here by name in this honourable office of waiting at the cross, and as having followed Christ and ministered to Him. Before (x. 35) he had used the more paraphrastic expression, as on a less creditable occasion, and because her sons were concerned in, and parties to, the ambitious request.

42. παρασκευή] The name by which Friday is now generally known in Asia and Greece. This Friday, or προσάββατον (i. e. the preparation for the Sabbath), is called παρασκευὴ τοῦ πάσχα by St. John (xix. 14), where see note.

43. Ἀριμαθαίας] See Matt. xxvii. 57.

— τολμήσας] i. e. 'having taken courage.' For the use of τολμάω, see Phil. i. 14. Rom. x. 20. Up to this time he had only been a Disciple of Jesus in secret for fear of the Jews (see John xix. 38); but now, when the Disciples had fled, he, struck by the wonderful circumstances of the crucifixion, took courage, and went boldly to Pilate. See xiv. 72.

44. ἐθαύμασεν εἰ] 'wondered that.' So Joseph. Ant. ix. 9. 2, θαυμάζειν ἔλεγεν, εἰ τούτους ἡγεῖται θεούς. (Kuin.)

46. ἀγοράσας] The mention of buying here and in xvi. 1 seems to be made to mark the time, i. e. to intimate that in the former case the Sabbath had not begun, and that in the latter it was over. See on Luke xxiii. 56.

47. τίθεται] Present tense—as usual with St. Mark. See xi. 31.

MATT. XXVIII. 1 | LUKE. XXIV. 1

XVI. (230/VIII) [1] Καὶ διαγενομένου τοῦ σαββάτου Μαρία ἡ Μαγδαληνὴ καὶ Μαρία ἡ τοῦ Ἰακώβου καὶ Σαλώμη ἠγόρασαν ἀρώματα, ἵνα ἐλθοῦσαι ἀλείψωσιν αὐτόν· (231/I) [2] Καὶ λίαν πρωῒ τῆς μιᾶς σαββάτων ἔρχονται ἐπὶ τὸ μνημεῖον, ἀνατείλαντος τοῦ ἡλίου· [3] καὶ ἔλεγον πρὸς ἑαυτάς, Τίς ἀποκυλίσει 2 ἡμῖν τὸν λίθον ἐκ τῆς θύρας τοῦ μνημείου; [4] καὶ ἀναβλέψασαι θεωροῦσιν 3 3 ὅτι ἀποκεκύλισται ὁ λίθος· ἦν γὰρ μέγας σφόδρα. [5] Καὶ εἰσελθοῦσαι εἰς 4 τὸ μνημεῖον εἶδον νεανίσκον καθήμενον ἐν τοῖς δεξιοῖς, περιβεβλημένον στολὴν 5 5 λευκήν· καὶ ἐξεθαμβήθησαν. (232/II) [6] Ὁ δὲ λέγει αὐταῖς, Μὴ ἐκθαμβεῖσθε· 6 Ἰησοῦν ζητεῖτε τὸν Ναζαρηνὸν τὸν ἐσταυρωμένον· ἠγέρθη, οὐκ ἔστιν ὧδε· 6 ἴδε, ὁ τόπος ὅπου ἔθηκαν αὐτόν· [7] ἀλλ' ὑπάγετε, εἴπατε τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ 7 καὶ τῷ Πέτρῳ, ὅτι προάγει ὑμᾶς εἰς τὴν Γαλιλαίαν· ἐκεῖ αὐτὸν ὄψεσθε, καθὼς 8 9 εἶπεν ὑμῖν· (233/II) [8] καὶ ἐξελθοῦσαι ἔφυγον ἀπὸ τοῦ μνημείου· εἶχε δὲ αὐτὰς τρόμος καὶ ἔκστασις· καὶ οὐδενὶ οὐδὲν εἶπον· ἐφοβοῦντο γάρ.

a John 20. 14. [9] [a] Ἀναστὰς δὲ πρωῒ πρώτῃ σαββάτου ἐφάνη πρῶτον Μαρίᾳ τῇ Μαγδαληνῇ,

---

Ch. XVI. 1. καὶ διαγ. τ. σ.] See Greg. M. Hom. in Ev. xxi. p. 1527.

2. λίαν πρωΐ] See Matt. xxviii. 1.

4. ἦν γὰρ μέγας σφόδρα] The magnitude of the Stone was a reason why even in the dimness of the morning (λίαν πρωΐ) they could see that the Stone had been rolled away from the mouth of the cave, and that the Sepulchre was Open. They then go forward and see the bright raiment of the Angel shining in the darkness of the Cave at that early hour.

6. τὸν Ναζαρηνὸν τὸν ἐσταυρωμένον] The angel is not ashamed of the cross (see Gal. vi. 14), nor of the ignominious name Nazarene. The σταυρὸς of shame had become a netser (see Matt. ii. 23) of glory. "Radix amara crucis evanuit, flos vitæ cum fructibus surrexit in gloriâ." (Gloss.)

7. τῷ Πέτρῳ] These words of the Angel are in St. Mark only, and confirm the primitive statement that his Gospel was due in great measure to St. Peter (see above, viii. 29); and being recorded here, these words seem like the thankful acknowledgment of a contrite heart, overflowing with love for the Divine tenderness to him after his denial. (See xiv. 72.) And they beautifully illustrate our Lord's saying that there is joy among the Angels over one sinner that repenteth (Luke xv. 10).

9. ἀναστάς] The genuineness of this and the remaining verses of this Gospel has been questioned. It is said that St. Jerome affirms (ad Hedib. iv. 172), that almost all the Greek MSS. are without this portion of the Gospel [1]. But this allegation appears to be erroneous.

St. Jerome is writing to Hedibia, a lady living in France, who asks him a question concerning the time of our Lord's Resurrection, and His appearance to Mary Magdalene, and he is explaining in what manner the account in St. Mark's Gospel may be reconciled with that of the other Evangelists. Even suppose there be a discrepancy, he observes, then we may say that "non recipimus Marci testimonium, omnibus Græciæ libris pene hoc capitulum in fine non habentibus?"

But perhaps the word 'capitulum,' as here used by St. Jerome, does not mean any thing more than the section, consisting of three verses, in which our Lord's appearance to Mary Magdalene is described; and St. Jerome's meaning may be, that this 'capitulum' or κεφάλαιον, at the close of St. Mark's Gospel, is absent from many MSS.

But this sentence of St. Jerome ought not to have been construed to mean that the whole of the remaining portion of the Gospel, containing twelve verses (9—20), was not found in those MSS. Indeed, St. Jerome himself affirms that v. 14 is found in the Greek MSS. He says (adv. Pelagian. ii. 6), "In quibusdam exemplaribus et maximè in Græcis codicibus juxta Marcum in fine ejus Evangelii, scribitur, Postea, cùm occubuissent undecim non crediderunt."

The fact is, that the whole of this portion (9—21) is found in all the extant Greek Manuscripts of St. Mark, with one or two exceptions, particularly Codex B. or Vaticanus.

It is found in almost all the Versions of the Gospel; in the very ancient Curetonian Syriac Version lately discovered, verses 17—20 are preserved; the rest of the Version of this Gospel being lost.

It was also known to St. Irenæus, who quotes v. 19, and says (iii. 10, 6), "In fine Evangelii ait Marcus, et quidem Jesus postquàm locutus est eis, receptus est in cœlos et sedet ad dexteram Dei." And a confirmation of this testimony has been recently discovered and published by Dr. Cramer, Caten. in Marc. p. 449, ὁ μὲν οὖν Κύριος μετὰ τὸ λαλῆσαι αὐτοῖς—Θεοῦ. Εἰρηναῖος ὁ τῶν Ἀποστόλων πλησίον, ἐν τῷ πρὸς τὰς αἱρέσεις γ' λόγῳ τοῦτο ἀνήνεγκεν τὸ ῥητὸν ὡς Μάρκῳ εἰρημένον.

On the other hand, we have the assertion of Eusebius in the fourth century, endeavouring to solve a difficulty concerning the time of the Resurrection (Quæstion. ad Marinum, in Mai's Collec. Vatic. iv. p. 254, ed. Rom. 1847), and saying that the verses describing the Resurrection are not found in all copies (ἐν ἅπασιν ἀντιγράφοις) of the Gospel of St. Mark; and that the most accurate copies end at ἐφοβοῦντο γάρ. And he adds, "that portion which follows, being rarely read in some copies, and not in all, may be regarded as superfluous, especially if it is found to contradict the testimony of the other Evangelists."

"This solution (adds Eusebius) may be offered, and so the question may be disposed of."

But, as Cardinal Mai has shown (p. 255), this testimony as to the copies is controverted by other evidence; and, as if this way of removing the difficulty did not quite satisfy his own mind, Eusebius then proceeds to offer another solution.

It appears, also, that the Ammonian Sections and the Eusebian Canons were not originally continued beyond verse 8.

But the remarks of Eusebius (it may be observed) are by no means of the same force, as a direct testimony would be, affirming that this portion (vv. 9—20) is not found in the MSS. of this Gospel.

They are offered in reply to an objection, and in order to solve a difficulty; and it is evident that neither the testimony of Eusebius nor Jerome can be extended very far; they can only be applied to the MSS. which happened to come under their own personal observation.

For, if the verse itself had been absent from the MSS. generally in other parts of the world, the question proposed to Eusebius and Jerome would never have arisen. The mention of the difficulty in these verses is itself a proof that the verses were found in Manuscripts in other parts of the world, particularly in the West. And, inasmuch as St. Mark's Gospel was in all probability written in the West, and particularly for the use of the West, the testimony of the West is of more value than that of the "libri Græciæ," to which St. Jerome refers; and the evidence of St. Irenæus in the West, early in the third century, must outweigh that of Eusebius and that of St. Jerome in the East in the fourth; particularly that of St. Jerome, which is not in harmony with itself, and may have been borrowed from Eusebius. Besides, if it had been true, that these verses were not found in the Manuscripts generally in the fourth century, how is it, that of the many hundreds of Manuscripts which exist now there should be only one, of any note, in which these verses, and the whole of the residue, to the end of the Gospel, are not found? How is it that they exist in almost all the Versions of the Gospel? The circumstance that Eusebius and others appeal to the absence of these verses (9, 10) from some MSS., in order to get rid of a difficulty, suggests the belief that some copyists might be disposed to end the Gospel with verse 8, ἐφοβοῦντο γάρ, and so the omission might be propagated; and it also leads to a belief that these verses, supposed to contain a difficulty, were not very likely to be added to the Gospel of St. Mark by an unauthorized hand, or to be received as they have been received in almost every Manuscript and Version of the Gospel.

There is a testimony also, coming from the East, which deserves particular notice. Victor of Antioch (or, as some say, St. Cyril of Jerusalem [2]), in his Comment on St. Mark, says thus:—

"Since these verses ('Having risen on the first day of the week,' v. 9, &c.) are added in some copies to the Gospel of St. Mark, and since this account seems to disagree with that of St. Matthew, we will say that it might be answered that this conclusion which is found in some copies of St. Mark is spurious. But, in order that we may not seem to take refuge in a plea made ready for the occasion, we will read the verse thus,—"Having arisen," and then put a comma, and so introduce the words, "early on the first day of the week," &c.

---

[1] See Davidson's Introduction, p. 164, and Tregelles, on the printed Text of N. T. pp. 246—261, where are some excellent remarks on this subject.

[2] See Cramer's Catena, p. xxvi.

ἀφ' ἧς ἐκβεβλήκει [b] ἑπτὰ δαιμόνια· 10 ἐκείνη πορευθεῖσα ἀπήγγειλε τοῖς μετ' αὐτοῦ γενομένοις, πενθοῦσι καὶ κλαίουσι· (ℵ) 11 κἀκεῖνοι ἀκούσαντες ὅτι ζῇ καὶ ἐθεάθη ὑπ' αὐτῆς ἠπίστησαν. (ℵ) 12 Μετὰ δὲ ταῦτα δυσὶν ἐξ αὐτῶν περιπατοῦσιν ἐφανερώθη ἐν ἑτέρᾳ μορφῇ, πορευομένοις εἰς ἀγρόν· 13 κἀκεῖνοι ἀπελθόντες ἀπήγγειλαν τοῖς λοιποῖς· οὐδὲ ἐκείνοις ἐπίστευσαν. (ℵ) 14 [c] Ὕστερον ἀνακειμένοις αὐτοῖς τοῖς ἕνδεκα ἐφανερώθη· καὶ ὠνείδισε τὴν ἀπιστίαν αὐτῶν καὶ σκληροκαρδίαν, ὅτι τοῖς θεασαμένοις αὐτὸν ἐγηγερμένον οὐκ ἐπίστευσαν· 15 [d] καὶ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Πορευθέντες εἰς τὸν κόσμον ἅπαντα, κηρύξατε τὸ εὐαγγέλιον πάσῃ τῇ κτίσει· 16 ὁ πιστεύσας καὶ βαπτισθεὶς σωθήσεται· ὁ δὲ ἀπιστήσας κατακριθήσεται. 17 [e] Σημεῖα δὲ τοῖς πιστεύσασι ταῦτα παρακολουθήσει· ἐν τῷ ὀνόματί μου δαιμόνια ἐκβαλοῦσι, γλώσσαις λαλήσουσι καιναῖς, 18 [f] ὄφεις ἀροῦσι, κἂν θανάσιμόν τι πίωσιν, οὐ μὴ αὐτοὺς βλάψῃ, ἐπὶ ἀῤῥώστους χεῖρας ἐπιθήσουσι, καὶ καλῶς ἕξουσιν.

b Luke 8. 2.

c John 20. 19. 1 Cor. 15. 5, 7.

d John 15. 16.

e Luke 10. 17. Acts 5. 16. & 8. 7. & 16. 18. & 2. 4. & 10. 46.

f 1 Cor. 12. 10, 28.

(Matthaei, N. Test. ii. p. 269.) "But although" (cp. Cramer's Catena, p. 447), he adds, "the words 'having arisen,' &c., are not found in very many copies, because some thought them spurious, yet we have found them in very many of the accurate copies; and according to the copy of the Gospel received in Palestine (κατὰ τὸ Παλαιστιναῖον Εὐαγγέλιον Μάρκου), we have added them, as the true original of St. Mark has them, and the account of the Resurrection of our Lord,—that is, from the words 'having risen,' down to 'signs following. Amen.'" (vv. 9—20.)

Besides, it may be added, this portion is acknowledged by St. Hippolytus (scholar of St. Irenæus), Bishop of Portus, near Rome; and so the Roman Church, for which this Gospel was specially written, bears witness to it. (See Apost. Const. in Hippolyt. ed. Fabric. i. 245.) See also the xxixth Homily of Gregory the Great, Bishop of Rome, cited below, v. 17. It is acknowledged by St. Augustine (de Cons. Ev. iii. 24), and is commented on as authentic by Bede (p. 257), Theophylact (p. 263), and Euthym. (p. 116), and in the Catena Aurea.

Further, it is improbable that the Gospel ever ended with ἐφοβοῦντο γάρ. Such a conclusion is very abrupt, and, in this respect, without a parallel in the New Testament. Again; all the Gospels, and indeed all the Books of the New Testament (as might be expected), end happily. This note of fear is very unlike the consummation of the Gospel, which communicates "glad tidings of great joy."

There is, however, internal evidence, which would seem to intimate that this portion is not from the pen of St. Mark himself. Many expressions occur in this section which are not found in any portion of St. Mark; e. g. πορεύομαι used thrice (10, 12, 15), and in no place of St. Mark: θεάομαι used twice (11, 14), and in no other place of St. Mark: ἕτερος, used v. 12, and in no other place of St. Mark: ἐκεῖνος, put absolutely without a substantive three times (10, 13, 20), and in no other place of St. Mark; and ὁ Κύριος used twice for Christ (19, 20), and in no other place of St. Mark; and the less common words, παρακολουθέω, ἀπακολουθέω, συνεργέω, βεβαιόω.

In a word,—if we were to be called upon to determine this question on internal evidence alone, we might be disposed to conjecture that this portion was due rather to St. Luke or St. John than St. Mark.

However, arguments derived from the style of authors inspired by the Holy Ghost, are to be used with great caution. The same Spirit Who prompted and enabled them to write, might also prompt and enable them to write in different styles on different occasions, and thus show more clearly their dependence on Himself. How different is the style of the two Epistles of St. Mark's master—St. Peter! How different the style of the Apocalypse and the Gospel of St. John!

So great a change as that wrought by the Resurrection of Christ might suggest to St. Mark a reason for change of style; as in music changes are made to mark changes of action and feeling.

But, after all, the question of authorship is comparatively of little moment. It is sufficient to know that this portion of the Gospel is received by the Universal Church bearing witness to it in the great body of Manuscripts and Versions, and that it is received and read by her as Holy Scripture; in short, that it is received as the Word of God by the Spirit of God in the Church of God.

Let us add, that the fact to which reference has been made, viz. the uncertainty of its authorship, is one of great importance and significance.

This portion may not have been penned by St. Mark himself. This very doubt brings before our minds the momentous truth, that it is not man who is the Author of Scripture, but God.

We do not know who was employed by the Holy Spirit to write the Book of Job, or the conclusion of the Books of Deuteronomy, or of Joshua, or many of the Psalms, but we receive them as Canonical Scripture, and as the work of the Holy Ghost. If we knew by whose hand every book of Scripture was penned, we might be tempted to imagine that the inspiration of Scripture depended on the writers by whose instrumentality Scripture was written, and not on the Holy Ghost, who employed them. Our ignorance of the human instrument raises our eyes to the Divine Agent; it leads us to consider why we receive the Books of Scripture as Scripture; not because they were indited by Moses or by David, by St. Matthew or by St. Paul,—but because they are inspired by the Holy Ghost, and have been received as such by the Voice of Christ speaking in His Body, the Church, to which He has promised His presence and guidance for ever. Let, therefore, this portion of the Gospel not have been written by St. Mark, still it is as much a part of the Gospel as what was written by him; and it serves to bring out forcibly the great truth, that though all the Books of Scripture were anonymous, they would be no less Scripture than they are now. It reminds us of our duty to distinguish, in sacred things, the human channel from the divine source. It speaks to us of the solemn obligation under which we are to receive the Scriptures and the Sacraments,—not because they are ministered to us by the hands of this or that man, however holy he may be,—but because they flow from the one fountain and well-spring of all Truth and Grace,—the Wisdom and Love of GOD.

12. ἐν ἑτέρᾳ μορφῇ] cp. Luke xxiv. 16.

14—20. ὕστερον—σημείων] See an excellent exposition of these words in Greg. M. in Ev. hom. xxix. p. 159.

15. τὸ εὐαγγέλιον] See above, x. 29.

— πάσῃ τῇ κτίσει] לְכָל בְּרִיָה (col biryah), equivalent to all men, that is not to Jews only and Samaritans, but Gentiles. (Rosen.)

16. ὁ πιστεύσας] οὐκ εἶπε, ὅτι ὁ πιστεύσας μόνον, οὐδὲ, ὅτι ὁ βαπτισθεὶς μόνον· ἀλλ' ἀμφότερα συνίζευξε· θάτερον γὰρ θατέρου χωρὶς οὐ σώζει τὸν ἄνθρωπον. Euthym., and cp. Theophyl. here.

17. σημεῖα] The objection that such miracles as these, wrought in the primitive times by the faithful, in evidence of the truth of Christianity, are not now seen in the Church as signs of belief in Christ, is considered by Greg. M. in Ev. hom. xxix., whose words well deserve to be carefully read, especially by those who contend that the presence of Miracles is a Note of the Church. His words will perhaps have more weight with them, as coming from one of the greatest of the Bishops of Rome. "Signa autem eos qui credituri sunt, hæc sequentur. In nomine meo dæmonia ejicient; linguis loquentur novis; serpentes tollent; et si mortiferum quid biberint, non eis nocebit; super ægros manus imponent, et bene habebunt. Num quidnam, fratres mei, quia ista signa non facitis, minimè creditis? Sed hæc necessaria in exordio Ecclesiæ fuerunt. Ut enim fides cresceret, miraculis fuerat nutrienda: quia et nos cùm arbusta plantamus, tamdiu eis aquam infundimus, quousque ea in terrâ jam convaluisse videamus; et si semel radicem fixerint, in rigando cessamus. Hinc est enim quod Paulus dicit: Lingua in signum sunt, non fidelibus, sed infidelibus. Habemus de his signis atque virtutibus quæ adhuc subtiliùs considerare debeamus. Sancta quippe Ecclesia quotidie spiritaliter facit quod tunc per Apostolos corporaliter faciebat. Nam sacerdotes ejus cùm per exorcismi gratiam manum credentibus imponunt, et habitare malignos spiritus in eorum mente contradicunt, quid aliud faciunt, nisi dæmonia ejiciunt? Et fideles quique qui jam vitæ veteris secularia verba derelinquunt, sancta autem mysteria insonant, Conditoris sui laudes et potentiam, quantùm prævalent, narrant, quid aliud faciunt, nisi novis linguis loquuntur? Quidam bonis suis exhortationibus malitiam de alienis cordibus auferunt, serpentes tollunt. Et dum pestiferas suasiones audiunt, sed tamen ad operationem pravam minimè retrahuntur, mortiferum quidem est quod bibunt, sed non eis nocebit. Qui quoties proximos suos in bono opere infirmari conspiciunt, dum eis totâ virtute concurrunt, et exemplo suæ operationis illorum vitam roborant qui in propriâ actione titubant, quid aliud faciunt, nisi super ægros manus imponunt, ut bene habeant? Quæ nimirum miracula tantò majora sunt quantò spiritalia; tantò majora sunt, quantò per hæc non corpora, sed animæ suscitantur; hæc itaque signa, fratres carissimi, auctore Deo si vultis vos facitis. Ex illis enim exterioribus signis obtineri vita ab hæc operantibus non valet. Nam corporalia illa miracula ostendunt aliquando sanctitatem, non autem faciunt; hæc verò spiritalia, quæ aguntur in mente, virtutem vitæ non ostendunt, sed faciunt. Illa habere et mali possunt; istis autem perfrui nisi boni non possunt.

g Acts 1. 2, 3.
h Luke 24. 51.
i Ps. 110. 1. Acts 7. 55.
k Acts 5. 12. & 14. 3. 1 Cor. 3. 4. Heb. 2. 4.

19 Ὁ μὲν οὖν Κύριος μετὰ τὸ [g] λαλῆσαι αὐτοῖς [h] ἀνελήφθη εἰς τὸν οὐρανὸν, καὶ ἐκάθισεν ἐκ δεξιῶν [i] τοῦ Θεοῦ· 20 ἐκεῖνοι δὲ ἐξελθόντες ἐκήρυξαν πανταχοῦ, τοῦ Κυρίου [k] συνεργοῦντος, καὶ τὸν λόγον βεβαιοῦντος διὰ τῶν ἐπακολουθούντων σημείων.

Unde de quibusdam Veritas dicit: Multi mihi dicent in die illâ, Domine, Domine, nonne in nomine tuo prophetavimus, et in nomine tuo dæmonia ejecimus, et in nomine tuo virtutes multas fecimus? Et tunc confitebor illis, quia non novi vos; discedite à me qui operamini iniquitatem. Nolite ergo, fratres carissimi, amare signa quæ possunt boni cum reprobis habere communia, sed hæc quæ modò diximus, caritatis atque pietatis miracula amare; quæ tantò securiora sunt, quantò et occulta; et de quibus apud Dominum eò major sit retributio, quò apud homines minor est gloria."

19. μετὰ τὸ λαλῆσαι αὐτοῖς] It has been alleged by some recent Expositors, that it is implied in these words that Our Lord, almost as soon as He had uttered them, ascended up into heaven; and that the narrative at the close of this Gospel is not reconcilable with the assertion of St. Luke (Acts i. 3), that our Lord remained on earth forty days after His Resurrection. See, for example, Meyer, pp. 191, 192, who admits the fact of the Ascension, but yet, on such grounds as this, rejects the Evangelical account of it.

But it is certain that the word λαλεῖν = Hebr. דִּבֶּר has a very wide signification in the N. T. It signifies to teach, to instruct, by preaching and by other oral communication; and when spoken of Christ, by divine Revelation.

Thus John ix. 29, Μωυσῇ λελάληκεν ὁ Θεὸς, God has revealed Himself to Moses. John xv. 22, εἰ μὴ ἦλθον, καὶ ἐλάλησα αὐτοῖς, if I have not come and preached to them. See also its use in Mark xiii. 11, three times; and Acts v. 40: and, therefore, inasmuch as one of the purposes of our Lord's remaining on earth after His Resurrection, was to instruct His Apostles in the things pertaining to the kingdom of God (Acts i. 3), the present passages may be illustrated by that statement, and be construed to mean that (μετὰ τὸ λαλῆσαι αὐτοῖς) after He had fully instructed them by His oral teaching, He ascended into heaven. On the probable reasons for our Lord's sojourn on earth for the term forty days before His Ascension, see on Matt. iv. 2.

— ἀνελήφθη] For an eloquent homily on the Ascension, see Epiphan. ii. 285, and cp. Leo, pp. 152—154: cp. Barrow's Sermons, v. 79—103.

ΤΟ ΚΑΤΑ ΛΟΥΚΑΝ

ΕΥΑΓΓΕΛΙΟΝ.

INTRODUCTORY NOTE TO ST. LUKE'S GOSPEL.

"Luke, a native of Antioch, a Physician, and a companion especially of St. Paul, and also conversant with the other Apostles, has left us specimens of the art which he derived from them, of healing souls, in two divinely inspired Books (ἐν δυσὶ θεοπνεύστοις βιβλίοις), his Gospel and the Acts of the Apostles." (Euseb. H. E. iii. 4.)

St. Mark and St. Luke wrote at a time when what they wrote could be tested and approved, not only by the Church of Christ, but also by Apostles themselves, still surviving in the flesh. (St. Aug. de Consensu Evang. iii. 9.)

On the word 'Lucas,' an abbreviation of 'Lucanus,' see Bentley, Ep. ad Mill. p. 82.

St. Luke wrote specially for the Gentile Christians (see Origen ap. Euseb. vi. 25. Chrys. Hom. in Matt. i. Townson on the Gospels, pp. 181—196), a circumstance from which Marcion took occasion to epitomize his Gospel (see Thilo, Codex Apocryphus, i. 401—486); whence a strong argument is derivable for its authenticity even from Heresy itself. See Iren. ii. 7 and iii. 14. 4; Tertullian c. Marcion. iv. 2; and Dr. W. H. Mill's Observations on Pantheistic principles, ii. pp. 16—20.

"Duo absque temeritate statui possunt:

"1mo. Evangelium eodem ferme tempore à Lucâ exactum quo Acta Apostolorum.

"2ndo. Lucam scripsisse post Matthæum et Marcum" (Valck. p. 6, where he gives reason for this opinion). If (as is probable, see below, p. 134, note [1]) St. Paul refers to St. Luke's Gospel in the Second Epistle to the Corinthians (2 Cor. viii. 18), St. Luke's Gospel was written before A.D. 58, and the Acts were not completed before A.D. 61.

On this subject see further the General Remarks introductory to the Gospels in this Volume.

The following Observations, from an unpublished Academical Lecture by the present Editor, may find a place here. They commence with a reference to the beginning of St. Luke's Gospel, ἐπειδήπερ, κ.τ.λ.

"Equidem tria potissimùm in hoc loco indaganda esse statui,

"Primùm, quinam fuerint illi multi, qui, ante Lucæ Evangelium conditum, commentarios contexere adorti sunt earum rerum de quibus apud Christianos certissimè constat;

"Deinde, quo tempore et loco, quis, quali demum consilio, hujus Evangelii Scriptor ad opus suum pangendum accesserit;

"Postremò,—quod factâ Theophili mentione proponitur,—quorumnam potissimùm in usum divinos suos annales confecisse putandus sit?

"Jam verò, quod ad primam attinet earum rerum de quibus disceptationem instituimus, uno ore Antiquitas Christiana profitetur πολλοὺς illos, de quibus loquitur Evangelista, minimè fuisse divino instinctu afflatos; nedum Sanctos illos Duumviros, Evangelistæ nostri decessores, hìc intelligi debere; ita ut eorum opera, quorum mentionem Lucas fecerit, ad nostram memoriam haud pervenisse, non adeo sit deplorandum.

"Verè enim dixisse videtur Ambrosius[1], Origenis, ut solet, vestigia premens, πολλοὶ ἐπεχείρησαν, 'Multi sunt conati, sed Dei gratiâ destituti sunt; Multi Evangelia scribere sunt adorti, quæ boni nummularii non probarent. Contrà verò ii, qui Spiritu Sancto imbuti sunt, non tam conati sunt efficere, quàm, gratiâ Dei tantùm non cogente, opus omni numero absolutum executi. Non conatus est Matthæus, non conatus est Marcus, non conatus est Joannes; sed divino Spiritu ubertatem dictorum rerumque omnium ministrante, sine ullo molimine cœpta sua compleverunt.' Hæc fere ille. Cui quidem sententiæ adstipulantur interpretes è Græcis, ut alios taceam, Euthymius[2] et Theophylactus, Chrysostomi, ut jure suspicemini, verba exscribentes. οἱ τοιοῦτοι ἐπεχείρησαν, οὐ μέντοι ἐτελείωσαν, ἐπεὶ χωρὶς θείας χάριτος ἤρξαντο· οἱ μέντοι ὀλίγοι, οἷον ὁ Ματθαῖος, ὁ Μάρκος, οὐκ ἐπεχείρησαν μόνον, ἀλλὰ καὶ ἐτελείωσαν, τὸ γὰρ τελειοποιὸν πνεῦμα εἶχον.

"Quare illud, quæso, animadvertite, ex his Evangelistæ nostri verbis insigne testimonium ad fidem Evangelistarum corroborandam existere. Unde enim jam factum est, ut multi illi, de quo agit Lucas, vix fando tenus nobis innotescant, ut pauci autem illi,—Quatuor Evangelistas dico, nusquam non integri et incorrupti legantur, tractentur, audiantur, summâ cum hominum veneratione celebrentur, nisi quòd ab ipsis Christianæ Religionis primordiis Ecclesia Christi judicium suum de utrisque pronuntiaverit; ita ut illorum interitus, horum verò non conservatio tantùm, sed publica et universa acceptio, duplici eâque validissimâ probatione divinam Evangeliorum auctoritatem confirmet.

"Quod ad tempus jam spectat in quo hoc Evangelium confectum fuisse existimemus, satis liquet, utriusque operis præfatione inter se collatâ, ante Acta Apostolorum conscripta Lucam ad Evangelium exarandum accessisse. Jam verò, quum Acta in anno post Christum natum sexagesimo primo, si calculum Dionysianum sequamur, subsistant, Nerone jam septimum annum imperante, hinc forsan colligi potest Evangelii nostri scriptionem decimo fere ante capta Hierosolyma anno non esse posteriorem. Cui quidem supputationi suffragatur satis locuples auctor Hieronymus[3].

"Sed ut ad ipsum scriptorem redeamus. Eum è sacro Apostolorum Collegio non fuisse exinde apparet, quòd in hoc Evangelii exordio se ex oculatis testibus suos annales hausisse profitetur, et quòd, venerabundo in eos affectu commotus, haud rarò duodecim viros illos præclaro illo titulo[4] τοὺς ἀποστόλους designet, id quod ipsi Apostoli Matthæus et Joannes (quibus addimus Petrum, Divi Marci ore loquentem), quâ erant modestiâ, nunquam fecisse reperientur; et quòd, si quandò illi præ humanâ infirmitate titubaverint, vel in officio suo claudicaverint quum ipsi suas vacillationes cum sedulâ et anxiâ quâdam commemoratione literis consignaverint, ille, satis jam ab aliis consultum esse veritati videns, vel silentio presserit, vel benigno sermone mitigaverit.

---

[1] Ambrose ii. p. 428. Origen v. 86.
[2] Euthym. Zyg. ii. 203. Theophyl. i. 269.
[3] Cat. Script. Eccl. p. 271.
[4] Luc. vi. 13; ix. 10; xvii. 5; xxiv. 10.

"Nec minùs eum ex Palæstinâ non esse oriundum plurima declarant indicia. Oratio pura, simplex, inaffectata, elegantiam fere Atticam redolens; et ab eo loquendi genere longè remota quod vernaculum erat Judæis; id quod vobis magis mirandum videbitur, cùm, quòd Jesus in sermonibus suis linguam Syro-chaldaicam usurpaverit, is, qui, quod ille dixisset narrando vellet exprimere, verborum colorem et habitum non minùs quàm rerum ordinem et seriem inde esset mutuaturus. Lucam igitur deditâ operâ hanc dicendi rationem declinâsse, jure, ut opinor, fateamini.

"Et quemadmodum aliâ regione quàm Palæstinâ editum fuisse, ita ad alios quàm Palæstinæ incolas præsertim scripsisse, testem maximè idoneum, ipsum Evangelistam, licet excitare. Nam lectores suos in Chorographiâ sacrâ planè hospites videtur cogitâsse, et ad talium captum orationem suam accommodâsse.

"Hinc Mons Olivarum, notissimus Judæis, illi est ὄρος τὸ καλούμενον τῶν ἐλαιῶν[1]. Hinc Capernaum, florentissimum illud et nobilissimum oppidum in Galilæâ esse situm indicare non supersedit; quod quis quæso Judæus[2], ad Judæos scribens, operæ pretium esset existimaturus? Hinc Gadarenos è regione esse Galilææ monere non otiosum putavit[3]. Hinc in ipso Hierosolymorum nomine à cæteris variavit. Nam quum Matthæus et Marcus semel tantùm uterque, et Joannes ne semel quidem, urbem illam Judææ primariam, Ἱερουσαλήμ, sed semper Ἱεροσόλυμα dixerint, contrà Lucas veritus fortasse, ne Ἱεροσόλυμα à Græco fonte derivari videretur, illam triginta fere in locis Ἱερουσαλὴμ appellavit[4].

"Ut ad Hebræos Lucam non scripsisse liquet, sic (ut ad illam quæstionem pergamus, quam in Theophili nomine tractandam accepimus) in Græcorum præcipuè usus, Evangelium suum elucubrâsse, si internam operis formam et dictionem scrutamini, haudquaquam ut opinor estis dubitaturi.

"Nam ut hanc non modò tutissimam sed etiam proximam et maximè compendiariam argumentandi viam insistamus, ut ad ipsam Evangelistæ, inquam, dictionem provocemus, et quædam exempla ex hoc fonte delibemus, dum cæteri Evangelistæ omnes uno ore Dominum Nostrum voce Ῥαββὶ et Ῥαββουνὶ salutent, Lucas ex composito hujus appellationis usum videtur detrectâsse; et eam Hellenicâ dictione Ἐπιστάτης[5] reliquis tribus nusquam adhibitâ permutavit. Hinc et illud ὡσαννὰ[6], à cæteris omnibus usurpatum, circumloquendo defugit. Hinc, cùm homo paralysi affectus apud Matthæum et Marcum octies παραλυτικὸς[7] vocetur, Lucas videtur sensisse activam hanc formam parùm Græcè passivo sensu efferri, eamque nunquam adhibuit sed ejus in loco vocem παραλελυμένος cæteris Evangelistis planè ignotam reposuit; hinc quum ille hoc morbo laborans apud cæteros Evangelistas[8] reclinatus in κραββάτῳ, quod Romanum vocabulum est, inducatur, apud[9] Lucam Græco κλινιδίῳ bajulatur; cùm apud[10] illos tributum κῆνσος Latinè, idem apud illum φόρος Græcè nuncupatur; si illi vocem παιδίον frequentant, ille aliquantum varietatis amantior hujus vice paulò elegantiùs βρέφος[11] sæpissimè usurpat, quod illi ne in uno quidem loco adhibuisse invenientur. Hinc denique aqua illa Galilææ sive Tiberiadis in historiâ sacrâ decantatissima, quam cæteri Evangelistæ semper θάλασσαν et ne semel quidem λίμνην appellant, ab illo contra ad Græcos scribente, maris aperti gnarissimos et rerum nauticarum peritissimos, semper λίμνη tantùm, nunquam verò θάλασσα appellatur.

"Minimè vos latet, quod ab auctoribus idoneis et venerandæ antiquitatis accepimus, Marcum quidem suum Evangelium Petri operâ exarâsse, et in usum Ecclesiæ Romanæ potissimùm literis consignâsse. Satis erit Hieronymum[12] hujus rei testem appellâsse, cui diù apud Damasum commoranti historia Ecclesiæ Romanæ probè erat perspecta. Cujus quidem testimonii adstipulantur plurima et luculenta indicia in ipso Evangelio passim sparsa. Sed, ut cæteros missos faciamus, unicum tantùm è Marci Evangelio locum citâsse non pœnitebit, qui cùm Divi Lucæ de eâdem re verbis collatus id quod suprà memoravimus Marcum Latinis Lucam verò Græcis scripsisse, unâ eâdemque ratione, declarabit. Rem ipsam videamus.

"Apostolis jam ad suum munus designatis, eos præceptis instruit Jesus quomodò se in officio administrando gerere debeant. Id verò in memoriam vestram revocetis, eandem divini Magistri hortationem, à duobus illis Evangelistis, levi quidem si vultis inter se varietate, sed quæ haudquaquam parvi momenti existimanda sit, esse enunciatam. Recordamini igitur, quæso, Marcum præceptum dominicum, ne secum Apostoli nummos portarent, ita extulisse, μὴ αἴρετε εἰς ζώνην χαλκὸν[13],—Lucam verò, verbis leviter immutatis μὴ αἴρετε ἀργύριον[14]. Quid quæso planius? Apud Romanos enim, ut nemini non est cognitissimum, nummi non argentum (quod iis res prorsus alia) sed æs vulgo audiebant; et nummos, quod ex uno illo Horatiano satis liquet, 'Ibit eò quò vis qui zonam perdidit' inquit, in zonam conjicere erat usitatissimum. Hinc igitur illa Marci ad Romanos scribentis μὴ αἴρετε εἰς ζώνην χαλκόν. Quæ omnia apud Græcos longè secùs erant. Nam primùm pecunia iis neque χρυσὸς neque χαλκός, sed quod hìc Lucas posuit, ἀργυρὸς vel ἀργύριον vulgo vocabatur, eò quòd Græcia, et præsertim Attica, argenti erat feracissima, auri verò non item; ita ut ante Alexandri M. tempora aurum signatum rarissimè Græcorum manibus tereretur; deinde iis familiare erat nummos in sacco asservare quem illi βαλάντιον nominabant, de quâ voce operæ pretium erit admonere, eum quatuor in locis à Lucâ[15] ad Græcos scribente usurpari, nusquam verò alias, ne uno quidem in loco, in Sacro Codice apparere.

"Veniam mihi detis, si pauca alia huc pertinentia adnotavero. Lucernam accendi, si actionem ipsam spectatis, res est sanè minimi momenti; sed videte, quæso, in verbis quibus describitur quantum insit ponderis ad id quod volumus demonstrandum. Nam cùm cæteri Evangelistæ[16] καίειν λύχνον dixerint, Lucæ id genus loquendi se probare non poterat, ut Græcorum suorum religiosis auribus displiciturum, quibus consulens id in ἅπτειν λύχνον[17] semper reformavit. Et, ut in argumento tenui, sed haud aspernando, paulò diutiùs immoremur, illud eodem consilio factum videtur, quod cùm cæteri Evangelistæ ἄλλος[18] pro ἕτερος promiscuè (rariùs ab illis usurpato) frequentaverint, Lucas solus huic voci ἄλλος rerum diversitatis cum oppositione quâdam sensum reservaverit; et cùm vocula ἅπας pro πᾶς, omnis, vix septies in cæteris Evangeliis reperiatur et in Joannis Evangelio ne semel quidem, à Lucâ varietatis et elegantiæ imprimis studioso quadragies et ampliùs usurpetur.

"Neque verò,—ut hoc quoque animadvertamus,—puriora tantùm et exquisitiora vocabula quàm cæteri consectatus fuisse videtur, sed verborum quoque formas venustiores adamâsse. Ne longè abeam; apud illos ἐγάμησα[19] reperias, apud hunc autem ἔγημα; et plurima alia sincerioris Atticismi exempla. Neque illud vos præterit apud nullum Sacræ Scripturæ auctorem quàm apud Evangelistam nostrum tam crebrò legi (vel in Actis vel in Evangelio) composita illa ἀτενίζω[20], ὁμοθυμαδὸν, ἰσάγγελος, ἐνώπιον, et similia; quæ si nihil aliud, certè illud demonstrant, eum scribendi varietate,

---

[1] xix. 29. Cf. Luc. ii. 4, ἥτις καλεῖται Βηθλεὲμ: vii. 11, πόλιν καλουμένην Ναΐν. The form Ναζαρὲτ seems preferable in St. Luke, as less harsh to Greek ears, than Ναζαρέθ.

[2] Luc. iv. 31.

[3] Luc. viii. 26.

[4] Matth. xxii. 24. Luc. xx. 28.

[5] Matth. xxvi. 49. Marc. ix. 5; xi. 21; x. 51. Joh. i. 38; i. 50; iii. 2. 26; iv. 31; vi. 25; ix. 2; xi. 8, et Luc. v. 5; viii. 24. 45; ix. 33. 49; xvii. 13.

[6] Matth. xxi. 9. 15. Marc. xi. 9, 10. Joh. xii. 13.

[7] Matth. iv. 24; ix. 2. 6. Marc. ii. 3—5. 9, 10. Luc. v. 18. 24. Cf. Act. viii. 7; ix. 33.

[8] Marc. ii. 4. 9. 11, 12. Joh. v. 8—12.

[9] Luc. v. 19. 24. Cf. Act. v. 15; ix. 33.

[10] Matth. xvii. 25; xxii. 17. 19. Marc. xii. 14. Luc. xx. 22; xxiii. 2.

[11] Luc. i. 41. 44; ii. 12. 16; xviii. 15.

[12] Hieron. Script. Eccl. i. p. 272.

[13] Marc. vi. 8.

[14] Luc. ix. 3.

[15] Luc. x. 4; xii. 33; xxii. 35, 36.

[16] Matth. v. 15. Marc. iv. 21, al. λύχνος ἔρχεται.

[17] Luc. viii. 16; xi. 33; xv. 8; xxii. 55.

[18] Cf. Matth. xiii. 5, Marc. iv. 5, Luc. viii. 6, ὃ μὲν ὃ μὲν ὃ μὲν
ἄλλα δὲ καὶ ἄλλο καὶ ἕτερον
ἄλλα δὲ καὶ ἄλλο καὶ ἕτερον
ἄλλα δὲ καὶ ἄλλο καὶ ἕτερον

[19] Matth. xxii. 25; xix. 9, 10. Marc. vi. 17. Luc. xiv. 20.

[20] "ἀτενίζω { bis Ev. Luc. / decies Act. A. } —a nullo alio Evangelistâ usurpatur.
ἐνώπιον { bis et vicies Ev. / quatuor decies Act. A. } —semel in Joanne, sæpe in Apocalyp. ὁμοθυμαδὸν { undecies / à Luc. Act. A. } —a nullo Evang. usurpat.

vi, et venustate, non mediocriter valuisse. Quamobrem rectissimè ab Hieronymo dicitur ad Damasum scribente 'Inter omnes Evangelistas Græcè sermonis eruditissimus.'

"Videtis jam ut opinor, quorum potissimùm commodis studere voluerit divinus noster annalium conditor. Neque absque fuerit, si aliam quandam rem, ad institutum nostrum pertinentem, non intactam prætermisero. Hodiernam Græciæ linguam ut ad Septuagintæ Interpretum Versionem explanandam magnæ esse utilitatis, ita Novi quoque Fœderis dictioni illustrandæ magnoperè inservire, pauci sunt reperiendi qui vel infitientur vel ignorent. Sed illud quoque additum velim, dictu esse difficile, quot loquendi usus peculiares Evangelista noster frequentaverit, qui à majoribus suis rarissimè inter scribendum adhibiti ab incolis Græciæ nunc quàm creberrimè usurpantur: cujus quidem rei nulla probabilior reddi ratio potest, quàm dictionem Evangelii, ad Græcorum usus destinati, in eorum quasi linguâ inveteravisse. Ut brevi rem præcidam, ὁμιλέω colloquendi sensu à Lucâ positum eandem hodie vim obtinet—Luc. xxiv. 14, 15. Act. xx. 11; xxiv. 26—nunquam ab alio quoquam Scriptore N. T. usitatum.

"βρέχω, pluo; φθάνω, venio, poterant recenseri, sed in aliis quoque extant Evangeliis. Sic γενσάμενος, pransus (Act. x. 10; xx. 11); ὀνόματα, personæ (Act. i. 15); χρόνοι[1], anni (viii. 27; xx. 9; xxiii. 8); βουνὸς, mons (iii. 1; xxiii. 30); quæ apud hunc leguntur, familiari Græcorum sermone, eodem sensu, usurpantur, vocibus quæ antiquitùs has significationes obtinebant, pænè jam in oblivionem lapsis. Utrum ille quas diximus locutiones à vernaculâ Græcorum oratione sumpserit, an aliunde hauserit, in medio relinquimus; id verò conjici potest, à publicè lectitato in synaxibus Ecclesiasticis hoc Evangelio, hoc commodum manavisse, ut non modò hæ dictiones conservatæ sint, sed ut lingua ipsa Græca, post tot annorum lapsus, et tot rerum publicarum vicissitudines, adhuc vivat et vigeat.

"Non injucundum erit observatu, hanc quam ab ipso Evangelio de auctoris consilio sententiam eruimus, externis testimoniis confirmari. Ut pauca afferam, Gregorius Nazianzenus[2] Ecclesiæ Constantinopolitanæ antistes eum Græcis scripsisse disertè asseverat; et Patrum Latinorum eruditissimus, Gregorii auditor, Hieronymus[3], 'Lucas,' inquit, 'discipulus Apostoli Pauli, in Achaiæ Bœotiæque partibus, volumen condidit;' et in alio loco, 'Lucas, sermonis Græci eruditissimus, Evangelium Græcis scripsit.'

"Jam verò, ad hanc opinionem amplectendam, de Evangelistæ consilio, philologicis rationibus adducti, moralia quædam huc pertinentia attingere velimus. Ab hoc quod diximus Auctoris nostri consilio nata fuisse videtur peculiaris illa indoles, quæ Sancti Lucæ Evangelium à Matthæi presertim historiâ distinguit. Hinc lætæ illæ apud Nostrum imagines, Ethnicorum mentes recreaturæ, et divino quodam amore perfusuræ. Hinc apud Lucam Christus ab Adamo genealogicâ serie deductus (iii. 38); et homo omnis homini frater: hinc apud eum prodigus à Gentilismi siliquis et exilio magnâ cum lætitiâ in patriam postliminiò receptus (xv. 20—27); hinc sacerdoti prælatus Samaritanus (x. 33—37); et Pharisæo Publicanus (xviii. 14); hinc Christus apud Zacchæum devertens eique benedicens (xix. 2—10); hinc latro translatus à cruce in Paradisum (xxiii. 43).

"Hæc omnia apud Lucam et apud Lucam solum reperiuntur.

"Hinc, ut ad Græcos revertamur, præ timore, ne illi, ut fervidâ imaginandi vi præ cæteris præditi, sibi in fide Christianâ novam quandam polytheismi formam, et Theologiam sensibilem et quasi τοπικὴν, comminiscerentur, ne uno quidem in loco Christi religio à Lucâ dicitur βασιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν, quod contrà plusquàm tricies fit apud Matthæum, sed semper βασιλεία τοῦ Θεοῦ. Hinc, dum Matthæus leprosos à Christo sanatos, propter Judæos, frequentissimè commemorat, Lucas in dæmonibus ab eo ejectis omnipotentiam Christi adstruere conatur[4].

"Hinc multus est Noster in iis officiis commendandis, quæ Græci potissimùm erant docendi. Hinc Deo precari, et gratias agere, frequentissimâ hortatione, et exemplo Christi proposito, ab eo inculcatum.

"Et, ut non modò quæ ad pietatem erga Deum spectant, sed quæ ad vivendi cum hominibus rationes, videamus, quoniam, ut alia taceamus, duo erant præcipuè, quibus Græci erant emendandi, unum civile, alterum verò domesticum, his Lucas in Evangelio suo de industriâ providisse videtur.

"Primùm, quod ad civilem rerum conditionem spectat, fieri non poterat, quin Græciæ populi cum tristi quodam desiderio respicerent pristinum illum rerum suarum statum, in quo ipsi imperio florentissimo potirentur, et pænè totius Europæ principatum obtinerent; neque sanè erat mirandum, si fasces Romanos in ipsâ Athenarum arce laureatos, et aquilas Latinas in superbâ illâ acrocorintho dominantes cum tacitâ quâdam indignatione,—ne dicam frementes gementesque,—viderent.

"Quem quidem mentis affectum divinus ille medicus animorum, Lucas, mitibus verbis et divinæ philosophiæ lenimentis mulcere et sedare conatus est. Videte modò, quàm ad rem accommodatè Græciæ incolas externo jugo tum subditos imagine illâ recreaverit, quâ CHRISTUM ipsum, tanquam alterum Imperatorem, induxit venientem à longâ regione ut principatum sibi adsciscerat (xix. 12), et deinde in patriam reverteretur, et sempiternis præmiis omnes afficientem, qui, modestè legibus parentes, officio suo satisfecissent; videte quomodò Noster, ut Græcorum vel impatientiam ferocientem frænaret, vel desultoriam levitatem corrigeret, Christum Ipsum, Regem Regum, et Dominum Dominorum, ab ipsâ nativitate Cæsari obsequentem et morigerum exhibuerit (ii. 1—5), et divinum Christi præceptum, ut 'Dei Deo, ita Cæsari Cæsaris' tribuenda, sine ullâ tergiversatione declaraverit (xx. 24, 25).

"Sed domestica videamus. Quàm durâ et indignâ fortunâ, Evangelistæ ætate, apud Græcos uterentur mulieres, et quantæ eæque teterrimæ pestes ab hoc fonte manantes hominum vitam inquinaverint, profectò habetis compertius, quàm ut nostrâ egeat commemoratione. Contemplamini autem, quàm efficacem et salutarem medicinam huic gravissimo morbo Lucas adhibuerit in ipso Evangelii principio, ita ut jure dixerit Patrum doctissimus, 'Lucæ liber quoties legitur in Ecclesiis, toties ejus medicina non cessat.' Intuemini igitur, quæso, quàm decoras, quàm venustas, quàm pias fœmineæ virtutis in omni vitæ ætate et conditione imagines proposuerit; in sanctâ conjuge Elizabethâ, in piâ viduâ Annâ, in beatâ Virgine Mariâ.—Videte quàm clarè Christum Mulieris semen esse docuerit. Longum est, divinæ Christi bonitatis erga fœminas documenta, quæ à Lucâ habemus, eoque solo, memoriæ prodita enarrare. Recordamini modò ejus benevolentiam in viduam illam Naaniticam (vii. 11), in Mariam Magdalenam (viii. 2), in mulierem peccatricem (vii. 37), in Joannam, in Susannam (viii. 3), in Mariam bonæ partis electricem (x. 42), et verba illa teterrimo affectu plenissima quibus filias Hierosolymæ (xxiii. 28) Christus jam procedens ad mortem allocutus est.

"His omnibus careremus, nisi Lucæ liber esset in manibus.

"Quæ cuncta si animo volvatis, Sanctum Dei Spiritum Evangelistæ nostri, ut maximè, ore loquentem verùm fœmineæ gentis Vindicem, efficacissimum virilis sexûs Emendatorem, et castissimum domesticarum omnium virtutum Præceptorem, agnoscetis.

"Jam verò illud ab iis quæ à nobis disputata sunt satis apparere speraverim, Græcam nationem doctrinâ Christianâ instituendam sibi sumpsisse divinum Nostrum Evangelistam. Equidem Lucam crediderim, Spiritûs Sancti afflatu plenum et almo jubare illuminatum, in personâ Theophili sui, cui opus suum inscripsit, non Theophilum tantùm sed gentem illam universam quasi coram oculis vidisse, et in uno illo discipulo totam Græciam erudiisse. Quàm illustris, quàm gloriosa rerum species Evangelistæ Nostri oculos oblectaverit, cùm hæc scriberet, dici nequit. Verùm enimverò libet, libet inquam quam maximè hanc cogitationem animo fovere, Lucam jam tum Spiritûs Sancti ope

---

[1] χρόνος nunquam in plurali apud alium quemquam Evangelistarum.
[2] Greg. Naz. i. 611; ii. 275.
[3] Hieron. ad Damas. 145. Cf. in Isa. c. vi.; in Philemon.
[4] On this and some other points here noticed, see Dr. Townson on the Gospels.

inflammatum mentis suæ acie prævidisse sanctos illos et pios et magnos viros, qui, vel Græciâ oriundi vel Græco sermone locuturi, veritatem Christianam à se ipso in Græciâ propagatam, pietate essent ornaturi, doctrinâ confirmaturi, eloquentiâ asserturi, fortitudine propugnaturi, sanguine denique obsignaturi. Contemplamini mecum Quadratum et Aristidem, fortissimos viros, Athenis Apologias suas pro Christianâ Fide Hadriano Imperatori deferentes; aspicite Athenagoram, Athenarum suarum lumen, ex Ethnico Christianum, ex Philosopho Catechistam; videte Dionysium, Corinthiæ Ecclesiæ Episcopum, tantæ eloquentiæ et sanctitatis Virum ut Clerum Lacedæmonium, Atheniensem, Cretensem, epistolis erudierit; aspicite magnos illos et amicissimos duumviros Gregorium Nazianzenum et Basileium Magnum Athenis simul operam literis dantes; videte eâdem in urbe concionantem, Lucæ (ut probabile est) popularem, Antiochiæ lumen, Joannem Chrysostomum, qui singularem vitæ sanctitatem admirabili quâdam doctrinæ abundantiâ auxit et dicendi facultate. Hos jure discipulos suos nominaverit Evangelista Noster; hi sunt ejus alumni; hi discipuli; hi Theophili."

A valuable addition has been recently made to the hitherto known stores of Ancient Exegesis on St. Luke's Gospel, by the publication of the Commentaries of Eusebius and St. Cyril of Alexandria in Cardinal Mai's Patrum Nova Bibliotheca ex Vaticanis Codicibus. Vols. ii. and iv. Rom. 1844.

I. [1] Ἐπειδήπερ πολλοὶ ἐπεχείρησαν ἀνατάξασθαι διήγησιν περὶ τῶν πεπληροφορημένων ἐν ἡμῖν πραγμάτων, [2] [a] καθὼς παρέδοσαν ἡμῖν οἱ ἀπ' ἀρχῆς αὐτόπται καὶ ὑπηρέται γενόμενοι τοῦ λόγου, [3] [b] ἔδοξε κἀμοὶ, παρηκολουθηκότι ἄνωθεν πᾶσιν ἀκριβῶς, καθεξῆς σοὶ γράψαι, κράτιστε Θεόφιλε, [4] ἵνα ἐπιγνῷς περὶ ὧν κατηχήθης λόγων τὴν ἀσφάλειαν.

[5] [c] Ἐγένετο ἐν ταῖς ἡμέραις Ἡρῴδου τοῦ βασιλέως τῆς Ἰουδαίας ἱερεύς τις a Heb. 2. 3. 1 John 1. 1. b Acts 1. 1. & 11. 4.

c Matt. 2. 1. 1 Chron. 24. 10, 19. Neh. 12. 4, 17.

Ch. I. 1. ἐπειδήπερ πολλοὶ ἐπεχείρησαν] On the genuineness of this Preface, and of the earlier Chapters of St. Luke, which have been rejected by some recent critics (see Routh, R. S. i. 406), Dr. Routh says, quoting the very ancient Canon Muratorianus, "A nativitate Joannis incipit dicere, etc. Hinc firmantur priora illa Evangelii Lucæ Capita, quæ ei abjudicare hæretici cùm veteres tùm recentiores gestierunt. Est quoque notatu dignum agnovisse hanc Evangelii partem non tantùm omnes quos memorabo Scriptores, Just. Mart., Iren., Clem. Alex., Tertullian., Jortium, African., Origen., Cyprian, &c. Victorin., Petrum Alexandr., sed etiam Celsum, apud Origen. ii. 32."

The general meaning of this Introduction will be given at verse 4. See also Dr. Townson on the Gospels, p. 208.

Many have taken in hand. St. Luke does not approve them. The use he makes of ἐπεχείρησαν in Acts ix. 29, xix. 13, seems rather to suggest a silent censure upon them. It implies want of ability or authority. Cp. Bp. Lonsdale here. They have taken in hand, of their own accord, without any special call or qualification, and without any successful result. "Conati sunt (says St. Ambrose) qui implere nequiverunt." And they are numerous (πολλοί), and therefore may distract you with their variety.

St. Luke does not allude here to St. Matthew and St. Mark (says Origen), "Matthæus et Marcus non sunt conati scribere, sed Spiritu Sancto pleni scripserunt Evangelia." οὐκ ἐπεχείρησαν (says Theoph.) ἀλλ' ἐτελείωσαν: and St. Augustine says (de Consensu Evang. i. 1), "Cæteri homines (i. e. besides the Four Evangelists), qui de Domini actibus aliqua scribere conati vel ausi sunt, non tales suis temporibus extiterunt, ut eis fidem haberet Ecclesia, atque in Auctoritatem Canonicam sanctorum librorum eorum scripta reciperet." And similarly, St. Jerome, vol. iv. p. 2. Matt. i. Cp. Patrit. de Evang. lib. iii. diss. i. Why then did not St. Luke refer Theophilus to their Gospels? This will be considered below (v. 3).

— πεπληροφορημένων] πληροφορία is said

Of a ship. "Quæ pontum secat et plenis subit ostia velis."

Thence of the mind convinced (1 Thess. i. 5. Heb. vi. 11; x. 22).

Of things so full and complete as to give assurance and satisfaction.

Here the thing itself seems to be compared to a ship impelled by the wind swelling its sails, and wafting it to the harbour: see 2 Tim. iv. 5, τὴν διακονίαν σου πληροφόρησον: ibid. 17, ἵνα δι' ἐμοῦ τὸ κήρυγμα πληροφορηθῇ. And therefore τὰ πεπληροφορημένα πράγματα are the things that have been fulfilled ('res manifestissimè ostensæ,' says Origen; 'completæ,' Ambrose), so as to assure us (βεβαιῶσαι) of their truth (ἐν ἀληθείᾳ καὶ πίστει βεβαίᾳ, says Theophyl.).

2. καθὼς παρέδοσαν] This clause does not depend on διήγησιν, but on πεπληροφορημένων.

— τοῦ λόγου] Probably, Christ, the Incarnate Word. Iren. (Ep. ad Florin. Euseb. v. 20), αὐτόπται τῇ ζωῇ τοῦ λόγου. Origen and Ambrose, Cyril, p. 115, Mai. Cp. on 1 John i. 1. Heb. ii. 3. Acts i. 21. And the words ὑπηρέται and αὐτόπται seem to confirm this interpretation. St. Paul has ὑπηρέτας Χριστοῦ, 1 Cor. iv. 1.

On the words λόγος τοῦ Θεοῦ, used by St. Paul (Heb. iv. 12), as well as by St. John, for the Eternal Word, the Second Person of the Blessed Trinity, see Dr. Jackson on the Creed, Book xi. ch. 12, vol. x. pp. 216—225. Also Book xi. ch. 47, vol. xi. pp. 393—406.

Valck. points out the propriety of the expression ὑπηρέτας, "remiges in navi, sc. Ecclesiâ." See also on Acts xx. 32.

3. παρηκολουθηκότι] The participle here contains one reason for St. Luke's writing; i. e. because I have accompanied the events side by side (see the use of the word by St. Paul, 1 Tim. iv. 6. 2 Tim. iii. 10), even from the beginning; since I have walked, as it were, by the side of the stream, even from the fountain head.

Perhaps also St. Luke here refers to the perfect understanding he had from St. Paul (see Iren. iii. 1. Tertullian, adv. Marcion. iv. 2 and 5. St. Jerome, Script. Eccl. c. 7), who was instructed by divine revelation, 2 Cor. xii. 7. Gal. i. 12. 1 Cor. xv. 3. Eph. iii. 3.

— καθεξῆς σοὶ γράψαι] to write to thee, who hast been hitherto taught orally (κατηχήθης), and to write καθεξῆς, to narrate the events consecutively in a connected series, and methodical order. The word καθεξῆς is peculiar to St. Luke (viii. 1. Acts iii. 24; xi. 4; xviii. 23).

— κράτιστε Θεόφιλε] The name Theophilus indicates his Greek origin (see Introductory Note), the title κράτιστος applied to magistrates, to Felix, Acts xxiii. 26; xxiv. 3; to Festus, Acts xxvi. 25, shows his official rank and station.

Here is the reason why St. Luke was inspired to write a Gospel, in addition to those of St. Matthew and St. Mark. They had provided specially for the wants of Jewish converts, and of the middle class among the Romans. Some provision of a particular kind was now to be made for the higher and more educated classes among the Greeks and Asiatics, and of the Gentile world generally, who were conversant with the Greek tongue, as the language of the higher classes of society throughout the world. St. Luke writes for them.

Hence no argument can be derived from these words (as some in recent times have supposed, e. g. Olshausen, Schleiermacher, and others) to invalidate the conclusion, that the Gospels of St. Matthew and St. Mark had been already written, and that St. Luke was familiar with them, and adopted much from them in his own Gospel. No such argument can be drawn from St. Luke's silence. He wrote the Acts of the Apostles, in which he narrates the history of St. Paul, and yet he never once mentions that the Apostle St. Paul, whose companion he was, and whose actions he there narrates, wrote any Epistles.

Dr. Townson (on the Gospels, p. 214) has proved that St. Mark was conversant with St. Matthew's Gospel, St. Luke with St. Matthew's and St. Mark's, and St. John with those of the other three. It is there also shown (pp. cxxxiii.—cxlvii.) that the Holy Spirit, in writing the Old Testament, embodied in later books portions of earlier ones; i. e. He reiterates by later writers what He had already spoken by earlier. So it was in the Old Testament; so it is in the New.

4. ἵνα ἐπιγνῷς] In order that you, and such as you, who have been catechized and baptized, may now have additional knowledge (ἐπί-γνωσις), from a written history accommodated to your use, on the certainty of those things concerning which you have been catechized, or instructed by word of mouth. "Diversa sunt γινώσκειν et ἐπι-γινώσκειν," says Valck., who illustrates this use of ἐπὶ in composition, signifying 'accuratius quiddam.'

The whole Proœmium may be paraphrased as follows,—

Since many have attempted to draw up a narrative concerning the actions and sufferings of Christ, which we have received of perfect knowledge and assurance from those who beheld Him, and ministered to Him from the beginning, and since you may be perplexed by the multitude and variety of these attempts, it seems good to me, who have been called by the Holy Ghost to write, and who have followed the course of those events from the commencement; and who from my birth and education at Antioch, the second Gentile city in the world, and in which the disciples were first called Christians (Acts xi. 26); and from my friendship and association with Paul [1] the Apostle of you Gentiles (Rom. xi. 13) in his travels and sufferings as I will show in the second part of my history (δεύτερος λόγος, Acts i. 1), have special qualifications and a special commission—for this ὀνόματι Ζαχαρίας ἐξ ἐφημερίας Ἀβιὰ, καὶ ἡ γυνὴ αὐτοῦ ἐκ τῶν θυγατέρων d Job 1. 1, 8. 1 Kings 9. 4. 2 Kings 20. 3. Acts 23. 1. & 24. 16. Phil. 3. 6. Ἀαρὼν, καὶ τὸ ὄνομα αὐτῆς Ἐλισάβετ. 6 [d] Ἦσαν δὲ δίκαιοι ἀμφότεροι ἐνώπιον τοῦ Θεοῦ, πορευόμενοι ἐν πάσαις ταῖς ἐντολαῖς καὶ δικαιώμασι τοῦ Κυρίου ἄμεμπτοι. 7 Καὶ οὐκ ἦν αὐτοῖς τέκνον, καθότι ἡ Ἐλισάβετ ἦν στεῖρα, καὶ ἀμφότεροι προβεβηκότες ἐν ταῖς ἡμέραις αὐτῶν ἦσαν. 8 Ἐγένετο δὲ ἐν e Exod. 30. 7. Lev. 16. 17. Heb. 9. 6. τῷ ἱερατεύειν αὐτὸν ἐν τῇ τάξει τῆς ἐφημερίας αὐτοῦ ἔναντι τοῦ Θεοῦ, 9 [e] κατὰ τὸ ἔθος τῆς ἱερατείας, ἔλαχε τοῦ θυμιάσαι, εἰσελθὼν εἰς τὸν ναὸν τοῦ Κυρίου· 10 καὶ πᾶν τὸ πλῆθος ἦν τοῦ λαοῦ προσευχόμενον ἔξω τῇ ὥρᾳ τοῦ θυμιάματος.

f Exod. 30. 1. 11 [f] Ὤφθη δὲ αὐτῷ ἄγγελος Κυρίου ἑστὼς ἐκ δεξιῶν τοῦ θυσιαστηρίου τοῦ θυμιάματος· 12 καὶ ἐταράχθη Ζαχαρίας ἰδὼν, καὶ φόβος ἐπέπεσεν ἐπ' αὐτόν.
g ver. 60. 13 [g] Εἶπε δὲ πρὸς αὐτὸν ὁ ἄγγελος, Μὴ φοβοῦ, Ζαχαρία· διότι εἰσηκούσθη ἡ δέησίς σου, καὶ ἡ γυνή σου Ἐλισάβετ γεννήσει υἱόν σοι, καὶ καλέσεις τὸ
h ver. 58. ὄνομα αὐτοῦ Ἰωάννην· 14 [h] καὶ ἔσται χαρά σοι καὶ ἀγαλλίασις, καὶ πολλοὶ i Numb. 6. 3. Judg. 13. 4. Jer. 1. 5. Gal. 1. 15. ἐπὶ τῇ γενέσει αὐτοῦ χαρήσονται· 15 [i] ἔσται γὰρ μέγας ἐνώπιον Κυρίου, καὶ οἶνον καὶ σίκερα οὐ μὴ πίῃ, καὶ Πνεύματος ἁγίου πλησθήσεται ἔτι ἐκ κοιλίας j Mal. 4. 5. Matt. 11. 14. k Mal. 4. 6. Matt. 3. 1. Mark 9. 12. Ecclus. 48. 10. μητρὸς αὐτοῦ· 16 [j] καὶ πολλοὺς τῶν υἱῶν Ἰσραὴλ ἐπιστρέψει ἐπὶ Κύριον τὸν Θεὸν αὐτῶν· 17 [k] καὶ αὐτὸς προελεύσεται ἐνώπιον αὐτοῦ ἐν πνεύματι καὶ δυνάμει Ἠλίου, ἐπιστρέψαι καρδίας πατέρων ἐπὶ τέκνα, καὶ ἀπειθεῖς ἐν φροholy work of providing a written Gospel for you, noble Greeks and Gentiles—for you, Theophili—who by your name proclaim your love of God, and God's love for you; as written Gospels have been already provided by my brother Evangelists, for the Hebrews and Romans; in order that you, who have been baptized, and instructed orally in the Creed of Christendom, may have further knowledge of the certainty of those things wherein you have been orally instructed [1].

It may be further observed on this Proœmium,

That by its polished Greek diction (particularly as contrasted with the Hebraizing style of St. Matthew and St. Mark), St. Luke appears to have designed to proclaim the class for whom his Gospel is specially intended; and by the use of words peculiar to himself and St. Paul (e. g. ἐπεχείρησαν—πεπληροφορημένων—κατηχήθης—ἀσφάλειαν), to mark his connexion with the Apostle to the Gentiles, in his evangelical mission and ministry.

Almighty God, by His Providence over the Church, and by His Spirit in it, has given a practical explanation of this Proœmium. All the διηγήσεις of the πολλοί are lost; and only Four Gospels, those of St. Matthew, St. Mark, St. Luke, and St. John, have been received by the Church as Writings Inspired by the Holy Ghost. "In his omnibus," says Origen, "nihil aliud probamus, nisi quod Ecclesia; id est Quatuor Evangelia."

5. Ζαχαρίας] On the etymology of this word see on Matt. xxiii. 35.

— ἐξ ἐφημερίας Ἀβιά] The course of Abia was the eighth in order of the twenty-four courses in which the Priests were arranged by David, i. e. sixteen courses of the family of Eleazar, and eight of Ithamar (1 Chron. xxiv. 3—19. 2 Chron. viii. 14; xxxi. 2; xxxv. 4; xxxvi. 24).

Though only four classes returned from the Babylonish exile, they were distributed into twenty-four with the ancient names. (Ezra ii. 36. Neh. vii. 39; xii. 1. Josephus, de Vitâ suâ, § 1. Antiq. vii. 14. Jahn, Archæol. § 366. 369.)

"Pertinet hæc narratio," says Rosenm., "ad indicandam Joannis nobilitatem." Cp. Joseph. (de Vit. 1) on his own priestly extraction.

— Ἐλισάβετ] = אֱלִישֶׁבַע Deus juravit; the name of Aaron's wife (Exod vi. 23), where the LXX have Ἐλισάβετ.

Observe also, Mary is the same as Miriam, the sister of Moses and Aaron. Thus the birth of the Gospel carries us back even by its names to the giving of the Law.

6. ἐνώπιον] Used by LXX for Hebr. עַל־פְּנֵי (al-peney), and of frequent occurrence in the writings of St. Luke; but never used by St. Matthew and St. Mark, and only once by St. John in his Gospel: It is common in the Epistles of St. Paul, and in the Apocalypse. ἐνώπιον τοῦ Θεοῦ, 'in the sight of God,'—to contrast them with the great number of persons in their age, who sought to seem δίκαιοι in the sight of man. See below, v. 15.

— ἐντολαῖς καὶ δικαιώμασι] ἐντολαί are moral precepts of natural law as reinforced in the Decalogue: δικαιώματα are those positive commands which were added by special revelation of God, particularly for His worship and service, and were necessary to constitute the character of legal righteousness or justification (δικαιοσύνη). Gen. xxvi. 5, Ἀβραὰμ ὁ πατήρ σου ἐφύλαξε τὰς ἐντολάς μου, καὶ τὰ δικαιώματά μου, where ἐντολαί μου stands for Hebr. מִצְוֹתַי (mitsothay), and δικαιώματά μου for חֻקּוֹתַי (chukkothay). So 2 Chron. xvii. 4, ἐφύλαξε τὰς ἐντολάς μου καὶ τὰ δικαιώματά μου.

7. ἦν στεῖρα, καὶ ἀμφότεροι προβεβηκότες ἐν ταῖς ἡμέραις αὐτῶν] Cp. Gen. xi. 30; xviii. 11, in LXX Version. St. Luke adopts the words of the Septuagint Version of the Old Testament, as familiar to the Gentile converts, and thus connects the Gospel with its history.

It has been alleged by a recent Expositor, that "Zachariah could not have been very 'far advanced in years,' because no one was permitted to perform the duties of a Priest beyond his fiftieth year," and this is grounded on Numb. viii. 25; but that only applies to Levites. Cp. Numb. iii. 1—39; iv. 1. 30. 35. 38. 42. 46—49; and even they waited on the Tabernacle after fifty. Numb. viii. 26; i. 53.

8. ἐγένετο] See Iren. iii. 10, who hence shows the Harmony of the Law and the Gospel.

9. ἔλαχε τοῦ θυμιάσαι] To burn incense on the golden altar before the Veil in the Holy Place (ναός), while the people were ἔξω in the outer court—the court of the Israelites—in the ἱερόν.

It was erroneously supposed by some in ancient times that Zacharias was ἀρχιερεύς, and that this act of his was the annual entrance of the High Priest on the Day of Atonement (the tenth day of the seventh month Tisri) into the Holy of Holies. And on this supposition the chronology of the Conception and Birth of the Baptist and of our Lord has been arranged. But the word ἔλαχε alone confutes this supposition. The High Priest did not draw lots; he alone could enter the Holy of Holies.

On the courses of the Priests and the Temple-service see Lightfoot, i. 915. 947. On the Temple itself see Lightfoot, i. 897. 1080.

11. ὤφθη—θυμιάματος] The Angel Gabriel, the heavenly Messenger of the Gospel, appears to the Priest ministering in the Temple, —thus showing the harmony of the Gospel with the Law.

13. Ἰωάννην] e. g. יְהוֹחָנָן (yohanan), the favour or grace of Jehovah; from יְהוָה (Yehovah), and חָנַן (hanan), gratiosus fuit; a name significant of the gracious tidings of which he was to be the harbinger, as the forerunner and herald of the Kingdom of Grace (see John i. 17). For the general form and diction of the sentence see LXX Version of Gen. xvii. 19.

14. χαρὰ—χαρήσονται] There shall be χαρά σοι because he (as his name shows) is a pledge of the χάρις Θεοῦ.

15. σίκερα] from Hebr. שֵׁכָר (shechar), root שָׁכַר (shachar), inebriare, for which the LXX used σίκερα, Lev. x. 10, Num. vi. 3 (concerning the Nazarites), Deut. xiv. 26, and passim. "σίκερα· οἶνος συμμιγὴς ἡδύσμασιν, ἢ πᾶν πόμα ἐμποιοῦν μέθην, μὴ ἐξ ἀμπέλου δὲ σκευαστόν. (Hesychius.) Solebant Orientales inprimis è dactylis et succo palmarum potum inebriantem conficere. Plin. H. N. xiv. 19, Fiunt vina et è pomis: primumque è palmis (quarum Palæstina feracissima fuit), quo Parthi et Indi utuntur, et Oriens totus. Vid. et Hieronym. ad Ies. ix. 10." (Kuin.) The sense is: He shall be a Nazir (Numb. vi. 3), ἁγνισθείς, separate from the world, to God, like Samson and Samuel. See on Acts xxi. 24.

17. Ἠλίου] See on Matt. xvii. 10.

[1] "Ut Petrum Marci in Evangelio conscribendo adjutorem fuisse, tradiderunt patres ecclesiastici, ita iidem quoque affirmarunt, Paulum esse Evangelii Lucæ auctorem habendum; Lucam nimirum ea, quæ à Paulo accepisset, literis consignasse. Irenæus adv. hæres. iii. 1, Λουκᾶς ὁ ἀκόλουθος Παύλου, τὸ ὑπ' ἐκείνου κηρυσσόμενον εὐαγγέλιον ἐν βιβλίῳ κατέθετο· coll. Euseb. H. E. v. 8. iii. 4. Tertullianus adv. Marcion. iv. 15, Lucæ digestum Paulo adscribere solent. Origenes ap. Euseb. vi. 35, τρίτον, τὸ κατὰ Λουκᾶν, τὸ ὑπὸ Παύλου ἐπαινούμενον εὐαγγέλιον. Provocarunt Origenes, Chrysostomus, alii, ad Pauli ep. ad Rom. ii. 16. 2 Cor. viii. 18, et contenderunt, Apostolum his in locis voce εὐαγγέλιον Lucæ librum innuisse." (Kuin.)

νήσει δικαίων, ἑτοιμάσαι Κυρίῳ λαὸν κατεσκευασμένον. 18 [l] Καὶ εἶπε Ζαχαρίας πρὸς τὸν ἄγγελον, Κατὰ τί γνώσομαι τοῦτο; ἐγὼ γάρ εἰμι πρεσβύτης, καὶ ἡ γυνή μου προβεβηκυῖα ἐν ταῖς ἡμέραις αὐτῆς. 19 [m] Καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς ὁ ἄγγελος εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Ἐγώ εἰμι Γαβριὴλ ὁ παρεστηκὼς ἐνώπιον τοῦ Θεοῦ· καὶ ἀπεστάλην λαλῆσαι πρός σε, καὶ εὐαγγελίσασθαί σοι ταῦτα· 20 καὶ ἰδοὺ, ἔσῃ σιωπῶν καὶ μὴ δυνάμενος λαλῆσαι, ἄχρι ἧς ἡμέρας γένηται ταῦτα, ἀνθ' ὧν οὐκ ἐπίστευσας τοῖς λόγοις μου, οἵτινες πληρωθήσονται εἰς τὸν καιρὸν αὐτῶν. 21 Καὶ ἦν ὁ λαὸς προσδοκῶν τὸν Ζαχαρίαν· καὶ ἐθαύμαζον ἐν τῷ χρονίζειν αὐτὸν ἐν τῷ ναῷ. 22 Ἐξελθὼν δὲ οὐκ ἠδύνατο λαλῆσαι αὐτοῖς· καὶ ἐπέγνωσαν ὅτι ὀπτασίαν ἑώρακεν ἐν τῷ ναῷ· καὶ αὐτὸς ἦν διανεύων αὐτοῖς, καὶ διέμενε κωφός. 23 Καὶ ἐγένετο, ὡς ἐπλήσθησαν αἱ ἡμέραι τῆς λειτουργίας αὐτοῦ, ἀπῆλθεν εἰς τὸν οἶκον αὐτοῦ. 24 Μετὰ δὲ ταύτας τὰς ἡμέρας συνέλαβεν Ἐλισάβετ ἡ γυνὴ αὐτοῦ, καὶ περιέκρυβεν ἑαυτὴν μῆνας πέντε, λέγουσα, 25 [n] Ὅτι οὕτω μοι πεποίηκεν ὁ Κύριος ἐν ἡμέραις αἷς ἐπεῖδεν ἀφελεῖν τὸ ὄνειδός μου ἐν ἀνθρώποις.

26 Ἐν δὲ τῷ μηνὶ τῷ ἕκτῳ ἀπεστάλη ὁ ἄγγελος Γαβριὴλ ὑπὸ τοῦ Θεοῦ εἰς πόλιν τῆς Γαλιλαίας, ᾗ ὄνομα Ναζαρὲτ, 27 [o] πρὸς παρθένον μεμνηστευμένην ἀνδρὶ ᾧ ὄνομα Ἰωσὴφ, ἐξ οἴκου Δαυὶδ· καὶ τὸ ὄνομα τῆς παρθένου Μαριάμ. 28 Καὶ εἰσελθὼν ὁ ἄγγελος πρὸς αὐτὴν εἶπε, Χαῖρε, κεχαριτωμένη· ὁ Κύριος [l] Gen. 15. 8. & 17. 17.

[m] Dan. 8. 16. & 9. 21. Matt. 18. 10.
[n] Gen. 30. 23. Isa. 4. 1.
[o] Matt. 1. 18.

— ἐπιστρέψαι] Mal. iv. 5. The Angel Gabriel applies to St. John the Baptist (the precursor of our Lord's first coming) the prophecy of Malachi, which has been made by many (see on Matt. xvii. 10) a main ground for expecting Elias in person before Christ's second coming. He will turn the hearts of the fathers (i. e. of the Jewish nation) to the children (i. e. to the Apostles of Christ. Theophyl.); he will unite the Old and New Generations, as being a bond of union between the two covenants; being the last of the Prophets, and the first of the Preachers of Christ. See Matt. xi. 10, 11.

— ἀπειθείς] מֹרִים (morim), rebellious, wicked. Wickedness is disobedience to God.

— ἐν φρονήσει] in, to or for. So ἐκάλεσεν ἡμᾶς ἐν ἁγιασμῷ, 1 Thess. iv. 7. Rom. i. 23—26. Cp. Glass., Phil. p. 485.

19. Γαβριὴλ] Gabriel; from גֶּבֶר (gebher), vir, root גָּבַר (gabhar), validus fuit, and אֵל (El), Deus. 'I am the strong man of God,' sent on embassies concerning the Incarnation of Christ. See Dan. viii. 16; ix. 21.

Earthly empires pass away, but the same Angel who had been sent to the prophet Daniel at Babylon, to announce the Messiah under the Law, more than five hundred years before His birth, comes again to earth to Zachariah in the Temple at Jerusalem on a similar message, and to the Virgin Mary at Nazareth (v. 26). And his name is Gabriel,—showing that the power of God is specially manifested in the Evangelical dispensation which he comes to announce.

Certain rationalizing Expositors (Paulus, Gabler, and others) have endeavoured to explain away this angelic appearance. More recent sceptics (Strauss and his school), dissatisfied with their attempts, have pronounced it to be purely mythical. This may serve as a specimen, which it would be needless to multiply, of the varying manœuvres of the Evil One in dealing with the inspired Text of the Written Word. Error is ever changing its form. Truth is always the same. The School of Paulus was succeeded by the School of Strauss; the School of Strauss is now supplanted by another school, which will soon be trodden under foot by some more audacious champions of impiety.

But the faithful Church of Christ, ever holding the Word of God in her hand, retains her place and her countenance, unchanged and unchangeable; for the Spirit of Christ is with her, and she stands on a Rock.

They who desire to see an excellent refutation of the exceptions of Strauss on the subject of Angelo-phany, may consult Dr. Mill's Second Dissertation, pp. 1—4. 52—73.

22. αὐτὸς ἦν διανεύων] instead of pronouncing the Sacerdotal Benediction with which the people were to be dismissed to their homes (Numb. vi. 23. 26). The Priest, struck dumb when officiating in the Temple, on account of incredulity at the announcement of the Angel, was a symbol of the Jewish Nation, mute through unbelief; and of the Levitical Law, now to be reduced to silence by the preaching of the Gospel. (Origen and Isidore, Ep. 131.) "Credat Judæus," says Ambrose, "ut loqui possit,"—Let the Jew become a Christian if he would recover his speech.

— διέμενε κωφός] a divinely ordained proof to Zacharias and others of the reality of the Vision.

Cp. Saul's blindness, Acts ix. 8.

It has been inferred by many Expositors from v. 62, ἐνένευον αὐτῷ, that Zacharias was deaf as well as dumb. But this is not certain. As dumb, he made signs by beckoning (see v. 22, ἦν διανεύων αὐτοῖς). His language was by signs: and it may be that his friends accommodated themselves to his condition, and used that language for communication with him. It is observed by Bengel, that the dumb often prefer to be addressed by signs. Such a mode of intercourse does not remind them of their own loss of hearing, as compared with others: which is most painfully felt by inability to hear their own voice.

Besides, the words ἴση σιωπῶν, κ.τ.λ., are probably introduced to define the sense in which κωφὸς is used. And we do not see it said in v. 64, that Zacharias recovered his hearing; but only that his tongue was loosed.

23. οἶκον] Probably in the hill country of Judæa. See v. 39.

26. Γαβριὴλ] This message announced the exaltation of man's nature above Angels; yet, an Archangel joyfully brings it, and Angels celebrate the event (ii. 13). There is no envy in heaven.

— Ναζαρὲτ] See on Matt. ii. 23. It has been alleged by some that St. Matthew knew nothing of Joseph and Mary's earlier connection with Nazareth. But this is an error. See Matt. xiii. 55, 56, which shows that the family and kindred of Joseph were settled there, cp. Mark vi. 3; and silently confirms St. Luke's account (i. 26; ii. 4), that Joseph and Mary had come up from Nazareth to Bethlehem. The Apocryphal Books confirm the Gospel Narrative. See Evang. Nat. B. V. M., p. 319, where Nazareth is Mary's birthplace. On the form Ναζαρὲτ in St. Luke, see p. 131, note [1].

27. μεμνηστευμένην] A Virgin, but espoused to a husband. "Ut adventum Filii Dei Diabolus ignoraret," says Origen, quoting the saying of S. Ignatius (Epist. ad Ephes. s. 19), ἔλαθεν τὸν ἄρχοντα τοῦ αἰῶνος τούτου παρθενία Μαρίας. The opinion of St. Ignatius was, that the Devil may have known from the prophecy of Isaiah (vii. 14), that the Messiah now expected was to be born of a Virgin; he saw that the Son of Mary was some great Personage; he heard Him called the Son of God (Matt. iii. 17) at His baptism. But Mary was espoused to Joseph, how then could her Son be born of a Virgin? "Disposuerat Salvator (says Origen) dispensationem suam et assumptionem corporis ignorare Diabolum, unde et in generatione suâ celavit eum, et discipulis postea præcipiebat ne manifestum Eum faceret; et cùm ab ipso Diabolo tentaretur nunquam confessus est Dei se esse Filium" (cp. 1 Cor. ii. 6—8). Cp. Leo, Bishop of Rome in the 5th cent. (A.D. 440—462), Serm. xxi. p. 72, who incidentally condemns the doctrine of the Immaculate Conception, now made an article of Faith by Pope Pius IX. Dec. 8, 1854: "Assumpta est de Matre Domini natura, non culpa. Et cum in omnibus matribus non fiat sine peccati sorde conceptio, hæc inde purgationem traxit unde concepit." And Serm. xxiii., "Terra carnis humanæ, quæ in primo fuerat prævaricatore maledicta, hoc solo B. V. partu germen edidit benedictum, et a vitio suæ stirpis alienum."

Could he have said more plainly, that she who conceived Christ without sin, was not herself conceived without sin? See also his Serm. xxxviii. 3, p. 83, and Serm. xxxix. 4, p. 87, where, in enumerating all the examples of remarkable conceptions and births, e. g. Adam, Eve, Isaac, Jacob, Jeremiah, Samuel, John the Baptist, he does not even mention that of the Blessed Virgin. And last of all, he says, Serm. lx. p. 135, "Solus beatæ Virginis Filius natus est sine delicto."

And Gregory the First, also Bishop of Rome (at the end of sixth century), says, "Solus [Redemptor] in carne suâ verè mundus extitit." (Moral in Job. xi. vol. i. p. 392.) See also on v. 31.

Such was the testimony of the See of Rome for the first six centuries after Christ. "How is the fine gold changed!" (Lam. iv. 1.) How can that which is so much at variance with itself be imagined to be Infallible? and how dangerous is a system of religion which is based on an imaginary Infallibility!

28. εἰσελθών] Contrast with this simple narrative the ornate re-μετὰ σοῦ· εὐλογημένη σὺ ἐν γυναιξίν. 29 [p] Ἡ δὲ ἰδοῦσα διεταράχθη ἐπὶ τῷ λόγῳ αὐτοῦ, καὶ διελογίζετο ποταπὸς εἴη ὁ ἀσπασμὸς οὗτος. 30 Καὶ εἶπεν ὁ ἄγγελος αὐτῇ, Μὴ φοβοῦ, Μαριάμ· εὗρες γὰρ χάριν παρὰ τῷ Θεῷ. 31 [q] καὶ ἰδοὺ, συλλήψῃ ἐν γαστρὶ καὶ τέξῃ υἱὸν, καὶ καλέσεις τὸ ὄνομα αὐτοῦ Ἰησοῦν. 32 [r] Οὗτος ἔσται μέγας, καὶ Υἱὸς ὑψίστου κληθήσεται· καὶ δώσει αὐτῷ Κύριος ὁ Θεὸς τὸν θρόνον Δαυὶδ τοῦ πατρὸς αὐτοῦ· 33 [s] καὶ βασιλεύσει ἐπὶ τὸν οἶκον Ἰακὼβ εἰς τοὺς αἰῶνας, καὶ τῆς βασιλείας αὐτοῦ οὐκ ἔσται τέλος. 34 Εἶπε δὲ Μαριὰμ πρὸς τὸν ἄγγελον, Πῶς ἔσται τοῦτο, ἐπεὶ ἄνδρα οὐ γινώσκω; 35 Καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς ὁ ἄγγελος εἶπεν αὐτῇ, [t] Πνεῦμα ἅγιον ἐπελεύσεται ἐπὶ σὲ, καὶ δύναμις Ὑψίστου ἐπισκιάσει σοι, διὸ καὶ τὸ γεννώμενον ἅγιον κληθήσεται Υἱὸς Θεοῦ. 36 Καὶ ἰδοὺ, Ἐλισάβετ ἡ συγγενίς σου, καὶ αὐτὴ συνειληφυῖα υἱὸν ἐν γήρει αὐτῆς, καὶ οὗτος μὴν ἕκτος ἐστὶν αὐτῇ τῇ καλουμένῃ στείρᾳ· 37 [u] ὅτι οὐκ ἀδυνατήσει παρὰ τῷ Θεῷ πᾶν ῥῆμα. 38 Εἶπε δὲ Μαριὰμ, Ἰδοὺ, ἡ δούλη Κυρίου· γένοιτό μοι κατὰ τὸ ῥῆμά σου. Καὶ ἀπῆλθεν ἀπ' αὐτῆς ὁ ἄγγελος.

39 [v] Ἀναστᾶσα δὲ Μαριὰμ ἐν ταῖς ἡμέραις ταύταις ἐπορεύθη εἰς τὴν ὀρεινὴν μετὰ σπουδῆς εἰς πόλιν Ἰούδα, 40 καὶ εἰσῆλθεν εἰς τὸν οἶκον Ζαχαρίου, καὶ ἠσπάσατο τὴν Ἐλισάβετ. 41 Καὶ ἐγένετο, ὡς ἤκουσεν ἡ Ἐλισάβετ τὸν ἀσπασμὸν τῆς Μαρίας, ἐσκίρτησε τὸ βρέφος ἐν τῇ κοιλίᾳ αὐτῆς· καὶ ἐπλήσθη p ver. 12.

q Isa. 7. 14. ch. 2. 21. Matt. 1. 21.
r Mark 5. 7. Isa. 9. 6. & 16. 5. & 54. 5. 2 Sam. 7. 12. Ps. 132. 11.
s Dan. 2. 44. & 7. 14, 27. Micah 4. 7. Isa. 9. 7. Ps. 45. 6. & 89. 36. Jer. 23. 5. Heb. 1. 8.
t Matt. 1. 20.
u Gen. 18. 14. Job 42. 2. Jer. 32. 17, 27. Zech. 8. 6. Matt. 19. 26. ch. 18. 27.
v Josh. 21. 9, 10, 11.

---

cital in the Apocryphal book, De Nativitate Mariæ, § ix. ed. Fabric. p. 33, or Thilo, p. 332 and p. 367.

— κεχαριτωμένη] "Gratiâ cumulata" (Valck.), specially graced (Mede, p. 181), or favoured by God. See v. 30, εὗρες χάριν π. τ. Θεῷ, and cp. Ephes. i. 6, not (as some render it) a source or channel of grace from God. Cp. Ecclus. xviii. 17. "Non mater gratiæ sed filia." (Beng.)

— ἐν γυναιξί] "Inest verbis εὐλογημένη ἐν γυναιξὶν Hebraismus satis vulgatus. Nempe Hebræi cùm superlativum exprimere volunt, solent adhibere positivum, ita ut eum sequi jubeant pluralem nominum generis rerum, ad quod adjectiva pertinent, ita ut præmittatur præpositio ב Jer. xlix. 15, קָטֹן בַּגּוֹיִם parvus in gentibus, i. e. minimus inter gentes." (Kuin.)

31. συλλήψῃ] To confirm her faith, the Angel reminds her of Isaiah's prophecy (Isa. vii. 14), and assures her that it is now to be fulfilled in her, and that Jesus and Emmanuel are two names of the same Person.

— Ἰησοῦν] See on Matt. i. 21. To what has been said on v. 27, on His unique sinlessness, may be added the testimony of St. Cyril Hierosolym. pp. 27, εἷς μόνος ἀναμάρτητος, ὁ τὰς ἁμαρτίας ἡμῶν καθαρίζων Ἰησοῦς, and St. Ambrose in Luc. ii. n. 56, "Solus ex natis de fœmina sanctus dominus Jesus, qui terrenæ contagia corruptelæ immaculati partus novitate non sensit, et cœlesti majestate depulit." Other authorities are cited in the Editor's 'Occasional Sermons,' No. xliii.

33. εἰς τοὺς αἰῶνας] See Matt. vi. 13.

34. πῶς ἔσται τοῦτο] The question, how it should be, does not express doubt, but rather implies faith, that it will be. The πῶς presupposes the ὅτι. "Non de effectu dubitat sed qualitatem ipsius quærit effectûs" (Ambrose); and see Libri Apocr. N. T. p. 332, "Virgo non incredula sed modum scire volens."

But Zacharias (v. 18) had said, "How shall I know this?" He disbelieves the ὅτι. Mary believes that it will be, and therefore enquires how it will take place: Zacharias doubts that it will not be, and therefore asks for a proof of the Angel's assertion, to remove his doubts.

A striking contrast, therefore, between the learned Priest in the Temple at Jerusalem, and the humble maiden at Nazareth.

35. πνεῦμα ἅγιον—ἐπισκιάσει] As the Holy Spirit moved on the face of the deep, and brooded over it at the Creation. On the figure here used, see note on Matt. iii. 16, and cp. Matt. i. 20.

From these words of the Angel, the Nestorians are refuted, who say that a mere man was conceived and born of the Blessed Virgin, and afterwards was associated with God. (Theophyl., who adds, τὸ γεννώμενον ἐν τῇ μήτρᾳ ἐκείνο ἦν υἱὸν Θεοῦ, cp. Hooker, E. P. V. lii.) And while we maintain the Unity of Christ's Person against Nestorius, we must, on the other hand, avoid the Eutychian heresy, which confounds the two natures of Christ. (Hooker, E. P. V. lii. and liii.)

Some modern Expositors (e. g. Olshausen) have interpreted πνεῦμα ἅγιον, the divine essence generally; because, they say, if we understand it literally, "the Holy Ghost," it would follow that "the Holy Ghost is the Father of Jesus Christ." But this is a great error. "Because (to cite Bp. Pearson) the Holy Ghost did not beget Christ by any communication of His essence, therefore He is not the Father of Him, though He were conceived by Him . . . the Word was conceived in the womb of a woman, not after the manner of men, but by the singular, powerful, invisible, immediate operation of the Holy Ghost, whereby a Virgin was beyond the Law of nature, enabled to conceive, and that which was conceived in her was originally and completely sanctified." Bp. Pearson on the Creed, Art. iii. Cp. Dr. Barrow on the Incarnation, Serm. xxiv. vol. iv. pp. 538. 556.

Leo M. (in his Sermon on the Nativity, xxiii. xxiv. pp. 76—78) compares the operation of the Holy Ghost in the Nativity to His work in the Soul in the Sacrament of Baptism. "Factus est homo Christus nostri generis ut nos divinæ naturæ possimus esse consortes. Originem quam sumpsit in utero matris posuit in fonte baptismatis. . . . Homini renascenti aqua baptismatis instar est uteri virginalis, eodem Spiritu replente fontem Qui replevit Virginem." Cp. the Collect for Christmas Day.

— τὸ γεννώμενον] that which is born of thee. Hence St. Paul says Gal. iv. 4, "God sent forth His Son, born of a woman:" not through a woman, but of her flesh; and therefore of the same nature with us; for Mary, being a daughter of Adam, is our Sister. (Athanas. ad Epict. Basil. de Spir. Sancto.)

— ἅγιον] He alone is holy, because not conceived by a fleshly union, but by the Holy Ghost. (Gregor. 18. Moral. c. 52.) See above, on vv. 27. 31.

36. ἡ συγγενίς σου] Therefore Jesus and John were relatives. And Christ, our High Priest as well as our King, was connected with the Priestly as well as the Royal race. Greg. Nazian. (Carm. 18, de Geneal. Christ., who observes the coincidence in the name of the wife of Zacharias and of Aaron.) Exod. vi. 23.

On the form συγγενίς, see Lobeck, Phryn. p. 451.

— μὴν ἕκτος—στείρᾳ] On this use of the dative, see Matt. xv. 32. Mark viii. 2.

37. οὐκ—πᾶν] nothing. See on Matt. xxiv. 22, ῥῆμα = Hebr. דָּבָר (dabhar), word, matter (see Vorst. de Hebr. N. T. p. 28). The phrase is from Gen. xviii. 14, LXX. See Bp. Pearson, Præf. in LXX, p. 267.

38. ἰδοὺ, ἡ δούλη K.] See Iren. iii. 33, on the Obedience of Mary, as contrasted with the Disobedience of Eve; and on the conveyance of Life as a consequence of the one, to counteract Death, flowing from the other. And Aug. says (Serm. xv. de Temp.), "Diabolus per serpentem Evæ locutus per Evæ aures mundo intulit mortem; Deus per Angelum ad Mariam protulit verbum, et cunctis sæculis vitam effudit."

39. ἀναστᾶσα] "Participium celeritatem denotans." (Valck.) "Occasionem dederat Angelus." (Beng.)

— Ἰούδα] a Levitical city in the hill country of Judah. Some imagine it to be Jutta. See Reland, Palæstin. p. 870. Winer, R.-W. v. Jutta, i. p. 641.

But the Holy Spirit (as usual, see on Matt. v. 1) withholds the name, it may be, to restrain vain curiosity.

The precise sites of the Nativity, of the Temptation, of the Sermon on the Mount, of the Transfiguration, of the Crucifixion, of the Burial, of the Ascension of Christ, are not known. A remarkable fact, perhaps providential. Say not, "lo here, or lo there!" Go not forth on pilgrimages to the 'Holy Places,' the kingdom of God is within you.

41. ἐσκίρτησε] See above, v. 15. Elizabeth, the mother, first heard the word, but the babe in her womb first felt the grace.

Πνεύματος ἁγίου ἡ Ἐλισάβετ, 42 καὶ ἀνεφώνησε φωνῇ μεγάλῃ καὶ εἶπεν, Εὐλογημένη σὺ ἐν γυναιξὶ, καὶ εὐλογημένος ὁ καρπὸς τῆς κοιλίας σου· 43 καὶ πόθεν μοι τοῦτο, ἵνα ἔλθῃ ἡ μήτηρ τοῦ Κυρίου μου πρός με; 44 ἰδοὺ γὰρ, ὡς ἐγένετο ἡ φωνὴ τοῦ ἀσπασμοῦ σου εἰς τὰ ὦτά μου, ἐσκίρτησε τὸ βρέφος ἐν ἀγαλλιάσει ἐν τῇ κοιλίᾳ μου. 45 [w] Καὶ μακαρία ἡ πιστεύσασα, ὅτι ἔσται τελείωσις τοῖς λελαλημένοις αὐτῇ παρὰ Κυρίου.

46 Καὶ εἶπε Μαριάμ, Μεγαλύνει ἡ ψυχή μου τὸν Κύριον, 47 καὶ ἠγαλλίασε τὸ πνεῦμά μου ἐπὶ τῷ Θεῷ τῷ σωτῆρί μου· 48 [x] ὅτι ἐπέβλεψεν ἐπὶ τὴν ταπείνωσιν τῆς δούλης αὐτοῦ· ἰδοὺ γὰρ, ἀπὸ τοῦ νῦν μακαριοῦσί με πᾶσαι αἱ γενεαί· 49 [y] ὅτι ἐποίησέ μοι μεγαλεῖα ὁ Δυνατὸς, καὶ ἅγιον τὸ ὄνομα αὐτοῦ· 50 [z] καὶ τὸ ἔλεος αὐτοῦ εἰς γενεὰς γενεῶν τοῖς φοβουμένοις αὐτόν. 51 [a] Ἐποίησε κράτος ἐν βραχίονι αὐτοῦ· διεσκόρπισεν ὑπερηφάνους διανοίᾳ καρδίας αὐτῶν. 52 [b] Καθεῖλε δυνάστας ἀπὸ θρόνων, καὶ ὕψωσε ταπεινούς· 53 [c] πεινῶντας ἐνέπλησεν ἀγαθῶν, καὶ πλουτοῦντας ἐξαπέστειλε κενούς. 54 [d] Ἀντελάβετο Ἰσραὴλ παιδὸς αὐτοῦ, μνησθῆναι ἐλέους, 55 [e] καθὼς ἐλάλησε πρὸς τοὺς πατέρας ἡμῶν, τῷ Ἀβραὰμ καὶ τῷ σπέρματι αὐτοῦ εἰς τὸν αἰῶνα.

56 Ἔμεινε δὲ Μαριὰμ σὺν αὐτῇ ὡσεὶ μῆνας τρεῖς· καὶ ὑπέστρεψεν εἰς τὸν οἶκον αὐτῆς.

57 Τῇ δὲ Ἐλισάβετ ἐπλήσθη ὁ χρόνος τοῦ τεκεῖν αὐτὴν, καὶ ἐγέννησεν υἱόν. 58 [f] Καὶ ἤκουσαν οἱ περίοικοι καὶ οἱ συγγενεῖς αὐτῆς, ὅτι ἐμεγάλυνε Κύριος τὸ ἔλεος αὐτοῦ μετ' αὐτῆς· καὶ συνέχαιρον αὐτῇ. 59 [g] Καὶ ἐγένετο, ἐν τῇ ὀγδόῃ ἡμέρᾳ ἦλθον περιτεμεῖν τὸ παιδίον· καὶ ἐκάλουν αὐτὸ ἐπὶ τῷ ὀνόματι τοῦ πατρὸς αὐτοῦ Ζαχαρίαν. 60 [h] Καὶ ἀποκριθεῖσα ἡ μήτηρ αὐτοῦ εἶπεν, Οὐχὶ, ἀλλὰ κληθήσεται Ἰωάννης. 61 Καὶ εἶπον πρὸς αὐτὴν, Ὅτι οὐδείς ἐστιν ἐν τῇ συγγενείᾳ σου, ὃς καλεῖται τῷ ὀνόματι τούτῳ. 62 Ἐνένευον δὲ τῷ πατρὶ αὐτοῦ, τὸ τί ἂν θέλοι καλεῖσθαι αὐτόν. 63 [i] Καὶ αἰτήσας πινακίδιον ἔγραψε λέγων, Ἰωάννης ἐστὶ τὸ ὄνομα αὐτοῦ· καὶ ἐθαύμασαν πάντες. 64 [j] Ἀνεῴχθη δὲ τὸ στόμα αὐτοῦ παραχρῆμα καὶ ἡ γλῶσσα αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἐλάλει εὐλογῶν τὸν Θεόν. 65 Καὶ ἐγένετο ἐπὶ πάντας φόβος τοὺς περιοικοῦντας αὐτούς· καὶ ἐν ὅλῃ τῇ ὀρεινῇ τῆς Ἰουδαίας διελαλεῖτο πάντα τὰ ῥήματα ταῦτα. 66 Καὶ ἔθεντο πάντες οἱ ἀκούσαντες ἐν τῇ καρδίᾳ αὐτῶν λέγοντες, Τί ἄρα τὸ παιδίον τοῦτο ἔσται; καὶ χεὶρ Κυρίου ἦν μετ' αὐτοῦ. 67 Καὶ Ζαχαρίας ὁ πατὴρ αὐτοῦ ἐπλήσθη

w ch. 11. 28.
x 1 Sam. 1. 11. & 2. 1 Hab. 3. 18, Mal. 3. 12.
y Ps. 71. 19. & 126. 2, 3. & 111 9.
z Gen. 17. 7. Exod. 20. 6. Ps. 103. 17.
a Isa. 40. 10. & 51. 9. & 52. 10. Ps. 33. 10. 1 Pet. 5. 5.
b Job 5. 11. & 12. 18, 19, 21. 1 Sam. 2. 7, 8. Ps. 113. 7.
c Ps. 34. 10. 1 Sam. 2. 5.
d Isa. 41. 8. Ps. 98. 3.
e Gen. 17. 19. & 22. 18. Ps. 132. 11.
f ver. 14.
g Gen. 17. 12. Lev. 12. 3.
h ver. 13.
i ver. 13.
j ver. 20.

---

46. μεγαλύνει] Cp. the Song of Hannah, 1 Sam. ii. 1. This speech, full of Hebraisms, has a native air of originality, and connects the eucharistic poetry of the Gospel with that of the Hebrew Dispensation.

Some of the Hebraisms have been noted as follows by Kuin., "ἐποίησέ μοι μεγαλεῖα ὁ δυνατός· μεγαλεῖα respondet Hebraico גְּדֹלוֹת, ut Ps. lxx. 21, ἃ ἐποίησάς μοι μεγαλεῖα· add. lxxi. 29; cxxvi. 2, 3, è quo loco verba nostra videntur esse desumpta. ὁ δυνατὸς, Hebr. גִּבּוֹר, potentissimus, epitheton Dei in literis sacris satis frequens, vid. Ps. xxiv. 8." But see on v. 49.

"καὶ ἅγιον τὸ ὄνομα αὐτοῦ, qui est veneratione dignissimus, καὶ ἅγιον τὸ ὄν. αὐ. positum est pro, οὗ τὸ ὄνομα ἅγιον· vid. Raphelius Obss. Herodd. ad h. l. i. e. simpliciter ὁ ἅγιος, nam ὄνομα, ut Hebr. שֵׁם sæpius redundat.

"καὶ τὸ ἔλεος αὐτοῦ εἰς γενεὰς γενεῶν τοῖς φοβουμένοις αὐτὸν, cujus (καὶ αὐτοῦ pro οὗ, vid. ad v. 66) æterna est beneficentia erga cultores suos. Exod. xx. 6. καὶ ποιῶν ἔλεος εἰς χιλιάδας τοῖς ἀγαπῶσί με, καὶ τοῖς φυλάσσουσι τὰ προστάγματά μου. Ps. lxxxix. 2, 3, τὰ ἐλέη Κυρίου εἰς τὸν αἰῶνα ᾄσομαι· Εἰς γενεὰν καὶ γενεὰν ἀπαγγελῶ — Ὅτι εἶπας εἰς τὸν αἰῶνα ἔλεος οἰκοδομηθήσεται. Vocabulum ἔλεος, quod in versione Alexandrinâ respondet Hebr. חֶסֶד Ps. lxxxix. 3; ciii. 17. Prov. xix. 22. Hos. vi. 4, indicat Dei benignitatem, et beneficia ipsa v. 58. 72. Tit. iii. 5. Heb. iv. 6. εἰς γενεὰς γενεῶν, per omnes ætates, perpetuo, Hebr. דּוֹר דּוֹר Ps. l. c. et Ies. xxxiv. 17, ubi οἱ ὁ. habent εἰς γενεὰς γενεῶν al."

47. Θεῷ τῷ σωτῆρί μου] i. e. in the Eternal Godhead of Jesus, who then took human nature in her womb (Bede), and was the Saviour of the Virgin; who is not therefore a source of salvation.

48. ἐπὶ τὴν ταπείνωσιν τῆς δούλης αὐτοῦ] ἐπέβλεψεν ἐπ' ἐμὲ τὴν ταπεινήν (cp. Glass. Philol. p. 256). οὐκ ἐγὼ πρὸς ἐκεῖνον ἀνέβλεψα. (Theoph.) "Sed humilem me respexit Deus." (Origen.)

— μακαριοῦσι] Not for my virtue, but because God hath done great things for me. (Theophyl.) See Bp. Taylor's Life of Christ, sect. i., and Bp. Bull's Sermon on the Blessed Virgin's low and exalted condition, Sermon iv. p. 83, and Bp. Pearson on the Creed, Art. iii. p. 278.

49. ὁ Δυνατός] שַׁדַּי (Shaddai), the Almighty.

50. εἰς γενεὰς γενεῶν] דּוֹר דּוֹרִים (ledor dorim), or דּוֹר וָדוֹר (dor vador), Joel ii. 2. Gen. xvii. 9. Exod. iii. 15.

52. δυνάστας] specially Satan, the Prince of this world. (Cyril.)

54. ἀντελάβετο] "ἀντιλαβέσθαι τινός est manu prehensum aliquem periculo extrahere; cp. Esa. xli. 8, 9, σὺ Ἰσραὴλ ὁ παῖς οὗ ἀντιλαβόμην." (Valck.)

— Ἰσραὴλ] 'The Israel of God,'—these who follow the steps of Abraham's faith. (Bede.)

56. μῆνας τρεῖς] probably till her delivery.

59. ὀγδόῃ ἡμέρᾳ] Cf. Gen. xvii. 12. The circumcision did not take place in the Temple, but at home, in the house of Zacharias, Elizabeth, the mother, was present.

62. τὸ τί] On this use of τό, see on Mark ix. 23.

64. ἀνεῴχθη δὲ τὸ στόμα] "Resoluta est lingua ejus, quia quam vinxerat incredulitas, fides solvit. Credamus et nos igitur, ut loquamur. Scribamus in Spiritu mysteria si volumus loqui, scribamus prænuntium Christi non in tabulis lapideis, sed in tabulis cordis. Etenim qui Joannem loquitur, Christum prophetat; loquamur Joannem, loquamur et Christum, ut nostrum quoque os possit aperiri." (Ambrose.) When the Voice, which was to prepare the way of the Eternal Word, comes forth into the world, the father's tongue is loosed. (Greg. Naz. Orat. 6.) See above, on v. 22.

65. ῥήματα] things; see above, v. 37.

k Ps. 41. 13. & 106. 48. ch. 7. 16. l Ps. 132. 17, 18.
m Ps 72. 12. Jer. 23 6. & 30. 10 Dan. 9. 24. n Gen. 22. 16. Ps. 105. 9. Jer. 31. 33. Heb. 6. 13.
o Heb. 9. 14.
p 1 Pet. 1. 15.
q Mal. 3. 1. & 4. 5. ver. 17.
r ch. 3. 3.
s Mal. 4. 2. Zech. 3. 8. & 6. 12.
t Ps. 43. 3. & 119. 105. Isa. 9. 1. & 42. 7. & 43. 8. & 49. 9. & 60 1. Matt. 4 16. Rom. 3 17.
u ch. 2. 40.

Πνεύματος ἁγίου, καὶ προεφήτευσε λέγων, [68] [k] Εὐλογητὸς Κύριος ὁ Θεὸς τοῦ Ἰσραὴλ, ὅτι ἐπεσκέψατο καὶ ἐποίησε λύτρωσιν τῷ λαῷ αὐτοῦ· [69] [l] καὶ ἤγειρε κέρας σωτηρίας ἡμῖν ἐν τῷ οἴκῳ Δαυὶδ τοῦ παιδὸς αὐτοῦ· [70] [m] καθὼς ἐλάλησε διὰ στόματος τῶν ἁγίων τῶν ἀπ' αἰῶνος προφητῶν αὐτοῦ· [71] σωτηρίαν ἐξ ἐχθρῶν ἡμῶν, καὶ ἐκ χειρὸς πάντων τῶν μισούντων ἡμᾶς· [72] ποιῆσαι ἔλεος μετὰ τῶν πατέρων ἡμῶν, καὶ μνησθῆναι διαθήκης ἁγίας αὐτοῦ, [73] [n] ὅρκον ὃν ὤμοσε πρὸς Ἀβραὰμ τὸν πατέρα ἡμῶν, [74] τοῦ δοῦναι ἡμῖν [o] ἀφόβως ἐκ χειρὸς τῶν ἐχθρῶν ἡμῶν ῥυσθέντας λατρεύειν αὐτῷ [75] [p] ἐν ὁσιότητι καὶ δικαιοσύνῃ ἐνώπιον αὐτοῦ πάσας τὰς ἡμέρας τῆς ζωῆς ἡμῶν. [76] [q] Καὶ σὺ, παιδίον, προφήτης Ὑψίστου κληθήσῃ· προπορεύσῃ γὰρ πρὸ προσώπου Κυρίου, ἑτοιμάσαι ὁδοὺς αὐτοῦ, [77] [r] τοῦ δοῦναι γνῶσιν σωτηρίας τῷ λαῷ αὐτοῦ ἐν ἀφέσει ἁμαρτιῶν αὐτῶν, [78] [s] διὰ σπλάγχνα ἐλέους Θεοῦ ἡμῶν, ἐν οἷς ἐπεσκέψατο ἡμᾶς ἀνατολὴ ἐξ ὕψους, [79] [t] ἐπιφᾶναι τοῖς ἐν σκότει καὶ σκιᾷ θανάτου καθημένοις, τοῦ κατευθῦναι τοὺς πόδας ἡμῶν εἰς ὁδὸν εἰρήνης.

80 [u] Τὸ δὲ παιδίον ηὔξανε καὶ ἐκραταιοῦτο πνεύματι· καὶ ἦν ἐν ταῖς ἐρήμοις, ἕως ἡμέρας ἀναδείξεως αὐτοῦ πρὸς τὸν Ἰσραήλ.

II. [1] Ἐγένετο δὲ ἐν ταῖς ἡμέραις ἐκείναις ἐξῆλθε δόγμα παρὰ Καίσαρος Αὐγούστου ἀπογράφεσθαι πᾶσαν τὴν οἰκουμένην· [2] Αὕτη ἡ ἀπογραφὴ πρώτη

---

68. εὐλογητός] This Hymn also, like the Magnificat, is replete with Hebraisms, harmonizing it with the Psalmody of the Old Testament. Thus the voices of the Law and the Gospel are heard in concert with each other; and utter a protest against those who would make the one to jar against the other. Some of the Hebrew expressions will be noticed in the following notes.

It may be well for the Student to read the Hymns of this and the following Chapter, in Hebrew, in which they have been published in Translations of the New Testament, and in the Book of Common Prayer rendered into that language.

69. κέρας] קֶרֶן (keren), cornu, Ps. cxxxii. 17. Horns are emblems of power, Dan. vii. 7, 8. 11; viii. 3. Rev. v. 6; ix. 13; xii. 3; xiii. 1; xvii. 3. 7. 12. 16, and of eminent persons in a family. See Vorst. Hebr. p. 105. Ps. cxxxii. 17. Ezek. xxix. 21.

72, 73. ἔλεος—μνησθῆναι διαθήκης ἁγίας αὐτοῦ, ὅρκον] "ποιῆσαι et μνησθῆναι posita sunt pro εἰς τὸ ποιῆσαι et εἰς τὸ μνησθῆναι. Formula autem ποιεῖν ἔλεος μετά τινος notat benignum se alicui præstare, benignitatem suam alicui demonstrare, fuvere, bene velle alicui, atque adeo μετὰ τῶν πατέρων est id. qd. τοῖς πατράσιν ἡμῶν. Hebræi enim eodem modo formulæ עָשָׂה חֶסֶד addere solent particulas עִם et לְ. vid. Gen. xxiv. 14, add. xxvi. 29. Exod. xx. 6; xxxiv. 7. Deut. v. 10. Vorstius de Hebraism. N. T. p. 657, et Leusdenius de Hebraism. p. 128." Kuin. The Holy Spirit, speaking by Zacharias, seems to refer here to the providential dispensation signified in the names of the Baptist and his parents. The Baptist, by his name, John spake of the ἔλεος or grace of God; Zacharias (from זָכָר (Zachar), recordatus fuit, and יָהּ, Jah, Jehovah), signifies Θεὸς ἐμνήσθη, and Elisabeth (from אֵל (El), Deus, and שָׁבַע (sheba), juravit), is connected with the ὅρκος Θεοῦ.

75. ὁσιότητι καὶ δικαιοσύνῃ] "ὅσιος præcipuè in Deum. δίκαιος etiam erga homines (Eph. iv. 24)." ὅσιος may perhaps be connected with the Hebr. hesed (whence the ἁσιδαῖοι and chasidim among the Jews), and is generally used for it by the LXX. δίκαιος represents the Hebrew tsadik, one who acts in conformity with law. ὁσιότης is internal holiness and love (cp. v. 6), and δικαιοσύνη is expressive of reverent observance of external ordinances of the written law.

76. παιδίον] Infans—"Infans tantillus Propheta dicetur et erit Altissimi." (Valck.)

78. ἀνατολή] Used by LXX for Hebr. מִזְרָח (mizrah), oriens (cp. Hebr. אוֹר (or), lux; from root זָרַח (zarah), ortus fuit. Jer. xxxi. 40. Cp. Mal. iv. 2, and Rev. xvi. 12, 'kings of the East.' The term ἀνατολὴ had also been applied to Christ by the LXX in translating the word צֶמַח (tsemah), germen, surculus, the Branch, in Jer. xxiii. 5. Zach. iii. 8; vi. 12. Cp. Is. ix. 2; lx. 1. Ps. cx. 3. Matt. iv. 16. (Junius, Parallel. i. 55. Glass. Phil. p. 756.) "Vates Hebræi," says Valck., "MESSIAM venturum consideraverunt sub utrâque imagine et Solis orientis et Germinis quod cœlitus duceret originem."

And this ἀνατολή, whether as Oriens or Germen, is distinguished from all other ἀνατολαί,—because, whereas they are from below, this is from above, ἐξ ὕψους.

79. σκιᾷ θανάτου] For Hebr. צַלְמָוֶת (tsalmaveth). Isa. ix. 1. Matt. iv. 16.

CH. II. 1.] This ἀπογραφὴ was an enrolment or registration. It does not appear that any impost or tax was levied with it. The Emperor Augustus is known to have made a Breviarium totius Imperii (Sueton. Octav. 28. 101), in which was registered "quantum sociorum in armis." (Tacit. Ann. i. 11.) See also other authorities in Savigny Zeitschrift für geschichtliche Rechts-wissenschaft, vol. vi. 350, who shows that Augustus contemplated a taxation of the whole Roman empire.

Though Judæa was now nominally a kingdom under Herod, yet Herod was a vassal of Augustus (see Josephus, Ant. xvi. 9); and Herod's subjects took an oath of allegiance to Augustus (Ibid. xvii. 2), perhaps when this ἀπογραφὴ was made. By referring to this ἀπογραφὴ, St. Luke thus points attention to the following facts,—

That the time was come for the Messiah's birth, because the whole world was now subject to the Roman, or Fourth Monarchy (Dan. ii. 44). See Chrys. v. 716, Orat. iii.

That the time was very seasonable for the coming of the Prince of Peace, now that Augustus ruled, under whom the Temple of Janus was shut. See Dio, lib. iv. Patrit. ii. p. 165.

That the sceptre was only now departing from Judah; for this registration of which he is now speaking was the first ἀπογραφή.

That the greatest power of the world was made subservient to God and Christ, in bringing Mary to Bethlehem, and so fulfilling the prophecies which prove her Divine Son to be the Messiah.

— πᾶσαν τὴν οἰκουμένην] The Roman empire. Acts xvii. 6; xxiv. 5. Joseph. Ant. xii. 3l. B. J. v. 5. 14. Herodian, v. 2. 5. Bloomf. Patrit. De Evang. iii. 18.

The "whole world" is related to Jesus, who was willing to be enrolled in the same catalogue with them (cp. Beng.), and not with the Jews alone. Compare the confirmation of St. Luke's narrative in Libri Apocr. N. T. p. 234 and 373, where the ἀπογραφὴ is well rendered 'professio.'

2. αὕτη—Κυρηνίου] Κυρήνιος, or Quirinus, was Præses of Syria after Varus,—i. e. A.U.C. 758 (see Joseph. Ant. xvi. 13. Tacit. Annal. iii. 68), about ten years after our Lord's Nativity, and he then held an ἀπογραφή. (Joseph. Ant. xviii. 1, referred to by St. Luke in the Acts, v. 37.)

Therefore it is said by some that there is an error here in the Sacred History[1]. Others assert the word πρώτη here signifies

---

[1] The following is from Meyer, p. 237: "Der Bericht des Lukas ist offenbar irrig. Denn 1) ist das Præsidium des Quirinus um etwa zehn Jahre zu früh gesetzt; und 2) kann ein Reichs-Census, wenn ein solcher überhaupt zur Zeit der Geburt Jesu gehalten worden wäre (was jedoch anderweitig nicht nachzuweisen steht; denn die Stellen christlicher Autoren Cassiodor. Var. 3. 52. Suidas. s. v. ἀπογραφὴ beruhen offenbar auf dem Berichte des Luk., wie auch die chronologisch irrige Notiz des Isidor. Orig. 5. 36, 4), Palästina nicht betroffen haben, da diess noch nicht Römische Provinz geworden war, was erst 759 geschah, wie denn auch die Verhängung einer so abnormen und beunruhigenden Maassregel über Palästina, welche gewiss nicht ohne tumultuarische Opposition verlaufen sein würde, so ungemein wichtig für die Jüdische Geschichte gewesen wäre, dass sie Joseph. gewiss nicht mit völligem Stillschweigen übergangen hätte (Antt. 18, 1, 1, gehört nicht hieher),—zumal da nicht etwa der rex socius selbst, Herodes, sondern der Römische Gouverneur, Quirinus, nach Luk. (gegen Wieseler) die dirigirende Behörde war. Ueberhaupt aber 3) ist die Abhaltung eines allgemeinen Reichscensus unter Augustus durchaus unhistorisch; historisch ist (s. d. Monum. Ancyran. b. Wolf ed. Sueton. ii. p. 369 ff. vrgl. Sueton. Aug. 27), dass Augustus dreimal, 726, 746, u. 767, einen Census populi d. i. einen Census der Römischen Bürger, nicht aber auch der sämmtlichen Provinzen des Reichs, gehalten habe (s. gegen Huschke: Wieseler p. 84 ff.)."

Such is the tone in which the divinely inspired record of the blessed Evangelist is now treated by some of the learning of this world. May the warning not be lost on those whose duty it is to guard the Truth!

ἐγένετο ἡγεμονεύοντος τῆς Συρίας Κυρηνίου. 3 καὶ ἐπορεύοντο πάντες ἀπογράφεσθαι, ἕκαστος εἰς τὴν ἰδίαν πόλιν. 4 v Ἀνέβη δὲ καὶ Ἰωσὴφ ἀπὸ τῆς Γαλιλαίας ἐκ πόλεως Ναζαρὲτ εἰς τὴν Ἰουδαίαν, εἰς πόλιν Δαυὶδ ἥτις καλεῖται Βηθλεέμ, διὰ τὸ εἶναι αὐτὸν ἐξ οἴκου καὶ πατριᾶς Δαυίδ, 5 ἀπογράψασθαι σὺν Μαριὰμ τῇ μεμνηστευμένῃ αὐτῷ γυναικὶ, οὔσῃ ἐγκύῳ. (2 v) 6 Ἐγένετο δὲ ἐν τῷ v Micah 5. 2. John 7. 42. 1 Sam. 16. 4. Matt. 1. 1. et seqq.

before, as πρῶτός μου, John i. 15. 30; cp. Acts v. 37. (See Wieseler, Chronol. Synops. der 4 Evangelien, p. 111—121. Greswell, Dissertations, xii. vol. i. p. 533.)

A similar explanation has been given by Tholuck (Glaubwurdigheit, &c. p. 162) and others. In this case the purport of the Evangelist in this sentence would be to guard his readers against confounding this taxing at our Lord's Nativity, with the later one which was held by Quirinus (to which St. Luke himself has referred in the Acts of the Apostles, v. 37), and so falling into a chronological error with regard to the life of Christ.

But this exposition is hardly consistent with the Greek text of the Evangelist.

Others have supposed (e. g. Casaubon, Exc. Antibar. p. 126, Grotius, and Wernsdorf, de Censu Vitel. 1693. Birch, de Censu Quirini, 1790. Munster, Stern d. Weisen, p. 88. Neander, Leb. Jes. p. 25; see Winer, Lex. v. Quirinus) that ἡγεμονεύοντος is to be understood in a larger sense, and is intended to express that Quirinus was an Envoy, or Commissioner Extraordinary, from Augustus, to hold this earlier Census. And it appears that he was in favour with Augustus, and had authority in the East under Augustus. (Tacit. Ann. iii. 48; i. 42. Muratori, Thesaur. Inscr. i. p. 670.) But it does not seem that the words ἡγεμονεύοντος τῆς Συρίας Κυρηνίου can bear this sense.

Bp. Middleton has proposed another interpretation (on the Greek Article, ad loc.); according to which πρώτη should be equivalent to πρῶτον, and the sense be, 'this taxing first took effect;' see also Dr. Kitto, Daily Illustr. p. 49.

On the whole, it seems that there are two interpretations, and two only, of this passage, which are conformable to grammatical laws.

The first is, this first taxing took place (ἐγένετο, not ἦν, cp. ἐγένετο, Acts xi. 28) when Cyrenius was Governor of Syria. (See the similar use of ἡγεμονεύοντος in ch. iii. 1.)

According to this translation, Cyrenius was Governor of Syria at the time of the Nativity, as well as ten years after it. This is not impossible; indeed, Justin Martyr, who lived in Palestine in the second century, says in three places that this was the case. He says (Apol. i. 34), "Jesus was born at Bethlehem, thirty stadia distant from Jerusalem; as you may learn from the enrolments that were holden (ἀπογραφῶν τῶν γενομένων) under Quirinus your first Governor, in Judæa." This testimony is more important because it is addressed to the Emperor, Senate, and People of Rome. Justin says also (Apol. i. 46), "Christ was born one hundred and fifty years ago, under Quirinus."

And in his dialogue with Trypho the Jew (cap. 78) he says that "Joseph went up from Nazareth, where he dwelt, to Bethlehem, whence he derived his origin, when the first taxing in Judæa was held under Quirinus." These statements are of more value as made by one who had lived in Judæa, and was addressing himself to persons who might be supposed to be familiar with the facts. Cp. Euseb. H. E. i. 5. Nor is this statement inconsistent with Tertullian's account, that the census of the Nativity was holden by Saturninus. Tertullian's words are (Marcion, iv. 19), "census actos in Judæâ per Sentium Saturninum." And Sentius Saturninus might have had local jurisdiction in this matter in Judæa, while Quirinus was Præses of Syria; as Coponius was afterwards Procurator of Judæa, while Quirinus was Præses of Syria (Joseph. Antiq. xviii. 1); and St. Luke himself uses the term ἡγεμονεύοντος τῆς Ἰουδαίας (iii. 1) as a distinct one from ἡγεμονεύοντος τῆς Συρίας. Perhaps in the fact of his having held the first Census, we may see a reason why Quirinus was afterwards chosen as a man of experience in Syrian affairs by Augustus to hold the second Census, and to fill the office of Præses in A.U. 758.

In Josephus (Ant. xvi. 9) both Saturninus and Volumnius are called Καίσαρος ἡγεμόνες and τῆς Συρίας ἐπιστατοῦντες. So Saturninus and Quirinus might hold office at once.

An opinion very similar has been recently maintained with much learning by Patritius, de Evang. ii. p. 165—168.

The researches of Zumpt (Comment. Epigraph. pt. ii. Berlin, 1844) have enhanced the probability that Quirinus, who was Governor of Cilicia, was also Governor of Syria at the time of the Nativity, and have satisfied an able writer of Roman History that this was the case. (See Merivale's Roman Empire, vol. iv. p. 457.)

It is very probable that Quirinius was employed by Augustus to superintend the enrolment at the time of the Nativity, and that Saturninus was associated with him, but with inferior powers, in this commission. The main point in Zumpt's argument is, that Cilicia, when separated from Cyprus by Augustus, did not remain a distinct government, but was united to Syria (cp. Dio C. liii. 12. Tac. Ann. ii. 43; ii. 70 and 78; vi. 41. Zumpt, pp. 90—148); and it is inferred that Quirinus was governor of Cilicia, from his having gained a victory over the Cilician tribe the Homonadenses. (Tacit. Ann. iii. 48. Strabo, xii. 6. 5; xiv. 4. 1.)

Secondly; if this interpretation be not admissible (and it may be said that according to it the original words would rather have been αὕτη ἡ πρώτη ἀπογραφὴ, than αὕτη ἡ ἀπογραφὴ πρώτη), then perhaps (as the collocation and rhythm of the words seem to suggest) the passage may be rendered as follows—"this Taxing or Enrolment became πρώτη, or first, when Cyrenius was Governor of Syria."

It is to be remembered, that St. Luke's design in referring to the Register or ἀπογραφὴ was to convince his readers that Joseph and Mary were of David's line, and that Christ was born at Bethlehem. In order to do this, he must specify clearly what the title of the Registration was to which he referred. If the reader looked in the Register of Quirinus (whose Census in U.C. 758 was a celebrated one, and was held about ten years after the Nativity), he would find no such entry; and he would suspect the Evangelist of error, and would not have the evidence which St. Luke desired to impart.

The sense therefore may be, This taxing at the Nativity became the first (taxing) when Cyrenius or Quirinus was President of Syria.

This may be thus explained. Josephus relates (xviii. 1; cp. Acts v. 37) that another Census was held by Cyrenius when President of Syria. Consequently a necessity then first arose that the earlier Census which had been held in the year of our Lord's birth, should be distinguished from that later one which was held by Quirinus. Therefore it then became known as πρώτη ἀπογραφὴ. And St. Luke's meaning appears to be, that when Quirinus was afterwards President of Syria, and, as such, held a Census, then the other Census of which he is now speaking came to be characterized as πρώτη. And the Evangelist thus instructs his readers, that, in order to find the names of Joseph and Mary, and to obtain official evidence from the Roman archives of Christ's birth at Bethlehem, they are not to look in the Register which was made by Quirinus, but to refer to that other and earlier Registration which then began to be entitled πρώτη ἀπογραφὴ, because it was then first succeeded by a δευτέρα, or Second ἀπογραφὴ.

Let it not be objected that St. Luke would then have written ἡ πρώτη. In Matt. x. 2 we have πρῶτος Σίμων—not ὁ πρῶτος. St. Luke illustrates this manner of speaking in his Preface to the Acts i. 1, where he speaks of his Gospel as his πρῶτος λόγος.

The other and later Registration (that of Quirinus) seems to have been known as "the taxing" (ἡ ἀπογραφὴ). It was the more celebrated of the two, because in the earlier taxing (that of the Nativity) Judæa had not been reduced to a Roman province, as it was after the deposition of Archelaus, under Quirinus, with a Procurator (or ἐπίτροπος) of its own, Coponius, subject to Quirinus, the Præses of Syria. (Josephus, Ant. xviii. 1, and B. J. ii. 11. Cp. Bp. Pearson On the Creed, Art. iv.)

The later or second taxing under Quirinus, is called ἡ ἀπογραφὴ (the taxing) by St. Luke himself (Acts v. 37). And so St. Luke shows that he knew of the existence of two ἀπογραφαὶ, and how and when they were distinguished from one another,—the one as "the first Registration," the second as "the Registration."

In confirmation of the above opinion it may be observed that, in the Roman provinces, Land, which could be shown to have been under cultivation for ten years, was liable to taxation. (See Ulpian, de Censibus, Jus Civile, i. p. 705.) And the ἀπογραφὴ of Cyrenius was about ten years after our Lord's birth.

Hence the land which had been registered as under cultivation at the time of the Nativity would have become taxable at the registration of Cyrenius. The registration at the time of the Nativity would then come into full operation. Those who had been then registered would be first called out to pay taxes. In this sense it might well be called πρώτη, prima, principalis (see on Luke vi. 1; xv. 22. Acts xvi. 12) descriptio. Just as a levy of soldiers, dating back from a given year, may be called a prima conscriptio.

Hence also we may explain that at the ἀπογραφὴ of the Nativity there was no popular outbreak, although Judæa was then nominally a Monarchy; but ten years afterwards, when it came into operation, an insurrection took place, although Judæa was then more directly subject to Rome. See on Acts v. 37.

Thus also St. Luke shows his Gentile readers, and particularly such persons as the "most excellent Theophilus"—men of patrician rank and official dignity—that the great Heathen Emperor of the World, Cæsar Augustus, was an instrument in the hands of God for accomplishing the prophecies concerning the birth-place and parentage of the Messiah, which prove that Jesus is the Christ; and he refers those Gentile readers to the public records in the Roman Capitol for evidence of the truth of his narrative in these important respects.

3. ἕκαστος] Every Roman subject was liable to capitation tax; males after fourteen, females after twelve. (See Huschke, über den Census, p. 120. Davidson's Introduction, i. pp. 206—214.)

4. Βηθλεέμ] the House of Bread. Cp. John vi. 51. 58. (Greg. Hom. viii. in Evan. and Bede. See Matt. ii. 1.)

— οἴκου καὶ πατριᾶς] πατριὰ = φυλὴ (Hesyc.); οἶκος, a family in the tribe. He was of the tribe of Judah and house of David in it.

5. σὺν Μαριὰμ—οὔσῃ ἐγκύῳ] A suggestion that she also was of the house of David. (See on Matt. i.) Even though women were εἶναι αὐτοὺς ἐκεῖ, ἐπλήσθησαν αἱ ἡμέραι τοῦ τεκεῖν αὐτήν· 7 [w] καὶ ἔτεκε τὸν υἱὸν αὐτῆς τὸν πρωτότοκον, καὶ ἐσπαργάνωσεν αὐτὸν, καὶ ἀνέκλινεν αὐτὸν ἐν τῇ φάτνῃ, διότι οὐκ ἦν αὐτοῖς τόπος ἐν τῷ καταλύματι.

(ζ) 8 Καὶ ποιμένες ἦσαν ἐν τῇ χώρᾳ τῇ αὐτῇ ἀγραυλοῦντες, καὶ φυλάσσοντες φυλακὰς τῆς νυκτὸς ἐπὶ τὴν ποίμνην αὐτῶν. 9 Καὶ ἰδοὺ, ἄγγελος Κυρίου ἐπέστη αὐτοῖς, καὶ [x] δόξα Κυρίου περιέλαμψεν αὐτούς· καὶ ἐφοβήθησαν φόβον μέγαν. 10 Καὶ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς ὁ ἄγγελος, [y] Μὴ φοβεῖσθε· ἰδοὺ γὰρ, εὐαγγελί-ζομαι ὑμῖν χαρὰν μεγάλην, ἥτις ἔσται παντὶ τῷ λαῷ· 11 [z] ὅτι ἐτέχθη ὑμῖν σήμερον σωτὴρ, ὅς ἐστι Χριστὸς Κύριος, ἐν πόλει Δαυΐδ· 12 καὶ τοῦτο ὑμῖν τὸ σημεῖον· εὑρήσετε βρέφος ἐσπαργανωμένον, κείμενον ἐν φάτνῃ. 13 [a] Καὶ ἐξαίφνης ἐγένετο σὺν τῷ ἀγγέλῳ πλῆθος στρατιᾶς οὐρανίου, αἰνούντων τὸν Θεὸν καὶ λεγόντων, 14 [b] Δόξα ἐν ὑψίστοις Θεῷ, καὶ [c] ἐπὶ γῆς εἰρήνη, ἐν [d] ἀνθρώποις εὐδοκία. 15 Καὶ ἐγένετο, ὡς ἀπῆλθον ἀπ' αὐτῶν εἰς τὸν οὐρανὸν οἱ ἄγγελοι, καὶ οἱ ἄνθρωποι οἱ ποιμένες εἶπον πρὸς ἀλλήλους, Διέλθωμεν δὴ ἕως

w Matt. 1. 25.
x Exod. 24. 16. & 40. 34. Acts 7. 55.
y John 20. 19, 26.
z Isa. 9. 6. Acts 3. 26. & 5. 31. & 13. 23.
a Dan. 7. 10. Rev. 5. 11.
b ch. 19. 38. Isa. 49. 13. & 57. 19. Eph. 2. 17. & 3. 10. Rev. 5. 13.
Rom 5. 1. John 3. 16. Eph. 2. 4, 7.
c Matt. 11. 28—30. Rom. 5. 1. Eph. 2. 14—18. Col. 1. 20.
d John 3. 16. Tit. 2. 11. & 3 4—7. 1 John 2. 2. & 4. 9. 10.

---

not obliged by the edict to go with their husbands to their cities, yet Mary in her present state might well desire the protection of Joseph; and the Evangelist seems to suggest that her pregnancy (so far from being an obstacle to it) was rather a reason for her journey, which (it must be remembered) did not exceed seventy miles. It appears also that women in Syria were subject to a capitation tax after the age of fourteen. (See Ulpian in Jus Civile de Censibus, i. p. 705.) And she would have had divine guidance to direct her in this important matter. It is also probable from the fact mentioned in v. 7 that Mary swathed the Infant Jesus herself, that the pains of parturition and of childbirth were mercifully alleviated to her in bringing forth into the World Him Who alone was conceived without sin. And this was the opinion of some of the Fathers. (See Maldonat. and Burgon.) "Ipsa et mater et obstetrix fuit." (Cyprian, Jerome.)

The doubts raised by De Wette (ad loc.) and Strauss (Leben Jesu, i. § 28) on this part of the History, proceed from a supposition that it was the duty of the Holy Spirit to record every minute particular in the Gospels, and from a want of recognition of divine suggestion and counsel regulating the actions of those who were principally concerned in the events.

7. πρωτότοκον] See on Matt. i. 25, and St. Cyril here, p. 123, who well observes that Christ is called πρωτότοκος in two senses in Holy Scripture, as Everlasting Son of God (Heb. i. 6); and, as here, as Son of Mary; and that as certainly in the former case πρωτότοκος is equivalent to μονογενὴς, or only-begotten, so it is in the latter. In both cases He is πρῶτος καὶ μόνος.

— ἐσπαργάνωσεν] Used by LXX in Ezek. xvi. 4 for חָתַל (hathal), 'fasciis involvit.' Cp. Job xxxviii. 9.

— ἐν τῇ φάτνῃ] The stable of the Inn. (Valck.) φάτνη is used by the LXX for 'stabulum,' 'bovile;' as Latin præsepe (Virgil, vii. 275), not for manger properly so called. (See Prov. xiv. 4. Job xxxix. 9. Hab. iii. 17. 2 Chron. xxxii. 28, and elsewhere.) It was not necessary that He should be laid in the manger, because there was no room in the κατάλυμα.

And this is confirmed by the Angel's words in v. 12, "Ye shall find the babe lying in τῇ φάτνῃ."

— ἐν τῷ καταλύματι] The inn, or caravanserai, "ubi peregrinantes sarcinas de camelis vel equis solutas deponebant." Bethlehem being a small village, perhaps there was only one inn, and this would be now crowded by persons coming for the ἀπογραφή.

Concerning the grotto called the 'Cave of the Nativity,' see St. Justin M. c. Tryphon. cap. 78. Origen. i. p. 567. Euseb. Vit. Const. iii. 41. St. Jerome, Ep. 24 ad Marcell. Suicer L. v. φάτνη, and the Libri Apocryphi N. T. pp. 17. 67. 240. 377, ed. Thilo, particularly the note in p. 382; and Robinson's Palestine, ii. 285. Dr. Kitto's Illustrations of N. T. pp. 60 and 70—76. Cp. on Matt. ii. 1.

It is remarkable that this word, κατάλυμα, is used in two other places of the N. T. (Mark xiv. 14. Luke xxii. 11), and there designates the Guest-chamber, Upper Room, ἀνώγειον, or ὑπερῷον (cf. Mark xiv. 15. Luke xxii. 12), where Our Lord ate the Paschal Supper with His Disciples.

It is probable that the κατάλυμα at Bethlehem was the Upper Story of the Caravanserai; and that in that upper story the Guests were lodged; while the horses and camels were stabled in the φάτνη below.

This is a very usual arrangement of Khans in Palestine and the East. Cp. Dr. Dorr's Notes of Travel in the East, pp. 202 and 238.

If this was so,—there was something very significant in this humiliation of Our Blessed Lord at His Nativity.

The application of the Prophecies Isa. i. 3, Habak. iii. 2, to our Lord as lying in the φάτνη "inter bovem et asinum," however strained and inadmissible, is yet an ancient witness to the fact of our Lord's birth in the stable; as is also the record in the Apocryphal Book Historia de Infantia, &c., ed. Thilo, pp. 381—384, where see an interesting note by the learned Editor.

8. ποιμένες ἦσαν—τῆς νυκτός] By night: hence it has been inferred that our Lord was not born in the month of December. See the Gemara Nedar 63 concerning the seventeenth day of the month of November: "Pluvia prima descendit; tunc armenta redibant domum; nec pastores in tuguriis amplius habitabant in agris." Clement Alexand. (Strom. i. p. 340) relates that in his age (the third Century) some regarded the twentieth of May, others the twentieth of April, as the birthday of Christ. The twenty-fifth of December was observed as such first in the west in the fourth century. Leo Mag. Serm. xxi. c. 6. Chrys. v. p. 511, Orat. 62. Sulp. Sever. Hist. Sacr. ii. 27. Bp. Pearson's Minor Works, ed. Churton, ii. 153, "Christ's birth not mistimed." Cp. Lardner's Works, i. pp. 370. 372, who places the day of the birth in the autumn about Oct. 1. Greswell fixes on April 5, A.U. 750. On the year of the Nativity, see on Matt. ii. 20.

It may be here observed that after the most elaborate researches of learned men, great uncertainty still prevails (cp. Clinton, F. H. iii. pp. 256—260), and probably will always prevail, with regard to the following points:

The year of our Lord's Birth.
The time of year of His Birth.
The duration of His Ministry.

Perhaps the Holy Spirit may have concealed these things from the wise and prudent, in order to teach them humility; to remind them at the very outset of the Gospel that their knowledge is very limited; that their powers of discovering even historical truths are feeble; and to make them more meek and docile with regard to supernatural truth and doctrinal revelations; and to inspire us with more gratitude for that degree of light and knowledge which it has pleased Him to impart to the world, concerning what most concerns us to know in order to our everlasting salvation,—viz. the actions, and teaching, and sufferings of Christ; and to remind us that He has been pleased to omit many other particulars which we might desire to know, and which perhaps might have removed some seeming difficulties in the Gospel History which are designed to try our faith.

On the uncertainty with regard to places in the Gospel History, see on i. 39. Matt. v. 1.

— ἐν τῇ χώρᾳ] Near the tower Ader, where Jacob fed his flock. (Jerome, in Epitaph. Paul.)

9. Κυρίου] i. e. Jehovah; for (as Mintert observes in v.) the "LXX sæpissimè usi sunt hâc voce Κύριος (a κύρω, sum) pro nomine Dei essentiali ac propriissimo יְהוָה (Jehovah), quod ab הָיָה (fuit)." And it is remarkable that St. Luke uses this word Κύριος in this sense three times here, cp. vv. 9. 15, in order to prepare us for its true sense as connected with Christ in v. 11 (cp. ii. 26); in a word, to show that Jesus, the Messiah, is no less than Jehovah.

11. Χριστὸς Κύριος] See note on v. 9.

The angels of heaven bring the glad tidings—not to the scribes and Pharisees at Jerusalem—but they announce to shepherds keeping their flock by night the birth of the Chief Shepherd—the Good Shepherd—who would lay down His Life for His sheep (Chrys., Bede); and while they behold our salvation (by which our nature is exalted above theirs), they rejoice that their number is completed. Greg. 28. Moral. sup. Job, 38.

13. αἰνούντων τὸν Θεόν] If we would do God's will on earth as the Angels do in heaven, we must praise Him when He exalts others above ourselves, as the Heavenly Host praised Him when Human Nature was exalted above that of Angels, by its union with the Divine Nature in Christ. (Heb. ii. 16.) On this text see Mede, Disc. xxiv. pp. 89—96. And on the Historic Reality of Angelic appearances in the Gospel Dispensation, see Dr. Mill's Dissertation, ii. 54—72, in reply to Strauss.

14. εἰρήνη, ἐν ἀνθρώποις εὐδοκία] Some few MSS. read εὐδοκίας. Peace is here proclaimed to men of εὐδοκία (Origen, who however reads εὐδοκία, c. Celsum, i. p. 46. Mede, p. 93); for there is no peace to the wicked. (Bede.) Valck. interprets it 'homines beneplaciti,'—i. e. in whom God is well pleased.

15. οἱ ἄνθρωποι οἱ ποιμένες] Emphatically; the Angels returned into heaven, having made this glorious revelation, displaying the exaltation of man's nature above their own to men, and, among Βηθλεὲμ, καὶ ἴδωμεν τὸ ῥῆμα τοῦτο τὸ γεγονὸς, ὃ ὁ Κύριος ἐγνώρισεν ἡμῖν. 16 Καὶ ἦλθον σπεύσαντες, καὶ ἀνεῦρον τήν τε Μαριὰμ καὶ τὸν Ἰωσὴφ, καὶ τὸ βρέφος κείμενον ἐν τῇ φάτνῃ. 17 Ἰδόντες δὲ διεγνώρισαν περὶ τοῦ ῥήματος τοῦ λαληθέντος αὐτοῖς περὶ τοῦ παιδίου τούτου. 18 Καὶ πάντες οἱ ἀκούσαντες ἐθαύμασαν περὶ τῶν λαληθέντων ὑπὸ τῶν ποιμένων πρὸς αὐτούς. 19 [e] Ἡ δὲ Μαριὰμ πάντα συνετήρει τὰ ῥήματα ταῦτα, συμβάλλουσα ἐν τῇ καρδίᾳ αὐτῆς. 20 Καὶ ὑπέστρεψαν οἱ ποιμένες δοξάζοντες καὶ αἰνοῦντες τὸν Θεὸν ἐπὶ πᾶσιν οἷς ἤκουσαν καὶ εἶδον, καθὼς ἐλαλήθη πρὸς αὐτούς.

e Gen. 37. 11. 1 Sam. 21. 12. ch. 1. 66. & ver. 51.

21 [f] Καὶ ὅτε ἐπλήσθησαν ἡμέραι ὀκτὼ τοῦ περιτεμεῖν αὐτὸν, καὶ ἐκλήθη τὸ ὄνομα αὐτοῦ ΙΗΣΟΥΣ, τὸ κληθὲν ὑπὸ τοῦ ἀγγέλου πρὸ τοῦ συλληφθῆναι αὐτὸν ἐν τῇ κοιλίᾳ.

f Gen. 17. 12. Lev. 12. 3. ch. 1. 31. Matt. 1. 21. John 7. 22.

22 [g] Καὶ ὅτε ἐπλήσθησαν αἱ ἡμέραι τοῦ καθαρισμοῦ αὐτῶν, κατὰ τὸν νόμον Μωϋσέως, ἀνήγαγον αὐτὸν εἰς Ἱεροσόλυμα, παραστῆσαι τῷ Κυρίῳ, 23 [h] καθὼς γέγραπται ἐν νόμῳ Κυρίου, Ὅτι πᾶν ἄρσεν διανοῖγον μήτραν ἅγιον τῷ Κυρίῳ κληθήσεται· 24 [i] καὶ τοῦ δοῦναι θυσίαν, κατὰ τὸ εἰρημένον ἐν νόμῳ Κυρίου, ζεῦγος τρυγόνων ἢ δύο νεοσσοὺς περιστερῶν.

g Lev. 12. 2. et seqq. h Exod. 13. 2. & 22. 29. & 34. 19. Numb. 3. 13. & 8. 16, 17. i Lev. 12. 6, 8.

25 Καὶ ἰδοὺ, ἦν ἄνθρωπος ἐν Ἱερουσαλὴμ ᾧ ὄνομα Συμεών· καὶ ὁ ἄνθρωπος οὗτος δίκαιος καὶ εὐλαβὴς, προσδεχόμενος [k] παράκλησιν τοῦ Ἰσραήλ. Καὶ Πνεῦμα ἦν ἅγιον ἐπ' αὐτὸν, 26 καὶ ἦν αὐτῷ κεχρηματισμένον ὑπὸ τοῦ Πνεύματος τοῦ ἁγίου, μὴ ἰδεῖν θάνατον πρὶν ἢ ἴδῃ τὸν Χριστὸν Κυρίου. 27 [l] Καὶ ἦλθεν ἐν τῷ Πνεύματι εἰς τὸ ἱερόν· καὶ ἐν τῷ εἰσαγαγεῖν τοὺς γονεῖς τὸ παιδίον Ἰησοῦν, τοῦ ποιῆσαι αὐτοὺς κατὰ τὸ εἰθισμένον τοῦ νόμου περὶ αὐτοῦ, 28 καὶ αὐτὸς ἐδέξατο αὐτὸ εἰς τὰς ἀγκάλας αὐτοῦ, καὶ εὐλόγησε τὸν Θεὸν καὶ εἶπε, 29 [m] Νῦν ἀπολύεις τὸν δοῦλόν σου, Δέσποτα, κατὰ τὸ ῥῆμά σου, ἐν εἰρήνῃ, 30 [n] ὅτι εἶδον οἱ ὀφθαλμοί μου τὸ σωτήριόν σου, 31 ὃ ἡτοίμασας κατὰ πρόσωπον πάντων τῶν λαῶν, 32 [o] φῶς εἰς ἀποκάλυψιν ἐθνῶν, καὶ δόξαν λαοῦ σου Ἰσραήλ. 33 Καὶ ἦν Ἰωσὴφ καὶ ἡ μήτηρ αὐτοῦ θαυμάζοντες ἐπὶ τοῖς λαλουμένοις περὶ αὐτοῦ. 34 [p] Καὶ εὐλόγησεν αὐτοὺς Συμεὼν, καὶ εἶπε πρὸς Μαριὰμ τὴν μητέρα k Isa. 40. 1—4. & 49. 13. & 51. 3. & 52. 7—10. & 61. 1—3. l Matt. 4. 1. m Gen. 46. 30. Phil. 1. 23. n Ps. 98. 2. Isa. 52. 10. ch. 3. 6. o Isa. 42. 6. & 49. 6. Acts 13. 47. & 28. 28. ch. 1. 68. p Isa. 8. 14. & 28. 16. Matt. 21. 44. Rom. 9. 32, 33. 1 Pet. 2. 8. 1 Cor. 1. 23, 24. 2 Cor. 2. 16. Acts 28. 22. Heb. 12. 3.

---

men, to shepherds. What condescension on God's part! what love on the part of Angels to men!

— δή] = agedum; 'δὴ sæpè est impellentis.' (Valck.)

21. ἡμέραι ὀκτώ] Why was circumcision appointed to be on the eighth day? For a type of Jesus our Saviour, who rose from the dead on the eighth day, and has called us by a new name, and has given to us the Circumcision of the Spirit, by which we mortify the old Adam, and put on the new man. (Cyril[1], Bede. Col. ii. 11.)

For a Homily on the Circumcision, see S. Amphiloch. p. 10.

— τοῦ περιτεμεῖν] for the circumcising. See ii. 24. 27.

— καὶ ἐκλήθη] Cp. vii. 12, ὡς ἤγγισε—καί. Acts x. 17, ὡς διεπόρει Πέτρος—καὶ ἰδού.

— Ἰησοῦς] See on Matt. i. 21.

22. αἱ ἡμέραι] Levit. v. 11; xii. 2—8.

The rich presented a lamb. Her offering proves her to have been poor, and that the Presentation was in all probability before the visit of the Magi, who offered gold. And this is the order of events in the Apocryphal Books of the N. T. See pp. 70. 80. 388, ed. Thilo, and note above on Matt. ii. 11. See also the excellent remarks of Eusebius (Quæst. ad Marin.), lately published by Mai from the Syriac; Patr. Bibl. iv. p. 279, 280; and cp. ibid. p. 253, where Eusebius shows good reason for supposing that Joseph and Mary returned to Nazareth soon after the Presentation, and thence came back to Bethlehem, where the Wise Men visited them then, not in the stable, but in a house.

There is something in the birds themselves—the doves—characteristic of the love, purity, and meekness of Christ. (Cp. Cyril, Hom. xi. in Rom., and Bede.)

23. καθὼς γέγραπται ἐν νόμῳ] A proof that they are in error (i. e. the Marcionites) who say that the God of the New Testament is at variance with the God of the Old, and that the Gospel is contrary to the Law. (Origen.) This is one of the passages which induced Marcion, in epitomizing St. Luke, to reject the first two chapters of this Gospel.

25. ἐν Ἱερουσαλήμ] The form Ἱερουσαλὴμ in an oblique case with a preposition seems to be peculiar to the style of St. Luke and St. Paul; perhaps it was used by them to guard their Greek readers against the erroneous supposition that it was connected with the Greek words ἱερὸς and Σόλυμα, and to remind them of its Hebrew origin, signifying the Vision of Peace (properly "they shall see peace"). For Homilies on the ὑπαπαντὴ, or Feast of the Presentation in the Temple, see Amphiloch., p. 23, Methodius, p. 396, and St. Cyril, p. 133, Mai.

— Συμεών] or Σιμεών. Hebr. שִׁמְעוֹן (Shimeon), audiens. Gen. xxix. 33.

Some suppose that Symeon was father of Gamaliel (Acts v. 34), and son of Hillel. The Rabbis say, "the birth of Jesus of Nazareth was in the days of R. Simeon, son of Hillel;" see Rosenm.

— δίκαιος καὶ εὐλαβὴς] i. e. legally reverent and spiritually devout; see i. 6. 75.

28. ἐδέξατο αὐτὸ εἰς τὰς ἀγκάλας] The aged and righteous Symeon—the good old man of the Law—receives in his arms the child Jesus presented in the Temple, and signifies his desire to depart, and thus represents to us the Law (Bede), now worn out with age, ready to embrace the Gospel, and so to depart in peace. (Heb. viii. 13.)

With this simple recital (vv. 27—39) compare the ornate account of the Presentation in the Apocryphal Evangelium Infantiæ, ed. Thilo, p. 71. It may be observed once for all, that these Apocryphal Books are of great value and interest, as confirming the substance of the Gospels, especially of St. Luke, and also as showing, by contrast, what the Evangelical narrative would, in all probability, have been, if it had been left to human annalists, unassisted by the Spirit of God.

30. τὸ σωτήριον] Something more than τὴν σωτηρίαν: it is used frequently by the LXX for יְשׁוּעָה (yesha), and יְשׁוּעָתָה (yeshua), salutare, and even for the Divine Name of Jehovah Himself. Isa. xxxviii. 11, οὐκ ἔτι μὴ ἴδω τὸ σωτήριον τοῦ Θεοῦ, οὐκ ἔτι μὴ ἴδω τὸ σωτήριον τοῦ Ἰσραὴλ ἐπὶ γῆς, where the original has twice יְהוָה, i. e. Jehovah. Cp. Luke iii. 4.

32. φῶς εἰς ἀποκάλυψιν ἐθνῶν] Observe, that the illumination of the Gentiles is mentioned before the glory of Israel; for when the fulness of the Gentiles shall have come in, then all Israel shall be saved. Rom. xi. 26. (Bede.)

34. εἶπε πρὸς Μαριάμ] Not to Joseph. It seems he was directed by the Spirit to address her as the parent of Jesus, and as hereafter to be present at His death, which Joseph was not.

---

[1] i. e. St. Cyril of Alexandria, except when otherwise specified.

αὐτοῦ, Ἰδοὺ, οὗτος κεῖται εἰς πτῶσιν καὶ ἀνάστασιν πολλῶν ἐν τῷ Ἰσραὴλ, q Ps. 42. 10. John 19. 25. καὶ εἰς σημεῖον ἀντιλεγόμενον· 35 [q] καὶ σοῦ δὲ αὐτῆς τὴν ψυχὴν διελεύσεται ῥομφαία· ὅπως ἂν ἀποκαλυφθῶσιν ἐκ πολλῶν καρδιῶν διαλογισμοί.

36 Καὶ ἦν Ἄννα προφῆτις θυγάτηρ Φανουὴλ ἐκ φυλῆς Ἀσήρ· αὕτη προβε-βηκυῖα ἐν ἡμέραις πολλαῖς, ζήσασα ἔτη μετὰ ἀνδρὸς ἑπτὰ ἀπὸ τῆς παρθενίας r 1 Sam. 1. 22. Acts 26. 7. 1 Tim 5. 5. αὐτῆς· 37 [r] καὶ αὕτη χήρα ὡς ἐτῶν ὀγδοηκοντατεσσάρων, ἣ οὐκ ἀφίστατο
s Mark 15. 43. ver. 25. ἀπὸ τοῦ ἱεροῦ, νηστείαις καὶ δεήσεσι λατρεύουσα νύκτα καὶ ἡμέραν· 38 [s] καὶ αὐτὴ αὐτῇ τῇ ὥρᾳ ἐπιστᾶσα ἀνθωμολογεῖτο τῷ Κυρίῳ, καὶ ἐλάλει περὶ αὐτοῦ πᾶσι τοῖς προσδεχομένοις λύτρωσιν ἐν Ἰερουσαλήμ.

39 Καὶ ὡς ἐτέλεσαν ἅπαντα τὰ κατὰ τὸν νόμον Κυρίου, ὑπέστρεψαν εἰς τὴν t ch. 1. 80. ver. 52. Isa. 11. 2, 3. Γαλιλαίαν εἰς τὴν πόλιν ἑαυτῶν Ναζαρέτ. 40 [t] Τὸ δὲ παιδίον ηὔξανε, καὶ ἐκραταιοῦτο πνεύματι, πληρούμενον σοφίας· καὶ χάρις Θεοῦ ἦν ἐπ' αὐτό.

u Deut. 16. 1. Exod. 23. 15, 17. & 34. 23. Lev. 23. 5. 41 [u] Καὶ ἐπορεύοντο οἱ γονεῖς αὐτοῦ κατ' ἔτος εἰς Ἰερουσαλὴμ τῇ ἑορτῇ τοῦ πάσχα. 42 Καὶ ὅτε ἐγένετο ἐτῶν δώδεκα, ἀναβάντων αὐτῶν εἰς Ἱεροσόλυμα κατὰ τὸ ἔθος τῆς ἑορτῆς, 43 καὶ τελειωσάντων τὰς ἡμέρας, ἐν τῷ ὑποστρέφειν αὐτοὺς ὑπέμεινεν Ἰησοῦς ὁ παῖς ἐν Ἰερουσαλήμ· καὶ οὐκ ἔγνω Ἰωσὴφ καὶ ἡ μήτηρ αὐτοῦ. 44 Νομίσαντες δὲ αὐτὸν ἐν τῇ συνοδίᾳ εἶναι, ἦλθον ἡμέρας ὁδὸν, καὶ ἀνεζήτουν αὐτὸν ἐν τοῖς συγγενέσι καὶ τοῖς γνωστοῖς· 45 καὶ μὴ εὑρόντες αὐτὸν ὑπέστρεψαν εἰς Ἰερουσαλὴμ ζητοῦντες αὐτόν. 46 Καὶ ἐγένετο, v Matt. 7. 28. Mark 1. 22. ch. 4. 22, 32. John 7. 15, 46. μεθ' ἡμέρας τρεῖς εὗρον αὐτὸν ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ, καθεζόμενον ἐν μέσῳ τῶν διδασκάλων, καὶ ἀκούοντα αὐτῶν καὶ ἐπερωτῶντα αὐτούς. (4/II) 47 [v] Ἐξίσταντο δὲ πάντες — οὗτος κεῖται] To those who reject Him He will be a stumbling-stone and rock of offence (Isa. liii. 4. Rom. ix. 32, 33. 1 Pet. ii. 7, 8); to others who believe in Him and obey Him He will be the foundation-stone of Zion elect, precious. (Isa. xxviii. 16. 1 Pet. ii. 6.) He will grind the former to powder (Dan. ii. 34, 35. Matt. xxi. 44. Luke xx. 18); the latter will build safely upon Him as the chief Stone of the corner. (Ps. cxviii. 22. Matt. xxi. 42. Acts iv. 11.) He is appointed to try men's hearts and tempers, whether they will humbly and carefully examine the truth, and receive it with joy, and bring forth its fruits in their lives; and according to the result of this moral probation, He will be for their weal or woe. (2 Cor. ii. 16. John iii. 19.) As Greg. Nyssen says (Hom. de occ. Dom.), the fall will be to those who are scandalized by the lowliness of His humanity; the rising will be to those who acknowledge the truth of God's promises in Him, and adore the glory of His Divinity.

35. ῥομφαία] The word used by the LXX for Hebr. חֶרֶב (chereb), which has the sense of exhausting (particularly by loss of blood), so as to make desolate, as in Ps. xxii. 20. Zech. xiii. 7. It is therefore applied here prophetically to the Crucifixion of Christ (Origen, Theophyl., Bede, St. Aug. Ep. ad Paulin. 59), by which His blood was shed, and which also pierced her heart, and drained it of its life-blood, and made her childless. As St. Cyril observes (p. 136), the word ῥομφαία here is aptly illustrated by its use in the LXX Version of Zechariah, speaking of Christ's death (xiii. 7),—ῥομφαία ἐξεγέρθητι ἐπὶ τὸν ποιμένα μου.

— ὅπως ἂν ἀποκαλυφθῶσιν] For then, i. e. specially in Christ's sufferings, it was shown what the temper and thoughts of men were. (Cp. August. Ep. 59.) Judas despairs, Peter repents, Joseph of Arimathea becomes courageous, Nicodemus comes by day, the centurion confesses, one thief blasphemes, the other prays; men faint, and women become strong. So it is also with the sufferings of Christ's mystical Body, the Church; they show what men are. These words of Simeon,—see also vv. 31, 32, compared with those of Zachariah (i. 77—79),—prove that there were then persons among the Jews who had been enabled by the light of the Holy Ghost in the ancient prophecies, to understand the spiritual nature of Christ's kingdom, and that He was to suffer as well as to conquer, and to triumph by suffering.

36. Ἄννα προφῆτις θυγάτηρ Φανουὴλ] Ἄννα, from root חָנַן (chan-nah), gratiosus fuit; Φανουὴλ, from root פָּנָה (panah), vidit, and אֵל (El), Deus; two names very significant of the grace then given to men in the Vision of God; and it is added, that she was ἐκ φυλῆς Ἀσήρ. Ἀσὴρ is from root אָשַׁר (ashar), beavit; and blessed is the tribe of them who so receive grace, that they may enjoy the Vision of God.

St. Ambrose says well: "Christ received a witness at His birth, not only from prophets and shepherds, but also from aged and holy men and women. Every age, and both sexes, and the marvels of events, confirm our faith. A Virgin brings forth, the barren becomes a mother, the dumb speaks, Elizabeth prophesies, the wise men adore, the babe leaps in the womb, the widow praises God; Symeon prophesied; she who was wedded prophesied; she who was a Virgin prophesied; and now a widow prophesies, that all states of life might be there."

The mention of Aser shows how carefully genealogies were kept by the Jews; for Aser was one of the ten tribes which never returned. (2 Kings xvii. 6.) How secret and silent is this fulfilment of the prophecies of Christ's coming to His Temple! The world knew nothing of it. An aged man and woman see and declare it. So it may be with other prophecies yet to be fulfilled. (Cp. Burgon.)

37. οὐκ ἀφίστατο] i. e. was never absent at the appointed hours of sacrifice and prayer. See this use of πάντοτε and διαπαντὸς Luke xxiv. 23. John xviii. 20; and see Dan. viii. 11. Heb. xiii. 15. Cp. Dr. Barrow's Sermon on "Praying without ceasing," ix. 1, pp. 164—169.

38. αὐτὴ] ipsa. She too, herself, with her own unassisted strength, aged woman as she was; so that old age was blessed in a woman as well as in a man,—in Anna as well as in Symeon; both were made strong by the Holy Ghost.

39. Ναζαρέτ] St. Luke has omitted what he knew to have been already explained by St. Matthew, that our Lord was carried into Egypt for fear of Herod, and at Herod's death (Matt. ii. 22, 23) came to settle at Nazareth; Bede, who thus answers by anticipation the objection that St. Luke's account is at variance with St. Matthew's; it is supplementary to it. St. Matthew states the reason why they did not settle in Judæa, but went to Galilee; and St. Luke explains why they chose Nazareth. Cp. on Matt. ii. 22.

40. πληρούμενον σοφίας] In proportion as He grew in bodily strength and stature, His Divinity showed its own wisdom (Cyril); but see on v. 52.

41. κατ' ἔτος] See Exod. xxiii. 17. Levit. xxiii. 38. Num. xxix. 39. Deut. xii. 18; xiv. 26; xvi. 1—16. This was obligatory only on man. "Fœminæ non lege tenebantur ad iter illud Hierosolymitanum suscipiendum, sed propriâ religione semel anno sacros cœtus Hierosolymis invisebant; apparebat ergo exinde singularis Mariæ pietas, quæ semel quotannis Hierosolymam proficisceretur, ad sacra ibi cum marito facienda; sicuti Hanna Elcanæ uxor. 1 Sam. i. 7." (Kuin.)

42. καὶ ὅτε ἐγένετο ἐτῶν δώδεκα] "Fuisse Judæorum illis temporibus consuetudinem pueros, qui duodecimum ætatis annum attigissent, ad dies festos concelebrandos Hierosolymam deducendi, haud sine probabilitatis specie demonstrarunt ad h. l. Lightfootus et Wetstenius, qui idem docuerunt, puerum duodecim annorum, ideo vocatum esse בן תורה filium legis, et בן מצוה filium præcepti, h. e. ad quem lex divina, præcepta divina pertinerent, qui iis esset instituendus." (Kuin.)

St. Augustine (de Consens. Evang. ii. 10) considers the question How could they go every year to Jerusalem under Archelaus? (cp. Matt. ii. 22), and observes that they might easily escape notice in such a multitude as flocked to the Passover. Besides, doubtless they acted under the Divine direction, and would be divinely protected in obedience to the Law.

Perhaps also this refers to the time after the relegation of Archelaus.

46. ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ] In one of the rooms of the Temple. Catechising is connected with the House of God.

— ἀκούοντα καὶ ἐπερωτῶντα] Not teaching, but hearing. (Origen.) "Non docens, sed interrogans" (Greg. 3, Pastor. 39),—i. e. submitting to be catechised, according to the order and usage of the Jewish Church; and so teaching children by hearing men, and showing the οἱ ἀκούοντες αὐτοῦ ἐπὶ τῇ συνέσει καὶ ταῖς ἀποκρίσεσιν αὐτοῦ. (ε΄) 48 Καὶ ἰδόντες αὐτὸν ἐξεπλάγησαν· καὶ πρὸς αὐτὸν ἡ μήτηρ αὐτοῦ εἶπε, Τέκνον, τί ἐποίησας ἡμῖν οὕτως; ἰδοὺ, ὁ πατήρ σου κἀγὼ ὀδυνώμενοι ἐζητοῦμέν σε. 49 [w] Καὶ εἶπε πρὸς αὐτούς, Τί ὅτι ἐζητεῖτέ με; οὐκ ᾔδειτε ὅτι ἐν τοῖς τοῦ Πατρός μου δεῖ εἶναί με; 50 [x] Καὶ αὐτοὶ οὐ συνῆκαν τὸ ῥῆμα ὃ ἐλάλησεν αὐτοῖς. 51 Καὶ κατέβη μετ' αὐτῶν, καὶ ἦλθεν εἰς Ναζαρέτ· καὶ ἦν ὑποτασσόμενος αὐτοῖς.

[w] ch. 9. 4, 5, 17.

[x] ch. 9. 45. & 18. 34.

[y] Καὶ ἡ μήτηρ αὐτοῦ διετήρει πάντα τὰ ῥήματα ταῦτα ἐν τῇ καρδίᾳ αὐτῆς. 52 [z] Καὶ Ἰησοῦς προέκοπτε σοφίᾳ καὶ ἡλικίᾳ, καὶ χάριτι παρὰ Θεῷ καὶ ἀνθρώποις.

[y] Dan. 7. 28.

[z] 1 Sam. 2. 26. ch. 1. 80. & 2. 40.

III. (ϛ΄) 1 Ἐν ἔτει δὲ πεντεκαιδεκάτῳ τῆς ἡγεμονίας Τιβερίου Καίσαρος, ἡγεμονεύοντος Ποντίου Πιλάτου τῆς Ἰουδαίας, καὶ τετραρχοῦντος τῆς Γαλιλαίας Ἡρῴδου, Φιλίππου δὲ τοῦ ἀδελφοῦ αὐτοῦ τετραρχοῦντος τῆς Ἰτουραίας καὶ Τραχωνίτιδος χώρας, καὶ Λυσανίου τῆς Ἀβιληνῆς τετραρχοῦντος, 2 [a] ἐπ' ἀρχ-great importance and duty of catechising in the Christian Church. Our Lord now being ἐτῶν δώδεκα, was, according to Jewish language, "a child of the Law," or "of the precept" (see on v. 42),—i. e. was a Hebrew catechumen. Cp. Rom. ii. 18; ii. 20, and the authorities in the notes to Hooker, V. xviii. Dean Comber's Companion to the Temple, iii. pp. 438—443. St. Luke had already referred to a similar usage in the Christian Church, by applying the word κατηχήθης to Theophilus, i. 3.

[a] John 11. 49, 51. & 18. 13, 24. Acts 4. 6.

---

48. ὁ πατήρ σου] This expression, recorded here by the Holy Ghost as used by the Blessed Virgin concerning Joseph, shows that St. Matthew (i. 16) in tracing our Lord's Genealogy through Joseph, did what was authorized, not only by human jurisprudence, but by the Holy Spirit Himself, who sanctions this human law by using the term οἱ γονεῖς αὐτοῦ, v. 41. Cp. on Matt. i. 1, 2.

St. Gregory points here to Christ as an example of docility to children: "Ille, Puer doceri interrogando voluit, Qui per Divinitatis potentiam verbum scientiæ ipsis suis doctoribus ministravit."

49. ἐν τοῖς τοῦ Πατρός μου] i. e. πράγμασι, 'business.' (Valck.) Cp. Matt. xxii. 21. John iv. 34; xviii. 37. 1 Cor. xv. 5. 1 Tim. iv. 15.

But the other interpretation, 'in My Father's house,' is very ancient, and has much to recommend. See Grotius and Thilo, Libr. Apocr. N. T. p. 129. 158, and Lobeck ad Phrynich. p. 100, for the phrase. Besides, it seems better to follow our Lord's question, 'How is it that ye sought Me? How came ye to be at a loss where to find Me? Did ye not know that I should be here?' He might have been about His Father's business, elsewhere than in the Temple. Cp. Meyer.

Christ says ὁ Πατήρ μου, but teaches us to say Πατὴρ ἡμῶν,—showing that God is His Father in a way in which He is not ours. And He often avails Himself of His relation to His earthly Mother, for the purpose of bringing out more clearly His Divine Filiation (see John ii. 4, and note; cp. Matt. x. 37)—His Eternal Generation—from His heavenly Father. He blames her not (says Bede) for seeking her Son, but raises their eyes to Him Whose Eternal Son He is.

51. αὐτοῖς] The only acts recorded of Christ's childhood are acts of obedience,—

To God His heavenly Father; and also

To οἱ γονεῖς,—showing what the special duty of childhood and youth is; and teaching what the true order of obedience is,—viz. that the foundation of obedience to man is to be laid in obedience to God (cp. St. Aug. Serm. li. 19); and a lesson made more cogent by the particular circumstances of our Lord's relationship to Joseph, which was not one of natural, but of putative filiation; and therefore teaching the duty of obedience to Parents, Natural, Civil, and Ecclesiastical. Jesus the Son of God is subject to Joseph as well as Mary. "Therefore," says Origen, "let us be subject to all in authority over us." "Si Jesus Filius Mariæ subjicitur Josepho, ego non subjiciar Episcopo, qui mihi à Deo ordinatus est pater? Non subjiciar Presbytero, qui mihi Domini dignatione præpositus est?" And (adds Origen) "Videat unusquisque quòd sæpe melioribus præpositus sit inferior, quod cùm intellexerit dignitate sublimior, non elevabitur superbiâ ex eo quòd major est, sed sciet ita sibi meliorem esse subjectum quomodo et Jesus subjectus fuit Josepho."

The first Adam was formed a τέλειος ἀνήρ, in the full ripeness of manhood. But the second Adam went through infancy, childhood, youth, to manhood, that He might sanctify every age (see St. Iren. ii. 39. St. Hippolyt. Philos. p. 333), and be an Example to every age.

This is the last time we hear of Joseph. He was doubtless dead before the Crucifixion (John xix. 26. Acts i. 14), and probably before the commencement of our Lord's ministry. (Cp. Matt. xii. 46. 49. Luke viii. 20. John ii. 1—12.)

52. προέκοπτε σοφίᾳ] He cleared away the obstructions in His way, as a pioneer clearing away timber, &c., to make roads.

On this text see Athanas. (c. Arian. iii. 51, sqq. pp. 475—480), who says that in proportion as the Divinity revealed itself in Him more clearly, so much the more did He increase in favour with men. St. Luke does not say that wisdom (which is perfect in the Logos) increased in Him, but that Jesus (the name He received as man) increased in wisdom. The Logos did not increase, nor was Wisdom Flesh, but Flesh became the Body of Wisdom. It is not said that the Logos increased, but that Jesus increased in wisdom,—the Word made Flesh increased. (Cyril.)

Many of the Fathers (e. g. Athanas. adv. Arian., St. Ambrose, Cyril, Epiphanius in Ancor.) interpret προέκοπτε as signifying only progressive manifestation.

But this explanation of the passage did not satisfy later Theologians. See Maldonat. here, who observes, "De humanâ sapientiâ omnis est quæstio;" and Bp. Pearson (Art. iii. p. 256), who says, "He whose knowledge did improve together with His years, must have a subject proper for it, which was no other than a human soul. This was the seat of His finite understanding and directed will, distinct from the will of His Father, and consequently of His Divine Nature; as appeareth by that known submission,—'Not My will, but Thine be done.' (Luke xxii. 42.) This was the subject of those affections and passions which so manifestly appeared in Him. 'My soul is exceeding sorrowful, even unto death.' (Matt. xxvi. 38.) This was it which on the cross, before the departure from the body, He commended to the Father. (Luke xxiii. 46.) And as His death was the separation of this soul from His body, so the life of Christ, as man, did consist in the conjunction and vital union of that soul with the body."

Observe also, St. Paul says of Christ (Heb. v. 8),—ἔμαθεν ἀφ' ὧν ἔπαθεν, attributing increase in learning to experience in suffering. Hence the Apollinarian heresy is confuted, which denies that our Lord had a human soul; and also the Eutychian or Monophysite heresy, which confounds the two natures of Christ into one. See Matt. xxvi. 38 and 41. Hooker, V. lii. and liii. Bp. Pearson on the Creed, Art. iii. p. 256; Art. iv. p. 293; Art. v. p. 358; and Art. iii. p. 258, ed. Oxford (1820).

CH. III. 1. ἐν ἔτει] On the birth-year of Christ, see on Matt. ii. 20, and above, ii. 8; and Patrit. de Evang. ii. pp. 416—419.

On these verses (1—11) see Greg. M. Homil. in Ev. i. 20, p. 1516.

— Ποντίου Πιλάτου] See Matt. xxvii. 2 and Patrit. de Evang. ii. pp. 420—424.

— Ἡρῴδου] i. e. Antipas. See Matt. xiv. 1.

For a learned dissertation on these τετραρχίαι, see Patrit. de Evang. ii. pp. 424—439.

— Λυσανίου] Nothing is known of this Lysanias from any other source. Abilene was governed by a Prince of that name, who was slain about 34 B.C. Augustus afterwards (B.C. 23) took possession of the country and distributed it among different parties. (Joseph. Ant. xv. 10.) Agrippa I. received it afterwards as a gift from Claudius. (Joseph. Ant. xix. 5.) Probably the Lysanias of whom St. Luke here speaks was a descendant of the elder Lysanias, and was placed in this tetrarchy by Augustus, and made feudatory to Rome. (Cp. Patrit. de Evang. ii. pp. 433—439.) That St. Luke's accuracy should be questioned here (as it is by De Wette, ad loc., and Strauss, Leben J. p. 375), when there is no evidence to be brought against it, is a remarkable proof of the inordinate love of doubting with which some of the enemies of the Gospel are possessed; and shows how little value is to be attached to their doubts.

2. ἐπ' ἀρχιερέως Ἅννα καὶ Καϊάφα] In the time of Annas the High Priest (i. e. in his high priesthood), and in the time of Caiaphas. Elz. has ἀρχιερέων, plural. But the singular ἀρχιερέως is found in the most ancient MSS. and appears to be the true reading.

It is alleged by some (e. g. Meyer, p. 259) that there is an historical error here, because Caiaphas was the High Priest at this time.

But doubtless St. Luke's assertion is a deliberate one; and it is repeated by him Acts iv. 6, where we find Ἄνναν τὸν ἀρχιερέα, καὶ Καϊάφαν.

The solution seems to be this. Annas had been forcibly removed from the High Priesthood by the heathen power of Rome; and Caiaphas had now been placed in that office by that power. (Joseph. Ant. xviii. 2.)

Annas was still alive; and was the High Priest de jure; while Caiaphas was, in the eye of the Civil Power, High Priest de facto.

ἱερέως Ἄννα καὶ Καϊάφα, ἐγένετο ῥῆμα Θεοῦ ἐπὶ Ἰωάννην τὸν Ζαχαρίου υἱὸν b Matt. 3. 1, &c. Mark 1. 2. Isa. 40. 3. ἐν τῇ ἐρήμῳ· (7/1) [3] καὶ ἦλθεν εἰς πᾶσαν τὴν περίχωρον τοῦ Ἰορδάνου κηρύσσων βάπτισμα μετανοίας εἰς ἄφεσιν ἁμαρτιῶν· [4] [b] ὡς γέγραπται ἐν βίβλῳ λόγων Ἡσαΐου τοῦ προφήτου λέγοντος, Φωνὴ βοῶντος ἐν τῇ ἐρήμῳ, ἑτοιμάσατε τὴν ὁδὸν Κυρίου, εὐθείας ποιεῖτε τὰς τρίβους αὐτοῦ. [5] Πᾶσα φάραγξ πληρωθήσεται, καὶ πᾶν ὄρος καὶ βουνὸς ταπεινωθήσεται· [6] καὶ ἔσται τὰ σκολιὰ εἰς εὐθεῖαν, καὶ αἱ τραχεῖαι εἰς ὁδοὺς λείας.
c Exod. 14. 13. 2 Chron. 20. 17. Isa. 52. 10. καὶ [c] ὄψεται πᾶσα σὰρξ τὸ σωτήριον τοῦ Θεοῦ. (8/V) [7] Ἔλεγεν οὖν τοῖς ἐκπορευομένοις ὄχλοις βαπτισθῆναι ὑπ' αὐτοῦ, Γεννήματα ἐχιδνῶν, τίς ὑπέδειξεν ὑμῖν φυγεῖν ἀπὸ τῆς μελλούσης ὀργῆς; [8] ποιήσατε οὖν καρποὺς ἀξίους τῆς μετανοίας, καὶ μὴ ἄρξησθε λέγειν ἐν ἑαυτοῖς, Πατέρα ἔχομεν τὸν Ἀβραάμ, λέγω γὰρ ὑμῖν, ὅτι δύναται ὁ Θεὸς ἐκ τῶν λίθων τούτων ἐγεῖραι τέκνα τῷ Ἀβραάμ. [9] Ἤδη δὲ καὶ ἡ ἀξίνη πρὸς τὴν ῥίζαν τῶν δένδρων κεῖται· πᾶν οὖν δένδρον μὴ ποιοῦν καρπὸν καλὸν ἐκκόπτεται καὶ εἰς πῦρ βάλλεται. [10] Καὶ ἐπηρώτων αὐτὸν οἱ ὄχλοι λέγοντες, Τί οὖν ποιήσομεν; (9/X) [11] Ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ λέγει αὐτοῖς, Ὁ ἔχων δύο χιτῶνας μεταδότω τῷ μὴ ἔχοντι· καὶ ὁ ἔχων βρώματα ὁμοίως ποιείτω. [12] Ἦλθον δὲ καὶ τελῶναι βαπτισθῆναι, καὶ εἶπον πρὸς αὐτόν, Διδάσκαλε, τί ποιήσομεν; [13] Ὁ δὲ εἶπε πρὸς αὐτούς, Μηδὲν πλέον παρὰ τὸ διατεταγμένον ὑμῖν πράσσετε. [14] Ἐπηρώτων δὲ αὐτὸν καὶ στρατευόμενοι, λέγοντες, Καὶ ἡμεῖς τί ποιήσομεν; Καὶ εἶπε πρὸς αὐτούς, Μηδένα διασείσητε, μηδὲ συκοφαντήσητε, καὶ ἀρκεῖσθε τοῖς ὀψωνίοις ὑμῶν.
d Matt. 3. 11. &c. Mark 1. 7, &c. [15] [d] Προσδοκῶντος δὲ τοῦ λαοῦ, καὶ διαλογιζομένων πάντων ἐν ταῖς καρδίαις αὐτῶν περὶ τοῦ Ἰωάννου, μήποτε αὐτὸς εἴη ὁ Χριστὸς, (10/I) [16] ἀπεκρίνατο ὁ Ἰωάννης ἅπασι λέγων, Ἐγὼ μὲν ὕδατι βαπτίζω ὑμᾶς· ἔρχεται δὲ ὁ ἰσχυρότερός μου, οὗ οὐκ εἰμὶ ἱκανὸς λῦσαι τὸν ἱμάντα τῶν ὑποδημάτων αὐτοῦ· αὐτὸς ὑμᾶς βαπτίσει ἐν Πνεύματι ἁγίῳ καὶ πυρί· (11/V) [17] οὗ τὸ πτύον ἐν τῇ χειρὶ

This seems to have been the reason why Jesus, when arrested by the Ecclesiastical power of Jerusalem, was taken to Annas first (John xviii. 13); and it is also recorded that Annas sent Him bound to Caiaphas (John xviii. 24).

There may be also an allusion to the peculiar tenure, so precarious and irregular, by which Caiaphas held the office, in the words of the Gospel, saying, that "he was high priest that same year" (John xi. 51; xviii. 13).

St. Luke, therefore, in a spirit of reverence for the Sacred Office, —instituted by God Himself,—of the High Priesthood, which was hereditary and for life, does not acknowledge that the High Priest could be lawfully made and unmade by the Civil Power. He still calls Annas the High Priest. And yet, since Caiaphas was de facto High Priest, and was commonly reputed so to be, he adds his name in the second place to that of Annas.

Both Annas and Caiaphas are called High Priests in the Apocryphal Books of the N. T., pp. 500. 530. 532. 605, ed. Thilo.

It appears (says Patrit. here, de Evang. ii. p. 360) that "since Caiaphas was High Priest (de facto), Annas had some special dignity, which could be no other than the chiefdom or headship of the family of Aaron,—and for a similar cause Zadok is named before Abiathar." (2 Sam. xv. 29. 35.)

Observe also that this remarkable expression is used by St. Luke at a particular Crisis, viz. in connexion with our Lord's Baptism.

He, the true High Priest, was now to be visibly and audibly inaugurated as such by the unction of the Holy Ghost descending upon Him.

At this juncture there was, as St. Luke notes, an unhappy collision between the Civil and Ecclesiastical Power. God and Cæsar were at war; and it must have been a perplexing and distressing question for the faithful Israelite,—To whom is my obedience due? Who is the High Priest?

Christ came from heaven to solve this question. He put an end to all doubts on this matter by rending the Veil at His Crucifixion, when He offered Himself once for all on the Cross; and by ascending into heaven and by entering in with His Own blood into the true Holy of Holies.

Some notion of the confusion in this respect may be derived from the following historical summary: "Tam perturbata fuerunt ea tempora, ut ex viginti sex, qui per annos continuos sexaginta ab eversione Hierosolymorum retrò numeratos Pontificatum gesserunt, nonnisi unicus eam dignitatem cum vitâ deposuerit, cæteris omnibus ante obitum remotis." (Rosen.)

Hence also the faithful Christian may derive comfort in the worst times. When the Civil and Ecclesiastical Powers, which ought mutually to assist each other, are at variance and conflict with each other, and the devout soul is in trouble, perplexity, and hesitation how to pay allegiance to Cæsar without breach of loyalty to God, Christ, the true High Priest, will in His own due time intervene to terminate the struggle, by asserting and vindicating His own.

3. εἰς ἄφεσιν ἁμαρτιῶν] See on Mark i. 4.

4. φωνή] the Voice, which foreruns the appearance of the Word. (Ambrose.)

— ἑτοιμάσατε] The Baptist is represented as doing the work of a spiritual κελευθοποιὸς or Evangelical pioneer, levelling the hills and raising the valleys for the march of the army of the Great King and Conqueror—the Prince of Peace and the Lord of Hosts—whose way he came to prepare in the heart and life of the world.

7. γεννήματα ἐχιδνῶν] See Matt. iii. 7.

8. μὴ ἄρξησθε] for a similar use of ἄρχομαι, see below, xiii. 26. "Omnem excusationis etiam conatum præcidit." (Beng.)

14. στρατευόμενοι] Persons then engaged in military occupations—something more than soldiers by profession.

On the lawfulness of the profession of arms, see Bp. Sanderson's Case of a Military Life, vol. v. pp. 104—120. And for the opinions of the Ancient Fathers and practice of primitive Christians, see Grotius here.

— συκοφαντήσητε] "μὴ ψευδοκατηγορήσητε, ne quem falso accusetis;" a word derived from Attic law and practice (Aristoph. Av. 1431, and passim), and peculiar to St. Luke. See xix. 8.

— ὀψωνίοις] merces. He did not say cast away your arms, quit the camp; for He knew that soldiers are not homicides, but ministers of law—not avengers of personal injuries, but defenders of the public safety. St. Aug. c. Faust. xxii. 24, where he discusses the question concerning the lawfulness of war. "The desire of injury," he says, "the savageness of revenge, the lust of power, &c., these are sins which are justly condemned in wars, which are however sometimes undertaken by good men for the sake of punishing the violence of others, either by God's command or of some lawful authority."

16. ἔρχεται δὲ ὁ ἰσχυρότερος] the stronger than me—and than all. See on Matt. iii. 11. Mark i. 7, 8.

— λῦσαι τὸν ἱμάντα] To do the office of a servant. There may be also a reference to the practice described in Ruth iv. 8; and so, figuratively, he may mean what he says in John iii. 29, that he is not the Bridegroom, and would not rob Him of His own. Cf. Gregor. Hom. 7 in Evang. and Ambrose.

— αὐτός] He—and no other.

17. οὗ τὸ πτύον] Cp. Matt. iii. 12. The πτύον is the fan of αὐτοῦ, καὶ διακαθαριεῖ τὴν ἅλωνα αὐτοῦ· καὶ συνάξει τὸν σῖτον εἰς τὴν ἀποθήκην αὐτοῦ, τὸ δὲ ἄχυρον κατακαύσει πυρὶ ἀσβέστῳ. 18 Πολλὰ μὲν οὖν καὶ ἕτερα παρακαλῶν εὐηγγελίζετο τὸν λαόν. (12/II) 19 Ὁ δὲ Ἡρῴδης ὁ τετράρχης, ἐλεγχόμενος ὑπ' αὐτοῦ περὶ Ἡρωδιάδος τῆς γυναικὸς τοῦ ἀδελφοῦ αὐτοῦ, καὶ περὶ πάντων ὧν ἐποίησε πονηρῶν ὁ Ἡρῴδης, 20 προσέθηκε καὶ τοῦτο ἐπὶ πᾶσι καὶ κατέκλεισε τὸν Ἰωάννην ἐν τῇ φυλακῇ.

(13/I) 21 [e] Ἐγένετο δὲ ἐν τῷ βαπτισθῆναι ἅπαντα τὸν λαὸν, καὶ Ἰησοῦ βαπτισθέντος καὶ προσευχομένου ἀνεῳχθῆναι τὸν οὐρανὸν, 22 καὶ καταβῆναι τὸ Πνεῦμα τὸ ἅγιον, σωματικῷ εἴδει ὡσεὶ περιστερὰν ἐπ' αὐτὸν, καὶ φωνὴν ἐξ οὐρανοῦ γενέσθαι λέγουσαν, Σὺ εἶ ὁ Υἱός μου ὁ ἀγαπητὸς, ἐν σοὶ ηὐδόκησα. (14/III) 23 Καὶ αὐτὸς ἦν ὁ Ἰησοῦς ὡσεὶ ἐτῶν τριάκοντα ἀρχόμενος, ὢν, ὡς ἐνομίζετο, υἱὸς Ἰωσὴφ, τοῦ Ἡλὶ, 24 τοῦ Ματθὰτ, τοῦ Λευὶ, τοῦ Μελχὶ, τοῦ Ἰαννὰ, τοῦ Ἰωσὴφ, 25 τοῦ Ματταθίου, τοῦ Ἀμὼς, τοῦ Ναοὺμ, τοῦ Ἐσλὶ, τοῦ Ναγγαὶ, 26 τοῦ Μαὰθ, τοῦ Ματταθίου, τοῦ Σεμεὶ, τοῦ Ἰωσὴφ, τοῦ Ἰούδα, 27 τοῦ Ἰωαννᾶ, τοῦ Ῥησὰ, τοῦ Ζοροβάβελ, τοῦ Σαλαθιὴλ, τοῦ Νηρὶ, 28 τοῦ Μελχὶ, τοῦ Ἀδδὶ, τοῦ Κωσὰμ, τοῦ Ἐλμωδὰμ, τοῦ Ἤρ, 29 τοῦ Ἰωσὴ, τοῦ Ἐλιέζερ, τοῦ Ἰωρεὶμ, τοῦ Ματθὰτ, τοῦ Λευὶ, 30 τοῦ Συμεὼν, τοῦ Ἰούδα, τοῦ Ἰωσὴφ, τοῦ Ἰωνὰν, τοῦ Ἐλιακεὶμ, 31 [f] τοῦ Μελεᾶ, τοῦ Μαϊνὰν, τοῦ Ματταθὰ, τοῦ [g] Ναθὰν, τοῦ Δαυὶδ, 32 τοῦ Ἰεσσαὶ, τοῦ Ὠβὴδ, τοῦ Βοὸζ, τοῦ Σαλμὼν, τοῦ Ναασσὼν, 33 τοῦ Ἀμιναδὰβ, τοῦ Ἀρὰμ, τοῦ Ἐσρὼμ, τοῦ Φαρὲς, τοῦ Ἰούδα, 34 [h] τοῦ Ἰακὼβ, τοῦ Ἰσαὰκ, e Matt. 3. 16, &c. Mark 1. 10, &c.

f 2 Sam. 5. 14. 1 Chron. 3. 5. Zech. 12. 12.

g Ruth 4. 18. 1 Chron. 2. 10.

h Gen. 11. 24—26.

---

future judgment by which He will winnow the Evil from the Good, who now lie mingled together on the Floor of the Church on Earth. (Ambrose, Bede.)

19. ὁ δὲ Ἡρῴδης] Here is a remarkable instance of anticipation, not uncommon in St. Luke and in the other Gospels. The Evangelist having spoken of the Baptist's preaching, proceeds immediately to speak of his imprisonment, though probably some months intervened between the two. This serves the purpose of showing that John was ready to suffer for what he taught, and make his preaching more practical and cogent.

The observation of this principle of anticipation clears up many supposed difficulties in the Gospel. See on Matt. xx. 29.

21. προσευχομένου] St. Luke alone notes this incident which calls attention to the reality of our Lord's Human Nature, as well as teaches the use of prayer for the reception of the Holy Spirit See on v. 16.

Our Lord was baptized (says St. Ambrose), not to be cleansed by water, but to cleanse it for the cleansing away of sin in Baptism, and to fulfil all righteousness, i. e. to be an example of obedience to all the dispensations of God.

He came (as it were) to baptize Water for holy uses, and to invite men to a more joyful acceptance of that Baptism which would be instituted by Himself. He condescended in His own Body to prefigure the Church, His Mystical Body (says Chrys. in Caten.), in which they who are baptized receive the Holy Ghost. "Venit Dominus ad lavacrum," says St. Ambrose here, "Omnia pro te factus est. Nemo refugiat lavacrum gratiæ, quandò Christus lavacrum pœnitentiæ non refugit. Nunc consideremus mysterium Trinitatis. Cùm baptizatur Filius, Pater se adesse testatur. Adest et Spiritus Sanctus; nunquam potest à se Trinitas separari." Cp. on Matt. iii. 16, 17.

23. αὐτὸς ἦν] In the pronoun αὐτὸς (which is emphatic) St. Luke seems to say: Even Jesus, the Son of God—the Divine Priest and Prophet and King—did not put Himself forward to preach before the legal age. How much less should men presume to undertake so arduous an office before they are ripe for it!

— ὡσεὶ ἐτῶν τριάκοντα ἀρχόμενος] i. e. Jesus Himself was about thirty years when He began His Ministry (τριακοντάτης βαπτίζεται, Greg. Nazian. p. 714). There is a remarkable passage in Melito (Routh, R. S. i. 121), of the second century, on the Chronology of our Lord's Life and Ministry: τὴν θειότητα αὐτοῦ ἐπιστώσατο διὰ τῶν σημείων ἐν τῇ τριετίᾳ τῇ μετὰ τὸ βάπτισμα, τὴν δὲ ἀνθρωπότητα αὐτοῦ ἐν τοῖς τριάκοντα χρόνοις (thirty years) τοῖς πρὸ τοῦ βαπτίσματος.

At first ἀρχόμενος may seem abrupt when so used. But it appears to be explained by St. Luke himself Acts i. 1, referring probably to this passage, τὸν μὲν πρῶτον λόγον ἐποιησάμην περὶ πάντων, ὦ Θεόφιλε, ὧν ἤρξατο ὁ Ἰησοῦς ποιεῖν τε καὶ διδάσκειν. And again Acts i. 22, Ἰησοῦς ἀρξάμενος ἀπὸ βαπτίσματος Ἰωάννου.

Scaliger (ap. Glass. Philol. p. 351) thinks that the Greek ὡσεὶ is used here as the Hebrew כְּ, not as ἀπορητικὸν, but ἀληθινόν: cp. John i. 14, δόξαν ὡς μονογενοῦς: and Daniel vii. 13.

The reason for this notice seems to be, that it might be known that our Lord did not begin His public ministry till the age prescribed for the Priests (Numbers iv. 3; viii. 24), and that He did begin as soon as He was of that age.

— ὡς ἐνομίζετο] As was supposed. See Luke iv. 22. John vi. 42.

And there is something more in ἐνομίζετο than this. It appears to intimate two things; first, that Jesus was not son of Joseph φύσει, or by Nature; and secondly, that He was son of Joseph νόμῳ, by Law. And therefore, although He was the promised seed of the woman, His genealogy is traced through Joseph, who was united to Mary by the Law of Marriage, which God had instituted in Paradise; and He had an hereditary claim to the rights of Joseph, as Son of David, and owed him filial obedience.

— υἱὸς Ἰωσὴφ, τοῦ Ἡλί] On the genealogies of our Lord, see on Matt. i. 1—16.

St. Luke's design in inserting this Genealogy was probably as follows:—

It is remarkable that the Genealogy of our Lord is not inserted in the beginning of this Gospel, as is the case in St. Matthew; but at a later period, when our Lord is described as thirty years of age; and that it is inserted in connexion with His Baptism.

Also St. Matthew descends in his Genealogy from Abraham; St. Luke ascends to God.

There must be a design in this; how is it to be explained?

It was necessary to show that Jesus is the promised Seed of the Woman (Gen. iii. 15. Gal. iv. 4), that He is the Second Adam—the Father of the new race of regenerate humanity—in whom all Nations of the Earth are blessed.

Therefore St. Luke dates our Lord's Genealogy from His Baptism, because in Baptism the old Adam is buried, and the new man is raised up; and the life of Christ in us begins (see Origen here, and Eusebius in Mai Patrum Nova Bibliotheca, iv. pp. 271—277).

In Him, anointed by the Holy Ghost, the whole Human Race is summed up, and sanctified.

Christ, our Divine Head, is here presented to us as the Author of the new race, which He carries up, as it were, by a reverted stream of sanctification, turning back the channels of hereditary corruption of original sin, through every successive generation in an ascending series, and leading it up through Adam to God cleanses it by the divine influence and effusion of the Holy Ghost.

As has been already observed (on Matt. i. 1—16), all ancient authorities concur in the opinion that both Genealogies are traced through Joseph. This opinion derives importance from the fact (see there verse 1), that when Julian objected that there is a discrepancy between the Evangelists, the Fathers did not meet the objection by saying that Joseph was son of Eli by marriage, with Mary his daughter, as is supposed by some in modern times, and that the Genealogy in St. Luke is the Genealogy of Mary.

In addition to the authorities cited on St. Matthew, i. 1—16, the reader may consult the work of Eusebius, lately published by Mai, Quæstion. ad Marin. pp. 219—226.

27. τοῦ Σαλαθιήλ] See on Matt. i. 12—15. It is most probable that this is the same person as he who is mentioned by St. Matthew, i. 12, and that Zorobabel is the same person as he who is mentioned under that name by St. Matthew. It is true, that between Zorobabel in St. Luke, and Mary, are seventeen generations, and between Zorobabel in St. Matthew, and Joseph, are nine generations. But so between David and Salathiel in St. Luke are twenty generations; and only fourteen in St. Matthew. Cp. next note.

τοῦ Ἀβραὰμ, τοῦ Θάρα, τοῦ Ναχὼρ, 35 τοῦ Σερούχ, τοῦ Ῥαγαῦ, τοῦ Φάλεκ, τοῦ Ἑβὲρ, τοῦ Σαλὰ, 36 τοῦ Καϊνὰν, τοῦ Ἀρφαξὰδ, τοῦ Σὴμ, τοῦ Νῶε, τοῦ l Gen. 5. 6. & 11. 10. Λάμεχ, 37 τοῦ Μαθουσάλα, τοῦ Ἐνὼχ, τοῦ Ἰαρὲδ, τοῦ Μαλελεὴλ, l τοῦ Καϊνὰν, k Gen. 5. 3. ch. 5. 1. 38 k τοῦ Ἐνὼς, τοῦ Σὴθ, τοῦ Ἀδὰμ, τοῦ Θεοῦ.

a Matt. 4. 1, &c. Mark 1. 12, &c. IV. (15/11) 1 a Ἰησοῦς δὲ Πνεύματος ἁγίου πλήρης ὑπέστρεψεν ἀπὸ τοῦ Ἰορδάνου, καὶ ἤγετο ἐν τῷ Πνεύματι εἰς τὴν ἔρημον, (16/V) 2 ἡμέρας τεσσαράκοντα πειραζόμενος ὑπὸ τοῦ Διαβόλου. Καὶ οὐκ ἔφαγεν οὐδὲν ἐν ταῖς ἡμέραις ἐκείναις· καὶ συντελεσθεισῶν αὐτῶν ὕστερον ἐπείνασε. 3 Καὶ εἶπεν αὐτῷ ὁ Διάβολος, Εἰ Υἱὸς εἶ τοῦ Θεοῦ, εἰπὲ τῷ λίθῳ τούτῳ ἵνα γένηται ἄρτος.
b Deut. 8. 3. 4 Καὶ ἀπεκρίθη Ἰησοῦς πρὸς αὐτὸν λέγων, b Γέγραπται, ὅτι οὐκ ἐπ' ἄρτῳ μόνῳ ζήσεται ὁ ἄνθρωπος, ἀλλ' ἐπὶ παντὶ ῥήματι Θεοῦ. 5 Καὶ ἀναγαγὼν αὐτὸν ὁ Διάβολος εἰς ὄρος ὑψηλὸν ἔδειξεν αὐτῷ πάσας τὰς βασιλείας τῆς οἰκουμένης ἐν στιγμῇ χρόνου, 6 καὶ εἶπεν αὐτῷ ὁ Διάβολος, Σοὶ δώσω τὴν ἐξουσίαν ταύτην ἅπασαν καὶ τὴν δόξαν αὐτῶν, ὅτι ἐμοὶ παραδέδοται, καὶ ᾧ ἐὰν θέλω, δίδωμι αὐτήν· 7 σὺ οὖν ἐὰν προσκυνήσῃς ἐνώπιόν μου, ἔσται σου πᾶσα. 8 Καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς αὐτῷ εἶπεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Σατανᾶ, γέγραπται c Deut. 6. 13. c Προσκυνήσεις Κύριον τὸν Θεόν σου, καὶ αὐτῷ μόνῳ λατρεύσεις.
9 Καὶ ἤγαγεν αὐτὸν εἰς Ἰερουσαλὴμ, καὶ ἔστησεν αὐτὸν ἐπὶ τὸ πτερύγιον τοῦ ἱεροῦ, καὶ εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Εἰ Υἱὸς εἶ τοῦ Θεοῦ, βάλε σεαυτὸν ἐντεῦθεν κάτω, d Ps. 91. 10—12. 10 γέγραπται γάρ, Ὅτι d τοῖς ἀγγέλοις αὐτοῦ ἐντελεῖται περί σου, τοῦ διαφυλάξαι σε· 11 καὶ ὅτι ἐπὶ χειρῶν ἀροῦσί σε, μή ποτε προσκόψῃς πρὸς λίθον τὸν πόδα σου, 12 Καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰη-e Deut. 6. 16. σοῦς· Ὅτι εἴρηται, e Οὐκ ἐκπειράσεις Κύριον τὸν Θεόν σου. 13 Καὶ f John 14. 30. Heb. 4. 15. συντελέσας πάντα πειρασμὸν ὁ Διάβολος f ἀπέστη ἀπ' αὐτοῦ ἄχρι καιροῦ.
(17/I) 14 Καὶ ὑπέστρεψεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἐν τῇ δυνάμει τοῦ Πνεύματος εἰς τὴν

---

36. τοῦ Καϊνάν] A difficulty, on which it would be presumptuous to do more than offer a conjecture.

This name Cainan does not occur in the original of Gen. xi. 12, 1 Chron. i. 2, nor in Codex Bezæ here, but it is found in the LXX.

The name of Cainan appears to be associated with the introduction of idolatry. See Ephraem Syrus in Gen. xviii. Mill on the Genealogies, p. 149.

We have seen (Matt. i. 8) that it was the practice of the Hebrews to omit names from their Genealogies, for moral and judicial reasons. Accordingly we find that in St. Matthew's Genealogy several names are passed over in silence.

But this does not appear to be the case in St. Luke's Genealogy. He wrote for the Gentiles, and to show that in Christ all nations are blessed; that in Him there is pardon and grace freely offered to all; that in Him the dead in trespasses and sins are made alive; that they who had been aliens—by idolatry and vice—were made nigh to God in Christ (Gal. iii. 28. Eph. ii. 12, 13); that there is an universal Amnesty in Christ.

Perhaps there may be something significant of this gracious purpose of Universal Reconciliation and Restoration by the Gospel, in the fact, that a name expunged from the Hebrew Genealogies, is restored, in Christ, in that of the Gentile World.

On this difficult question, see Walther, Harmon. Biblic. ad Luc. iii. 36. Michaelis, de Chronol. Mosis post diluv. in Comm. Soc. Gotting. 1763. Rus. Harmon. Evang. i. 359. Spanheim, Dubia Evang. xxiii., who, with Beza, would expunge the word. Routh, R. S. ii. 372, observes, that neither Julius Africanus, early in the third century, nor Eusebius in the fourth, seem to have known this second Καϊνάν. But cp. Mill, pp. 144. 147, note. Lord Arthur Hervey, on the Genealogies (pp. 168—203), has endeavoured to show that the name was first interpolated in St. Luke, and thence passed into copies of the LXX.

38. Ἀδὰμ, τοῦ Θεοῦ] Thus the Holy Spirit, writing by St. Luke to the Gentiles, taught them what they, especially the Greeks, much needed to learn, that God had made of one blood all nations of the earth. See Bentley's Sermon on Acts xvii. 26. Joseph is not called the Son of Eli literally, any more than Adam was literally the Son of God. (Aug. de cons. Ev. ii. 3.) Perhaps, also, it may be said that the words ὡς ἐνομίζετο, in v. 23, may be intended to imply that the Evangelist is giving the genealogy as commonly received (cp. Bengel).

— τοῦ Θεοῦ] "Ex Deo per Christum sunt omnia. Omnia reducuntur per Christum ad Deum." (Beng.)

And this work of retrogressive and retroactive purification is here connected with His Baptism. And thus the Holy Spirit has designed to remind us that our participation in this work of purification is commenced at our Baptism into Christ; that our adoption into the new Generation, by which we are engrafted into Christ, and through Him carried up to God, is effected by Him through the "laver of Regeneration." Tit. iii. 5. Cp. St. Aug. de Cons. Ev. ii. 4, 5.

As St. Paul says (Rom. v. 15), "Not as the offence (in Adam), so the free gift in Christ. For if through the offence of the one Adam, the many (that is, all, cp. v. 18) died, much more the Grace of God, and the Gift by the one man Jesus Christ hath abounded, or overflowed, to the many, i. e. upon all. As by the offence of one judgment came upon all to condemnation, so by the righteousness of One the free gift came upon all men unto Justification."

CH. IV. 1—13. Ἰησοῦς δέ] See Matt. iv. 1—11.

2. ἡμέρας τεσσαράκοντα] It is said by some (e. g. Bengel) that this is a "locutio prægnans," indicating that He was led into the Wilderness for forty days (cp. Rev. xx. 2), where, after they were over (cp. Matt. iv. 3), He was tempted.

But the words of the two Evangelists taken together, seem rather to imply that He was tempted at intervals during the forty Days (cp. Mark i. 13), and that at the close of them the Tempter assailed our Lord with the greatest violence.

And this appears to be typical of what is to be looked for in the History of the Church. She is tempted during the whole period of her sojourn (represented by Forty Days, see on Matt. iv. 2, and foot note) in the wilderness of this world: but Satan reserves the fiercest trial for the last. (Rev. xii. 12.)

4. γέγραπται] It is written: repeated v. 8, cp. v. 12. Christ is "full of the Holy Ghost," v. 1, and yet His Rule of Faith and Practice is Holy Scripture;—a fact which may be commended to the consideration of some (Quakers, Methodists, and others) who appear to suppose that inward illumination (or what is fancied to be such) may be a substitute for the written Word.

5. ἔδειξεν αὐτῷ] The last Temptation in St. Matthew (iv. 8), but mentioned here in the second place by St. Luke.

But observe, St. Luke does not say τότε or πάλιν, as St. Matthew does (iv. 5. 8), and therefore there is no discrepancy, but St. Luke places the temptations in an order of his own; perhaps with a reference to the temptation of the first Adam, and to the special allurements of the Gentile World.

— τῆς οἰκουμένης] St. Matthew here (iv. 8) has τοῦ κόσμου.

— ἐν στιγμῇ χρόνου] "In momento enim prætereunt." (Ambrose.)

9. Ἰερουσαλήμ] St. Matthew here (iv. 5) has τὴν ἁγίαν πόλιν.

13. ἄχρι καιροῦ] "usque ad opportunum tempus" (Beng.), such as the Agony.

Γαλιλαίαν· καὶ φήμη ἐξῆλθε καθ' ὅλης τῆς περιχώρου περὶ αὐτοῦ. 15 Καὶ αὐτὸς ἐδίδασκεν ἐν ταῖς συναγωγαῖς αὐτῶν δοξαζόμενος ὑπὸ πάντων. (18/X) 16 [g] Καὶ ἦλθεν εἰς τὴν Ναζαρὲτ, οὗ ἦν τεθραμμένος· καὶ εἰσῆλθε, [h] κατὰ τὸ εἰωθὸς αὐτῷ, ἐν τῇ ἡμέρᾳ τῶν σαββάτων εἰς τὴν συναγωγὴν, καὶ ἀνέστη ἀναγνῶναι. 17 Καὶ ἐπεδόθη αὐτῷ βιβλίον Ἡσαΐου τοῦ προφήτου· καὶ ἀναπτύξας τὸ βιβλίον εὗρε τὸν τόπον οὗ ἦν γεγραμμένον, 18 [i] Πνεῦμα Κυρίου ἐπ' ἐμέ· οὗ εἵνεκεν ἔχρισέ με εὐαγγελίσασθαι πτωχοῖς, ἀπέσταλκέ με ἰάσασθαι τοὺς συντετριμμένους τὴν καρδίαν· κηρύξαι αἰχμαλώτοις ἄφεσιν, καὶ τυφλοῖς ἀνάβλεψιν· ἀποστεῖλαι τεθραυσμένους ἐν ἀφέσει· 19 [j] κηρύξαι ἐνιαυτὸν Κυρίου δεκτόν. 20 Καὶ πτύξας τὸ βιβλίον, ἀποδοὺς τῷ ὑπηρέτῃ ἐκάθισε· καὶ πάντων ἐν τῇ συναγωγῇ οἱ ὀφθαλμοὶ ἦσαν ἀτενίζοντες αὐτῷ. 21 Ἤρξατο δὲ λέγειν πρὸς αὐτούς, Ὅτι σήμερον πεπλήρωται ἡ γραφὴ αὕτη ἐν τοῖς ὠσὶν ὑμῶν. (19/I) 22 [k] Καὶ πάντες ἐμαρτύρουν αὐτῷ, καὶ ἐθαύμαζον ἐπὶ τοῖς λόγοις τῆς χάριτος τοῖς ἐκπορευομένοις ἐκ τοῦ στόματος αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἔλεγον, Οὐχ οὗτός ἐστιν ὁ υἱὸς Ἰωσήφ; (20/X) 23 [l] Καὶ εἶπε πρὸς αὐτούς, Πάντως ἐρεῖτέ μοι τὴν παραβολὴν ταύτην, Ἰατρὲ, θεράπευσον σεαυτόν· ὅσα ἠκούσαμεν γενόμενα ἐν τῇ Καφαρναοὺμ, ποίησον καὶ ὧδε ἐν τῇ πατρίδι σου.

(21/I) 24 [m] Εἶπε δέ, Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι οὐδεὶς προφήτης δεκτός ἐστιν ἐν τῇ πατρίδι αὐτοῦ. (22/X) 25 [n] Ἐπ' ἀληθείας δὲ λέγω ὑμῖν, πολλαὶ χῆραι ἦσαν ἐν ταῖς ἡμέραις Ἠλίου ἐν τῷ Ἰσραὴλ, ὅτε ἐκλείσθη ὁ οὐρανὸς ἐπὶ ἔτη τρία καὶ μῆνας ἓξ, ὡς ἐγένετο λιμὸς μέγας ἐπὶ πᾶσαν τὴν γῆν, 26 καὶ πρὸς οὐδεμίαν αὐτῶν ἐπέμφθη Ἠλίας, εἰ μὴ εἰς Σάρεφθα τῆς Σιδῶνος πρὸς γυναῖκα χήραν. 27 [o] Καὶ πολλοὶ λεπροὶ ἦσαν ἐπὶ Ἐλισσαίου τοῦ προφήτου ἐν τῷ Ἰσραήλ· καὶ οὐδεὶς αὐτῶν ἐκαθαρίσθη, εἰ μὴ Νεεμὰν ὁ Σύρος. 28 Καὶ ἐπλήσθησαν πάντες θυμοῦ ἐν τῇ συναγωγῇ, ἀκούοντες ταῦτα. 29 Καὶ ἀναστάντες ἐξέβαλον αὐτὸν ἔξω τῆς πόλεως, καὶ ἤγαγον αὐτὸν ἕως ὀφρύος τοῦ ὄρους, ἐφ' οὗ ἡ πόλις g Matt. 2. 23. & 13. 54. Mark 6. 1. John 4. 43.

h Neh. 8. 5, 6. Ps. 22. 22. & 40. 9, 10.
i Isa. 61. 1, 2. Matt. 11. 5. Ps. 42. 7. & 147. 3. John 6. 2.
j Lev. 25. 10.
k Ps. 45. 2. Isa. 50. 4. Matt. 13. 54. Mark 6. 2, 3. ch. 2. 4. John 1. 14. & 6. 42. & 7. 46.
l Matt. 4. 13. & 13. 54.
m Matt. 13. 57. Mark 6. 4. John 4. 44.
n 1 Kings 17. 7. & 18. 1. James 5. 17.
o 2 Kings 5. 14.

---

15. αὐτός] "Ipse; non modò per famam." (Beng.)

16. ἐν τῇ ἡμέρᾳ τῶν σαββάτων] On the Synagogue Worship on the Sabbath, see Joseph. de B. Jud. vii. 3. Vitringa de Synagogâ, Francecq. 1696. Prideaux, Connexion, i. 416—430, ad A.D. 444. Jahn, Arch. S. 344. 397.

The following is from Kuin.: "ἀνίστη ἀναγνῶναι, ad prælegendum è libris sacris surrexit. Erat enim more receptum, ut prælectio codicis sacri stantibus lectore et populo fieret. Non autem Mosis tantùm, sed etiam prophetarum libri diebus sabbati in synagogis prælegi solebant, vid. Act. xiii. 14, 15; xv. 21. Quinque Mosis libri sic distributi erant, ut diebus sabbati spatio unius anni integri legerentur; ex libris verò prophetarum lectioni librorum Mosis adjungebatur sectio aliqua, quæ cum Mosis loco prælecto affinitatem habere videretur. Definiri nequit, utrùm Jesus præscriptam ex Iesaiæ oraculis pericopen, an aliam quampiam prælegerit, sed posterius probabilius est; ὑπηρέτης enim, ut h. l. legitur, non revolutum volumen offerebat Jesu, sed Jesus ipse revolvebat Iesaiæ volumen sibi porrectum, et lectio à Jesu pro arbitrio instituta effecisse videtur, ut auditores, oculis et animis in Jesum intentis, eò diligentius dicenda auscultarent; neque omnino, ut ad h. l. Michaëlis monuit, certò constitui potest, jam illo tempore præscriptas pericopas è libris prophetarum fuisse prælectas. Qui aliquâ doctrinâ pollere viderentur, cujuscunque essent conditionis, ab Archisynagogo excitabantur et rogabantur, ut locum scripturæ prælegerent."

17. ἐπεδόθη] perhaps was given in addition, after the Lesson from the Law. Our Lord appears to have done two things; first, ἀνίστη ἀναγνῶναι, i. e. to read the lesson of the day, see preceding note; secondly, to have chosen a particular passage (εὑρεῖν τόπον) in the prophecies of Isaiah, and to have expounded it, with additions from other places of the same Prophet; e. g. Isa. lxi. 1, 2, with illustrations from xlii. 7, and to have shown the application of these prophecies to Himself. See Surenhus. pp. 339—345.

— ἀναπτύξας] having unrolled the מְגִלָּה (megillah), or volume.

It appears that Isaiah formed a separate roll.

18. ἔχρισέ με] anointed Me—made Me the Messiah, the Anointed One—the Christ. Christ was anointed at the Incarnation by the operation of the Holy Ghost, and was publicly anointed and inaugurated as the Messiah by the descent of the Holy Ghost at His Baptism. See on Matt. iii. 16. Therefore this lesson and exposition were specially appropriate now.

"Per πτωχοῖς, Hebr. עֲנִיִּים, intelliguntur ap. Iesaiam miseri, quo sensu vocabulum sæpius legitur, ut Ies. iii. 14; lviii. 7." (Kuin.)

19. ἐνιαυτόν] typified by the Jubilee, Lev. xxv. 9; and the word ἐνιαυτὸς, like the Hebrew שָׁנָה (shanah), of Isa. lxiii. 4, indicates, in a larger sense, a longer period—here the Gospel dispensation. On the erroneous notion hence derived by some (see Clem. Alex. Strom. i. p. 147, and Origen de princ. iv. 5), that our Lord taught only for one year or little more; see the authorities in Gieseler, Ch. Hist. chap. i. note 10. Winer, Lex. i. p. 568. Routh, R. S. i. 121. 146; iv. 364, and above, on iii. 23, where it will be seen that Melito affirmed that our Lord's ministry lasted three years; so also St. Hippolytus, in Dan. § 4. So Euseb. H. E. i. 10. Theodoret, in Dan. ix. St. Hieron. in Dan. ix.

24. δεκτός] 'acceptable,' not 'accepted.' On δεκτὸν see on Acts x. 35.

25. ἔτη τρία καὶ μῆνας ἓξ] It is said by some (e. g. Meyer, p. 275) that this is at variance with the date in 1 Kings xviii. 1, "the third year." But it does not appear that the third year there is dated from the beginning of the famine. The original says, "There were many days; and in the third year—probably after those many days—the word of the Lord came to Elijah." Why otherwise should the "many days" be mentioned? The period of three years and a half (half of seven, the sacred number) = 42 months, or 1260 days, had an ominous sound in the ears of an Israelite, being the time of this famine (cp. James v. 17), and of the duration of the desolation of the Temple under Antiochus. Lightfoot, i. p. 620. Harm. N. T. Rev. xi. Joseph. B. J. i. 1. Lowth on Dan. xii. 7. Prideaux ad A.D. 168, 165. See Rev. xi. 2, 3; xii. 6. 14; xiii. 5.

26, 27. Ἠλίας—Ἐλισσαίου] The Prophets Elijah and Elisha were types of Christ; and in their special dealings with the widow of Sarepta and Naaman the Syrian, they foreshadowed His relation, not only to Capernaum in contrast with Nazareth, but also to the Gentile world in comparison with the Jews. (Theoph., Euthym.)

29. ὀφρύος] Modern Nazareth is not on a hill, as the ancient city was. Cp. Pococke in Rosenm. here, and Robinson, Palest. iii. 183—200, who says, "the houses stand in the lower part of the slope of the western hill, which rises steep and high above them." Its inhabitants were guilty of rejecting the Son of God, Who vouchsafed to dwell among them, and of endeavouring to cast Him down from "the brow of a hill on which their city was built." In the present site of Nazareth may we not see an emblem of the degradation and doom of those who reject and would cast down Christ? Cp. the curse pronounced by Him on Capernaum (Matt. xi. 23), of which the name is lost, and the site is now a subject of controversy. See Tregelles, in Journal of Classical and Sacred Philology, No. viii. pp. 152—154, who places it on the east of Jordan. Cp. on Matt. iv. 13. Luke iv. 29.

αὐτῶν ᾠκοδόμητο, εἰς τὸ κατακρημνίσαι αὐτόν. [30] [p] αὐτὸς δὲ διελθὼν διὰ
[q] μέσου αὐτῶν ἐπορεύετο. (23/VIII) [31] [q] Καὶ κατῆλθεν εἰς Καφαρναοὺμ πόλιν τῆς Γαλιλαίας· καὶ ἦν διδάσκων αὐτοὺς ἐν τοῖς σάββασι. (24/II) [32] Καὶ ἐξεπλήσσοντο ἐπὶ τῇ διδαχῇ αὐτοῦ, ὅτι ἐν ἐξουσίᾳ ἦν ὁ λόγος αὐτοῦ. (25/VIII) [33] Καὶ ἐν τῇ συναγωγῇ ἦν ἄνθρωπος ἔχων πνεῦμα δαιμονίου ἀκαθάρτου, καὶ ἀνέκραξε φωνῇ μεγάλῃ, [34] λέγων, Ἔα· τί ἡμῖν καὶ σοί, Ἰησοῦ Ναζαρηνέ; ἦλθες ἀπολέσαι ἡμᾶς; οἶδά σε τίς εἶ· ὁ Ἅγιος τοῦ Θεοῦ. [35] Καὶ ἐπετίμησεν αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς λέγων, Φιμώθητι, καὶ ἔξελθε ἐξ αὐτοῦ. Καὶ ῥῖψαν αὐτὸν τὸ δαιμόνιον εἰς τὸ μέσον ἐξῆλθεν ἀπ' αὐτοῦ, μηδὲν βλάψαν αὐτόν. [36] Καὶ ἐγένετο θάμβος ἐπὶ πάντας· καὶ συνελάλουν πρὸς ἀλλήλους λέγοντες, Τίς ὁ λόγος οὗτος; ὅτι ἐν ἐξουσίᾳ καὶ δυνάμει ἐπιτάσσει τοῖς ἀκαθάρτοις πνεύμασι, καὶ ἐξέρχονται.
[37] Καὶ ἐξεπορεύετο ἦχος περὶ αὐτοῦ εἰς πάντα τόπον τῆς περιχώρου.

[r] (26/II) [38] [r] Ἀναστὰς δὲ ἐκ τῆς συναγωγῆς εἰσῆλθεν εἰς τὴν οἰκίαν Σίμωνος· πενθερὰ δὲ τοῦ Σίμωνος ἦν συνεχομένη πυρετῷ μεγάλῳ· καὶ ἠρώτησαν αὐτὸν περὶ αὐτῆς. [39] Καὶ ἐπιστὰς ἐπάνω αὐτῆς ἐπετίμησε τῷ πυρετῷ, καὶ ἀφῆκεν αὐτήν· παραχρῆμα δὲ ἀναστᾶσα διηκόνει αὐτοῖς. [40] Δύνοντος δὲ τοῦ ἡλίου πάντες ὅσοι εἶχον ἀσθενοῦντας νόσοις ποικίλαις ἤγαγον αὐτοὺς πρὸς αὐτόν· ὁ δὲ ἑνὶ ἑκάστῳ αὐτῶν τὰς χεῖρας ἐπιθεὶς ἐθεράπευσεν αὐτούς. (27/VIII) [41] Ἐξήρ-χετο δὲ καὶ δαιμόνια ἀπὸ πολλῶν κράζοντα καὶ λέγοντα, Ὅτι σὺ εἶ ὁ Χριστὸς ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ Θεοῦ. Καὶ ἐπιτιμῶν οὐκ εἴα αὐτὰ λαλεῖν, ὅτι ᾔδεισαν τὸν Χριστὸν αὐτὸν εἶναι. (28/VIII) [42] Γενομένης δὲ ἡμέρας ἐξελθὼν ἐπορεύθη εἰς ἔρημον τόπον· καὶ οἱ ὄχλοι ἐπεζήτουν αὐτὸν, καὶ ἦλθον ἕως αὐτοῦ καὶ κατεῖχον αὐτὸν τοῦ μὴ πορεύεσθαι ἀπ' αὐτῶν. [43] Ὁ δὲ εἶπε πρὸς αὐτούς, Ὅτι καὶ ταῖς ἑτέραις πόλεσιν εὐαγγελίσασθαί με δεῖ τὴν βασιλείαν τοῦ Θεοῦ· ὅτι εἰς τοῦτο ἀπέσταλμαι. [44] Καὶ ἦν κηρύσσων ἐν ταῖς συναγωγαῖς τῆς Γαλιλαίας.

[a] V. (29/X) [1] [a] Ἐγένετο δὲ ἐν τῷ τὸν ὄχλον ἐπικεῖσθαι αὐτῷ τοῦ ἀκούειν τὸν
[b] λόγον τοῦ Θεοῦ, καὶ αὐτὸς ἦν ἑστὼς παρὰ τὴν λίμνην Γεννησαρέτ. [2] [b] καὶ εἶδε δύο πλοῖα ἑστῶτα παρὰ τὴν λίμνην· οἱ δὲ ἁλιεῖς ἀποβάντες ἀπ' αὐτῶν ἀπέπλυναν τὰ δίκτυα. [3] Ἐμβὰς δὲ εἰς ἓν τῶν πλοίων, ὃ ἦν τοῦ Σίμωνος, ἠρώτησεν αὐτὸν ἀπὸ τῆς γῆς ἐπαναγαγεῖν ὀλίγον· καὶ καθίσας ἐδίδασκεν ἐκ [c] τοῦ πλοίου τοὺς ὄχλους. (30/IX) [4] [c] Ὡς δὲ ἐπαύσατο λαλῶν, εἶπε πρὸς τὸν Σίμωνα, Ἐπανάγαγε εἰς τὸ βάθος, καὶ χαλάσατε τὰ δίκτυα ὑμῶν εἰς ἄγραν. [5] Καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς ὁ Σίμων εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Ἐπιστάτα, δι' ὅλης τῆς νυκτὸς κοπιάσαντες

---

30. διελθὼν διὰ μέσου] He allowed them to take Him to the top of the hill—and then escaped. Thus He proved that His death was voluntary,—"Quandò vult capitur, quandò vult occiditur,"—and we may add, "Quandò nolunt inimici, elabitur, et quandò nolunt, occiditur." (See Matt. xxvi. 5.)

31. Καφαρναοὺμ πόλιν τ. Γ.] A mode of speech showing that St. Luke wrote for persons unacquainted with Palestine.

Marcion began his edition of St. Luke's Gospel at this verse (see Libr. Apocr. N. T. p. 403), and inserted the words ὁ Θεὸς κατῆλθεν εἰς Καφαρναοὺμ,—a testimony from him to Christ's Divinity, and also that the earlier chapters of St. Luke (omitted by Marcion) prove the Humanity.

33. δαιμονίου] Both St. Mark and St. Luke, writing for Gentiles, add the epithet ἀκάθαρτον to δαιμόνιον, which St. Matthew, writing to Jews (for whom it was not necessary), never does. See Townson on the Gospels, p. 185.

— καὶ ἀνέκραξε] See Mark i. 24—28.

34. ὁ Ἅγιος] "He uses the Article," says Athanas. in Caten., "distinguishing Christ from all others: for He is the Holy One, by communion with Whom all who are holy are called holy."

35. φιμώθησι] "φιμὸς, i. q. κημὸς, camus (cp. Routh, R. S. iv. 44. 71), capistri genus (a muzzle) quo caballi superbi coerceri solent (Valck. ex Isid.), hinc φιμοῦν obturare." See on Matt. xxii. 12. Mark i. 25; iv. 39.

Ch. V. 1—11. ἐγένετο δὲ—αὐτῷ] Cp. Matt. iv. 18—22. Mark i. 16—20. Some Expositors suppose that these two latter describe a different action from that in St. Luke; but see Hammond, Lightfoot, and Spanheim, Dubia Evang. p. 337, and Trench on the Miracles, p. 125.

Spanheim's observation here, p. 334, is very judicious, and of general application: "Nihil frequentius quàm quædam prætermitti ab his (i. e. by some of the four Evangelists), suppleri ab aliis, ob fines sæpe dictos, ne vel Scriptores sacri ex compacto scripsisse viderentur, vel Lectores uni ex illis, reliquis spretis, hærerent."

2. εἶδε δύο πλοῖα] Our Lord evangelizes men by means of their worldly occupations. The Shepherds at Bethlehem, when tending their flocks; the Magi looking at the stars; Matthew at the seat of custom; Simon and Andrew, James and John at their nets, are called to Christ. (Cp. Theoph. here.) He thus teaches us not to be indolent, and to sanctify our labours by His presence.

— ἀπέπλυναν] Observe ἀπὸ and the aorist, marking by one act of washing that the fishing was over. They washed them off,—cleansed them from weeds, &c.,—and hung them up to dry, till they should be wanted again on the following night. Where human work ends, divine begins.

4. ἐπαναγαγε] Remark the two prepositions: "Launch forth from shore back again to the deep now in the day, where during the whole night (the best time for fishing) thou hast caught nothing."

5. ἐπιστάτα] Used by St. Luke six times (v. 5; viii. 24. 45; ix. 33. 49; xvii. 13) for the Hebrew Ῥαββί, which is used by all the other Evangelists, but never used by St. Luke. See preliminary note.

— δι' ὅλης τῆς νυκτὸς] i. e. during the most favourable time, and during the whole of it. How then can we expect a draught now?

In a figurative sense the words may be applied to the labours of the Church of God during the night of heathen darkness, before the coming of Christ. See Theophyl., and cp. St. Ambrose here: "Ego, Domine, scio quia nox est quandò non imperas—in Verbo Tuo laxabo retia."

οὐδὲν ἐλάβομεν· ἐπὶ δὲ τῷ ῥήματί σου χαλάσω τὸ δίκτυον. 6 Καὶ τοῦτο ποιήσαντες συνέκλεισαν πλῆθος ἰχθύων πολύ· διερρήγνυτο δὲ τὸ δίκτυον αὐτῶν, 7 καὶ κατένευσαν τοῖς μετόχοις τοῖς ἐν τῷ ἑτέρῳ πλοίῳ τοῦ ἐλθόντας συλλαβέσθαι αὐτοῖς· καὶ ἦλθον, καὶ ἔπλησαν ἀμφότερα τὰ πλοῖα, ὥστε βυθίζεσθαι αὐτά. (31 Χ) 8 [d] Ἰδὼν δὲ Σίμων Πέτρος προσέπεσε τοῖς γόνασι τοῦ Ἰησοῦ, λέγων, [e] Ἔξελθε ἀπ' ἐμοῦ, ὅτι ἀνὴρ ἁμαρτωλός εἰμι, Κύριε. 9 Θάμβος γὰρ περιέσχεν αὐτὸν, καὶ πάντας τοὺς σὺν αὐτῷ ἐπὶ τῇ ἄγρᾳ τῶν ἰχθύων ἣ συνέλαβον· 10 [f] ὁμοίως δὲ καὶ Ἰάκωβον καὶ Ἰωάννην, υἱοὺς Ζεβεδαίου, οἳ ἦσαν κοινωνοὶ τῷ Σίμωνι. Καὶ εἶπε πρὸς τὸν Σίμωνα ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Μὴ φοβοῦ· ἀπὸ τοῦ νῦν ἀνθρώπους ἔσῃ ζωγρῶν. (33 Π) 11 [g] Καὶ καταγαγόντες τὰ πλοῖα ἐπὶ τὴν γῆν, ἀφέντες ἅπαντα ἠκολούθησαν αὐτῷ.

d 2 Sam. 6. 9. 1 Kings 17. 18.
e Exod. 20. 19. Judg. 13. 22. 1 Sam. 6. 20. Isa. 6. 5.
f John 21. 6, 7. Jer. 16. 16. Ezek. 47. 9. Matt. 4. 19. Mark 1. 17. & 13. 49.
g Matt. 4. 20. & 19. 27. Mark 10. 28. ch. 18. 28.

(33 Π) 12 [h] Καὶ ἐγένετο, ἐν τῷ εἶναι αὐτὸν ἐν μιᾷ τῶν πόλεων, καὶ ἰδοὺ ἀνὴρ πλήρης λέπρας· καὶ ἰδὼν τὸν Ἰησοῦν, πεσὼν ἐπὶ πρόσωπον ἐδεήθη αὐτοῦ λέγων, Κύριε, ἐὰν θέλῃς, δύνασαί με καθαρίσαι. 13 Καὶ ἐκτείνας τὴν χεῖρα ἥψατο αὐτοῦ εἰπών, Θέλω, καθαρίσθητι. Καὶ εὐθέως ἡ λέπρα ἀπῆλθεν ἀπ' αὐτοῦ. 14 Καὶ αὐτὸς παρήγγειλεν αὐτῷ μηδενὶ εἰπεῖν· ἀλλὰ ἀπελθὼν δεῖξον σεαυτὸν τῷ ἱερεῖ, καὶ προσένεγκε περὶ τοῦ καθαρισμοῦ σου, καθὼς προσέταξε Μωϋσῆς, εἰς μαρτύριον αὐτοῖς. (34 Ι) 15 Διήρχετο δὲ μᾶλλον ὁ λόγος περὶ αὐτοῦ· καὶ συνήρχοντο ὄχλοι πολλοὶ ἀκούειν, καὶ θεραπεύεσθαι ὑπ' αὐτοῦ ἀπὸ τῶν ἀσθενειῶν αὐτῶν· (35 Π) 16 αὐτὸς δὲ ἦν ὑποχωρῶν ἐν ταῖς ἐρήμοις, καὶ προσευχόμενος.

h Matt. 8. 2, &c. Mark 1. 40, &c.

(36 Π) 17 Καὶ ἐγένετο ἐν μιᾷ τῶν ἡμερῶν καὶ αὐτὸς ἦν διδάσκων· καὶ ἦσαν καθήμενοι Φαρισαῖοι καὶ νομοδιδάσκαλοι, οἳ ἦσαν ἐληλυθότες ἐκ πάσης κώμης τῆς Γαλιλαίας καὶ Ἰουδαίας καὶ Ἱερουσαλήμ· καὶ δύναμις Κυρίου ἦν εἰς τὸ ἰᾶσθαι αὐτούς. (37 Ι) 18 [i] Καὶ ἰδοὺ, ἄνδρες φέροντες ἐπὶ κλίνης ἄνθρωπον, ὃς ἦν παραλελυμένος· καὶ ἐζήτουν αὐτὸν εἰσενεγκεῖν καὶ θεῖναι ἐνώπιον αὐτοῦ· 19 καὶ μὴ εὑρόντες ποίας εἰσενέγκωσιν αὐτὸν διὰ τὸν ὄχλον, ἀναβάντες ἐπὶ τὸ δῶμα, διὰ τῶν κεράμων καθῆκαν αὐτὸν σὺν τῷ κλινιδίῳ εἰς τὸ μέσον ἔμπροσθεν τοῦ Ἰησοῦ. 20 Καὶ ἰδὼν τὴν πίστιν αὐτῶν εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Ἄνθρωπε, ἀφέωνταί σοι αἱ ἁμαρτίαι σου. 21 Καὶ ἤρξαντο διαλογίζεσθαι οἱ Γραμματεῖς καὶ οἱ Φαρισαῖοι λέγοντες, Τίς ἐστιν οὗτος ὃς λαλεῖ βλασφημίας; τίς δύναται ἀφιέναι ἁμαρτίας, εἰ μὴ μόνος ὁ Θεός; 22 Ἐπιγνοὺς δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς τοὺς διαλογισμοὺς αὐτῶν, ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπε πρὸς αὐτούς, Τί διαλογίζεσθε ἐν ταῖς καρδίαις ὑμῶν;

i Matt. 9. 2—8. Mark 2. 3—12.

---

6. διερρήγνυτο] Was on the point of breaking; "in eo erat ut rumperetur." (Cf. Valck.)

This draught of fishes was not only a Miracle, but (like other of our Lord's Miracles) it was a prophetic parable in action. It foreshadowed the success that would now attend the labours of the Apostolical Fishers of Men, in drawing the Net of the Gospel through the Sea of the World, and enclosing the wandering shoals of Heathen Nations within it, so that they might be caught—not for death—but for life eternal (ἐζωγρημένοι),—and though the Net was full, yet it should not be broken.

7. κατένευσαν τ. μετόχοις] An incident noticed by the Holy Spirit, probably as a suggestion to Pastors and Churches,—that when they themselves do not suffice for the Evangelical and Missionary work to which they are appointed, they should invite other Pastors and Churches (as μέτοχοι, coadjutors) to help them in the labour of Apostolical Fishing. All are μέτοχοι under One Κύριος, Christ.

They beckoned because of the distance,—or, it may be, in awe,—not venturing to shout aloud in the presence of Christ. Cp. vv. 8 and 9, θάμβος περιέσχεν πάντας. Compare this miraculous draught with that in John xxi. 6—11, after the Resurrection, and see notes there, and Burgon here; and consider them not only as miracles, but prophecies, with regard to the Fishers of Men, the Ships of the Churches, the Net of the Gospel, the Sea of the World, and the Shore of Eternity.

12. πλήρης λέπρας] A Hellenistic paraphrase of St. Matthew's (viii. 2), and St. Mark's (i. 40) λεπρός. On this use of πλήρης as applied to diseases, see Rukniken ad Timæum v. ἀνάπλεως, p. 30. On the circumstances of the miracle generally, see Matt. viii. 2—4.

13. θέλω, καθαρίσθητι. Καὶ εὐθέως] "Nihil medium est inter opus Dei et præceptum, quia præceptum est opus." St. Ambrose, who adds, "Volo dicit, propter Photinum; imperat propter Arium; tangit propter Manichæum;" and thus by a single act He confutes heresies which were yet unborn. And further: "Lex tangi leprosos prohibet. sed, qui Dominus Legis est, Legem facit; tetigit ergo, ut probaret quia subjectus non erat Legi—et ut lepra tactu fugaretur quæ solebat contaminare tangentem." (Ambrose.) And yet our Lord sent the Leper to the Priest; because, though as God He had just showed Himself above the Law; yet as Man He came to fulfil the Law.

16. προσευχόμενος] This notice of our Lord's praying is peculiar to St. Luke. A similar instance is seen in his narrative of our Lord's Baptism, iii. 21, and of the Transfiguration, ix. 28, 29. The Jews had frequent exhortations to Prayer in their Scriptures and Religious Services. The Gentiles, for whom St. Luke's Gospel was specially designed, needed instruction in the duty and benefits of Prayer. Accordingly, this subject occupies a prominent place in his Gospel. It is eminently the Gospel of Prayer; see vi. 12; ix. 18. 28; xi. 1; xviii. 1; xxii. 41. 46. On our Lord's prayer in His agony, and in His earnest charge to His disciples, and our Lord's prayer for His murderers, xxiii. 34, and His dying prayer, xxiii. 46, cp. Townson on the Gospels, p. 191.

19. ποίας] rightly edited, instead of διὰ ποίας; ποίας marks place. Kühner, Gr. Gr. ii. 177. Æschyl. Ag. 1054, ἑστίας μεσομφάλου ἵστηκα. Soph. Elect. 900. Hence the adverbs of place, οὗ, ποῦ, ἀλλαχοῦ, οὐδαμοῦ. They did not find an entrance (εἴσοδος), much less a transit, a δίοδος. Cp. ἀκαίνης, xix. 4.

— δῶμα] roof, or flat housetop; used in this sense for the Hebr. גג (Gog) by the LXX. Jos. ii. 6. 8, and passim, cp. Luke xii. 3; xvii. 31. Acts x. 9.

— διὰ τῶν κεράμων] See Mark ii. 4.

21—26. καὶ ἤρξαντο] See on Matt. v. 3—8.

21. τίς—βλασφημίας] An iambic verse; see v. 39. Cp. Winer, p. 564.

23 τί ἐστιν εὐκοπώτερον, εἰπεῖν, Ἀφέωνταί σοι αἱ ἁμαρτίαι σου, ἢ εἰπεῖν, Ἔγειραι καὶ περιπάτει; 24 ἵνα δὲ εἰδῆτε ὅτι ἐξουσίαν ἔχει ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς ἀφιέναι ἁμαρτίας, εἶπε τῷ παραλελυμένῳ, Σοὶ λέγω, ἔγειρε, καὶ ἆρας τὸ κλινίδιόν σου πορεύου εἰς τὸν οἶκόν σου. 25 Καὶ παραχρῆμα ἀναστὰς ἐνώπιον αὐτῶν, ἆρας ἐφ' ᾧ κατέκειτο, ἀπῆλθεν εἰς τὸν οἶκον αὐτοῦ δοξάζων τὸν Θεόν. 26 Καὶ ἔκστασις ἔλαβεν ἅπαντας, καὶ ἐδόξαζον τὸν Θεὸν, καὶ ἐπλήσθησαν φόβου λέγοντες, Ὅτι εἴδομεν παράδοξα σήμερον.

j Matt. 9. 9, &c. Mark 2. 13, &c.

(38/II) 27 j Καὶ μετὰ ταῦτα ἐξῆλθε, καὶ ἐθεάσατο τελώνην ὀνόματι Λευὶν καθήμενον ἐπὶ τὸ τελώνιον, καὶ εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Ἀκολούθει μοι. 28 Καὶ καταλιπὼν ἅπαντα, ἀναστὰς ἠκολούθησεν αὐτῷ. (39/II) 29 Καὶ ἐποίησε δοχὴν μεγάλην ὁ Λευὶς αὐτῷ ἐν τῇ οἰκίᾳ αὐτοῦ· καὶ ἦν ὄχλος τελωνῶν πολὺς, καὶ ἄλλων οἳ ἦσαν μετ' αὐτῶν κατακείμενοι. 30 Καὶ ἐγόγγυζον οἱ Γραμματεῖς αὐτῶν καὶ οἱ Φαρισαῖοι πρὸς τοὺς μαθητὰς αὐτοῦ λέγοντες, Διατί μετὰ τῶν τελωνῶν καὶ ἁμαρτωλῶν ἐσθίετε καὶ πίνετε; (40/II) 31 Καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπε πρὸς αὐτούς, Οὐ χρείαν ἔχουσιν οἱ ὑγιαίνοντες ἰατροῦ, ἀλλ' οἱ κακῶς ἔχοντες. 32 Οὐκ ἐλήλυθα καλέσαι δικαίους, ἀλλὰ ἁμαρτωλοὺς, εἰς μετάνοιαν. 33 Οἱ δὲ εἶπον πρὸς αὐτόν, Διατί οἱ μαθηταὶ Ἰωάννου νηστεύουσι πυκνὰ καὶ δεήσεις ποιοῦνται, ὁμοίως καὶ οἱ τῶν Φαρισαίων, οἱ δὲ σοὶ ἐσθίουσι καὶ πίνουσιν; 34 Ὁ δὲ εἶπε πρὸς αὐτούς, Μὴ δύνασθε τοὺς υἱοὺς τοῦ νυμφῶνος, ἐν ᾧ ὁ νυμφίος μετ' αὐτῶν ἐστι, ποιῆσαι νηστεύειν; 35 Ἐλεύσονται δὲ ἡμέραι καὶ ὅταν ἀπαρθῇ ἀπ' αὐτῶν ὁ νυμφίος, τότε νηστεύσουσιν ἐν ἐκείναις ταῖς ἡμέραις. 36 Ἔλεγε δὲ καὶ παραβολὴν πρὸς αὐτούς, Ὅτι οὐδεὶς ἐπίβλημα ἱματίου καινοῦ ἐπιβάλλει ἐπὶ ἱμάτιον παλαιόν· εἰ δὲ μήγε, καὶ τὸ καινὸν σχίζει, καὶ τῷ παλαιῷ οὐ συμφωνεῖ ἐπίβλημα τὸ ἀπὸ τοῦ καινοῦ. 37 Καὶ οὐδεὶς βάλλει οἶνον νέον εἰς ἀσκοὺς παλαιούς· εἰ δὲ μήγε, ῥήξει ὁ οἶνος ὁ νέος τοὺς ἀσκοὺς καὶ αὐτὸς ἐκχυθήσεται, καὶ οἱ ἀσκοὶ ἀπολοῦνται· 38 ἀλλὰ οἶνον νέον εἰς ἀσκοὺς καινοὺς βλητέον, καὶ ἀμφότεροι συντηροῦνται. 39 Καὶ οὐδεὶς πιὼν παλαιὸν εὐθέως θέλει νέον· λέγει γάρ, Ὁ παλαιὸς χρηστότερός ἐστιν.

a Matt. 12. 1, &c. Mark 2. 23, &c.

VI. (41/II) 1 a Ἐγένετο δὲ ἐν σαββάτῳ δευτεροπρώτῳ διαπορεύεσθαι αὐτὸν διὰ τῶν σπορίμων· καὶ ἔτιλλον οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ τοὺς στάχυας, καὶ ἤσθιον ψώχοντες ταῖς χερσί. 2 Τινὲς δὲ τῶν Φαρισαίων εἶπον αὐτοῖς, Τί ποιεῖτε ὃ οὐκ ἔξεστι ποιεῖν ἐν τοῖς σάββασι; 3 Καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς πρὸς αὐτοὺς εἶπεν

---

27. Λευὶν] See Matt. ix. 9.

29—39. καὶ ἐποίησε] See Mark ii. 15—22.

30. αὐτῶν] of the Capernaites.

— τῶν τ.] The article τῶν has been restored from A, B, D, L, and other MSS.

35. ἐλεύσονται δὲ ἡμέραι καί] καὶ is emphatic; imò. The days will come, even, when the Bridegroom shall have been taken away from them.

39. πιὼν παλαιόν] a pure iambic. Cp. v. 21. We have seen (Matt. vi. 9. 34; vii. 2, 3; xiii. 52) that our Lord condescended to adopt parables, proverbs, and prayers current among the Hebrews. Perhaps He here adopted in substance, a proverb current among the Heathens, of which St. Luke has given the Greek form. Even in Heaven Christ deigns to use a Gentile Proverb, see on Acts xxvi. 14. Compare St. Paul's quotations from heathen writers (Acts xvii. 28. 1 Cor. xv. 33. Tit. i. 12). See also 2 Pet. ii. 22, and what is said of Moses, Acts vii. 22.

Our blessed Lord and His Apostles may have designed to remind us by this adoption of Truth, wherever found, that of all Truth, in every age and country, He is the Author. Cp. John i. 9, and see Hooker, E. P. II. i. and II. iv. and III. viii. 9.

"There is no kind of knowledge whereby any part of Truth is seen, but we justly account it precious . . . . to detract from the dignity thereof were to injure even God Himself, Who, being that Light which none can approach unto, hath sent out these lights whereof we are capable, even so many sparkles resembling the bright fountain from which they rise."

CH. VI. 1. ἐν σαββάτῳ δευτεροπρώτῳ] "In Sabbato secundoprimo." This particular Sabbath is specified by St. Luke alone. The ancient Expositors differ much in their opinions as to what this Sabbath was. See a Summary of them in à Lapide, who thinks that it was the Pentecostal Sabbath; and so Maldonat. in Matt. xii. 1. And this is a probable opinion. It supposes that there were certain principal Sabbaths, πρῶτα σάββατα; that the Paschal Sabbath (i. e. the Sabbath next after the 14th of Nisan) was the πρωτό-πρωτον (see John xix. 31), and that the Pentecostal was the δευτερό-πρωτον. And this opinion is confirmed by Valckenaer, and it seems most consistent with the rules of grammatical Analogy, to interpret δευτερόπρωτον second-first, intimating that there were other first or chief sabbaths. The word πρῶτος often signifies principal; see on iii. 2; xv. 22; xix. 47. Acts xiii. 50. And so δευτερο-δωδεκάτη, the second-tenth, in Jerome, on Ezek. xlv.

This was not only a sabbath, but a chief sabbath; and so the inferences from our Lord's teaching here are stronger than if it had been only an ordinary sabbath. There may be also something significant in the fact, that the Law concerning the Sabbath which our Lord now explains, was given at this Pentecostal season by Himself the Lord of the Sabbath. Exod. xix. 1—3.

Another opinion, generally adopted, is that this σάββατον δευτερόπρωτον was the first Sabbath after the second day of unleavened bread. See Scaliger, de emend. temp. p. 557. Casaubon, Exc. Bar. p. 272. Lightfoot on Matt. xii. 1. Jahn, Arch. S. 347.

The second day of the Paschal week was distinguished by the waving of the first ripe sheaf of barley by the Priest before the Lord, to consecrate the harvest. See Levit. xxiii. 10—12 (where Sabbath is the first day of unleavened bread, or 15th of Nisan. See Ainsworth on Levit. l. c.). 1 Cor. xv. 20. Rom. xi. 16. And the Sabbath here mentioned by St. Luke was, according to this opinion, the first Sabbath after that second day, i. e. the first Sabbath after the 16th of Nisan.

If this be so, then the corn which the disciples ate was barley (the wheat not being then ripe), an incidental proof of their hunger; and therefore the particular Sabbath may have been mentioned here.

On the circumstances of the incident generally, see on Matt. xii. 1—7, and Mark ii. 23—28.

ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Οὐδὲ τοῦτο ἀνέγνωτε ὃ ἐποίησε Δαυὶδ, ὁπότε ἐπείνασεν αὐτὸς καὶ οἱ μετ' αὐτοῦ ὄντες; 4 ὡς εἰσῆλθεν εἰς τὸν οἶκον τοῦ Θεοῦ, καὶ τοὺς ἄρτους τῆς προθέσεως ἔλαβε καὶ ἔφαγε, καὶ ἔδωκε καὶ τοῖς μετ' αὐτοῦ, οὓς οὐκ ἔξεστι φαγεῖν εἰ μὴ μόνους τοὺς ἱερεῖς; 5 Καὶ ἔλεγεν αὐτοῖς, Ὅτι κύριός ἐστιν ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου καὶ τοῦ σαββάτου.

(42/II) 6 [b] Ἐγένετο δὲ, καὶ ἐν ἑτέρῳ σαββάτῳ εἰσελθεῖν αὐτὸν εἰς τὴν συναγωγὴν καὶ διδάσκειν· καὶ ἦν ἐκεῖ ἄνθρωπος, καὶ ἡ χεὶρ αὐτοῦ ἡ δεξιὰ ἦν ξηρά. 7 Παρετηροῦντο δὲ οἱ Γραμματεῖς καὶ οἱ Φαρισαῖοι, εἰ ἐν τῷ σαββάτῳ θεραπεύσει, ἵνα εὕρωσι κατηγορίαν αὐτοῦ. 8 Αὐτὸς δὲ ᾔδει τοὺς διαλογισμοὺς αὐτῶν, καὶ εἶπε τῷ ἀνθρώπῳ τῷ ξηρὰν ἔχοντι τὴν χεῖρα, Ἔγειρε καὶ στῆθι εἰς τὸ μέσον. Ὁ δὲ ἀναστὰς ἔστη. 9 Εἶπεν οὖν ὁ Ἰησοῦς πρὸς αὐτούς, Ἐπερωτήσω ὑμᾶς τι· ἔξεστι τοῖς σάββασιν ἀγαθοποιῆσαι, ἢ κακοποιῆσαι; ψυχὴν σῶσαι, ἢ ἀπολέσαι; 10 Καὶ περιβλεψάμενος πάντας αὐτοὺς εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Ἔκτεινον τὴν χεῖρά σου· ὁ δὲ ἐποίησεν· καὶ ἀποκατεστάθη ἡ χεὶρ αὐτοῦ ὡς ἡ ἄλλη. 11 Αὐτοὶ δὲ ἐπλήσθησαν ἀνοίας· καὶ διελάλουν πρὸς ἀλλήλους, τί ἂν ποιήσειαν τῷ Ἰησοῦ.

b Matt. 12. 9, 13, 14. Mark 3. 1, &c.

(43/II) 12 [c] Ἐγένετο δὲ ἐν ταῖς ἡμέραις ταύταις, ἐξῆλθεν εἰς τὸ ὄρος προσεύξασθαι· καὶ ἦν διανυκτερεύων ἐν τῇ προσευχῇ τοῦ Θεοῦ. (44/II) 13 [d] Καὶ ὅτε ἐγένετο ἡμέρα, προσεφώνησε τοὺς μαθητὰς αὐτοῦ· καὶ ἐκλεξάμενος ἀπ' αὐτῶν δώδεκα, οὓς καὶ ἀποστόλους ὠνόμασε· 14 Σίμωνα, ὃν καὶ ὠνόμασε Πέτρον, καὶ Ἀνδρέαν τὸν ἀδελφὸν αὐτοῦ, Ἰάκωβον καὶ Ἰωάννην, Φίλιππον καὶ Βαρθολομαῖον, 15 Ματθαῖον καὶ Θωμᾶν, Ἰάκωβον τὸν τοῦ Ἁλφαίου καὶ Σίμωνα τὸν καλούμενον Ζηλωτὴν, 16 Ἰούδαν Ἰακώβου καὶ Ἰούδαν Ἰσκαριώτην, ὃς καὶ ἐγένετο προδότης. (45/I) 17 [e] Καὶ καταβὰς μετ' αὐτῶν ἔστη ἐπὶ τόπου πεδινοῦ· c Mark 3. 13, &c.

d Matt. 10. 1—4. Mark 3. 13—19.

e Matt. 4. 25. Mark 3. 7.

---

3. ὁπότε] The only place where this word occurs in New Test. (Meyer.)

6. ἐγένετο] On the incidents here (vv. 6—12), see on Matt. xii. 9—14, and cp. Mark iii. 1—6.

9. ἀπολέσαι] Some MSS. have ἀποκτεῖναι, but ἀπολέσαι (which is also found in many of the best MSS) is the proper opposite to σῶσαι.

12. προσεύξασθαι] See on v. 16.

— ἐν τῇ προσευχῇ τοῦ Θεοῦ] Some have supposed that our Lord spent the night in a proseucha, or oratory. See Hammond and Mede, Works, p. 67, Bk. I. Disc. xviii. But the article prefixed to προσευχῇ, and the adjunct τοῦ Θεοῦ, seem to forbid this supposition. The Genitive is genitivus objecti, as ἀγάπη Θεοῦ, 1 John ii. 5. πίστις Ἰησοῦ, Gal. iii. 22. ἐνεργεσία ἀνθρώπου, Acts iv. 9. ἐξουσία πνευμάτων, Matt. x. 1. Cp. Winer, Gr. Gr. p. 212. Christ spends the night in prayer before He chooses His Apostles and preaches His Sermon on the Mount. He thus instructs us by His example not to commence any important undertaking, especially in spiritual matters (Ordination, Preaching, &c.), without Prayer. "Orat Dominus, non ut pro se obsecret, sed ut pro me impetret. Obedientiæ Magister ad præcepta virtutis Suo nos informat exemplo" (Ambrose, and see Cyril here, p. 188, Mai). "Aperuit os suum (see St. Matthew v. 2). Aperi os tuum, sed prius, ut aperiatur, implora."

13. ἀποστόλους ὠνόμασε] See on Matt. x. 2. Ἀπόστολος is more than a messenger, it is also a representative of the sender, see Kuin. "Ἀποστόλους, legatos et voluntatis suæ interpretes, Hebr. שְׁלוּחִים, vid. Schoettgenius ad h. l. Ita שָׁלוּחַ de nuntio, vices mittentis gerente legitur 1 Regg. xiv. 6, ubi οἱ ὁ. habent ἀπόστολος, quo eodem vocabulo Aquila expressit Hebr. nomen צִיר Ies. xviii. 2, quod Alexandrini vertere solent πρέσβυς."

15. Ματθαῖον] Eusebius (Theophan. p. 323, ed. Lee) remarks on St. Luke's reverence here shown for his brother Evangelist the Apostle St. Matthew, in not calling him a publican, and in placing him before St. Thomas; and on St. Matthew's humility in recording his former profession, and putting himself after St. Thomas. (Matt. x. 3.) An evidence of the genuineness of St. Matthew's Gospel.

— Ζηλωτήν] the same as Hebr. Kanaïten, see on Matt. x. 4.

17. ἐπὶ τόπου πεδινοῦ] i. e. on a level place on the ὄρος. See further on, Matt. v. 1. The use of a genitive rather than a dative after ἐπί, may be intended to mark that the place itself was elevated. Cp. Luke iv. 29; xxii. 30. Acts xx. 9. Such a place is called by the LXX ὄρος πεδινόν, Isa. xiii. 2, an exact description of our Lord's position here. It is remarkable that Isaiah's words are, in the LXX, ἐπ' ὄρους πεδινοῦ ἄρατε σημεῖον. Assuredly our Lord did lift up the standard, when He preached His Sermon on the Mount.

The occasion on which the Discourse here given by St. Luke was delivered, appears to be the same as that described in St. Matthew when the Sermon on the Mount was preached;

For, St. Mark (iii. 13—19) relates that our Lord went up to a Mountain, and there called the Twelve;

And, after the delivery of the 'Sermon on the Mount,' our Lord is described by St. Matthew (viii. 5—13) as going into Capernaum, and healing the Centurion's servant. So St. Luke, vii. 1—10.

St. Matthew says (vii. 28, 29), that when Jesus had ended these sayings, the people (οἱ ὄχλοι) were astonished at His doctrine (cp. viii. 1); and St. Luke says (vi. 17), the company of His disciples were there, and a great multitude of people which came to hear Him (ὄχλος μαθητῶν αὐτοῦ καὶ πλῆθος πολὺ τοῦ λαοῦ . . . . καὶ πᾶς ὁ ὄχλος, κ.τ.λ.); and (vii. 1) when He had ended all these sayings, in the audience of the people (εἰς τὰς ἀκοὰς τοῦ λαοῦ).

The Discourses in Matthew (v. vi. and vii.) and Luke (vi. 20—49) closely resemble each other; and the points of difference, consisting mainly of omissions on one side or the other, may be easily accounted for, as follows;

St. Matthew was writing specially for Hebrew readers, and therefore he records all the portions of our Lord's Discourse in which the Teaching of the Levitical Law, or the practice of its Jewish Expositors, is explained, enlarged, or corrected by the Gospel (see Matt. v. 17—38). These passages—less applicable to the Gentile world—are not repeated by St. Luke. So again in St. Matthew's report, our Lord corrects the Jewish notions on Prayer and Almsgiving (vi. 1—34), which, probably for a like reason, is not reiterated by St. Luke.

The residue of the Sermon on the Mount (Matt. vii.) being of a general character, applicable alike to Jews and Gentiles, is repeated with some additions (Luke vi. 38—40) by St. Luke here (vi. 31. 37—49), or elsewhere (Luke xi. 9—13, comp. with Matt. vii. 7—11, and Luke xiii. 24, comp. with Matt. vii. 13), with the exception of the caution against false teachers in sheep's clothing (Matt. vii. 15).

There is a remarkable difference in the form of the introduction of the two narratives of the Sermon on the Mount;

In St. Matthew it has the form of a judicial promulgation of Law; in St. Luke it is a Hortatory Address to the World. In St. Matthew it is a Code; in St. Luke, a Homily.

In St. Matthew the language is, "Blessed are the poor, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven" (v. 3); in St. Luke, "Blessed be ye poor, for yours is the kingdom of God" (vi. 20: cp. Matt. v. 1—10, with Luke vi. 21—26).

So also in the conclusion of the Sermon;

In St. Matthew it is, "Not every one that saith unto Me, Lord, Lord" (vii. 21). In St. Luke, "Why call ye Me Lord, Lord" (vi. 46). In St. Matthew, "Whosoever heareth these sayings of Mine, and doeth them, I will liken him" (vii. 24). In St. Luke, "I will show you to whom he is like" (vi. 47).

It is probable that the Holy Spirit in thus presenting the same καὶ ὄχλος μαθητῶν αὐτοῦ, καὶ πλῆθος πολὺ τοῦ λαοῦ ἀπὸ πάσης τῆς Ἰουδαίας καὶ Ἱερουσαλὴμ, καὶ τῆς παραλίου Τύρου καὶ Σιδῶνος· οἳ ἦλθον ἀκοῦσαι αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἰαθῆναι ἀπὸ τῶν νόσων αὐτῶν· 18 καὶ οἱ ὀχλούμενοι ἀπὸ πνευμάτων ἀκαθάρτων· καὶ ἐθεραπεύοντο. 19 [f] Καὶ πᾶς ὁ ὄχλος ἐζήτει ἅπτεσθαι αὐτοῦ· ὅτι δύναμις παρ' αὐτοῦ ἐξήρχετο καὶ ἰᾶτο πάντας.

f Matt. 14. 36. Mark 5. 30.

(46/V) 20 [g] Καὶ αὐτὸς ἐπάρας τοὺς ὀφθαλμοὺς αὐτοῦ εἰς τοὺς μαθητὰς αὐτοῦ, ἔλεγε, Μακάριοι οἱ πτωχοί· ὅτι ὑμετέρα ἐστὶν ἡ βασιλεία τοῦ Θεοῦ.

g Matt. 5. 2, &c.

(47/V) 21 [h] Μακάριοι οἱ πεινῶντες νῦν· ὅτι χορτασθήσεσθε. Μακάριοι οἱ κλαίοντες νῦν· ὅτι γελάσετε. (48/V) 22 [i] Μακάριοί ἐστε, ὅταν μισήσωσιν ὑμᾶς οἱ ἄνθρωποι, (49/V) καὶ ὅταν ἀφορίσωσιν ὑμᾶς καὶ ὀνειδίσωσι, καὶ ἐκβάλωσι τὸ ὄνομα ὑμῶν ὡς πονηρὸν, ἕνεκα τοῦ Υἱοῦ τοῦ ἀνθρώπου. 23 [j] Χάρητε ἐν ἐκείνῃ τῇ ἡμέρᾳ καὶ σκιρτήσατε· ἰδοὺ γὰρ, ὁ μισθὸς ὑμῶν πολὺς ἐν τῷ οὐρανῷ· κατὰ ταῦτα γὰρ ἐποίουν τοῖς προφήταις οἱ πατέρες αὐτῶν.

h Isa. 65. 13. & 66. 10. & 61. 3. Matt. 5. 4.
i Matt. 5. 11. 1 Pet. 2. 19. & 3. 14. & 4. 14. John 16. 2.
j Matt. 5. 12. Acts 5. 41. & 7. 51.

(50/X) 24 [k] Πλὴν οὐαὶ ὑμῖν τοῖς πλουσίοις· ὅτι ἀπέχετε τὴν παράκλησιν ὑμῶν. (51/X) 25 [l] Οὐαὶ ὑμῖν, οἱ ἐμπεπλησμένοι· ὅτι πεινάσετε. Οὐαὶ ὑμῖν, οἱ γελῶντες νῦν· ὅτι πενθήσετε καὶ κλαύσετε. 26 [m] Οὐαὶ, ὅταν καλῶς ὑμᾶς εἴπωσι πάντες οἱ ἄνθρωποι· κατὰ ταῦτα γὰρ ἐποίουν τοῖς ψευδοπροφήταις οἱ πατέρες αὐτῶν.

k Amos 6. 1, 8. Eccles. 31. 8. James 5. 1.
l Matt. 6. 2, 5. ch. 16. 25. Isa. 65. 13. James 4. 9. & 5. 1. m John 15. 19. 1 John 4. 5.

(52/V) 27 [n] Ἀλλ' ὑμῖν λέγω τοῖς ἀκούουσιν, Ἀγαπᾶτε τοὺς ἐχθροὺς ὑμῶν, καλῶς ποιεῖτε τοῖς μισοῦσιν ὑμᾶς, 28 [o] εὐλογεῖτε τοὺς καταρωμένους ὑμῖν, προσεύχεσθε ὑπὲρ τῶν ἐπηρεαζόντων ὑμᾶς. (53/V) 29 [p] Τῷ τύπτοντί σε ἐπὶ τὴν σιαγόνα πάρεχε καὶ τὴν ἄλλην· καὶ ἀπὸ τοῦ αἴροντός σου τὸ ἱμάτιον καὶ τὸν χιτῶνα μὴ κωλύσῃς. 30 [q] Παντὶ δὲ τῷ αἰτοῦντί σε δίδου· καὶ ἀπὸ τοῦ αἴροντος τὰ σὰ μὴ ἀπαίτει. (54/V) 31 [r] Καὶ, καθὼς θέλετε ἵνα ποιῶσιν ὑμῖν οἱ ἄνθρωποι, καὶ ὑμεῖς ποιεῖτε αὐτοῖς ὁμοίως. (55/V) 32 [s] Καὶ εἰ ἀγαπᾶτε τοὺς ἀγαπῶντας ὑμᾶς, ποία ὑμῖν χάρις ἐστί; καὶ γὰρ οἱ ἁμαρτωλοὶ τοὺς ἀγαπῶντας αὐτοὺς ἀγαπῶσι. 33 Καὶ ἐὰν ἀγαθοποιῆτε τοὺς ἀγαθοποιοῦντας ὑμᾶς, ποία ὑμῖν χάρις ἐστί; καὶ γὰρ οἱ ἁμαρτωλοὶ τὸ αὐτὸ ποιοῦσι. 34 [t] Καὶ ἐὰν δανείζητε παρ' ὧν ἐλπίζετε ἀπολαβεῖν, ποία ὑμῖν χάρις ἐστί; καὶ γὰρ οἱ ἁμαρτωλοὶ ἁμαρτωλοῖς δανείζουσιν, ἵνα ἀπολάβωσι τὰ ἴσα. 35 [u] Πλὴν ἀγαπᾶτε τοὺς ἐχθροὺς ὑμῶν, καὶ ἀγαθοποιεῖτε, καὶ δανείζετε μηδὲν ἀπελπίζοντες· καὶ ἔσται ὁ μισθὸς ὑμῶν πολὺς, καὶ ἔσεσθε υἱοὶ Ὑψίστου. ὅτι αὐτὸς χρηστός ἐστιν ἐπὶ τοὺς ἀχαρίστους καὶ πονηρούς. 36 [v] Γίνεσθε οὖν οἰκτίρμονες, καθὼς καὶ ὁ Πατὴρ ὑμῶν οἰκτίρμων ἐστί. (56/II) 37 [w] Καὶ μὴ κρίνετε, καὶ οὐ μὴ κριθῆτε· μὴ καταδικάζετε, καὶ οὐ μὴ καταδικασθῆτε· ἀπολύετε, καὶ ἀπολυθήσεσθε. 38 [x] Δίδοτε, καὶ δοθήσεται n Exod. 23. 4. Prov. 25. 21. Matt. 5. 44. Rom. 12. 14, 20. 1 Cor. 4. 12.

o ch. 23. 34. Acts 7. 60.
p Matt. 5. 39. 1 Cor. 6. 7.
q Deut. 15. 7. Matt. 5. 42.
r Matt. 7. 12. Tob. 4. 16.
s Matt. 5. 46.
t Matt. 5. 48. Deut. 15. 8.
u Matt. 5. 44, 45. Ps. 37. 26. ch. v. 30.
v Matt. 5. 48.
w Matt. 7. 1. Rom. 2. 1. 1 Cor. 4. 5.
x Prov. 10. 22. & 19. 17. Matt. 7. 2. Mark 4. 24. James 2. 13.

substantial truth in two various forms, designed to remind the world by St. Matthew, that the same God Who had spoken as a Lawgiver and Judge to his forefathers in Mount Sinai now speaks in the Gospel in the same character, and with the same authority and majesty, to all; and that He intends to show by St. Luke, that He condescends to address the Gentile World in the persuasive terms of an Ethical Teacher, and to show the way to attain "the Chief Good," both in time and eternity.

It is observable that the History of the Discourse, as given in both Evangelists, is prefaced and followed by a narrative of Miracles, which were then worked by Him, and are here recorded by the Holy Spirit (we may reasonably suppose), in order to give greater force and solemnity to His Preaching, and to gain readier assent and obedience to it. See further on Matt. vii. 29.

18. ἀπό] restored, for ὑπό, from the best MSS. It is observable here that these persons resorted to Christ for relief; and this agrees better with ἀπό than with ὑπό; for those who were under the dominion of the Evil One, would rather have fled from Him; whereas these persons were driven from Satan to take refuge in Christ.

On the use of ἀπὸ after a part. pass., see Winer, G. G. p. 332.

19. δύναμις παρ' αὐτοῦ ἐξήρχετο] For He was πηγὴ δυνάμεων, the Fountain of Miracles (Theophyl.): the Apostles were only ὀχετοί, or channels.

20, 21. μακάριοι] See on Matt. v. 1—10. After He had chosen His disciples, He ῥυθμίζει αὐτοὺς διὰ τῶν μακαρισμῶν καὶ διὰ τῆς διδασκαλίας. (Theoph.) St. Ambrose says, "Quatuor tantùm beatitudines sanctus Lucas Dominicas posuit, octo verò sanctus Matthæus; in his octo illæ quatuor sunt, et in istis quatuor illæ octo." St. Ambrose therefore thought that this Sermon in St. Luke was the Sermon on the Mount. See note on v. 17 here, and so St. Cyril, pp. 192, 193.

22. ἀφορίσωσιν] 'Excommunicate you for My sake.' See John xvi. 2. Hence ἀφορισμὸς became the ecclesiastical word for 'excommunicate.' See Suicer, Thes. i. p. 600. Bingham, xvi. ii. 6; xvii. 1. Here is a prophecy that some would be excommunicated unjustly; and here is comfort for those who suffer under that ban; e. g. for those who are cut off from communion with a Church which imposes, as terms of communion, Articles of belief not found in Scripture, and unknown to the Primitive Church.

23. χάρητε] Restored from the best MSS. for χαίρετε.

27, 28. ἀγαπᾶτε] See on Matt. v. 44. The connexion is,—"Ye will be persecuted; but your persecutions are trials of your love. Overcome evil with good. Love your enemies, and your persecutions will be occasions to you of glory."

29, 30. τῷ τύπτοντί σε] See on Matt. v. 39, 40, and John xviii. 23.

— χιτῶνα] See on Matt. v. 40.

30. παντὶ δὲ τῷ αἰτοῦντι] See on Matt. v. 42.

35. πλὴν ἀγαπᾶτε] This corrective word πλὴν seems to remind the reader that this report of the Sermon on the Mount is not a full report, and to refer him for its complement to the words of our Lord in St. Matthew, v. 43. St. Luke writes with a knowledge of St. Matthew's Gospel, and supposes that his reader will look to it; or rather, we may say the One Spirit Who inspired all the Evangelists intends us to regard all the Gospels as interwoven with each other, and forming one harmonious whole.

— δανείζετε] See on Matt. v. 42, and Prov. xix. 17, "He that hath pity on the poor, lendeth (δανείζει, LXX) to the Lord;" and see Ecclus. xxix. 2.

ὑμῖν· μέτρον καλὸν, πεπιεσμένον καὶ σεσαλευμένον καὶ ὑπερεκχυνόμενον, δώσουσιν εἰς τὸν κόλπον ὑμῶν· τῷ γὰρ αὐτῷ μέτρῳ ᾧ μετρεῖτε ἀντιμετρηθήσεται ὑμῖν.

(57/V) 39 y Εἶπε δὲ παραβολὴν αὐτοῖς, Μήτι δύναται τυφλὸς τυφλὸν ὁδηγεῖν; οὐχὶ ἀμφότεροι εἰς βόθυνον πεσοῦνται; (58/III) 40 z Οὐκ ἔστι μαθητὴς ὑπὲρ τὸν διδάσκαλον αὐτοῦ· κατηρτισμένος δὲ πᾶς ἔσται ὡς ὁ διδάσκαλος αὐτοῦ. (59/V) 41 a Τί δὲ βλέπεις τὸ κάρφος τὸ ἐν τῷ ὀφθαλμῷ τοῦ ἀδελφοῦ σου, τὴν δὲ δοκὸν τὴν ἐν τῷ ἰδίῳ ὀφθαλμῷ οὐ κατανοεῖς; 42 b *Η πῶς δύνασαι λέγειν τῷ ἀδελφῷ σου, Ἀδελφὲ, ἄφες ἐκβάλω τὸ κάρφος τὸ ἐν τῷ ὀφθαλμῷ σου, αὐτὸς τὴν ἐν τῷ ὀφθαλμῷ σου δοκὸν οὐ βλέπων; Ὑποκριτὰ, ἔκβαλε πρῶτον τὴν δοκὸν ἐκ τοῦ ὀφθαλμοῦ σου, καὶ τότε διαβλέψεις ἐκβαλεῖν τὸ κάρφος τὸ ἐν τῷ ὀφθαλμῷ τοῦ ἀδελφοῦ σου. (60/V) 43 c Οὐ γάρ ἐστι δένδρον καλὸν, ποιοῦν καρπὸν σαπρόν· οὐδὲ δένδρον σαπρὸν ποιοῦν καρπὸν καλόν. (61/V) 44 d Ἕκαστον γὰρ δένδρον ἐκ τοῦ ἰδίου καρποῦ γινώσκεται· οὐ γὰρ ἐξ ἀκανθῶν συλλέγουσι σῦκα, οὐδὲ ἐκ βάτου τρυγῶσι σταφυλήν. (62/V) 45 e Ὁ ἀγαθὸς ἄνθρωπος ἐκ τοῦ ἀγαθοῦ θησαυροῦ τῆς καρδίας αὐτοῦ προφέρει τὸ ἀγαθόν· καὶ ὁ πονηρὸς ἄνθρωπος ἐκ τοῦ πονηροῦ θησαυροῦ τῆς καρδίας αὐτοῦ προφέρει τὸ πονηρόν· ἐκ γὰρ τοῦ περισσεύματος τῆς καρδίας λαλεῖ τὸ στόμα αὐτοῦ.

(63/III) 46 f Τί δέ με καλεῖτε Κύριε Κύριε, καὶ οὐ ποιεῖτε ἃ λέγω; (64/V) 47 g Πᾶς ὁ ἐρχόμενος πρός με, καὶ ἀκούων μου τῶν λόγων καὶ ποιῶν αὐτοὺς, ὑποδείξω ὑμῖν τίνι ἐστὶν ὅμοιος· 48 h ὅμοιός ἐστιν ἀνθρώπῳ οἰκοδομοῦντι οἰκίαν, ὃς ἔσκαψε καὶ ἐβάθυνε, καὶ ἔθηκε θεμέλιον ἐπὶ τὴν πέτραν· πλημμύρας δὲ γενομένης προσέρρηξεν ὁ ποταμὸς τῇ οἰκίᾳ ἐκείνῃ, καὶ οὐκ ἴσχυσε σαλεῦσαι αὐτήν, τεθεμελίωτο γὰρ ἐπὶ τὴν πέτραν. 49 Ὁ δὲ ἀκούσας καὶ μὴ ποιήσας ὅμοιός ἐστιν ἀνθρώπῳ οἰκοδομήσαντι οἰκίαν ἐπὶ τὴν γῆν χωρὶς θεμελίου, ᾗ προσέρρηξεν ὁ ποταμὸς, καὶ εὐθέως ἔπεσε, καὶ ἐγένετο τὸ ῥῆγμα τῆς οἰκίας ἐκείνης μέγα.

VII. (65/III) 1 a Ἐπεὶ δὲ ἐπλήρωσε πάντα τὰ ῥήματα αὐτοῦ εἰς τὰς ἀκοὰς τοῦ λαοῦ, εἰσῆλθεν εἰς Καφαρναούμ. 2 Ἑκατοντάρχου δέ τινος δοῦλος κακῶς ἔχων ἤμελλε τελευτᾶν, ὃς ἦν αὐτῷ ἔντιμος. 3 Ἀκούσας δὲ περὶ τοῦ Ἰησοῦ ἀπέστειλε πρὸς αὐτὸν πρεσβυτέρους τῶν Ἰουδαίων, ἐρωτῶν αὐτὸν ὅπως ἐλθὼν διασώσῃ τὸν δοῦλον αὐτοῦ. 4 Οἱ δὲ παραγενόμενοι πρὸς τὸν Ἰησοῦν παρεκάλουν αὐτὸν σπουδαίως λέγοντες, Ὅτι ἄξιός ἐστιν ᾧ παρέξει τοῦτο· 5 ἀγαπᾷ γὰρ τὸ ἔθνος ἡμῶν, καὶ τὴν συναγωγὴν αὐτὸς ᾠκοδόμησεν ἡμῖν. 6 Ὁ δὲ y Isa. 42. 19. Matt. 15. 14. z Matt. 10. 24. John 13. 16. & 15. 20.

a Matt. 7. 3.
b Prov. 18. 17. Rom. 2. 1, 21.
c Matt. 7. 17. & 12. 33.
d Matt. 7. 16, 17.
e Matt. 12. 34, 35.
f Mal. 1. 6. Matt. 7. 21. & 25. 11. ch. 13. 25. Rom. 2. 13. James 1. 22.
g Matt. 7. 24.
h 2 Pet. 1. 10.
a Matt. 8. 5, &c.

---

39. δώσουσιν] impersonaliter: "Hebræi verba activa numero plurali posita pro passivis accipiunt. Vid. Luc. xii. 48, αἰτήσουσι." Cp. Job vii. 3; xviii. 18. Luke xii. 20. John xv. 6. Rev. xvi. 15. Vorst. de Hebr. p. 577.

— κόλπον] To be understood by reference to the loose raiment worn in the East. It corresponds exactly to the Hebr. חֵק (cheyk), which is used for the bosom or lap, and the fold of the garment upon it. Ps. xxxv. 13; lxxiv. 11; lxxix. 12.

39, 40. μήτι δύναται τυφλὸς—ὁ διδάσκαλος αὐτοῦ] A warning against the sin of claiming absolute dominion over the faith of others on the one hand, and of submitting our consciences and judgments implicitly to the dictates of any human teacher on the other.

41. τί δὲ βλέπεις] See on Matt. vii. 3. The connexion appears to be,—the Blind cannot lead the blind; therefore thou canst not teach others if thou dost not begin with teaching thyself; thou must cast out first the beam out of thine own eye, in order to see clearly to cast out the mote from thy brother's eye. It is vain for thee to pretend to be a good tree by a show of leaves, if thou dost not bring forth good fruit in thine own life. Thou art then a mere leafy fig-tree, and wilt be withered by Christ. (Matt. xxi. 19.) The blind follower will fall into the ditch (i. e. be lost in the gulph of error and of woe), as well as the blind leader. Every one who is κατηρτισμένος, throughly schooled and disciplined by his Master, will be as his Master. He will be κατηρτισμένος εἰς ἀπώλειαν (Rom. ix. 22) if he blindly follows a blind guide. But he will be ἄρτιος, and 'throughly furnished to every good work' (2 Tim. iii. 17), if he follows Christ,—the unerring Guide, the true Master (Matt. xxiii. 8—10), the Light of the World.

44. ἕκαστον δένδρον] See Matt. vii. 16—20.

47—49. πᾶς ὁ ἐρχόμενος] See on Matt. vii. 24 29.

CH. VII. 1. ἐπλήρωσεν εἰς] See on Mark i. 39, κηρύσσων εἰς τ. συναγωγάς. Our ears are like vessels into which Christ's doctrine is poured. It is poured into our hearts through them, and fills them, and their duty is to hold it.

2. ἑκατοντάρχου] See on Matt. viii. 5—10. St. Luke dwells and enlarges on this history as specially instructive and edifying to Gentile soldiers, who might be led thereby not to despise the conquered race of Israel, nor yet to confound Christ and His religion with the tenets and practices of many of the Jewish Teachers, but to seek for divine truth, and cherish it when found (see vv. 3. 7); and to treat their slaves with brotherly love (v. 2), and to apply the lessons learnt in the discipline of the camp (vv. 8, 9) to their own spiritual improvement as soldiers of Christ.

3. ἀπέστειλε] St. Matthew says προσῆλθε, i. e. resorted to Jesus by his messengers; and by his faith, as the faithful woman is said to touch Christ (Matt. ix. 20. Mark v. 30. Luke viii. 45) because she believed, though she only touched the hem of His garment; whereas the crowd who pressed on Him, but did not believe in Him, did not touch Him.

4. παρέξει] Some read παρέξῃ, from A, B, D, L, X; but this form of the conjunctive is doubtful.

5. τὴν συναγωγήν] i. e. he, though a Roman, at his own expense (αὐτὸς) built for us our (τὴν) synagogue,—the synagogue in which we worship; not that there were not many synagogues in so large a city as Capernaum. At Jerusalem there were upwards of 400.

Ἰησοῦς ἐπορεύετο σὺν αὐτοῖς. Ἤδη δὲ αὐτοῦ οὐ μακρὰν ἀπέχοντος ἀπὸ τῆς οἰκίας, ἔπεμψε πρὸς αὐτὸν ὁ ἑκατόνταρχος φίλους λέγων αὐτῷ, Κύριε, μὴ σκύλλου· οὐ γάρ εἰμι ἱκανὸς ἵνα ὑπὸ τὴν στέγην μου εἰσέλθῃς· 7 διὸ οὐδὲ ἐμαυτὸν ἠξίωσα πρός σε ἐλθεῖν· ἀλλὰ εἰπὲ λόγῳ, καὶ ἰαθήσεται ὁ παῖς μου. 8 Καὶ γὰρ ἐγὼ ἄνθρωπός εἰμι ὑπὸ ἐξουσίαν τασσόμενος, ἔχων ὑπ' ἐμαυτὸν στρατιώτας· καὶ λέγω τούτῳ, Πορεύθητι, καὶ πορεύεται· καὶ ἄλλῳ, Ἔρχου, καὶ ἔρχεται· καὶ τῷ δούλῳ μου, Ποίησον τοῦτο, καὶ ποιεῖ. 9 Ἀκούσας δὲ ταῦτα ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἐθαύμασεν αὐτόν· καὶ, στραφεὶς τῷ ἀκολουθοῦντι αὐτῷ ὄχλῳ εἶπε, Λέγω ὑμῖν, οὐδὲ ἐν τῷ Ἰσραὴλ τοσαύτην πίστιν εὗρον. (66/V) 10 Καὶ ὑποστρέψαντες οἱ πεμφθέντες εἰς τὸν οἶκον εὗρον τὸν ἀσθενοῦντα δοῦλον ὑγιαίνοντα.

(67/X) 11 Καὶ ἐγένετο ἐν τῇ ἑξῆς, ἐπορεύετο εἰς πόλιν καλουμένην Naΐν, καὶ συνεπορεύοντο αὐτῷ οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ ἱκανοὶ καὶ ὄχλος πολύς. 12 Ὡς δὲ ἤγγισε τῇ πύλῃ τῆς πόλεως, καὶ ἰδοὺ ἐξεκομίζετο τεθνηκὼς υἱὸς μονογενὴς τῇ μητρὶ αὐτοῦ, καὶ αὐτὴ χήρα· καὶ ὄχλος τῆς πόλεως ἱκανὸς ἦν σὺν αὐτῇ. 13 Καὶ ἰδὼν αὐτὴν ὁ Κύριος ἐσπλαγχνίσθη ἐπ' αὐτῇ, καὶ εἶπεν αὐτῇ, Μὴ κλαῖε.

b Acts 9. 40. 14 [b] Καὶ προσελθὼν ἥψατο τῆς σοροῦ· οἱ δὲ βαστάζοντες ἔστησαν· καὶ εἶπε, Νεανίσκε, σοὶ λέγω, ἐγέρθητι. 15 Καὶ ἀνεκάθισεν ὁ νεκρὸς, καὶ ἤρξατο λαλεῖν· καὶ ἔδωκεν αὐτὸν τῇ μητρὶ αὐτοῦ. 16 c Ἔλαβε δὲ φόβος ἅπαντας, καὶ ἐδόξαζον τὸν Θεὸν λέγοντες, Ὅτι προφήτης μέγας ἐγήγερται ἐν ἡμῖν, καὶ ὅτι ἐπεσκέψατο ὁ Θεὸς τὸν λαὸν αὐτοῦ. (68/X) 17 Καὶ ἐξῆλθεν ὁ λόγος οὗτος ἐν ὅλῃ τῇ Ἰουδαίᾳ περὶ αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἐν πάσῃ τῇ περιχώρῳ.

c Mark 7. 37. ch. 24. 19. John 4. 19. & 6. 14. & 9. 17. ch. 1. 68.

d Matt. 11. 2, &c. 18 [d] Καὶ ἀπήγγειλαν Ἰωάννῃ οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ περὶ πάντων τούτων. (69/V) 19 Καὶ προσκαλεσάμενος δύο τινὰς τῶν μαθητῶν αὐτοῦ ὁ Ἰωάννης ἔπεμψε πρὸς τὸν Ἰησοῦν λέγων, Σὺ εἶ ὁ ἐρχόμενος, ἢ ἄλλον προσδοκῶμεν; 20 Παραγενόμενοι δὲ πρὸς αὐτὸν οἱ ἄνδρες εἶπον, Ἰωάννης ὁ βαπτιστὴς ἀπέσταλκεν ἡμᾶς πρός σε λέγων, Σὺ εἶ ὁ ἐρχόμενος, ἢ ἄλλον προσδοκῶμεν; 21 Ἐν αὐτῇ δὲ τῇ ὥρᾳ ἐθεράπευσε πολλοὺς ἀπὸ νόσων, καὶ μαστίγων, καὶ πνευμάτων πονηρῶν, καὶ τυφλοῖς πολλοῖς ἐχαρίσατο τὸ βλέπειν. 22 Καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Πορευθέντες ἀπαγγείλατε Ἰωάννῃ ἃ εἴδετε καὶ ἠκούσατε· ὅτι

e Isa. 29. 18. & 35. 5. & 42. 7. & 61. 1. Matt. 10. 8. & 11. 4. John 3. 2. & 5. 36. & 10. 25, 36. & 14. 11. Ps. 146. 8. Luke 4. 18. e τυφλοὶ ἀναβλέπουσι, χωλοὶ περιπατοῦσι, λεπροὶ καθαρίζονται, κωφοὶ ἀκούουσι, νεκροὶ ἐγείρονται, πτωχοὶ εὐαγγελίζονται· 23 καὶ μακάριός ἐστιν ὃς ἐὰν μὴ σκανδαλισθῇ ἐν ἐμοί. 24 Ἀπελθόντων δὲ τῶν ἀγγέλων Ἰωάννου, ἤρξατο λέγειν πρὸς τοὺς ὄχλους περὶ Ἰωάννου, Τί ἐξεληλύθατε εἰς τὴν ἔρημον

---

7. λόγῳ] i. e. without coming in person. Cp. the use of λέγων in v. 6.

11. Naΐν] Hebr. נָעִין, so called to this day; from נָאָה (naäh), or נָעִים (naïm), fair. See Lightfoot. Reland, Palæst. lib. iii. p. 804. Near Endor and Kison, two miles from Capernaum (S. Jerome), and on the south of Mount Thabor. Cf. Robinson, Palest. iii. p. 469.

11, 12. ὄχλος—πύλῃ] So that the miracle was done in the sight of numerous spectators. Observe the circumstantial manner in which it is told. The city, the gate, the multitude, the man's age and circumstances, his mother's condition, our Lord's words, the effects on the multitude,—all are specified.

St. Augustine observes (Serm. xcviii.), that of the numerous persons raised to life by Christ, three only are mentioned, as specimens, in the Gospels (cp. John xxi. 25). The widow's son (Luke vii. 11), the daughter of Jairus (Matt. ix. 18. Mark v. 42), and Lazarus (John xi. 44). And after remarking that all our Lord's works of mercy to the body have also a spiritual reference to the soul, he proceeds to consider them as illustrations of Christ's divine power and love in raising the soul, dead in trespasses and sins, from every kind of spiritual death; whether the soul be dead, but not yet carried out, like the daughter of Jairus; or dead and carried out, but not buried, like the widow's son; or dead, carried out, and buried, like Lazarus. He who raised Himself from the dead can raise all from the death of sin. Let none despair.

13. ὁ Κύριος] 'the Lord.' This mode of describing Christ is almost peculiar to St. Luke among the three Synoptical Evangelists. See vii. 31; xi. 39; xii. 42; xvii. 5, 6; xviii. 6; xxii. 31. 61; cp. John iv. 1. It seems to be designed to remind his readers that Jesus was indeed Κύριος, i. e. the Lord JEHOVAH; and that He proved by His mighty works, such as that here described, that He claimed with truth so to be. See above, ii. 11.

It is also a silent evidence that St. Luke's Gospel is later than that of St. Matthew and St. Mark. When St. Luke wrote, it had probably become common in the Church. He generally employs it when, as here, he is about to relate some mighty work done, or some authoritative saying uttered, by Jesus the LORD.

14. ἥψατο τῆς σοροῦ] He touched the dead body, that we may know that His own Body is σῶμα ζωῆς. (Theophyl.)

— Νεανίσκε, σοὶ λέγω] Christ is not, like Elijah, mourning over the son of the widow of Sarepta (1 Kings xvii. 20),—nor, as Elisha, stretching His own body over the dead (2 Kings iv. 34),—nor, as Peter, praying over Tabitha (Acts ix. 40),—but He calls those things that are not as though they were (Rom. iv. 17). He speaks to the dead as living, and raises them by His own Divine word,—I say unto thee, Arise. (Titus Bostr.)

19. σὺ εἶ ὁ ἐρχόμενος] On the design of this inquiry, and on its circumstances (19—23), see on Matt. xi. 2—6.

21. ἐν αὐτῇ δὲ τῇ ὥρᾳ] He knew, as God, what John's design was in sending to Him, and He put it into his heart to send at that time when He Himself was working many miracles, which were the true answer to the question. (Cyril.) St. Basil. Seleuc. p. 180. says ἔργοις χαρίζεται τὴν ἀπόκρισιν. He replies by deeds. Believe your own eyes. They will tell you that I am doing the very works which it was prophesied that "He who should come," i. e. the Messiah, should do (see Isa. xxix. 18, 19), and which are an answer to your question.

24. ἀπελθόντων δέ] On the sense of these verses (24—35) see on Matt. xi. 7—19, and cp. St. Cyril here, ed. Mai, p. 210.

θεάσασθαι; κάλαμον ὑπὸ ἀνέμου σαλευόμενον; 25 ἀλλὰ τί ἐξεληλύθατε ἰδεῖν; ἄνθρωπον ἐν μαλακοῖς ἱματίοις ἠμφιεσμένον; ἰδοὺ, οἱ ἐν ἱματισμῷ ἐνδόξῳ καὶ τρυφῇ ὑπάρχοντες ἐν τοῖς βασιλείοις εἰσίν. 26 Ἀλλὰ τί ἐξεληλύθατε ἰδεῖν; προφήτην; ναὶ, λέγω ὑμῖν, καὶ περισσότερον προφήτου· (70/II) 27 οὗτός ἐστι περὶ οὗ γέγραπται, [f] Ἰδοὺ, ἐγὼ ἀποστέλλω τὸν ἄγγελόν μου πρὸ προσ- f Mal. 3. 1.
ώπου σου, ὃς κατασκευάσει τὴν ὁδόν σου ἔμπροσθέν σου· (71/V) 28 λέγω γὰρ ὑμῖν, μείζων ἐν γεννητοῖς γυναικῶν προφήτης Ἰωάννου τοῦ βαπτιστοῦ οὐδείς ἐστιν· ὁ δὲ μικρότερος ἐν τῇ βασιλείᾳ τοῦ Θεοῦ μείζων αὐτοῦ ἐστι· (72/X) 29 καὶ πᾶς ὁ λαὸς ἀκούσας καὶ οἱ τελῶναι ἐδικαίωσαν τὸν Θεὸν, βαπτισθέντες τὸ βάπτισμα Ἰωάννου· 30 οἱ δὲ Φαρισαῖοι καὶ οἱ νομικοὶ τὴν βουλὴν τοῦ Θεοῦ ἠθέτησαν εἰς ἑαυτοὺς, μὴ βαπτισθέντες ὑπ' αὐτοῦ. (73/V) 31 [g] Τίνι g Matt. 11. 16, &c.
οὖν ὁμοιώσω τοὺς ἀνθρώπους τῆς γενεᾶς ταύτης; καὶ τίνι εἰσὶν ὅμοιοι; 32 Ὅμοιοι εἰσὶ παιδίοις τοῖς ἐν ἀγορᾷ καθημένοις, καὶ προσφωνοῦσιν ἀλλήλοις καὶ λέγουσιν, Ηὐλήσαμεν ὑμῖν, καὶ οὐκ ὠρχήσασθε, ἐθρηνήσαμεν ὑμῖν, καὶ οὐκ ἐκλαύσατε. 33 Ἐλήλυθε γὰρ Ἰωάννης ὁ βαπτιστὴς μήτε ἄρτον ἐσθίων μήτε οἶνον πίνων· καὶ λέγετε, Δαιμόνιον ἔχει· 34 ἐλήλυθεν ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἐσθίων καὶ πίνων· καὶ λέγετε, Ἰδοὺ ἄνθρωπος φάγος καὶ οἰνοπότης, φίλος τελωνῶν καὶ ἁμαρτωλῶν. 35 Καὶ ἐδικαιώθη ἡ σοφία ἀπὸ τῶν τέκνων αὐτῆς πάντων.

(74/I) 36 [h] Ἠρώτα δέ τις αὐτὸν τῶν Φαρισαίων ἵνα φάγῃ μετ' αὐτοῦ· καὶ εἰσελθὼν h Matt. 26. 6. Mark 14. 3. John 11. 2. & 12. 3.
εἰς τὴν οἰκίαν τοῦ Φαρισαίου ἀνεκλίθη. 37 Καὶ ἰδοὺ, γυνὴ ἐν τῇ πόλει ἥτις ἦν — κάλαμον ὑπὸ ἀνέμου σαλευόμενον] No; so far from being a reed shaken by the wind of popular opinion, he is a rock, which stands unmoved though beaten by storms of suffering. (See Cyril.)

28. προφήτης] Some MSS. and Editors omit προφήτης; but it appears to be emphatic. There is a contrast between the προφῆται and those ἐν τῇ βασιλείᾳ τοῦ Θεοῦ,—i. e. those who partake of the full privileges of the Gospel in the Christian Church. And there is also a contrast between γεννητοὶ γυναικῶν (v. 28) and those who are born of water and the Spirit (cp. John i. 13; iii. 5). John, by coming after the other Prophets, and by his nearness to Christ, was greater than all the Prophets. "Major Prophetâ, quia finis Prophetarum," says St. Ambrose. Yet, by being a prophet and forerunner of Christ, he was less than those who saw the whole Gospel scheme, of which he had been the Herald and Precursor; as the temple of Zorobabel was more glorious than that of Solomon,—not in itself, for it was less magnificent (Ez. iii. 12), but because Christ would appear in it (Hag. ii. 7. 9). Not therefore that John in himself was less; but that Christ and the Gospel are greater than all. And by comparing them with John, He shows us the greatness of the privileges we enjoy. "For," says St. Cyril, pp. 212—214, "although we may be inferior in holiness to some under the Law, whom John represents, yet now, after the Passion, and Resurrection, and Ascension, and Day of Pentecost, we have greater blessings in Christ, being made, through Him, partakers of the Divine Nature; and therefore John confessed that he needed to be baptized of Christ (Matt. iii. 14), and from the days of John the kingdom of heaven suffers violence (Matt. xi. 12)." Cp. below, x. 23, 24. Matt. xiii. 16, 17. Eph. iii. 5. Heb. xi. 13.

29, 30. καὶ πᾶς—αὐτοῦ] A continuation of the discourse of Christ. The words εἶπε δὲ ὁ Κύριος, inserted in some editions before τίνι οὖν, are not in the best MSS.

29. ἐδικαίωσαν τὸν Θεόν] They owned God to be just, i. e. holy and good. The use of the word δικαιόω, as employed in the New Testament for to consider as just and holy, to pronounce such, to acquit,—is derived from the Septuagint (see Gen. xxxviii. 26. Deut. xxv. 1. Ps. l. 5. Isa. v. 23, and passim), and is very different from the sense in which it commonly stands in classical authors, where it signifies, when applied to a person, to pronounce sentence upon; and when it refers to a thing, to consider it right. Cp. below, v. 35, with Bengel's note, and the Epistle to the Romans, passim. "Aperuit sanctus Lucas," says St. Ambrose here, "specialibus additis quod quasi generalibus sanctus Matthæus subobscurum reliquerat" (Matt. xi. 19). The Wisdom of which St. Matthew speaks is, as St. Luke here explains, the Wisdom of God—in the Baptism of John as well as the Mission of Christ. "Non contemnamus igitur, sicut Pharisæi, consilium Dei."

30. εἰς ἑαυτούς] i. e. "erga se ipsos."

31. τίνι οὖν ὁμοιώσω] See on Matt. xi. 16—19. After that section St. Matthew recounts our Lord's condemnation of the Galilean cities Chorazin, Bethsaida, Capernaum, in which His mighty works (above described, v. 22) had been wrought.

That censure, conveying a salutary warning to those at Jerusalem and in Palestine, is not repeated by St. Luke, writing for Gentile use.

35. καί] The summing up of the whole case by Christ.

36—50. γυνή] On these verses see Greg. M. Hom. in Evang. xxxiii. St. Luke now proceeds to insert a narrative (vii. 36—50) not found in any other Evangelist, and full of tenderness and encouragement to the Gentile world, which might see a beautiful picture of itself in the Woman that was a sinner and despised by Simon the Pharisee, but blessed on her repentance by Christ, and might thus be taught to love much, and to present those members of the body (Rom. xii. 1) and faculties of the soul and estate, represented by her hair, her tears, and her ointment, which had been before abused to the service of Sin and Satan, as living sacrifices to Christ. Her eyes, which once longed after earthly joys, she now consumes in penitential tears; her hair, which she once displayed for idle ornament, she now uses to wipe the feet of Christ; with her lips, which once uttered vain things, she kisses those holy feet; the costly ointment, with which she once perfumed her body, she now offers to God. See Rom. vi. 19, "As ye have yielded your members servants to uncleanness, so now yield your members servants to righteousness unto holiness." Cp. St. Amphiloch. pp. 67—85. Gregor. Hom. 33 in Evangelia. St. Ambrose applies this history thus: "Expande capillos, sterne ante Christum corporis tui dignitates. . . . Accurre ad pedes. Ubicunque audieris Christi nomen, accurre. Lacrymis confitere delicta . . . si desideras gratiam, caritatem auge, mitte in corpus Jesu fidem resurrectionis, odorem Ecclesiæ, Caritatis unguentum. Non unguentum mulieris Dominus, sed caritatem probavit. Pecuniam conferas pauperi, ut deferas Christo. Corpus ejus Ecclesia est."

Some ancient Expositors (particularly of the Western Church) suppose this woman to have been Mary Magdalene, and that she was the same as Mary the sister of Lazarus, who anointed our Lord in the house of Simon of Bethany (Matt. xxvi. 7. Mark xiv. 3. John xii. 3). But the reasons adduced for this supposition (which may be seen in à Lapide here) are not satisfactory. "Potest non eadem esse," says St. Ambrose here. St. Augustine has a sermon on the subject (Serm. xcix.), and does not connect her with any other person. St. Chrysostom supposes that there were two different women who anointed Christ. Origen, Theophyl., and Euthymius that there were three.

It seems certain that there were at least two, viz. this woman in St. Luke, and Mary of Bethany; and that the name of the woman here has been purposely concealed by St. Luke from considerations of delicacy, modesty, and tenderness to her. Mary Magdalene is mentioned by name in the next chapter (viii. 2); and if the woman in this chapter had been Mary Magdalene, and if it had been intended that she should be known to be so, some reference, it is probable, would have there been made to this act.

It is to be remembered that the use of unguent (μύρον), especially at feasts, was of common occurrence in the East (Eccles. ix. 8. Cant. i. 3; iv. 10. Amos vi. 6), and that therefore it is probable that Our Lord was often anointed. He was anointed at banquets, and for His burial (Matt. xxvi. 12). Women prepared spices and ointments for Him in the tomb (Luke xxiii. 56). Their faith and love was devoutly exercised in anointing the body of Him Who is the Anointed of God.

37. ἐν τῇ πόλει] Her repentance was as public as her sin.

ἁμαρτωλὸς καὶ ἐπιγνοῦσα ὅτι ἀνάκειται ἐν τῇ οἰκίᾳ τοῦ Φαρισαίου, κομίσασα ἀλάβαστρον μύρου, 38 καὶ στᾶσα παρὰ τοὺς πόδας αὐτοῦ ὀπίσω κλαίουσα, ἤρξατο βρέχειν τοὺς πόδας αὐτοῦ τοῖς δάκρυσι, καὶ ταῖς θριξὶ τῆς κεφαλῆς αὐτῆς ἐξέμασσε, καὶ κατεφίλει τοὺς πόδας αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἤλειφε τῷ μύρῳ.
i ch. 15. 2. Gen. 18. 4. & 19. 2. Judg. 19. 21. 1 Sam 25. 41. 1 Tim. 5. 10.
39 i Ἰδὼν δὲ ὁ Φαρισαῖος ὁ καλέσας αὐτὸν εἶπεν ἐν ἑαυτῷ λέγων, Οὗτος εἰ ἦν προφήτης ἐγίνωσκεν ἂν τίς καὶ ποταπὴ ἡ γυνὴ ἥτις ἅπτεται αὐτοῦ, ὅτι ἁμαρτωλός ἐστι.
40 Καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπε πρὸς αὐτὸν, Σίμων, ἔχω σοί τι εἰπεῖν.
Ὁ δέ φησι, Διδάσκαλε, εἰπέ. 41 Δύο χρεωφειλέται ἦσαν δανειστῇ τινι· ὁ εἷς ὤφειλε δηνάρια πεντακόσια, ὁ δὲ ἕτερος πεντήκοντα· 42 μὴ ἐχόντων δὲ αὐτῶν ἀποδοῦναι, ἀμφοτέροις ἐχαρίσατο· τίς οὖν αὐτῶν, εἰπὲ, πλεῖον αὐτὸν ἀγαπήσει; 43 Ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ ὁ Σίμων εἶπεν, Ὑπολαμβάνω ὅτι ᾧ τὸ πλεῖον ἐχαρίσατο.
Ὁ δὲ εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Ὀρθῶς ἔκρινας. 44 Καὶ στραφεὶς πρὸς τὴν γυναῖκα τῷ Σίμωνι ἔφη, Βλέπεις ταύτην τὴν γυναῖκα; εἰσῆλθον σοῦ εἰς τὴν οἰκίαν, ὕδωρ ἐπὶ τοὺς πόδας μου οὐκ ἔδωκας, αὕτη δὲ τοῖς δάκρυσιν ἔβρεξε μοῦ τοὺς πόδας, καὶ ταῖς θριξὶν αὐτῆς ἐξέμαξε· 45 φίλημα μοὶ οὐκ ἔδωκας, αὕτη δὲ ἀφ' ἧς k Ps. 23. 5. εἰσῆλθον οὐ διέλιπε καταφιλοῦσα μοῦ τοὺς πόδας· 46 k ἐλαίῳ τὴν κεφαλήν μου οὐκ ἤλειψας, αὕτη δὲ μύρῳ ἤλειψε μοῦ τοὺς πόδας. 47 Οὗ χάριν λέγω σοι, ἀφέωνται αἱ ἁμαρτίαι αὐτῆς αἱ πολλαὶ, ὅτι ἠγάπησε πολύ· ᾧ δὲ ὀλίγον ἀφίεται,

---

37. ἣν ἁμαρτωλός] Not who was then, but who was once a sinner. St. Aug. says, "Accessit ad Dominum immunda ut rediret munda" (Serm. xcix.). But he means that she had not been pronounced clean—not openly forgiven by Christ; for he adds, "accessit confessa, ut rediret professa."

— ἀλάβαστρον μύρου] "ἀλάβαστρου, vas quod ansâ caret" (Valck.); or, "prehensu difficile ob lævitatem" (Schleusn.) Alabaster,—generally used for vessels holding and preserving ointment. (Plin. N. H. iii. 3. Bede. See on Matt. xxvi. 7.)

Why did this woman come? In order to show her love for Christ; to testify her sorrow for sin; and to obtain Absolution from Him. Many came to Christ for bodily health. But we do not read of any other who came to Him for remission of sin. She was a singular example of faith and love and repentance, and received a special reward.

38. πόδας] His feet—mentioned thrice, to show her humility and reverence. She did not venture to anoint his head.

— δάκρυσι] "Lacrymæ, aquarum pretiosissimæ." (Beng.)

— ταῖς θριξί] "Passis, ut in luctu." (Beng.)

Our Lord was reclining on a couch at the table, His feet being bare, and the woman came behind Him, and began to bathe His feet with her tears and wipe them with her hair.

The penitent woman stood behind Him; perhaps from a feeling of sorrow and shame she could not bear to confront His Divine Eye, before she had received a declaration of forgiveness, for which she came. Cp. Cyril here, p. 217.

39. οὗτος εἰ ἦν προφήτης] If He were a prophet He would have known that she is unclean; and knowing that she is unclean, He would not have suffered Himself to be polluted by her touch. (St. Aug. Serm. xcix. Cp. Isa. lxv. 5.)

Christ refutes the supposition of Simon, and proves Himself more than a Prophet; and that He did know who and what manner of person the woman was, by reading Simon's heart, and by replying to his thoughts, and by forgiving the woman's sins.

40. ἀποκριθεὶς ὁ Ἰησοῦς] "Audivit," says St. Aug., Serm. xcix., "Pharisæum cogitantem; ipsum pascentem esuriebat, ipsum sanare cupiebat."

— σοί] Emphatic—to thee, who hast harboured injurious thoughts of Me, I have something to say.

41. χρεωφειλέται] A, D, E, F, G, L, and others have χρεοφειλέται, but see Lobeck, Phryn. p. 691. Winer, p. 43.

43. τὸ πλεῖον] the greater sum, of the two. There is a contrast between the two sums as well as the two debtors.

44. εἰσῆλθον σοῦ] σοῦ is emphatic. I came into thy house, and therefore might justly expect marks of hospitable courtesy from thee; and what thou, my host, didst not do for Me, she, a stranger, whom thou condemnest as a sinner, has more than supplied.

— ὕδωρ, κ.τ.λ.] Thou hast not shown Me the ordinary tokens of hospitality (see Gen. xviii. 4; xxiv. 32. Judges xix. 21. 1 Sam. xxv. 41), but she has gone far beyond them.

— μοῦ] of Me—thy guest, and yet treated by thee with indifference. Observe the contrast in the position of the pronoun, τὴν κεφαλήν μου and μοῦ τοὺς πόδας, repeated thrice. So in v. 45, μοί—my face,—contrasted with feet.

46. μύρῳ] More costly than ἔλαιον. There is a contrast between the head and the feet; between oil and ointment; between Simon and the woman; between what was not done by the one, and what was done by the other.

47. οὗ χάριν λέγω σοι] "Wherefore I say to thee (this appears to be the true construction), her sins have been forgiven—"

A debt is something which is not only claimed by the lender, but owned to be due by the borrower. And applied spiritually, as here, it not only represents sin committed, but sin confessed. It betokens deep consciousness, hearty conviction, and humble acknowledgment of sin. And this inward feeling and internal act arises from a lively faith in God's holiness, justice, and mercy. And therefore Christ, who had read her heart before she entered the house, states the formal cause of the woman's justification by saying, "Thy faith hath saved thee" (v. 50). This faith worketh by love (Gal. v. 6); it worketh by fervent love to God, Who has been offended. Without such love there can be no true Repentance, and consequently no Forgiveness. And such Love sends the sinner to Christ; and prompts him to acts of deep contrition and self-abasement and reverential affection to Christ, in the hope of receiving a gracious declaration of pardon from His lips.

To apply this to the present case. Simon the Pharisee dwelt in his mind on the woman's sins. But our Lord draws his attention to her sense of her sins, and to her godly sorrow for them. She owes much; but she owns that she owes much, and she comes to Christ in faith, hope, and love. On the other hand, Simon himself is little conscious of his sins, and therefore is forgiven little. She feels the greatness of her sins, and the largeness of God's mercy in Christ, and therefore loves much. The other knows little of his own sinfulness, and has little forgiven, and loves little. Her love is love for mercy promised; it is love for pardon already anticipated by faith; it shows itself in acts of love to Christ. Her sins are indeed many (v. 47), but she is forgiven because she is very loving,—that is, because she loved and continues to love (v. 47); because she has the habit of love, or, in the words of the original, ὅτι ἠγάπησε πολύ. This is a frequent sense of the Aorist in the N. T. See Matt. iii. 17, ἐν ᾧ εὐδόκησα,—i. e. 'in Whom I was and am well pleased.' So Matt. xxiii. 2, ἐκάθισαν, 'sat and do sit.' Luke i. 47, ἠγαλλίασε. 1 John iv. 8, ἔγνω, and here, v. 44, ὀρθῶς ἔκρινας. See Gluss. Phil. S. p. 412. "Therefore her faith hath saved her, and she may depart in peace."

But he who has little forgiven him—that is, he who is little sensible of his sins, and of the love of God in pardoning sin (and he cannot have forgiveness without such sense of sin and of God's love),—he loves little; and because he loves little, therefore little is forgiven him.

— αἱ ἁμαρτίαι αὐ. αἱ π.] Observe αἱ repeated,—her sins, which thou sayest are many, and which are many, are forgiven.

47. ᾧ δὲ ὀλίγον ἀφίεται, ὀλίγον ἀγαπᾷ] He who has little sense of his debt, and of God's goodness in the work of redemption and grace, loves little. If he "who has little forgiven loves little," says St. Augustine (Serm. xcix.), "some one may object, 'oportet ut multùm peccemus,—ut multùm debeamus, quod nobis dimitti cupiamus, ut Dimissorem magnorum peccatorum multùm diligamus . . . . . Dictum est hoc à Christo propter Pharisæum, qui vel nulla vel pauca se putabat habere peccata . . . . . O Pharisæe, parùm diligis, quia parùm tibi dimitti suspicaris; non quia parùm dimittitur, sed quia parùm putas quod dimittitur.'"

All the preventing grace by which the Pharisee was restrained from the sins which he condemned in the woman was from God. All his forgiveness for sins of omission and commission, his desire and hope of forgiveness, was from God; but he had little sense of this, and therefore he loved little.

ὀλίγον ἀγαπᾷ. 48 [l] Εἶπε δὲ αὐτῇ, Ἀφέωνταί σου αἱ ἁμαρτίαι. 49 [m] Καὶ ἤρξαντο οἱ συνανακείμενοι λέγειν ἐν ἑαυτοῖς, Τίς οὗτός ἐστιν ὃς καὶ ἁμαρτίας ἀφίησιν; 50 [n] Εἶπε δὲ πρὸς τὴν γυναῖκα, Ἡ πίστις σου σέσωκέ σε· πορεύου εἰς εἰρήνην.

l Matt. 9. 2.
m Matt. 9. 3. Mark 2. 7.
n Matt. 9. 22. Mark 5. 34. & 10. 52. ch. 8. 48. & 18. 42.

VIII. (75/X) 1 Καὶ ἐγένετο ἐν τῷ καθεξῆς καὶ αὐτὸς διώδευε κατὰ πόλιν καὶ κώμην κηρύσσων καὶ εὐαγγελιζόμενος τὴν βασιλείαν τοῦ Θεοῦ, καὶ οἱ δώδεκα σὺν αὐτῷ, 2 [a] καὶ γυναῖκές τινες, αἳ ἦσαν τεθεραπευμέναι ἀπὸ πνευμάτων πονηρῶν καὶ ἀσθενειῶν, Μαρία ἡ καλουμένη Μαγδαληνὴ ἀφ' ἧς δαιμόνια ἑπτὰ ἐξεληλύθει, 3 καὶ Ἰωάννα γυνὴ Χουζᾶ ἐπιτρόπου Ἡρῴδου, καὶ Σουσάννα, καὶ ἕτεραι πολλαί, αἵτινες διηκόνουν αὐτῷ ἀπὸ τῶν ὑπαρχόντων αὐταῖς.

a Matt. 27. 55, 56. Mark 16. 9. John 19. 25.

(76/II) 4 [b] Συνιόντος δὲ ὄχλου πολλοῦ, καὶ τῶν κατὰ πόλιν ἐπιπορευομένων πρὸς αὐτὸν, εἶπε διὰ παραβολῆς, 5 Ἐξῆλθεν ὁ σπείρων τοῦ σπεῖραι τὸν σπόρον αὐτοῦ· καὶ, ἐν τῷ σπείρειν αὐτὸν, ὃ μὲν ἔπεσε παρὰ τὴν ὁδὸν, καὶ κατεπατήθη, καὶ τὰ πετεινὰ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ κατέφαγεν αὐτό. 6 Καὶ ἕτερον ἔπεσεν ἐπὶ τὴν πέτραν· καὶ φυὲν ἐξηράνθη, διὰ τὸ μὴ ἔχειν ἰκμάδα. 7 Καὶ ἕτερον ἔπεσεν ἐν μέσῳ τῶν ἀκανθῶν· καὶ συμφυεῖσαι αἱ ἄκανθαι ἀπέπνιξαν αὐτό. 8 Καὶ ἕτερον ἔπεσεν εἰς τὴν γῆν τὴν ἀγαθήν· καὶ φυὲν ἐποίησε καρπὸν ἑκατονταπλασίονα. Ταῦτα λέγων ἐφώνει, Ὁ ἔχων ὦτα ἀκούειν, ἀκουέτω. 9 Ἐπηρώτων δὲ αὐτὸν οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ λέγοντες, τίς εἴη ἡ παραβολὴ αὕτη. (77/I) 10 Ὁ δὲ εἶπεν, Ὑμῖν δέδοται γνῶναι τὰ μυστήρια τῆς βασιλείας τοῦ Θεοῦ, τοῖς δὲ λοιποῖς ἐν παραβολαῖς, ἵνα βλέποντες μὴ βλέπωσι, καὶ ἀκούοντες μὴ συνιῶσιν. 11 [c] Ἔστι δὲ αὕτη ἡ παραβολή· ὁ σπόρος ἐστὶν ὁ λόγος τοῦ Θεοῦ· (78/II) 12 οἱ δὲ παρὰ τὴν ὁδὸν εἰσὶν οἱ ἀκούοντες· εἶτα ἔρχεται ὁ Διάβολος καὶ αἴρει τὸν λόγον ἀπὸ τῆς καρδίας αὐτῶν, ἵνα μὴ πιστεύσαντες σωθῶσιν. 13 Οἱ δὲ ἐπὶ τῆς πέτρας, οἳ ὅταν ἀκούσωσι μετὰ χαρᾶς δέχονται τὸν λόγον, καὶ οὗτοι ῥίζαν οὐκ ἔχουσιν, οἳ πρὸς καιρὸν πιστεύουσι, καὶ ἐν καιρῷ πειρασμοῦ ἀφίστανται. 14 Τὸ δὲ εἰς τὰς ἀκάνθας πεσὸν, οὗτοί εἰσιν οἱ ἀκούσαντες, καὶ ὑπὸ μεριμνῶν καὶ πλούτου καὶ ἡδονῶν τοῦ βίου, πορευόμενοι συμπνίγονται, καὶ οὐ τελεσφοροῦσι. 15 Τὸ δὲ ἐν τῇ καλῇ γῇ, οὗτοί εἰσιν οἵτινες ἐν καρδίᾳ καλῇ καὶ ἀγαθῇ ἀκούσαντες τὸν λόγον κατέχουσι, καὶ καρποφοροῦσιν ἐν ὑπομονῇ. (79/II) 16 Οὐδεὶς δὲ λύχνον ἅψας καλύπτει αὐτὸν σκεύει, ἢ ὑποκάτω κλίνης τίθησιν· ἀλλ' ἐπὶ λυχνίας ἐπιτίθησι, ἵνα οἱ εἰσπορευόμενοι βλέπωσι τὸ φῶς. (80/II) 17 Οὐ γάρ

b Matt. 13. 2, &c. Mark 4. 1, &c.

c Matt. 13. 18, &c. Mark 4. 12, &c. James 1. 21.

The dative ᾧ may be rendered 'in cujus æstimatione.' (See Matth. Gr. Gr. 389.) Soph. Antig. 904, καί τοί σ' ἐγὼ 'τίμησα τοῖς φρονοῦσιν εὖ,—i. e. eorum judicio; and we may compare our Lord's saying, "I am not come to call the righteous (i. e. those who think themselves such), but sinners (i. e. those who own themselves such) to repentance." (Matt. ix. 13.)

St. Greg. M. (in Hom. xxxiii.) applies this History to Christ's dealings with the Jews and Gentiles. "Quem namque Pharisæus designat de falsâ justitiâ præsumens, nisi Judaicum populum? Quem peccatrix mulier, sed ad vestigia Domini veniens, et plorans, nisi conversam Gentilitatem designat? Nos ergo, nos illa mulier expressit; si toto corde ad Dominum post peccata redeamus, si ejus pœnitentiæ luctus imitemur . . . Plus pœnitens mulier Dominum pascebat intus, quam Pharisæus foris." See also preceding note.

48. ἀφέωνταί σου αἱ ἁμαρτίαι] "Etiam in mensâ Salvator usus est clavibus." (Bengel.) A declaration of pardon, already anticipated by faith (see vv. 42. 50). Christ not only gives general assurances of mercy, producing a feeling of faith, hope, and comfort, in the penitent sinner's soul; but He has provided public declarations of pardon for the contrite sinner, by the ministry of Absolution, and by the Holy Eucharist, sealing the pardon visibly in the sight of others (even such as Simon and his guests, who murmur at Christ's mercy and despise the penitent sinner), and restoring the penitent to the communion of the Church.

49. τίς οὗτός ἐστιν ὃς καὶ ἁμαρτίας ἀφίησιν] No man can forgive sins; but Christ, as God, forgives sins by those means which He has instituted for that purpose. St. Aug. Serm. xcix., "Mundatio est in baptismo, non ex ministrorum meritis sed Dei Gratiâ." Cp. on Matt. ix. 6.

50. ἡ πίστις σου] Thy faith, which anticipated pardon from Me, and brought thee to Me with public signs of penitence and love.

CH. VIII. 2. δαιμόνια ἑπτά] seven. See below, xi. 26, and on Mary Magdalene, Mark xvi. 9, and Matt. xv. 39.

3. διηκόνουν αὐτῷ] Many MSS. (e. g. B, D, E, F, G, H, K, S, V) and Editors have αὐτοῖς here. It may be the true reading; but αὐτῷ seems preferable. What was done to them was, in fact, done to Him, and for His sake. Perhaps αὐτῷ may have been altered into αὐτοῖς, because it seemed unlikely that He would have need of many (πολλαί) to minister to Him. In the next chapter (ix. 14—17) the Evangelist relates that our Lord fed five thousand men with five loaves and two fishes. But He never exerted His Divine Power to minister to His own daily needs. He allowed women to minister to Him of their substance. He gave them the blessed privilege of being God's almoners to Him; of being ministerial to the sustenance of that blessed Body and Blood, and to the nourishment of that holy Flesh which redeemed and quickens the world.

He dealt with His Apostles as with Himself. In the next chapter He gives them power to work miracles (ix. 1—3); but He never authorized them to use that miraculous power in providing for themselves. After the Resurrection (when their ministerial duties were in abeyance) they went a fishing (John xxi. 3), and St. Paul worked with his own hands. (Acts xviii. 3; xx. 34. 1 Cor. ix. 12.) "The labourer is worthy of his hire," and "the Lord both ordained that they who preach the Gospel should live of the Gospel." (Luke x. 7. 1 Cor. ix. 14.) The Teacher's needs are designed to be the trial of the people's love. God has thus offered the People a share in the Pastor's glory. For he that receiveth a Prophet in the name of a Prophet shall receive a Prophet's reward. (Matt. x. 41.)

4—15. On this Parable see the Homily of Greg. M. in Evang. i. 15, p. 1489.

5. ἐξῆλθεν ὁ σπείρων] The Sower, emphatically so—Christ. See on Matt. xiii. 1—9.

6. τὴν πέτραν] i. e. the rocky soil, in contradistinction to any other; and therefore St. Matthew (xiii. 5) has here τὰ πετρώδη, and St. Mark (iv. 5) has τὸ πετρῶδες. See on Matt. v. 1, τὸ ὄρος, the mountainous district as contrasted with the city and plain; and τὴν ἔρημον, Matt. iv. 1; xxiv. 26. τοῖς ἐρήμοις, Luke i. 80.

10. ἵνα βλέποντες] See on Mark iv. 12.

11. ἔστι δὲ αὕτη] See on Matt. xiii. 19.

ἐστι κρυπτὸν, ὃ οὐ φανερὸν γενήσεται· οὐδὲ ἀπόκρυφον, ὃ οὐ γνωσθήσεται καὶ εἰς φανερὸν ἔλθῃ. (81/V) 18 Βλέπετε οὖν πῶς ἀκούετε· ὃς γὰρ ἂν ἔχῃ, δοθήσεται αὐτῷ· καὶ ὃς ἂν μὴ ἔχῃ, καὶ ὃ δοκεῖ ἔχειν ἀρθήσεται ἀπ' αὐτοῦ.

d Matt. 12. 46, &c. Mark 3. 31, &c.

(82/II) 19 d Παρεγένοντο δὲ πρὸς αὐτὸν ἡ μήτηρ καὶ οἱ ἀδελφοὶ αὐτοῦ, καὶ οὐκ ἠδύναντο συντυχεῖν αὐτῷ διὰ τὸν ὄχλον· 20 καὶ ἀπηγγέλη αὐτῷ λεγόντων, Ἡ μήτηρ σου καὶ οἱ ἀδελφοί σου ἑστήκασιν ἔξω, ἰδεῖν σε θέλοντες· 21 ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπε πρὸς αὐτοὺς, Μήτηρ μου καὶ ἀδελφοί μου οὗτοί εἰσιν, οἱ τὸν λόγον τοῦ Θεοῦ ἀκούοντες καὶ ποιοῦντες αὐτόν.

e Matt. 8. 18, &c. Mark 4. 35, &c.

(83/II) 22 e Καὶ ἐγένετο ἐν μιᾷ τῶν ἡμερῶν καὶ αὐτὸς ἐνέβη εἰς πλοῖον καὶ οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ, καὶ εἶπε πρὸς αὐτοὺς, Διέλθωμεν εἰς τὸ πέραν τῆς λίμνης· καὶ ἀνήχθησαν. 23 Πλεόντων δὲ αὐτῶν ἀφύπνωσε· καὶ κατέβη λαῖλαψ ἀνέμου εἰς τὴν λίμνην, καὶ συνεπληροῦντο, καὶ ἐκινδύνευον. 24 Προσελθόντες δὲ διήγειραν αὐτὸν λέγοντες, Ἐπιστάτα, ἐπιστάτα, ἀπολλύμεθα. Ὁ δὲ ἐγερθεὶς ἐπετίμησε τῷ ἀνέμῳ καὶ τῷ κλύδωνι τοῦ ὕδατος· καὶ ἐπαύσαντο, καὶ ἐγένετο γαλήνη. 25 Εἶπε δὲ αὐτοῖς, Ποῦ ἡ πίστις ὑμῶν; Φοβηθέντες δὲ ἐθαύμασαν λέγοντες πρὸς ἀλλήλους, Τίς ἄρα οὗτός ἐστιν, ὅτι καὶ τοῖς ἀνέμοις ἐπιτάσσει καὶ τῷ ὕδατι, καὶ ὑπακούουσιν αὐτῷ;

f Matt. 8. 28, &c. Mark 5. 1, &c.

26 f Καὶ κατέπλευσαν εἰς τὴν χώραν τῶν Γαδαρηνῶν, ἥτις ἐστὶν ἀντιπέραν τῆς Γαλιλαίας. 27 Ἐξελθόντι δὲ αὐτῷ ἐπὶ τὴν γῆν ὑπήντησεν αὐτῷ ἀνήρ τις ἐκ τῆς πόλεως, ὃς εἶχε δαιμόνια ἐκ χρόνων ἱκανῶν, καὶ ἱμάτιον οὐκ ἐνεδιδύσκετο, καὶ ἐν οἰκίᾳ οὐκ ἔμενεν, ἀλλ' ἐν τοῖς μνήμασιν. 28 Ἰδὼν δὲ τὸν Ἰησοῦν καὶ ἀνακράξας προσέπεσεν αὐτῷ, καὶ φωνῇ μεγάλῃ εἶπε, Τί ἐμοὶ καὶ σοὶ, Ἰησοῦ, Υἱὲ τοῦ Θεοῦ τοῦ ὑψίστου; δέομαί σου, μή με βασανίσῃς· 29 παρήγγελλε γὰρ τῷ πνεύματι τῷ ἀκαθάρτῳ ἐξελθεῖν ἀπὸ τοῦ ἀνθρώπου· πολλοῖς γὰρ χρόνοις συνηρπάκει αὐτὸν, καὶ ἐδεσμεῖτο ἁλύσεσι καὶ πέδαις φυλασσόμενος, καὶ διαῤῥήσσων τὰ δεσμὰ ἠλαύνετο ὑπὸ τοῦ δαίμονος εἰς τὰς ἐρήμους. 30 Ἐπηρώτησε δὲ αὐτὸν ὁ Ἰησοῦς λέγων, Τί σοι ἐστὶν ὄνομα; Ὁ δὲ εἶπε, Λεγεών, ὅτι δαιμόνια πολλὰ εἰσῆλθεν εἰς αὐτόν. 31 Καὶ παρεκάλει αὐτὸν ἵνα μὴ ἐπιτάξῃ αὐτοῖς εἰς τὴν ἄβυσσον ἀπελθεῖν. 32 Ἦν δὲ ἐκεῖ ἀγέλη χοίρων ἱκανῶν βοσκομένων ἐν τῷ ὄρει· καὶ παρεκάλουν αὐτὸν ἵνα ἐπιτρέψῃ αὐτοῖς εἰς ἐκείνους εἰσελθεῖν· καὶ ἐπέτρεψεν αὐτοῖς. 33 Ἐξελθόντα δὲ τὰ δαιμόνια ἀπὸ τοῦ ἀνθρώπου εἰσῆλθον εἰς τοὺς χοίρους· καὶ ὥρμησεν ἡ ἀγέλη κατὰ τοῦ κρημνοῦ εἰς τὴν λίμνην, καὶ ἀπεπνίγη. 34 Ἰδόντες δὲ οἱ βόσκοντες τὸ γεγονὸς ἔφυγον, καὶ ἀπήγγειλαν εἰς τὴν πόλιν καὶ εἰς τοὺς ἀγρούς. 35 Ἐξῆλθον δὲ ἰδεῖν τὸ γεγονός· καὶ ἦλθον πρὸς τὸν Ἰησοῦν, καὶ εὗρον καθήμενον τὸν ἄνθρωπον, ἀφ' οὗ τὰ δαιμόνια ἐξεληλύθει, ἱματισμένον καὶ σωφρονοῦντα παρὰ τοὺς πόδας τοῦ Ἰησοῦ· καὶ ἐφοβήθησαν. 36 Ἀπήγγειλαν δὲ αὐτοῖς καὶ οἱ ἰδόντες πῶς ἐσώθη ὁ δαιμονισθείς. 37 Καὶ ἠρώτησαν αὐτὸν ἅπαν τὸ πλῆθος τῆς περιχώρου τῶν Γαδα-

---

20. ἡ μήτηρ σου] See on Matt. xii. 46. Mark iii. 32.

21. μήτηρ μου] Not ἡ μήτηρ. 'Mother and brethren to Me, are they who,' &c. They who hear the Word of God and keep it are called by this name, because in their daily words and actions, with reverence be it said, they bring Him forth in their hearts.

22. μιᾷ τῶν ἡμερῶν] i. e. one of those days. See ch. v. 17; xx. 1. Cp. ἐν μιᾷ τῶν πόλεων, ch. v. 12, one of those cities.

23. Λαῖλαψ] See on Matt. xiv. 24—27. Mark iv. 37—41.

26. Γαδαρηνῶν] See on Matt. viii. 28—34. Mark v. 1—17. A, D, G, H, K, V, X, have ἀντιπέρα here.

29. παρήγγελλε] He was in the act of commanding. If He had already commanded, the Evil Spirit would not have had power to remonstrate; and, therefore, this reading, found in most of the uncial MSS., is preferable to παρήγγειλε.

31. τὴν ἄβυσσον] Not the Sea of Galilee (as some have supposed), nor yet (as others have thought) Gehenna, or the Lake of fire, which is the place of future torment, prepared for the devil and his angels (Matt. xxv. 41); and is distinguished from the ἄβυσσος, or 'bottomless pit,' into which the devil is cast by Christ (see Rev. xx. 3), before He is cast into the Lake of fire, into which He will not be cast till the end. (Rev. xx. 10.) Cp. on Matt. viii. 29.

It is observable, that soon after this event our Lord says that He sees Satan fall as lightning from heaven (x. 18); showing that some change and conquest affecting Satan's power was going on invisibly in the spiritual world.

The devils made three requests to Christ:

Not to torment them before the season, πρὸ καιροῦ,—i. e. of future judgment (v. 28). Cp. Matt. viii. 29. Mark v. 7.

Not to send them into the ἄβυσσος, or 'bottomless pit.'

To allow them to enter the swine.

"Αβυσσος is the word used by the LXX for the Hebr. תְּהוֹם (tehom), or depth (Gen. i. 2. Deut. xxxiii. 13. Ezek. xxxi. 15. Job xxviii. 14); and it seems to describe the place of gloom into which the devils were driven after their expulsion from heaven, and after the Incarnation and Passion of Christ (cp. 2 Pet. ii. 4. Jude 6, with Mede's remarks, p. 23, Disc. iv.), and from which they are allowed to emerge from time to time "as far as their chain—God's permission—suffers." (Bp. Fell on Eph. ii. 2.) But it does not mean the final place of torment to which they will be consigned at the great day.

33. εἰσῆλθον] The reading of A, E, G, H, K, L, M, P, V, X, and others,—preferable to εἰσῆλθεν, as marking the separate personality of the evil spirits. See on Mark ix. 20.

ρηνῶν ἀπελθεῖν ἀπ' αὐτῶν, ὅτι φόβῳ μεγάλῳ συνείχοντο. (84/VIII) Αὐτὸς δὲ ἐμβὰς εἰς τὸ πλοῖον ὑπέστρεψεν. 38 Ἐδέετο δὲ αὐτοῦ ὁ ἀνὴρ ἀφ' οὗ ἐξεληλύθει τὰ δαιμόνια, εἶναι σὺν αὐτῷ· ἀπέλυσε δὲ αὐτὸν ὁ Ἰησοῦς λέγων, 39 Ὑπόστρεφε εἰς τὸν οἶκόν σου, καὶ διηγοῦ ὅσα ἐποίησέ σοι ὁ Θεός· καὶ ἀπῆλθε καθ' ὅλην τὴν πόλιν κηρύσσων ὅσα ἐποίησεν αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς.

(85/II) 40 g Ἐγένετο δὲ ἐν τῷ ὑποστρέψαι τὸν Ἰησοῦν, ἀπεδέξατο αὐτὸν ὁ ὄχλος· ἦσαν γὰρ πάντες προσδοκῶντες αὐτόν. g Matt. 9. 1. Mark 5. 21.

41 h Καὶ ἰδοὺ, ἦλθεν ἀνὴρ ᾧ ὄνομα Ἰάειρος, καὶ αὐτὸς ἄρχων τῆς συναγωγῆς ὑπῆρχε, καὶ πεσὼν παρὰ τοὺς πόδας τοῦ Ἰησοῦ παρεκάλει αὐτὸν εἰσελθεῖν εἰς τὸν οἶκον αὐτοῦ, 42 ὅτι θυγάτηρ μονογενὴς ἦν αὐτῷ ὡς ἐτῶν δώδεκα, καὶ αὕτη ἀπέθνησκεν. ἐν δὲ τῷ ὑπάγειν αὐτὸν οἱ ὄχλοι συνέπνιγον αὐτόν. 43 i Καὶ γυνὴ οὖσα ἐν ῥύσει αἵματος ἀπὸ ἐτῶν δώδεκα ἥτις ἰατροῖς προσαναλώσασα ὅλον τὸν βίον, οὐκ ἴσχυσεν ὑπ' οὐδενὸς θεραπευθῆναι, 44 προσελθοῦσα ὄπισθεν ἥψατο τοῦ κρασπέδου τοῦ ἱματίου αὐτοῦ· καὶ παραχρῆμα ἔστη ἡ ῥύσις τοῦ αἵματος αὐτῆς. 45 Καὶ εἶπεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Τίς ὁ ἁψάμενός μου; ἀρνουμένων δὲ πάντων, εἶπεν ὁ Πέτρος καὶ οἱ μετ' αὐτοῦ, Ἐπιστάτα, οἱ ὄχλοι συνέχουσί σε καὶ ἀποθλίβουσι, καὶ λέγεις, Τίς ὁ ἁψάμενός μου; 46 ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν, Ἥψατό μου τις, ἐγὼ γὰρ ἔγνων δύναμιν ἐξελθοῦσαν ἀπ' ἐμοῦ. 47 Ἰδοῦσα δὲ ἡ γυνὴ ὅτι οὐκ ἔλαθε τρέμουσα ἦλθε, καὶ προσπεσοῦσα αὐτῷ, δι' ἣν αἰτίαν ἥψατο αὐτοῦ ἀπήγγειλεν αὐτῷ ἐνώπιον παντὸς τοῦ λαοῦ, καὶ ὡς ἰάθη παραχρῆμα. 48 Ὁ δὲ εἶπεν αὐτῇ, Θάρσει, θύγατερ, ἡ πίστις σου σέσωκέ σε· πορεύου εἰς εἰρήνην. 49 k Ἔτι αὐτοῦ λαλοῦντος, ἔρχεταί τις παρὰ τοῦ ἀρχισυναγώγου λέγων αὐτῷ, Ὅτι τέθνηκεν ἡ θυγάτηρ σου· μὴ σκύλλε τὸν διδάσκαλον. 50 Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς ἀκούσας ἀπεκρίθη αὐτῷ λέγων, Μὴ φοβοῦ· μόνον πίστευε, καὶ σωθήσεται. 51 Ἐλθὼν δὲ εἰς τὴν οἰκίαν οὐκ ἀφῆκεν εἰσελθεῖν οὐδένα, εἰ μὴ Πέτρον καὶ Ἰωάννην καὶ Ἰάκωβον, καὶ τὸν πατέρα τῆς παιδὸς καὶ τὴν μητέρα. 52 Ἔκλαιον δὲ πάντες, καὶ ἐκόπτοντο αὐτήν. Ὁ δὲ εἶπε, Μὴ κλαίετε· οὐκ ἀπέθανεν, ἀλλὰ καθεύδει· 53 καὶ κατεγέλων αὐτοῦ, εἰδότες ὅτι ἀπέθανεν. 54 Αὐτὸς δὲ ἐκβαλὼν ἔξω πάντας, καὶ κρατήσας τῆς χειρὸς αὐτῆς ἐφώνησε λέγων, Ἡ παῖς, ἐγείρου. 55 Καὶ ἐπέστρεψε τὸ πνεῦμα αὐτῆς, καὶ ἀνέστη παραχρῆμα· καὶ διέταξεν αὐτῇ δοθῆναι φαγεῖν. 56 Καὶ ἐξέστησαν οἱ γονεῖς αὐτῆς· ὁ δὲ παρήγγειλεν αὐτοῖς μηδενὶ εἰπεῖν τὸ γεγονός. h Matt. 9. 18, &c. Mark 5. 22, &c. i Matt. 9. 20, &c. Mark 5. 25, &c. k Matt. 9. 22, &c. Mark 5. 34, &c.

IX. (86/II) 1 a Συγκαλεσάμενος δὲ τοὺς δώδεκα, ἔδωκεν αὐτοῖς δύναμιν καὶ ἐξουσίαν ἐπὶ πάντα τὰ δαιμόνια, καὶ νόσους θεραπεύειν· 2 καὶ ἀπέστειλεν αὐτοὺς κηρύσσειν τὴν βασιλείαν τοῦ Θεοῦ, καὶ ἰᾶσθαι τοὺς ἀσθενοῦντας. (87/II) 3 Καὶ εἶπε πρὸς αὐτούς, Μηδὲν αἴρετε εἰς τὴν ὁδόν· μήτε ῥάβδους, μήτε πήραν, μήτε ἄρτον, μήτε ἀργύριον· μήτε ἀνὰ δύο χιτῶνας ἔχειν. 4 Καὶ εἰς ἣν ἂν οἰκίαν εἰσέλθητε, ἐκεῖ μένετε, καὶ ἐκεῖθεν ἐξέρχεσθε. (88/II) 5 Καὶ ὅσοι ἂν μὴ δέξωνται ὑμᾶς, ἐξερχόμενοι ἀπὸ τῆς πόλεως ἐκείνης καὶ τὸν κονιορτὸν ἀπὸ τῶν ποδῶν ὑμῶν ἀποτινάξατε εἰς μαρτύριον ἐπ' αὐτούς. (89/VIII) 6 Ἐξερ- a Matt. 10. 1—14. Mark 6. 7—13.

38, 39. ἐδέετο] See Mark v. 18—20.

41—56. καὶ ἰδοὺ] See on Matt. ix. 18—26. Mark v. 22—43.

43. ἐν] See Mark v. 2.

— ἰατροῖς] A remarkable avowal from Luke the physician. Coloss. iv. 14.

45. τίς ὁ ἁψάμενός μου;—οἱ ὄχλοι συνέχουσι] The crowd throngs Him; one faithful woman touches Him. The crowd press Him, but touch Him not; they are obtrusive in bodily presence, but absent in spiritual life. Christ is touched by faith. (Ambrose. Gregor. Moral. 3, c. 11.)

A solemn warning to all who crowd on Christ; who use His Name lightly and profanely; who make familiar addresses to Him in (so called) religious hymns; who treat with carelessness and irreverence His Day, His House, His Sacraments, His Ministers; or who read the Holy Scriptures in a carping spirit, treating them as a common book. Although such Critics as these may crowd upon Christ in His Word, with a ponderous pressure of earthly labour and learning, yet they can never touch Him. See above on Mark v. 30, and on John xx. 17.

52. ἐκόπτοντο αὐτήν] plangebant. Aristoph. Lysist. 397, κόπτεσθ' Ἄδωνιν, i. e. beat yourselves in grief for Adonis.

54. κρατήσας τῆς χειρὸς—ἐφώνησε] Our Lord adapted His manner of working miracles to the circumstances of the occasions. He called the four-days dead (Lazarus) from the grave with a loud voice (John xi. 43, φωνῇ μεγάλῃ ἐκραύγασε); but of this youthful maiden it is said, that He took her by the hand and called her—woke her gently from the sleep of death.

— ἡ παῖς] Compare this with St. Mark's Talitha cumi (v. 41). "Minimè omnium Lucas Hebraica posuit vocabula." (Bengel.)

CH. IX. 1. συγκαλεσάμενος] See on Matt. x. 1.

3. μήτε ῥάβδους] This appears to be the true reading. On the sense see Matt. x. 10.

— μήτε ἀργύριον] money: according to Greek usage. St. Mark, writing for Roman use, says χαλκόν, æs (v. 8).

χόμενοι δὲ διήρχοντο κατὰ τὰς κώμας, εὐαγγελιζόμενοι καὶ θεραπεύοντες πανταχοῦ.

b Matt. 14. 1, 2. Mark 5. 14—16.

(90/II) 7 b Ἤκουσε δὲ Ἡρῴδης ὁ τετράρχης τὰ γινόμενα ὑπ' αὐτοῦ πάντα· καὶ διηπόρει διὰ τὸ λέγεσθαι ὑπό τινων, ὅτι Ἰωάννης ἐγήγερται ἐκ νεκρῶν· 8 ὑπό τινων δὲ, ὅτι Ἠλίας ἐφάνη· ἄλλων δὲ, ὅτι προφήτης εἷς τῶν ἀρχαίων ἀνέστη. 9 καὶ εἶπεν Ἡρῴδης, Ἰωάννην ἐγὼ ἀπεκεφάλισα· τίς δέ ἐστιν οὗτος, περὶ οὗ ἐγὼ ἀκούω τοιαῦτα; καὶ ἐζήτει ἰδεῖν αὐτόν.

c Mark 5. 30—32.

(91/VIII) 10 c Καὶ ὑποστρέψαντες οἱ ἀπόστολοι διηγήσαντο αὐτῷ ὅσα ἐποίησαν. Καὶ παραλαβὼν αὐτοὺς ὑπεχώρησε κατ' ἰδίαν εἰς τόπον ἔρημον πόλεως καλουμένης Βηθσαϊδά. (92/III) 11 Οἱ δὲ ὄχλοι γνόντες ἠκολούθησαν αὐτῷ, d καὶ δεξάμενος αὐτοὺς ἐλάλει αὐτοῖς περὶ τῆς βασιλείας τοῦ Θεοῦ, καὶ τοὺς χρείαν ἔχοντας θεραπείας ἰᾶτο. (93/I) 12 Ἡ δὲ ἡμέρα ἤρξατο κλίνειν· προσελθόντες δὲ οἱ δώδεκα εἶπον αὐτῷ, Ἀπόλυσον τὸν ὄχλον, ἵνα ἀπελθόντες εἰς τὰς κύκλῳ κώμας καὶ τοὺς ἀγροὺς καταλύσωσι, καὶ εὑρωσιν ἐπισιτισμόν· ὅτι ὧδε ἐν ἐρήμῳ τόπῳ ἐσμέν. 13 Εἶπε δὲ πρὸς αὐτούς, Δότε αὐτοῖς ὑμεῖς φαγεῖν. Οἱ δὲ εἶπον, Οὐκ εἰσὶν ἡμῖν πλεῖον ἢ πέντε ἄρτοι καὶ ἰχθύες δύο· εἰ μήτι πορευθέντες ἡμεῖς ἀγοράσωμεν εἰς πάντα τὸν λαὸν τοῦτον βρώματα· 14 ἦσαν γὰρ ὡσεὶ ἄνδρες πεντακισχίλιοι. Εἶπε δὲ πρὸς τοὺς μαθητὰς αὐτοῦ, Κατακλίνατε αὐτοὺς κλισίας ἀνὰ πεντήκοντα· 15 καὶ ἐποίησαν οὕτω, καὶ ἀνέκλιναν ἅπαντας. 16 Λαβὼν δὲ τοὺς πέντε ἄρτους καὶ τοὺς δύο ἰχθύας, ἀναβλέψας εἰς τὸν οὐρανὸν εὐλόγησεν αὐτοὺς, καὶ κατέκλασε, καὶ ἐδίδου τοῖς μαθηταῖς παρατιθέναι τῷ ὄχλῳ. 17 Καὶ ἔφαγον καὶ ἐχορτάσθησαν πάντες· καὶ ἤρθη τὸ περισσεῦσαν αὐτοῖς κλασμάτων κόφινοι δώδεκα.

d Matt. 14. 14—20. Mark 6. 33—43.

e Matt. 16. 13—21. Mark 8. 27. 31.

(94/I) 18 e Καὶ ἐγένετο ἐν τῷ εἶναι αὐτὸν προσευχόμενον κατὰμόνας, συνῆσαν αὐτῷ οἱ μαθηταὶ, καὶ ἐπηρώτησεν αὐτοὺς λέγων, Τίνα με λέγουσιν οἱ ὄχλοι εἶναι; 19 Οἱ δὲ ἀποκριθέντες εἶπον, Ἰωάννην τὸν βαπτιστήν· ἄλλοι δὲ, Ἠλίαν· ἄλλοι δὲ, ὅτι προφήτης τις τῶν ἀρχαίων ἀνέστη. 20 Εἶπε δὲ αὐτοῖς, Ὑμεῖς δὲ τίνα με λέγετε εἶναι; ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ ὁ Πέτρος εἶπε, Τὸν Χριστὸν τοῦ Θεοῦ. (95/II) 21 Ὁ δὲ ἐπιτιμήσας αὐτοῖς παρήγγειλε μηδενὶ εἰπεῖν τοῦτο, 22 εἰπὼν ὅτι δεῖ τὸν Υἱὸν τοῦ ἀνθρώπου πολλὰ παθεῖν, καὶ ἀποδοκιμασθῆναι ἀπὸ τῶν πρεσβυτέρων καὶ ἀρχιερέων καὶ γραμματέων, καὶ ἀποκτανθῆναι, καὶ τῇ τρίτῃ ἡμέρᾳ ἐγερθῆναι.

f Matt. 16. 24—28. Mark 8. 34—38. & 9. 1.

(96/II) 23 f Ἔλεγε δὲ πρὸς πάντας, Εἴ τις θέλει ὀπίσω μου ἐλθεῖν, ἀπαρνησάσθω ἑαυτὸν, καὶ ἀράτω τὸν σταυρὸν αὐτοῦ καθ' ἡμέραν, καὶ ἀκολουθείτω μοι. 24 Ὃς γὰρ ἂν θέλῃ τὴν ψυχὴν αὐτοῦ σῶσαι, ἀπολέσει αὐτήν· ὃς δ' ἂν ἀπολέσῃ τὴν ψυχὴν αὐτοῦ ἕνεκεν ἐμοῦ, οὗτος σώσει αὐτήν. 25 Τί γὰρ ὠφελεῖται ἄνθρωπος κερδήσας τὸν κόσμον ὅλον, ἑαυτὸν δὲ ἀπολέσας ἢ ζημιωθείς; (97/II) 26 Ὃς γὰρ ἂν ἐπαισχυνθῇ με καὶ τοὺς ἐμοὺς λόγους, τοῦτον ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἐπαισχυνθήσεται, ὅταν ἔλθῃ ἐν τῇ δόξῃ αὐτοῦ καὶ τοῦ Πατρὸς καὶ

---

7. ἤκουσε] See Matt. xiv. 1—12. Mark vi. 14—29. These two Evangelists insert here an account of John's death.

10. Βηθσαϊδά] Not the city of Peter and Andrew (John i. 44) on the western coast of the lake, but the other Bethsaida or Julias (called so by Philip the Tetrarch, from Julia, the daughter of Augustus. Joseph. xviii. 2), and situated on the northern shore of the Sea of Galilee. St. Luke supposes that his readers will compare the narratives of St. Matthew and St. Mark (Matt. xiv. 22. Mark vi. 45), where there is mention of their crossing back after the miracle to the western Bethsaida. (Matt. xiv. 34. Mark vi. 53. Cp. Robinson's Palestine, iii. p. 238, and on Matt. iv. 13.)

11. ἐλάλει αὐτοῖς] Our Lord combines preaching with miracles, in order to enforce the one by the other; and He feeds the soul while He prepares to refresh the body.

13. οὐκ εἰσίν] See Matt. xiv. 17—21. Mark vi. 39.

16. εὐλόγησεν—κατέκλασε—ἐδίδου] Mark the change of tense. He blessed and brake once for all, but continued giving. See on Mark vi. 41.

18. προσευχόμενον] See on v. 16.

— τίνα με λέγουσιν] Observe the position of με here in all the Gospels, showing that the character and office of Christ, and not of Peter, was the scope of the question. See on Matt. xvi. 15—20, and on Mark viii. 28—30.

20. ὁ Πέτρος—Θεοῦ] St. Peter eagerly springs forward (προπηδᾷ) and becomes the mouth of the Apostolic body (στόμα τοῦ χοροῦ), and utters these words full of divine love, and confesses Jesus to be the Christ, that is, to be the Anointed one, above all Kings, Prophets, and Priests, and to be the Christ of God, or, as St. Matthew says (xvi. 16), the Son of the Living God—the Only-Begotten Word of God. (Cyril, p. 235.)

21. μηδενὶ εἰπεῖν] See Matt. xvi. 20. Mark viii. 30. St. Luke does not repeat here what was not favourable to St. Peter, and had been recorded by St. Peter's friend and scholar St. Mark (viii. 32).

23. καθ' ἡμέραν] This phrase is recorded by St. Luke alone here. Cp. St. Paul, 1 Cor. xv. 31. "Duobus modis crux tollitur, cùm aut per abstinentiam afficitur corpus, aut per compassionem proximi affligitur animus." (Cp. 1 Cor. ix. 27. 2 Cor. xi. 29.) "Perfectus prædicator (Paulus) crucem portabat in corpore et in corde." Greg. M. Hom. in Ev. xxxii., where is an exposition of vv. 23—27.

τῶν ἁγίων ἀγγέλων. (98/II) 27 Λέγω δὲ ὑμῖν ἀληθῶς, εἰσί τινες τῶν ὧδε ἑστώτων, οἳ οὐ μὴ γεύσωνται θανάτου, ἕως ἂν ἴδωσι τὴν βασιλείαν τοῦ Θεοῦ.

28 g Ἐγένετο δὲ μετὰ τοὺς λόγους τούτους ὡσεὶ ἡμέραι ὀκτὼ, καὶ παραλαβὼν Πέτρον καὶ Ἰωάννην καὶ Ἰάκωβον, ἀνέβη εἰς τὸ ὄρος προσεύξασθαι. 29 Καὶ ἐγένετο ἐν τῷ προσεύχεσθαι αὐτὸν τὸ εἶδος τοῦ προσώπου αὐτοῦ ἕτερον, καὶ ὁ ἱματισμὸς αὐτοῦ λευκὸς ἐξαστράπτων. 30 Καὶ ἰδοὺ, ἄνδρες δύο συνελάλουν αὐτῷ, οἵτινες ἦσαν Μωϋσῆς καὶ Ἠλίας· 31 οἳ ὀφθέντες ἐν δόξῃ ἔλεγον τὴν ἔξοδον αὐτοῦ, ἣν ἔμελλε πληροῦν ἐν Ἰερουσαλήμ. 32 Ὁ δὲ Πέτρος καὶ οἱ σὺν αὐτῷ ἦσαν βεβαρημένοι ὕπνῳ· διαγρηγορήσαντες δὲ εἶδον τὴν δόξαν αὐτοῦ, καὶ τοὺς δύο ἄνδρας τοὺς συνεστῶτας αὐτῷ. 33 Καὶ ἐγένετο ἐν τῷ διαχωρίζεσθαι αὐτοὺς ἀπ' αὐτοῦ, εἶπεν ὁ Πέτρος πρὸς τὸν Ἰησοῦν, Ἐπιστάτα, καλόν ἐστιν ἡμᾶς ὧδε εἶναι, καὶ ποιήσωμεν σκηνὰς τρεῖς, μίαν σοὶ, καὶ μίαν Μωϋσεῖ, καὶ μίαν Ἠλίᾳ, μὴ εἰδὼς ὃ λέγει. 34 Ταῦτα δὲ αὐτοῦ λέγοντος, ἐγένετο νεφέλη καὶ ἐπεσκίασεν αὐτούς· ἐφοβήθησαν δὲ ἐν τῷ ἐκείνους εἰσελθεῖν εἰς τὴν νεφέλην· 35 καὶ φωνὴ ἐγένετο ἐκ τῆς νεφέλης λέγουσα, Οὗτός ἐστιν ὁ Υἱός μου ὁ ἀγαπητός· αὐτοῦ ἀκούετε· 36 καὶ ἐν τῷ γενέσθαι τὴν φωνὴν εὑρέθη ὁ Ἰησοῦς μόνος. Καὶ αὐτοὶ ἐσίγησαν, καὶ οὐδενὶ ἀπήγγειλαν ἐν ἐκείναις ταῖς ἡμέραις οὐδὲν ὧν ἑωράκασιν.

g Matt. 17. 1—8. Mark 9. 2—7.

(99/II) 37 Ἐγένετο δὲ ἐν τῇ ἑξῆς ἡμέρᾳ, κατελθόντων αὐτῶν ἀπὸ τοῦ ὄρους, συνήντησεν αὐτῷ ὄχλος πολύς. 38 Καὶ ἰδοὺ, ἀνὴρ ἀπὸ τοῦ ὄχλου ἀνεβόησε λέγων, Διδάσκαλε, δέομαί σου ἐπιβλέψαι ἐπὶ τὸν υἱόν μου, ὅτι μονογενής μοί ἐστί· 39 καὶ ἰδοὺ, πνεῦμα λαμβάνει αὐτὸν, καὶ ἐξαίφνης κράζει, καὶ σπαράσσει αὐτὸν μετὰ ἀφροῦ, καὶ μόγις ἀποχωρεῖ ἀπ' αὐτοῦ, συντρῖβον αὐτόν. 40 Καὶ ἐδεήθην τῶν μαθητῶν σου ἵνα ἐκβάλωσιν αὐτὸ, καὶ οὐκ ἠδυνήθησαν. 41 Ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν, Ὦ γενεὰ ἄπιστος καὶ διεστραμμένη, ἕως πότε ἔσομαι πρὸς ὑμᾶς καὶ ἀνέξομαι ὑμῶν; προσάγαγε τὸν υἱόν σου ὧδε. 42 Ἔτι δὲ προσερχομένου αὐτοῦ, ἔρρηξεν αὐτὸν τὸ δαιμόνιον καὶ συνεσπάραξεν· ἐπετίμησε δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς τῷ πνεύματι τῷ ἀκαθάρτῳ, καὶ ἰάσατο τὸν παῖδα· καὶ ἀπέδωκεν αὐτὸν τῷ πατρὶ αὐτοῦ. (100/VIII) 43 ἐξεπλήσσοντο δὲ πάντες ἐπὶ τῇ μεγαλειότητι τοῦ Θεοῦ. (101/II) Πάντων δὲ θαυμαζόντων ἐπὶ πᾶσιν οἷς ἐποίησεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς, εἶπε πρὸς τοὺς μαθητὰς αὐτοῦ, 44 h Θέσθε ὑμεῖς εἰς τὰ ὦτα ὑμῶν τοὺς λόγους τούτους· ὁ γὰρ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου μέλλει παραδίδοσθαι εἰς χεῖρας ἀνθρώπων. 45 i Οἱ δὲ ἠγνόουν τὸ ῥῆμα τοῦτο, καὶ ἦν παρακεκαλυμμένον ἀπ' h Matt. 16. 21. & 17. 22. Mark 9. 31. ch. 18. 32. Acts 1. 23. i ch. 2. 50. & 18. 34. Mark 9. 32.

---

27. λέγω δὲ ὑμῖν] See on Matt. xvi. 28.

— ἀληθῶς] The two other Evangelists have ἀμήν. Cp. on v. 5.

28. ἐγένετο] See on Matt. xvii. 1. Mark ix. 2.

— ὡσεὶ ἡμέραι ὀκτώ] On the significance of the eighth day, see below, on xxiv. 1.

— τὸ ὄρος] The other two Evangelists have here indefinitely ὄρος ὑψηλόν,—another proof that τὸ ὄρος is used by way of contrast with the plain, and not to specify any particular mountain. (See on Matt. v. 1.) On προσεύξασθαι, see above on iv. 6.

29. ἐγένετο τὸ εἶδος ἕτερον] His countenance was changed—a foreshadowing of the glorious change in the countenance of risen saints; ἀλλαγησόμεθα, 1 Cor. xv. 51, and cp. St. Cyril here, p. 237, who says that the Kingdom of which Christ speaks here is His future Kingdom of Glory; of which He was now about to show them a glimpse in the Transfiguration.

St. Luke seems to have declined the use of μετεμορφώθη (employed by the two other Evangelists here), that he might not awaken in his Greek readers any ideas or feelings connected with the fabulous Metamorphoses of their heathen deities.

"Extat libellus," says Valck., "Antonini Liberalis inscriptus Μεταμορφώσεις, historias complexus fabulosas veteres. Multa habet ex Nicandri opere quod inscriptum fuerat ἑτεροιούμενα. Eandem tractavit materiam quam Ovidius qui in admirandum suum poema (Metamorphoses) multa transcripsit ex isthoc opere Nicandri."

In v. 30 he says "two men (not angels) appeared, who were Moses and Elias." The other two Evangelists introduce them at once as well known to their readers (Matt. xvii. 3. Mark ix. 4).

31. τὴν ἔξοδον] death. τὸν θάνατον, Theophyl. See Wisdom iii. 2; vii. 6. 2 Pet. i. 15, μετὰ τὴν ἐμὴν ἔξοδον, and St. Irenæus iii. 1, μετὰ τὴν Πέτρου καὶ Παύλου ἔξοδον, Μάρκος ὁ μαθητὴς καὶ ἑρμηνευτὴς Πέτρου, κ.τ.λ. Cp. Valck. here, who interprets ἔξοδος "exitus animæ ex corpore tanquam à carcere liberatæ."

The death of Christ was thus shown to be the culminating point to which all the Law and the Prophets tended and aspired as their end. (Cp. St. Ambrose here.) This was therefore their theme, even at the Transfiguration; even in that hour of glory. And thus the Apostles were encouraged to look with hope and faith to what they had contemplated with dismay. See Matt. xvi. 21, 22.

In the word ἔξοδος, as applied to Christ, the Son of God, and Head of the people of Israel (see on Matt. ii. 15), there seems to be a reference to the Exodus, accomplished by His death, from the spiritual Egypt, the House of Bondage, of Satan, and of Sin, and the redemption of His People by His blood, the blood of the true Passover, into the glorious liberty of the Sons of God. Cp. Bp. Horne in Burgon. p. 234.

32. βεβαρημένοι ὕπνῳ] Hence it is not improbable that the Transfiguration took place at night. See also v. 37, where the miracle of healing the dæmoniac is described as having been performed τῇ ἑξῆς ἡμέρᾳ. St. Luke describes it also as having been done κατελθόντων αὐτῶν. (See also Matt. xvii. 14. Mark ix. 14.) Our Lord's glorified body and His raiment were στίλβοντα λευκὰ ὡς τὸ φῶς ἐξαστράπτοντα (Matt., Mark, Luke). Moses and Elias ὀφθησαν ἐν δόξῃ. The νεφέλη was φωτεινή (Matt. xvii. 5). All these objects would be more conspicuous and striking in the darkness and stillness of the night; and a memorial would thus suggest itself of the bright pillar of fire which shone on the people of Israel in the night in the wilderness; and an assurance would thus be given that Christ's glorious presence would be with His Church in the darkness of distress and persecution in her pilgrimage in the world.

35. οὗτος] A divine confirmation from heaven of St. Peter's recent confession. (Euseb.)

37. κατελθόντων] See Matt. xvii. 14.

41. ἀποκριθεὶς] Matt. xvii. 17.

αὐτῶν, ἵνα μὴ αἴσθωνται αὐτό· καὶ ἐφοβοῦντο ἐρωτῆσαι αὐτὸν περὶ τοῦ ῥήματος τούτου.

j Matt. 18. 1. Mark 9. 33, 34. ch. 22. 24.

(ק״ב) 46 j Εἰσῆλθε δὲ διαλογισμὸς ἐν αὐτοῖς, τὸ, τίς ἂν εἴη μείζων αὐτῶν. 47 Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς ἰδὼν τὸν διαλογισμὸν τῆς καρδίας αὐτῶν, ἐπιλαβόμενος παιδίου ἔστησεν αὐτὸ παρ' ἑαυτῷ, 48 k καὶ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Ὃς ἐὰν δέξηται τοῦτο τὸ παιδίον ἐπὶ τῷ ὀνόματί μου, ἐμὲ δέχεται· καὶ ὃς ἐὰν ἐμὲ δέξηται, δέχεται τὸν ἀποστείλαντά με. Ὁ γὰρ μικρότερος ἐν πᾶσιν ὑμῖν ὑπάρχων οὗτος ἔσται μέγας.

k Matt. 18. 5. Mark 9. 37. ch. 10. 16. John 13. 20. Matt. 23. 11. ch. 14. 11. & 18. 14.

l Mark 9. 38. Num. 11. 27, 28.

(ק״ח) 49 l Ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ ὁ Ἰωάννης εἶπεν, Ἐπιστάτα, εἴδομέν τινα ἐπὶ τῷ ὀνόματί σου ἐκβάλλοντα δαιμόνια, καὶ ἐκωλύσαμεν αὐτὸν, ὅτι οὐκ ἀκολουθεῖ μεθ' ἡμῶν. 50 m Καὶ εἶπε πρὸς αὐτὸν ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Μὴ κωλύετε· ὃς γὰρ οὐκ ἔστι καθ' ἡμῶν, ὑπὲρ ἡμῶν ἐστιν.

m Matt. 12. 30. Mark 9. 40. ch. 11. 23.

n Mark 16. 19. Acts 1. 2.

(ק״ד) 51 n Ἐγένετο δὲ, ἐν τῷ συμπληροῦσθαι τὰς ἡμέρας τῆς ἀναλήψεως αὐτοῦ, καὶ αὐτὸς τὸ πρόσωπον αὐτοῦ ἐστήριξε τοῦ πορεύεσθαι εἰς Ἱερουσαλήμ. 52 Καὶ ἀπέστειλεν ἀγγέλους πρὸ προσώπου αὐτοῦ, καὶ πορευθέντες εἰσῆλθον εἰς κώμην Σαμαρειτῶν, ὥστε ἑτοιμάσαι αὐτῷ. 53 o Καὶ οὐκ ἐδέξαντο αὐτὸν, ὅτι τὸ πρόσωπον αὐτοῦ ἦν πορευόμενον εἰς Ἱερουσαλήμ. 54 p Ἰδόντες δὲ οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ Ἰάκωβος καὶ Ἰωάννης εἶπον, Κύριε, θέλεις εἴπωμεν πῦρ καταβῆναι ἀπὸ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ καὶ ἀναλῶσαι αὐτοὺς, ὡς καὶ Ἠλίας ἐποίησε; 55 Στραφεὶς δὲ ἐπετίμησεν αὐτοῖς καὶ εἶπεν, Οὐκ οἴδατε οἵου πνεύματός ἐστε ὑμεῖς· 56 q ὁ γὰρ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου οὐκ ἦλθε ψυχὰς ἀνθρώπων ἀπολέσαι, ἀλλὰ σῶσαι. Καὶ ἐπορεύθησαν εἰς ἑτέραν κώμην.

o John 4. 4, 9.

p 2 Kings 1. 10, 12.

q John 3. 17. & 12. 47.

(ק״ה) 57 Ἐγένετο δὲ, πορευομένων αὐτῶν ἐν τῇ ὁδῷ εἶπέ τις πρὸς αὐτὸν, Ἀκολουθήσω σοι ὅπου ἂν ἀπέρχῃ, κύριε. 58 r Καὶ εἶπεν αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Αἱ ἀλώπεκες φωλεοὺς ἔχουσι, καὶ τὰ πετεινὰ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ κατασκηνώσεις, ὁ δὲ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου οὐκ ἔχει ποῦ τὴν κεφαλὴν κλίνῃ. 59 Εἶπε δὲ πρὸς ἕτερον, Ἀκολούθει μοι· ὁ δὲ εἶπε, Κύριε, ἐπίτρεψόν μοι ἀπελθόντι πρῶτον θάψαι τὸν r Matt. 8. 19—22.

---

45. ἠγνόουν τὸ ῥῆμα] because they had preconceived notions of a temporal and triumphant Messiah. See Acts i. 6.

48. ὁ γὰρ μικρότερος] i. e. the least; so ver. 46, μείζων. Cp. Matt. xiii. 32; xviii. 1. 1 Cor. xv. 19.

50. ὃς γὰρ οὐκ ἔστι] See on Mark ix. 40, and what Theophyl. says here, "He who is not against God is on His part; and he who does not gather with God, he is with the Evil One."

— ἡμῶν] ὑμῶν is found in many MSS. and Versions. See Mark ix. 40.

51. ἀναλήψεως] His Ascension. (See Mark xvi. 19. Acts i. 11. 22. 1 Tim. iii. 16.) The word ἀνελήφθη had been already prepared for this sense of ascension by the LXX applying it to Elijah (2 Kings ii. 9—11). Our Lord's Agony, Cross, and Passion were at hand. But He looked through them all to His Glorious Ascension; and, as Bengel observes, "Ejus sensum imitatur stylus Evangelistæ."

— τὸ πρόσωπον ἐστήριξε] Used by LXX, Ezek. xiv. 8. Jer. xxi. 10, ἐστήρικα τὸ πρόσωπόν μου. Cf. 2 Kings xii. 17, ἔταξε τὸ πρόσωπον αὐτοῦ ἀναβῆναι εἰς Ἱερουσαλήμ. And see Vorst. de Hebraism. cap. 39 (Isa. l. 7), "I have set my face as a flint," said of the Messiah preparing Himself with an unflinching courage for suffering; and this seems to be intimated here. "Firmiter animo destinavit." (Valck.)

53. οὐκ ἐδέξαντο] See John iv. 20. 40—43. Cp. Jerome, iv. p. 194. Hence the Galilæans often went to Jerusalem at the feasts by the region east of Jordan. See on xvii. 11. Cp. Joseph. Ant. xx. 6. 1; and De Vitâ Suâ, c. 52.

— πρόσωπον—πορευόμενον] So LXX (2 Sam. xvii. 11), τὸ πρόσωπόν σου πορευόμενον, from Hebr. פָּנֶיךָ הֹלְכִים. Probably it was now the time of one of the three great Jewish Festivals, and the Samaritans perceived that our Lord was one of those who were going up to Jerusalem for the feast; and they considered this as a reproach to themselves, who did not go up; and as an act of contempt to their own Temple on Gerizim, where they said men ought to worship and not at Jerusalem.

54. Ἰάκωβος] "Quid mirum filios tonitrui fulgurare voluisse?" (Ambrose.) But our Lord changed their hearts by the light of the Holy Spirit, which cleansed away the dross of human passion, and left the pure ore of divine love, and inflamed them with fervent zeal for the salvation of souls (Mark iii. 17).

— πῦρ] Our Lord wrought miracles on all the elements but Fire —that is reserved for the End. (Bengel.) — ὡς καὶ Ἠλίας] 2 Kings i. 10—12. On this and other instances of abuse of "Piorum Exempla" (which are no safe rule of conduct), see Bp. Sanderson, Prælect. de Oblig. Conscient. iii. § 10 (vol. iv. p. 50 of his Works). "Hæc quæ in Scripturis Sanctis legimus non ideò, quia facta credimus, etiam facienda credamus, ne violemus præcepta, dum passim sectamur Exempla." Aug. de Mendac. cap. 9.

55. οὐκ—ὑμεῖς] ὑμεῖς is emphatic. You who would destroy others know not how evil your own spirit is. A warning to those who endeavour to propagate Christianity by violence.

These Samaritans refused to receive Christ Himself. Yet they were not to be punished by the Apostles themselves with bodily pains and penalties. How much less should ministers of Christ endeavour to unsheathe the sword and use the secular arm against the life of those who refuse to receive what is supposed, perhaps erroneously, by the persecuting party, to be the Religion of Christ! "Religionis non est Religionem cogere." (Tertullian ad Scap. 2.) "Defendenda est non occidendo sed moriendo." (Lactant. Inst. v. 20.)

Romish Divines have endeavoured to set aside this conclusion by referring to the case of Ananias and Sapphira smitten (as they say) dead by St. Peter (Acts v. 4, 5), and to St. Paul striking Elymas with blindness (Acts xiii. 11). "Usus est Evangelicâ severitate Petrus Ananiam et Sapphiram occidens, usus est Paulus Elymam excæcans." (Maldonatus.)

But this is an untrue account of the matter, and injurious to St. Peter and St. Paul. St. Peter did not kill Ananias, but foretold his death. And St. Paul did not smite Elymas with blindness, but announced to him that the hand of the Lord was upon him (Acts xiii. 11). And thus these Apostles proved their commission to be from God, Who alone could enable them to foresee the future.

The words οὐκ οἴδατε to σῶσαι are absent from many MSS.; but see Alf.

58. εἶπεν αὐτῷ] Our Lord read his heart; and his answer is to be interpreted accordingly: from Christ's answer we may conclude, "istum hominem, si sequeretur Christum, sua quæsiturum fuisse, non quæ Jesu Christi. Quid ergo respondit? Vulpes foveas habent, &c. Filius autem hominis non habet ubi caput reclinet. Sed ubi non habet? In fide tuâ. Vulpes habent foveas in corde tuo, dolosus es: volatilia cœli habent nidos in corde tuo: elatus es. Non Me sequeris." St. Aug. Serm. c. 2, and Serm. lxii. 2, who says elsewhere, "Pauci sequuntur Jesum propter Jesum."

59. θάψαι τὸν πατέρα] See on Matt. viii. 22, and cp. St. Aug. Serm. lxii. 2, "Pium erat quod volebat facere; sed docuit Magister quid deberet præponere. Volebat enim Christus eum esse Vivi Verbi Prædicatorem ad faciendos victuros. Erant autem alii per quos illa necessitas (i. e. sepeliendi patrem) impleretur. Infidelea πατέρα μου· 60 εἶπε δὲ αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Ἄφες τοὺς νεκροὺς θάψαι τοὺς ἑαυτῶν νεκρούς· σὺ δὲ ἀπελθὼν διάγγελλε τὴν βασιλείαν τοῦ Θεοῦ. (106/X) 61 s Εἶπε δὲ καὶ ἕτερος, Ἀκολουθήσω σοι, Κύριε· πρῶτον δὲ ἐπίτρεψόν μοι ἀποτάξασθαι τοῖς εἰς τὸν οἶκόν μου· 62 εἶπε δὲ πρὸς αὐτὸν ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Οὐδεὶς ἐπιβαλὼν τὴν χεῖρα αὐτοῦ ἐπ' ἄροτρον, καὶ βλέπων εἰς τὰ ὀπίσω, εὔθετός ἐστιν εἰς τὴν βασιλείαν τοῦ Θεοῦ.

s 1 Kings 19. 20.

X. (107/X) 1 Μετὰ δὲ ταῦτα ἀνέδειξεν ὁ Κύριος καὶ ἑτέρους ἑβδομήκοντα, καὶ ἀπέστειλεν αὐτοὺς ἀνὰ δύο πρὸ προσώπου αὐτοῦ εἰς πᾶσαν πόλιν καὶ τόπον, cadaver quandò sepeliunt, mortui mortuum sepeliunt. Illius corpus animum perdidit; illius anima Deum. Sicut enim vita corporis anima est, sic vita animæ Deus." And again, Serm. c. 2, "Honorandus est pater, sed obediendum est Deo. Amandus est generator, sed præponendus est Creator. Ego ad Evangelium te voco. Mihi necessarius es; majus est hoc quàm quod vis facere: Sine mortuos, &c. Pater tuus mortuus est, sunt alii mortui (i. e. infideles) qui sepeliant mortuos. Nolite igitur anteriora posterioribus subdere. Amate parentes, sed præponite Deum."

---

61. πρῶτον δὲ ἐπίτρεψόν μοι ἀποτάξασθαι] ἀποτάξασθαι, valedicere, see Mark vi. 46. "It often happens," says Theophyl. here, "that when a man goes home, and is engaged in bidding farewell to his friends, some among them are found who will draw him off God to the world." "Vocat te Oriens, et tu attendis Occidentem." (Aug.)

As to the sense, what St. Ambrose says on v. 60 may be inserted here: "Bonum studium, sed majus impedimentum; nam qui partitur studium, derivat affectum; et qui dividit curam, differt profectum. Ergo priùs amanda sunt quæ maxima sunt; ipsis discipulis, cùm à Domino mitterentur, neminem in viâ salutare præscriptum est; non quòd benevolentiæ displiceret officium, sed quòd persequendæ devotionis intentio plus placeret."

These three incidents appear to have been combined here by the Holy Spirit for the purpose of teaching,

That in designing to follow Christ, we must look only to Christ, and follow Him for His own sake; not for any worldly interest, but at the sacrifice, if need be, of all earthly advantage.

That when He calls us, no earthly tie, however dear, may draw us from prompt obedience to the call.

That in offering ourselves to Christ, we must give Him the first place in our affections. He must have the whole heart; and having once put the hand to the plough, in His service, we may not look off from it to any earthly object, however good in itself, if we desire to be fit for the kingdom of God.

Comp. Phil. iii. 14. and our Lord's own words to the Church, Ps. xlv. 11. The Holy Ghost propounds for our imitation the example of the Apostles, who immediately, as soon as they were called, left all, and followed Christ. Matt. iv. 20. 22. Mark x. 28. Luke v. 28; and Christ assures all who do so that they shall receive manifold more in this present time, and in the world to come life everlasting. Mark x. 29. Luke xviii. 29.

62. ἄροτρον] An intimation that the ministerial life is like that of the tiller of the ground. Cp. 1 Cor. iii. 9. The Christian Minister is a Feeder of Sheep; a Dresser of a Vineyard; a Sower; a Master-builder; a Watchman; all these names are suggestive of several duties.

CH. X. 1. μετὰ δὲ ταῦτα] This and the following Chapters, xi. xii. xiii. xiv. xv. xvi. xvii. contain incidents for the most part peculiar to St. Luke's narrative. These incidents appear to fall in the period of our Lord's Ministry between the Festival of Tabernacles (John vii. 2) in October, and His arrival at Bethany, near Jerusalem, six days before His last Passover. Cp. note on xiii. 4. 6.

Whether in this interval He revisited Galilee is doubtful. In Luke ix. 51, it is said that the days of His ἀνάλημψις, or return to heaven, were now being fulfilled; and that He set His face to go to Jerusalem (vv. 52, 53); see also xiii. 22, i. e. He had then prepared Himself with deliberate constancy to suffer. See below, note on xii. 49.

It seems probable that the events here recorded did not take place in Galilee. The words in x. 13, concerning Chorazin, need not have been uttered in Galilee; and even if they were, yet from their material connexion with what precedes, might most naturally be introduced by the Evangelist there. On the supposed difficulty in xvii. 11, see note there.

Rather, these incidents seem to have occurred in the northern neighbourhood of Jerusalem, and near the City of Ephraim (John xi. 54), perhaps about twenty miles north of Jerusalem (Robinson's Palestine, ii. 121—125, probably Ephron of 2 Chron. xiii. 19); and in Peræa, on the east side of Jordan, which He crossed a short time before His last passover in His way to Jericho (the largest city of Judæa next to Jerusalem), where the narratives of St. Matthew and St. Mark fall into that of St. Luke; and thence to Bethany, where all the four Evangelists meet.

It would seem that our Lord, in His tenderness and long suffering to the Jews, concentrated His last efforts upon Judæa, and its neighbouring country Peræa. And as if His own personal agency and that of His Apostles were not enough, He proceeds now (chap. x.) to ordain the seventy to preach and work miracles, in every city and place which He was about to visit. And see the affecting apostrophe to Jerusalem at this time. (Luke xiii. 34, 35.)

A theory has been propounded by Schleiermacher[1] ("über die Schriften des Lucas," Berlin, 1817, p. 158), and seems to be approved by Olshausen on ix. 51, and Kuinoel[2], that this portion of St. Luke has been compiled from two fragmentary narratives by some other person, who was not fully informed of the events. This opinion, which (it is superfluous to say) was unknown to Christian Antiquity, is at variance with St. Luke's assertion (i. 3), παρηκολουθηκότι ἄνωθεν πᾶσιν ἀκριβῶς. See further, on chap. xi. v. 14.

— ὁ Κύριος] See on vii. 13. This expression fitly introduces the Ordination of the Seventy, by the Divine Head of the Κυριακή, or Church, the οἰκία Κυρίου. The Mission of Ministers, is "actus verè dominicus." (Beng.)

On these verses (1—9), see an excellent Homily by Greg. M. Hom. in Ev. i. 17, p. 1946, well worthy to be carefully read by every Christian preacher.

— ἑβδομήκοντα] The exact number, it is probable, was seventy-two; a multiple of twelve (the number of the tribes); and the number adopted on other occasions. The number seventy was that of the heads of the family of Israel (Gen. xlvi. 27), and of the Elders constituted by Moses (Numb. xi. 16. 25, and of the Palm trees at Elim, Exod. xv. 27. Cyril, p. 246). And the Jews supposed that the languages of the world were seventy, see à Lapide on Gen. xi. 32; or as some say, seventy-two (St. Aug., St. Hieron., Euseb., Bede). And some MSS. here (B, D, M, and others) add δύο. But it does not follow that this reading is to be adopted. For the Jews often speak of seventy—a round number—when they mean seventy-two, e. g. in the case of the seventy Interpreters of the Old Testament.

As the Apostles are succeeded by Bishops in the Church, so the Seventy by Presbyters. "We very well know," says Bp. Andrewes to Peter Moulin[3], "that the Apostles and the seventy-two disciples were two Orders, and these distinct. And this likewise we know, that every where among the Fathers, Bishops and Presbyters are taken to be after their example; that Bishops succeeded the Apostles, and Presbyters the Seventy-two." He then quotes Cyprian, St. Jerome, St. Ambrose. The Fathers saw the twelve Apostles, and the Seventy Presbyters typified in the twelve fountains and seventy palm trees at Elim. Exod xv. 27. See St. Cyril here, p. 246, ed. Mai. St. Jerome de xlii. Mansionibus (Ep. 127), Mans. vi.: "Nec dubium quin de xii Apostolis sermo sit, de quorum fontibus derivatæ aquæ totius mundi siccitatem rigant. Juxta has aquas lxx creverunt Palmæ quos et ipsos secundi ordinis intelligimus Præceptores, Luca Evangelista testante (x. 1) xii fuisse Apostolos et lxx discipulos minoris gradus, quos et binos ante se Dominus præmittebat."

And Theophylact here says, "Elim means ascent, and in our ascent to the spiritual knowledge of the Gospel we find twelve wells —the Apostles; and seventy Palm-trees—the Disciples." The Apostles are wells, as being fountains of sweet water, flowing from one Divine Source; and the Palm trees are watered and nourished by the water, and bear sweet fruit, and have for leaves and branches the emblems of victory (John xii. 13), even in heaven (Rev. vii. 9).

— ἀπέστειλεν αὐτοὺς ἀνὰ δύο] 'binos;' to be examples, witnesses, supports and stimulants to each other (Origen, Theoph.), a precedent too much neglected in modern Missions; and Greg. M. l. c. says well, "binos ad prædicandum mittit, nam minùs quàm inter

---

[1] Schleiermacher's opinion is, that this portion of St. Luke's Gospel is compiled from narratives of two journeys; that St. Luke copied it from some document made up from two smaller imperfect reports joined together by some person who did not know that between the times described in the two, our Lord visited Jerusalem. And Olshausen pronounces this view as on the whole satisfactory. De Wette goes further, and says, that in this portion we have an unchronological and unhistorical collection, which is due to the circumstance that St. Luke had met with a good deal of material which he did not arrange elsewhere, and therefore threw together here.

[2] Who says, "Lucas apposuit has sententias hoc loco, quoniam in gnomologiâ suâ hoc loco notatas reperiebat, easque à Christo bis prolatas putabat." See his note on chap. xi. 33, and his note on x. 23. "Lucas ea repetit e gnomologiâ quâ utebatur, cujus in margine apposita erant, cùm non satis accuratè recordaretur temporis." See also his note on xi. 1. 15. 41, and on Matt. vi. 9.

[3] The original Latin words may be found in Bp. Andrewes, in p. 169 of Opuscula Postuma, published in 1629, and in English, 1647, and the whole correspondence is inserted in the late Dr. Wordsworth's Christian Institutes, iii. 222—267; the passage quoted is in p. 231. See also Bp. Andrewes, in his admirable Sermon on Acts ii. 42, on Worshipping of Imaginations, vol. ii. p. 63.

οὖ ἔμελλεν αὐτὸς ἔρχεσθαι. (108/V) 2 a Ἔλεγεν οὖν πρὸς αὐτούς, Ὁ μὲν θερισμὸς πολύς, οἱ δὲ ἐργάται ὀλίγοι· δεήθητε οὖν τοῦ Κυρίου τοῦ θερισμοῦ, ὅπως ἐκβάλῃ ἐργάτας εἰς τὸν θερισμὸν αὐτοῦ. (109/V) 3 b Ὑπάγετε, ἰδοὺ ἐγὼ ἀποστέλλω ὑμᾶς ὡς ἄρνας ἐν μέσῳ λύκων. (110/II) 4 c Μὴ βαστάζετε βαλλάντιον, μὴ πήραν, μηδὲ ὑποδήματα· καὶ μηδένα κατὰ τὴν ὁδὸν ἀσπάσησθε. (111/V) 5 d Εἰς ἣν δ' ἂν οἰκίαν εἰσέρχησθε, πρῶτον λέγετε, Εἰρήνη τῷ οἴκῳ τούτῳ. 6 Καὶ ἐὰν ᾖ ἐκεῖ υἱὸς εἰρήνης, ἐπαναπαύσεται ἐπ' αὐτὸν ἡ εἰρήνη ὑμῶν, εἰ δὲ μήγε, ἐφ' ὑμᾶς ἀνακάμψει. (112/II) 7 e Ἐν αὐτῇ δὲ τῇ οἰκίᾳ μένετε, ἐσθίοντες καὶ πίνοντες τὰ παρ' αὐτῶν· ἄξιος γὰρ ὁ ἐργάτης τοῦ μισθοῦ αὐτοῦ ἐστι· μὴ μεταβαίνετε ἐξ οἰκίας εἰς οἰκίαν. (113/X) 8 Καὶ εἰς ἣν δ' ἂν πόλιν εἰσέρχησθε, καὶ δέχωνται ὑμᾶς, ἐσθίετε τὰ παρατιθέμενα ὑμῖν, 9 f καὶ θεραπεύετε τοὺς ἐν αὐτῇ ἀσθενεῖς, καὶ λέγετε αὐτοῖς, Ἤγγικεν ἐφ' ὑμᾶς ἡ βασιλεία τοῦ Θεοῦ. (114/II) 10 g Εἰς ἣν δ' ἂν πόλιν εἰσέρχησθε, καὶ μὴ δέχωνται ὑμᾶς, ἐξελθόντες εἰς τὰς πλατείας αὐτῆς εἴπατε, 11 "Καὶ τὸν κονιορτὸν τὸν κολληθέντα ἡμῖν ἐκ τῆς πόλεως ὑμῶν ἀπομασσόμεθα ὑμῖν· πλὴν τοῦτο γινώσκετε, ὅτι ἤγγικεν ἐφ' ὑμᾶς ἡ βασιλεία τοῦ Θεοῦ." 12 h Λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι Σοδόμοις ἐν τῇ ἡμέρᾳ ἐκείνῃ ἀνεκτότερον ἔσται, ἢ τῇ πόλει ἐκείνῃ. (115/V) 13 Οὐαί σοι, Χοραζίν, οὐαί σοι, Βηθσαϊδά, ὅτι εἰ ἐν Τύρῳ καὶ Σιδῶνι ἐγένοντο αἱ δυνάμεις αἱ γενόμεναι ἐν ὑμῖν, πάλαι ἂν ἐν σάκκῳ καὶ σποδῷ καθήμεναι μετενόησαν. 14 Πλὴν Τύρῳ καὶ Σιδῶνι ἀνεκτότερον ἔσται ἐν τῇ κρίσει, ἢ ὑμῖν. 15 Καὶ σύ, Καφαρναοὺμ, ἡ ἕως τοῦ οὐρανοῦ ὑψωθεῖσα, ἕως ᾅδου καταβιβασθήσῃ. (116/I) 16 c Ὁ ἀκούων ὑμῶν ἐμοῦ ἀκούει, καὶ ὁ ἀθετῶν ὑμᾶς ἐμὲ ἀθετεῖ· ὁ δὲ ἐμὲ ἀθετῶν ἀθετεῖ τὸν ἀποστείλαντά με. (117/X) 17 Ὑπέστρεψαν δὲ οἱ ἑβδομήκοντα μετὰ χαρᾶς λέγοντες, Κύριε, καὶ τὰ δαιμόνια ὑποτάσσεται ἡμῖν ἐν τῷ ὀνόματί σου. 18 i Εἶπε δὲ αὐτοῖς, Ἐθεώρουν τὸν Σατανᾶν ὡς ἀστραπὴν ἐκ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ πεσόντα. 19 j Ἰδοὺ, δίδωμι ὑμῖν τὴν ἐξουσίαν τοῦ πατεῖν ἐπάνω ὄφεων καὶ σκορπίων, καὶ ἐπὶ πᾶσαν τὴν a Matt. 9. 37, 38. John 4. 35. 2 Thess. 3. 1.

b Matt. 10. 16.
c Matt. 10. 9, 10. ch. 9. 3. & 22. 35. Mark 6. 8. 2 Kings 4. 29.
d Matt. 10. 12. Mark 6. 10.
e Lev. 19. 13. Deut. 24. 14. & 25. 4. Matt. 10. 10, 11. 1 Cor. 9. 4, et seqq. 1 Tim. 5. 18.
f ch. 9. 2. Matt. 3. 2. & 4. 17.
g Matt. 10. 14. Mark 6. 11. ch. 9. 5. Acts 13. 51. & 18. 6.
h Matt. 11. 21—23.
i Rev. 12. 8, 9.
j Mark 16. 18. Acts 28. 5.

---

duos caritas haberi non potest; et nobis tacitus innuit, quia qui caritatem erga alterum non habet, prædicationis officium suscipere nullatenus debeat." Cp. Exod. iv. 9.

2. ὁ μὲν θερισμὸς πολύς] the same words as He used before He sent out the Twelve. Matt. ix. 37.

4. μὴ βαστάζετε] See on Matt. x. 9.

— μηδένα κατὰ τὴν ὁδὸν ἀσπάσησθε] Observe τὴν ὁδὸν, your way, i. e. the way on which you go, as Preachers, in the discharge of your duty. "Omnia prætermittatis," says St. Aug. Serm. c. 1, "dum quod injunctum est peragatis:" and St. Ambrose says, "Non salutationis sedulitas aufertur, sed obstaculum impediendæ devotionis aboletur, ut quandò divina mandantur, paulisper sequestrentur humana. Pulchra est salutatio, sed pulchrior matura executio divinorum: ideò et honesta prohibentur, ne impediatur ministerium, cujus mora culpa sit."

The phrase has been explained by reference to the formal and tedious modes of Eastern Salutations (Kuin.), but this does not seem necessary or appropriate. It is rather an Oriental mode of expression (cp. 2 Kings iv. 29), indicating that their whole heart was to be in their work; so that, comparatively, nothing else, even what was most easy, was to be done or thought of. For other similar hyperboles, see John xxi. 25. Luke xix. 44. Rom. ix. 3. Glass. Phil. Sacr. p. 902.

They were not to salute any in the way, but they were to pronounce salutations on their entrance into houses, and say, "Peace be to this house" (v. 5). Courtesy was not to interfere with duty, but was itself to be consecrated into duty.

5. εἰρήνη τῷ οἴκῳ τούτῳ] A divine authorization of Benediction by Presbyters of the Church. See 1 Cor. x. 16, and the Office of Visitation of the Sick in the Book of Common Prayer; and George Herbert, chap. xxxvi. "The Parson blessing," and Hooker, V. xxv. 3. Bingham, Antiq. II. xix. 15.

6. υἱὸς εἰρήνης] See on Matt. ix. 15, οἱ υἱοὶ τοῦ νυμφῶνος. xxiii. 15, υἱὸν γεέννης. Luke xvi. 8, οἱ υἱοὶ τοῦ φωτός. xx. 36, υἱοὶ τῆς ἀναστάσεως. John xii. 36; xvii. 12, ὁ υἱὸς τῆς ἀπωλείας. Ephes. ii. 2; v. 6, υἱοὶ ἀπειθείας. ii. 3, τέκνα ὀργῆς. 1 Thess. v. 5. 2 Pet. ii. 14, κατάρας τέκνα.

11. ἀπομασσόμεθα ὑμῖν] 'we wipe off from ourselves on you.' See on Theocr. xv. 95, where perhaps the true reading may be μή μοι κονίαν ἀπομάξῃ.

12. ἀνεκτότερον] See on Matt. x. 15.

13. οὐαί σοι] Because these cities were in Galilee, it does not follow that this was spoken in Galilee. The words have an intimate connexion with what has just preceded, and also with what follows. Observe the use of τοῦ οὐρανοῦ in vv. 15 and 18, and see also v. 21; and therefore, even if they were spoken in Galilee (see Matt. xi. 20), they have an appropriate place here.

The connexion which the Holy Ghost appears to have preferred in dictating the Gospels, is a connexion of substance rather than of time or place. (See above on Luke iii. 19, on Matt. x. 29, and xxvi. 6, and Mark xiv. 5.)

17. ὑπέστρεψαν] An instance of what was remarked in the previous note. St. Luke, whose practice it is to finish off with a subject on which he has entered (see on iii. 19, and on Matt. xx. 29, and on Mark x. 46), introduces here the return of the seventy, in connexion with their sending forth. "Semper ad eventum festinat."

18. ἐθεώρουν τὸν Σατανᾶν] i. e. when you were casting out devils, I saw (literally, was beholding) the effect of My power, exercised by Myself and by you, on the world of evil spirits, in My Name.

As Theophylact explains the words, "Wonder not that the devils are subject to you, for their Prince is fallen from heaven. Although men saw not this, I saw it, who see what is Invisible. He fell as lightning, because he was a bright Archangel and Lucifer ('and because he fell suddenly,' Euthym.), and is plunged into darkness. If, then, he is fallen, what will not his servants (the inferior spirits) suffer? And the words 'from heaven' may be understood 'from his glory,' in which he is worshipped in the world as God." On ἀπὸ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ, i. e. from high estate, see Isa. xiv. 12. Matt. xi. 23. Rev. xii. 9, and cp. John xiii. 31. Our Lord's view was also prophetic of Satan's future and final fall. On the victory over Satan achieved by Christ, the Seed of the woman, see above, viii. 31, and below, xxii. 3.

19. δίδωμι] See Mark xvi. 18. Rom. xvi. 20.

— τὴν ἐξουσίαν τ. π.] The power of treading; which belongs only to Me and Mine, and can only be given by Me.

— ὄφεων καὶ σκορπίων] These words, following the mention of the fall of Satan, who is the δράκων (Rev. xx. 2), the ἀρχαῖος ὄφις (Rev. xii. 9; xx. 2. 2 Cor. xi. 3), suggest that there is some connexion between his power and the operation of venomous reptiles; and that they may be left in the world by the Providence of God, as a visible warning to man of what he will endure hereafter in another world, unless he places himself by faith and obedience under the protection of Christ, who enables His disciples, by His divine power, to tread on serpents and scorpions, and all the power of the Enemy. (Cp. Mark xvi. 18.) The literal fulfilment of this prophecy in certain cases, e. g. that of St. Paul at Malta (Acts xxviii. 3. 5), was a visible pledge of the protection and strength granted by Christ to His disciples against the noxious and poisonous powers of the spiritual world. It is partly with reference to this conflict that Christ is called "the Eagle,"—"the Great Eagle" (see Rev. xii. 14. Matt. xxiv. 28.

δύναμιν τοῦ ἐχθροῦ· καὶ οὐδὲν ὑμᾶς οὐ μὴ ἀδικήσῃ. 20 k Πλὴν ἐν τούτῳ μὴ χαίρετε, ὅτι τὰ πνεύματα ὑμῖν ὑποτάσσεται· χαίρετε δὲ ὅτι τὰ ὀνόματα ὑμῶν ἐγράφη ἐν τοῖς οὐρανοῖς. (118/V) 21 l Ἐν αὐτῇ τῇ ὥρᾳ ἠγαλλιάσατο τῷ πνεύματι ὁ Ἰησοῦς καὶ εἶπεν, Ἐξομολογοῦμαί σοι, Πάτερ, Κύριε τοῦ οὐρανοῦ καὶ τῆς γῆς, ὅτι ἀπέκρυψας ταῦτα ἀπὸ σοφῶν καὶ συνετῶν, καὶ ἀπεκάλυψας αὐτὰ νηπίοις· ναί, ὁ Πατήρ, ὅτι οὕτως ἐγένετο εὐδοκία ἔμπροσθέν σου. καὶ στραφεὶς πρὸς τοὺς μαθητὰς εἶπεν, (119/III) 22 m Πάντα μοι παρεδόθη ὑπὸ τοῦ Πατρός μου, καὶ οὐδεὶς γινώσκει τίς ἐστιν ὁ Υἱὸς, εἰ μὴ ὁ Πατὴρ, καὶ τίς ἐστιν ὁ Πατὴρ, εἰ μὴ ὁ Υἱὸς, καὶ ᾧ ἐὰν βούληται ὁ Υἱὸς ἀποκαλύψαι· (120/V) 23 n καὶ στραφεὶς πρὸς τοὺς μαθητὰς κατ' ἰδίαν εἶπε, Μακάριοι οἱ ὀφθαλμοὶ οἱ βλέποντες ἃ βλέπετε· 24 λέγω γὰρ ὑμῖν, ὅτι πολλοὶ προφῆται καὶ βασιλεῖς ἠθέλησαν ἰδεῖν ἃ ὑμεῖς βλέπετε, καὶ οὐκ εἶδον· καὶ ἀκοῦσαι ἃ ἀκούετε, καὶ οὐκ ἤκουσαν.

(121/II) 25 o Καὶ ἰδοὺ, νομικός τις ἀνέστη ἐκπειράζων αὐτὸν καὶ λέγων, Διδάσκαλε, τί ποιήσας ζωὴν αἰώνιον κληρονομήσω; 26 Ὁ δὲ εἶπε πρὸς αὐτὸν, Ἐν τῷ νόμῳ τί γέγραπται; πῶς ἀναγινώσκεις; 27 p Ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν, Ἀγαπήσεις Κύριον τὸν Θεόν σου ἐξ ὅλης τῆς καρδίας σου, καὶ ἐξ ὅλης τῆς ψυχῆς σου, καὶ ἐξ ὅλης τῆς ἰσχύος σου, καὶ ἐξ ὅλης τῆς διανοίας σου· καὶ τὸν πλησίον σου ὡς σεαυτόν. 28 q Εἶπε δὲ αὐτῷ, Ὀρθῶς ἀπεκρίθης· τοῦτο ποίει, καὶ ζήσῃ. (122/X) 29 Ὁ δὲ θέλων δικαιοῦν ἑαυτὸν εἶπε πρὸς τὸν Ἰησοῦν καὶ τίς ἐστί μου πλησίον; 30 Ὑπολαβὼν δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν, Ἄνθρωπός τις κατέβαινεν ἀπὸ Ἰερουσαλὴμ εἰς Ἰεριχὼ, καὶ λησταῖς περιέπεσεν, οἳ καὶ ἐκδύσαντες αὐτὸν καὶ πληγὰς ἐπιθέντες ἀπῆλθον, ἀφέντες ἡμιθανῆ τυγχάνοντα. 31 Κατὰ συγκυρίαν δὲ ἱερεύς τις κατέβαινεν ἐν τῇ ὁδῷ ἐκείνῃ, καὶ ἰδὼν αὐτὸν ἀντιπαρῆλθεν. 32 Ὁμοίως δὲ καὶ Λευίτης, γενόμενος κατὰ τὸν τόπον, ἐλθὼν καὶ ἰδὼν ἀντιπαρῆλθε. 33 r Σαμαρείτης δέ τις ὁδεύων ἦλθε κατ' αὐτὸν, καὶ ἰδὼν αὐτὸν ἐσπλαγχνίσθη, 34 καὶ προσελθὼν κατέδησε k Exod. 32. 32. Isa. 4. 3. Dan. 12. 1. Phil. 4. 3. Rev. 13. 8.

l Matt. 11. 25—27.
m Ps. 8. 7. Heb. 2. 8. Matt. 11. 27. & 28. 18. John 3. 35. & 17. 2. 1 Cor. 15. 27. Eph. 1. 21, 22. Phil. 2. 9. John 1. 18. & 6. 46. & 14. 8, 9.
n Matt. 13. 16. 1 Pet. 1. 10.
o Matt. 22. 35. Mark 12. 28. p Deut. 6. 5. & 10. 12. & 30. 6. Lev. 19. 18. Rom. 13. 9. Gal. 5. 14. James 2. 8.
q Lev. 18. 5. Ezek. 20. 11, 13.
r John 4. 9.

Luke xvii. 37),—i. e. the King of Birds,—the Eagle being, in the Natural World, the Enemy and Destroyer of the Serpent.

— ἀδικήσῃ] injure. See Rev. ii. 11; vi. 6; vii. 2, 3.

20. μὴ χαίρετε] The spirits themselves whom you cast out may warn you against pride,—for they were once angels in heaven. And Judas himself had power to cast out devils. Cp. Matt. vii. 22. 1 Cor. xiii. 1, 2.

— τὰ ὀνόματα ὑμῶν ἐγράφη] See Phil. iv. 3. Heb. xii. 23. It is of God's free grace to write us there. We cannot inscribe ourselves. And though written by God, our names may be blotted out by our own hands. Rev. iii. 5. Exod. xxxii. 32, 33. Rev. xxii. 19. Rejoice because your names are written in heaven, though your names may be cast out as evil on earth (vi. 22).

21. ἠγαλλιάσατο] See on Matt. xi. 25.

— σοφῶν] See on Matt. ix. 13.

22. μοὶ παρεδόθη] μοὶ is emphatic,—'to Me, and to none other;' therefore μ. παρ. has been rightly restored from the best MSS. for παρεδόθη μοι.

24. οὐκ εἶδον] 'never saw them.'

26. ἐν τῷ νόμῳ τί γέγραπται] It has been supposed that in asking this question our Lord pointed to the lawyer's phylactery, on which was written the text Deut. vi. 4, which he quoted, and which the Jews were wont to recite daily. Vitring. de Synag. pt. ii. lib. iii. c. 15. Buxtorf. de Syn. cap. 9, and see on Matt. xxiii. 5.

29. τίς ἐστί μοῦ πλησίον] Observe μοῦ πλησίον, My neighbour; though in v. 27 we have πλησίον σου. Our Lord answers such questions as these by not replying to them directly; and so tacitly censures them, and shows that they ought not to be put, and that they proceed from an evil heart. He inverts them, and as it were places them on the basis of duty (see on xiii. 23). He answers the lawyer, by leading him to declare that every man, though a Samaritan, i. e. a foreigner and an enemy (see Luke ix. 52, 53; xvii. 18. John iv. 40. 43), is neighbour to a Jew, whom he assists in distress; and that no one, though a Priest or Levite of Jerusalem, is neighbour to a Jew whom he leaves wounded in the road; and that it is his duty to consider, not who is neighbour to himself, but to whom, however estranged from him, he can act a neighbour's part. The Samaritan who does good, is neighbour to the Jew; and the Samaritan, as neighbour to the Jew, is therefore entitled, as such, to receive good at the Jew's hands. Every one, therefore, is our neighbour. Cp. St. Aug. de Doctr. Christ. v. 30: "Eum esse proximum intelligamus, cui vel exhibendum est officium misericordiæ si indiget, vel exhibendum esset, si indigeret. Ex quo est consequens, ut etiam ille à quo nobis hoc vicissim exhibendum est, proximus sit noster: proximi enim nomen ad aliquid est, nec quisquam esse proximus nisi proximo potest."

30. ἀπὸ Ἰερουσαλὴμ] This confirms the opinion that the events of this portion of the history are connected with Jerusalem (see above, v. 1). This road was infested with robbers (Joseph. Antiq. xv. 7. St. Jerome, in Jerem. iii. 2, and ad Paul. Ep. 77). The distance from Jerusalem to Jericho was 150 stadia (Joseph. Ant. iv. 8. See also Lightfoot, Chorograph. chap. xlvi. vol. ii. 43—45). The traveller came from the "Holy City,"—probably a Jew. The Priest and Levite were perhaps coming from their service in the Temple.

31. κατὰ συγκυρίαν] "by a coincidence." See Trench, p. 308, with his remarks, p. 310, on the relation of the Samaritans (as ἀλλόφυλοι, ἀλλογενεῖς, ἀλλοεθνεῖς, of Cuthite and Assyrian extraction) to the Jews.

This Parable — delivered by Christ in the last year of His Ministry, and not long before He went on the road to Jericho—has also a higher spiritual meaning, and is designed to commend for imitation the example of Christ, the Good Samaritan, traduced and rejected as such by His countrymen. See Aug. Serm. clxxi. 2, and on Ps. li. The Fathers also refer the name Σαμαρείτης to Christ, as the Custos of the Church, with allusion to the Hebrew שָׁמַר (shamar), custodiit (cf. Ps. cxxi. 4. John viii. 48), Who came from heaven to the place where mankind lay, stripped of original righteousness, and wounded by the arch-thief and robber, the devil, and whom the Levitical Law and Priesthood, which came as it were per accidens, κατὰ συγκυρίαν, οὐ προηγουμένως—διὰ τὴν ἀνθρωπίνην ἀσθένειαν μὴ δυναμένην ἐξ ἀρχῆς δίξασθαι τὸ κατὰ Χριστὸν μυστήριον, were unable to restore, and on whom they could only cast a transient glance, and pass by; and Who pours in the cleansing wine and healing oil of His Word and Sacraments, and other means of grace, and carries on His own Body, and places under the care of His Church, on His ascension to heaven, with a promise of an eternal reward, to the dispensers and stewards of His mysteries (1 Pet. iv. 10), when He returns again at the Great Day.

See Aug. Serm. cxxxi. 6: "Oleum et Vinum Baptisma. Hoc est quod infusum est in viâ;" and he interprets τὸ ἴδιον κτῆνος by "caro in quâ ad nos venire dignatus est." St. Aug. Quæst. Ev. ii. 19. τὸ σῶμα αὐτοῦ· μίλη γὰρ αὐτοῦ ἡμᾶς ἐποίησε. (Theoph.)

The inn to which the traveller is brought is the Church,—παδοχεῖον ἡ Ἐκκλησία, ἡ πάντα ὑποδεχομένη (Theoph.), who interprets the δύο δηνάρια as the δύο διαθήκας. Cp. Aug. Serm. cxxxi. 6.

τὰ τραύματα αὐτοῦ, ἐπιχέων ἔλαιον καὶ οἶνον· ἐπιβιβάσας δὲ αὐτὸν ἐπὶ τὸ ἴδιον κτῆνος, ἤγαγεν αὐτὸν εἰς πανδοχεῖον, καὶ ἐπεμελήθη αὐτοῦ. 35 Καὶ ἐπὶ τὴν αὔριον ἐξελθὼν, ἐκβαλὼν δύο δηνάρια ἔδωκε τῷ πανδοχεῖ, καὶ εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Ἐπιμελήθητι αὐτοῦ, καὶ ὅ τι ἂν προσδαπανήσῃς, ἐγὼ ἐν τῷ ἐπανέρχεσθαί με ἀποδώσω σοι. 36 Τίς οὖν τούτων τῶν τριῶν πλησίον δοκεῖ σοι γεγονέναι τοῦ ἐμπεσόντος εἰς τοὺς λῃστάς; 37 Ὁ δὲ εἶπεν, Ὁ ποιήσας τὸ ἔλεος μετ' αὐτοῦ. Εἶπεν οὖν αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Πορεύου καὶ σὺ ποίει ὁμοίως.

a John 11. 1. & 12. 2, 3.

38 a Ἐγένετο δὲ, ἐν τῷ πορεύεσθαι αὐτοὺς, καὶ αὐτὸς εἰσῆλθεν εἰς κώμην τινά· γυνὴ δέ τις ὀνόματι Μάρθα ὑπεδέξατο αὐτὸν εἰς τὸν οἶκον αὐτῆς. 39 t Καὶ τῇδε ἦν ἀδελφὴ καλουμένη Μαρία, ἣ καὶ παρακαθίσασα παρὰ τοὺς πόδας τοῦ Ἰησοῦ ἤκουε τὸν λόγον αὐτοῦ. 40 Ἡ δὲ Μάρθα περιεσπᾶτο περὶ πολλὴν διακονίαν· ἐπιστᾶσα δὲ εἶπε, Κύριε, οὐ μέλει σοι ὅτι ἡ ἀδελφή μου μόνην με κατέλιπε διακονεῖν; εἰπὲ οὖν αὐτῇ ἵνα μοὶ συναντιλάβηται. 41 Ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ εἶπεν αὐτῇ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Μάρθα, Μάρθα, μεριμνᾷς καὶ τυρβάζῃ περὶ πολλά· 42 ἑνὸς δέ ἐστι χρεία. Μαρία δὲ τὴν ἀγαθὴν μερίδα ἐξελέξατο, ἥτις οὐκ ἀφαιρεθήσεται ἀπ' αὐτῆς.

t Acts 22. 3.

XI. (128/V) 1 Καὶ ἐγένετο ἐν τῷ εἶναι αὐτὸν ἐν τόπῳ τινὶ προσευχόμενον, ὡς ἐπαύσατο, εἶπέ τις τῶν μαθητῶν αὐτοῦ πρὸς αὐτόν, Κύριε, δίδαξον ἡμᾶς προσεύχεσθαι, καθὼς καὶ Ἰωάννης ἐδίδαξε τοὺς μαθητὰς αὐτοῦ. 2 a Εἶπε δὲ αὐτοῖς, Ὅταν προσεύχησθε λέγετε· Πάτερ ἡμῶν ὁ ἐν τοῖς οὐρανοῖς, ἁγιασθήτω τὸ ὄνομά σου· ἐλθέτω ἡ βασιλεία σου· γενηθήτω τὸ θέλημά σου ὡς ἐν οὐρανῷ καὶ ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς. 3 Τὸν ἄρτον ἡμῶν τὸν ἐπιούσιον δίδου ἡμῖν τὸ καθ' ἡμέραν· 4 καὶ ἄφες ἡμῖν τὰς ἁμαρτίας ἡμῶν, καὶ γὰρ αὐτοὶ ἀφίεμεν παντὶ ὀφείλοντι ἡμῖν· καὶ μὴ εἰσενέγκῃς ἡμᾶς εἰς πειρασμὸν, ἀλλὰ ῥῦσαι ἡμᾶς ἀπὸ τοῦ πονηροῦ. (124/X) 5 b Καὶ εἶπε πρὸς αὐτοὺς, Τίς ἐξ ὑμῶν ἕξει φίλον, καὶ πορεύσεται

a Matt. 6. 9—13.

b ch. 8. 1, &c.

---

34. ἐπὶ τὸ ἴδιον κτῆνος] And walked on foot to the inn, while the sick man rode. See Origen, who says,—"Aiebat quidam de presbyteris, parabolam volens interpretari, hominem qui descendit esse Adam; Jerusalem, paradisum; Jericho, mundum; latrones contrarias fortitudines; sacerdotem, legem; Levitem, prophetas; Samaritem, Christum; animal, corpus Domini; pandocheum (quod universos suscipiat), Ecclesiam; stabularium, Ecclesiæ præsidem, cui dispensatio credita est. De eo verò quod Samarites reversurum se esse promittit, secundum Salvatoris figurabat adventum." See also St. Aug. Quæst. Ev. ii. 19. Greg. Nazian. Orat. 4, de Theol. Basil. Jerome, Ep. ad Fabiol., and on Matt. xx. St. Cyril, p. 259, and Theophylact here; and for an interesting English Exposition in this sense, see W. Jones of Nayland, Sermon xxxiii. vol. iv. p. 466, Lond. 1826, and Burgon, p. 261.

A lesson of love for Christ as our true neighbour follows of course. "Nihil tàm proximum quàm caput membris," says St. Ambrose, "Eum quasi Dominum diligamus, Eum quasi proximum." The Parable of the Good Samaritan thus explained, prepares the way, by a natural connexion, for the next incident,—the praise of Mary for her love of Christ.

36. πλησίον γεγονέναι] Observe γεγονέναι, to have become neighbour. The neighbour Jews became strangers, the stranger Samaritan became a neighbour, to the wounded traveller. It is not place, but love, which makes neighbourhood.

37. ὁ ποιήσας] He will not say "the Samaritan." (Beng.) — σὺ] emphatic.

38. κώμην τινά] Bethany. Matt. xxi. 17; xxvi. 6. John xi. 1. 18; xii. 1,—another intimation that the circuits which our Lord was making were near Jerusalem.

39. ἤκουε] was listening; the imperfect tense, signifying habit. So περιεσπᾶτο (v. 40).

40. περιεσπᾶτο] 'distrahebatur' (Valck.), who illustrates the word, and contrasts with it St. Paul's expression, which may be applied to Mary, and seems to have been framed on these words of St. Luke 1 Cor. vii. 35, εὐπρόσεδρον τῷ Κυρίῳ ἀπερισπάστως.

"Martha laborans multum in illâ occupatione et negotio ministrandi interpellavit Dominum et de sorore conquesta est" (St. Aug. Serm. civ.), who thus (Serm. ciii.) contrasts the case of Martha and Mary. "Martha Dominum pascere præparans circa multum ministerium occupabatur. Maria soror ejus pasci à Domino magis elegit. Intenta erat Martha quomodò pasceret Dominum; intenta Maria quomodò pasceretur à Domino. Illa multa disponebat, ista Unum aspiciebat."

— Κύριε] Martha requires Christ to command Mary to leave Him, to help her in her much serving. The secular spirit would make the spiritual desert its office, and serve the world.

41. Μάρθα, Μάρθα] "repetitio nominis indicium est delectationis, aut movendæ intentionis ut audiret attentiùs . . ." (St. Aug.) Our Lord reproves her, not for serving, but for being distracted about many things, and about much serving: οὐ τὴν φιλοξενίαν κωλύει Κύριος, ἀλλὰ τὴν ποικιλίαν καὶ τύρβην, τοῦτ' ἔστι τὸν περισπασμὸν καὶ τὴν ταραχήν (Theoph.), who adds, that our Lord did not reprove Martha, until she boasted of her service, and blamed her sister, and would have drawn her away from Christ; and for censuring her sister, who had chosen the "unum necessarium." "Tu circa multa, illa circa Unum. Præponitur unum multis. Non enim à multis unum, sed ab uno multa. Multa sunt quæ facta sunt, Unus est qui fecit." (Aug.)

42. ἥτις οὐκ ἀφαιρεθήσεται] i. e. which will abide with her for ever in the world to come. "Hoc elegit quod semper manebit. Sedebat ad pedes Capitis nostri; quanto humiliùs sedebat tantò ampliùs capiebat. Confluit aqua ad humilitatem convallis: Unum est necessarium: hoc sibi Maria elegit. Transit labor multitudinis, manet caritas unitatis. A te quod elegisti auferetur. Hoc illa elegit quod semper manebit." (Aug.)

CH. XI. 2. ὅταν προσεύχησθε λέγετε] See on Matt. vi. 9. By repeating the same prayer (with some few variations) as He had delivered in the Sermon on the Mount, Our Lord not only teaches (1) to pray; and (2) how to pray, i. e. what ought to be the matter and order of our desires and petitions; but (3) He authorizes and prescribes set forms of prayer. Cp. Matt. xxvi. 44.

— ἐν τοῖς οὐρανοῖς] These words are not in B, L, and some other MSS. St. Luke, writing to the Gentiles, never uses the term βασιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν (but βασιλεία τοῦ Θεοῦ), lest he should countenance the heathen idea of a local deity; but the words πάτερ ὁ ἐν τοῖς οὐρανοῖς had been explained before, x. 20; see also xii. 33.

— ἁγιασθήτω τὸ ὄνομά σου] B, L, and some few other MSS. omit γενηθήτω τὸ θέλημά σου ὡς ἐν οὐρανῷ καὶ ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς, and ἀλλὰ ῥῦσαι ἡμᾶς ἀπὸ τοῦ πονηροῦ. See Origen, περὶ εὐχῆς, ii. p. 226. Cf. August. Enchirid. c. 116. If this clause was interpolated from St. Matthew, why was not the whole prayer here made identical with its form in that Gospel?

3. τὸ καθ' ἡμέραν] For this use of τό, cp. xix. 47. James iv. 14, τὸ τῆς αὔριον. 2 Pet. ii. 22. τὸ τῆς ἀληθοῦς παροιμίας. And the sense is, Give to us, by the each day,—i. e. as it succeeds,—that bread which is needful for us. On ἐπιούσιον, see Matt. vi. 11.

4. ἀφίεμεν] A, B, E, K, have ἀφίομεν, and ἀφίω is found in Eccles. ii. 18; v. 11.

πρὸς αὐτὸν μεσονυκτίου, καὶ εἴπῃ αὐτῷ, Φίλε, χρῆσόν μοι τρεῖς ἄρτους, 6 ἐπειδὴ φίλος μου παρεγένετο ἐξ ὁδοῦ πρός με, καὶ οὐκ ἔχω ὃ παραθήσω αὐτῷ· 7 κἀκεῖνος ἔσωθεν ἀποκριθεὶς εἴπῃ, Μή μοι κόπους πάρεχε, ἤδη ἡ θύρα κέκλεισται, καὶ τὰ παιδία μου μετ' ἐμοῦ εἰς τὴν κοίτην εἰσίν· οὐ δύναμαι ἀναστὰς δοῦναί σοι. 8 Λέγω ὑμῖν, εἰ καὶ οὐ δώσει αὐτῷ ἀναστὰς διὰ τὸ εἶναι αὐτοῦ φίλον· διά γε τὴν ἀναίδειαν αὐτοῦ ἐγερθεὶς δώσει αὐτῷ ὅσων χρῄζει. (125/V) 9 Κἀγὼ ὑμῖν λέγω, [c] Αἰτεῖτε, καὶ δοθήσεται ὑμῖν· ζητεῖτε, καὶ εὑρήσετε· κρούετε, καὶ ἀνοιγήσεται ὑμῖν· 10 πᾶς γὰρ ὁ αἰτῶν λαμβάνει, καὶ ὁ ζητῶν εὑρίσκει, καὶ τῷ κρούοντι ἀνοιχθήσεται. 11 Τίνα δὲ ἐξ ὑμῶν τὸν πατέρα αἰτήσει ὁ υἱὸς ἄρτον, μὴ λίθον ἐπιδώσει αὐτῷ; ἢ καὶ ἰχθῦν, μὴ ἀντὶ ἰχθύος ὄφιν ἐπιδώσει αὐτῷ; 12 ἢ καὶ ἐὰν αἰτήσῃ ᾠόν, μὴ ἐπιδώσει αὐτῷ σκορπίον; 13 Εἰ οὖν ὑμεῖς πονηροὶ ὑπάρχοντες οἴδατε δόματα ἀγαθὰ διδόναι τοῖς τέκνοις ὑμῶν, πόσῳ μᾶλλον ὁ Πατὴρ ὁ ἐξ οὐρανοῦ δώσει πνεῦμα ἅγιον τοῖς αἰτοῦσιν αὐτόν;

c Matt. 7. 7—11.

(126/V) 14 [d] Καὶ ἦν ἐκβάλλων δαιμόνιον, καὶ αὐτὸ ἦν κωφόν· ἐγένετο δὲ, τοῦ δαιμονίου ἐξελθόντος ἐλάλησεν ὁ κωφός· καὶ ἐθαύμασαν οἱ ὄχλοι. (127/II) 15 Τινὲς δὲ ἐξ αὐτῶν εἶπον, Ἐν Βεελζεβοὺλ ἄρχοντι τῶν δαιμονίων ἐκβάλλει τὰ δαιμόνια. (128/V) 16 ἕτεροι δὲ πειράζοντες σημεῖον ἐξ οὐρανοῦ ἐζήτουν παρ' αὐτοῦ. (129/II) 17 Αὐτὸς δὲ, εἰδὼς αὐτῶν τὰ διανοήματα εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Πᾶσα βασιλεία ἐφ' ἑαυτὴν διαμερισθεῖσα ἐρημοῦται, καὶ οἶκος ἐπὶ οἶκον, πίπτει. 18 Εἰ δὲ καὶ ὁ Σατανᾶς ἐφ' ἑαυτὸν διεμερίσθη, πῶς σταθήσεται ἡ βασιλεία αὐτοῦ; ὅτι λέγετε ἐν Βεελζεβοὺλ ἐκβάλλειν με τὰ δαιμόνια. 19 Εἰ δὲ ἐγὼ ἐν Βεελζεβοὺλ ἐκβάλλω τὰ δαιμόνια, οἱ υἱοὶ ὑμῶν ἐν τίνι ἐκβάλλουσι; διὰ τοῦτο κριταὶ ὑμῶν αὐτοὶ ἔσονται. 20 Εἰ δὲ ἐν δακτύλῳ Θεοῦ ἐκβάλλω τὰ δαιμόνια, ἄρα ἔφθασεν ἐφ' ὑμᾶς ἡ βασιλεία τοῦ Θεοῦ. 21 Ὅταν ὁ ἰσχυρὸς καθωπλισμένος φυλάσσῃ τὴν ἑαυτοῦ αὐλὴν, ἐν εἰρήνῃ ἐστὶ τὰ ὑπάρχοντα αὐτοῦ. 22 ἐπὰν δὲ ὁ ἰσχυρότερος αὐτοῦ ἐπελθὼν νικήσῃ αὐτὸν, τὴν πανοπλίαν αὐτοῦ αἴρει, ἐφ' ᾗ ἐπεποίθει, καὶ τὰ σκῦλα αὐτοῦ διαδίδωσιν. 23 Ὁ μὴ ὢν μετ' ἐμοῦ κατ' ἐμοῦ ἐστι· καὶ ὁ μὴ συνάγων μετ' ἐμοῦ σκορπίζει. (130/V) 24 Ὅταν τὸ ἀκάθαρτον πνεῦμα ἐξέλθῃ ἀπὸ τοῦ ἀνθρώπου, διέρχεται δι' ἀνύδρων τόπων ζητοῦν ἀνάπαυσιν· καὶ μὴ εὑρίσκον

d Matt. 12. 22—44.

---

7. κέκλεισται] with bar and bolt, which it will be troublesome to remove.

— εἰς τὴν κοίτην] i. e. have come to—and are now in,—bed, and cannot rise and come out of it.

10. ἀνοιχθήσεται] So A, E, G, H, K, S, V. ἀνοιγήσεται, Elz.

11. τίνα δὲ ἐξ ὑμῶν] See Matt. vii. 9.

— τὸν πατέρα] his father.

— ἢ] So A, C, D, E, F, G, K, L, S, V. εἰ, Elz. and others.

14. καὶ ἦν ἐκβάλλων] This portion of St. Luke's narrative (v. 14—26) affords a striking instance of the manner employed in his Gospel by the Holy Spirit, of grouping incidents and sayings together according to their spiritual connexion,—the truest connexion, especially in the eye of Him, with Whom the ideas of Time and Place are lost, in His Divine Eternity and Omnipresence. And incidentally this mode of writing supplies a silent proof, not only of St. Luke's posteriority to St. Matthew and St. Mark, but also of the divine origin of the Gospels.

Time and place are needful for man. And the Holy Spirit, by St. Matthew and St. Mark, had fixed the time and place of those incidents. (See Matt. xii. 22—37. Mark iii. 22—30.) He now deals with them by St. Luke according to their inner relation to each other.

These considerations are more necessary to be observed, because they seem to have been lost sight of by some Harmonists.

What then must be said of those Critics, who (like Schleiermacher, and much more De Wette) censure St. Luke here, as if he were an ill-informed and inaccurate compiler, because his Gospel is not subordinate to the lower laws of human agency, but is constructed on the higher principles of spiritual order and chronology. But "Wisdom is justified of her children."

The inner connexion of this chapter is as follows:—

Our Lord is praying, and is desired by a disciple to teach them to pray. Prayer, then, is the key-note now struck by a special incident. The rest follows in harmony. He gives a form of prayer; and proceeds to teach the blessedness of perseverance in prayer; with an assurance that God will give the Holy Spirit to those who pray for Him.

The mention of the Holy Spirit, as a gift of God, leads naturally to the mention of Christ's power over the Evil Spirit generally, and particularly when dumb, i. e. when hindering prayer; and the proof thence given that the Kingdom of God is come to them, and ought to be joyfully received. And (in the paragraphs here inserted with this connexion) Our Lord goes on to warn them (vv. 14—23), that though He has the will and power to cast from their hearts the Evil Spirit, yet it is for them to watch and pray lest he return; for he will desire and seek to return, and if when cast out he does return, he will be more fierce and inveterate than before (vv. 24—26).

He goes on to show the blessedness of having Christ's image formed in our souls (which will keep out the Evil Spirit), and of bringing forth His Spirit in our lives. And having described this blessedness, He contrasts with it the sinful and miserable condition and doom of those who reject or neglect the offers of the Kingdom, now displayed by His preaching and miracles. They, who are deaf to His gracious message, will be put to shame and condemned at the great day by the example of the Queen of Sheba and of the Ninevites (29—32). He then warns them, that the light of the Holy Spirit is kindled in their hearts, in order that it may burn brightly and purely in their lives (33—36), especially in rectitude of intention (i. e. for the glory of God, and according to the light of His law); and He warns them by woes denounced on the Pharisees, against an empty, barren, and hypocritical show of religion (37—52).

15. Βεελζεβούλ] See on Matt. x. 25; xii. 24—27.

17. οἶκος ἐπὶ οἶκον] Not one house against another,—but a house against itself. Cp. Matt. xii. 25. Mark iii. 23, Σατανᾶς—Σατανᾶν.

20. δακτύλῳ] without labour. See Matt. xxiii. 4.

21. ὅταν ὁ ἰσχυρός] See Matt. xii. 29. Observe the article ὁ, he that is the stronger; being stronger than all.

— αὐλήν] court-yard,—a word used eight times in the history of the Crucifixion, when our Lord encountered Satan in the αὐλὴ of the High Priest.

23. ὁ μὴ συνάγων μετ' ἐμοῦ] See Matt. xii. 30. 43.

24. ὅταν τὸ ἀκάθαρτον πνεῦμα] The Evil Spirit has been cast out at Baptism. He goes about roaring through dry places—among souls whose baptismal graces are dried up (cp. Heb. vi. 4—8); he returns to the house whence he was cast out, and finds it swept and garnished, lying idle and empty, and returns with great force and dwells there. (See Greg. Nazian. p. 719.)

λέγει, Ὑποστρέψω εἰς τὸν οἶκόν μου ὅθεν ἐξῆλθον. 25 Καὶ ἐλθὸν εὑρίσκει σεσαρωμένον καὶ κεκοσμημένον. 26 Τότε πορεύεται καὶ παραλαμβάνει ἑπτὰ ἕτερα πνεύματα πονηρότερα ἑαυτοῦ, καὶ εἰσελθόντα κατοικεῖ ἐκεῖ· καὶ γίνεται τὰ ἔσχατα τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἐκείνου χείρονα τῶν πρώτων.

e Matt. 12. 39—42.

(131/X) 27 e Ἐγένετο δὲ, ἐν τῷ λέγειν αὐτὸν ταῦτα, ἐπάρασά τις γυνὴ φωνὴν ἐκ τοῦ ὄχλου εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Μακαρία ἡ κοιλία ἡ βαστάσασά σε, καὶ μαστοὶ οὓς ἐθήλασας. 28 Αὐτὸς δὲ εἶπε, Μενοῦνγε μακάριοι οἱ ἀκούοντες τὸν λόγον τοῦ Θεοῦ, καὶ φυλάσσοντες αὐτόν. (132/V) 29 Τῶν δὲ ὄχλων ἐπαθροιζομένων ἤρξατο λέγειν, Ἡ γενεὰ αὕτη πονηρά ἐστι· σημεῖον ἐπιζητεῖ, καὶ σημεῖον οὐ δοθήσεται αὐτῇ, εἰ μὴ τὸ σημεῖον Ἰωνᾶ τοῦ προφήτου· 30 καθὼς γὰρ ἐγένετο Ἰωνᾶς σημεῖον τοῖς Νινευίταις, οὕτως ἔσται καὶ ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου τῇ γενεᾷ ταύτῃ. 31 Βασίλισσα νότου ἐγερθήσεται ἐν τῇ κρίσει μετὰ τῶν ἀνδρῶν τῆς γενεᾶς ταύτης, καὶ κατακρινεῖ αὐτούς· ὅτι ἦλθεν ἐκ τῶν περάτων τῆς γῆς ἀκοῦσαι τὴν σοφίαν Σολομῶνος· καὶ ἰδοὺ πλεῖον Σολομῶνος ὧδε. 32 Ἄνδρες Νινευῖται ἀναστήσονται ἐν τῇ κρίσει μετὰ τῆς γενεᾶς ταύτης, καὶ κατακρινοῦσιν αὐτήν· ὅτι μετενόησαν εἰς τὸ κήρυγμα Ἰωνᾶ· καὶ ἰδοὺ πλεῖον Ἰωνᾶ ὧδε.

f Matt. 5. 15. & 6. 22, 23.

(133/II) 33 f Οὐδεὶς δὲ λύχνον ἅψας εἰς κρύπτην τίθησιν, οὐδὲ ὑπὸ τὸν μόδιον, ἀλλὰ ἐπὶ τὴν λυχνίαν, ἵνα οἱ εἰσπορευόμενοι τὸ φέγγος βλέπωσιν. (134/V) 34 Ὁ λύχνος τοῦ σώματός ἐστιν ὁ ὀφθαλμός· ὅταν οὖν ὁ ὀφθαλμός σου ἁπλοῦς ᾖ, καὶ ὅλον τὸ σῶμά σου φωτεινὸν ἐστιν· ἐπὰν δὲ πονηρὸς ᾖ, καὶ τὸ σῶμά σου σκοτεινόν· 35 σκόπει οὖν μὴ τὸ φῶς τὸ ἐν σοὶ σκότος ἐστίν· 36 εἰ οὖν τὸ σῶμά σου ὅλον φωτεινὸν, μὴ ἔχον τι μέρος σκοτεινὸν, ἔσται φωτεινὸν ὅλον, ὡς ὅταν ὁ λύχνος τῇ ἀστραπῇ φωτίζῃ σε.

g Matt. 23. 25—35.

37 Ἐν δὲ τῷ λαλῆσαι, ἠρώτα αὐτὸν Φαρισαῖός τις ὅπως ἀριστήσῃ παρ' αὐτῷ· εἰσελθὼν δὲ ἀνέπεσεν. 38 Ὁ δὲ Φαρισαῖος ἰδὼν ἐθαύμασεν, ὅτι οὐ πρῶτον ἐβαπτίσθη πρὸ τοῦ ἀρίστου. (135/V) 39 Εἶπε δὲ ὁ Κύριος πρὸς αὐτόν, g Νῦν ὑμεῖς οἱ Φαρισαῖοι τὸ ἔξωθεν τοῦ ποτηρίου καὶ τοῦ πίνακος καθαρίζετε, τὸ δὲ ἔσωθεν ὑμῶν γέμει ἁρπαγῆς καὶ πονηρίας. 40 Ἄφρονες, οὐχ ὁ ποιήσας τὸ ἔξωθεν καὶ τὸ

---

26. ἑπτά] See viii. 2. Mark xvi. 9.

28. μενοῦνγε] 'Quin imò.' (Volck.) Yea, indeed, but —. See Rom. ix. 20; x. 18. Phil. iii. 8. Winer, p. 493.

29. σημεῖον ἐπιζητεῖ] See on Matt. xii. 38—42.

30. Ἰωνᾶς σημεῖον] Hence it appears that Jonah's deliverance from the whale's belly was known to the Ninevites.

31. ἀνδρῶν] men, inferior in wisdom to a woman, the Queen of Sheba.

33. οὐδείς] See Matt. v. 15. The sense of these words (vv. 33—36), which are directed specially against the Pharisees, and those who resemble them, is as follows:—

The Pharisees sought for a sign, but they were an evil generation, and sought it with an evil intention. No sign, therefore, should be given to them. But signs enough (σημεῖα) would be afforded to those who are not evil, in the miracles (σημείοις) and doctrine of Christ. For Christ did not light the candle of His Gospel in the World to be hidden, but that all who will see, may see it. (See St. Cyril here.) But no one can see it, if he has an evil eye, i. e. a wicked intention, as the Pharisees had. (See Gregor. 28. Moral. c. 12, and Bede.) If the intention is holy, then all the whole man is full of light; but if it is evil, the whole man is full of darkness: and it is vain for such men that the Light is come into the World, "for they love darkness rather than light, because their deeds are evil" (John iii. 19). Our mind is our λύχνος, which shines when it has φῶς Θεοῦ. (Theoph. on cap. xii: 35.) Take heed, therefore, that what God intended for thy light be not darkness. Let no cloud of passion or prejudice darken the inner light of the spiritual eye. If thy whole man be full of light, have no part dark, every thing (see next note) will be full of light, being illumined by the light of Christ, as when a candle with its light doth give thee light.

— εἰς κρύπτην] into a vault or cellar, crypt. Athen. v. 205, A, τοῦ ὑπερῴου κρύπτη.

34. ὁ λύχνος] See on Matt. vi. 22.

35. μὴ—ἐστίν] "that the light that is in thee be not darkness." On this use of μή with indicative, see Winer, p. 589.

36. εἰ οὖν τὸ σῶμά σου ὅλον φωτεινόν] It is alleged by some interpreters that this sentence is tautologous; that it has the same sense in the protasis and apodosis, and therefore it is said by Kuinoel to be "compositus ex interpretamentis atque glossematis ad v. 34 adscriptis."

But it is not tautologous. The sense is: The light of the body (i. e. of thy whole man) is the eye; if thine eye be single (i. e. if thou hast a single eye to God's glory in all thy thoughts and actions, and orderest them to that end, according to His Law), thy whole body will be luminous. If, then, thy whole body be luminous, not having any part dark, all around thee will be light, as when a candle with its ἀστραπὴ beams upon thee. ὅλον is the Hebr. כֹּל (col), every thing, and is used in this sense Matt. i. 22, τοῦτο δὲ ὅλον γέγονε. xiii. 33; xxi. 4; xxvi. 56. Luke xiii. 21, ἐζυμώθη ὅλον, and cp. 1 Cor. xii. 17. If thou art unlike the Pharisee, who seeks a sign not for faith, but to cavil at it; if thou seekest humbly for the truth; if thou aimest only at one end—God's glory by good means—then in every circumstance and emergency of life, a clear conviction of what thou oughtest to do will immediately flash upon thee.

37. Φαρισαῖος] Here is the key-note of this passage to the end of the chapter—a Pharisee.

Prayer was the key-note of the former part, struck by an incident at this time, viz. our Lord's being engaged in prayer (see v. 1). So now; a Pharisee asks Him to dine with him (vv. 37—40). Our Lord uses the occasion as one of exhortation and warning to the Pharisees generally.

This incident, like the former, is peculiar to St. Luke's Gospel; and on the note so struck, the Holy Spirit proceeds most fitly and beautifully to introduce a solemn strain of denunciation, delivered afterwards by Christ on another occasion (Matt. xxiii. 13—36).

Thus the Holy Spirit looks backward and forward, sees as it were with a glance what Christ has said and will say, and brings the rays together in a spiritual prism, in order to show more clearly the light of His divine teaching. See below, xii. 13.

— ἀνέπεσεν] Went and reclined on the couch without washing.

"Quærebat animas et escis capiebat." (Maldon.) He converts meals for the body into banquets for the soul.

38. οὐκ ἐβαπτίσθη] Our Lord did not wash before dinner, in order that the Pharisee might wonder; and in order that He might teach the necessity of an inward washing of the soul.

39. νῦν] now,—marking, perhaps, their degeneracy from the ancient law and from earlier times. You who boast yourselves better than your fathers are worse than they; Grot., who refers to ἡ γενεὰ αὕτη (see v. 50); the climax of moral depravity. But it may rather be, that νῦν is used here to bring out the contrast between inward and outward cleansing. Now, while you are so careful to cleanse these vessels on this table, you are careless about yourselves.

— ὑμῶν] 'of yourselves,' contrasted with ποτηρίου. You take more care of the outside of your cups, than of the inside of yourselves. Cp. Juvenal, xiv. 62—70.

ἔσωθεν ἐποίησε; 41 Πλὴν τὰ ἐνόντα δότε ἐλεημοσύνην, καὶ ἰδοὺ πάντα καθαρὰ ὑμῖν ἐστιν. (136/V) 42 Ἀλλ' οὐαὶ ὑμῖν τοῖς Φαρισαίοις, ὅτι ἀποδεκατοῦτε τὸ ἡδύοσμον καὶ τὸ πήγανον καὶ πᾶν λάχανον, καὶ παρέρχεσθε τὴν κρίσιν καὶ τὴν ἀγάπην τοῦ Θεοῦ. Ταῦτα ἔδει ποιῆσαι κἀκεῖνα μὴ ἀφιέναι. (137/II) 43 Οὐαὶ ὑμῖν τοῖς Φαρισαίοις, ὅτι ἀγαπᾶτε τὴν πρωτοκαθεδρίαν ἐν ταῖς συναγωγαῖς, καὶ τοὺς ἀσπασμοὺς ἐν ταῖς ἀγοραῖς. (138/V) 44 Οὐαὶ ὑμῖν, Γραμματεῖς καὶ Φαρισαῖοι, ὑποκριταί, ὅτι ἐστὲ ὡς τὰ μνημεῖα τὰ ἄδηλα, καὶ οἱ ἄνθρωποι περιπατοῦντες ἐπάνω οὐκ οἴδασιν. (139/V) 45 Ἀποκριθεὶς δέ τις τῶν νομικῶν λέγει αὐτῷ, Διδάσκαλε, ταῦτα λέγων καὶ ἡμᾶς ὑβρίζεις. 46 Ὁ δὲ εἶπε· Καὶ ὑμῖν τοῖς νομικοῖς οὐαί, ὅτι φορτίζετε τοὺς ἀνθρώπους φορτία δυσβάστακτα, καὶ αὐτοὶ ἑνὶ τῶν δακτύλων ὑμῶν οὐ προσψαύετε τοῖς φορτίοις. (140/V) 47 Οὐαὶ ὑμῖν, ὅτι οἰκοδομεῖτε τὰ μνημεῖα τῶν προφητῶν, οἱ δὲ πατέρες ὑμῶν ἀπέκτειναν αὐτούς· 48 ἄρα μαρτυρεῖτε καὶ συνευδοκεῖτε τοῖς ἔργοις τῶν πατέρων ὑμῶν· ὅτι αὐτοὶ μὲν ἀπέκτειναν αὐτούς, ὑμεῖς δὲ οἰκοδομεῖτε αὐτῶν τὰ μνημεῖα. (141/V) 49 Διὰ τοῦτο καὶ ἡ σοφία τοῦ Θεοῦ εἶπεν, Ἀποστελῶ εἰς αὐτοὺς προφήτας καὶ ἀποστόλους, καὶ ἐξ αὐτῶν ἀποκτενοῦσι καὶ ἐκδιώξουσιν, 50 h ἵνα ἐκζητηθῇ τὸ αἷμα πάντων τῶν προφητῶν, τὸ ἐκχυνόμενον ἀπὸ καταβολῆς κόσμου, ἀπὸ τῆς γενεᾶς ταύτης, 51 i ἀπὸ τοῦ αἵματος Ἅβελ ἕως j τοῦ αἵματος Ζαχαρίου τοῦ ἀπολομένου μεταξὺ τοῦ θυσιαστηρίου καὶ τοῦ οἴκου· k ναί, λέγω ὑμῖν, ἐκζητηθήσεται ἀπὸ τῆς γενεᾶς ταύτης. (142/V) 52 l Οὐαὶ ὑμῖν τοῖς νομικοῖς, ὅτι ἤρατε τὴν κλεῖδα τῆς γνώσεως· αὐτοὶ οὐκ εἰσήλθετε, καὶ τοὺς εἰσερχομένους ἐκωλύσατε. (143/X) 53 Λέγοντος δὲ αὐτοῦ ταῦτα πρὸς αὐτούς, ἤρξαντο οἱ Γραμματεῖς καὶ οἱ Φαρισαῖοι δεινῶς ἐνέχειν, καὶ ἀποστοματίζειν αὐτὸν περὶ πλειόνων 54 ἐνεδρεύοντες αὐτόν, ζητοῦντες θηρεῦσαί τι ἐκ τοῦ στόματος αὐτοῦ, ἵνα κατηγορήσωσιν αὐτοῦ.

h Matt. 23. 34, 35.
i Gen. 4. 8.
j 2 Chron. 24. 20, 21.
k Matt. 23. 36.
l Matt. 23. 13.

XII. (144/II) 1 Ἐν οἷς ἐπισυναχθεισῶν τῶν μυριάδων τοῦ ὄχλου ὥστε καταπατεῖν ἀλλήλους, ἤρξατο λέγειν πρὸς τοὺς μαθητὰς αὐτοῦ πρῶτον, a προσέχετε ἑαυτοῖς ἀπὸ τῆς ζύμης τῶν Φαρισαίων, ἥτις ἐστὶν ὑπόκρισις. (145/V) 2 b Οὐδὲν δὲ συγκεκαλυμμένον ἐστὶν, ὃ οὐκ ἀποκαλυφθήσεται· καὶ κρυπτὸν, ὃ οὐ γνωσθήσεται. 3 Ἀνθ' ὧν ὅσα ἐν τῇ σκοτίᾳ εἴπατε, ἐν τῷ φωτὶ ἀκουσθήσεται· καὶ ὃ πρὸς τὸ οὖς ἐλαλήσατε ἐν τοῖς ταμείοις, κηρυχθήσεται ἐπὶ τῶν δωμάτων. 4 c Λέγω δὲ ὑμῖν τοῖς φίλοις μου, Μὴ φοβηθῆτε ἀπὸ τῶν ἀποκτεινόντων τὸ

a Matt. 16. 6.
b Matt. 10. 26.
c Matt. 10. 27—33. Isa. 51. 7, 8. Jer. 1. 8.

41. τὰ ἐνόντα] i. e. what is within,—and first, what is within yourselves,—i. e. your own souls. He compares the Pharisees to their own vessels on the table (see the word σκεύος, Hebr. כְּלִי),—often used for the human frame (Acts ix. 15. Rom. ix. 21. 23. 2 Cor. iv. 7. 1 Thess. iv. 4. 2 Tim. ii. 21. 1 Pet. iii. 7). He blames them for cleansing the outside of the vessel, while the meats and drinks within it are the produce of extortion and rapacity. So it is with themselves. First, therefore, cleanse that which is within, τὰ ἐνόντα. Give what is within your vessels,—i. e. your meat and drink,—in charity; the opposite to rapacity, by which they are too often acquired. And give your heart. And therefore the Prophet not only says, "deal out thy bread" (Isa. lviii. 7), but also, "draw out thy soul to the hungry" (lviii. 10). Give what is within in alms; deal that out in acts of love to God and man which is the true ἐλεημοσύνη (i. e. mercy bringing a blessing to the doer as well as to the receiver); and when the heart is thus cleansed, then all will be clean.

"Fac misericordiam," says St. Aug. (Serm. cvi.), "à te incipe. Mendicat à te anima tua: fac eleemosynam cum animâ tuâ. Miserere animæ tuæ, placens Deo. Da illi (i. e. animæ tuæ) panem.—Quem panem? Ipse tecum loquitur, Crede in Christum; et mundabuntur quæ intus sunt et quæ foris sunt."

42. οὐαί] See Matt. xxiii. 23.

— ἀποδεκατοῦτε] 'pay tithe of.'

43. οὐαί] See Matt. xxiii. 6.

44. οὐαί] See Matt. xxiii. 27.

— μνημεῖα τὰ ἄδηλα—οἴδασιν] So that men approach them unconsciously, and know not when they walk over them, and incur pollution unawares. Elz. has οἱ before περιπατοῦντες, but it is not in A, D, K, S, V, X.

45. καὶ ἡμᾶς] 'even us.' Hence some distinguish between the Scribes and Lawyers; but see Vorst., Heb. p. 84, and probably the meaning is, that by censuring the Scribes by name, He had taxed the Lawyers, who were of that class. Not only dost thou censure the Pharisees, but us, the most learned of the nation.

46. οὐαί] See Matt. xxiii. 29.

49. ἡ σοφία τοῦ Θεοῦ] i. e. Christ Himself; as appears from Matt. xxiii. 34. The Divine Logos is the sender of the Prophets, and spake by their mouths,—e. g. of Zacharias (2 Chron. xxiv. 20. 22), to whose words Christ refers.

51. Ζαχαρίου] See on Matt. xxiii. 35.

52. οὐαί] See Matt. xxiii. 13.

— ἤρατε] 'a populo abstulistis.' On αἴρειν, auferre, see Luke vi. 29, 30; xi. 22. John i. 29; x. 18; xix. 15: "vobis vindicastis—doctrinam divinæ cognitionis vobis usurpatis." (St. Ambrose.)

— τὴν κλεῖδα τῆς γνώσεως] By which the treasures of the Holy Scriptures are unlocked and opened to the people (τὴν διὰ τοῦ νόμου χειραγωγίαν, Theoph.), and the key by which the kingdom of heaven is opened to them.

— εἰσήλθατε] A, B, C, D, E, L, M, have εἰσήλθατε.

CH. XII. 1. ἐν οἷς ἐπισυναχθεισῶν] "quum convenissent."

— ζύμης] See Matt. xvi. 6. 11, 12. Mark viii. 15. 1 Cor. v. 6. 8.

3. ταμείοις] See Matt. vi. 6; x. 27. Mark iv. 22. Kuinoel thinks that the sense is, "Whatsoever ye have hitherto preached privately, henceforth preach publicly." "Quæcunque hactenus privatim docuistis, in posterum publicè doceri debent."

But these words were addressed to the Apostles, before they had preached at all. The meaning appears to be, "Whatever you may have said privately (i. e. whatever you shall have spoken privately), especially in your future ministry, will be known publicly; and you will be rewarded accordingly by your Father that heareth and seeth in secret, at the Great Day." See Origen here.

4. μὴ φοβηθῆτε ἀπὸ τῶν ἀποκ.] 'fear nothing from them.' On the Æolic forms ἀποκτεινόντων and ἀποκτενόντων, the readings of many MSS., see Winer, p. 76. One of them, probably, may be the true reading here.

This precept (compared with Matt. x. 28) is a divine protest against the notion of a sleep of the soul after death.

σῶμα, καὶ μετὰ ταῦτα μὴ ἐχόντων περισσότερόν τι ποιῆσαι· 5 ὑποδείξω δὲ ὑμῖν τίνα φοβηθῆτε· φοβήβητε τὸν μετὰ τὸ ἀποκτεῖναι ἐξουσίαν ἔχοντα ἐμβαλεῖν εἰς τὴν γέενναν· ναὶ, λέγω ὑμῖν, τοῦτον φοβήθητε. 6 Οὐχὶ πέντε στρουθία πωλεῖται ἀσσαρίων δύο; καὶ ἓν ἐξ αὐτῶν οὐκ ἔστιν ἐπιλελησμένον ἐνώπιον τοῦ Θεοῦ· 7 ἀλλὰ καὶ αἱ τρίχες τῆς κεφαλῆς ὑμῶν πᾶσαι ἠρίθμηνται. Μὴ οὖν φοβεῖσθε· πολλῶν στρουθίων διαφέρετε. 8 Λέγω δὲ ὑμῖν, Πᾶς ὃς ἂν ὁμολογήσῃ ἐν ἐμοὶ ἔμπροσθεν τῶν ἀνθρώπων, καὶ ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ὁμολογήσει ἐν αὐτῷ ἔμπροσθεν τῶν ἀγγέλων τοῦ Θεοῦ· (146/II) 9 ὁ δὲ ἀρνησάμενός με ἐνώπιον τῶν ἀνθρώπων, ἀπαρνηθήσεται ἐνώπιον τῶν ἀγγέλων τοῦ Θεοῦ.

(147/II) 10 [d] Καὶ πᾶς ὃς ἐρεῖ λόγον εἰς τὸν Υἱὸν τοῦ ἀνθρώπου, ἀφεθήσεται αὐτῷ· τῷ δὲ εἰς τὸ ἅγιον Πνεῦμα βλασφημήσαντι οὐκ ἀφεθήσεται. (148/II) 11 [e] Ὅταν δὲ προσφέρωσιν ὑμᾶς ἐπὶ τὰς συναγωγὰς, καὶ τὰς ἀρχὰς, καὶ τὰς ἐξουσίας, μὴ μεριμνᾶτε πῶς ἢ τί ἀπολογήσησθε, ἢ τί εἴπητε· 12 τὸ γὰρ ἅγιον Πνεῦμα διδάξει ὑμᾶς ἐν αὐτῇ τῇ ὥρᾳ ἃ δεῖ εἰπεῖν.

(149/X) 13 Εἶπε δέ τις αὐτῷ ἐκ τοῦ ὄχλου, Διδάσκαλε, εἰπὲ τῷ ἀδελφῷ μου μερίσασθαι μετ' ἐμοῦ τὴν κληρονομίαν. 14 Ὁ δὲ εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Ἄνθρωπε, τίς με κατέστησε δικαστὴν ἢ μεριστὴν ἐφ' ὑμᾶς; 15 Εἶπε δὲ πρὸς αὐτοὺς, [f] Ὁρᾶτε καὶ φυλάσσεσθε ἀπὸ πάσης πλεονεξίας, ὅτι οὐκ ἐν τῷ περισσεύειν τινὶ ἡ ζωὴ αὐτοῦ ἐστιν ἐκ τῶν ὑπαρχόντων αὐτοῦ. 16 Εἶπε δὲ παραβολὴν πρὸς αὐτοὺς λέγων, Ἀνθρώπου τινὸς πλουσίου εὐφόρησεν ἡ χώρα· 17 καὶ διελογίζετο ἐν ἑαυτῷ λέγων, Τί ποιήσω ὅτι οὐκ ἔχω ποῦ συνάξω τοὺς καρπούς μου; 18 Καὶ εἶπε, Τοῦτο ποιήσω· καθελῶ μου τὰς ἀποθήκας, καὶ μείζονας οἰκοδομήσω, καὶ συνάξω ἐκεῖ πάντα τὰ γενήματά μου καὶ τὰ ἀγαθά μου, 19 καὶ ἐρῶ τῇ ψυχῇ μου, [g] Ψυχὴ, ἔχεις πολλὰ ἀγαθὰ κείμενα εἰς ἔτη πολλά· ἀναπαύου, φάγε, πίε, εὐφραίνου. 20 Εἶπε δὲ αὐτῷ ὁ Θεὸς, Ἄφρον, ταύτῃ τῇ νυκτὶ τὴν ψυχήν σου ἀπαιτοῦσιν ἀπὸ σοῦ· ἃ δὲ ἡτοίμασας, τίνι ἔσται; 21 Οὕτως ὁ θησαυρίζων ἑαυτῷ, καὶ μὴ εἰς Θεὸν πλουτῶν.

(150/V) 22 [h] Εἶπε δὲ πρὸς τοὺς μαθητὰς αὐτοῦ, Διὰ τοῦτο ὑμῖν λέγω, μὴ μεριμνᾶτε τῇ ψυχῇ ὑμῶν τί φάγητε· μηδὲ τῷ σώματι τί ἐνδύσησθε· 23 ἡ ψυχὴ πλεῖόν ἐστι τῆς τροφῆς, καὶ τὸ σῶμα τοῦ ἐνδύματος. 24 Κατανοήσατε τοὺς κόρακας, ὅτι οὐ d Matt. 12. 31, 32. Mark 3. 28. 1 John 5. 16.

e Matt. 10. 19, 20. Mark 13. 11. ch. 21. 14.
f 1 Tim. 6. 7, &c.
g Eccles. 14. 9. 1 Cor. 15. 32. James 5. 5.
h Matt. 6. 25—33.

Our Lord distinguishes between the state of the body after death, and the state of the soul after death. The body may be killed, but the soul cannot. But the state of the soul would not be different from that of the body, if the soul sleeps after death. For the body sleeps, and will be awakened at the Day of Judgment; therefore the soul would be as much killed as the body, if it slept after death; therefore it does not sleep, but retains its consciousness. It passes immediately on its dissolution from the body either to Paradise (see xxiii. 43), or to a place of misery and torment (see xvi. 23).

The insertion of these precepts (4—10) delivered to His Apostles at their sending forth (Matt. x. 26—38) seems to be suggested here by what is related in xi. 54, that the Pharisees were conspiring against Him. Cp. Matt. x. 28.

5. γέενναν] A stern speech to friends (Beng.), but it was the sternness of love.

— τοῦτον] δεικτικῶς, i. e. Me, the Judge of all. See on Matt. xvi. 18.

6. στρουθία] See Matt. x. 29.

8. πᾶς ὃς ἂν ὁμολογήσῃ] See Matt. x. 32.

10. πᾶς ὃς ἐρεῖ λόγον] See Matt. xii. 32. Mark iii. 28.

11. ὅταν δὲ προσφέρωσιν] See Matt. x. 19. Mark xiii. 11. Luke xxi. 12.

13. εἶπε δέ τις] τις, some person who had felt our Lord's power. Here is another example of the beautiful and instructive method in which this Gospel is written. Incidents occurring to Christ at this time are as it were texts on which the Holy Spirit preaches a Sermon collected from other parts of Christ's ministry. See above, x. 1. 17. 25: xi. 1. 37; xii. 1.

The present incident becomes a text for a Sermon on Covetousness (13—34). And thus the Holy Spirit teaches us to consider every accident of our lives as an occasion for applying to ourselves the words of Christ,—and therefore so to read, mark, learn, and inwardly digest the Holy Gospel, that we may be able to bring its precepts to bear on the principal events, public and private, of our own existence and of the world's history.

And yet these Evangelical Sermons are condemned by some as unchronological and inaccurate! Is not this something like the sin against which a warning is given us in v. 10?

15. πάσης] So A, B, D, K, L, M, Q, X. τῆς, Elz.

17. τοὺς καρπούς μου] He profanely calls them my fruits, and promises himself the enjoyment of them for many years (St. Cyril), when they were to be taken from him that night.

18. καθελῶ μοῦ τὰς ἀποθήκας, κ.τ.λ.] Observe μοῦ emphatic. He talks of his barns, his fruits, his goods, just as Nabal says "my water," "my bread," "my flesh" (1 Sam. xxv. 11),—although he had only a few hours to breathe.

He will house there all his goods: there is no mention of any thing for God and the Poor. "Vanum consilium!" says St. Aug. (Serm. xxxvii. 9). "Stulte! in quo tibi sapiens videris quid dixisti? . . . Neciebat pauperum ventres apothecis suis esse tutiores. Recondebat perituros fructus perituras, nihil largiens Domino, ad quem fuerat exiturus. Quam frontem habiturus est in illo Judicio cùm audire cœperit Esurivi, et non dediste mihi manducare?" (Matt. xxv. 42.) How different are the Christian's barns! ἔχεις ἀποθήκας τὰς τῶν πτωχῶν γαστέρας, says Theoph.

20. ἄφρον] The word used by the LXX for נָבָל (nabal), stultus, and with a reference to the history of Nabal (1 Sam. xxv. 25. 36—38), to whom the Fool in this Parable bears a striking resemblance in his words, acts, and end. (Vitringa. Trench, p. 337.)

— ἀπαιτοῦσιν] claim as their due; put impersonally. See note above, vi. 38. Cp. below, xii. 48, αἰτήσουσι.

21. μὴ εἰς Θεόν] Observe the accusative; contrast it with ἑαυτῷ. As Beng. says, "Deo nihil accedit aut decedit." The man is rich toward God who lays up treasure in heaven (cp. 1 Tim. vi. 17), and so he is rich indeed. By being rich εἰς Θεόν, he becomes rich for ever.

22—31. μὴ μεριμνᾶτε, κ.τ.λ.] See Matt. vi. 25—31.

23. ἡ ψυχή] Many MSS. (e. g. B, D, L, M, S, V, X) have ἡ γὰρ, which may be the true reading.

— τῆς τροφῆς] its food; so τοῦ ἐνδύματος, its clothing.

24. κόρακας] Whose parents are careless of them. Cp. Job σπείρουσιν οὐδὲ θερίζουσιν, οἷς οὐκ ἔστε ταμεῖον οὐδὲ ἀποθήκη, [i] καὶ ὁ Θεὸς τρέφει αὐτούς· πόσῳ μᾶλλον ὑμεῖς διαφέρετε τῶν πετεινῶν; [25] Τίς δὲ ἐξ ὑμῶν μεριμνῶν δύναται προσθεῖναι ἐπὶ τὴν ἡλικίαν αὐτοῦ πῆχυν ἕνα; [26] Εἰ οὖν οὐτε ἐλάχιστον δύνασθε, τί περὶ τῶν λοιπῶν μεριμνᾶτε; [27] Κατανοήσατε τὰ κρίνα πῶς αὐξάνει· οὐ κοπιᾷ οὐδὲ νήθει, λέγω δὲ ὑμῖν, οὐδὲ Σολομὼν ἐν πάσῃ τῇ δόξῃ αὐτοῦ περιεβάλετο ὡς ἓν τούτων. [28] Εἰ δὲ τὸν χόρτον ἐν τῷ ἀγρῷ σήμερον ὄντα, καὶ αὔριον εἰς κλίβανον βαλλόμενον, ὁ Θεὸς οὕτως ἀμφιέννυσι, πόσῳ μᾶλλον ὑμᾶς, ὀλιγόπιστοι; [29] Καὶ ὑμεῖς μὴ ζητεῖτε τί φάγητε ἢ τί πίητε, καὶ μὴ μετεωρίζεσθε, [30] ταῦτα γὰρ πάντα τὰ ἔθνη τοῦ κόσμου ἐπιζητεῖ· ὑμῶν δὲ ὁ Πατὴρ οἶδεν ὅτι χρῄζετε τούτων. [31] [j] Πλὴν ζητεῖτε τὴν βασιλείαν τοῦ Θεοῦ, καὶ ταῦτα πάντα προστεθήσεται ὑμῖν. (151) [32] Μὴ φοβοῦ, τὸ μικρὸν ποίμνιον, ὅτι [k] εὐδόκησεν ὁ Πατὴρ ὑμῶν δοῦναι ὑμῖν τὴν βασιλείαν. (152) [33] Πωλήσατε τὰ ὑπάρχοντα ὑμῶν, καὶ δότε ἐλεημοσύνην, (153) [l] ποιήσατε ἑαυτοῖς βαλλάντια μὴ παλαιούμενα, θησαυρὸν ἀνέκλειπτον ἐν τοῖς οὐρανοῖς, ὅπου κλέπτης οὐκ ἐγγίζει, οὐδὲ σὴς διαφθείρει· [34] ὅπου γάρ ἐστιν ὁ θησαυρὸς ὑμῶν, ἐκεῖ καὶ ἡ καρδία ὑμῶν ἔσται. (154) [35] [m] Ἔστωσαν ὑμῶν αἱ ὀσφύες περιεζωσμέναι, καὶ [n] οἱ λύχνοι καιόμενοι, [36] καὶ ὑμεῖς ὅμοιοι ἀνθρώποις προσδεχομένοις τὸν κύριον ἑαυτῶν, πότε ἀναλύσει ἐκ τῶν γάμων, ἵνα ἐλθόντος καὶ κρούσαντος εὐθέως ἀνοίξωσιν αὐτῷ· (155) [37] [o] μακάριοι οἱ δοῦλοι ἐκεῖνοι, οὓς ἐλθὼν ὁ κύριος εὑρήσει γρηγοροῦντας· ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι περιζώσεται καὶ ἀνακλινεῖ αὐτοὺς, καὶ παρελθὼν διακονήσει αὐτοῖς· [38] καὶ ἐὰν ἔλθῃ ἐν τῇ δευτέρᾳ φυλακῇ, καὶ ἐν τῇ τρίτῃ φυλακῇ ἔλθῃ, καὶ εὕρῃ οὕτω, μακάριοί εἰσιν οἱ δοῦλοι ἐκεῖνοι. (156) [39] [p] Τοῦτο δὲ γινώσκετε, ὅτι εἰ ᾔδει ὁ οἰκοδεσπότης ποίᾳ ὥρᾳ ὁ κλέπτης ἔρχεται, ἐγρηγόρησεν ἂν, καὶ οὐκ ἂν ἀφῆκε διορυγῆναι τὸν οἶκον αὐτοῦ. [40] Καὶ ὑμεῖς οὖν γίνεσθε ἕτοιμοι· ὅτι ᾗ ὥρᾳ οὐ δοκεῖτε, ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἔρχεται.

[41] [q] Εἶπε δὲ αὐτῷ ὁ Πέτρος, Κύριε, πρὸς ἡμᾶς τὴν παραβολὴν ταύτην λέγεις, ἢ καὶ πρὸς πάντας; (157) [42] Εἶπε δὲ ὁ Κύριος, Τίς ἄρα ἐστὶν ὁ πιστὸς οἰκονόμος καὶ ὁ φρόνιμος, ὃν καταστήσει ὁ κύριος ἐπὶ τῆς θεραπείας αὐτοῦ, τοῦ διδόναι ἐν καιρῷ τὸ σιτομέτριον; [43] μακάριος ὁ δοῦλος ἐκεῖνος, ὃν ἐλθὼν ὁ κύριος αὐτοῦ i Job 38. 41. Ps. 147. 9.

j Matt. 6. 33.
k Matt. 11. 25, 26.
l Matt. 6. 20. ch. 16. 9. 1 Tim. 6. 19.
m Eph. 6. 14. 1 Pet. 1. 13.
n Matt. 25. 1, &c. o Matt. 24. 46.
p Matt. 24. 43. 1 Thess. 5. 2. 2 Pet. 3. 10. Rev. 3. 3. & 16. 15.
q Matt. 24. 45—50.

---

xxxviii. 41. Ps. cxlvii. 9. Rosenm. refers to Aristotle and Pliny, on the ἀστοργία κοράκων.

26. οὔτε] οὐδὲ, B, L. Q, and so Ln. Tf.

29. μὴ μετεωρίζεσθε] Be not like vessels tossed aloft on the changeful tide and billows of worldly anxiety, ambition, and vanity. "Ne fluitem dubiæ spe pendulus horæ" (Horat. Epist. i. 18. 110); and "Magno curarum fluctuat æstu" (Virg. Æn. viii. 19). The following is from Kuin.: "μετέωροι dicitur de navibus in alto navigantibus Polyæn. Strateg. iv. p. 246, εἰς τὸ πέλαγος μετεωρίζονται, in altum provehuntur. Diod. Sic. p. 448, B, μετεώρων πλοιοσῶν αὐτῶν, cùm in medio mari navigarent; add. Thucyd. i. 48. Etiam de navibus, quæ in mari ventis ac tempestate gravissimè jactantur Diod. Sic. 340, B, μετέωροι διαφθάρησαν. Hinc factum est, ut poneretur quoque de fluctuatione animi, inter spem metumque dubii atque suspensi, de iis, qui animo sollicito, suspenso, dubio, sunt, ut metaphora petita sit à navibus, quæ vento et fluctibus in alto jactantur. Notabilis hanc in rem est locus Philonis de Monarch. p. 817, A, quem Loesnerus attulit: γνῶθι δὲ σαυτὸν καὶ μὴ συμπεριφέρου ταῖς ὑπὲρ δύναμιν ὁρμαῖς καὶ ἐπιθυμίαις, μηδέ σε τῶν ἀνηφίκτων ἔρως αἱρέτω καὶ μετεωριζέτω· τῶν γὰρ ἐφικτῶν οὐδενὸς ἀμοιρήσεις. Pertinet et huc locus Josephi Ant. viii. 8. 2, ubi sermo est de populo anxiè exspectante, quid responsi ab Roboamo laturi sint: ὡς συνῆλθον ἀκουσόμενον τὸ πλῆθος τῇ τρίτῃ τῶν ἡμερῶν, μετεώρου τοῦ λαοῦ παντὸς ὄντος, καί τι λέγοντος ἀκοῦσαι τοῦ βασιλέως ἐσπουδακότος. Ap. Cic. ad Attic. v. 11; xv. 14; xvi. 5. μετέωρος dicitur, incertus et dubius, is, quem anceps cura premit. 2 Macc. v. 17. ἐμετεωρίζετο τὴν διάνοιαν.

32. τὸ μικρὸν] the small flock,—especially in its beginning, and despised as such by the world, but yet a flock, the flock of Christ the Good Shepherd, Who will judge all Nations, and separate the Sheep from the Goats.

33. πωλήσατε τὰ ὑπάρχοντα] See Matt. xix. 21, and below, xviii. 22. Sell, i. e. do not hoard it for yourself; do not (like the rich fool, vv. 18, 19) call them your fruits; do not consider yourself as the proprietor of your goods, which are not 'res mancipi,' but for use; not κτήματα, but χρήματα. Regard others as the proprietors of them, and yourself as their steward; regard them not as yours, but as God's (see 1 Chron. xxix. 12—14. Dan. ii. 20; v. 23), for He can recall them in a night (v. 20). Be rich to Him; dedicate them to Him; divest yourself of them; alienate them; sell them; sell them to God, and dispose of them in mercy, as need may require, to your children (1 Tim. v. 8), to the poor, and, above all, and in all, to Christ; and so lay up your goods in purses that will never wax old.

St. Basil says (in Homil. de Avaritiâ), "It is the bread of the hungry which thou receivest, it is the garment of the naked which thou hoardest in thy chest, the shoes of the beggar which rot in thy keeping. Art thou not a robber for counting as thine own what thou hast received to distribute?" And St. Cyril here, "In order that you may obtain the eternal riches despise this world's wealth." "Our Lord's command," says St. Basil, regul. breves, 92, "teaches us not to cast away as evil what we have, but to distribute;" and Bede adds, "this is not a command that no money be kept by the Saints for their own use, since we read that our Lord Himself had a bag, but that righteousness should not be neglected for fear of poverty."

35. ὀσφύες περιεζωσμέναι—λύχνοι καιόμενοι] See Matt. xxv. 1. And see the Homily of Greg. M. here, xii. 50, and in Ev. i. 13, p. 1482. See Eph. vi. 14. 1 Pet. i. 13. To be girded (says St. Cyril) signifies activity; to have the light burning signifies knowledge and love. See also St. Aug. (Serm. cviii.): "Lumbos accinctos habere, ab omnibus illicitis concupiscentiis abstinere; hoc est debemus fervere et lucere operibus bonis, hoc est lucernas ardentes habere."

37. περιζώσεται] Christ will gird Himself to serve them who stand with their loins girt to receive Him. (St. Cyril.)

40. ἕτοιμοι] Matt. xxiv. 44. Luke xxi. 34.

42. τίς ἄρα] See on Matt. xxiv. 45—51.

— ὁ φρόνιμος] Not merely the faithful, but the prudent. The Article ὁ is found in B, D, E, G, H. K, Q, S. V, and brings out the great truth that faithfulness is prudence, and that faithlessness is folly.

εὑρήσει ποιοῦντα οὕτως, 44 ἀληθῶς λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι ἐπὶ πᾶσι τοῖς ὑπάρχουσιν αὐτοῦ καταστήσει αὐτόν. (158/ϛ) 45 Ἐὰν δὲ εἴπῃ ὁ δοῦλος ἐκεῖνος ἐν τῇ καρδίᾳ αὐτοῦ, Χρονίζει ὁ κύριός μου ἔρχεσθαι, καὶ ἄρξηται τύπτειν τοὺς παῖδας καὶ τὰς παιδίσκας, ἐσθίειν τε καὶ πίνειν καὶ μεθύσκεσθαι, 46 ἥξει ὁ κύριος τοῦ δούλου ἐκείνου ἐν ἡμέρᾳ ᾗ οὐ προσδοκᾷ, καὶ ἐν ὥρᾳ ᾗ οὐ γινώσκει, καὶ διχοτομήσει αὐτὸν, καὶ τὸ μέρος αὐτοῦ μετὰ τῶν ἀπίστων θήσει. (159/ζ) 47 [r] Ἐκεῖνος δὲ ὁ δοῦλος ὁ γνοὺς τὸ θέλημα τοῦ κυρίου ἑαυτοῦ, καὶ μὴ ἑτοιμάσας μηδὲ ποιήσας πρὸς τὸ θέλημα αὐτοῦ, δαρήσεται πολλάς, 48 [s] ὁ δὲ μὴ γνούς, ποιήσας δὲ ἄξια πληγῶν, δαρήσεται ὀλίγας. Παντὶ δὲ ᾧ ἐδόθη πολὺ, πολὺ ζητηθήσεται παρ' αὐτοῦ, καὶ ᾧ παρέθεντο πολὺ, περισσότερον αἰτήσουσιν αὐτόν. (160/η) 49 [t] Πῦρ ἦλθον βαλεῖν ἐπὶ τὴν γῆν, καὶ τί θέλω, εἰ ἤδη ἀνήφθη; 50 Βάπτισμα δὲ ἔχω βαπτισθῆναι, καὶ πῶς συνέχομαι ἕως ὅτου τελεσθῇ. 51 Δοκεῖτε ὅτι εἰρήνην παρεγενόμην δοῦναι ἐν τῇ γῇ; οὐχὶ, λέγω ὑμῖν, ἀλλ' ἢ διαμερισμόν. 52 [u] Ἔσονται γὰρ ἀπὸ τοῦ νῦν πέντε ἐν οἴκῳ ἑνὶ διαμεμερισμένοι, τρεῖς ἐπὶ δυσὶ, καὶ δύο ἐπὶ τρισί. 53 Διαμερισθήσεται πατὴρ ἐφ' υἱῷ, καὶ υἱὸς ἐπὶ πατρὶ, μήτηρ ἐπὶ θυγατρὶ, καὶ θυγάτηρ ἐπὶ μητρὶ, πενθερὰ ἐπὶ τὴν νύμφην αὐτῆς, καὶ νύμφη ἐπὶ τὴν πενθερὰν αὐτῆς.

(161/θ) 54 Ἔλεγε δὲ καὶ τοῖς ὄχλοις, Ὅταν ἴδητε τὴν νεφέλην ἀνατέλλουσαν ἀπὸ δυσμῶν εὐθέως λέγετε, Ὄμβρος ἔρχεται, καὶ γίνεται οὕτω. 55 Καὶ ὅταν νότον πνέοντα, λέγετε, Ὅτι καύσων ἔσται, καὶ γίνεται. 56 [v] Ὑποκριταὶ, τὸ πρόσωπον τῆς γῆς καὶ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ οἴδατε δοκιμάζειν, τὸν δὲ καιρὸν τοῦτον πῶς οὐ δοκιμάζετε; 57 Τί δὲ καὶ ἀφ' ἑαυτῶν οὐ κρίνετε τὸ δίκαιον; (162/ι) 58 [w] ὡς γὰρ ὑπάγεις μετὰ τοῦ ἀντιδίκου σου ἐπ' ἄρχοντα, [x] ἐν τῇ ὁδῷ δὸς ἐργασίαν ἀπηλλάχθαι ἀπ' αὐτοῦ, μήποτε κατασύρῃ σε πρὸς τὸν κριτὴν, καὶ ὁ κριτής σε παραδῷ τῷ πράκτορι, καὶ ὁ πράκτωρ σε βάλῃ εἰς φυλακήν· 59 λέγω σοι, οὐ μὴ ἐξέλθῃς ἐκεῖθεν, ἕως οὗ καὶ τὸ ἔσχατον λεπτὸν ἀποδῷς.

r Numb. 15. 30. Deut. 25. 2. John 9. 41. & 15. 22. Acts 7. 30. James 4. 17.
s Lev. 5. 17. 1 Tim. 1. 13.
t ver. 51. 1 Pet. 4. 12.
u Matt. 10. 34, 35.
v Matt. 16. 3.
w Matt. 5. 25, 26.
x Ps. 32. 6. Isa. 55. 6.

---

47. πολλάς] i. e. πληγάς. (Cp. 2 Cor. xi. 24.) Similar ellipses are ἀπὸ μιᾶς (Luke xiv. 18), i. e. γνώμης (Matt. x. 42); ψυχροῦ, sc. ὕδατος, μαλακὰ, sc. ἐνδύματα (Matt. xi. 8). Cf. Rev. iii. 4, ἐν λευκοῖς. On the accusative after δαρήσεται, cp. Matt. xx. 22, βάπτισμα βαπτισθῆναι, cf. Glass. Phil. S. p. 398. On the meaning, cp. on Matt. x. 15; and on the doctrine that there will be different degrees of glory and misery hereafter, see Chrys. Hom. xli. in 1 Cor., ἐν βασιλείᾳ πάντες οὐ τῶν αὐτῶν ἀπολαύσονται. St. Ambrose in Luc. vi., "Sicut incrementa virtutum item incrementa præmiorum." Cp. St. Aug. Enchir. cap. 113; and de Civ. Dei, ii. 30; and on Ps. cl.; and others quoted by Gerhard, Loci Commun. vol. ix. p. 702; De vitâ æternâ, § 129.

49. πῦρ ἦλθον βαλεῖν] See also ver. 51, and on Matt. x. 34, and on xviii. 7, and Luke xvii. 1; and yet Christ says (John xiv. 27), εἰρήνην ἀφίημι ὑμῖν, εἰρήνην τὴν ἐμὴν δίδωμι ὑμῖν.

— τί θέλω, εἰ ἤδη ἀνήφθη] Our Lord uses two metaphors—one from fire, the other from water. The sense seems to be as follows: Such is the effect of human corruption and Satan's malice, that My Coming, which is an embassy of Love, will be the signal of a conflagration of strife. See Tertullian c. Marcion. iv. 29, "Ipse Christus interpretabitur illius ignis qualitatem. Putatisne venisse Me pacem mittere in terram? Non, dico vobis, sed separationem: Igitur ignem eversionis intendit, qui pacem negavit. Quale prælium tale et incendium." I Myself, Who am Love itself, shall be the first object of its fury. The fire is already kindled which is to consume Me as its victim. But τί θέλω; what do I will? I by whose will the furious elements have been quelled. I who said to the Leper, θέλω, καθαρίσθητι (Matt. viii. 3). What do I will? To do my Father's Will —to suffer (Matt. xxvi. 39). I lay down My life willingly; No one can take it from Me against My Will (John x. 18). What is My desire, if it has been already kindled? that is, lit by others. He thus guards us against the supposition that He is the Author of the fire. No, it is kindled by the malice of Satan and of man. And Christ is its Victim. But He is a willing Victim. Far from shrinking from the fire in which, like the Paschal Lamb, He is to be immolated as a holocaust, He is ready to be offered, He is now about to give Himself up for the sacrifice. He is going up to Jerusalem to be there slain.

Or, to change the figure, I have a baptism to be baptized in, the baptism of a sea of suffering, the baptism of My own Blood. (See Matt. xx. 22.) But τί θέλω; what do I desire? To pass through the Red Sea of my own Blood; I long for that time. See Theoph. and Euthym. here. St. Irenæus, i. 18, "valdè propero ad illud." I am straitened till it is fulfilled; for so, and so only, can the world be saved; and by that fire which Satan and evil men have kindled, and by that baptism of blood which they will shed, I shall overcome Satan, and deliver Mankind from his power.

Our Lord, ὁ Μάρτυς ὁ πιστὸς (Rev. i. 5; iii. 14), the true and faithful Martyr, thus set the example, according to which the Apostles, who were tried and purified like silver in the fire of suffering (see on Mark ix. 49), looked forward with joy to the time when they would be "offered up" (2 Tim. iv. 6), and welcomed the fire and the wild beasts with holy exultation. See St. Ignat. ad Rom. cap. 5, πῦρ, καὶ σταυρὸς, θηρίων τε συστάσεις, κ.τ.λ. Cf. ad Rom. 4. Smyrn. 4, ἐγγὺς μαχαίρας, ἐγγὺς Θεοῦ· μεταξὺ θηρίων, μεταξὺ Θεοῦ. They could say, We went through fire and water, and thou broughtest us forth into a wealthy place (Ps. lxvi. 11).

50. συνέχομαι] 'coarctor, angor animo.' Cp. viii. 37. Acts xviii. 5. 2 Cor. ii. 4. ὡσανεὶ ἀγωνιῶ, διὰ τὴν βρυδύτητα. (Euthym.) The nearer He is to His Passion the greater His yearning for it.

53. πατὴρ ἐφ' υἱῷ—νύμφη ἐπὶ τὴν πενθερὰν αὐτῆς] Why in the former case is ἐπὶ with a dative and in the latter with an accusative? In the former He is speaking of natural relationships, in the other of affinity. In one case the division grows up from within, in the other it appears to be stirred up from without. The parents fall out of themselves with their own children; the mother-in-law is excited against her daughter-in-law.

54. ὅταν ἴδητε] Matt. xvi. 2.

— τὴν νεφέλην] the cloud which portends rain (1 Kings xviii. 41). (Bloomf.)

56. ὑποκριταὶ] Ye who deceive others and yourselves. See on Matt. xxiii. 13.

57. τί δὲ καὶ ἀφ' ἑαυτῶν οὐ κρίνετε τὸ δίκαιον;] On the design of such appeals in Scripture to Natural Light, see Hooker, II. iv. and III. viii. Cp. 1 Cor. x. 15; xi. 13. 1 Thess. v. 21; and see Origen and Bede here.

58. ὡς γὰρ ὑπάγεις] See on Matt. v. 25, 26. For the Latin κοδράντης, St. Luke uses the Greek λεπτόν. (See xxi. 2; and above, "Introductory Note.") The ἀντίδικος here is interpreted by St. Aug (Serm. cix. 3) to be the Word of God. "Adversarius est nobis, quamdiu sumus et ipsi nobis. Si peccas, dicit tibi, Noli. Adversarius est voluntatis tuæ, donec fiat auctor salutis tuæ. Quamdiu tu tibi inimicus es, inimicum habes sermonem Dei. Esto tibi amicus, et concordas cum ipso. Audi, et concordâsti; et finitâ vitâ (i. e. vitæ tuæ) non timebis judicem. Pro Judice invenies Patrem; pro ministro servo angelum tollentem in sinum Abrahæ, pro carcere Paradisum."

Otherwise, the Word which Christ has spoken, that will condemn you at the last Day (John xii. 48).

XIII. (168/X) 1 Παρῆσαν δέ τινες ἐν αὐτῷ τῷ καιρῷ ἀπαγγέλλοντες αὐτῷ περὶ τῶν Γαλιλαίων, ὧν τὸ αἷμα Πιλάτος ἔμιξε μετὰ τῶν θυσιῶν αὐτῶν. 2 Καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Δοκεῖτε ὅτι οἱ Γαλιλαῖοι οὗτοι ἁμαρτωλοὶ παρὰ πάντας τοὺς Γαλιλαίους ἐγένοντο, ὅτι τοιαῦτα πεπόνθασιν; 3 Οὐχί, λέγω ὑμῖν, ἀλλ', ἐὰν μὴ μετανοῆτε, πάντες ὡσαύτως ἀπολεῖσθε. 4 *Ἢ ἐκεῖνοι οἱ δέκα καὶ ὀκτὼ, ἐφ' οὓς ἔπεσεν ὁ πύργος ἐν τῷ Σιλωὰμ καὶ ἀπέκτεινεν αὐτοὺς, δοκεῖτε ὅτι οὗτοι ὀφειλέται ἐγένοντο παρὰ πάντας ἀνθρώπους τοὺς κατοικοῦντας ἐν Ἰερουσαλήμ; 5 Οὐχί, λέγω ὑμῖν, ἀλλ', ἐὰν μὴ μετανοῆτε, πάντες ὁμοίως ἀπο-λεῖσθε. (164/X) 6 a *Ἔλεγε δὲ ταύτην τὴν παραβολήν· Συκῆν εἶχέ τις ἐν τῷ ἀμπε- a Isa. 5. 2. Matt. 21. 19.
λῶνι αὐτοῦ πεφυτευμένην, καὶ ἦλθε ζητῶν καρπὸν ἐν αὐτῇ, καὶ οὐχ εὗρεν.
7 Εἶπε δὲ πρὸς τὸν ἀμπελουργόν, Ἰδοὺ, τρία ἔτη ἔρχομαι ζητῶν καρπὸν ἐν τῇ συκῇ ταύτῃ, καὶ οὐχ εὑρίσκω· ἔκκοψον αὐτὴν, ἱνατί καὶ τὴν γῆν καταργεῖ; 8 Ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς λέγει αὐτῷ, Κύριε, ἄφες αὐτὴν καὶ τοῦτο τὸ ἔτος, ἕως ὅτου σκάψω περὶ αὐτὴν, καὶ βάλω κόπρια· (165/II) 9 κἂν μὲν ποιήσῃ καρπόν·—εἰ δὲ μήγε, εἰς τὸ μέλλον ἐκκόψεις αὐτήν.

10 *Ἦν δὲ διδάσκων ἐν μιᾷ τῶν συναγωγῶν ἐν τοῖς σάββασι· 11 καὶ ἰδοὺ γυνὴ ἦν πνεῦμα ἔχουσα ἀσθενείας ἔτη δέκα καὶ ὀκτὼ, καὶ ἦν συγκύπτουσα καὶ μὴ δυναμένη ἀνακύψαι εἰς τὸ παντελές. 12 Ἰδὼν δὲ αὐτὴν ὁ Ἰησοῦς προσεφώνησε καὶ εἶπεν αὐτῇ, Γύναι, ἀπολέλυσαι τῆς ἀσθενείας σου. 13 Καὶ ἐπέθηκεν αὐτῇ τὰς χεῖρας, καὶ παραχρῆμα ἀνωρθώθη, καὶ ἐδόξαζε τὸν Θεόν. 14 b Ἀποκριθεὶς b Exod. 20. 9. Deut. 5. 13. Ezek. 20. 12.
δὲ ὁ ἀρχισυνάγωγος, ἀγανακτῶν ὅτι τῷ σαββάτῳ ἐθεράπευσεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς, ἔλεγε τῷ ὄχλῳ, *Ἓξ ἡμέραι εἰσὶν ἐν αἷς δεῖ ἐργάζεσθαι, ἐν ταύταις οὖν ἐρχόμενοι θεραπεύεσθε, καὶ μὴ τῇ ἡμέρᾳ τοῦ σαββάτου. 15 c Ἀπεκρίθη οὖν αὐτῷ c Exod. 23. 5. Deut. 22. 4.
ὁ Κύριος καὶ εἶπεν, Ὑποκριταὶ, ἕκαστος ὑμῶν τῷ σαββάτῳ οὐ λύει τὸν βοῦν Matt. 12. 1, 11. Mark 3. 2. ch. 6. 7. & 14. 5. John 7. 23.
αὐτοῦ ἢ τὸν ὄνον ἀπὸ τῆς φάτνης, καὶ ἀπαγαγὼν ποτίζει; 16 ταύτην δὲ, θυγατέρα Ἀβραὰμ οὖσαν, ἣν ἔδησεν ὁ Σατανᾶς ἰδοὺ δέκα καὶ ὀκτὼ ἔτη, οὐκ ἔδει λυθῆναι ἀπὸ τοῦ δεσμοῦ τούτου τῇ ἡμέρᾳ τοῦ σαββάτου; (166/X) 17 d Καὶ d Isa. 45. 24.
ταῦτα λέγοντος αὐτοῦ, κατησχύνοντο πάντες οἱ ἀντικείμενοι αὐτῷ· καὶ πᾶς ὁ ὄχλος ἔχαιρεν ἐπὶ πᾶσι τοῖς ἐνδόξοις τοῖς γινομένοις ὑπ' αὐτοῦ.

(167/II) 18 *Ἔλεγε δὲ, Τίνι ὁμοία ἐστὶν ἡ βασιλεία τοῦ Θεοῦ; καὶ τίνι ὁμοιώσω

Ch. XIII. 1. ὧν τὸ αἷμα Πιλάτος ἔμιξε] i. e. when they came to the Temple to offer sacrifice there. On Pilate's acts of cruelty, see Joseph. Ant. xviii. 14. Bell. Jud. i. 2, and ii. 9, and on his character generally, Bp. Pearson on the Creed, Art. iv. p. 306, and notes. The suggestion of the narrative is; God must have been specially angry with these Galileans who were cut off by a heathen, in God's house, at His altar, and when engaged in an act of worship to God. The Argument is similar to that of Job's friends. Job iv. 7; viii. 20; xxii. 5.

3. ἐὰν μὴ μετανοῆτε] A prophetic warning to the Jews, who did not repent, and perished.

He proceeds in the Parable of the Fig-tree, to declare the future judgments hanging over themselves.

4. πύργος ἐν τῷ Σιλωάμ] The tower, near the fountain of Siloa (Isaiah viii. 6), or Siloam, in the valley, on the S.E. of Jerusalem (Nehem. iii. 15). Cp. Joseph. B. J. ii. 16; v. 12; vi. 8; and St. Hieron. ad Isa. viii. Robinson's Palest. ii. 147: see further on John ix. 7, and vii. at end. The mention of both these incidents here agrees with the opinion (see above on x. 1, and note x. 30, and xiii. 6), that our Lord was now near Jerusalem.

If men may be overtaken by destruction even when sacrificing to God in the Temple, and when they think themselves safe in the Tower, none should put off their Repentance. "Except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish."

6. συκῆν] i. e. the Jewish People (see St. Ambrose here, and Theoph.), represented in the barren leafy fig-tree, afterwards withered by Christ (see Matt. xxi. 19—21. Mark xi. 13—21); they who imputed special guilt to these Galileans; they to whom Christ had come now for three years, looking for fruit; a note of time and place which seems to confirm the opinion that our Lord was now near Jerusalem, at the end of the third year of His Ministry.

This Parable of the Fig-tree ought to be viewed in connexion with the withering of the Fig-tree. The Parable delivered now is the warning of future Judgment on Jerusalem, and a prelude to it. The withering, which took place in the ensuing spring, just before our Lord's Crucifixion, is a rehearsal, as it were, of the execution of the Judgment denounced in the Parable. This consideration may perhaps do something to remove the objection stated by some (Trench, p. 350), that the three years in the Parable cannot refer to our Lord's Ministry, because the Jewish Nation was not destroyed in the next year, but forty years after.

6—13.] On these verses, see the exposition of Greg. M. Hom. in Evang. xxxi.

7. ἱνατί καὶ τὴν γῆν καταργεῖ;] καταργεῖ = ποιεῖ ἄεργόν Eur. Phœn. 760. Ezra iv. 21. 23; v. 5; vi. 8. Why does it not only bear no fruit, but (καὶ, also) hinder the land from bearing any, by occupying the place of a better tree? It is itself sterile; and (so to speak) it sterilizes the soil.

9. κἂν μὲν ποιήσῃ καρπόν] If so, well. Examples of a similar aposiopesis may be seen in 2 Sam. v. 8. 1 Chron. iv. 10; xi. 6. Mark ix. 23. Luke xix. 42.

11. γυνὴ] The woman, bowed by infirmity, may represent the Church raised and invigorated by Christ. See St. Ambrose, who observes the succession of incidents here, the Jewish Nation threatened in the Fig-tree; the Church restored in the Woman. "In Synagogæ typo arborem excidi jubet, in typo Ecclesiæ feminam salvat."

12. ἀπολέλυσαι] perfect. See xv. 16.

15. ὑποκριταί] ὑποκριτὰ Elz. So A, B, D, E, K, L, M, S. Cp. v. 17.

16. ἣν ἔδησεν ὁ Σατανᾶς] Satan, the Enemy, the Author of all evil, physical and moral, in the World. See Matt. xiii. 28. 39. Here is an answer to the question, πόθεν τὸ κακόν;

— τῇ ἡμέρᾳ τοῦ σαββάτου] See St. Iren. iv. 19, who shows that in doing these works of mercy on the Sabbath Day, to the glory of God who instituted the Sabbath, Who is ever working the greatest good on the Sabbath Day, for the spiritual health of man for whom "the Sabbath was made," Christ did, in the highest sense of the word, keep the law of the Sabbath. Cp. on John v. 17, and see St. Ambrose here.

18. ἔλεγε δέ] See Matt. xiii. 31—33. St. Luke had just said, κατησχύνοντο πάντες οἱ ἀντικείμενοι αὐτῷ καὶ πᾶς ὁ ὄχλος ἐχαιρεν ἐπὶ πᾶσι τοῖς γινομένοις ὑπ' αὐτοῦ. Here seems to be the clue for the introduction of what follows, viz. that, as now all Christ's enemies were confounded, and all the People rejoiced in all His works, so He Himself prophesied that it will be at the end; namely, αὐτήν ; 19 e Ὁμοία ἐστὶ κόκκῳ σινάπεως, ὃν λαβὼν ἄνθρωπος ἔβαλεν εἰς κῆπον ἑαυτοῦ, καὶ ηὔξησε καὶ ἐγένετο εἰς δένδρον μέγα, καὶ τὰ πετεινὰ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ κατεσκήνωσεν ἐν τοῖς κλάδοις αὐτοῦ. (168/V) 20 Πάλιν εἶπε, Τίνι ὁμοιώσω τὴν βασιλείαν τοῦ Θεοῦ ; 21 Ὁμοία ἐστὶ ζύμῃ, ἣν λαβοῦσα γυνὴ ἐνέκρυψεν εἰς ἀλεύρου σάτα τρία, ἕως οὗ ἐζυμώθη ὅλον.

(169/II) 22 f Καὶ διεπορεύετο κατὰ πόλεις καὶ κώμας διδάσκων, καὶ πορείαν ποιούμενος εἰς Ἱερουσαλήμ. (170/V) 23 Εἶπε δέ τις αὐτῷ, Κύριε, εἰ ὀλίγοι οἱ σωζόμενοι ; Ὁ δὲ εἶπε πρὸς αὐτούς, 24 g Ἀγωνίζεσθε εἰσελθεῖν διὰ τῆς στενῆς πύλης, ὅτι πολλοί, λέγω ὑμῖν, ζητήσουσιν εἰσελθεῖν, καὶ οὐκ ἰσχύσουσιν· (171/V) 25 ἀφ' οὗ ἂν ἐγερθῇ ὁ οἰκοδεσπότης καὶ ἀποκλείσῃ τὴν θύραν, καὶ ἄρξησθε ἔξω ἑστάναι καὶ κρούειν τὴν θύραν λέγοντες, h Κύριε, Κύριε, ἄνοιξον ἡμῖν· καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς ἐρεῖ ὑμῖν, Οὐκ οἶδα ὑμᾶς πόθεν ἐστέ. 26 Τότε ἄρξεσθε λέγειν, Ἐφάγομεν ἐνώπιόν σου καὶ ἐπίομεν, καὶ ἐν ταῖς πλατείαις ἡμῶν ἐδίδαξας. 27 Καὶ ἐρεῖ, Λέγω ὑμῖν, οὐκ οἶδα ὑμᾶς πόθεν ἐστέ, ἀπόστητε ἀπ' ἐμοῦ, πάντες οἱ ἐργάται τῆς ἀδικίας. (172/V) 28 i Ἐκεῖ ἔσται ὁ κλαυθμὸς καὶ ὁ βρυγμὸς τῶν ὀδόντων, ὅταν ὄψησθε Ἀβραὰμ καὶ Ἰσαὰκ καὶ Ἰακὼβ, καὶ πάντας τοὺς προφήτας ἐν τῇ βασιλείᾳ τοῦ Θεοῦ, ὑμᾶς δὲ ἐκβαλλομένους ἔξω. 29 j Καὶ ἥξουσιν ἀπὸ ἀνατολῶν καὶ δυσμῶν, καὶ ἀπὸ βορρᾶ καὶ νότου, καὶ ἀνακλιθήσονται ἐν τῇ βασιλείᾳ τοῦ Θεοῦ. (173/II) 30 k Καὶ ἰδοὺ, εἰσὶν ἔσχατοι, οἳ ἔσονται πρῶτοι· καί εἰσι πρῶτοι, οἳ ἔσονται ἔσχατοι.

(174/X) 31 Ἐν αὐτῇ τῇ ἡμέρᾳ προσῆλθόν τινες Φαρισαῖοι, λέγοντες αὐτῷ, Ἔξελθε καὶ πορεύου ἐντεῦθεν, ὅτι Ἡρῴδης θέλει σε ἀποκτεῖναι. 32 Καὶ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Πορευθέντες εἴπατε τῇ ἀλώπεκι ταύτῃ, Ἰδοὺ, ἐκβάλλω δαιμόνια καὶ ἰάσεις ἐπιτελῶ σήμερον καὶ αὔριον, l καὶ τῇ τρίτῃ τελειοῦμαι. 33 Πλὴν δεῖ με

e Matt. 13. 31—33.
f Matt. 9. 35. Mark 6. 6.
g Matt. 7. 13, 14. John 7. 34. & 8. 21. & 13. 33. Rom. 9. 31.
h Matt. 7. 22, 23.
i Matt. 8. 12.
j Matt. 8. 11.
k Matt. 19. 30.
l Heb. 2. 10.

---

that though now the Gospel is despised as a mere κόκκος σινάπεως, yet it will spread its branches through the world; though it is now but a little leaven, it will leaven the whole lump. And thus these Parables are connected with what follows; If the Gospel is thus to be generally diffused, will they who are saved be few? and with the warning that the gate of life is narrow, and that entrance is not to be gained without ἀγωνισμός (v. 24), and that all who do evil will be cast out (v. 27); and that many who now hear the Gospel but do not obey it, and who are invited to eat and drink at Christ's table, will plead in vain at the great day, that they have had Christ's Word and Sacraments; and that some of the first in privileges here, will be last at the judgment hereafter; and that many among the children of the Kingdom, who rely on their lineage from Abraham (see Matt. iii. 9. John viii. 33—56), will be cast out; and many of the Gentiles shall come in from all the ends of the Earth (vv. 29—30), and sit down with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and all the Prophets in the Kingdom of God. Let not then the servants of Christ despond, but look with faith and hope, as well as with godly fear, to the end.

19. κόκκῳ—κῆπον] A grain cast in a garden waxes a great tree, and covers the earth.

"Except a grain (κόκκος) fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone: but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit" (John xii. 24). The grain (κόκκος, 1 Cor. xv. 37) is not quickened except it die. The body of Christ sown in the garden of Calvary (John xix. 42) is the seed of the Church—of its life of grace here, and of its resurrection to glory hereafter. (Cp. St. Ambrose and Burgon here.)

22. εἰς Ἱερουσαλήμ] In order to be there for the Passover, where He would suffer (see above, on x. 1). Where there were most diseased in soul, there the Physician of souls goes. (Theoph.) Thither the Good Shepherd goes to lay down His life for the sheep.

23. εἰ ὀλίγοι οἱ σωζόμενοι] The present participle is used by way of anticipation, in a future sense, as in St. Clement of Alexandria's treatise, τίς ὁ σωζόμενος πλούσιος, vol. ii. p. 935, ed. Potter. So ἀποφορτιζόμενον, Acts xxi. 3. λυομένων, 2 Pet. iii. 11. ἀπολλυμένου, 1 Pet. i. 7. καταργουμένων, 1 Cor. ii. 6, and οἱ ἀπολλύμενοι, and οἱ σωζόμενοι, 2 Cor. ii. 15; and see Winer, Gramm. N. T. p. 322.

On the connexion, see on v. 18. Perhaps the enquirer supposed that salvation was only for the Jews; and could not reconcile that prevalent opinion with our Lord's previous discourse.

To these questions concerning others, our Lord replies, by exhorting the enquirers to work out their own salvation by doing their own duty, and so diverts them from curious and unprofitable speculations. Cp. John xxi. 21, 22. Acts i. 6—8; and see above, on x. 29, and below, on xvii. 37.

29. ἀπὸ βορρᾶ] ἀπὸ is not found in A, D, E, H, K, S, V, X.

31. Ἡρῴδης] The tetrarch of Galilee. This incident may at first seem at variance with what has been said on x. 1, and on xiii. 4. 6. But it must be remembered, that Herod was Ruler of Perœa as well as of Galilee; and that John the Baptist had been put to death at Machaerus, where Herod had a Palace (Joseph. B. J. vii. 6. Antiq. xvii. 8 and 11), about ten miles east of Jericho, and thirty east of Jerusalem. St. Matt. xix. 1; xx. 29, and St. Mark x. 1. 46, speak of our Lord being in Perœa (τὰ ὅρια τῆς Ἰουδαίας πέραν τοῦ Ἰορδάνου), whence He passed over the river Jordan, and so came to Jericho, and thence to Bethany and Jerusalem for His Passion. (Luke xviii. 35. Matt. xx. 29. Mark x. 46.) Herod had put John to death, not in Galilee, but Perœa; and if our Lord was now, as seems probable, in Perœa or near it, it was very likely that the Pharisees should endeavour to intimidate Him with a threat of Herod's anger. And what follows (vv. 33—35) concerning Jerusalem seems to prove that the incident must have occurred in its neighbourhood, which our Lord could not quit (v. 33), because He must die at Jerusalem.

32. ἀλώπεκι] On Herod's character, formed on that of Tiberius, in subtlety and dissimulation, see Luke iii. 19. Mark viii. 15. Joseph. Ant. xviii. 4. "Personam egit," says Wetstein, "servi apud Tiberium, domini apud Galilæos, amici Sejano, Artabano, fratribus suis Archelao, Philippo, Herodi altero, quorum studia erant diversissima et inter se, et a studiis Herodis ipsius."

Our Lord asserts His divine prophetical character by open rebuke of the civil Ruler of His own Country. In the discharge of the same office, which authorized and required the utterance of language not suitable to other lips (2 Pet. ii. 10. Jude 8.), He denounces woes on the Scribes and Pharisees. (Matt. xxiii. 15. 23—29. Luke xi. 42—52.

— ταύτῃ] this fox. Our Lord does not say ἐκείνῃ, but ταύτῃ, i. e. this here; meaning, perhaps, to intimate (see St. Cyril, Theophyl.) that there was as much subtlety in those, who under a semblance of friendship, but desiring to rid themselves of Him Who weakened their influence with the people flocking to hear Him, told Him of Herod's intentions, as in Herod himself. The Pharisees were identified with Herod, in conspiring against Christ. There was more of astuteness and hypocrisy in their pretended friendship of the Jewish teachers in Jerusalem, than in the open enmity of the tetrarch of Galilee. The message, therefore, was for the Jews themselves as well as for Herod.

— σήμερον] "Formula σήμερον, αὔριον καὶ τῇ τρίτῃ (scl. ἡμέρᾳ) sive ut v. 33 legitur, τῇ ἐχομένῃ. proverbii vim habuisse videtur apud Judæos, quo spatium temporis futuri quodcunque breve significaretur. Hebraica formula יוֹם מָחָר וְיוֹם הַשְּׁלִשִׁי ita legitur. Hos. vi. 2. Exod. iv. 10; v. 14." (Kuin.) Cp. Matt. vi. 30. James iv. 13.

The sense is, the times and seasons are in My hand, not in yours or in Herod's. When "My hour is come," then I will lay down My life: and this will be at a time when you and Herod will σήμερον καὶ αὔριον καὶ τῇ ἐχομένῃ πορεύεσθαι· ὅτι οὐκ ἐνδέχεται προφήτην ἀπολέσθαι ἔξω Ἰερουσαλήμ. (175 Ϛ) 34 m Ἰερουσαλὴμ, Ἰερουσαλὴμ, ἡ ἀποκτείνουσα τοὺς προφήτας, καὶ λιθοβολοῦσα τοὺς ἀπεσταλμένους πρὸς αὐτὴν, ποσάκις ἠθέλησα ἐπισυνάξαι τὰ τέκνα σου, ὃν τρόπον ὄρνις τὴν ἑαυτῆς νοσσιὰν ὑπὸ τὰς πτέρυγας; καὶ οὐκ ἠθελήσατε. 35 n Ἰδοὺ, ἀφίεται ὑμῖν ὁ οἶκος ὑμῶν· Λέγω δὲ ὑμῖν, ὅτι οὐ μή με ἴδητε, ἕως ἂν ἥξῃ ὅτε εἴπητε, Εὐλογημένος ὁ ἐρχόμενος ἐν ὀνόματι Κυρίου.

m Matt. 23. 37—39.

n Lev. 26. 31, 32. Ps. 69. 25. Isa. 1. 7. Dan. 9. 27. Micah. 3. 12.

XIV. (176 Χ) 1 Καὶ ἐγένετο, ἐν τῷ ἐλθεῖν αὐτὸν εἰς οἶκόν τινος τῶν ἀρχόντων τῶν Φαρισαίων σαββάτῳ φαγεῖν ἄρτον, καὶ αὐτοὶ ἦσαν παρατηρούμενοι αὐτόν. 2 καὶ ἰδοὺ, ἄνθρωπός τις ἦν ὑδρωπικὸς ἔμπροσθεν αὐτοῦ. 3 a Καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπε πρὸς τοὺς νομικοὺς καὶ Φαρισαίους λέγων, Εἰ ἔξεστι τῷ σαββάτῳ θεραπεύειν; οἱ δὲ ἡσύχασαν. 4 Καὶ ἐπιλαβόμενος ἰάσατο αὐτὸν, καὶ ἀπέλυσε. (177 Ϟ) 5 b καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς πρὸς αὐτοὺς εἶπε, Τίνος ὑμῶν υἱὸς ἢ βοῦς εἰς φρέαρ ἐμπεσεῖται, καὶ οὐκ εὐθέως ἀνασπάσει αὐτὸν ἐν τῇ ἡμέρᾳ τοῦ σαββάτου; 6 Καὶ οὐκ ἴσχυσαν ἀνταποκριθῆναι αὐτῷ πρὸς ταῦτα.

a Matt. 12. 10.

b Exod. 23. 5. Deut. 22. 4. ch. 13. 15.

(178 Ϡ) 7 c Ἔλεγε δὲ πρὸς τοὺς κεκλημένους παραβολὴν, ἐπέχων πῶς τὰς πρωτοκλισίας ἐξελέγοντο, λέγων πρὸς αὐτούς, 8 Ὅταν κληθῇς ὑπό τινος εἰς γάμους, μὴ κατακλιθῇς εἰς τὴν πρωτοκλισίαν, μήποτε ἐντιμότερός σου ᾖ κεκλημένος ὑπ' αὐτοῦ, 9 καὶ ἐλθὼν ὁ σὲ καὶ αὐτὸν καλέσας ἐρεῖ σοι, Δὸς τούτῳ τόπον, καὶ τότε ἄρξῃ μετ' αἰσχύνης τὸν ἔσχατον τόπον κατέχειν. 10 Ἀλλ' ὅταν κληθῇς, πορευθεὶς ἀνάπεσε εἰς τὸν ἔσχατον τόπον, ἵνα ὅταν ἔλθῃ ὁ κεκληκώς σε εἴπῃ σοι, Φίλε, προσανάβηθι ἀνώτερον· τότε ἔσται σοι δόξα ἐνώπιον τῶν συνανακειμένων σοι. (179 Ϛ) 11 d Ὅτι πᾶς ὁ ὑψῶν ἑαυτὸν ταπεινωθήσεται, καὶ ὁ ταπεινῶν ἑαυτὸν ὑψωθήσεται. (180 Χ) 12 e Ἔλεγε δὲ καὶ τῷ κεκληκότι αὐτὸν, Ὅταν ποιῇς ἄριστον ἢ δεῖπνον, μὴ φώνει τοὺς φίλους σου, μηδὲ τοὺς ἀδελφούς σου, μηδὲ τοὺς συγγενεῖς σου, μηδὲ γείτονας πλουσίους, μήποτε καὶ αὐτοί σε ἀντικαλέσωσι, καὶ γένηταί σοι ἀνταπόδομα. 13 Ἀλλ' ὅταν ποιῇς δοχὴν, κάλει πτωχοὺς, ἀναπήρους, χωλοὺς, τυφλοὺς, 14 καὶ μακάριος ἔσῃ, ὅτι οὐκ ἔχουσιν ἀνταποδοῦναί σοι, ἀνταποδοθήσεται γάρ σοι ἐν τῇ ἀναστάσει τῶν δικαίων.

c Prov. 25. 6, 7.

d Job 22. 29. Prov. 29. 23. Matt. 23. 12. ch. 1. 51. & 18. 14. James 4. 6, 10. 1 Pet. 5. 5.

e Neh. 8. 12. Tob. 4. 7. Prov. 3. 9, 28.

15 Ἀκούσας δέ τις τῶν συνανακειμένων ταῦτα, εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Μακάριος ὃς φάγεται ἄρτον ἐν τῇ βασιλείᾳ τοῦ Θεοῦ. (181 Ϛ) 16 f Ὁ δὲ εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Ἄνθρωπός f Isa. 25. 6. Matt. 22. 2. Rev. 19. 9.

---

kill Me,—but, as far as the time is concerned, against your own will. (See Matt. xxvi. 5.)

— τελειοῦμαι] Cp. John xix. 28, τετέλεσται, and Heb. ii. 10, διὰ παθημάτων τελειῶσαι. τελειοῦσθαι is the word specially applied to the glorious consummation of a Martyr's death. See the ancient Inscription concerning St. Thomas, in Routh, Rel. Sac. i. 376, ὁ ἅγιος Θωμᾶς λόχι (λόγχῃ) ὑπὸ Ἰνδῶν τελειοῦται. You and Herod may unite with Pontius Pilate, and imagine that you have put an end to Christ; but His end is the beginning of His glory, His Death is the entrance into Life: where you suppose that you have destroyed Him, there He is perfected.

33. πλὴν δεῖ με—πορεύεσθαι] Besides, and yet—i. e. notwithstanding Herod and you desire to destroy Me here and now, I must needs continue to walk; you cannot arrest My progress in preaching and working, till I go up to Jerusalem. Christ is Lord of place and time: and though they seek to kill Him now and here, He proceeds undisturbed in His course, till He goes and offers Himself as the Lamb of God at the Passover at Jerusalem. The word πορεύεσθαι, as here used by Christ, is the Hebr. הָלַךְ, to walk, i. e. to proceed in a certain track (דֶּרֶךְ) of life, action, and beneficence. He takes up the same word as had been used by them, but (as often) gives it a higher sense. δεῖ, says St. Cyril, signifies not necessity, but will. What Christ wills must be.

34. Ἰερουσαλήμ] See Matt. xxiii. 37.

35. ἀφίεται ὑμῖν ὁ οἶκος ὑμῶν] especially that Holy House which was God's House, but is become your house, being made "a den of thieves," that is left to you, being soon about to be deserted by God. (Theophyl.) See on Matt. xxiv. 15.

— οὐ μή με ἴδητε] This prophecy was to have a double fulfilment, first on Christ's triumphal entry (see Matt. xxi. 9. Mark xi. 9. Luke xix. 38); and secondly (one yet future), in the conversion of the Jews. See on Matt. xxiii. 39.

CH. XIV. 1. Φαρισαίων] Though our Lord knew their malice, yet He vouchsafed to be their guest, that He might feed them with the bread of life and with the instruction of His wonderful works. (St. Cyril.)

3. ἀποκριθεὶς] i. e. to their thoughts.

5. υἱός] So A, B, E, G, H, K, L, V. ὄνος, Elz. But υἱὸς ὑμῶν has a special force here. You rescue your children from a pit on the Sabbath; may not I deliver My children, who are also sons of Abraham, from the bonds of Satan on the Sabbath? Cp. xiii. 16.

There is another reason for preferring the reading υἱός. The argument proceeds from a thing of greater value to one of less. You deliver your children, and even your oxen, on the Sabbath. Shall not I much more deliver my creatures and children? If ὄνος were the true reading, it should follow after βοῦς (as in xiii. 15), and not precede it. The Scriptures often say "ox and ass" (Exod. xxiii. 12. Deut. xxii. 10. Isa. i. 3; xxxii. 20), but never "ass and ox."

7. ἔλεγε δέ] These Parables (7—24) are naturally connected with the occasion, and show how the repast of the body may be made the banquet of the soul.

12. μὴ φώνει] i. e. prefer mercy. On this mode of teaching the paramount importance of a particular duty by comparing it with another, by means of a prohibition or negative, see on Matt. ix. 13.

— καὶ γένηταί σοι ἀνταπόδομα] "Hospitalem esse remuneraturis affectus est avaritiæ." (St. Ambrose.)

14. μακάριος ἔσῃ] Because they cannot recompense thee. Let us therefore (says Chrysostom) not be disappointed and troubled at not receiving a recompense from men on earth; rather let us be troubled when we receive it, lest we learn to look for reward on earth, and so lose our reward in heaven.

— ἀναστάσει τῶν δικαίων] When all shall rise (Bede), and the Just be rewarded, and thou with them. The dead in Christ shall rise first (1 Cor. xv. 23. 1 Thess. iv. 16), and be first judged and rewarded (Matt. xxv. 34. 41).

15. φάγεται ἄρτον] See on Matt. xv. 2.

16—24.] On these verses see Greg. M. Hom. in Ev. xxxvi. p. 1612.

τις ἐποίησε δεῖπνον μέγα, καὶ ἐκάλεσε πολλούς. 17 [g] Καὶ ἀπέστειλε τὸν δοῦλον αὐτοῦ τῇ ὥρᾳ τοῦ δείπνου εἰπεῖν τοῖς κεκλημένοις, Ἔρχεσθε, ὅτι ἤδη ἕτοιμά ἐστι πάντα. 18 [h] Καὶ ἤρξαντο ἀπὸ μιᾶς παραιτεῖσθαι πάντες. Ὁ πρῶτος εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Ἀγρὸν ἠγόρασα, καὶ ἔχω ἀνάγκην ἐξελθεῖν καὶ ἰδεῖν αὐτόν, ἐρωτῶ σε, ἔχε με παρῃτημένον. 19 Καὶ ἕτερος εἶπε, Ζεύγη βοῶν ἠγόρασα πέντε, καὶ πορεύομαι δοκιμάσαι αὐτά, ἐρωτῶ σε, ἔχε με παρῃτημένον. 20 Καὶ ἕτερος εἶπε, Γυναῖκα ἔγημα, καὶ διὰ τοῦτο οὐ δύναμαι ἐλθεῖν. 21 [i] Καὶ παραγενόμενος ὁ δοῦλος ἐκεῖνος ἀπήγγειλε τῷ κυρίῳ αὐτοῦ ταῦτα. Τότε ὀργισθεὶς ὁ οἰκοδεσπότης εἶπε τῷ δούλῳ αὐτοῦ, Ἔξελθε ταχέως εἰς τὰς πλατείας καὶ ῥύμας τῆς πόλεως, καὶ τοὺς πτωχοὺς καὶ ἀναπήρους καὶ χωλοὺς καὶ τυφλοὺς εἰσάγαγε ὧδε. 22 Καὶ εἶπεν ὁ δοῦλος, Κύριε, γέγονεν ὡς ἐπέταξας, καὶ ἔτι τόπος ἐστί. 23 Καὶ εἶπεν ὁ κύριος πρὸς τὸν δοῦλον, Ἔξελθε εἰς τὰς ὁδοὺς καὶ φραγμούς, καὶ ἀνάγκασον εἰσελθεῖν, ἵνα γεμισθῇ ὁ οἶκός μου· 24 [j] λέγω γὰρ ὑμῖν, ὅτι οὐδεὶς τῶν ἀνδρῶν ἐκείνων τῶν κεκλημένων γεύσεταί μου τοῦ δείπνου.

(182 V) 25 Συνεπορεύοντο δὲ αὐτῷ ὄχλοι πολλοί· καὶ στραφεὶς εἶπε πρὸς αὐτούς, 26 [k] Εἴ τις ἔρχεται πρός με, [l] καὶ οὐ μισεῖ τὸν πατέρα ἑαυτοῦ καὶ τὴν μητέρα, καὶ τὴν γυναῖκα καὶ τὰ τέκνα, καὶ τοὺς ἀδελφοὺς καὶ τὰς ἀδελφάς, [m] ἔτι δὲ καὶ τὴν ἑαυτοῦ ψυχήν, οὐ δύναται μου μαθητὴς εἶναι. 27 Καὶ ὅστις οὐ βαστάζει τὸν σταυρὸν αὐτοῦ καὶ ἔρχεται ὀπίσω μου, οὐ δύναται μου εἶναι μαθητής. (183 X) 28 Τίς γὰρ ἐξ ὑμῶν, θέλων πύργον οἰκοδομῆσαι, οὐχὶ πρῶτον καθίσας ψηφίζει τὴν δαπάνην, εἰ ἔχει τὰ εἰς ἀπαρτισμόν; 29 ἵνα μήποτε, θέντος αὐτοῦ θεμέλιον, καὶ μὴ ἰσχύοντος ἐκτελέσαι, πάντες οἱ θεωροῦντες ἄρξωνται ἐμπαίζειν αὐτῷ, 30 λέγοντες, Ὅτι οὗτος ὁ ἄνθρωπος ἤρξατο οἰκοδομεῖν, καὶ οὐκ ἴσχυσεν ἐκτελέσαι. 31 Ἢ τίς βασιλεὺς, πορευόμενος συμβαλεῖν ἑτέρῳ βασιλεῖ εἰς πόλεμον, οὐχὶ καθίσας πρῶτον βουλεύεται, εἰ δυνατός ἐστιν ἐν δέκα χιλιάσιν ἀπαντῆσαι τῷ μετὰ εἴκοσι χιλιάδων ἐρχομένῳ ἐπ' αὐτόν; 32 εἰ δὲ μήγε, ἔτι πόρρω αὐτοῦ ὄντος, πρεσβείαν ἀποστείλας ἐρωτᾷ τὰ πρὸς εἰρήνην. (184 V) 33 Οὕτως οὖν πᾶς ἐξ ὑμῶν, ὃς οὐκ ἀποτάσσεται πᾶσι τοῖς ἑαυτοῦ ὑπάρχουσιν, οὐ δύναται μου εἶναι μαθητής. (185 II) 34 [n] Καλὸν τὸ ἅλας· ἐὰν δὲ τὸ ἅλας μωρανθῇ, ἐν τίνι

[g] Prov. 9. 2, 5.
[h] John 5. 40. Matt. 22. 3.
[i] Matt. 11. 5.
[j] Matt. 21. 43. & 22. 8. Acts 13. 46.
[k] Matt. 10. 37, 38. Deut. 13. 6. & 33. 9.
[l] Rom. 9. 13.
[m] Rev. 12. 11.
[n] Matt. 5. 13. Mark 9. 50.

16. πολλούς] i. e. the whole Jewish People, by the Baptist, by His Apostles, by His Disciples, and by Himself.

18. ἀπὸ μιᾶς] i. e. γνώμης. See on xii. 47.

— ἀγρὸν ἠγόρασα, κ.τ.λ.] All these excuses had been anticipated and refuted by our Lord's teaching that there was another field for which they ought to sell all and buy it (Matt. xiii. 44); another plough to be followed (Luke ix. 62. See Bengel); and now He teaches that there is a marriage-feast to be preferred before all earthly nuptials—a marriage-feast in which the soul is not only a guest, but is espoused to Christ (2 Cor. xi. 2).

— ἔχε μὲ παρῃτημένον] There is an emphasis on the pronoun. Whatever may be the case with others, who can and ought to come, I am obliged to ask thee to excuse me.

It has been said that this phrase is a Latinism, 'excusatum me habeas;' but, as Meyer observes, ἔχω is often used in Greek writers to signify a relative possession: 'have me as yours;' but in a certain relation, i. e. as one excused by you on my entreaty. The applicant does not wish to detach himself from the lord, he wishes to be accounted his friend and dependent, but on terms of his own.

Here is the point of application to many who are willing to be Christ's on terms of their own making; who will not accept His offers of grace in His Way, e. g. by the Word and Sacraments, but think to be saved in a way of their own.

21. "πλατείας latiores, ῥύμας angustiores vias." (Rosen.)

— πτωχοὺς καὶ ἀναπήρους, κ.τ.λ.] Such were all then in Heathen lands: without the Gospel the world was a vast Hospital of Incurables (Eph. ii. 12).

23. ἀνάγκασον] Use so much zeal and importunity, that they may feel constrained to come in (2 Tim. iv. 2). And the word shows the great power of the Gospel which would convert the Heathen from vice and idolatry to God. (Theoph.)

On the use of ἀναγκάζω, see Gal. ii. 3. 14; vi. 12. That this text does not authorize the application of violence in propagating religion, see Grot., and above, note on ix. 55. "Aliter compulit Saulus pro Judaismo insaniens, aliter Paulus servus Jesu Christi." (Beng.)

24. οὐδεὶς τῶν ἀνδρῶν] On the rejection of the Jews and the reception of the Gentiles, see Matt. xxi. 43; xxii. 8. Acts xiii. 46.

25. ὄχλοι πολλοί] Great Multitudes were following Him. But He foresaw that Multitudes would fall away from Him, and that Multitudes would soon cry 'Crucify Him' (Matt. xxvii. 22. Luke xxiii. 21). He shows that He reads their hearts and foresees the future; and winnows them (as Gideon did his 32,000, reduced to 300, Judges vii. 1—8) by prophecies of trial and tribulation.

26. οὐ μισεῖ] See on Matt. ix. 13, and cp. Matt. x. 37. We must hate (i. e. renounce and forsake) all things—our friends, our relatives, our own lives, if they draw us off from Christ. (Theoph.) We are to love our enemies; and that man is best loved, who, if he tempts us from God by words of carnal wisdom, is not heard. (Greg. Hom. 37 in Evang.) That which is bettered by being neglected or thwarted, as an evil counseller in his evil counsel, is best loved by being hated. We must not allow other men's evil to overcome our good, but endeavour, for their sakes as well as our own, to overcome evil with good (Rom. xii. 21). Cp. St. Ambrose here.

— μοῦ] emphatic, and so placed also in v. 27 and v. 33. He may be a man's disciple without such sacrifices as these; but he cannot be Christ's.

28—31. πύργον—πόλεμον] Our Lord had been giving high and heavenly precepts, and tells us that if we would erect our tower, i. e. build up our lives and elevate ourselves to their spiritual altitude, we must first sit down and count the cost; we must frame our account for a large amount of difficulty and suffering. (Cp. Gregor. Moral 37 in Evang.)

He had been speaking also of spiritual warfare against the powerful Enemy of our souls. We must prepare our forces accordingly. (St. Cyril.) Whosoever he be of you that forsaketh not all that he hath cannot be My disciple. (See v. 26.)

33. τὰ εἰς ἀπαρ.] So A, E, G, H, M, S. πρὸς, Elz. But it is necessary to calculate and count not only whether we have what tends toward (πρὸς), but what will reach to (εἰς), completion.—πρὸς has a proper place in v. 32.

34. καλὸν τὸ ἅλας, κ.τ.λ.] If a man, especially one who ought to teach others, and, like salt, to preserve from corruption, lose his savour and become reprobate (sal infatuatum) how shall he be recovered and reseasoned? (Bede.) See on Matt. v. 13, 14. Mark ix. 50. Heb. vi. 1—7. ἀρτυθήσεται; 35 Οὔτε εἰς γῆν οὔτε εἰς κοπρίαν εὔθετόν ἐστιν· ἔξω βάλλουσιν αὐτό. Ὁ ἔχων ὦτα ἀκούειν ἀκουέτω.

XV. (186/Π) 1 [a] Ἦσαν δὲ ἐγγίζοντες αὐτῷ πάντες οἱ τελῶναι καὶ οἱ ἁμαρτωλοὶ ἀκούειν αὐτοῦ. 2 Καὶ διεγόγγυζον οἱ Φαρισαῖοι καὶ οἱ Γραμματεῖς λέγοντες, Ὅτι οὗτος ἁμαρτωλοὺς προσδέχεται, καὶ συνεσθίει αὐτοῖς. 3 Εἶπε δὲ πρὸς αὐτοὺς τὴν παραβολὴν ταύτην λέγων, (187/Ν) 4 [b] Τίς ἄνθρωπος ἐξ ὑμῶν, ἔχων ἑκατὸν πρόβατα, καὶ ἀπολέσας ἓν ἐξ αὐτῶν, οὐ καταλείπει τὰ ἐννενηκονταεννέα ἐν τῇ ἐρήμῳ, καὶ πορεύεται ἐπὶ τὸ ἀπολωλὸς, ἕως εὕρῃ αὐτό; 5 [c] Καὶ εὑρὼν ἐπιτίθησιν ἐπὶ τοὺς ὤμους ἑαυτοῦ χαίρων, 6 [d] καὶ ἐλθὼν εἰς τὸν οἶκον συγκαλεῖ τοὺς φίλους καὶ τοὺς γείτονας, λέγων αὐτοῖς, Συνχάρητέ μοι ὅτι εὗρον τὸ πρόβατόν μου τὸ ἀπολωλός. 7 [e] Λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι οὕτω χαρὰ ἔσται ἐν τῷ οὐρανῷ ἐπὶ ἑνὶ ἁμαρτωλῷ μετανοοῦντι, ἢ ἐπὶ ἐννενηκονταεννέα δικαίοις, οἵτινες οὐ χρείαν ἔχουσι μετανοίας. (188/Χ) 8 [f] Ἢ τίς γυνὴ δραχμὰς ἔχουσα δέκα, ἐὰν ἀπολέσῃ δραχμὴν μίαν, οὐχὶ ἅπτει λύχνον, καὶ σαροῖ τὴν οἰκίαν, καὶ ζητεῖ ἐπιμελῶς ἕως ὅτου εὕρῃ; 9 καὶ εὑροῦσα συγκαλεῖται τὰς φίλας καὶ τὰς γείτονας λέγουσα, Συνχάρητέ μοι ὅτι εὗρον τὴν δραχμὴν ἣν ἀπώλεσα. (189/Ψ) 10 [f] Οὕτω, λέγω ὑμῖν, χαρὰ γίνεται ἐνώπιον τῶν ἀγγέλων τοῦ Θεοῦ ἐπὶ ἑνὶ ἁμαρτωλῷ μετανοοῦντι.

[a] Matt. 9. 10. ch. 5. 29.
[b] Matt. 18. 12.
[c] Ezek. 34. 16.
[d] Ps. 119. 176. 1 Pet. 2. 25.
[e] ch. 5. 32.
[f] Ezek. 18. 23, 32. & 33. 11.

11 Εἶπε δὲ, Ἄνθρωπός τις εἶχε δύο υἱούς· (190/Χ) 12 καὶ εἶπεν ὁ νεώτερος

Ch. XV. 1. ἦσαν ἐγγίζοντες] On this passage, to v. 10, see the Homily of Greg. M. in Evang. xxxiv. p. 1601.

Here is another example of our Lord's teaching growing out of a particular incident (see above, x. 1; xii. 13; xiii. 4), and then illustrated and explained by the Evangelist by means of other discourses delivered by Christ at other times.

The two first parables, that concerning the Sheep and the Piece of Silver, refer directly to the objection of the Pharisees (in v. 3), not so the third parable (v. 11). See note there.

It may be observed here generally that the Holy Spirit writing by St. Luke to the Gentiles is specially careful to record, and loves to dwell upon in this Gospel, the merciful sayings and acts of our Blessed Saviour to—Foreigners, e. g. Samaritans (x. 33; ix. 52; xvii. 16).

Despised Jews as publicans (xv. 1; xviii. 10).

Penitent sinners generally (xiii. 4). Cp. iv. 25—27; and see the parables in this chapter.

2. διεγόγγυζον] "διὰ certandi significationem addit." Hermann ad Viger. p. 856. (Meyer.)

4. τὰ ἐννενηκονταεννέα ἐν τῇ ἐρήμῳ] ἔρημος is down, or pasture-land, woodland, &c., opposed to the city.—not necessarily a barren wilderness. (See above, Matt. v. 1.) It is used by LXX for Hebr. מִדְבָּר (midbar), which is a large plain for pasture. See Gesen. in v.

The ninety and nine left by the "Good Shepherd" (John x. 11. 14. 16) are the myriads of heaven. "Angelorum, Archangelorum, &c., innumerabiles greges," St. Ambrose, who adds, "Dives Pastor, cujus omnes nos centesima pars sumus."

The one lost Sheep is Mankind. (Cp. Isa. liii. 6. Ps. cxix. 176.) "Ovis illa, quæ perierat in Adam, levatur in Christo." (St. Ambrose.)

5. ἐπὶ τοὺς ὤμους] On His Shoulders; for He bare our sins on His own body on the Tree (1 Pet. ii. 24. Isa. liii. 4—16. Heb. ix. 28). "Humeri Christi crucis brachia sunt," says St. Ambrose. "Illic peccata mea deposui, in illâ patibuli nobilis cervice requievi."

6. οἶκον] His home—heaven is Christ's home and the home of Christians.

— τὸ πρόβατόν μου] See on v. 8.

7. ἁμαρτωλῷ μετανοοῦντι] that is, He does not joy over the sinner as a sinner, but over him repenting; over his repentance, over the sinner ceasing to sin.

On these modes of speaking, in which human affections are ascribed to Almighty God, see Glass. de Ἀνθροποπαθείᾳ, Phil. Sacr. Lib. v. Tract i. c. 7, p. 726. The whole Treatise deserves attention.

— ἢ ἐπὶ ἐννενηκονταεννέα] See on Matt. xviii. 13, where μᾶλλον is expressed. On the ellipsis μᾶλλον, see Ecclus. xxii. 15. 2 Mac. xiv. 42. Ps. cxviii. 8, 9. (Valck.) — οὐ χρείαν ἔχουσι μετανοίας] This is to be explained from Matt. xviii. 13, τοῖς μὴ πεπλανημένοις.

Perhaps also there may be a tacit censure of the Pharisees (vv. 1, 2), who imagine themselves to have no need of repentance. See Matt. ix. 12, where the phrase οὐ χρείαν ἔχουσι occurs in this sense. See note there.

8. τίς γυνή] The Church of Christ. (St. Ambrose.) See note on v. 9.

— δραχμήν] Man, created in the image of God, and engraven with the divine superscription. (See on Matt. xxii. 21.) "Non mediocris hæc drachma, in quâ Regis est figura. Imago Regis census Ecclesiæ est. Nos drachma Dei sumus." Cp. Aug. in Ps. cxxxviii. "Quid est drachma? Nummus in quo imago Imperatoris nostri." (St. Ambrose.)

9. εὑροῦσα] There is the same order here as in other parables of Christ (Matt. xiii. 3—33), where first He describes His own office as the Sower of the Seed, of the good grain in the field, of the mustard-seed. And then subordinately and last of all He pourtrays that of the woman (v. 33), i. e. His Church, infusing the leaven of His Gospel into the mass of human society till the whole is leavened.

So here; first Christ is represented as the Shepherd, and the sheep is called His sheep (τὸ πρόβατόν μου, v. 6), for He came forth from Heaven to seek and to save it, and to bring it back on His shoulders.

The Sheep is Christ's; but the woman lights a candle (God's word) and sweeps[1] the house where she herself dwells (Tert. Præsc. Hæret. xiv.), and she does not call the piece of silver her own. The penitent sinner, stamped with God's image, though marred and bedimmed, is not her's, but God's; and she owns that she lost it, ἣν ἀπώλεσα (v. 9), perhaps by neglect, which is not imputable to Christ, Who came to seek and to save τὸ ἀπολωλός (v. 4, 5).

10. μετανοοῦντι] emphatic. See v. 7.

11. εἶπε δέ] It does not appear that this parable was delivered on the same occasion as the former.

There is often a chasm of time between the paragraphs; of which the latter is prefaced by εἶπε δέ. See xiii. 18. 20, and xii. 13. 22. 41. 51, and note on x. 13.

This is the more necessary to be observed here, because in some excellent works on the Parables the scope of the parable seems to be missed, through an endeavour to identify the younger son with sinners within the Church (such as the Publicans), and the elder son is made to represent the self-righteous in the same Church.

It is alleged indeed by some, that the two sons must be of the same dispensation, the Jewish; and that the younger son could not be the Gentile World, for that was never in God's house. But surely this is a very narrow view of Human Nature. Cp. Burgon here. For an excellent exposition of it, see St. Jerome iv. 149, and cp. St. Chrysost. v. 720—728, Orat. 112.

The true interpretation of this portion of the Chapter seems to be as follows:

Publicans and sinners had resorted to Christ to hear His teaching. The Pharisees murmur against Him for receiving sinners and eating with them. He says in a parable that He, the Son of God, had come down from heaven for the express purpose of doing that at which they, in their ignorance, cruelty, and unthankfulness, murmured; and that He has placed in the world His Church for the restoration of penitent sinners, whose repentance and pardon, though cavilled at by self-righteous and evil men, is a cause of great joy to the Angels of Heaven, and to God Himself.

The Holy Spirit having recorded these parables, proceeds to add another, enlarging our view of God's love to the whole world, the Jew and Gentile, represented by the two sons; showing that all men are children of one Father; that all were originally brought up in one

---

[1] σαροῖ τὴν οἰκίαν. Even as early as the time of Greg. M. the Latin Version used in the Church of Rome had here 'everrit domum' for 'everrit.' See his homily on this passage, Hom. xxxiv. p. 603: "Domus everritur, cùm conscientia perturbatur."

αὐτῶν τῷ πατρί, Πάτερ, δός μοι τὸ ἐπιβάλλον μέρος τῆς οὐσίας· καὶ διεῖλεν αὐτοῖς τὸν βίον. 13 Καὶ μετ' οὐ πολλὰς ἡμέρας συναγαγὼν ἅπαντα ὁ νεώτερος υἱὸς ἀπεδήμησεν εἰς χώραν μακράν, καὶ ἐκεῖ διεσκόρπισε τὴν οὐσίαν αὐτοῦ, ζῶν ἀσώτως. 14 Δαπανήσαντος δὲ αὐτοῦ πάντα, ἐγένετο λιμὸς ἰσχυρὸς κατὰ τὴν χώραν ἐκείνην, καὶ αὐτὸς ἤρξατο ὑστερεῖσθαι. 15 Καὶ πορευθεὶς ἐκολλήθη ἑνὶ τῶν πολιτῶν τῆς χώρας ἐκείνης· καὶ ἔπεμψεν αὐτὸν εἰς τοὺς ἀγροὺς αὐτοῦ βόσκειν χοίρους. 16 Καὶ ἐπεθύμει γεμίσαι τὴν κοιλίαν αὐτοῦ ἀπὸ τῶν κερατίων ὧν ἤσθιον οἱ χοῖροι· καὶ οὐδεὶς ἐδίδου αὐτῷ. 17 Εἰς ἑαυτὸν δὲ ἐλθὼν εἶπε, Πόσοι μίσθιοι τοῦ πατρός μου περισσεύουσιν ἄρτων, ἐγὼ δὲ ὧδε λιμῷ ἀπόλλυμαι. 18 Ἀναστὰς πορεύσομαι πρὸς τὸν πατέρα μου, καὶ ἐρῶ αὐτῷ, Πάτερ, ἥμαρτον εἰς τὸν οὐρανὸν καὶ ἐνώπιόν σου· 19 οὐκέτι εἰμὶ ἄξιος κληθῆναι g Acts. 2. 39. Eph. 2. 12, 17.
υἱός σου, ποίησόν με ὡς ἕνα τῶν μισθίων σου. 20 g Καὶ ἀναστὰς ἦλθε πρὸς τὸν πατέρα ἑαυτοῦ. Ἔτι δὲ αὐτοῦ μακρὰν ἀπέχοντος εἶδεν αὐτὸν ὁ πατὴρ αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἐσπλαγχνίσθη, καὶ δραμὼν ἐπέπεσεν ἐπὶ τὸν τράχηλον αὐτοῦ καὶ κατεφίλησεν αὐτόν. 21 Εἶπε δὲ αὐτῷ ὁ υἱός, Πάτερ, ἥμαρτον εἰς τὸν οὐρανὸν h Gen. 27. 15. & 41. 42. Zech. 3. 3—5. Isa. 61. 10.
καὶ ἐνώπιόν σου, καὶ οὐκέτι εἰμὶ ἄξιος κληθῆναι υἱός σου. 22 h Εἶπε δὲ ὁ πατὴρ πρὸς τοὺς δούλους αὐτοῦ, Ἐξενέγκατε τὴν στολὴν τὴν πρώτην, καὶ ἐνδύσατε αὐτὸν, καὶ δότε δακτύλιον εἰς τὴν χεῖρα αὐτοῦ καὶ ὑποδήματα εἰς τοὺς πόδας· 23 καὶ ἐνέγκαντες τὸν μόσχον τὸν σιτευτὸν θύσατε, καὶ φαγόντες home, that the sin and misery of the Heathen was due to their own will and act; to their defection from God, and to their desertion of their Father's house, and to their preference of their own ways and devices to their Father's Will and Law; that they strayed away from their home to a far country, and made themselves aliens and foreigners, and without God in the world (Eph. ii. 12. 17. 19. 1 Pet. ii. 10. 25), and became slaves to a cruel master, the Devil, who sent them to feed swine and to fill their bellies with husks, to wallow, as it were, with the swine in the mire of uncleanness (2 Pet. ii. 22), but that God still strove with them and afflicted them with poverty and famine in order that they might yearn for their Father's house; and put His spirit into their hearts and made them long to return; and that on their return towards Him He runs to meet them, and falls on their neck and kisses them.

---

The Holy Spirit declares that the same jealousy which was shown against the Publicans by some of their own fellow countrymen, would be shown by the same elder son of God's family against his younger brother the Gentile; but that God, who welcomed the returning prodigal, would go out to call in his murmuring brother (v. 28).

Whatever might be the defection of the Gentile, or the envy and ingratitude of the Jew, the Father of all had been ever from the beginning gracious to all; is ever merciful to all, and ready to receive all, both Jew and Gentile, on their repentance, to His bosom and their home.

This Parable was also a Prophecy, and received a remarkable fulfilment in the conduct of the Jews to the Gentiles; which proved the prescience of Christ as shown in this Parable.

11. δύο υἱούς] 'duos populos,' the Jew and Gentile. St. Aug. Quæst. Evang. ii. 33.

12. τὸ ἐπιβάλλον] in a neuter sense. See the note on Mark xiv. 72. ἐπιβάλλω is so used by LXX, σοὶ ἐπιβάλλει ἡ κληρονομία, 1 Macc. x. 29, 30. This word is very descriptive of the mind of the Gentile World. As if the inheritance was not a free gift of God; but belonged to them of right, or fell to them by necessity, or chance. Unthankfulness and forgetfulness of God's goodness are the precursors of apostasy from Him.

13. χώραν μακράν, κ.τ.λ.] "Oblivionem Dei.—Fames est indigentia verbi veritatis; Comes civium, aerius princeps, ad militiam diaboli pertinens. Porci, immundi spiritus sub ipso; siliquæ, seculares doctrinæ, sterili vanitate resonantes, quibus dæmonia delectantur." (Cp. St. Jerome, Epist. 146.)

— ἀσώτως] "'perdité;' 'adolescentem luxu perditum.' Ipsa, si cupiat, salus, servare prorsus non potis hancce familiam." Terent. Adelph. iv. 7. (Valck.)

14. ἰσχυρός] A, B, D, L have ἰσχυρά, but St. Luke has λιμὸς μέγας (iv. 25).

— αὐτός] "ipse, filius Domini multorum servorum benè pastorum." Cp. v. 17.

15. ἐκολλήθη] See Luke x. 11. Acts v. 13; viii. 29; ix. 26. Matt. xix. 5.

16. κερατίων] the siliquæ, or pods of the carob, i. e. חָרוּב (charuba), συκῆ Αἰγυπτία. Theophrast. Plant. i. 18. French, carouge. German, Johannis-brod Baum. Cf. Pers. iii. 55. Horat. Ep. ii. 1. 123. Juvenal, xi. 58. Plin. N. H. xxiii. 79. They were given to swine (Columella, R. R. vii. 9), and are called κεράτια, from their horn-like form. See Wetstein and Kuinoel here, and Winer, Real. Lex. i. p. 593, v. Johannis-brod Baum. Robinson, Palest. iii. 272, and Trench, p. 398.

— οὐδεὶς ἐδίδου] No one gave him—even husks (Meyer). But he could take them for himself from the tree. It has a more general sense, as Matt. vii. 7; xix. 21.

17. εἰς ἑαυτὸν ἐλθών] "Formula ἔρχεσθαι εἰς ἑαυτὸν propriè dicitur de iis, qui deliquium animi passi ad se redeunt; deinde verò transfertur ad eos, qui ad sanam mentem redeunt, qui ita agunt, ut homines sanæ mentis decet. Diod. Sic. xiii. 95, τοῖς λογισμοῖς εἰς ἑαυτοὺς ἐρχόμενοι. Arrian. Epictet. iii. 1, ὅταν εἰς σεαυτὸν ἔλθῃς. Lucret. iv. 994, Donec discussis redeant erroribus ad se. Terent. Adelph. v. 3. 8, Tandem reprime iracundiam, atque ad te redi." (Kuin.)

18. ἐρῶ] "Etsi Deus novit omnia, vocem tamen tuæ confessionis expectat." (St. Ambrose.)

21. εἰς τὸν οὐρανὸν καὶ ἐνώπιόν σου] Observe, he persevered in the resolution expressed before, in his exile (v. 18): he was not spoiled by the father's kindness.

This is the language of true repentance and godly sorrow, not proceeding only from dolor amissi; not from a sense only of pœna, but of culpa, and that not in the sight of men, but of God. See Bp. Sanderson's Sermon on Ahab's Repentance, vol. iii. p. 13.

The penitent says that he has sinned against heaven, and so acknowledges that heaven, and not earth, is his home; and that he will no longer wallow in the mire of this lower world, but "seek the things that are above, and have his conversation in heaven."

22. στολὴν τὴν πρώτην] στολή is a long robe, covering the whole person: see Mark xii. 38. Luke xx. 46. And τὴν πρώτην is τὴν τιμιωτάτην (Euthym.), 'pretiosam.' So Athen. 369, πρῶται ἐσθῆτες. (Valck.) In a spiritual sense the returning prodigal receives "principalem stolam, quam Adam peccando amiserat" (Jerome. Gen. iii. 7), the white στολή, or robe of Christ's righteousness (see Rev. vi. 11; vii. 14), in which Christians are clothed at baptism, when they put on Christ. Cp. Gal. iii. 27. Rev. vi. 11; vii. 14.

— δακτύλιον] a signet ring—a pledge of the Spirit (Aug.), a seal, σφραγῖδα, and an emblem of the spiritual marriage by which the soul is espoused to Christ. Clem. Alex. ('Quis dives,' &c.) and others (see Bingham, xi. 1. 6) call Baptism τὴν σφραγῖδα τοῦ Κυρίου, 'signaculum fidei' (Tertullian. Apol. 21), and 'signaculum similitudinis Christi.' (Jerome.) It may be a consignation of the grace begun in Baptism, and consummated in Confirmation. And perhaps the words ἐπὶ τὴν χεῖρα and εἰς τοὺς πόδας may be added, not without meaning, to show that now is the time for Christian labour with the hand, and for Christian progress with the feet, in the "ways of God's laws, and in the works of His commandments."

— ὑποδήματα] Ephes. vi. 15. "Calceamentum Evangelii prædicatio est" (St. Ambrose, St. Aug.), by which we walk in the way of holy obedience.

It is observable that long robes, στολαί, signet rings (cp. James ii. 2. 1 Macc. vi. 15) and shoes, were not allowed to be worn by slaves, but were badges of ingenui, or free men (see Rosenm.); therefore they are appropriately introduced here to show that the Father in His love does not make the returning prodigal to be one of his hired servants (v. 19), but restores him to liberty as His son. A beautiful emblem of the blessedness of true repentance, and of God's pardon, delivering from the slavery of Satan, and restoring the penitent to the glorious liberty of the sons of God (Rom. viii. 21).

23. τὸν μόσχον τὸν σιτευτόν] Observe the article repeated, denoting something extraordinary. (Beng.) "Vitulum saginatum ideoque votivum." (Valck.) Figuratively, it may perhaps be applied to the commemorative sacrifice of the Holy Eucharist, in which the εὐφρανθῶμεν· 24 [i] ὅτι οὗτος ὁ υἱός μου νεκρὸς ἦν, καὶ ἀνέζησε· ἀπολωλὼς ἦν, καὶ εὑρέθη. καὶ ἤρξαντο εὐφραίνεσθαι. 25 [j] Ἦν δὲ ὁ υἱὸς αὐτοῦ ὁ πρεσβύτερος ἐν ἀγρῷ· καὶ ὡς ἐρχόμενος ἤγγισε τῇ οἰκίᾳ, ἤκουσε συμφωνίας καὶ χορῶν· 26 καὶ προσκαλεσάμενος ἕνα τῶν παίδων, ἐπυνθάνετο τί εἴη ταῦτα; 27 Ὁ δὲ εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Ὅτι ὁ ἀδελφός σου ἥκει, καὶ ἔθυσεν ὁ πατήρ σου τὸν μόσχον τὸν σιτευτὸν, ὅτι ὑγιαίνοντα αὐτὸν ἀπέλαβεν. 28 Ὠργίσθη δὲ, καὶ οὐκ ἤθελεν εἰσελθεῖν. Ὁ οὖν πατὴρ αὐτοῦ ἐξελθὼν παρεκάλει αὐτόν. 29 Ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπε τῷ πατρί, Ἰδοὺ, τοσαῦτα ἔτη δουλεύω σοι, καὶ οὐδέποτε ἐντολήν σου παρῆλθον· καὶ ἐμοὶ οὐδέποτε ἔδωκας ἔριφον, ἵνα μετὰ τῶν φίλων μοῦ εὐφρανθῶ. 30 Ὅτε δὲ ὁ υἱός σου οὗτος ὁ καταφαγὼν σοῦ τὸν βίον μετὰ πορνῶν ἦλθεν, ἔθυσας αὐτῷ τὸν μόσχον τὸν σιτευτόν. 31 Ὁ δὲ εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Τέκνον, σὺ πάντοτε μετ' ἐμοῦ εἶ, καὶ πάντα τὰ ἐμὰ σά ἐστιν. 32 [k] Εὐφρανθῆναι δὲ καὶ χαρῆναι ἔδει, [l] ὅτι ὁ ἀδελφός σου οὗτος νεκρὸς ἦν καὶ ἀνέζησε, καὶ ἀπολωλὼς ἦν καὶ εὑρέθη.

i ver. 32. Eph. 2. 1. & 5. 14. Rev. 3. 1.
j Ps. 30. 11. & 126. 1, 2.
k Isa. 35. 10.
l ver. 24.

XVI. 1 Ἔλεγε δὲ καὶ πρὸς τοὺς μαθητὰς αὐτοῦ, Ἄνθρωπός τις ἦν πλούσιος ὃς εἶχεν οἰκονόμον, καὶ οὗτος διεβλήθη αὐτῷ ὡς διασκορπίζων τὰ ὑπάρχοντα αὐτοῦ. 2 Καὶ φωνήσας αὐτὸν εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Τί τοῦτο ἀκούω περὶ σοῦ; ἀπόδος τὸν λόγον τῆς οἰκονομίας σου· οὐ γὰρ δυνήσῃ ἔτι οἰκονομεῖν. 3 Εἶπε δὲ ἐν ἑαυτῷ ὁ οἰκονόμος, Τί ποιήσω, ὅτι ὁ κύριός μου ἀφαιρεῖται τὴν οἰκονομίαν ἀπ' ἐμοῦ; σκάπτειν οὐκ ἰσχύω, ἐπαιτεῖν αἰσχύνομαι· 4 ἔγνων τί ποιήσω· ἵνα ὅταν μετασταθῶ τῆς οἰκονομίας δέξωνταί με εἰς τοὺς οἴκους αὐτῶν. 5 Καὶ προσκαλεσάμενος ἕνα ἕκαστον τῶν χρεωφειλετῶν τοῦ κυρίου ἑαυτοῦ ἔλεγε τῷ πρώτῳ, Πόσον ὀφείλεις τῷ κυρίῳ μου; 6 ὁ δὲ εἶπεν, Ἑκατὸν βάτους ἐλαίου· καὶ εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Δέξαι σοῦ τὸ γράμμα, καὶ καθίσας ταχέως γράψον πεντήκοντα.

---

meritorious efficacy of Christ's sacrifice—offered once for all on the cross—is represented and pleaded before God, and its benefits are applied to the penitent and faithful soul. Hence St. Jerome says, "Vitulus Ipse Salvator est cujus carne pascimur, sanguine potamur;" and St. Ambrose, "Occiditur et vitulus saginatus, ut carnem Domini, spirituali opimam virtute, per gratiam epuletur;" and St. Aug. "Vitulus ille in corpore et sanguine Dominico et offertur Patri et pascit totam domum." Cp. Cyril here, p. 347, ed. Mai.

25. ὁ υἱὸς ὁ πρεσβύτερος] "Major filius, populus Israel secundum carnem in agro est; in hæreditariâ opulentiâ Legis et Prophetarum."

— συμφωνίας] even of Angels (vv. 7. 10. Burgon.).

28. ὠργίσθη—εἰσελθεῖν] He would not go into the House, because his younger brother was there. The Jew will not enter the Church, because the Gentile is there. "Irascitur vivere fratrem, quem putabat extinctum; foris stat Israel." (Jerome, iv. 156.) See Acts xvii. 5. 13; xxii. 21; xxviii. 28. As St. Ambrose says, "Stat foris; non excluditur; non ingreditur, ignorans voluntatem Dei de vocatione Gentium. Ubi cognovit, invidet et torquetur Ecclesiæ bonis. Foris enim Israel audit choream et symphoniam, sed irascitur, quia hic concinit plebis gratia, et consona populi jubilatio; sed bonus Pater etiam hunc salvare cupiebat."

29. οὐδέποτε ἐντολήν] Cp. xviii. 11.

As if it were no breach of a commandment to murmur at the salvation of a brother (St. Jerome), and that brother the heathen world.

— ἐμοὶ οὐδέποτε ἔδωκας ἔριφον] "Quid hædum quæris, cùm AGNUS est missus?" (Jerome.)

30. ὁ υἱός σου] He would not say ὁ ἀδελφός μου. Contrast with this the language of the Servant (v. 27) and of the Father (v. 32), and contrast also ἦλθεν with ἀνέζησε (v. 32).

— σοῦ τὸν βίον] Remark the emphatic position of σοῦ, "ad augendam invidiam."

31. πάντοτε μετ' ἐμοῦ] Cp. Rom. iii. 1, 2; ix. 4.

— πάντα τὰ ἐμὰ σά ἐστιν] The Law, the Prophets (St. Jerome, cp. Bengel), the services of the Temple in possession, and all the promises of the Gospel; the means of grace and hopes of glory in reversion; all are thine if thou wilt be mine.

32. ὁ ἀδελφός σου οὗτος νεκρὸς ἦν καὶ ἀνέζησε] See what seems to be an affecting reference to these words, Rom. xii. 15.

CH. XVI. 1. Ἔλεγε δέ] Many different interpretations have been given of this parable. See an account of them in Kuinoel's and Meyer's notes here, and in Trench, p. 423.

The clue to its correct exposition may be found in the fact, that it was addressed to the disciples (v. 1), in the statement that the men of this world are, in regard to (εἰς, not ἐν) their generation (see below, note on v. 8) more prudent (φρονιμώτεροι) than the children of light are with a view to another world; and in the consequent admonition (implied though not expressed), that the present world, and the eagerness, and diligence, and indefatigable earnestness of its children in pursuing their ends, which are uncertain and fugitive, ought to be exemplary to us, and should continually act upon Christians, as stimulants, exciting them to show no less zeal and industry in striving to attain their ends, which are eternal in duration and infinite in value. (Cp. August. Quæst. Evang. ii. 34.) Thus our Lord teaches us to elicit good out of the evil we see around us; to educe food from poison; and to make the children of Mammon examples to ourselves in serving God.

To this is added the exhortation—arising from the subject of this parable—to use all earthly treasure as an instrument for securing everlasting happiness.

— ἄνθρωπος] Our Lord begins four parables here with the words ἄνθρωπος, or ἀνθρωπός τις, xiv. 16; xv. 11; xvi. 1. 19. In two of them the ἄνθρωπος is Almighty God; in the two latter a rich man. The former two specially describe our benefits from God; the latter two our duty to Him.

— οἰκονόμον] villicum, a bailiff; suggesting to us that we are stewards of God. Cp. 1 Cor. iv. 1. (St. Ambrose.) — διεβλήθη] Not always in a bad sense. See LXX in Dan. vi. 24, and Joseph. Ant. vi. 10.

— διασκορπίζων] 'dissipans,' 'dilapidans bona,' wasting. It is not said that he was guilty of embezzlement and peculation.

2. τί τοῦτο ἀκούω] 'What is this that I hear of thee?' (Kühner, ii. § 841. Meyer.)

— τὸν λόγον] the account, or reckoning, which perhaps had not been lately called for.

— σου] not in A, D, K, and P, and perhaps ought to be omitted.

3. ἐν ἑαυτῷ] 'solus secum.' See xviii. 4. This intimates a secret device to be communicated only to some who would be accomplices in the fraud and profit by it; and so their services might be counted on—an act of collusion.

— σκάπτειν] Cf. Aristoph. Av. 1432. (Valck.)

— ἐπαιτεῖν] to become a beggar.

4. ἔγνων τί ποιήσω] A soliloquy; a sudden thought strikes him and he resolves what to do. Christ hears our thoughts; and will reveal them at the Great Day.

5. ἵνα ἕκαστον] 'one by one.' It would seem that he summoned them singly and privately one after the other, in order to secure greater secrecy; here was one mark of his worldly prudence.

6. βάτους ἐλαίου] The tenants (like the modern métayers) paid their rent, or portions of it, in kind. See the same usage referred to in another parable, Matt. xxi. 34—41.

The βάτος, בַּת (bath), Ezek. xlv. 10, 11, 14, was the tenth of an homer; and was for liquids what the ephah was for solids (see Matt. xiii. 33), and held seventy-two sextarii, about nine gallons. (Joseph. Ant. viii. 2. 9. Winer, s. v. Maasse, ii. p. 41.)

— σοῦ τὸ γράμμα] Not γράμμα σου. σοῦ is emphatic here and in v. 7. And he makes him write the bill, his own bill (chirographum or syngrapha), that he may have the evidence of his hand-writing, as a proof that it was his act, and so protect himself, and secure the tenant on his side. Another proof of his worldly shrewdness.

7 Ἔπειτα ἑτέρῳ εἶπε, Σὺ δὲ πόσον ὀφείλεις; ὁ δὲ εἶπεν, Ἑκατὸν κόρους a Eph. 5. 8. 1 Thess. 5. 5. σίτου· καὶ λέγει αὐτῷ, Δέξαι σοῦ τὸ γράμμα καὶ γράψον ὀγδοήκοντα. 8 a Καὶ ἐπῄνεσεν ὁ κύριος τὸν οἰκονόμον τῆς ἀδικίας ὅτι φρονίμως ἐποίησεν· ὅτι οἱ υἱοὶ τοῦ αἰῶνος τούτου φρονιμώτεροι ὑπὲρ τοὺς υἱοὺς τοῦ φωτὸς εἰς τὴν b Matt. 6. 19. & 19. 21. 1 Tim. 6. 19. Dan. 4. 27. Tob. 4. 9. c ch. 19. 17. γενεὰν τὴν ἑαυτῶν εἰσι. 9 b Κἀγὼ ὑμῖν λέγω, ποιήσατε ἑαυτοῖς φίλους ἐκ τοῦ μαμωνᾶ τῆς ἀδικίας, ἵνα ὅταν ἐκλίπητε δέξωνται ὑμᾶς εἰς τὰς αἰωνίους σκηνάς. 10 c Ὁ πιστὸς ἐν ἐλαχίστῳ καὶ ἐν πολλῷ πιστός ἐστι, καὶ ὁ ἐν ἐλαχίστῳ ἄδικος καὶ ἐν πολλῷ ἄδικός ἐστιν. 11 Εἰ οὖν ἐν τῷ ἀδίκῳ μαμωνᾷ πιστοὶ οὐκ ἐγένεσθε, τὸ ἀληθινὸν τίς ὑμῖν πιστεύσει; 12 καὶ εἰ ἐν τῷ ἀλλοd Matt. 6. 24. τρίῳ πιστοὶ οὐκ ἐγένεσθε, τὸ ὑμέτερον τίς ὑμῖν δώσει; (191/V) 13 d Οὐδεὶς οἰκέτης δύναται δυσὶ κυρίοις δουλεύειν· ἢ γὰρ τὸν ἕνα μισήσει καὶ τὸν ἕτερον ἀγαπήσει· ἢ ἑνὸς ἀνθέξεται καὶ τοῦ ἑτέρου καταφρονήσει· οὐ δύνασθε Θεῷ δουλεύειν καὶ μαμωνᾷ.

— ταχέως] Quickly, on the spot; to prevent future demurs and misgivings on the part of the tenant's conscience.

7. ἔπειτα ἑτέρῳ] ἔπειτα, i. e. when the first had given him the bill and had retired and left him alone.

— ἑκατὸν κόρους] The Hebr. כֹּר (kor), the same in size as the homer. See Ezek. xlv. 11—14; ten Attic medimni, Joseph. Ant. xv. 9. Winer, ii. p. 42.

8. καὶ ἐπῄνεσεν ὁ κύριος] The land-lord (not Christ) praised him.

— τὸν οἰκονόμον τῆς ἀδικίας] 'the fraudulent steward.' On the use of this genitive for an adjective, see on Matt. xxiv. 15; below, v. 9, μαμωνᾶ ἀδικίας. xviii. 6, ὁ κριτὴς τῆς ἀδικίας. Cp. Vorst. de Hebr. p. 252.

The master praised the unjust steward. His injustice is mentioned lest it should be supposed that shrewdness can be a substitute for honesty. He praised him because he had acted prudently, φρονίμως.

In some expositions of the Parables, it is taken for granted that the landlord discovered the artifice of the steward described vv. 5—7.

But this supposition seems to impair, if not to destroy, the beauty and moral of the parable.

How could he be said to have acted φρονίμως, if his device was detected and exposed? Is it probable that his master would have allowed him to profit by the fraud? or that the debtors, who would be forced to pay the sums due, and perhaps be punished in person, would receive him into their houses? Is it likely that in such a case our Lord would have propounded the steward as an example of worldly wisdom? No; it is no where said, or hinted in the parable, that the landlord discovered the mode by which the steward had ingratiated himself into the affections of his tenants. What he knew was the result. He saw with surprise and admiration that his steward, though a wasteful person (v. 1), had so contrived matters, that he was none the worse for being put out of the stewardship; that he was neither forced to dig nor to beg; and though deprived of his office by his master, was received as a welcome guest by his master's dependents! He must therefore be a very shrewd and clever person, and deserve credit on that account.

We know the method by which the steward managed to ingratiate himself with the tenants; but we must remember that we are reading a parable delivered by One who readeth the secrets of all hearts, and from Whom no artifice is hid. And we are thus reminded that, though the steward's earthly master did not see or discover the collusion of the steward with each of his tenants in succession, and even praised the result as a proof of prudence, yet we have to do with a Landlord Who sees all things, however secret, and will hereafter call all men to give an account of their stewardship, and bring to light all the hidden things of darkness; and then all mere worldly wisdom will be confounded, and end in misery and shame.

For further exposition see above on v. 1. It is obvious that these considerations remove any objection such as was raised by some sceptics of old against the phrase, "the lord commended the unjust steward." The lord knew him only as a wasteful person (v. 1); he knew nothing at all of his fraud in the collusion with the tenan's. He only saw its result, viz. his reception into the tenants' habitations.

8. υἱοί] See on Matt. ix. 15. Luke x. 6; and on υἱοὶ φωτός, John xii. 36. Eph. v. 8. 1 Thess. v. 5. 8.

— εἰς τὴν γενεὰν τὴν ἑαυτῶν] in regard to their generation, which is merely transitory as contrasted with that generation which is αἰώνιος. They are more prudent and shrewd in regard to their contemporaries, persons, and things, than the children of Light are in regard to the persons and things of their generation; e. g. in regard to God Himself and heaven, which is eternal. On the latter use of γενεὰ as applied to an age of man see Matt. xii. 39. 41, 42. Luke xi. 31, 32. 50, 51; and on its higher sense see Matt. xxiv. 34.

9. κἀγὼ ὑμῖν λέγω] i. e. you have heard what the earthly κύριος or lord said to his steward; now hear what I your heavenly Κύριος or Lord have to say to you who are My stewards, and will be called by Me hereafter ἀποδοῦναι τὸν λόγον τῆς οἰκονομίας,—to render the account of your stewardship.

— ποιήσατε ἑαυτοῖς φίλους] Make the poor your friends, who, by alms received from you, and by prayers offered for you, will be,—not indeed an efficient, but an instrumental cause of your reception into heavenly habitations. See Matt. xxv. 34—45. Cp. St. Greg. Nazian. Orat. xiv. pp. 255—285, on the duty of Christian Almsgiving; and Barrow's Spital Sermon, preached in Easter Week, 1671, —two rich storehouses of arguments for appeals to love of Christ and the poor in Him.

And in a higher sense make God your friend—make Christ your friend—by a right use (not a διασκορπισμὸς, v. 1) of their goods entrusted to you as their steward; i. e. by employing all that you have received from them, in body, mind, and estate, in the divine service and for the divine glory. See Luke xii. 42, on the πιστὸς οἰκονόμος.

— ἐκ τοῦ μαμωνᾶ] Observe ἐκ, out of; i. e. out of what at first may seem to promise no such result, elicit true riches by securing God's friendship thereby; ἐκ marks a cause or source, 1 Cor. ix. 14, ἐκ τοῦ εὐαγγελίου ζῆν. Luke xii. 15, ζωὴ ἐκ τῶν ὑπαρχόντων. Cp. Rom. i. 4. James ii. 18. Winer, Gr. Gr. p. 352. On the word μαμωνᾶς see Matt. vi. 24, μαμωνᾶ τῆς ἀδικίας,—the same thing as ἄδικος μαμωνᾶς, v. 11 (where see note); i. e. that wealth which the steward used dishonestly, and which is often a temptation to fraud; for the love of money is the root of all evil (1 Tim. vi. 10), and which is itself deceptive as being also uncertain (1 Tim. vi. 17) and fugitive. Cp. Prov. xxiii. 5, and "fundus mendax," Horat. Od. iii. 1. 30; and "spem mentita seges," Ep. i. 7. 87, as opposed to the "justissima tellus" of Virgil, Georg. ii. 460.

— ὅταν ἐκλίπητε] 'when ye die.' ἐκλείπω is used in this sense by LXX. Gen. xxv. 8. 17; xxxv. 29. Ps. civ. 29. Jer. xlii. 17. 22. Tob. xiv 11. Judith vii. 22. Cp. Bp. Pearson, Præf. in LXX, p. 248, ed. Churton.

— εἰς τὰς αἰωνίους σ.] 'into their everlasting habitations,' opposed to the houses of clay into which the steward was received by the tenants. The φίλοι, therefore, are pre-eminently God and Christ (to whom alone belong αἰώνιοι σκηναί), and who will say, at the Great Day, to them on the right hand, "inherit the kingdom." Matt. xxv. 34. See above, note on ποιήσατε—φίλους.

St. Aug. says (Serm. xiii.), on the true use of money, "Perde, ne perdas; dona, ut acquiras; semina, ut metas; has 'divitias' noli appellare, quia veræ non sunt, paupertate plenæ sunt, et semper obnoxiæ casibus. Ergo illæ sunt veræ divitiæ, quas, cùm habuerimus, perdere non possumus. Quamdiù in terrâ sunt divitiæ, non sunt. Sed divitias vocat illas Mundus; Iniquitas vocat. Deus ideo mamonam iniquitatis vocat; quia divitias illas vocat iniquitas."

10. ἐν ἐλαχίστῳ] 'what is least;' for such is all earthly substance when compared with heavenly wealth, which is μέγιστος; and the use we make of our earthly substance, which is least, is our trial whether we are fit to be admitted to possess what is greatest, that is, the everlasting wealth of heaven. These words are referred to by Clemens R. ii. 8, λέγει Κύριος ἐν τῷ εὐαγγελίῳ, εἰ τὸ μικρὸν οὐκ ἐτηρήσατε, τὸ μέγα τίς ὑμῖν δώσει; λέγω γὰρ ὑμῖν ὅτι ὁ πιστὸς ἐν ἐλαχίστῳ καὶ ἐν πολλῷ πιστός ἐστιν.

11. εἰ οὖν ἐν τῷ ἀδίκῳ] ἄδικος = עַוְלָה (sheker) 'fallacious.' If you have not been faithful stewards of your earthly substance, which is illusory, God will not trust you with what is real, i. e. the wealth of eternity. Cp. St. Jerome, iv. 197, ad Algas., where is an exposition of this parable.

12. ἐν τῷ ἀλλοτρίῳ] for your worldly wealth is not yours, but God's; you are not landlords, but stewards for a time, and liable to be called to your account at any moment (see above, xii. 20), and to be put out of your stewardship; and if you have not been faithful in that earthly trust which you hold of your Lord, He will not give you that heavenly wealth, which will never be taken away from those to whom it is given. "Alienas appellat terrenas facultates, quia nemo secum eas moriens aufert." (St. Aug. Quæst. Ev. ii. 35. 1 Tim. vi. 7; and St. Jerome, Epist. ad Algasiam.)

13. οὐδεὶς—δύναται] See Matt. vi. 24.

(χ 192) 14 e Ἤκουον δὲ ταῦτα πάντα καὶ οἱ Φαρισαῖοι f φιλάργυροι ὑπάρχοντες, καὶ ἐξεμυκτήριζον αὐτόν. 15 Καὶ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, g Ὑμεῖς ἐστε οἱ δικαιοῦντες ἑαυτοὺς ἐνώπιον τῶν ἀνθρώπων, ὁ δὲ Θεὸς γινώσκει τὰς καρδίας ὑμῶν· ὅτι τὸ ἐν ἀνθρώποις ὑψηλὸν βδέλυγμα ἐνώπιον τοῦ Θεοῦ. (χ 193) 16 h Ὁ νόμος καὶ οἱ προφῆται ἕως Ἰωάννου, ἀπὸ τότε ἡ βασιλεία τοῦ Θεοῦ εὐαγγελίζεται, καὶ πᾶς εἰς αὐτὴν βιάζεται. (χ 194) 17 i Εὐκοπώτερον δὲ ἐστι τὸν οὐρανὸν καὶ τὴν γῆν παρελθεῖν, ἢ τοῦ νόμου μίαν κεραίαν πεσεῖν. (χ 195) 18 j Πᾶς ὁ ἀπολύων τὴν γυναῖκα αὐτοῦ καὶ γαμῶν ἑτέραν μοιχεύει· καὶ πᾶς ὁ ἀπολελυμένην ἀπὸ ἀνδρὸς γαμῶν μοιχεύει. (χ 196) 19 k Ἄνθρωπος δέ τις ἦν πλούσιος, καὶ ἐνεδιδύσκετο πορφύραν καὶ βύσσον, εὐφραινόμενος καθ' ἡμέραν λαμπρῶς· 20 πτωχὸς δέ τις ἦν ὀνόματι Λάζαρος ὃς ἐβέβλητο πρὸς τὸν πυλῶνα αὐτοῦ ἡλκωμένος, 21 καὶ ἐπιθυμῶν χορτασθῆναι ἀπὸ τῶν ψιχίων τῶν πιπτόντων ἀπὸ τῆς τραπέζης τοῦ πλουσίου· ἀλλὰ καὶ οἱ κύνες ἐρχόμενοι ἀπέλειχον τὰ ἕλκη αὐτοῦ. 22 Ἐγένετο δὲ ἀποθανεῖν τὸν πτωχὸν, καὶ ἀπενεχθῆναι αὐτὸν ὑπὸ τῶν ἀγγέλων εἰς τὸν κόλπον Ἀβραάμ. Ἀπέθανε δὲ καὶ ὁ πλούσιος, καὶ ἐτάφη· 23 καὶ

e Matt. 23. 13.
f Matt. 23. 14.
g ch. 10. 29. & 18. 9.
h Matt. 11. 12, 13.
i Matt. 5. 18.
j Matt. 5. 32. & 19. 9.

14. Φαρισαῖοι φιλάργυροι] 'lovers of money' (see Matt. xxiii. 14), making Mammon their friend instead of God (see above, v. 9); and regarding worldly wealth and glory as the criterion of God's favour; "felicitatem in hâc vitâ et divitias maximi pendentes" (Jahn, Archæol. § 319), and allowing the love of the world to absorb the love of God. Cp. John xii. 43. James ii. 1—8. Joseph. Ant. xiii. 3.

— ἐξεμυκτήριζον] 'subsannabant, naso suspendebant,'—used by LXX for Hebr. לָעַג (laagh), laugh (Ps. ii. 4; xxii. 7).

15. βδέλυγμα] 'an abomination' (βδελύσσω, abominor), and specially an idol. (See Matt. xxiv. 15.) That which you worship—mammon—is abhorred as a false god by the Most High. For πλεονεξία is εἰδωλολατρία (Col. iii. 5).

16. ὁ νόμος κ.τ.λ.] The Law and the Prophets might indeed seem to promise earthly rewards; but now a spiritual kingdom, with heavenly promises, is set up, and every one who desires to be saved must press into it with a holy violence; that is, it is not to be gained without the same anxious care and vehement endeavour which the children of this world employ for the attainment of earthly things. See Matt. xi. 12.

And yet no one tittle of the Law, rightly understood, shall fail; for the Gospel is the perfection of the Law. See on Matt. v. 17.

— βιάζεται] See Matt. xi. 12, 13. Cp. Luke xiii. 24. Xen. Cyr. iii. 3, εἰ βιασαίντο εἴσω.

17. δέ] I have come with the Gospel; but not to take away the Law (Matt. v. 17).

18. πᾶς ὁ ἀπολύων] St. Luke here studiously, as it seems, uses a word, ἀπολύω, which ancient Greek writers did not condescend to apply to divorce, which they called ἀποπέμπειν γυναῖκα. See Valck.

It is supposed by some (see Kuin.) that there is no connexion between this paragraph and what precedes or follows. But this is not probable. See above, x. 1; xii. 13; xiii. 18.

This sentence was indeed uttered by our Lord on other occasions (see on Matt. v. 31—33; xix. 9). Its repetition shows its importance; and it is fitly introduced here because it is relevant to the subject in hand, viz. the use to be made by men of the earthly blessings which God gives them, with a refutation of the Pharisaic errors on this point. This appears as follows:—

In God's Law, to which Christ had just been referring, Stealing and Adultery are connected. Thou shalt not commit adultery; thou shalt not steal; and thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's house, thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's wife (Exod. xx. 14, 15. 17). Of all the earthly treasures committed in trust to man, none is so precious, none to be treated with so much reverence, as Woman—God's first and best gift to Man in Paradise (Gen. ii. 21—25). "House and Riches are the inheritance of fathers, and a prudent wife is from the Lord" (Prov. xix. 14; xviii. 22). "Who can find a virtuous woman, for her price is far above rubies" (Prov. xxxi. 10). "So ought men to love their wives as their own bodies, even as the Lord loveth the Church" (Eph. v. 25—28).

But the Pharisees asked Christ,—Whether it was lawful for a man to put away his wife for every cause? (Matt. xix. 3;) and it was their practice (especially of those among them who belonged to the school of Hillel) to treat wedlock as a mere secular bargain, and to tie and untie the marriage knot at pleasure, and to sacrifice Matrimony to Mammon.

Our Lord had declared the true design of the Divine Law in opposition to the false glosses of the Pharisees, by saying that he that putteth away his wife, save for fornication, committeth adultery; and he that marrieth a woman that has been divorced is an adulterer. See on Matt. xix. 3.

These considerations may serve to explain the introduction of that declaration in this place.

— ἀπολελυμένην] any divorced woman generally. An absolute prohibition from Christ Himself against marrying any woman that has been divorced. Such marriages are adulterous. See further on Matt. v. 32; xix. 9.

19. πορφύραν καὶ βύσσον] The βύσσος or fine linen of Egypt being the inner clothing; the purple, the outer attire; the dress of princes and nobles. Cf. Matt. xxvii. 28.

On this Parable, or parabolic history, see Gregor. Homil. xl. in Evangel. St. Chrys. Hom. quatuor de Lazaro, v. 220—260. St. Aug. Serm. xiv. and xxvi. and xli.

20. Λάζαρος] Very appropriate as a name for a beggar, being derived from לֹא (lo), non, and עָזַר (ezer), auxilium, 'quasi auxilio egens;' or if the same as Ἐλεάζαρος, עֶזְרָא אֵל, meaning 'God (and not man) is my help.'

From the mention of this name some have supposed that this is not a Parable, but a History. (Cp. Cyril, p. 357.) And some have proceeded to assign an historical name (Νινευΐτης) to the rich man.

But the name Lazarus, by its etymology, seems to suggest that it was adopted on account of its meaning. "Etiam in parabolis locus est nomini proprio." Cp. Ezek. xxiii. 4. (Beng.)

There may be also something of a moral and spiritual meaning here (as suggested by some of the Fathers), viz. that Christ gives His saints 'a new name' (Rev. iii. 12); but that the name of the wicked, famous though they be in this world, is blotted out (Ps. lxix. 28).

On the connexion between the Parable of Lazarus and the Raising of Lazarus at Bethany, see on John xi. 1.

— ἐβέβλητο] had been laid,—to attract pity.

— ἡλκωμένος] A, B, D, P, L, X have εἱλκωμένος, which may be the true reading.

21. ἀλλὰ καὶ οἱ κύνες] Such was his destitution, that even the very dogs, who were regarded as unclean animals by the Jews, were allowed to come and lick his sores (cp. St. Chrys. Hom. de Lazaro), as if he were a corpse; and he was left to become almost food for the dogs before his death.

22. ἀπενεχθῆναι] "A loco alieno in patriam." (Beng.)

— κόλπον Ἀβραάμ] "Quid Abrahæ sinus nisi secretam requiem significat patrum?" Greg. M., Bp. of Rome, A.D. 590—604, who in expounding this Parable says nothing of Purgatory.

Immediately after his death, his soul on its separation from the body was carried by Angels to the place of peace and joy, where the faithful rest, and recline, as it were, at a spiritual banquet in the bosom (see John xiii. 23. 25: xxi. 20) of the Father of the Faithful (Gal. iii. 9. Rom. iv. 11. 16). Cp. St. Aug. de Anima, iv. 16, in Joann. Tract. xvi. The expression, "Bosom of Abraham," as the place of rest of faithful souls, was already familiar to the Jews. See Josephus de Macc. ii. p. 514, where the Maccabees say, οὕτω θανόντας ἡμᾶς Ἀβραὰμ καὶ Ἰσαὰκ καὶ Ἰακὼβ ὑποδέξονται εἰς τοὺς κόλπους αὐτῶν. (Wetst.)

This place here called Abraham's bosom, is called Paradise, Luke xxiii. 43. See note there. It was called "the Garden of Eden" by the Jews. See Lightfoot here.

On this intermediate state, see the remarks and passages from the Fathers quoted by Bp. Bull, Sermon on Acts i. 25 (Serm. iii. vol. i. pp. 49—82).

The Office for the Burial of the Dead, in the Book of Common Prayer, particularly the last two prayers, declares the mind of the Church of England on this subject.

See also an excellent volume by the Rev. T. K. Miller, "Things after Death." Lond. 1848, pp. 1—64, and the notes below, on xxiii. 43, and John xi. 11.

It is observable that the Holy Spirit, writing by St. Luke to the Gentiles, has been specially studious to record in this Gospel portions of our Lord's teaching, which might serve to correct the erroneous notions derived from heathen, mythological, and poetical representation of the Νεκυΐα, Tartarus, Elysium, &c., concerning the state of the soul immediately after death. Cp. Grotius, on Luke viii. 55, and Luke xxiii. 40. 43, and Townson, on the Gospels, pp. 192—196.

ἐν τῷ ᾅδῃ ἐπάρας τοὺς ὀφθαλμοὺς αὐτοῦ ὑπάρχων ἐν βασάνοις ὁρᾷ τὸν k Isa. 66. 24. Zech. 14. 12. Mark 9. 44. Ἀβραὰμ ἀπὸ μακρόθεν, καὶ Λάζαρον ἐν τοῖς κόλποις αὐτοῦ· [24] [k] καὶ αὐτὸς φωνήσας εἶπε, Πάτερ Ἀβραάμ, ἐλέησόν με, καὶ πέμψον Λάζαρον, ἵνα βάψῃ τὸ ἄκρον τοῦ δακτύλου αὐτοῦ ὕδατος, καὶ καταψύξῃ τὴν γλῶσσάν μου, ὅτι l Job 21. 13. ch. 6. 24. ὀδυνῶμαι ἐν τῇ φλογὶ ταύτῃ. [25] [l] Εἶπε δὲ Ἀβραάμ, Τέκνον, μνήσθητι ὅτι ἀπέλαβες σὺ τὰ ἀγαθά σου ἐν τῇ ζωῇ σου, καὶ Λάζαρος ὁμοίως τὰ κακά· νῦν δὲ ὧδε παρακαλεῖται, σὺ δὲ ὀδυνᾶσαι· [26] καὶ ἐπὶ πᾶσι τούτοις μεταξὺ ἡμῶν καὶ ὑμῶν χάσμα μέγα ἐστήρικται, ὅπως οἱ θέλοντες διαβῆναι ἔνθεν πρὸς ὑμᾶς μὴ δύνωνται, μηδὲ οἱ ἐκεῖθεν πρὸς ἡμᾶς διαπερῶσιν. [27] Εἶπε δέ, Ἐρωτῶ οὖν σε, πάτερ, ἵνα πέμψῃς αὐτὸν εἰς τὸν οἶκον τοῦ πατρός μου, [28] ἔχω γὰρ πέντε ἀδελφούς, ὅπως διαμαρτύρηται αὐτοῖς, ἵνα μὴ καὶ αὐτοὶ ἔλθωσιν εἰς τὸν m Isa. 8. 20. & 34. 16. John 5. 39, 45. Acts 15. 21. & 17. 11. τόπον τοῦτον τῆς βασάνου. [29] [m] Λέγει δὲ αὐτῷ Ἀβραάμ, Ἔχουσι Μωϋσέα καὶ τοὺς προφήτας, ἀκουσάτωσαν αὐτῶν. [30] Ὁ δὲ εἶπεν, Οὐχί, πάτερ Ἀβραάμ, ἀλλ' ἐάν τις ἀπὸ νεκρῶν πορευθῇ πρὸς αὐτοὺς μετανοήσουσιν. [31] Εἶπε δὲ n John 12. 10, 11. αὐτῷ, Εἰ Μωϋσέως καὶ τῶν προφητῶν οὐκ ἀκούουσιν, [n] οὐδὲ ἐάν τις ἐκ νεκρῶν ἀναστῇ πεισθήσονται.

a Matt. 18. 6, 7. XVII. (197/II) [1] [a] Εἶπε δὲ πρὸς τοὺς μαθητὰς αὐτοῦ, Ἀνένδεκτόν ἐστι τοῦ μὴ ἐλθεῖν τὰ σκάνδαλα, οὐαὶ δὲ δι' οὗ ἔρχεται· [2] λυσιτελεῖ αὐτῷ εἰ μύλος ὀνικὸς περίκειται περὶ τὸν τράχηλον αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἔρριπται εἰς τὴν θάλασσαν, b Matt. 18. 15. ἢ ἵνα σκανδαλίσῃ ἕνα τῶν μικρῶν τούτων· (198/V) [3] προσέχετε ἑαυτοῖς· [b] ἐὰν δὲ ἁμάρτῃ εἰς σὲ ὁ ἀδελφός σου, ἐπιτίμησον αὐτῷ· καὶ ἐὰν μετανοήσῃ, ἄφες — ἐτάφη] perhaps in a splendid mausoleum, with a laudatory epitaph. Not so Lazarus. (Cp. St. Chrysost. Homil. ii. de Lazaro.)

23. ἐν τῷ ᾅδῃ] not γέεννα, or hell, properly so called (see Matt. v. 22. 29, 30), but שְׁאוֹל (sheol), the place of disembodied spirits (see on Acts ii. 27), and which is divided (see v. 26) into two separate regions, between which there is an impassable gulf fixed for ever; and, therefore, to the general term ᾅδης, is added here ἐν βασάνοις, to indicate that his soul was in a state of anguish (cp. Bp. Bull, Sermon above quoted, p. 60), and "having a dreadful expectation of a far greater torment to come."

Hence it appears that such as we are at our death, such shall we be at the judgment seat of Christ. "Qualis quisque è vitâ excessit, talis erit ad judicium Christi. Hoc uno ore docuerunt Patres donec, ut ait Fellus ad St. Clem. ii. 7, lucrosum Purgatorii dogma venale cœlum hastæ submitteret." Clem. R. l. c., μετανοήσωμεν ἕως ἔχομεν καιρὸν μετανοίας· μετὰ γὰρ τὸ ἐξελθεῖν ἡμᾶς ἐκ τοῦ κόσμου οὐκέτι δυνάμεθα ἐκεῖ ἐξομολογήσασθαι ἢ μετανοεῖν ἔτι. St. Cyprian, Fell. p. 163, "Qualem te invenit Dominus cùm vocat, talem te judicat."

— ἐν βασάνοις] long before the day of Judgment; 1800 years at least.

Hence it appears from Christ's lips, that the wicked who died under the Law were punished in another state of being; and that the righteous were comforted, by virtue of His death, even before His Passion. And may its efficacy not have extended backward to those who lived up to the natural Law which was given them?

24. δακτύλου—γλῶσσαν] these words connected with body, are used by a common metonymy to express the anguish, torment, and agony of the soul, and more appropriately, because the soul of Lazarus (and all the souls of the faithful) are represented as resting in "Abraham's bosom."

"Anguish, torment, agony," all words derived from bodily suffering (angor, tormentum, ἀγωνία), are yet usually applied to the soul.

The member γλῶσσα appears to be specified, because he had specially sinned by sins of the palate, surfeiting and gluttony; and perhaps by proud and wicked words, their usual accompaniments.

— ἐν τῇ φλογὶ ταύτῃ] and therefore the pains of the wicked immediately after their death, are to their pains after the resurrection only as the pains produced by a φλόξ, compared with those of λίμνη πυρός.

25. ἀπέλαβες] taken off, and spent, so that nothing now remains.

— σύ] omitted in some MSS. and Editions; but it adds to the force of the speech. There is a double contrast here.

— Λάζαρος ὁμοίως τὰ κακά] Lazarus exhausted his evils; as thou thy good things—the sum total of them—in the other life.

To correct the notion that wealth, as such, excludes from happiness hereafter; or that poverty, as such, ensures fruition of that happiness, it is observed by the Fathers, e. g. St. August. in an admirable Sermon (Serm. xiv.), that the beggar Lazarus is carried by the Angels into the bosom of the rich man Abraham (Gen. xiv. 14; xxiv. 1), who made God his friend (2 Chron. xx. 7), by a right use of this world.

On other doctrinal and practical uses to be made of this statement, see Bp. Bull's Sermon above quoted; which may be commended to attentive perusal.

26. χάσμα μέγα] "Inter hunc divitem," says St. Ambrose here, "et pauperem chaos magnum est, quia post mortem nequeunt merita mutari." See also St. August. Quæst. Evang. ii. 88. Matt. xii. 32.

27. ἐρωτῶ οὖν σε] This consideration for his father's house seems to bring out more forcibly the doctrine of the parable, that exemption from flagrant sin, such as the Pharisees indulged in, and social kindness and good nature, are not enough to save us from future torment; but that we must regard ourselves and all our substance, time and talents, as God's property, to be used in His service, and that if we fail to do this, He will not only not "receive us into everlasting habitations," but consign us to torments immediately on our departure from this world; and those torments will be increased in intensity at the Great Day, when our bodies will be raised and reunited for ever to our souls.

28. ὅπως—μή] in order that they may not pass.

29. Μωϋσέα καὶ τοὺς προφήτας] i. e. the Old Testament. See Matt. xi. 13. Luke xvi. 16, and Hottinger, Thesaur. Philol. pp. 454—456. Smith, Discourses on Prophecy, p. 301, and the authorities cited in the Editor's Lectures on the Canon of Scripture, Lect. ii. pp. 30—40.

Here is a remarkable testimony from Christ Himself, speaking by the Father of the faithful in the world of departed Spirits, that the Jews have "Moses and the Prophets;" i. e. that the "Canon of the Old Testament" is what it was believed by the Jews to be, viz. the Word of God, speaking by Moses and the Prophets; and that it had been preserved by the Jewish Church to our Lord's age (whence it has come down to our own) in purity and integrity; that it is genuine, authentic, and divine, and not, as some, contradicting Christ, would now have us believe, a mere farrago of fragments put together by writers more recent than "Moses and the Prophets;" and that its testimony is so cogent, that they who will not receive it as such, are in so hardened and desperate a state, that they would not be persuaded though one rose from the dead.

Our Lord intimates also, that men come into the βάσανοι of ᾅδης, as Dives did, because they will not hear the Holy Scripture delivered to them by God, and guarded by the Church. See next note.

31. οὐδὲ ἐάν τις ἐκ νεκρῶν ἀναστῇ] though one rose from the dead. One did rise from the dead, and his name was Lazarus, raised by Christ. (John xi. 44.) But the Chief Priests did not believe, they even "consulted that they might put Lazarus to death." (John xii. 10, 11.) And another rose from the dead. He who raised Lazarus raised Himself. Still, they would not believe, but sought to kill them who preached the Resurrection of Christ. (Acts iv. 2, 3.)

All this was, because they would not hear "Moses and the Prophets." What then will be the condition of those who refuse to hear Moses and the Prophets, Christ and the Apostles, speaking in the Old and New Testaments?

CH. XVII. 1. ἀνένδεκτον] οὐκ ἐνδέχεται, Luke xiii. 33. The circumstances of the case do not admit of any other result. See note on Matt. xviii. 7.

2. λυσιτελεῖ] 'Tributum solvit, utilitatem affert." (Valck.)

— μύλος ὀνικός] Matt. xviii. 6.

3. ἐὰν ἁμάρτῃ] Matt. xviii. 15—21.

αὐτῷ· (199 Ψ) 4 καὶ ἐὰν ἑπτάκις τῆς ἡμέρας ἁμαρτήσῃ εἰς σὲ, καὶ ἑπτάκις τῆς ἡμέρας ἐπιστρέψῃ ἐπὶ σὲ λέγων, Μετανοῶ, ἀφήσεις αὐτῷ.

(200 Ψ) 5 Καὶ εἶπον οἱ ἀπόστολοι τῷ Κυρίῳ, Πρόσθες ἡμῖν πίστιν. 6 Εἶπε δὲ ὁ Κύριος, [c] Εἰ εἴχετε πίστιν ὡς κόκκον σινάπεως, ἐλέγετε ἂν τῇ συκαμίνῳ ταύτῃ, Ἐκριζώθητι καὶ φυτεύθητι ἐν τῇ θαλάσσῃ, καὶ ὑπήκουσεν ἂν ὑμῖν. (201 Χ) 7 Τίς δὲ ἐξ ὑμῶν δοῦλον ἔχων ἀροτριῶντα ἢ ποιμαίνοντα, ὃς εἰσελθόντι ἐκ τοῦ ἀγροῦ ἐρεῖ, Εὐθέως παρελθὼν ἀνάπεσε, 8 [d] ἀλλ' οὐχὶ ἐρεῖ αὐτῷ, Ἑτοίμασον τί δειπνήσω, καὶ περιζωσάμενος διακόνει μοι, ἕως φάγω καὶ πίω, καὶ μετὰ ταῦτα φάγεσαι καὶ πίεσαι σύ; 9 Μὴ χάριν ἔχει τῷ δούλῳ ἐκείνῳ ὅτι ἐποίησε τὰ διαταχθέντα; οὐ δοκῶ. 10 [e] Οὕτω καὶ ὑμεῖς ὅταν ποιήσητε πάντα τὰ διαταχθέντα ὑμῖν λέγετε, Ὅτι δοῦλοι ἀχρεῖοί ἐσμεν· ὅτι ὃ ὠφείλομεν ποιῆσαι πεποιήκαμεν.

11 Καὶ ἐγένετο [f] ἐν τῷ πορεύεσθαι αὐτὸν εἰς Ἰερουσαλὴμ, καὶ αὐτὸς διήρχετο διὰ μέσου Σαμαρείας καὶ Γαλιλαίας. 12 Καὶ εἰσερχομένου αὐτοῦ εἴς τινα κώμην, ἀπήντησαν αὐτῷ δέκα λεπροὶ ἄνδρες, [g] οἱ ἔστησαν πόρρωθεν, 13 καὶ αὐτοὶ ἦραν φωνὴν λέγοντες, Ἰησοῦ ἐπιστάτα, ἐλέησον ἡμᾶς. 14 [h] Καὶ ἰδὼν εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Πορευθέντες ἐπιδείξατε ἑαυτοὺς τοῖς ἱερεῦσι. Καὶ ἐγένετο ἐν

c Matt. 17. 20. & 21. 21. Mark 9. 23. & 11. 23.

d ch. 12. 37.

e Job 22. 2, 3. & 35. 7. Ps. 16. 2. 1 Cor. 9. 16.

f ch. 9. 51, 52. John 4. 4.

g Lev. 13. 46.

h Lev. 13. 2. & 14. 2. Matt. 8. 4. ch. 5. 14.

---

4. ἁμαρτήσῃ] 'shall have sinned.' So A, B, D, K, L, X.

— ἐπὶ σέ] Omitted by E, H, K, M, S, V; and A, B, and X have πρός σε.

5. πρόσθες ἡμῖν πίστιν] Not, 'increase our faith,' but add faith to us,—'appone nobis fidem,'—give faith in addition to our other privileges, powers, and virtues.

For further exposition see below on v. 19.

6. εἰλέγετε ἄν] 'ye would have said.'

— τῇ συκαμίνῳ] 'mulberry-tree,' 'morus nigra sanguinea,' Virg. Ecl. vi. 22. 'Morum nigrum,' Horat. Sat. ii. 4. 22. See Billerbeck, Flora Classica, p. 229. Winer, Lex. ii. p. 62. It seems to be derived from the Hebr. שִׁקְמָה (shikmah), which is rendered in the LXX by συκάμινος, 1 Chron. xxvii. 28, and in other places. The συκομορία of Scripture is the Ficus Ægyptia. On the meaning of the sentence see Matt. xvii. 20. Mark xi. 23. 1 Cor. xiii. 2.

— ὑπήκουσεν ἄν] On this verse, where the particle ἄν occurs twice, Valck. makes this memorable remark: "Apud Græcos quidem veteres hoc usu particulæ ἄν nihil est vulgatum magis. In Græcâ Bibliorum versione unicus est Prophetarum et Psalmorum interpres; is septies voculam ἄν hunc in modum iis usurpavit. (Esa. i. 9. Ezek. iii. 6. Obad. v. 5. Ps. liv. 13; lxxx. 15; cviii. 9; cxxiii. 3.) In istis quidem libris hujus usus exempla plura non reperientur." Would this remark aid in settling the question concerning the date and authorship of the several classes of Books in the LXX? This use of ἄν is rare in St. Matthew and St. Mark; more common in St. Luke and St. John.

7. τίς δὲ ἐξ ὑμῶν] The reason why ye have not faith is, that ye consider God as your debtor for service rendered by you, instead of humbly regarding yourselves as indebted to Him for all your power to serve Him, and as δούλους ἀχρείους, servants of whom he has no need, and who cannot be profitable to Him (Job xxii. 2; xxxv. 7. Ps. xvi. 2. Rom. xi. 35),—i. e. as not laying your Master under any obligation, even though you should do all that He commands you; for that is what you owe, ὀφείλετε, v. 10. to Him. "Non est beneficium sed officium facere quod debetis" (Senec. Controv. ii. 13). All your power of working in His service, and all your future reward for service, is of His free grace alone. See Rom. i. 5; iv. 4; xi. 6. 1 Cor. xv. 10. Eph. iii. 7, 8. 16. Cp. Bp. Beveridge and Professor Browne on Art. XIV. "on Works of Supererogation."

The connexion, therefore, with the preceding verse is,—'You ask for faith. Faith is a Grace, Grace is a gift of God; and to him that hath shall be given, and he shall have more abundantly.' (Matt. xiii. 12. Mark iv. 25. Luke viii. 18.) You must therefore have grace,—you must be sensible that you have no merit of your own, for you are not your own (1 Cor. vi. 19; vii. 23); that you owe all service to God, whose you are by nature and grace. "Nemo in operibus glorietur," says St. Ambrose, "quia jure Domino debemus obsequium; et dum vivimus debemus semper operari;" and that you can do nothing without God; that without Him you are unprofitable; and you must pray for His grace—for faith is the foundation of prayer (πάσης προσευχῆς βάθρον καὶ κρηπὶς ἡ πίστις, Theoph.)—and rely on that, and ascribe all that you can do to Him alone; and then you will have faith, and be able to remove all the obstacles in your way. Cp. Matt. xvii. 20.

9. μὴ χάριν ἔχει] Does he feel obliged to? Does he return thanks? The Apostle St. Paul seems to refer to this question, and to put the matter in the true light, when he says of himself (1 Tim. i. 12), χάριν ἔχω τῷ ἐνδυναμώσαντί με Χριστῷ. 2 Tim. i. 3, χάριν ἔχω τῷ Θεῷ ᾧ λατρεύω.

10. ὅταν ποιήσητε] Which will be never; but Christ reminds us how high the standard of duty is, in order to teach us humility.

— δοῦλοι ἀχρεῖοί ἐσμεν] Yet Christ says (Matt. xxv. 30) τὸν ἀχρεῖον δοῦλον ἐκβάλλετε εἰς τὸ σκότος τὸ ἐξώτερον,—and He also says (xxv. 21. 23) εὖ δοῦλε ἀγαθὲ καὶ πιστέ. Therefore, though man cannot be profitable to God (see note on v. 7), yet one servant may be more unprofitable than another; and all are obliged to be δοῦλοι πιστοὶ καὶ ἀγαθοί: and in order that they may be so, they must be sensible that of themselves they are ἀχρεῖοι, and pray for God's grace to make them σκεύη εἰς τιμὴν ἡγιασμένα, εὔχρηστα τῷ Δεσπότῃ εἰς πᾶν ἔργον ἀγαθὸν ἡτοιμασμένα (2 Tim. ii. 21).

What God will reward in us hereafter is not our desert, but His grace in us. "Coronabit gratiam suam," says St. August. When, therefore, we say that we are unprofitable servants, we speak of ourselves abstractedly considered as ourselves, and not of God's grace in us, which makes us εὐχρήστους εἰς διακονίαν. (2 Tim. iv. 11. Philem. 11.)

Of ourselves we are ἀχρεῖοι, and yet we shall be condemned (see Matt. xxv. 30) if we are ἀχρεῖοι; for it is our duty to improve the grace of God that is given us, so that we may not be ἀργοὶ καὶ ἄκαρποι (2 Pet. i. 8) in the day of the Lord. Hence it is true that "Miser est quem Dominus servum inutilem appellat, beatus, qui se ipse." (Beng.)

— ὃ ὠφείλομεν] Why boastest thou? Dost thou not know that thou art in danger if thou payest not thy debts? and if thou pay them, thou hast no claim to thanks. (St. Cyril.)

So even if we did all that is commanded us, we should not have conferred a favour on God, but have only paid a debt; and since we leave undone many things that we ought to do, and do many that we ought not, we have more need to be ashamed, and to plead for pardon, than to ask for reward.

11. καὶ ἐγένετο] The lesson on the need of grace, and on the duty of thankfully ascribing all the good that we can do to God's grace preventing and following us, introduces naturally the succeeding narrative on the blessedness of gratitude to God in the case of the Samaritan leper, and on the prevalence of the sin of ingratitude in the world, exemplified by the nine.

— διὰ μέσου] Here is a retrospective reference. Our Lord was coming, probably for one of the feasts, to Jerusalem; and not willing to give offence to the Samaritans (see above, ix. 52, 53), He went along the boundary line of Galilee and Samaria, having Galilee on the left hand and Samaria on the right. Illustrations of this use of διὰ μέσου may be seen in the editor's "Athens and Attica," cap. xxiv. He then crossed the Jordan, perhaps at Scythopolis, where was a bridge, into Peræa, and then went southward till He crossed the Jordan again near Jericho (see Weistein), and so came to Jerusalem.

He travelled between Galilee and Samaria, rejected by one and not received by the other, and He went to Jerusalem to be crucified. "He came unto His own, and His own received Him not." (John i. 11.) It is said by some (e. g. Meyer, p. 432; cp. him on Matt. xix. 1) that St. Luke's account is inconsistent with that of St. Matthew and St. Mark, who say that our Lord went by Peræa. But this is an error. St. Luke's account is supplementary to theirs, not at variance with it.

12. ἔστησαν πόρρωθεν] And perhaps crying, "Unclean, Unclean!" See Levit. xiii. 45.

14. ἐπιδείξατε ἑαυτούς] See on Matt. viii. 4.

— τοῖς ἱερεῦσι] the Priests, i. e. of Jerusalem. It is imagined by some (e. g. Meyer) that Christ sent the Samaritan to a Samaritan priest. But (as Bengel observes) Christ sent the Samaritan to the Priests—the Jewish priests—and thus taught him a salutary lesson to the soul, viz. "that salvation is of the Jews (John iv. 22)." And the obedience of the Samaritan was more exemplary on this account.

τῷ ὑπάγειν αὐτοὺς ἐκαθαρίσθησαν. 15 Εἷς δὲ ἐξ αὐτῶν ἰδὼν ὅτι ἰάθη ὑπέστρεψε μετὰ φωνῆς μεγάλης δοξάζων τὸν Θεόν, 16 καὶ ἔπεσεν ἐπὶ πρόσωπον παρὰ τοὺς πόδας αὐτοῦ εὐχαριστῶν αὐτῷ· καὶ αὐτὸς ἦν Σαμαρείτης. 17 Ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν, Οὐχὶ οἱ δέκα ἐκαθαρίσθησαν; οἱ δὲ ἐννέα ποῦ; 18 Οὐχ εὑρέθησαν ὑποστρέψαντες δοῦναι δόξαν τῷ Θεῷ, εἰ μὴ ὁ ἀλλογενὴς οὗτος· 19 [i] καὶ εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Ἀναστὰς πορεύου, ἡ πίστις σου σέσωκέ σε.

i Matt. 9. 22. Mark 5. 34. & 10. 52. ch. 7. 50. & 8. 48. ch. 18. 12.

(202/V) 20 Ἐπερωτηθεὶς δὲ ὑπὸ τῶν Φαρισαίων, πότε ἔρχεται ἡ βασιλεία τοῦ Θεοῦ, ἀπεκρίθη αὐτοῖς καὶ εἶπεν, Οὐκ ἔρχεται ἡ βασιλεία τοῦ Θεοῦ μετὰ παρατηρήσεως, 21 οὐδὲ ἐροῦσιν, Ἰδοὺ ὧδε, ἢ ἰδοὺ ἐκεῖ· ἰδοὺ γὰρ ἡ βασιλεία τοῦ Θεοῦ ἐντὸς ὑμῶν ἐστιν. (203/X) 22 Εἶπε δὲ πρὸς τοὺς μαθητάς, Ἐλεύσονται ἡμέραι ὅτε ἐπιθυμήσετε μίαν τῶν ἡμερῶν τοῦ Υἱοῦ τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἰδεῖν, καὶ οὐκ ὄψεσθε. (204/II) 23 Καὶ ἐροῦσιν ὑμῖν, [j] Ἰδοὺ ὧδε, ἢ ἰδοὺ ἐκεῖ· μὴ ἀπέλθητε, μηδὲ διώξητε. (205/V) 24 [k] ὥσπερ γὰρ ἡ ἀστραπὴ ἡ ἀστράπτουσα ἐκ τῆς ὑπ' οὐρανὸν εἰς τὴν ὑπ' οὐρανὸν λάμπει, οὕτως ἔσται ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἐν τῇ ἡμέρᾳ αὐτοῦ. (206/II) 25 Πρῶτον δὲ δεῖ αὐτὸν πολλὰ παθεῖν, καὶ ἀποδοκιμασθῆναι ἀπὸ τῆς γενεᾶς ταύτης. (207/V) 26 [l] Καὶ καθὼς ἐγένετο ἐν ταῖς ἡμέραις Νῶε, οὕτως ἔσται καὶ ἐν ταῖς ἡμέραις τοῦ Υἱοῦ τοῦ ἀνθρώπου. 27 Ἤσθιον, ἔπινον, ἐγάμουν, ἐξεγαμίζοντο, ἄχρι ἧς ἡμέρας εἰσῆλθε Νῶε εἰς τὴν κιβωτὸν, καὶ ἦλθεν ὁ κατακλυσμὸς καὶ ἀπώλεσεν ἅπαντας. (208/X) 28 Ὁμοίως καὶ ὡς ἐγένετο ἐν ταῖς ἡμέραις Λὼτ, ἤσθιον ἔπινον, ἠγόραζον, ἐπώλουν, ἐφύτευον, ᾠκοδόμουν, 29 ᾗ δὲ ἡμέρᾳ ἐξῆλθε Λὼτ ἀπὸ Σοδόμων, ἔβρεξε πῦρ καὶ θεῖον ἀπ' οὐρανοῦ καὶ ἀπώλεσεν ἅπαντας· 30 κατὰ ταὐτὰ ἔσται ᾗ ἡμέρᾳ ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἀποκαλύπτεται. (209/II) 31 [m] Ἐν ἐκείνῃ τῇ ἡμέρᾳ, ὃς ἔσται ἐπὶ τοῦ δώματος, καὶ τὰ σκεύη αὐτοῦ ἐν τῇ οἰκίᾳ, μὴ καταβάτω ἆραι αὐτά· καὶ ὁ ἐν τῷ ἀγρῷ ὁμοίως μὴ ἐπιστρεψάτω εἰς τὰ ὀπίσω· (210/X) 32 μνημονεύετε τῆς γυναικὸς Λώτ. (211/III) 33 [n] Ὃς ἐὰν ζητήσῃ τὴν ψυχὴν αὐτοῦ σῶσαι ἀπολέσει αὐτήν· καὶ ὃς ἐὰν

j Matt. 24. 23.

k Matt. 24. 27.

l Matt. 24. 37, 38.

m Matt. 24. 17, 18.

n Matt. 16. 25.

---

15. ὑπέστρεψε] before he had shown himself to the priest; and so the paramount importance of thankfulness is brought out more forcibly.

Hence it appears that the obligation to gratitude to God, and, in like manner, to other moral virtues grounded on Love and Faith, is prior and superior to that of all positive law. Cp. on Matt. ix. 13, and Luke vi. 1—9; xiii. 10—16; xiv. 3. 5.

17. οἱ δέκα] Were not the ten cleansed? but the nine—where are they?

18. ἀλλογενής] The Samaritan is so called because of his Assyrian extraction. (Cyril, p. 367.) See above on x. 31.

19. ἡ πίστις σου] This word (πίστις) is the clue which connects this history with the request of the Apostles, πρόσθες ἡμῖν πίστιν, in v. 5. "You ask me to give you Faith, in addition to your other privileges and supposed virtues. Look not merely to the giver, but look also to yourselves the recipients. I cannot give, unless you are disposed to receive; you must banish all thoughts of your having any merit of your own, to which faith is to be added (see v. 5). And think not that faith is to be added; imagine not that it is to be merely an appendage (ἐν προσθήκης μέρει) to other graces and virtues. No; it is the root and ground of all virtue. You must begin with believing in Me. And say not πρόσθες ἡμῖν, 'add to us;' suppose not that it is to be added to you, as if you were something in yourselves. No; you must empty yourselves of yourselves, before you can receive an infusion of divine grace, giving you faith."

The Holy Spirit enforces this lesson by recording the history of the grateful Samaritan; and so teaches Christ's disciples by the example of a stranger (v. 18), of whom it is declared by Christ that he had faith, a saving faith by which he removed the sycamine tree of his own leprosy (a scriptural image of sin), and had shown that Faith by clear-sighted appreciation of the great duty of thankful ascription of all praise and glory to God alone (v. 16).

It may be observed here, that the Holy Spirit, writing by St. Luke to the Gentiles, not only carefully records, with particular prominence and emphasis, portions of our Lord's teaching which inculcate the duty of Prayer (see above v. 16), a duty little understood and still less practised by the Heathen world. He also recommends, in a similar manner, that of Thanksgiving, which was still less understood and practised than that of Prayer. There are some Prayers in Homer's Poems, but how few Thanksgivings!

20. μετὰ παρατηρήσεως] παρατηρεῖν is used by the LXX for the Hebr. שָׁמַר (shamar), 'to keep watch,' and the sense is, Do not suppose that the Kingdom of the Messiah is such that its approach is to be observed from a watch-tower, like the march of a victorious army coming on with triumphal pomp and retinue. No; it is within you; its way must be prepared in your hearts. (Cyril.)

22. ἐπιθυμήσατε] He had spoken to the Pharisees, and now He adds, The time is coming when even you, my disciples, in your troubles, will desire earnestly to see even a single one of the days of the Son of Man, and ye shall not see it. You will expect me to interfere, and rescue you and destroy your enemies. (Cyril.) But the end is not yet. 'In patience possess ye your souls.' When I come, it will be unexpectedly; and so far from destroying mine enemies at once, I must first suffer much from them; and the world will go on, eating and drinking, careless of Me and of My coming (as in the days of Noah and of Lot), till I shall come like Lightning from Heaven.

26—28. ἡμέραις Νῶε—Λώτ] On these two judgments, one by Water, the other by Fire, as types and rehearsals of the circumstances of the Universal Judgment by Fire of the Great Day, see 2 Pet. ii. 5. 6. Jude 7.

27. ἤσθιον] were eating and drinking—this was their life.

29. ἔβρεξε] ὁ Θεός, Matt. v. 45. The destruction of Sodom and Gomorrha is not attributed in Scripture to the agency of Water (i. e. to the waters of the Sea of Sodom) drowning them, but of Fire (Gen. xix. 23—28). But the soil itself was also convulsed, and the waters of the Jordan, which before flowed through that region, were pent up in the Lacus Asphaltites, or Dead Sea, a striking emblem of the Lake of Fire. See above, on Mark ix. 49.

31. ἐν ἐκείνῃ τῇ ἡμέρᾳ] 'at that time.' ἡμέρα is here used, in a larger sense, for the time, whether longer or shorter, in which Christ, who will come to all at once at the Day of Judgment, is coming to every man singly by death; and, to show that He is not speaking literally of a day, He says afterwards (v. 34) ταύτῃ τῇ νυκτί, this night.

— ἐπὶ τοῦ δώματος] The Holy Spirit here records these sayings of our Blessed Lord independently of any explicit reference to the taking of Jerusalem, and thus teaches us that they not only relate to that event (see on Matt. xxiv. 17—20), but have a general meaning, applicable to all ages of the Spiritual Jerusalem, or Christian Church.

He that is on the housetop, devoted to a holy life of prayer and meditation, let him not descend to earthly cares and interests. (Ambrose.) He that "has put his hand to the plough" (Luke ix. 62) and is engaged in the field of the Church, let him not turn back to the world, but rather forget the things that are behind and press forward (Phil. iii. 13). St. Aug. Qu. Evang. ii. 41. Theoph. See note on Matt. xxiv. 17—26.

ἀπολέσῃ αὐτὴν ζωογονήσει αὐτήν. (212/IV) 34 Λέγω ὑμῖν, ταύτῃ τῇ νυκτὶ ἔσονται δύο ἐπὶ κλίνης μιᾶς· εἷς παραληφθήσεται, καὶ ὁ ἕτερος ἀφεθήσεται. 35 ° Δύο ° Matt. 24. 40, 41.
ἔσονται ἀλήθουσαι ἐπὶ τὸ αὐτό· μία παραληφθήσεται, καὶ ἡ ἑτέρα ἀφεθήσεται.
(213/V) 36 δύο ἔσονται ἐν τῷ ἀγρῷ· ὁ εἷς παραληφθήσεται, καὶ ὁ ἕτερος ἀφεθή-σεται. 37 Καὶ ἀποκριθέντες λέγουσιν αὐτῷ, Ποῦ Κύριε; ὁ δὲ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, P °Οπου τὸ σῶμα, ἐκεῖ συναχθήσονται οἱ ἀετοί. XVIII. (214/X) 1 a °Ελεγε δὲ p Matt. 24. 28.
καὶ παραβολὴν αὐτοῖς πρὸς τὸ δεῖν πάντοτε προσεύχεσθαι, καὶ μὴ ἐκκακεῖν, Rom. 12. 12.
2 λέγων, Κριτής τις ἦν ἔν τινι πόλει τὸν Θεὸν μὴ φοβούμενος, καὶ ἄνθρωπον 1 Thess. 5. 17.
μὴ ἐντρεπόμενος. 3 Χήρα δὲ ἦν ἐν τῇ πόλει ἐκείνῃ, καὶ ἤρχετο πρὸς αὐτὸν & 21. 36.
λέγουσα, 'Εκδίκησόν με ἀπὸ τοῦ ἀντιδίκου μου. 4 Καὶ οὐκ ἤθελεν ἐπὶ χρόνον· μετὰ δὲ ταῦτα εἶπεν ἐν ἑαυτῷ, Εἰ καὶ τὸν Θεὸν οὐ φοβοῦμαι, καὶ ἄνθρωπον οὐκ ἐντρέπομαι, 5 διά γε τὸ παρέχειν μοι κόπον τὴν χήραν ταύτην, ἐκδικήσω αὐτὴν ἵνα μὴ εἰς τέλος ἐρχομένη ὑπωπιάζῃ με. 6 Εἶπε δὲ ὁ Κύριος, 'Ακούσατε τί ὁ κριτὴς τῆς ἀδικίας λέγει. 7 b 'Ο δὲ Θεὸς οὐ μὴ ποιήσει τὴν ἐκδίκησιν b Rev. 6. 10.
τῶν ἐκλεκτῶν αὐτοῦ τῶν βοώντων πρὸς αὐτὸν ἡμέρας καὶ νυκτὸς, καὶ μακρο- 2 Esdr. 15. 7, 8.
θυμῶν ἐπ' αὐτοῖς; 8 c λέγω ὑμῖν ὅτι ποιήσει τὴν ἐκδίκησιν αὐτῶν ἐν τάχει. Ecclus. 35. 17.
Πλὴν ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἐλθὼν ἆρα εὑρήσει τὴν πίστιν ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς; Isa. 42. 14.
Heb. 10. 37.
c Ps. 46. 5.

33. ζωογονήσει] 'vivificabit' (Acts vii. 19), an expressive word, derived from animal parturition, bringing forth to air and life what was before concealed in the womb. That day shall come as the pains of labour (ὠδῖνες) on a woman in travail (see on Matt. xxiv. 8); but to the saints of God it shall be the birth of the soul and body to life and glory everlasting. See St. Ignat. ad Rom. c. 6.

34. δύο ἐπὶ κλίνης μιᾶς, κ.τ.λ.] Not our circumstances, but our hearts, will determine our future condition. See on Matt. xxiv. 40.

35. ἀλήθουσαι] Perhaps a reference to the trials of the fearful night in Exod. xi. 5. (Euseb.)

36. δύο—ἀφεθήσεται] Not in A, B, E, G, H, K, L, Q, S, V, X. Probably it has been brought into the text of some MSS. from the margin, where it had been written as a parallel from St. Matthew.

37. ὅπου τὸ σῶμα] Do not seek to know where all this will occur; but do your own duty. See on xiii. 23. Wherever My Body is, there, if you are Eagles of the Gospel, you will be gathered together. (St. Ambrose, Theophyl.) See note on Matt. xxiv. 28, and St. Cyril here, p. 373.

CH. XVIII. 1. πάντοτε προσεύχεσθαι] See above on Luke v. 12. Bp. Andrewes, Preparation to Prayer, v. p. 354. Dr. Barrow's Sermon on 1 Thess. v. 17, and Sermon vi. vol. i. p. 107, and below, xxiv. 53.

— ἐκκακεῖν] Said properly of a coward (κακὸς) in battle. Prayer is here spoken of as a militia or warfare. The arms of the Church are Prayers. The Church Militant is the Church Supplicant. Her congregations for public Prayer are her armies of Soldiers storming the Gates of Heaven with a siege of prayers. "Hæc vis Deo grata est." (Tertullian.)

3. ἤρχετο] Used to come often. 'Ventitabat.' (Grot.)

4. ἤθελεν] So A, B, D, L, Q, X, and preferable, it seems, to ἠθέλησεν, as shewing habit.

— ἐν ἑαυτῷ] secretly. Our Lord by this expression, frequently used in His Parables (see xvi. 3, 4, and xviii. 11), reminds us that He is the Searcher of hearts—a doctrine very necessary for the Gentiles. Cp. Horat. 1 Epist. xvi. 54—62.

— τὸν, κ.τ.λ.] "Symbolum athei potentis." (Beng.)

5. διά γε] 'at certe.'

— εἰς τέλος] = Heb. נֶצַח (lanetsah), 'in æternum' (Ps. ix. 18; x. 11; xliv. 23). The authorized Version has 'by her continual coming,' and this seems to be the true meaning; i. e. lest coming to the end—διατελὲς, εἰς τὸ διηνεκὲς (Heb. x. 1. 12. 14), never ceasing—she bruise me.

— ὑπωπιάζῃ] 'sugillet me.' St. Aug. Quæst. Evang. ii. 45, 'obtundat me,' 'bruise me.' 1 Cor. ix. 27, ὑπωπιάζω μου τὸ σῶμα, a word derived from pugilists, who strike the face under the eyes (ὑπώπιον), and make it black and blue by contusion. The following is from Kuin.: "ὑπωπιάζειν hoc loco adhibitum ad significandam molestiam, quam sustinet is, cujus aures importunis flagitationibus obtunduntur, propriè notat sugillare, ut sub oculis existant vibices; hinc translatè notat, affligere, vexare, excruciare, quovis modo, Aristoph. Pac. 539 sq. πρὸς ἀλλήλας λαλοῦσιν αἱ πόλεις, διαλλαγεῖσαι καὶ γελῶσιν ἅσμεναι, καὶ ταῦτα δυμονίως ὑπωπιασμέναι, ἀπαξάπασαι. Sermo est ibi de urbibus, quæ multis belli malis vexatæ pacem quærebant. Scholiastes ὑπωπιασμέναι explicuit, σφοδρῶς πληγεῖσαι ὑπὸ τοῦ πολέμου. Conf. omnino de hoc verbo Suicerus Thes. Eccles. T. ii. p. 1400."

The unjust Judge represents himself as the injured person—as ὑπωπιασμένον by a poor widow!

6. ὁ κριτὴς τῆς ἀδικίας] On this use of the genitive, see on xvi. 8, τὸν οἰκονόμον τῆς ἀδικίας, and on Matt. xxiv. 15.

7. ὁ δὲ Θεὸς, κ.τ.λ.] The righteous Judge of all (2 Tim. iv. 8. Hebr. xii. 23) shall not He make τὴν ἐκδίκησιν, His award, that award which is determined, and judge the cause of His elect, who cry to Him on earth, and whose spirits pray to Him from under the altar, where they have been slain as sacrifices to Him. "How long, O Lord, holy and true, dost Thou not judge and avenge our blood on them that dwell on the earth!" (Rev. vi. 10. Esdr. xv. 7, 8. Ecclus. xxxv. 17.)

The case of the widow is that of the Church, now a Widow in the world, and subject to persecution and distress, till the return of Her Lord, who is the righteous Judge of quick and dead; "donec SPONSUS è cœlo redeat ad judicium." (Aug.)

St. Augustine asks,—How is this saying of Christ to be reconciled with His precept to pray for our enemies (Matt. v. 44)? The Vindicta desired, he says, is to be effected "conversione ad justitiam, aut amissâ per supplicium potestate, quâ nunc adversus bonos valent."

Perhaps, however, the true solution of the question is to be found in the meaning of the words ἐκδικεῖν and ἐκδίκησις, used here and in Rev. vi. 10; of which the essential sense is 'doing justice to an injured party,' and the infliction of punishment on any other party is only per accidens.

The word 'avenge' in our authorized Version is from the Vulgate 'facere vindictam,' and may suggest an improper meaning, unless explained from the original.

Indeed, the drift of the whole passage is to discourage and forbid revenge; for it commands Prayer, i. e. the laying of all our griefs before God, who forbids us to avenge ourselves (Rom. xii. 19), and requires us to forgive, if we desire to be forgiven (Matt. xviii. 35).

— καὶ μακροθυμῶν ἐπ' αὐτοῖς] Although He is long-suffering over them, and delays to execute vengeance in their cause. For this use of μακροθυμεῖν, see Ecclus. xxxii. 18, LXX, and cp. Rom. ii. 4, 1 Pet. iii. 20, 2 Pet. iii. 9; and see James v. 7—10 on the sense of μακροθυμία and μακροθυμῶ.

On the use of ἐπὶ see Acts xi. 19, θλῖψις ἐπὶ Στεφάνῳ. (Glass. Phil. p. 562. Winer, Gr. Gr. p. 373.) For μακροθυμῶν some MSS.—A, B, D, L, Q, X,—have μακροθυμεῖ, a reading which deserves consideration. They cry unto him night and day, and yet He delays to execute vengeance in their cause.

The best illustration of this text is to be derived from the prayer of the disembodied souls of the Elect of God, under the Altar (Rev. vi. 9, 10), which cry with a loud voice, saying,—How long, O Lord, holy and true, dost thou not judge and avenge (ἐκδικεῖς) our blood on them (from them) that dwell on the earth? i. e. on the Powers of this World.

8. ἐν τάχει] speedily. And yet eighteen centuries are passed since these words were spoken; and what is described as near is not yet come. Cp. Rev. i. 3; xxii. 10. Rom. xiii. 12. Phil. iv. 5. Heb. x. 25. 37. James v. 8, where the day of Judgment is described as close at hand. For so it is,

In the eye of Almighty God, who thus speaks in the Scriptures inspired by Him, and to whom a thousand years are as one day (2 Pet. iii. 8); and because

It is near at hand relatively; as all events in time are when compared with eternity, for which man is designed; and so (as Augustine says), the Creation itself, which took place 4000 years before, is to an immortal being but an event of yesterday, and

Because, in fact, the day of Judgment comes to each man at the day of his death, which cannot be far from any one.

These considerations are necessary for the proper interpretation of Scripture Prophecy, which partakes "of the nature of its Divine Author," with whom a Millennium is but a Moment.

— πλήν] And yet—though the day of retribution is so near at hand—will the Son of Man when He comes find the faith on Earth? No; The World, ἡ γῆ, is here contrasted with the children of Light and with the Kingdom of Heaven. Cp. Rev. i. 7, αἱ φυλαὶ τῆς

9 Εἶπε δὲ καὶ πρός τινας τοὺς πεποιθότας ἐφ' ἑαυτοῖς ὅτι εἰσὶ δίκαιοι, καὶ ἐξουθενοῦντας τοὺς λοιποὺς, τὴν παραβολὴν ταύτην· 10 Ἄνθρωποι δύο ἀνέβησαν d Isa. 1. 15. & 58. 2. Rev. 3. 17. εἰς τὸ ἱερὸν προσεύξασθαι, ὁ εἷς Φαρισαῖος, καὶ ὁ ἕτερος τελώνης· 11 d ὁ Φαρισαῖος σταθεὶς πρὸς ἑαυτὸν ταῦτα προσηύχετο, Ὁ Θεὸς, εὐχαριστῶ σοι, ὅτι οὐκ εἰμὶ ὥσπερ οἱ λοιποὶ τῶν ἀνθρώπων, ἅρπαγες, ἄδικοι, μοιχοὶ, ἢ καὶ ὡς οὗτος ὁ τελώνης· 12 νηστεύω δὶς τοῦ σαββάτου, ἀποδεκατῶ πάντα ὅσα κτῶμαι.
13 Καὶ ὁ τελώνης μακρόθεν ἑστὼς οὐκ ἤθελεν οὐδὲ τοὺς ὀφθαλμοὺς εἰς τὸν οὐρανὸν ἐπᾶραι, ἀλλ' ἔτυπτεν εἰς τὸ στῆθος αὐτοῦ λέγων, Ὁ Θεὸς ἱλάσθητί e Job 22. 29. Prov. 29. 23. ch. 14. 11. Matt. 23. 12. James 4. 6, 10. 1 Pet. 5. 5. μοι τῷ ἁμαρτωλῷ. (215/ϛ) 14 e Λέγω ὑμῖν, κατέβη οὗτος δεδικαιωμένος εἰς τὸν οἶκον αὐτοῦ ἢ γὰρ ἐκεῖνος· ὅτι πᾶς ὁ ὑψῶν ἑαυτὸν ταπεινωθήσεται, ὁ δὲ ταπεινῶν ἑαυτὸν ὑψωθήσεται.
f Matt. 19. 13, 14. Mark 10. 13—15. (216/ιϛ) 15 f Προσέφερον δὲ αὐτῷ καὶ τὰ βρέφη ἵνα αὐτῶν ἅπτηται· ἰδόντες

γῆς. iii. 10, τοὺς κατοικοῦντας ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς, and xiii. 8. 14; xiv. 6; and xviii. 3. οἱ ἔμποροι τῆς γῆς, and below on xxi. 35.

The World will have little faith in God's retributive Justice. Men will forget Him and live worldly lives, and magnify themselves as if God were not King and Judge of the Earth, and as if they had no account to render to Him. And even many of the good will faint through fear (Matt. xxiv. 12). Therefore do ye "pray always," and not lay down your arms in this divine warfare. "Ut oremus credamus, et ut ipsa non deficiat fides quâ oramus, oremus. Fides fundit orationem; fusa Oratio fidei impetrat firmitatem." (St. Aug. Serm. xcv.)

9. ἐφ' ἑαυτοῖς] not in God.

— τοὺς λοιποὺς] the rest of the world. Cp. v. 11, οἱ λοιποὶ τῶν ἀνθρώπων.

10. εἰς τὸ ἱερὸν προσεύξασθαι] Probably at one of the stated times of prayer, sacrifice, and offering of incense in the Temple, on which see Acts ii. 15; iii. 1; x. 9. Lightfoot on the Temple Service, chap. ix. vol. i. p. 946. Jahn, Arch. § 396. For an exposition of this parable, see Basil. Seleuc. p. 180.

11. σταθείς] like a statue. Valck. says, "Notat Pharisæi superbiam, qui in loco Templi conspicuo instar statuæ stans erectus, magnâ cum affectatione pietatem mentiebatur, opposité ad modestum Publicanum, qui, oculis in terram dejectis, in angulum quendam se abdiderat."

— πρὸς ἑαυτὸν προσηύχετο] Rightly rendered in Auth. Vers., 'prayed with himself,' listening to himself, recounting his own merits in prayer! There is something significant in the word πρὸς ἑαυτὸν, meaning ἐν ἑαυτῷ (see v. 4. Mark xiv. 4) and something more, i. e. he prayed with his eye fixed on himself, and only glancing, as it were, at God.

"Quid rogaverit Deum quære in verbis ejus, nihil invenies; ascendit orare; noluit orare, sed se laudare: parùm est non Deum laudare et se laudare, insuper et roganti Publicano insultare." (St. Aug. Serm. cxv.)

Our Lord, by revealing to us the secret prayer of this Pharisee, reminds us that in praying to Him we are dealing with One who reads our hearts.

— οἱ λοιποὶ] the rest of mankind, "omnes præter ipsum." (St. Aug.) He censures God in his prayer: Thou hast not one righteous on earth but me, ἐγὼ Σοὶ μόνος τῆς ἀρετῆς θησαυρός· ἔρημος ἂν εἴη δικαιοσύνης ἡ γῆ, εἰ μὴ ταύτην ἐπάτουν ἐγώ. (Basil. Seleuc. p. 183.)

"Gratias agit de malis quæ in aliis videt!" (Bernard, De Grad. Humil.)

A remarkable proof of self deceit. He had begun with deceiving others with a specious show of sanctity. He ends with deceiving himself; and he even thinks to deceive God. He draws a flattering portrait of himself, and holds it up for admiration to the eyes of God. And this is his prayer!

Because he had tampered with the truth, God gave him over to a reprobate mind, and he had become a prey to the Tempter: the God of this world blinded his eyes. Therefore, "Thou blind Pharisee!" says Christ, to such deceivers and deceived as this. (Matt. xxiii. 26.)

A warning to all not to tamper with the truth, but to treat it as sacred, and to revere the voice of conscience, and to cherish the motions of the Spirit of Truth in the soul, and to pray for a pure heart, and to be cleansed from secret faults.

A solution, also, of the mystery, which would otherwise be very perplexing, that men can quiet their consciences, and go up to the Temple to pray, and attempt to deceive the Omniscient, and yet be easy in their minds, and claim veneration from the world. They have commenced with attempting to deceive others. They are punished by self delusion. They are deceived by the Tempter into attempting to deceive God.

— οὗτος ὁ τελώνης] He would not miss the opportunity of calling his neighbour by a contemptuous name ('this publican'), even in his prayers, and when that neighbour was beating his breast in penitential sorrow and prayer.

12. δὶς τοῦ σαββάτου] twice in the week; on Monday and Thursday. See Theophylact and Lightfoot here, and Buxtorf, De Synagog., ch. xiv. p. 279: "Nam Mosem die quinto montem Sinai secundò conscendisse, et die Lunæ descendisse." Theophyl. adds correctly: σάββατα δὲ τὴν ἑβδομάδα (the week) ἔλεγον πληθυντικῶς, ὅθεν καὶ μίαν σαββάτων τὴν παρ' ἡμῖν κυριακὴν ἐκάλουν, παρὰ γὰρ Ἑβραίοις τὸ μίαν σημαίνει ταὐτὸν τῷ πρώτην.

— ὅσα κτῶμαι] He boasts of his wealth. κτᾶσθαι is not necessarily to acquire in N. T. (See 1 Thess. iv. 4.) "De omnibus rebus meis utcunque minutis decimas pendo." This was in the true spirit of the Pharisees, who said, "Show me my duty, and I will do it; and show me what is more than my duty, and I will do that." It was his duty to pay tithe (Num. xviii. 21. Deut. xiv. 22), but not of mint, anise, and cummin; and in his minute and scrupulous curiosity about that he forgot the weightier matters of the Law.

13. μακρόθεν ἑστώς] In the same court, that of the Israelites, as the Pharisee (see v. 11, οὗτος ὁ τελώνης), but not pressing forward toward the Holy Place.

— ἔτυπτεν εἰς τὸ στῆθος] Was beating on his breast, and had his eyes fixed on the ground, while the Pharisee was standing as a statue. What a contrast!

Our Lord, who reads the heart, and therefore needs no interpreter of it, and teaches that God is a Spirit and must be worshipped in spirit and in truth (John iv. 24), yet does not omit to specify and approve these outward acts of the Publican, as fit exponents of inward devotion. Man is composed of body and soul. And God, who made both, requires no less the reverence of the body than the devotion of the soul. He detests profaneness no less than He abhors hypocrisy. Christ twice drove the buyers and sellers from the outer courts of the Temple, which was less holy than the Church.

It cannot, therefore, be doubted, that where decent and edifying outward forms are prescribed by competent authority, there compliance with those forms is pleasing in His sight, and is an essential part of duty to Him. Cp. 1 Cor. xi. 4—16.

13. ἱλάσθητι] Ἱλεώς μοι γένοιο (Phavoris), "propitius esto." Cp. on Matt. xvi. 22.

— τῷ ἁμαρτωλῷ] the sinner. The Pharisee was the saint, and the Publican was the sinner, in his own eyes. To the Pharisee, all the rest of the world were sinners (v. 11), and he singled out his neighbour the Publican for condemnation as such. The Publican thought of no one's sins but his own. He was the sinner above all in his own sight, and as such he smote on his breast and prayed for pardon, God be merciful to me the sinner. Cp. St. Paul's language, 1 Tim. i. 15, and see on Rom. v. 7.

14. δεδικαιωμένος—ἤ] acquitted and pardoned, not more than the other, but rather than the other.

The word 'justificavit,' or ἐδικαίωσε, is the Hebrew צִדַּק (hitsedik), a forensic word signifying justum habere, pronunciare; à reatu immunem declarare, absolvere, from צָדַק (tsadik), 'justus.'

The ellipsis of μᾶλλον is seen in Gen. xxxviii. 26, δεδικαίωται Θάμαρ ἢ ἐγὼ, 'rather than I.' Ps. cxviii. 8, ἀγαθὸν πεποιθέναι ἐπὶ κύριον ἢ ἐπ' ἀνθρωπον. Matt. xviii. 8. See Glass. Phil. S. p. 274. And this comparison is tantamount to a strong negative of the second member of the sentence. See the examples, ibid. p. 465. 1 Cor. vii. 9. 1 Pet. iii. 17, i. e. in this case the Pharisee was not justified, but condemned. As Euthym. here well says, ὁ δικαιώσας μόνον ἑαυτὸν κατεδικάσθη παρὰ Θεοῦ, ὁ δὲ καταδικάσας μόνον ἑαυτὸν ἐδικαιώθη παρὰ Θεοῦ, and Tertullian, c. Marc. iv. 36, "Alterum reprobatum alterum justificatum descendisse," and St. Aug. "Superbia in Pharisæo de templo damnata descendit, et humilitas in Publicano ante Dei oculos approbata descendit."

— ἢ γὰρ ἐκεῖνος] So the best MSS., A, E, G, H, K, M, O, P, Q, S, V. The γαρ, Winer says, G. G. p. 216, is without example. But γὰρ serves to mark transition; and perhaps it is introduced for euphony, to soften the harsh hiatus between ἤ and ἐκεῖνος, and to strengthen the assertion. See Luke viii. 17, 18; ix. 24—26; xix. 10. Acts xvi. 37, οὐ γὰρ ἀλλ' ἐλθόντες. John vii. 41, μὴ γὰρ ἐκ τῆς Γαλιλαίας ὁ Χριστὸς ἔρχεται; ix. 30, ἐν γὰρ τούτῳ θαυμαστόν ἐστιν. Gal. i. 10, ἄρτι γὰρ ἀνθρώπους πείθω;

Indeed, if we regard γὰρ etymologically, i. e. as formed of γε ἄρα (Hoogeveen), the sense of ἢ γὰρ here is obvious.

15. προσέφερον, κ.τ.λ.] See Matt. xix. 13—15. Mark x. 13—

δὲ οἱ μαθηταὶ ἐπετίμησαν αὐτοῖς. 16 Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς προσκαλεσάμενος αὐτὰ εἶπεν, Ἄφετε τὰ παιδία ἔρχεσθαι πρός με, καὶ μὴ κωλύετε αὐτά· τῶν γὰρ τοιούτων ἐστὶν ἡ βασιλεία τοῦ Θεοῦ. (217/II) 17 Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ὃς ἐὰν μὴ δέξηται τὴν βασιλείαν τοῦ Θεοῦ ὡς παιδίον, οὐ μὴ εἰσέλθῃ εἰς αὐτήν.

(218/II) 18 [g] Καὶ ἐπηρώτησέ τις αὐτὸν ἄρχων, λέγων· Διδάσκαλε ἀγαθέ, τί ποιήσας ζωὴν αἰώνιον κληρονομήσω; 19 Εἶπε δὲ αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Τί με λέγεις ἀγαθόν; οὐδεὶς ἀγαθὸς εἰ μὴ εἷς, ὁ Θεός. 20 Τὰς ἐντολὰς οἶδας, Μὴ μοιχεύσῃς· μὴ φονεύσῃς· μὴ κλέψῃς· μὴ ψευδομαρτυρήσῃς· τίμα τὸν πατέρα σου καὶ τὴν μητέρα. 21 Ὁ δὲ εἶπε, Ταῦτα πάντα ἐφυλαξάμην ἐκ νεότητός μου. (219/II) 22 Ἀκούσας δὲ ταῦτα ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Ἔτι ἕν σοι λείπει, πάντα ὅσα ἔχεις πώλησον, καὶ διάδος πτωχοῖς, καὶ ἕξεις θησαυρὸν ἐν οὐρανῷ· καὶ δεῦρο ἀκολούθει μοι. (220/II) 23 Ὁ δὲ ἀκούσας ταῦτα περίλυπος ἐγένετο, ἦν γὰρ πλούσιος σφόδρα. 24 Ἰδὼν δὲ αὐτὸν ὁ Ἰησοῦς περίλυπον γενόμενον εἶπε, Πῶς δυσκόλως οἱ τὰ χρήματα ἔχοντες εἰσελεύσονται εἰς τὴν βασιλείαν τοῦ Θεοῦ· 25 εὐκοπώτερον γάρ ἐστι κάμηλον διὰ τρυμαλιᾶς ῥαφίδος εἰσελθεῖν, ἢ πλούσιον εἰς τὴν βασιλείαν τοῦ Θεοῦ εἰσελθεῖν. 26 Εἶπον δὲ οἱ ἀκούσαντες, καὶ τίς δύναται σωθῆναι; 27 Ὁ δὲ εἶπε, Τὰ ἀδύνατα παρὰ ἀνθρώποις δυνατά ἐστι παρὰ τῷ Θεῷ. 28 Εἶπε δὲ Πέτρος, Ἰδοὺ, ἡμεῖς ἀφήκαμεν πάντα καὶ ἠκολουθήσαμέν σοι. (221/II) 29 Ὁ δὲ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι οὐδείς ἐστιν ὃς ἀφῆκεν οἰκίαν, ἢ γονεῖς, ἢ ἀδελφοὺς, ἢ γυναῖκα, ἢ τέκνα, ἕνεκεν τῆς βασιλείας τοῦ Θεοῦ, 30 ὃς οὐ μὴ ἀπολάβῃ πολλαπλασίονα ἐν τῷ καιρῷ τούτῳ, καὶ ἐν τῷ αἰῶνι τῷ ἐρχομένῳ ζωὴν αἰώνιον.

g Matt. 19. 16—29. Mark 10. 17—30.

(222/II) 31 [h] Παραλαβὼν δὲ τοὺς δώδεκα εἶπε πρὸς αὐτούς, Ἰδοὺ ἀναβαίνομεν εἰς Ἱεροσόλυμα, καὶ τελεσθήσεται πάντα τὰ γεγραμμένα διὰ τῶν προφητῶν τῷ Υἱῷ τοῦ ἀνθρώπου· 32 παραδοθήσεται γὰρ τοῖς ἔθνεσι, καὶ ἐμπαιχθήσεται καὶ ὑβρισθήσεται καὶ ἐμπτυσθήσεται, 33 καὶ μαστιγώσαντες ἀποκτενοῦσιν αὐτὸν, καὶ τῇ ἡμέρᾳ τῇ τρίτῃ ἀναστήσεται. (223/X) 34 Καὶ αὐτοὶ οὐδὲν τούτων συνῆκαν, καὶ ἦν τὸ ῥῆμα τοῦτο κεκρυμμένον ἀπ' αὐτῶν, καὶ οὐκ ἐγίνωσκον τὰ λεγόμενα.

h Matt. 20. 17—19. Mark 10. 32—34.

(224/II) 35 [i] Ἐγένετο δὲ ἐν τῷ ἐγγίζειν αὐτὸν εἰς Ἰεριχὼ, τυφλός τις ἐκάθητο παρὰ τὴν ὁδὸν προσαιτῶν· 36 ἀκούσας δὲ ὄχλου διαπορευομένου ἐπυνθάνετο τί εἴη τοῦτο· 37 ἀπήγγειλαν δὲ αὐτῷ, ὅτι Ἰησοῦς ὁ Ναζωραῖος παρέρχεται· 38 καὶ ἐβόησε λέγων, Ἰησοῦ Υἱὲ Δαυὶδ, ἐλέησόν με. 39 Καὶ οἱ προάγοντες ἐπετίμων αὐτῷ ἵνα σιωπήσῃ, αὐτὸς δὲ πολλῷ μᾶλλον ἔκραζεν, Υἱὲ Δαυὶδ, ἐλέησόν με. 40 Σταθεὶς δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἐκέλευσεν αὐτὸν ἀχθῆναι πρὸς αὐτόν· ἐγγίσαντος δὲ αὐτοῦ ἐπηρώτησεν αὐτὸν 41 λέγων, Τί σοι θέλεις ποιήσω; ὁ δὲ εἶπε, Κύριε, ἵνα ἀναβλέψω. 42 καὶ ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Ἀνάβλεψον·

i Matt. 20. 29—34. Mark 10. 46—52.

---

17. St. Luke here ἐλληνίζων has βρέφη, the others have παιδία, which St. Luke also has in v. 16, 17.

— καὶ τὰ βρέφη] 'also their infants,' as well as themselves.

17. ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν] See St. Aug. Serm. cxv., where he uses this text (as the Book of Common Prayer does) as an argument for Infant Baptism: "Veniant ergo parvuli, languidi ad medicum, veniant perditi ad Redemptorem: veniant, nemo prohibeat. In ramo nihil commiserunt, sed in radice perierunt. Benedicat pusillos cum magnis. Causam parvulorum Domini commendamus majoribus. Nihil habent mali nisi quod de fonte traxerunt. Non eos impediant à salute, qui ad id quod traxerunt multa addiderunt."

18. καὶ ἐπηρώτησε, κ.τ.λ.] See Matt. xix. 16—22. Mark x. 17—22.

— διδάσκαλε] προσέρχεται τῷ κυρίῳ ὡς ἁπλῶς ἀνθρώπῳ καὶ διδασκάλῳ. (Theoph.)

19. τί με λέγεις ἀγαθόν;] If I am only Master, why call me Good? if I am God, why call me Master? why not call me God? For there is none good, but God. "Quid me dicis bonum, quem negas Deum? Non ergo se bonum negat, sed Deum designat." (St. Ambrose.) See on Matt. xix. 17.

24. ἰδὼν, κ.τ.λ.] See on Matt. xix. 23—30.

25. εἰσελθεῖν] A, D, M, P, διελθεῖν.

28. ἡμεῖς] emphatic; we have done what Thou commandest others to do.

— ἠκολουθήσαμεν] we became followers of Thee, and still are. Cp. ἠγάπησε, vii. 47.

31. παραλαβὼν, κ.τ.λ.] See on Matt. xx. 17—19. Mark x. 32—34; and on these verses 31—44, see Greg. M. Moral. i. in Evang. ii. p. 1440.

34. οὐκ ἐγίνωσκον] 'did not understand:' the Hebr. יָדַע (yadha), of which Buxtorf says (Lex. in v.) "propriè mentis est et intellectûs."

35. ἐγένετο δὲ, κ.τ.λ.] On the time and place of the healing of the blind man, see on Matt. xx. 29—34, and on Mark x. 46—52.

— Ἰεριχὼ] יְרִיחוֹ, in the Tribe of Benjamin (Joseph. Ant. xviii. 21), on the borders of Ephraim (xvi. 17), in a fair and fertile, well-watered country, celebrated for its balsam and its palm trees (Strabo, xvi. p. 763. Plin. v. 14. Reland. pp. 383. 829. Lightfoot, Works, ii. 43); 150 stadia east from Jerusalem, and 60 west from the river Jordan. Robinson, Palestine, ii. pp. 273—304. The city had been much beautified by Herod (Joseph. Ant. xvi. 5), who had a palace there; and it was now the next city to Jerusalem in importance. It is now called Richa or Ericha, and is almost deserted.

ἡ πίστις σου σέσωκέ σε. 43 Καὶ παραχρῆμα ἀνέβλεψε, καὶ ἠκολούθει αὐτῷ δοξάζων τὸν Θεόν· καὶ πᾶς ὁ λαὸς ἰδὼν ἔδωκεν αἶνον τῷ Θεῷ.

XIX. (225 X) 1 Καὶ εἰσελθὼν διήρχετο τὴν Ἰεριχώ· 2 καὶ ἰδοὺ, ἀνὴρ ὀνόματι καλούμενος Ζακχαῖος, καὶ αὐτὸς ἦν ἀρχιτελώνης, καὶ οὗτος ἦν πλούσιος, 3 καὶ ἐζήτει ἰδεῖν τὸν Ἰησοῦν τίς ἐστι, καὶ οὐκ ἠδύνατο ἀπὸ τοῦ ὄχλου ὅτι τῇ ἡλικίᾳ μικρὸς ἦν. 4 Καὶ προδραμὼν ἔμπροσθεν ἀνέβη ἐπὶ συκομορέαν ἵνα ἴδῃ αὐτόν· ὅτι ἐκείνης ἤμελλε διέρχεσθαι. 5 Καὶ ὡς ἦλθεν ἐπὶ τὸν τόπον ἀναβλέψας ὁ Ἰησοῦς, εἶδεν αὐτὸν, καὶ εἶπε πρὸς αὐτόν, Ζακχαῖε, σπεύσας κατάβηθι· σήμερον γὰρ ἐν τῷ οἴκῳ σου δεῖ με μεῖναι. 6 Καὶ σπεύσας κατέβη, καὶ ὑπεδέξατο αὐτὸν χαίρων. 7 Καὶ ἰδόντες πάντες διεγόγγυζον, λέγοντες, Ὅτι a ch. 3. 14. παρὰ ἁμαρτωλῷ ἀνδρὶ εἰσῆλθε καταλῦσαι. 8 a Σταθεὶς δὲ Ζακχαῖος εἶπε πρὸς τὸν Κύριον, Ἰδοὺ, τὰ ἡμίσια τῶν ὑπαρχόντων μου, Κύριε, δίδωμι τοῖς πτωχοῖς· b ch. 13. 16. Gal. 3. 7. καὶ εἴ τινός τι ἐσυκοφάντησα, ἀποδίδωμι τετραπλοῦν. 9 b Εἶπε δὲ πρὸς αὐτὸν ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Ὅτι σήμερον σωτηρία τῷ οἴκῳ τούτῳ ἐγένετο, καθότι καὶ αὐτὸς c Matt. 10. 6. & 15. 24. & 18. 11. Acts 13. 46. υἱὸς Ἀβραάμ ἐστιν· (226 Υ) 10 c ἦλθε γὰρ ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ζητῆσαι καὶ σῶσαι τὸ ἀπολωλός.

(227 X) 11 Ἀκουόντων δὲ αὐτῶν ταῦτα, προσθεὶς εἶπε παραβολὴν, διὰ τὸ ἐγγὺς αὐτὸν εἶναι Ἰερουσαλὴμ, καὶ δοκεῖν αὐτοὺς ὅτι παραχρῆμα μέλλει ἡ βασιλεία
d Matt. 25. 14. τοῦ Θεοῦ ἀναφαίνεσθαι. (228 II) 12 Εἶπεν οὖν, d Ἄνθρωπός τις εὐγενὴς ἐπορεύθη εἰς χώραν μακρὰν, λαβεῖν ἑαυτῷ βασιλείαν καὶ ὑποστρέψαι. (229 Υ) 13 Καλέσας δὲ δέκα δούλους ἑαυτοῦ ἔδωκεν αὐτοῖς δέκα μνᾶς, καὶ εἶπε πρὸς αὐτούς, Πραγματεύσασθε ἕως ἔρχομαι· 14 Οἱ δὲ πολῖται αὐτοῦ ἐμίσουν αὐτὸν, καὶ ἀπέστειλαν πρεσβείαν ὀπίσω αὐτοῦ λέγοντες, Οὐ θέλομεν τοῦτον βασιλεῦσαι ἐφ' ἡμᾶς. 15 Καὶ ἐγένετο ἐν τῷ ἐπανελθεῖν αὐτὸν λαβόντα τὴν βασιλείαν, καὶ εἶπε φωνηθῆναι αὐτῷ τοὺς δούλους τούτους οἷς ἔδωκε τὸ ἀργύριον, ἵνα γνῷ τίς
e Matt. 25. 20. τί διεπραγματεύσατο. 16 e Παρεγένετο δὲ ὁ πρῶτος λέγων, Κύριε, ἡ μνᾶ

Ch. XIX. 1. διήρχετο] He was passing through; i. e. He was not going to make any stay there; but was induced to wait awhile (καταλῦσαι, v. 7), vv. 5. 7. 9, at the house of Zacchæus.

2. Ζακχαῖος] from Hebr. זָכַי (zachah), 'justus fuit.' (Mintert.) Cp. Ezra ii. 9. Neh. vii. 14. The name (which occurs in the Talmud, see Lightfoot) shows him to have been a Jew, and therefore more obnoxious to his countrymen, as an instrument in the hands of the Romans, for exacting taxes from them, being, as he was, a chief of the hated order of Publicans, and rich, perhaps, by means of his profession; and he dwelt at Jericho, a wealthy commercial city, the next in importance, in Judæa, after Jerusalem.

According to a later tradition (Const. Apost. vii. 46), he became first Bishop of Cæsarea, in Palestine.

4. συκομορέαν] the 'ficus sycomorus;' of the fig tribe, in leaves and aspect like the white mulberry. Plin. xiii. 14. Dioscor. i. 182. It has a knotty stem, and grows to a considerable height, and shoots out its boughs wide, with thick foliage. (Hasselquist, Reise, &c. p. 535. Billerbeck, Flora. p. 229.)

"Pusillitatem nostram, ad videndum Dominum, turba præpedit, quia infirmitatem humanæ mentis, ne lucem veritatis intendat, curarum secularium tumultus premit. Sed prudenter Sycomorum ascendamus; per sycomorum Dominus transiens cernitur." (St. Gregor. 27 Moral. in Job xxxvii.)

— ἐκείνης] sc. ὁδοῦ. So A, B, D, E, G, H, K, L, Q, S, V. Elz., δι' ἐκείνης. Cp. ch. v. 19.

Often by reason of the crowd of worldly affairs, and on account of our spiritual lowness of stature, we cannot discern Christ; but there are sycamores in the road, by which He will pass. He has given us means of grace,—Prayer, Scripture, Sacraments. These are the Trees which He has planted by the way side of life. Let the crowd and our own littleness excite us to run before, like Zacchæus, and to ascend the tree; and like him, we shall see Christ, and He will come and abide with us.

God always anticipates us if He sees us eager for good. (Theophyl.)

5. ἀναβλέψας ὁ Ἰησοῦς, κ.τ.λ.] He who had seen the heart of Nathanael beneath the thick foliage of the fig-tree (John i. 48), reads that of Zacchæus in the shade of the sycamore, and more than grants his prayer. "Etsi vocem invitantis," says St. Ambrose, "Jesus non audierat, viderat tamen affectum." (See also St. Cyril here, and St. Chrysostom, Homil. de Zacchæo.) He promises to come to his house, having already visited his heart.

— Ζακχαῖε] Christ, the Good Shepherd, knows all His sheep, and calleth them all by their names. John x. 3.

7. καταλῦσαι] diversari, 'to be a guest with;' hence the inn or lodging, diversorium, in which Christ was born, is called κατάλυμα (see above, ii. 7), and the Guest Chamber for refreshment, where He ate the Paschal Supper, and instituted the Holy Eucharist. See below, xxii. 11.

8. σταθείς] We are left by St. Luke to judge of our Lord's Sermon at the table of Zacchæus by its effects. Perhaps Zacchæus had been reclining at meat, and listening to our Lord's teaching on the use of Money, and was convinced of his own past failings in this respect; and he then arose and stood forth in the presence of the guests, and spoke as follows. An example of confessing Christ before men, and of making public dedications of body, and soul, and goods to Him.

— ἰδοὺ] 'Henceforth I give;' present tense for future, to show that what is said is as good as done,—'the half of my goods I give to the poor.' He does not delay till to-morrow. He is not a Doson.

— ἐσυκοφάντησα] See iii. 14. A public confession of sin, and a public vow of restitution.

8. ἀποδίδωμι τετραπλοῦν] 'I will restore, voluntarily at least, what the law requires.' See Exod. xxi. 36; xxii. 1. Numb. v. 6, 7.

He thus vindicates Christ from the cavils of those who said He was gone to be a guest with a sinner (v. 7).

"Non dimittetur peccatum," says St. Aug. Ep. liv. "nisi restituatur ablatum."

9. υἱὸς Ἀβραάμ] A son of Abraham by faith (Matt. iii. 9. John viii. 39. Rom. iv. 11—16. Gal. iii. 7. 9), though despised by those who call themselves the children of Abraham.

10.] See Athanas. de Incar., pp. 47, 48.

11. προσθεὶς εἶπε] He went on to deliver a parable. See Vorst., de Hebr., p. 591. Job xxix. 1; xxxvi. 1. Cp. below, xx. 11.

12. ἐπορεύθη εἰς χώραν μακράν, κ.τ.λ.] As the members of the family of Herod and others from the East resorted to Rome to obtain kingdoms for themselves from the Emperors, and to return to Palestine and their own land. See Wetstein here, and Joseph. Ant. xiv. 25; xv. 10. Comp. on the parable of the five talents, Matt. xxv. 14—30.

13. ἕως ἔρχομαι] 'while I am coming.' The indicative mood marks more forcibly the uncertainty of the time of Christ's Advent, and that He is always coming to every man. Cp. 1 Tim. iv. 13. John xxi. 22.

14. πρεσβείαν] As the Jews sent counter embassies to Rome to frustrate the appeals mentioned in a preceding note (on v. 12), e. g. in the case of Archelaus. (Joseph. Ant. xvii.)

The mention of this antipathy and opposition on the part of the πολῖται brings out more clearly the character of the servants; as the hostility of the citizens of the world against Christ tries and displays the temper of Christians.

σου προσειργάσατο δέκα μνᾶς. 17 Καὶ εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Εὖ, ἀγαθὲ δοῦλε, ὅτι ἐν ἐλαχίστῳ πιστὸς ἐγένου ἴσθι ἐξουσίαν ἔχων ἐπάνω δέκα πόλεων. 18 Καὶ ἦλθεν ὁ δεύτερος λέγων, Κύριε, ἡ μνᾶ σου ἐποίησε πέντε μνᾶς. 19 Εἶπε δὲ καὶ τούτῳ, Καὶ σὺ γίνου ἐπάνω πέντε πόλεων. 20 [f] Καὶ ἕτερος ἦλθε λέγων, Κύριε, ἰδοὺ, ἡ μνᾶ σου, ἣν εἶχον ἀποκειμένην ἐν σουδαρίῳ· 21 ἐφοβούμην γάρ σε, ὅτι ἄνθρωπος αὐστηρὸς εἶ· αἴρεις ὃ οὐκ ἔθηκας, καὶ θερίζεις ὃ οὐκ ἔσπειρας. 22 Λέγει δὲ αὐτῷ, Ἐκ τοῦ στόματός σου κρινῶ σε, πονηρὲ δοῦλε· ἤδεις ὅτι ἐγὼ ἄνθρωπος αὐστηρός εἰμι, αἴρων ὃ οὐκ ἔθηκα, καὶ θερίζων ὃ οὐκ ἔσπειρα· 23 καὶ διατί οὐκ ἔδωκας τὸ ἀργύριόν μου ἐπὶ τράπεζαν, καὶ ἐγὼ ἐλθὼν σὺν τόκῳ ἂν ἔπραξα αὐτό; 24 Καὶ τοῖς παρεστῶσιν εἶπεν, Ἄρατε ἀπ' αὐτοῦ τὴν μνᾶν, καὶ δότε τῷ τὰς δέκα μνᾶς ἔχοντι· 25 καὶ εἶπον αὐτῷ, Κύριε, ἔχει δέκα μνᾶς· (230/II) 26 λέγω γὰρ ὑμῖν, ὅτι παντὶ τῷ ἔχοντι δοθήσεται· ἀπὸ δὲ τοῦ μὴ ἔχοντος καὶ ὃ ἔχει ἀρθήσεται ἀπ' αὐτοῦ. (231/V) 27 Πλὴν τοὺς ἐχθρούς μου ἐκείνους, τοὺς μὴ θελήσαντάς με βασιλεῦσαι ἐπ' αὐτοὺς, ἀγάγετε ὧδε καὶ κατασφάξατε ἔμπροσθέν μου. (232/II) 28 Καὶ εἰπὼν ταῦτα ἐπορεύετο ἔμπροσθεν ἀναβαίνων εἰς Ἱεροσόλυμα.

[f] Matt. 25. 24—29.

29 Καὶ ἐγένετο, ὡς ἤγγισεν εἰς Βηθφαγὴ καὶ Βηθανίαν, πρὸς τὸ ὄρος τὸ καλούμενον Ἐλαιών, ἀπέστειλε δύο τῶν μαθητῶν αὐτοῦ 30 εἰπών, [g] Ὑπάγετε εἰς τὴν κατέναντι κώμην, ἐν ᾗ εἰσπορευόμενοι εὑρήσετε πῶλον δεδεμένον, ἐφ' ὃν οὐδεὶς πώποτε ἀνθρώπων ἐκάθισε· λύσαντες αὐτὸν ἀγάγετε· 31 καὶ ἐάν τις ὑμᾶς ἐρωτᾷ, Διατί λύετε; οὕτως ἐρεῖτε αὐτῷ, Ὅτι ὁ Κύριος αὐτοῦ χρείαν ἔχει. (233/II) 32 Ἀπελθόντες δὲ οἱ ἀπεσταλμένοι εὗρον καθὼς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς. 33 Λυόντων δὲ αὐτῶν τὸν πῶλον εἶπον οἱ κύριοι αὐτοῦ πρὸς αὐτούς, Τί λύετε τὸν πῶλον; 34 οἱ δὲ εἶπον, Ὁ Κύριος αὐτοῦ χρείαν ἔχει. 35 Καὶ ἤγαγον αὐτὸν πρὸς τὸν Ἰησοῦν, καὶ ἐπιῤῥίψαντες ἑαυτῶν τὰ ἱμάτια ἐπὶ τὸν πῶλον, ἐπεβίβασαν τὸν Ἰησοῦν. (234/I) 36 Πορευομένου δὲ αὐτοῦ, ὑπεστρώννυον τὰ ἱμάτια αὐτῶν ἐν τῇ ὁδῷ. 37 Ἐγγίζοντος δὲ αὐτοῦ ἤδη πρὸς τῇ καταβάσει τοῦ ὄρους τῶν Ἐλαιῶν, ἤρξαντο ἅπαν τὸ πλῆθος τῶν μαθητῶν χαίροντες αἰνεῖν τὸν Θεὸν φωνῇ μεγάλῃ περὶ πασῶν ὧν εἶδον δυνάμεων, 38 λέγοντες, Εὐλογημένος ὁ ἐρχόμενος βασιλεὺς ἐν ὀνόματι Κυρίου· εἰρήνη ἐν οὐρανῷ, καὶ δόξα ἐν ὑψίστοις. (235/V) 39 Καί τινες τῶν Φαρισαίων ἀπὸ τοῦ ὄχλου εἶπον πρὸς αὐτόν, Διδάσκαλε, ἐπιτίμησον τοῖς μαθηταῖς σου. 40 Καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι ἐὰν οὗτοι σιωπήσωσιν, οἱ λίθοι κεκράξονται. (236/X) 41 Καὶ ὡς ἤγγισεν, ἰδὼν τὴν πόλιν ἔκλαυσεν ἐπ' αὐτῇ 42 λέγων, Ὅτι εἰ ἔγνως καὶ σὺ, καί γε ἐν τῇ ἡμέρᾳ σου

[g] Matt. 21. 2—9. Mark 11. 2—10.

---

16. ἡ μνᾶ σου] He does not say, I have gained, but thy pound has gained. The good servant ascribes all the increase to his lord's money. Cp. St. Paul's words, 1 Cor. xv. 10. It is God's grace in us which enables us to labour; and all the fruits of our labour are due to Him. See on xvii. 5—10.

17. ἴσθι ἔχων] 'scias te habere.' (Valck.)

— δέκα πόλεων] On this parable as illustrating the different degrees of bliss in heaven, according to different degrees of growth in grace on earth, see Bishop Bull's Sermon vii. vol. i. pp. 168. 189. Cp. Matt. xix. 27, 28. 1 Cor. xv. 41, 42. 2 Cor. ix. 6.

See also below on John xiv. 2.

20. σουδαρίῳ] The Latin word sudarium (from sudor), Catull. xii. 14, passed into many eastern dialects. Buxtorf. Lex. Talmud. p. 1442. See John xi. 44; xx. 7. Acts xix. 12.

There is a difference between this case and that of the unprofitable servant in St. Matt. xxv. 25. There the servant alleges fear lest he should lose what his master had given him, and therefore he has gone and hidden it in the earth.

Here the servant also alleges fear (v. 21); but says that he kept it stowed away in a napkin,—i. e. he claims credit for care and vigilance.

The Gospel speaks of the dead wrapped in a σουδάριον (John xi. 44; xx. 7); fitly then the pound which he kept as dead was so enwrapped. (Theophyl.)

On the sin of wrapping up the Conscience, as if it were a dead corpse, in the folds of a σουδάριον, such as the Papacy provides for its children, and requires them to use on pain of damnation, see Bp. Sanderson, de Conscient. Præl. iii. 5. 27, 28.

23. τράπεζαν] See Matt. xxi. 12; xxv. 27.

27. τοὺς μὴ θελήσαντας] A prophetic reference to the cry, "we have no king but Cæsar" (John xix. 15. Ps. ii. 2—6).

29—44. καὶ ἐγένετο, κ.τ.λ.] See on Mark xi. 1. Matt. xxi. 1—17. On the form Ἐλαιών see xxi. 37.

33. οἱ κύριοι] St. Mark says only τινὲς τῶν ἑστηκότων (xi. 5). Here is a mark of the later composition of St. Luke's Gospel. See Mark ii. 15. 25, 26; v. 36—38, compared respectively with Luke vi. 3, 4; viii. 50, 51, and Townson on the Gospels, Disc. v. Sect. 1.

40. οἱ λίθοι] And so the λίθοι did cry out when one λίθος was not left upon another, according to his prophecy (xix. 44), and proclaimed His truth, justice, and power in thus punishing those that rejected the divine λίθος who became the Head Stone of the corner (xx. 17).

41. ἰδὼν τὴν πόλιν ἔκλαυσεν] The sight of the city brought tears into His eyes, and He wept, as David did on the same mountain (2 Sam. xv. 30). But Christ wept in the hour of His triumph, and near the spot where He was about to ascend in glory to heaven. He wept not for Himself, but for Jerusalem, and for her approaching calamities. (See below xxiii. 28.) He wept in the place where her enemies began to besiege her (Matt. xxiv. 3) for her sins in rejecting Him; He wept on that spot in divine foreknowledge of the miseries which they would there inflict upon her. Christ here proves His twofold nature by shedding tears as man for what He foretold as God.

For αὐτῇ A, B, D, H, L, have αὐτὴν, perhaps the true reading; cp. xxiii. 28, μὴ κλαίετε ἐπ' ἐμὲ, πλὴν ἐφ' ἑαυτὰς κλαίετε.

42—47.] See Greg. M. Hom. in Ev. xxxix.

42. εἰ ἔγνως—ὀφθαλμῶν σου] a remarkable saying: Thou art called Jerusalem. Thy Name means, "they shall see Peace" (יִרְאֶה שָׁלוֹם). Cp. Ps. cxxii. 6, 7. And so God intended it should be, for He sent to thee the Prince of Peace to preach Peace. But thou hast closed ταύτῃ, τὰ πρὸς εἰρήνην σου·—νῦν δὲ ἐκρύβη ἀπὸ ὀφθαλμῶν σου· 43 ὅτι ἥξουσιν ἡμέραι ἐπί σε, καὶ περιβαλοῦσιν οἱ ἐχθροί σου χάρακά σοι, καὶ περικυκλώσουσί σε, καὶ συνέξουσί σε πάντοθεν, (237/II) 44 καὶ ἐδαφιοῦσί σε καὶ τὰ τέκνα σου ἐν σοί, καὶ οὐκ ἀφήσουσιν ἐν σοὶ λίθον ἐπὶ λίθῳ· ἀνθ' ὧν οὐκ ἔγνως τὸν καιρὸν τῆς ἐπισκοπῆς σου.

h Matt. 21. 12, 13. Mark 11. 15, 17. Isa. 56. 7.

(238/I) 45 h Καὶ εἰσελθὼν εἰς τὸ ἱερὸν ἤρξατο ἐκβάλλειν τοὺς πωλοῦντας ἐν αὐτῷ καὶ ἀγοράζοντας, 46 λέγων αὐτοῖς, Γέγραπται, Ὁ οἶκός μου οἶκος προσευχῆς ἐστιν· ὑμεῖς δὲ αὐτὸν ἐποιήσατε σπήλαιον λῃστῶν.

i Mark 11. 18.

(239/I) 47 i Καὶ ἦν διδάσκων τὸ καθ' ἡμέραν ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ· οἱ δὲ ἀρχιερεῖς καὶ οἱ γραμματεῖς ἐζήτουν αὐτὸν ἀπολέσαι, καὶ οἱ πρῶτοι τοῦ λαοῦ, 48 καὶ οὐχ εὕρισκον τὸ τί ποιήσωσιν, ὁ λαὸς γὰρ ἅπας ἐξεκρέματο αὐτοῦ ἀκούων.

a Matt. 21. 23—27. Mark 11. 27—33.

(240/II) XX. 1 a Καὶ ἐγένετο ἐν μιᾷ τῶν ἡμερῶν ἐκείνων, διδάσκοντος αὐτοῦ τὸν λαὸν ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ καὶ εὐαγγελιζομένου, ἐπέστησαν οἱ ἀρχιερεῖς καὶ οἱ γραμματεῖς σὺν τοῖς πρεσβυτέροις, 2 καὶ εἶπον πρὸς αὐτὸν λέγοντες, Εἰπὲ ἡμῖν ἐν ποίᾳ ἐξουσίᾳ ταῦτα ποιεῖς, ἢ τίς ἐστιν ὁ δούς σοι τὴν ἐξουσίαν ταύτην; 3 Ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ εἶπε πρὸς αὐτούς, Ἐρωτήσω ὑμᾶς κἀγὼ ἕνα λόγον, καὶ εἴπατέ μοι· 4 Τὸ βάπτισμα Ἰωάννου ἐξ οὐρανοῦ ἦν, ἢ ἐξ ἀνθρώπων; 5 Οἱ δὲ συνελογίσαντο πρὸς ἑαυτοὺς λέγοντες, Ὅτι ἐὰν εἴπωμεν, Ἐξ οὐρανοῦ· ἐρεῖ, Διατί οὖν οὐκ ἐπιστεύσατε αὐτῷ; 6 ἐὰν δὲ εἴπωμεν, Ἐξ ἀνθρώπων, πᾶς ὁ λαὸς καταλιθάσει ἡμᾶς, πεπεισμένος γάρ ἐστιν Ἰωάννην προφήτην εἶναι. 7 Καὶ ἀπεκρίθησαν μὴ εἰδέναι πόθεν. 8 Καὶ ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Οὐδὲ ἐγὼ λέγω ὑμῖν ἐν ποίᾳ ἐξουσίᾳ ταῦτα ποιῶ.

b Matt. 21. 33—46. Mark 12. 1—12.

(241/II) 9 b Ἤρξατο δὲ πρὸς τὸν λαὸν λέγειν τὴν παραβολὴν ταύτην· Ἄνθρωπος ἐφύτευσεν ἀμπελῶνα, καὶ ἐξέδοτο αὐτὸν γεωργοῖς, καὶ ἀπεδήμησε χρόνους ἱκανούς. 10 Καὶ ἐν καιρῷ ἀπέστειλε πρὸς τοὺς γεωργοὺς δοῦλον, ἵνα ἀπὸ τοῦ καρποῦ τοῦ ἀμπελῶνος δῶσιν αὐτῷ. Οἱ δὲ γεωργοὶ δείραντες αὐτὸν ἐξαπέστειλαν κενόν. 11 Καὶ προσέθετο πέμψαι ἕτερον δοῦλον· οἱ δὲ κἀκεῖνον δείραντες καὶ ἀτιμάσαντες ἐξαπέστειλαν κενόν. 12 Καὶ προσέθετο πέμψαι τρίτον· οἱ δὲ καὶ τοῦτον τραυματίσαντες ἐξέβαλον. 13 Εἶπε δὲ ὁ κύριος τοῦ ἀμπελῶνος, Τί ποιήσω; πέμψω τὸν υἱόν μου τὸν ἀγαπητόν, ἴσως τοῦτον ἰδόντες ἐντραπήσονται. 14 Ἰδόντες δὲ αὐτὸν οἱ γεωργοὶ διελογίζοντο πρὸς ἑαυτοὺς λέγοντες, Οὗτός ἐστιν ὁ κληρονόμος, δεῦτε ἀποκτείνωμεν αὐτὸν, ἵνα ἡμῶν γένηται ἡ κληρονομία. 15 Καὶ ἐκβαλόντες αὐτὸν ἔξω τοῦ ἀμπελῶνος ἀπέκτειναν. Τί οὖν ποιήσει αὐτοῖς ὁ κύριος τοῦ ἀμπελῶνος; 16 ἐλεύσεται καὶ ἀπολέσει τοὺς γεωργοὺς τούτους, καὶ δώσει τὸν ἀμπελῶνα ἄλλοις. Ἀκούσαντες δὲ εἶπον, Μὴ γένοιτο. 17 Ὁ δὲ ἐμβλέψας αὐτοῖς εἶπε, Τί οὖν ἐστι τὸ γεγραμμένον τοῦτο, c Ps. 118. 22. Matt. 21. 42.

c Λίθον ὃν ἀπεδοκίμασαν οἱ οἰκοδομοῦντες, οὗτος ἐγενήθη εἰς κεφαλὴν γωνίας; 18 Πᾶς ὁ πεσὼν ἐπ' ἐκεῖνον τὸν λίθον συνθλασθήσεται· ἐφ' ὃν δ' ἂν πέσῃ λικμήσει αὐτόν. (242/I) 19 Καὶ ἐζήτησαν οἱ ἀρχιερεῖς καὶ οἱ γραμματεῖς ἐπιβαλεῖν ἐπ' αὐτὸν τὰς χεῖρας ἐν αὐτῇ τῇ ὥρᾳ, καὶ ἐφοthine ears and thine eyes. Thou hast not known, i. e. considered the things that belong to thy Peace; and now they are hid from thine eyes. — εἰ ἔγνως καὶ σὺ, κ.τ.λ.] If thou hadst known, even thou, for whom so much love has been shown by God, hitherto in vain; if thou hadst known at least in this the day of thy visitation, when thy King and Saviour comes to visit thee in person for the last time (see v. 44), then how blessed would it be! The Aposiopesis is full of pathos. See on xiii. 9, and cp. Isa. xxix. 1—8.

---

43, 44. χάρακα—περικυκλώσουσι—ἐδαφιοῦσι] These were remarkable circumstances: and the prophecy in these respects was signally fulfilled by the Roman general Titus and his army, against his own intention and desire. He wished to be spared the labour and delay of making the χάρακες and περικύκλωσιν. (See Joseph. B. J. vi. 7. 13.) He wished to spare the City and Temple; and it was with great reluctance that he destroyed the city; and the Temple was burned in contravention of his express command.

45. καὶ εἰσελθὼν, κ.τ.λ.] See Matt. xxi. 12, 13. Here is another instance of St. Luke's practice in dispatching a subject; preferring internal connexion to exact order of time. He describes the cleansing of the Temple immediately after the narrative of the triumphal Entry; but it did not take place till the day after. See Mark xi. 12.

On this practice of anticipation, see on Matt. xx. 29.

47. τὸ καθ' ἡμ.] On this use of τό, see on xi. 3.

48. ἐξεκρέματο] "pendebat ab ore." (Virg. Æn. iv. 79. Ovid, Ep. i. 30. See Wetstein.)

CH. XX. 1. καὶ ἐγένετο, κ.τ.λ.] See Matt. xxi. 23—32.

9. ἤρξατο, κ.τ.λ.] See Matt. xxi. 33—46.

11. προσέθετο πέμψαι] "purus putus Hebraismus: προσέθετο יסף (yasaph)," Valck.; 'addidit.' See Glass. Philol. S. p. 411. Vorst. de Hebraism. p. 590; above, xix. 11. Acts xii. 3. Cf. Gen. xviii. 20. Cp. LXX.

16. μὴ γένοιτο] An ejaculation of their consciences applying the parable to themselves.

βήθησαν τὸν λαὸν, ἔγνωσαν γὰρ ὅτι πρὸς αὐτοὺς τὴν παραβολὴν ταύτην εἶπε.

(243/II) 20 [d] Καὶ παρατηρήσαντες ἀπέστειλαν ἐγκαθέτους, ὑποκρινομένους ἑαυτοὺς δικαίους εἶναι, ἵνα ἐπιλάβωνται αὐτοῦ λόγου, εἰς τὸ παραδοῦναι αὐτὸν τῇ ἀρχῇ καὶ τῇ ἐξουσίᾳ τοῦ ἡγεμόνος. 21 Καὶ ἐπηρώτησαν αὐτὸν λέγοντες, Διδάσκαλε, οἴδαμεν ὅτι ὀρθῶς λέγεις καὶ διδάσκεις, καὶ οὐ λαμβάνεις πρόσωπον, ἀλλ' ἐπ' ἀληθείας τὴν ὁδὸν τοῦ Θεοῦ διδάσκεις· 22 ἔξεστιν ἡμῖν Καίσαρι φόρον δοῦναι, ἢ οὔ; 23 Κατανοήσας δὲ αὐτῶν τὴν πανουργίαν εἶπε πρὸς αὐτούς, Τί με πειράζετε; 24 δείξατέ μοι δηνάριον· τίνος ἔχει εἰκόνα καὶ ἐπιγραφήν; Ἀποκριθέντες δὲ εἶπον, Καίσαρος. 25 Ὁ δὲ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Ἀπόδοτε τοίνυν τὰ Καίσαρος Καίσαρι, καὶ τὰ τοῦ Θεοῦ τῷ Θεῷ. 26 Καὶ οὐκ ἴσχυσαν ἐπιλαβέσθαι αὐτοῦ ῥήματος ἐναντίον τοῦ λαοῦ· καὶ θαυμάσαντες ἐπὶ τῇ ἀποκρίσει αὐτοῦ ἐσίγησαν.

d Matt. 22. 15—22. Mark 12. 13—17.

27 [e] Προσελθόντες δέ τινες τῶν Σαδδουκαίων, οἱ ἀντιλέγοντες ἀνάστασιν μὴ εἶναι, ἐπηρώτησαν αὐτὸν 28 λέγοντες, Διδάσκαλε, Μωϋσῆς ἔγραψεν ἡμῖν, ἐάν τινος ἀδελφὸς ἀποθάνῃ ἔχων γυναῖκα, καὶ οὗτος ἄτεκνος ἀποθάνῃ, ἵνα λάβῃ ὁ ἀδελφὸς αὐτοῦ τὴν γυναῖκα, καὶ ἐξαναστήσῃ σπέρμα τῷ ἀδελφῷ αὐτοῦ. 29 Ἑπτὰ οὖν ἀδελφοὶ ἦσαν· καὶ ὁ πρῶτος λαβὼν γυναῖκα ἀπέθανεν ἄτεκνος· 30 καὶ ἔλαβεν ὁ δεύτερος τὴν γυναῖκα, καὶ οὗτος ἀπέθανεν ἄτεκνος· 31 καὶ ὁ τρίτος ἔλαβεν αὐτήν· ὡσαύτως δὲ καὶ οἱ ἑπτά· οὐ κατέλιπον τέκνα, καὶ ἀπέθανον· 32 ὕστερον δὲ πάντων ἀπέθανε καὶ ἡ γυνή. 33 Ἐν τῇ οὖν ἀναστάσει τίνος αὐτῶν γίνεται γυνή; οἱ γὰρ ἑπτὰ ἔσχον αὐτὴν γυναῖκα. 34 Καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Οἱ υἱοὶ τοῦ αἰῶνος τούτου γαμοῦσι καὶ ἐκγαμίσκονται· 35 οἱ δὲ καταξιωθέντες τοῦ αἰῶνος ἐκείνου τυχεῖν, καὶ τῆς ἀναστάσεως τῆς ἐκ νεκρῶν, οὔτε γαμοῦσιν οὔτε ἐκγαμίσκονται· 36 οὔτε γὰρ ἀποθανεῖν ἔτι δύνανται· ἰσάγγελοι γάρ εἰσι, καὶ υἱοί εἰσι τοῦ Θεοῦ, τῆς ἀναστάσεως υἱοὶ ὄντες. 37 Ὅτι δὲ ἐγείρονται οἱ νεκροὶ καὶ Μωϋσῆς ἐμήνυσεν ἐπὶ τῆς Βάτου, ὡς λέγει Κύριον τὸν Θεὸν Ἀβραὰμ καὶ τὸν Θεὸν Ἰσαὰκ καὶ τὸν Θεὸν Ἰακώβ· 38 Θεὸς δὲ οὐκ ἔστι νεκρῶν, ἀλλὰ ζώντων, πάντες γὰρ αὐτῷ ζῶσιν. 39 Ἀποκριθέντες δέ τινες τῶν γραμματέων εἶπον, Διδάσκαλε, καλῶς εἶπας· 40 οὐκέτι δὲ ἐτόλμων ἐπερωτᾶν αὐτὸν οὐδέν.

e Matt. 22. 23—33. Mark 12. 18—27.

(244/II) 41 [f] Εἶπε δὲ πρὸς αὐτούς, Πῶς λέγουσι τὸν Χριστὸν υἱὸν Δαυὶδ εἶναι; (245/II) 42 καὶ αὐτὸς Δαυὶδ λέγει ἐν βίβλῳ Ψαλμῶν, [g] Εἶπεν ὁ Κύριος τῷ Κυρίῳ μου, Κάθου ἐκ δεξιῶν μου, 43 ἕως ἂν θῶ τοὺς ἐχθρούς σου ὑποπόδιον τῶν ποδῶν σου. 44 Δαυὶδ οὖν Κύριον αὐτὸν καλεῖ, καὶ πῶς υἱὸς αὐτοῦ ἐστιν;

f Matt. 22. 42—45. Mark 12. 35—37. g Ps. 110. 1. Acts 2. 34.

(246/II) 45 [h] Ἀκούοντος δὲ παντὸς τοῦ λαοῦ, εἶπε τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ, 46 Προσέχετε ἀπὸ τῶν γραμματέων τῶν θελόντων περιπατεῖν ἐν στολαῖς, καὶ φιλούντων h Mark 12. 38—40. Matt. 23. 6, 14.

---

20. καὶ παρατηρήσαντες, κ.τ.λ.] See Matt. xxii. 15—22.

— ἀπέστειλαν ἐγκαθέτους] "ἐγκάθετοι propriè dicuntur ii, qui subsidunt in loco aliquo, aliisque insidias faciunt. Lex. Cyrill. Brem. ap. Albertium ad Hesych. T. i. p. 1542, b, ἐφεδρος, ἐγκάθετος, ἐπικαθήμενος, κατάσκοπος. Suidas: ἐγκάθετος, κατάσκοπος. In versione Alexandrinâ respondet Hebr. ארב, ut Job xxxi. 9, ἐγκάθετος ἐγενόμην, insidiatus sum. Deinde ἐγκάθετοι omnino dicuntur subdoli, insidiarum faciendarum cupidi, nominatim, subornati ab aliis, ut decipiant, ut explorent, aliquem, et ex iis sermonibus aliquid eliciant, quo ei nocere possint. Suidas et Hesych. ἐγκάθετος, δόλιος. vid. Albertius ad Hesych. T. i. p. 1067, sic adverbium ἐγκαθέτως, ut sit subdolè, legitur ap. Diod. Sic. xvi. 68. Joseph. B. J. vi. 5. 2, πολλοὶ δὲ ἦσαν ἐγκάθετοι παρὰ τῶν τυράννων τότε πρὸς δῆμον προφῆται, προσμίνειν τὴν ἀπὸ τοῦ Θεοῦ βοήθειαν καταγγέλλοντες, ὡς ἧττον αὐτομολεῖν, καὶ τοὺς ἐπάνω δέους καὶ φυλακῆς γενομένους ἐλπὶς παρακρατῴη." (Kuin.)

21. οὐ λαμβάνεις πρόσωπον] Used by LXX for Hebrew שְׂאֵת פָּנִים (seth panim), 'to respect persons' (Levit. xix. 15. Mal. i. 8).

St. Matt. and St. Mark have here οὐ βλέπεις εἰς πρόσωπον.

22. φόρον δοῦναι] St. Matt. and Mark (who never use φόρος, which is used by St. Luke here and xxiii. 2, and by St. Paul, Rom. xiii. 6, 7) have κῆνσον, which is never used by St. Luke.

27. προσελθόντες, κ.τ.λ.] See on Matt. xxii. 23—33.

34. οἱ υἱοί] St. Luke here omits our Lord's words as recorded by St. Matt. (xxii. 29), πλανᾶσθε μὴ εἰδότες τὰς γραφάς, which were specially relevant to Jewish readers; and records the argument derived from the difference of this world (ὁ αἰὼν οὗτος) and the next.

36. οὔτε] Some Editors have substituted οὐδὲ here from A, B, L. But οὔτε seems preferable. It is not much to say they cannot even die; which may be said of evil spirits; but the words 'for neither can they die' supply the reason why they do not marry.

— τῆς ἀναστάσεως υἱοί] See on x. 6, υἱὸς εἰρήνης.

38. αὐτῷ] No one is dead to Him, or in His sight.

41. εἶπε δὲ, κ.τ.λ.] See Matt. xxii. 41—46.

42. ἐν βίβλῳ Ψαλμῶν] Not in St. Matt. xxii. 43 or St. Mark xii. 36; added here as conveying information necessary to Gentile readers. He omits οἱ γραμματεῖς after λέγουσι (v. 41) as less interesting to them.

45. ἀκούοντος, κ.τ.λ.] See Mark xii. 38—40.

ἀσπασμοὺς ἐν ταῖς ἀγοραῖς, καὶ πρωτοκαθεδρίας ἐν ταῖς συναγωγαῖς, καὶ πρωτοκλισίας ἐν τοῖς δείπνοις· (247/VIII) 47 οἱ κατεσθίουσι τὰς οἰκίας τῶν χηρῶν, καὶ προφάσει μακρὰ προσεύχονται· οὗτοι λήψονται περισσότερον κρῖμα.

a Mark 12. 41—44.

XXI. 1 [a] Ἀναβλέψας δὲ εἶδε τοὺς βάλλοντας τὰ δῶρα αὐτῶν εἰς τὸ γαζοφυλάκιον πλουσίους· 2 εἶδε δὲ καί τινα χήραν πενιχρὰν βάλλουσαν ἐκεῖ δύο

b 2 Cor. 8. 12.

λεπτά, 3 καὶ εἶπεν, Ἀληθῶς λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι [b] ἡ χήρα ἡ πτωχὴ αὕτη πλεῖον πάντων ἔβαλεν· 4 ἅπαντες γὰρ οὗτοι ἐκ τοῦ περισσεύοντος αὐτοῖς ἔβαλον εἰς τὰ δῶρα τοῦ Θεοῦ· αὕτη δὲ ἐκ τοῦ ὑστερήματος αὐτῆς ἅπαντα τὸν βίον ὃν εἶχεν ἔβαλε.

c Matt. 24. 1—30. Mark 13. 1—26.

(248/II) 5 [c] Καί τινων λεγόντων περὶ τοῦ ἱεροῦ, ὅτι λίθοις καλοῖς καὶ ἀναθήμασι κεκόσμηται, εἶπε, 6 Ταῦτα ἃ θεωρεῖτε ἐλεύσονται ἡμέραι ἐν αἷς οὐκ ἀφεθήσεται λίθος ἐπὶ λίθῳ, ὃς οὐ καταλυθήσεται. (249/II) 7 Ἐπηρώτησαν δὲ αὐτὸν λέγοντες, Διδάσκαλε, πότε οὖν ταῦτα ἔσται; καὶ τί τὸ σημεῖον ὅταν μέλλῃ ταῦτα γίνεσθαι; 8 Ὁ δὲ εἶπε, Βλέπετε μὴ πλανηθῆτε· πολλοὶ γὰρ ἐλεύσονται ἐπὶ τῷ ὀνόματί μου λέγοντες, Ὅτι ἐγώ εἰμι, καὶ ὁ καιρὸς ἤγγικε· μὴ οὖν πορευθῆτε ὀπίσω αὐτῶν. 9 Ὅταν δὲ ἀκούσητε πολέμους καὶ ἀκαταστασίας, μὴ πτοηθῆτε· δεῖ γὰρ ταῦτα γενέσθαι πρῶτον· ἀλλ' οὐκ εὐθέως τὸ τέλος. 10 Τότε ἔλεγεν αὐτοῖς, Ἐγερθήσεται ἔθνος ἐπὶ ἔθνος, καὶ βασιλεία ἐπὶ βασιλείαν, 11 σεισμοί τε μεγάλοι κατὰ τόπους, καὶ λιμοὶ καὶ λοιμοὶ ἔσονται, φόβητρά τε καὶ σημεῖα ἀπ' οὐρανοῦ μεγάλα ἔσται. (250/I) 12 Πρὸ δὲ τούτων πάντων ἐπιβαλοῦσιν ἐφ' ὑμᾶς τὰς χεῖρας αὐτῶν καὶ διώξουσι, παραδιδόντες εἰς συναγωγὰς καὶ φυλακάς, ἀγομένους ἐπὶ βασιλεῖς καὶ ἡγεμόνας ἕνεκεν τοῦ ὀνόματός μου· 13 ἀποβήσεται δὲ ὑμῖν εἰς μαρτύριον· (251/II) 14 Θέσθε οὖν εἰς τὰς καρδίας ὑμῶν μὴ προμελετᾶν ἀπολογηθῆναι· 15 ἐγὼ γὰρ δώσω ὑμῖν στόμα καὶ σοφίαν, ᾗ οὐ δυνήσονται ἀντειπεῖν οὐδὲ ἀντιστῆναι πάντες οἱ ἀντικείμενοι ὑμῖν. 16 Παραδοθήσεσθε δὲ καὶ ὑπὸ γονέων καὶ ἀδελφῶν, καὶ συγγενῶν καὶ φίλων· καὶ θανατώσουσιν ἐξ ὑμῶν· 17 καὶ ἔσεσθε μισούμενοι ὑπὸ πάντων διὰ τὸ ὄνομά μου· 18 καὶ θρὶξ ἐκ τῆς κεφαλῆς ὑμῶν οὐ μὴ ἀπόληται. 19 Ἐν τῇ ὑπομονῇ ὑμῶν κτήσασθε τὰς ψυχὰς ὑμῶν. (252/X) 20 Ὅταν δὲ ἴδητε κυκλουμένην ὑπὸ στρατοπέδων τὴν Ἰερουσαλὴμ, τότε γνῶτε ὅτι ἤγγικεν ἡ ἐρήμωσις αὐτῆς. (253/II) 21 Τότε οἱ ἐν

XXI. 1. ἀναβλέψας, κ.τ.λ.] See Mark xii. 41—44. St. Mark here uses χαλκόν, the Roman as; and specifies that the sum cast in by the poor widow made a Roman quadrans (42). St. Luke says, δύο λεπτά, and explains to his readers that what they were casting in were δῶρα, offerings to God (vv. 1. 4).

5. καί τινων, κ.τ.λ.] See Matt. xxiv. 1—51; xxi. 1—46. Mark xiii. 1—37.

— καὶ ἀναθήμασι] St. Luke alone mentions that our Lord's attention was invited to the ἀναθήματα, such as golden crowns, shields, censers, phialæ, lychnuchi, and οἰνοχόαι and ἀμφορίσκοι. Such ἀναθήματα had been presented to the Temple of Jerusalem by Herod, and even by heathens, such as Ptolemy Euergetes, and also the Roman emperors. See Joseph. B. J. ii. 17; vi. 5. Ant. xii. 8; xv. 11; xvii. 6; xix. 6. Philo, Legat. ad Cai. ii. p. 592.

These offerings showed the reverence of the Powers of this world for Jerusalem and the Temple; and yet Christ foretold that Jerusalem and the Temple would be destroyed, by some who had adorned it with offerings.

6. ταῦτα ἃ θεωρεῖτε] On the construction, cp. John vi. 39; vii. 38; xv. 2. Matt. vii. 24; xii. 36. Winer, G. G. p. 506.

11. λιμοὶ καὶ λοιμοί] Instances of similar paronomasias in N. T., see Heb. v. 8, ἔμαθεν ἀφ' ὧν ἔπαθεν. Rom. xi. 17, τινὲς τῶν κλάδων ἐξεκλάσθησαν. Matt. xxi. 41, κακοὺς κακῶς ἀπολέσει. Acts viii. 30, γινώσκεις ἃ ἀναγινώσκεις; Philem. 20, ὀναίμην —Ὀνήσιμος. See above, on Matt. xxvi. 2, and cp. Winer, p. 560.

12. ἀγομένους] So the best MSS., for which some have substituted ἀπαγομένους, from B, D, L. But is not this one of the changes which have been recently made in the Sacred Text, without reason? Ἀπάγειν and ἀπάγεσθαι occur nearly twenty times in the New Testament, but never followed by ἐπί.

13. ἀποβήσεται ὑμῖν εἰς μαρτύριον] i.e. as a testimony to them. See Mark xiii. 9, μαρτύριον αὐτοῖς, a testimony, by which some of them will be convinced and converted, as Sergius Paulus, the governor of Paphos, and Dionysius the Areopagite. See Acts xiii. 7—13; xvii. 34.

14. θέσθε] On the use of θέσθαι in this sense, see Luke i. 66; ix. 44. Acts v. 4; xix. 21. Here, again, a change has been recently made in some Editions, which alter θέσθε into θέτε, against the authority of almost all the MSS. and against grammatical propriety.

The reader will not expect that all these alterations should be noticed; some few specimens are necessary, and they may suffice.

15. ἐγὼ δώσω] In Mark xiii. 11, this is said to be the work of the Holy Spirit, because He proceeds from the Son, and is sent by Him.

16. καί] even by them, not only by strangers.

19. ἐν τῇ ὑπομονῇ] by your patience save your souls, gain your lives; while others, by want of faith, are destroying theirs. See xvii. 33. Matt. x. 39; xvi. 25.

— κτήσασθε] a contrast to ἀπόληται in the preceding verse. You may gain your life where you seem most likely to lose it. See Matt. x. 39. Luke ix. 24.

20. ὅταν ἴδητε κυκλουμένην] Our Lord gave two signs; one described by St. Matt. xxiv. 15, and Mark xiii. 14, viz. the Abomination of Desolation, spoken of by Daniel the prophet, set up in the city of Jerusalem, in the "Holy Place" of the Temple. The other sign here mentioned by St. Luke, was the blockade of the City from without by the hostile armies of Rome.

The former sign was intimately connected with the latter. For it was the profanation of the Temple by the Jewish army within the City, and by the sins of the Priests and the people in the City, which had rejected and crucified Christ, that gave power to the Roman army without; and brought it to besiege and destroy the City for the execution of God's justice and wrath for its sins. See note on Matt. xxi. 20.

21. οἱ ἐν τῇ Ἰουδαίᾳ] not in Jerusalem only; and, indeed, few were then able to escape from the City (see Josephus), but in Judæa also. In consequence of this warning, the Christians escaped to Pella, in Perœa. See on Matt. xxiv. 16.

τῇ Ἰουδαίᾳ φευγέτωσαν εἰς τὰ ὄρη, καὶ οἱ ἐν μέσῳ αὐτῆς ἐκχωρείτωσαν, καὶ οἱ ἐν ταῖς χώραις μὴ εἰσερχέσθωσαν εἰς αὐτήν· 22 ὅτι ἡμέραι ἐκδικήσεως αὗταί εἰσι, τοῦ πλησθῆναι πάντα τὰ γεγραμμένα. (254/II) 23 Οὐαὶ δὲ ταῖς ἐν γαστρὶ ἐχούσαις καὶ ταῖς θηλαζούσαις ἐν ἐκείναις ταῖς ἡμέραις· (255/II) ἔσται γὰρ ἀνάγκη μεγάλη ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς, καὶ ὀργὴ τῷ λαῷ τούτῳ. (256/II) 24 Καὶ πεσοῦνται στόματι μαχαίρας, καὶ αἰχμαλωτισθήσονται εἰς πάντα τὰ ἔθνη· καὶ Ἰερουσαλὴμ ἔσται πατουμένη ὑπὸ ἐθνῶν, ἄχρι πληρωθῶσι καιροὶ ἐθνῶν. (257/II) 25 Καὶ ἔσται σημεῖα ἐν ἡλίῳ καὶ σελήνῃ καὶ ἄστροις, καὶ ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς συνοχὴ ἐθνῶν ἐν ἀπορίᾳ, ἠχούσης θαλάσσης καὶ σάλου· 26 ἀποψυχόντων ἀνθρώπων ἀπὸ φόβου καὶ προσδοκίας τῶν ἐπερχομένων τῇ οἰκουμένῃ· αἱ γὰρ δυνάμεις τῶν οὐρανῶν σαλευθήσονται. (258/II) 27 Καὶ τότε ὄψονται τὸν Υἱὸν τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἐρχόμενον ἐν νεφέλῃ μετὰ δυνάμεως καὶ δόξης πολλῆς.

28 Ἀρχομένων δὲ τούτων γίνεσθαι ἀνακύψατε, καὶ ἐπάρατε τὰς κεφαλὰς ὑμῶν, διότι ἐγγίζει ἡ ἀπολύτρωσις ὑμῶν.

29 [d] Καὶ εἶπε παραβολὴν αὐτοῖς· Ἴδετε τὴν συκῆν καὶ πάντα τὰ δένδρα, 30 ὅταν προβάλωσιν ἤδη, βλέποντες ἀφ' ἑαυτῶν γινώσκετε ὅτι ἤδη ἐγγὺς τὸ θέρος ἐστίν· 31 οὕτω καὶ ὑμεῖς ὅταν ἴδητε ταῦτα γινόμενα, γινώσκετε ὅτι ἐγγύς ἐστιν ἡ βασιλεία τοῦ Θεοῦ. 32 Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι οὐ μὴ παρέλθῃ ἡ γενεὰ αὕτη, ἕως ἂν πάντα γένηται· 33 ὁ οὐρανὸς καὶ ἡ γῆ παρελεύσονται, οἱ δὲ λόγοι μου οὐ μὴ παρέλθωσι. (259/X) 34 Προσέχετε δὲ ἑαυτοῖς, μή ποτε βαρηθῶσιν ὑμῶν αἱ καρδίαι ἐν κραιπάλῃ καὶ μέθῃ καὶ μερίμναις βιωτικαῖς, καὶ αἰφνίδιος ἐφ' ὑμᾶς ἐπιστῇ ἡ ἡμέρα ἐκείνη· 35 ὡς παγὶς γὰρ ἐπελεύσεται ἐπὶ πάντας τοὺς καθημένους ἐπὶ πρόσωπον πάσης τῆς γῆς. 36 Ἀγρυπνεῖτε οὖν ἐν παντὶ καιρῷ, d Matt. 24. 32—35. Mark 13. 28—31.

— μὴ εἰσερχέσθωσαν] It would have been well for the Jews if they had listened to this warning. But instead of doing so, they were deluded by a fanatical spirit, excited by their False Prophets, and by vain hopes of the Messiah's coming; and they imagined that the City and Temple were impregnable. Instead of quitting Judæa, they flocked to the city of Jerusalem for the Passover, and so were caught by the Romans as in a net; and the City became a prey to Famine, Pestilence, and Civil War; and an immense multitude—far beyond the ordinary population of the City—was destroyed.

22. πάντα τὰ γεγραμμένα] especially in Daniel ix. 26, 27. See on Matt. xxiv. 15.

23. ἀνάγκη] Hebr. צָרָה (tsarah), 'angustia:' rendered by ἀνάγκη in the LXX, Job v. 19, and passim.

24. στόματι μαχαίρας] פִּי חָרֶב (pi chereb), Gen. xxxiv. 26. Deut. xiii. 15. Heb. xi. 34.

— αἰχμαλωτισθήσονται] The first Passover, or Type, was killed in obedience to God's command, and in forty years the promised land was entered. Christ, the last Passover, or Antitype, the true Psover, was slain in rebellion against God; and in forty years the promised land was forfeited, and trodden under foot by the Gentiles. Cp. Burgon, p. 531.

— Ἰερουσαλὴμ ἔσται πατουμένη] Jerusalem shall be trodden by, and remain subject to them. So καταπατεῖν, 1 Macc. iii. 52. Gentile Nations shall tread it down, and trample it under foot, until the times (καιροὶ, seasons) of the Gentiles are fulfilled; i. e. "till the fulness of the Gentiles be come in." (Rom. xi. 25.)

καιροὶ are the seasons for bringing forth fruit to perfection: see Matt. xiii. 30. Mark xi. 13; xii. 2. Luke xx. 10. Acts xiv. 17. Here they are the spiritual spring, summer, and autumn in which the ἔθνη are ripening to maturity under the showers of grace, and in the sunshine of the Gospel. And when that harvest is gathered, then the blindness which has fallen on Israel will be removed. Rom. xi. 15. 25. 2 Cor. iii. 14—16. Zech. iii. 9; viii. 8. Isa. xxxii. 13—15; lxvi. 8.

Others (e. g. Meyer) suppose καιροὶ to be seasons of judgment and vengeance upon the Gentiles. And doubtless the season for bearing fruit being a season of trial, is to many a season of judgment, as well as of mercy to others.

25. σημεῖα] On these verses, see Greg. Moral. in Evang. i. 1, p. 436. They have a double sense:

1. literal; as applied to Jerusalem.

2. spiritual; as applied to Christendom, or the Spiritual Zion.

The Sun of righteousness, Christ, will show signs of His power; the Moon, i. e. the Christian Church, illumined with His beams, will show signs of His coming. And some Stars, i. e. Luminaries of the Church, will fall from their place. St. Ambrose says, "Plurimis à religione deficientibus, clara fides obscurabitur nube perfidiæ; quia mihi Sol Ille cœlestis meâ fide vel minuitur vel augetur. Et quemadmodùm menstruis cursibus Luna vel terræ oppositu, cùm fuerit à regione Solis, vanescit, sic et sancta Ecclesia, cùm lumini cœlesti vitia carnis obsistunt, fulgores divini luminis de Christi radiis non potest mutuari." See on Matt. xxiv. 29.

— συνοχὴ] 'anxietas,' 'angor.' See on Matt. xxiv. 29.

— ἀπορίᾳ] "desperatione ob consilii inopiam utpote angustiis implicitorum, ex quibus explicare se nequeant."

— ἠχούσης] Some MSS., particularly A, B, L, M, X, have ἤχους, which has been received in some recent Editions. If it is the true reading, the genitive ἤχους follows σημεῖα. But that reading seems to have proceeded from ἠχούσης altered into ἤχους ὡς—. And ἤχου, not ἤχους, seems to be the form used in N. T. See Heb. xii. 19.

— θαλάσσης] The γῆ, or Earth, in this verse, appears to represent men and nations in their worldly state (τὰς φυλὰς τῆς γῆς, Matt. xxiv. 30), engrossed by low and earthly thoughts (see below, v. 35). The θάλασσα, or Sea, represents them as tossed about on the tumultuous billows of internal and external troubles. And in both respects, whether as to γῆ or θάλασσα, the ἔθνη of this world are distinguished from the children of the kingdom of heaven, i. e. of the Christian Church, which will be assailed by storms (v. 25), but is raised above earthly cares, and cannot be shaken by earthly vicissitudes.

26. τῇ οἰκουμένῃ] the world, as inhabited; i. e. cities and nations.

28. ἀνακύψατε] while the men of this world (John viii. 8) are looking downwards (κατακύπτοντες εἰς τὴν γῆν), oppressed with earthly cares and lusts (v. 34), and poring on earthly treasures, and cast down with despair (see v. 26), do you look upwards with faith, hope, and joy; for, when their destruction is at hand, then your redemption draweth nigh: "Levare capita, est mentes ad patriam cœlestem erigere." (Greg.)

29. πάντα τὰ δένδρα] Countries which have no fig trees, have their parables (Matt. xxiv. 32) for watchful hearts.

30. προβάλωσιν] Cf. ὅταν παραδῷ, Mark iv. 29, and ἐπιβαλών, Mark xiv. 72.

32. ἡ γενεὰ αὕτη] the Israel of God. See Matt. xxiv. 34; and cp. Euseb. here (Mai, p. 301), who compares Ps. xxii. 31; cii. 18.

34. βαρηθῶσιν] βαρυνθῶσιν, Elz. But βαρηθῶσιν is in A, B, C, G, K, L, S, V. It is remarkable that in the N. T. βαροῦμαι occurs often (Matt. xxvi. 45. Mark xiv. 40. Luke ix. 32. 2 Cor. i. 8; v. 4. 1 Tim. v. 16), but βαρύνομαι never; whereas in the LXX βαρύνομαι is often, but βαροῦμαι, I believe, never found.

35. ὡς παγίς] will come suddenly on them, as a snare or trap on birds or beasts enjoying repose (Eccles. ix. 12).

— τοὺς καθημένους ἐπὶ π. π. τ. γ.] Those who are of the earth, earthy (1 Cor. xv. 47), and have not set their affections on things above (Col. iii. 2), and have not their conversation in heaven (Phil. iii. 20).

See above on xviii. 8. The expression καθῆσθαι ἐπὶ πρόσωπον τῆς γῆς is a double Hebraism. καθῆσθαι is the Hebrew יָשַׁב (yashab), to sit, to take their ease, rest, to dwell (Isa. ix. 2. Matt. iv. 16). And ἐπὶ πρόσωπον is the Hebr. עַל־פְּנֵי כָל־הָאָרֶץ (al-pney col-haarets), 2 Sam. xviii. 8. See Vorst. p. 170, and p. 342. And it denotes that δεόμενοι ἵνα καταξιωθῆτε ἐκφυγεῖν ταῦτα πάντα τὰ μέλλοντα γίνεσθαι, καὶ σταθῆναι ἔμπροσθεν τοῦ Υἱοῦ τοῦ ἀνθρώπου.

37 Ἦν δὲ τὰς ἡμέρας ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ διδάσκων· τὰς δὲ νύκτας ἐξερχόμενος ηὐλίζετο εἰς τὸ ὄρος τὸ καλούμενον Ἐλαιών. 38 Καὶ πᾶς ὁ λαὸς ὤρθριζε πρὸς αὐτὸν ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ ἀκούειν αὐτοῦ.

a Matt. 26. 2, 4. Mark 14. 1.

XXII. (260/1) 1 a Ἤγγιζε δὲ ἡ ἑορτὴ τῶν ἀζύμων, ἡ λεγομένη πάσχα· (261/1) 2 καὶ ἐζήτουν οἱ ἀρχιερεῖς καὶ οἱ γραμματεῖς τὸ πῶς ἀνέλωσιν αὐτόν· (262/IX) ἐφοβοῦντο γὰρ τὸν λαόν.

b Matt. 26. 14—16. Mark 14. 10, 11.

3 b Εἰσῆλθε δὲ ὁ Σατανᾶς εἰς Ἰούδαν τὸν ἐπικαλούμενον Ἰσκαριώτην, ὄντα ἐκ τοῦ ἀριθμοῦ τῶν δώδεκα· (263/II) 4 καὶ ἀπελθὼν συνελάλησε τοῖς ἀρχιερεῦσι καὶ τοῖς στρατηγοῖς τὸ πῶς αὐτὸν παραδῷ αὐτοῖς· 5 καὶ ἐχάρησαν, καὶ συνέθεντο αὐτῷ ἀργύριον δοῦναι· 6 καὶ ἐξωμολόγησε, καὶ ἐζήτει εὐκαιρίαν τοῦ παραδοῦναι αὐτὸν αὐτοῖς ἄτερ ὄχλου.

c Matt. 26. 17—19. Mark 14. 12—15.

7 c Ἦλθε δὲ ἡ ἡμέρα τῶν ἀζύμων, ἐν ᾗ ἔδει θύεσθαι τὸ πάσχα· 8 καὶ ἀπέστειλε Πέτρον καὶ Ἰωάννην εἰπών, Πορευθέντες ἑτοιμάσατε ἡμῖν τὸ πάσχα ἵνα φάγωμεν. 9 Οἱ δὲ εἶπον αὐτῷ, Ποῦ θέλεις ἑτοιμάσωμεν; 10 Ὁ δὲ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Ἰδοὺ, εἰσελθόντων ὑμῶν εἰς τὴν πόλιν, συναντήσει ὑμῖν ἄνθρωπος κερά-the persons so described have made earth their home, and say, "here is our rest." Cp. Heb. xiii. 14. Mic. ii. 10. Rev. xiii. 14.

---

37. ηὐλίζετο εἰς τὸ ὄρος] Resorted for a lodging to Olivet, i.e. to Bethany (Matt. xxi. 17. Mark xi. 11). See below, xxiv. 50.

On the use of εἰς, see Matt. ii. 23, and on Mark i. 39.

— Ἐλαιών] Elz. Ἐλαιῶν, gen. plur. But Ἐλαιῶν in the nominative singular seems to be the true reading. (Cp. xix. 29.) The Evangelists appear to prefix the article τῶν to Ἐλαιῶν after τὸ ὄρος. See Matt. xxi. 1; xxiv. 3; xxvi. 30. Mark xi. 1; xiii. 3; xiv. 26. Luke xix. 37; xxii. 39. John viii. 1 (if genuine). St. Luke (and he alone) uses the form Ἐλαιών, Olivet (Acts i. 12), probably to be restored here and xix. 29. On this nominative in proper names, see Lobeck, Phryn. p. 517, and Meyer on Luke xix. 29. Winer, p. 164.

38. ὤρθριζε] The word used by the LXX for Hebr. מַשְׁכִּים (hishkiym), from unused root שָׁכַם (shakam), 'to rise early in the morning.' Gen. xix. 2. 27; xx. 8; and passim. The more Attic form was ὀρθρεύω. See Thom. Mag. in v., who says ὀρθρεύω—οὐκ ὀρθρίζω.

CH. XXII. 1. ἤγγιζε, κ.τ.λ.] See Matt. xxvi. 1—5. Mark xiv. 1, 2. 10, 11.

Our Lord ate the Passover with His disciples on the Evening of the Fourteenth of Nisan, being the Fifth day of the week (Thursday).

But the Rulers of the Jews, who conspired against Him, would not enter (on the next day) into the hall of Pilate, lest they should be defiled, but they might eat the Passover (John xviii. 28). For, says Eusebius[1] (as cited in Cat. Aur. p. 288, ed. Venet. 1775), "Ex quo Veritati insidiati sunt, verbum Veritatis à se expulerunt, non primo die azymorum, quo die debebat immolari Pascha, manducantes solitum sibi Pascha; erant enim erga aliud attenti (i.e. on killing Christ), sed die sequenti post illum, quæ erat azymorum secunda. Dominus verò primâ die azymorum, hoc est quintâ feriâ, Pascha cum discipulis peregit."

See note below on v. 7; and on John xviii. 28, and on Matt. xxvi. 17.

2. τό] See v. 4 and on Mark ix. 23.

3. εἰσῆλθε ὁ Σατανᾶς] The Article ὁ here is not found in some MSS., and is omitted by many recent Editors. Perhaps, however, the Article, which is found in the majority of MSS., may have considerable force here, as referring back the reader's mind to the earlier operations of the Satan, or Adversary.

The circumstance of this entrance of the Enemy is not mentioned by St. Matt. or St. Mark here. St. Luke, writing for the Gentiles, had traced our Lord's genealogy to Adam (Luke iii. 23—38), and had shown that He is the promised Seed of the Woman, between which and the Seed of the Serpent God had put enmity (whence the name Satan, שָׂטָן, 'enemy,' or 'adversary'), and who would bruise the Serpent's head (Gen. iii. 15). He is careful to show how that primeval prophecy or protevangelium was fulfilled by Christ.

He does this—first in the history of the temptation (chap. iv.), then he records our Lord's words, saying (x. 18), "I saw Satan—the Enemy, τὸν Σατανᾶν—as lightning fall from heaven," and ascribing the diseases of the body which He healed to the agency of Satan (xiii. 16), and telling Peter (xxii. 31), that Satan desired to have them to sift them as wheat. And now the Holy Spirit reveals Satan—the ancient Enemy of Man—that Old Serpent—as the prime instigator of those who brought about the crucifixion, by which he bruised the heel of the woman's seed, and through which his own head was bruised by the woman's seed.

The word Σατανᾶς occurs five times in St. Luke, but never without the article, except in the vocative; and nine times in St. Paul's Epistles, but never without the article; eight times in the Apocalypse, and only once without the article (xx. 2, where its omission is easily accounted for).

It would seem as if the Sacred Writers were studious to mark the personal identity of the Enemy from the beginning to the end.

See further on xxii. 43 concerning St. Luke's Evangelical revelations concerning Good Angels.

4. στρατηγοῖς] "templi præfectis; cum his agebat Judas, et hi speciatim commemorantur, quoniam horum erat, apparitorum ope, prehendere et in carcerem conjicere Judæos, qui in legem peccarant, vid. ad Matt. xxvi. 47. infra v. 52. Act. v. 26. Dicebantur autem στρατηγοὶ τοῦ ἱεροῦ, et simpliciter στρατηγοί, duces ac præfecti sacerdotum et Levitarum, qui in templo excubias agebant, vid. 2 Par. xxxv. 8. Supremus excubiarum præfectus, qui, ut reliqui στρατηγοί, ex sacerdotum numero erat, κατ' ἐξοχὴν dicebatur ὁ στρατηγὸς Act. v. 26, coll. v. 24. ὁ στρατηγὸς τοῦ ἱεροῦ Act. iv. 1, v. 24. Idem cum summo pontifice conjungitur à Josepho xx. 6. 2, et ante reliquos synedrii assessores commemoratur Act. v. 24, coll. xxi. 27." (Kuin.) Cp. Winer, ii. p. 590.

6. ἄτερ ὄχλου] 'sine strepitu' (Acts xxiv. 18). See Matt. xxvi. 5. Mark xiv. 2.

7. ἐν ᾗ ἔδει θύεσθαι] Perhaps there is something of emphasis in the word ἔδει, as much as to say that our Lord sacrificed and ate the Paschal Lamb on the day appointed by the divine Law, but the Priests and Pharisees, who professed great zeal for the law, did not.—"ἔδει dicitur de eo quod fieri debet nec tamen fit;" and cp. Kuinoel's note here; and see Matt. xviii. 33. Acts xxvii. 31. Kuinoel and others affirm that the Law had been superseded by Tradition, and that the sacrifice and eating of the Passover was postponed by some of the Pharisees to the following day. But it is more probable, as St. Chrysostom, Eusebius, and others of the Fathers suppose, that the Chief Priests and Scribes were so busy in plotting the sacrifice of the true Paschal Lamb, that they omitted to sacrifice and eat the legal Passover at the proper time. See Matt. xxvi. 1—5, and cp. on John xviii. 28; and note above, xxii. 1, whence it appears that they took counsel together before the Passover to kill Jesus by subtlety without any public disturbance, and not at the Passover. They made their compact with Judas and dispatched their officers and servants with him to Gethsemane to take Jesus after He had eaten the Passover. Judas and the band (σπεῖρα) came by night from the Chief Priests and Scribes and Elders (Matt. xxvi. 47. Mark xiv. 43. John xviii. 2), and even some of the Chief Priests and Elders accompanied Judas to Gethsemane (Luke xxii. 52), and the others seem to have waited with impatience for our Lord's arrest, and to have been ready to meet together immediately (Luke xxii. 66) to carry on His examination and to expedite His execution. And there does not appear to have been any available interval in which they could have separated and returned to their several households in order to eat the Passover, and then have come back to prosecute the trial and condemnation of their Divine Prisoner.

8. καὶ ἀπέστειλε, κ.τ.λ.] See Matt. xxvi. 17—19. Mark xiv. 12—16.

10. κεράμιον ὕδατος] See Mark xiv. 13, and St. Cyril here, ἔνθα γὰρ ἂν εἰσέλθῃ τὸ ὕδωρ τοῦ ἁγίου βαπτίσματος ἐκεῖ κατελύσει Χριστός.

---

[1] The original of this scholium of Eusebius, from his work de Paschate, has been published by Card. Mai, Coll. Vat. iv. pp. 215, 216.

μιον ὕδατος βαστάζων· ἀκολουθήσατε αὐτῷ εἰς τὴν οἰκίαν οὗ εἰσπορεύεται· 11 καὶ ἐρεῖτε τῷ οἰκοδεσπότῃ τῆς οἰκίας, Λέγει σοι ὁ διδάσκαλος, Ποῦ ἐστι τὸ κατάλυμα, ὅπου τὸ πάσχα μετὰ τῶν μαθητῶν μου φάγω; 12 κἀκεῖνος ὑμῖν δείξει ἀνάγαιον μέγα ἐστρωμένον, ἐκεῖ ἑτοιμάσατε. 13 Ἀπελθόντες δὲ εὗρον καθὼς εἴρηκεν αὐτοῖς, καὶ ἡτοίμασαν τὸ πάσχα.

14 Καὶ ὅτε ἐγένετο ἡ ὥρα ἀνέπεσε, καὶ οἱ δώδεκα ἀπόστολοι σὺν αὐτῷ· (264/X) 15 καὶ εἶπε πρὸς αὐτούς, Ἐπιθυμίᾳ ἐπεθύμησα τοῦτο τὸ πάσχα φαγεῖν μεθ' ὑμῶν πρὸ τοῦ με παθεῖν· 16 λέγω γὰρ ὑμῖν, ὅτι οὐκέτι οὐ μὴ φάγω ἐξ αὐτοῦ, ἕως ὅτου πληρωθῇ ἐν τῇ βασιλείᾳ τοῦ Θεοῦ. (265/II) 17 Καὶ δεξάμενος ποτήριον, εὐχαριστήσας εἶπε, Λάβετε τοῦτο καὶ διαμερίσατε ἑαυτοῖς· 18 [d] λέγω γὰρ ὑμῖν, ὅτι οὐ μὴ πίω ἀπὸ τοῦ γεννήματος τῆς ἀμπέλου, ἕως ὅτου ἡ βασιλεία τοῦ Θεοῦ ἔλθῃ. (266/I) 19 Καὶ λαβὼν ἄρτον εὐχαριστήσας ἔκλασε καὶ ἔδωκεν αὐτοῖς λέγων, Τοῦτό ἐστι τὸ σῶμά μου, τὸ ὑπὲρ ὑμῶν διδόμενον· τοῦτο ποιεῖτε εἰς τὴν ἐμὴν ἀνάμνησιν. (267/II) 20 Ὡσαύτως καὶ τὸ ποτήριον μετὰ τὸ δειπνῆσαι λέγων, Τοῦτο τὸ ποτήριον ἡ καινὴ διαθήκη ἐν τῷ αἵματί μου, τὸ ὑπὲρ ὑμῶν ἐκχυνόμενον. (268/II) 21 Πλὴν ἰδοὺ, ἡ χεὶρ τοῦ παραδιδόντος με μετ' ἐμοῦ ἐπὶ τῆς τραπέζης. 22 Καὶ ὁ μὲν Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου πορεύεται κατὰ τὸ ὡρισμένον· πλὴν οὐαὶ τῷ ἀνθρώπῳ ἐκείνῳ δι' οὗ παραδίδοται. (269/I) 23 Καὶ αὐτοὶ ἤρξαντο συζητεῖν πρὸς ἑαυτοὺς, τὸ τίς ἄρα εἴη ἐξ αὐτῶν ὁ τοῦτο μέλλων πράσσειν. (270/II) 24 Ἐγένετο δὲ καὶ φιλονεικία ἐν αὐτοῖς, τὸ τίς αὐτῶν δοκεῖ εἶναι μείζων. 25 Ὁ δὲ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, [e] Οἱ βασιλεῖς τῶν ἐθνῶν κυριεύουσιν αὐτῶν, καὶ οἱ ἐξουσιάζοντες αὐτῶν εὐεργέται καλοῦνται· 26 ὑμεῖς δὲ οὐχ οὕτως· ἀλλ' ὁ μείζων ἐν ὑμῖν γενέσθω ὡς ὁ νεώτερος, καὶ ὁ ἡγούμενος ὡς ὁ διακονῶν. (271/X) 27 Τίς γὰρ μείζων, ὁ ἀνακείμενος ἢ ὁ διακονῶν; οὐχὶ ὁ ἀνακείμενος; ἐγὼ δέ εἰμι ἐν μέσῳ ὑμῶν ὡς ὁ διακονῶν. 28 Ὑμεῖς δέ ἐστε οἱ διαμεμενηκότες μετ' ἐμοῦ ἐν τοῖς πειρασμοῖς μου· 29 [f] κἀγὼ διατίθεμαι ὑμῖν καθὼς διέθετό μοι ὁ Πατήρ μου βασιλείαν, (272/V) 30 ἵνα ἐσθίητε καὶ πίνητε ἐπὶ τῆς τραπέζης μου ἐν τῇ βασιλείᾳ μου, καὶ καθίσεσθε ἐπὶ θρόνων κρίνοντες τὰς δώδεκα φυλὰς τοῦ Ἰσραήλ. (273/X) 31 Εἶπε δὲ ὁ Κύριος, Σίμων, Σίμων, ἰδοὺ ὁ Σατανᾶς ἐξῃτήσατο ὑμᾶς τοῦ σινιάσαι ὡς τὸν σῖτον· (274/IX) 32 ἐγὼ δὲ ἐδεήθην περὶ σοῦ, ἵνα μὴ ἐκλείπῃ ἡ πίστις σου· καὶ σύ ποτε d Matt. 26. 22—29. Mark 14. 19—25. 1 Cor. 11. 23—26.

e Matt. 20. 25—27. Mark 10. 42—44.

f Matt. 19. 28. Heb. 2. 18. & 4. 10.

---

12. ἀνάγαιον] So A, B, E, H, K, L, P, S, and other MSS.—Elz. ἀνώγεον.

15. ἐπιθυμίᾳ ἐπεθύμησα] A Hebraism. "Exprimit Evangelista ipsius verba Salvatoris." Vorst. de Hebr., p. 624, who compares Matt. xiii. 14, ἀκοῇ ἀκούσετε. John iii. 29, χαρᾷ χαίρει. Acts iv. 17; v. 28; xxiii. 14, and see LXX in Gen. xxxi. 30.

All these Hebraisms appear to be preserved by the Sacred Writers, for the sake of reminding the reader that he has before him the very words used by the speakers on the occasions described.

16. οὐ μὴ φάγω] See on Matt. xxvi. 29.

Besides the larger meaning there assigned to the words, perhaps they had reference also to what our Lord was now about to do, viz. to give a spiritual consummation (πλήρωσις) to the Paschal rites of eating and drinking, by changing them into a Sacrament of the New Covenant in the Gospel and the Church (ἐν τῇ βασιλείᾳ τοῦ Θεοῦ), in the Holy Communion of His Body and Blood. Henceforth the Levitical sacrifice was to cease, being transfigured into an Evangelical Sacrament.

Having said these words, He proceeded to explain their meaning by instituting the Christian Passover,—the Holy Eucharist.

18. γεννήματος] On this use of γέννημα (not γένημα, as edited by some), see Phrynich., p. 286, Lobeck, and Vorst. de Hebr., p. 464.

19. τοῦτό ἐστι] See Matt. xxvi. 26.

— τὸ ὑπὲρ ὑμῶν διδόμενον] to which St. Paul adds κλώμενον, 1 Cor. xi. 24. These words are not in St. Matthew and St. Mark; they serve to give greater clearness to what preceded. The bread (ἄρτος, loaf, 1 Cor. x. 17) blessed by Christ, and broken in His hand before He suffered (v. 19), and distributed by Him to His disciples, was a figure of His death, voluntarily accomplished by his own act, and a showing forth of it, and a conveyance of its blessings as already purchased and secured, as the bread now blessed in His name, and broken after His suffering, is a commemorative representation and showing of His death and the communion of His body and blood, to all penitent and faithful receivers.

— τοῦτο ποιεῖτε] See 1 Cor. xi. 24, 25. This commemorative sentence is not recited by St. Matthew and St. Mark; and St. John adds nothing to the history of the institution.

— εἰς τὴν ἐ. ἀνάμνησιν] More than 'in remembrance of Me.' Ἀνάμνησις is not simply remembrance, which may be involuntary,—but a deliberate inward act (recordatio), showing itself by external signs. See on Mark xiv. 72, and cp. 1 Cor. xi. 25, 26. Heb. x. 3.

"Do this for My Commemoration." This was a prospective precept for the future; for when He Himself was present with them, there was no occasion for ἀνάμνησις.

20. ὡσαύτως] i. e. with thanksgiving and benediction.

— τοῦτο τὸ ποτήριον] See on Matt. xxvi. 28.

21. πλήν] although I am now about to shed My blood for you and for all men.

22. κατὰ τὸ ὡρισμένον] Cp. on xvii. 1, and on Acts ii. 23, τῇ ὡρισμένῃ βουλῇ.

— παραδίδοται] Ps. xli. 9.

24. φιλονεικία κ.τ.λ.] See Matt. xx. 25. Mark x. 42.

— δοκεῖ] in common estimation. See Gal. ii. 6. (Beng. Meyer.)

25. εὐεργέται] Cp. 2 Macc. iv. 2, where Onias is so entitled. So Ptolemy Euergetes; and cp. Paradise Regained, iii. 82, "Then swell with pride, and must be titled Gods, Great benefactors of mankind," &c.

29. διατίθεμαι] 'I covenant to you.' See Ps. lxxxi. 4, where LXX has διεθέμην διαθήκην. (Rosenm.) — βασιλείαν] See xii. 32. 2 Tim. ii. 12.

30. θρόνων] See Matt. xix. 28.

31. ἐξῃτήσατο] Therefore Satan cannot act except by God's permission. Cp. the case of Job, i. 12; ii. 5.

— ὑμᾶς] not only σέ; and especially Judas, whom He does not expose publicly, but whom He had warned secretly, vv. 21, 22. Perhaps Peter thence inferred that the Apostles would suppose that he himself was the person meant by our Lord when He said that "one of you shall betray me" (Matt. xxvi. 21. Mark xiv. 18. Luke xxii. 21. John xiii. 21), and therefore he was more eager to obtain an explicit declaration from Christ on this subject (John xiii. 24), and thought it requisite to be more forward in his own professions of fidelity (33, 34).

— σινιάσαι] κοσκινεῦσαι. (Hesych.)

32. ἐγὼ δὲ ἐδεήθην περὶ σοῦ] Satan asked for permission to sift ἐπιστρέψας στήριξον τοὺς ἀδελφούς σου. (275 I) 33 Ὁ δὲ εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Κύριε, μετὰ σοῦ ἕτοιμός εἰμι καὶ εἰς φυλακὴν καὶ εἰς θάνατον πορεύεσθαι. 34 Ὁ δὲ εἶπε, Λέγω σοι, Πέτρε, οὐ μὴ φωνήσει σήμερον ἀλέκτωρ, πρὶν ἢ τρὶς ἀπαρνήσῃ μὴ εἰδέναι με. (276 X) 35 Καὶ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Ὅτε ἀπέστειλα ὑμᾶς ἄτερ βαλλαντίου καὶ πήρας καὶ ὑποδημάτων, μή τινος ὑστερήσατε; οἱ δὲ εἶπον, Οὐδενός· 36 Εἶπεν οὖν αὐτοῖς, Ἀλλὰ νῦν ὁ ἔχων βαλλάντιον ἀράτω, ὁμοίως καὶ πήραν, καὶ ὁ μὴ ἔχων, πωλησάτω τὸ ἱμάτιον αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἀγορασάτω μάχαιραν. (277 VIII) 37 Λέγω γὰρ f Isa. 53. 2. ὑμῖν, ὅτι ἔτι τοῦτο τὸ γεγραμμένον δεῖ τελεσθῆναι ἐν ἐμοὶ τό, f Καὶ μετὰ ἀνόμων ἐλογίσθη· καὶ γὰρ τὰ περὶ ἐμοῦ τέλος ἔχει. (278 X) 38 Οἱ δὲ εἶπον, Κύριε, ἰδοὺ μάχαιραι ὧδε δύο· ὁ δὲ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Ἱκανόν ἐστι.

(279 I) 39 Καὶ ἐξελθὼν ἐπορεύθη κατὰ τὸ ἔθος εἰς τὸ ὄρος τῶν Ἐλαιῶν· ἠκολούθησαν δὲ αὐτῷ καὶ οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ. (280 II) 40 Γενόμενος δὲ ἐπὶ τοῦ τόπου εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Προσεύχεσθε μὴ εἰσελθεῖν εἰς πειρασμόν. (281 I) 41 Καὶ αὐτὸς ἀπεσπάσθη ἀπ' αὐτῶν ὡσεὶ λίθου βολήν· καὶ θεὶς τὰ γόνατα προσηύχετο g Mark 14. 36. (282 I) 42 λέγων, g Πάτερ, εἰ βούλει παρενεγκεῖν τὸ ποτήριον τοῦτο ἀπ' ἐμοῦ· πλὴν μὴ τὸ θέλημά μου, ἀλλὰ τὸ σὸν γινέσθω· (283 X) 43 ὤφθη δὲ αὐτῷ ἄγγελος ἀπ' οὐρανοῦ ἐνισχύων αὐτόν. 44 Καὶ γενόμενος ἐν ἀγωνίᾳ ἐκτενέστερον προσηύχετο. Ἐγένετο δὲ ὁ ἱδρὼς αὐτοῦ ὡσεὶ θρόμβοι αἵματος καταβαίνοντες ἐπὶ τὴν γῆν.
h Matt. 26. 40, 41. Mark 14. 37, 38. (284 II) 45 h Καὶ ἀναστὰς ἀπὸ τῆς προσευχῆς, ἐλθὼν πρὸς τοὺς μαθητὰς εὗρεν αὐτοὺς κοιμωμένους ἀπὸ τῆς λύπης, 46 καὶ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Τί καθεύδετε; ἀναστάντες προσεύχεσθε, ἵνα μὴ εἰσέλθητε εἰς πειρασμόν.

i Matt. 26. 47—51, 55. Mark 14. 43—48. (285 I) 47 i Ἔτι αὐτοῦ λαλοῦντος ἰδοὺ ὄχλος, καὶ ὁ λεγόμενος Ἰούδας, εἷς τῶν δώδεκα, προήρχετο αὐτοὺς, καὶ ἤγγισε τῷ Ἰησοῦ φιλῆσαι αὐτόν. (286 II) 48 Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Ἰούδα, φιλήματι τὸν Υἱὸν τοῦ ἀνθρώπου παραδίδως; you all (ὑμᾶς); but when He asked to sift you, I prayed specially for thee. The prayer was prophetic; it was specially needed by Peter, because Peter was specially in peril. It is said by Roman Divines (e. g. Maldonat., à Lapide, and Mai here) that this prayer and precept of our Lord extends to all the Bishops of Rome, as St. Peter's successors, and that in speaking to St. Peter our Lord spake to them. Will they complete the parallel, and say that the Bishops of Rome specially need prayer, because they deny Christ? Let them not take a part of it and leave the rest. St. Peter himself (2 Pet. iii. 16) has condemned such wrestings of Scripture as this, and such as that by which another verse in this chapter (v. 38) has been perverted to a like purpose, and where the words ἰδοὺ μάχαιραι δύο have been used by Popes themselves to authorize their claim to wield the double sword of spiritual and secular supremacy. See Boniface VIIIth's "Unam Sanctam," in the Roman Canon Law (Extrav. Com. i. 8. 1, p. 1159, ed. 1839): "Dicentibus Apostolis ecce gladii duo, in Ecclesiâ scilicet, quum Apostoli loquerentur, non respondit Dominus nimis esse, sed satis. Certè, qui in potestate Petri temporalem gladium esse negat, malè verbum attendit Domini proferentis 'Converte gladium tuum in vaginam' (Matt. xxvi. 52). Uterque ergo in potestate est Ecclesiæ, spiritualis scilicet gladius et materialis."

---

— στήριξον] A, B, D, L, M, Q have στήρισον.

34. Πέτρε] The only place in the Gospels where Christ is said to have addressed Simon by his name Πέτρος. (Burgon.)

Doubtless there is a reference to his good confession (Matt. xvi. 18). Thou when uttering the revelation from My Father, and confessing Me to be the Christ, the Son of the Living God, wast a Πέτρος, built on Me, the Living Rock; but now thou wilt deny Me thrice because thou speakest thine own words and reliest on thine own strength.

35. ἄτερ βαλλαντίου] See notes on Matt. x. 10.

36. μάχαιραν] A proverbial expression, intimating that they would now be reduced to a condition, in which the men of this world would resort to such means of defence. See Theophyl., Euthym., and Glass. Phil. p. 705, and above on Matt. xxiv. 20.

38. ἰδοὺ μάχαιραι δύο] A sentence recorded by the Holy Spirit here, in order, perhaps, to show how narrow-minded and enslaved by the letter (cp. Matt. xvi. 12—16, on ζύμη) the Apostles of our Lord as yet were, even to the time of His Passion; and in order also to show how gentle, considerate, and tolerant our Blessed Lord was in His dealings with them even to the end; and how incompetent they were to do any thing of themselves to propagate the Gospel, and to build up the Church; and how gracious and powerful was the gift of the Holy Ghost, Who wrought so great a change in them, by enabling them, such as they were, to speak and write, to do and suffer, to live and die, as they did.

39. ἐπορεύθη, κ.τ.λ.] See Matt. xxvi. 30. 36—46. Mark xiv. 32—42.

40. ἐπὶ τοῦ τόπου] 'the place.' St. Luke never uses the word Gethsemane, which had been specified by Matt. xxvi. 36, and Mark xiv. 32.

41. λίθου βολήν] He was apart, and yet near, so that He might be heard; and His agony was visible in the clear light of the Paschal Moon.

43. ἄγγελος] The Holy Ghost in St. Luke's Gospel is particularly careful to describe the victory gained by Christ, the Seed of the Woman, over Satan and Evil Angels (see on xxii. 3). He also dwells frequently on the visible ministrations of Good Angels to the Son of Man. (Heb. i. 6. John i. 51.)

The angel Gabriel appears in the Temple to announce his Forerunner's birth (Luke i. 11), and His conception (i. 26). Angels appear to the Shepherds at the Nativity (ii. 10—15). "There is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth" (xv. 10); the soul of Lazarus is carried by angels into Abraham's bosom (xvi. 22). And now an angel appears from heaven strengthening Christ, the second Adam, in His agony. Cp. xxiv. 23. Acts i. 10; x. 3. 30; xii. 7—11. 15. John xviii. 18.

44. ἱδρώς] Although it was a cold night, and He kneeling on the cold ground. (Bp. Andrewes.)

— ὡσεὶ θρόμβοι αἵματος] ὡσεὶ is to be joined with θρόμβοι, not with αἵματος. The Fathers, for the most part, understand this literally as a 'sudor sanguineus.' So Hilary, Athanasius, Jerome, Aug., Bernard, who says, Serm. 3, in Domin. Palmar., "Non solis oculis, sed quasi membris flevisse videtur." Christ thus gave some external evidence of His inexpressible inward agony (St. Jerome, c. Pelag. ii.), and of the bitterness of that cup which He drained for our sake. He also foreshowed a representation of the sufferings which His mystical Body, the Church, would have to endure in the world. (Aug.)

— ἐπὶ τὴν γῆν] Not only on His raiment, but on the ground,—"propter copiam: eò terra benedictionem accepit." (Beng.) See also Heb. xii. 24. But as the voice of blood of the first shepherd, Abel, cried unto God from the ground (Gen. iv. 10), so the blood of the Good Shepherd, Christ; and brought down a malediction from heaven on the Jewish Nation (cp. Matt. xxvii. 25). His Brother according to the flesh, who slew Him, has now become a wanderer on the earth—a never-dying Cain of near twenty centuries. We hear of Christ's blood being shed twice; and both times, it is probable, in a garden; first in Gethsemane, secondly in Calvary (John xix. 41). And so Paradise, lost by the first Adam, was regained by the Second.

45. προσευχῆς] See on ch. v. 16.

47. φιλῆσαι] St. Luke takes for granted that the reader has learnt from other sources (e. g. Matt. xxvi. 48. Mark xiv. 44) that this was the σύσσημον.

48. τὸν Υἱὸν τοῦ ἀνθρώπου] "Filius enim Dei Filius hominis propter nos esse voluit. Quasi dicat, 'Propter te suscepi quod trahis.'" (Ambrose.)

(287/I) 49 Ἰδόντες δὲ οἱ περὶ αὐτὸν τὸ ἐσόμενον εἶπον αὐτῷ, Κύριε, εἰ πατάξομεν ἐν μαχαίρᾳ; 50 καὶ ἐπάταξεν εἷς τις ἐξ αὐτῶν τὸν δοῦλον τοῦ ἀρχιερέως, καὶ ἀφεῖλεν αὐτοῦ τὸ οὖς τὸ δεξιόν. (288/X) 51 Ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν, Ἐᾶτε ἕως τούτου· καὶ ἁψάμενος τοῦ ὠτίου αὐτοῦ ἰάσατο αὐτόν. (289/I) 52 Εἶπε δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς πρὸς τοὺς παραγενομένους ἐπ' αὐτὸν ἀρχιερεῖς καὶ στρατηγοὺς τοῦ ἱεροῦ καὶ πρεσβυτέρους, Ὡς ἐπὶ λῃστὴν ἐξεληλύθατε μετὰ μαχαιρῶν καὶ ξύλων; 53 καθ' ἡμέραν ὄντος μου μεθ' ὑμῶν ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ, οὐκ ἐξετείνατε τὰς χεῖρας ἐπ' ἐμέ. Ἀλλ' αὕτη ὑμῶν ἐστιν ἡ ὥρα, καὶ ἡ ἐξουσία τοῦ σκότους.

(290/I) 54 [j] Συλλαβόντες δὲ αὐτὸν ἤγαγον, καὶ εἰσήγαγον αὐτὸν εἰς τὸν οἶκον τοῦ ἀρχιερέως· ὁ δὲ Πέτρος ἠκολούθει μακρόθεν. (291/I) 55 Ἁψάντων δὲ πῦρ ἐν μέσῳ τῆς αὐλῆς, καὶ συγκαθισάντων αὐτῶν, ἐκάθητο ὁ Πέτρος ἐν μέσῳ αὐτῶν. 56 Ἰδοῦσα δὲ αὐτὸν παιδίσκη τις καθήμενον πρὸς τὸ φῶς, καὶ ἀτενίσασα αὐτῷ εἶπε, Καὶ οὗτος σὺν αὐτῷ ἦν. 57 Ὁ δὲ ἠρνήσατο αὐτὸν λέγων, Γύναι, οὐκ οἶδα αὐτόν. (292/I) 58 Καὶ μετὰ βραχὺ ἕτερος ἰδὼν αὐτὸν ἔφη, Καὶ σὺ ἐξ αὐτῶν εἶ. Ὁ δὲ Πέτρος εἶπεν, Ἄνθρωπε, οὐκ εἰμί. 59 Καὶ διαστάσης ὡσεὶ ὥρας μιᾶς ἄλλος τις διϊσχυρίζετο λέγων, Ἐπ' ἀληθείας καὶ οὗτος μετ' αὐτοῦ ἦν, καὶ γὰρ Γαλιλαῖός ἐστιν. 60 Εἶπε δὲ ὁ Πέτρος, Ἄνθρωπε, οὐκ οἶδα ὃ λέγεις. Καὶ παραχρῆμα, ἔτι λαλοῦντος αὐτοῦ, ἐφώνησεν ἀλέκτωρ. (293/II) 61 Καὶ στραφεὶς ὁ Κύριος ἐνέβλεψε τῷ Πέτρῳ· καὶ ὑπεμνήσθη ὁ Πέτρος τοῦ λόγου τοῦ Κυρίου ὡς εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Ὅτι πρὶν ἀλέκτορα φωνῆσαι, ἀπαρνήσῃ με τρίς. (294/I) 62 καὶ ἐξελθὼν ἔξω ὁ Πέτρος ἔκλαυσε πικρῶς.

j Matt. 26. 57, 58, 69—75. Mark 14. 53, 54, 66—72.

63 [k] Καὶ οἱ ἄνδρες οἱ συνέχοντες τὸν Ἰησοῦν ἐνέπαιζον αὐτῷ δέροντες, 64 καὶ περικαλύψαντες αὐτὸν ἔτυπτον αὐτοῦ τὸ πρόσωπον, καὶ ἐπηρώτων αὐτὸν λέγοντες, Προφήτευσον, τίς ἐστιν ὁ παίσας σε; 65 καὶ ἕτερα πολλὰ βλασφημοῦντες ἔλεγον εἰς αὐτόν.

k Matt. 26. 67, 68. Mark 14. 65.

---

51. ἐᾶτε ἕως τούτου] This is mentioned by St. Luke alone; and St. John, writing after St. Peter's death, adds, that he it was who cut off the servant's ear, and that his name was Malchus. John xviii. 10.

52. εἶπε δὲ, κ.τ.λ.] See Matt. xxvi. 55—57. Mark xiv. 48—53.

— στρατηγοὺς τοῦ ἱεροῦ] Captains, not of the Roman Castle of Antonia, but the sacerdotal chiefs of the several sentries of Priests and Levites who kept watch and ward in the Temple by day and night. See above on xxii. 4. Cp. Acts iv. 1. Joseph. Ant. xx. 6. 2.

54. συλλαβόντες αὐτόν] "Væ illis, qui ligant Verbum. Ligant illi qui tantummodò Christum hominem esse putant, qui Omnipotentem non confitentur; mala vincula, quibus seipsos alligant." (St. Ambrose.) For, if Christ be only man and not God, they are still captives of Satan and prisoners of sin.

— τὸν οἶκον τοῦ ἀρχιερέως] Cp. John xviii. 13. 24. We have seen that Annas is called the High Priest, ὁ ἀρχιερεύς, by St. Luke, Acts iv. 6. See on Luke iii. 2.

Judas made his covenant to betray Christ with the Chief Priests, and our Lord was arrested by them, and not by the civil power of Rome; and He was taken to Annas first, as the chief of the Spiritual Power. See on Luke iii. 2. Cp. John xviii. 13. 24.

Did Annas, the father-in-law, and Caiaphas, the son-in-law, dwell in the same official residence? Did Annas, as high priest de jure, occupy an οἶκος, or apartment there? It is observable, that in the history of the arrest and arraignment before the High Priest, St. Luke never mentions Caiaphas by name. Remark also, that the two earlier Evangelists say that the officers of the Chief Priests ἀπήγαγον τὸν Ἰησοῦν πρὸς τὸν ἀρχιερέα, or πρὸς Καϊάφαν τὸν ἀρχιερέα. (Matt. xxvi. 57. Mark xiv. 53.) But St. Luke says (xxii. 54) εἰσήγαγον αὐτὸν εἰς τὸν οἶκον τοῦ ἀρχιερέως.

And in all the three, Peter is said to be in the court-yard (αὐλή) of the High Priest (Matt. xxvi. 58. Mark xiv. 54. Luke xxii. 55) beneath (Mark xiv. 66)[1].

56. ἰδοῦσα, κ.τ.λ.] See Matt. xxvi. 69—75. Mark xiv. 66—72. John xviii. 17. All the four Evangelists mention the παιδίσκη.

58. ἕτερος] At the same time as the παιδίσκη in Mark xiv. 69, and the ἄλλη, Matt. xxvi. 71. See on John xviii. 25, who reconciles the three accounts.

59. ἄλλος] Perhaps the relative of Malchus, John xviii. 26; but many spoke at the same time. See Matt. xxvi. 73. Mark xiv. 70.

60. ἀλέκτωρ] Elz. has the Article ὁ before ἀλέκτωρ, but the ὁ is not found in A, D, G, K, L, M, S, V, and other MSS.; and it is doubtful whether there is any passage of the Gospels where the Article is prefixed to this word, which occurs twelve times. The Evangelists seem careful not to say that it was any one ἀλέκτωρ which crowed thrice.

---

[1] Certain alleged discrepancies between this narrative, and that of other Evangelists, are thus recited by Meyer, p. 486. They will not cause any perplexity to a careful and candid reader, and are here adduced in order to show the nature of the Criticism to which the Sacred Text is subjected, and the necessity of an accurate, as well as of a reverent, study of it. "V. 54—62. S. z. Matth. 26, 57 f. 69—75. Mark. 14, 53 f. 66—72. Jesus wird in das Haus des Oberpriesters geführt, woselbst er aber nach Luk. bis nach Anbruch des Tages (v. 66.), wo der Sanhedrin zusammenkommt, im Hofe, gehalten (v. 61. 63.) und auch verspottet wird. Nach Matth. u. Mark. versammelt sich der Sanhedrin gleich nach Jesu Ankunft, und verhört ihn. Beide Referate sind nicht zu vereinigen; der Vorzug aber ist dem Luk. in so weit zu geben, als er mit Johann. stimmt. S nachher z. τοῦ ἀρχιερ. Uebrigens steht Luk. nicht im Widerspruch mit sich selbst (gegen Strauss), da die v. 52. erwähnten Oberpriester und Aeltesten nur als Einzelne (eine Deputation) zu denken sind. — τοῦ ἀρχιερ.) Da Luk. nicht den Kaiaphas (gewöhnliche Meinung), sondern den Hannas für den fungirenden Oberpriester gehalten hat (s. z. 3, 2.), so ist dieser auch hier zu verstehen (so auch Bleek). Damit tritt Luk. freilich in eine neue Differenz mit Matth., kommt aber theilweise mit Johann. zusammen, sofern nämlich dieser ebenfalls Jesum zunächst zum Hannas bringen lässt, und sofern nun auch bei Luk. wie bei Joh. die Verleugnungen im Hofe des Hannas statt finden. Von einem Verhöre aber bei Hannas (Joh. 18, 19 ff.) hat Luk. nichts; doch findet es natürlich genug gleich nach εἰς τὸν οἶκον τοῦ ἀρχιερ. bei der Anmeldung des Gefangenen, welche man sich zu denken hat, seinen historischen Platz. Auch Wieseler Synops. p. 405. kommt zu dem Resultate, dass Luk. 22, 54—65. in's Haus des Hannas gehöre,—aber auf anderem Wege. Vrgl. z. 3, 2. — v. 58. ἕτερος] Differenz mit Matth. u. Mark. Denn Luk. denkt nicht an eine Magd, unterscheidet vielmehr das fragende Subject als Masculi. durch ἕτερος und ἄνθρωπε von der Fragerin v. 56 f., daher Ebrard (vrgl. Weiss.) mit Unrecht bei dem unbestimmten Sinne 'jemand anderes' sich beruhigt. —v. 59. ἄλλος τις) nach Matth. u. Mark. mehrere. S. überh. über die Differenzen der vier Evang. im Berichte über die Verleugnungen Petri z. Matth. p. 458 f —v. 61. Jesus ist also nach Luk. auch noch im Hofe, und wird da bis v. 66. in Verwahrsam gehalten (v. 63). Freilich ist es psychologisch höchst unwahrscheinlich, dass Petrus in Anwesenheit Jesu die Verleugnungen begangen haben soll, was auch gegen die übrigen Evangelien ist. Eine Vereinigung derselben mit Luk. ist unmöglich, und auch die Annahme, dass Jesus Petrum angeblickt, als er von Hannas zu Kaiphas geführt worden und dabei nahe bei Petrus auf dem Hofe vorbeigekommen sei (Joh. 18, 24., so Olsh.), ist unzulässig, da nach Joh. schon die zweite Verleugnung mit dieser Wegführung Jesu ungefähr zusammenfällt, nach Luk. aber v. 59. zwischen der zweiten und dritten Verleugnung etwa eine Stunde Zwischenzeit ist.

"V. 63—65. S. z. Matth. 26, 67 f. Mark. 14, 65. Luk. folgt einer ganz verschiedenen Tradition, verschieden hinsichtlich der Zeit, des Ortes und der verspottenden Subjecte. Die nämliche charakteristische Misshandlung (Schlagen,—Auffordern zur Weissagung), deren ursprünglicher Zusammenhang bei Matth. u. Mark. ist, hatte sich in der Ueberlieferung verschieden gestellt. Gegen die Annahme mehrmaliger Wiederholung der Verhöhnung spricht die Identität und Eigenthümlichkeit ihres wesentlichen Bestandes (gegen Ebrard u. M.)."

(296/II) 66 [1] Καὶ ὡς ἐγένετο ἡμέρα, συνήχθη τὸ πρεσβυτέριον τοῦ λαοῦ, ἀρχιερεῖς τε καὶ γραμματεῖς, καὶ ἀνήγαγον αὐτὸν εἰς τὸ συνέδριον αὐτῶν (296/X) 67 λέγοντες, Εἰ σὺ εἶ ὁ Χριστὸς, εἰπὲ ἡμῖν. Εἶπε δὲ αὐτοῖς, Ἐὰν ὑμῖν εἴπω, οὐ μὴ πιστεύσητε. 68 ἐὰν δὲ καὶ ἐρωτήσω, οὐ μὴ ἀποκριθῆτέ μοι, ἢ ἀπολύσητε. (297/I) 69 Ἀπὸ τοῦ νῦν ἔσται ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου καθήμενος ἐκ δεξιῶν τῆς δυνάμεως τοῦ Θεοῦ. (298/X) 70 Εἶπον δὲ πάντες, Σὺ οὖν εἶ ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ Θεοῦ; Ὁ δὲ πρὸς αὐτοὺς ἔφη, Ὑμεῖς λέγετε ὅτι ἐγώ εἰμι. (299/II) 71 Οἱ δὲ εἶπον, Τί ἔτι χρείαν ἔχομεν μαρτυρίας; αὐτοὶ γὰρ ἠκούσαμεν ἀπὸ τοῦ στόματος αὐτοῦ.

[1] Matt. 27. 1. Mark 15. 1.

XXIII. (300/I) 1 [a] Καὶ ἀναστὰν ἅπαν τὸ πλῆθος αὐτῶν ἤγαγον αὐτὸν ἐπὶ τὸν Πιλάτον. (301/X) 2 Ἤρξαντο δὲ κατηγορεῖν αὐτοῦ λέγοντες, Τοῦτον εὕρομεν διαστρέφοντα τὸ ἔθνος, καὶ κωλύοντα Καίσαρι φόρους διδόναι, λέγοντα ἑαυτὸν Χριστὸν βασιλέα εἶναι. (302/I) 3 [b] Ὁ δὲ Πιλάτος ἐπηρώτησεν αὐτὸν λέγων, Σὺ εἶ ὁ βασιλεὺς τῶν Ἰουδαίων; Ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς αὐτῷ ἔφη, Σὺ λέγεις. (303/IX) 4 Ὁ δὲ Πιλάτος εἶπε πρὸς τοὺς ἀρχιερεῖς καὶ τοὺς ὄχλους, Οὐδὲν εὑρίσκω αἴτιον ἐν τῷ ἀνθρώπῳ τούτῳ. (304/X) 5 Οἱ δὲ ἐπίσχυον λέγοντες, Ὅτι ἀνασείει τὸν λαὸν, διδάσκων καθ' ὅλης τῆς Ἰουδαίας, ἀρξάμενος ἀπὸ τῆς Γαλιλαίας ἕως ὧδε. 6 Πιλάτος δὲ ἀκούσας Γαλιλαίαν ἐπηρώτησεν, εἰ ὁ ἄνθρωπος Γαλιλαῖός ἐστι, 7 καὶ ἐπιγνοὺς ὅτι ἐκ τῆς ἐξουσίας Ἡρώδου ἐστὶν ἀνέπεμψεν αὐτὸν πρὸς Ἡρώδην, ὄντα καὶ αὐτὸν ἐν Ἱεροσολύμοις ἐν ταύταις ταῖς ἡμέραις. 8 Ὁ δὲ Ἡρώδης ἰδὼν τὸν Ἰησοῦν ἐχάρη λίαν, ἦν γὰρ θέλων ἐξ ἱκανοῦ ἰδεῖν αὐτὸν, διὰ τὸ ἀκούειν πολλὰ περὶ αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἤλπιζέ τι σημεῖον ἰδεῖν ὑπ' αὐτοῦ γινόμενον. 9 Ἐπηρώτα δὲ αὐτὸν ἐν λόγοις ἱκανοῖς· αὐτὸς δὲ οὐδὲν ἀπεκρίνατο αὐτῷ. (305/II) 10 Εἱστήκεισαν δὲ οἱ ἀρχιερεῖς καὶ οἱ γραμματεῖς εὐτόνως κατηγοροῦντες αὐτοῦ. (306/X) 11 Ἐξουθενήσας δὲ αὐτὸν ὁ Ἡρώδης σὺν τοῖς στρατεύμασιν αὐτοῦ καὶ ἐμπαίξας, περιβαλὼν αὐτὸν ἐσθῆτα λαμπρὰν, ἀνέπεμψεν αὐτὸν τῷ Πιλάτῳ. 12 Ἐγένοντο δὲ φίλοι ὅ τε Πιλάτος καὶ ὁ Ἡρώδης ἐν αὐτῇ τῇ ἡμέρᾳ μετ' ἀλλήλων· προϋπῆρχον γὰρ ἐν ἔχθρᾳ ὄντες πρὸς ἑαυτούς. (307/IX) 13 Πιλάτος δὲ συγκαλεσάμενος τοὺς ἀρχιερεῖς καὶ τοὺς ἄρχοντας καὶ τὸν λαὸν 14 εἶπε πρὸς αὐτούς, Προσηνέγκατέ μοι τὸν ἄνθρωπον τοῦτον, ὡς ἀποστρέφοντα τὸν λαόν· καὶ ἰδοὺ, ἐγὼ ἐνώπιον ὑμῶν ἀνακρίνας οὐδὲν εὗρον ἐν τῷ ἀνθρώπῳ τούτῳ αἴτιον, ὧν κατηγορεῖτε κατ' αὐτοῦ· (308/X) 15 ἀλλ' οὐδὲ Ἡρώδης· ἀνέπεμψα γὰρ ὑμᾶς πρὸς αὐτόν· καὶ ἰδοὺ οὐδὲν ἄξιον θανάτου ἐστὶ πεπραγμένον αὐτῷ· 16 παιδεύσας οὖν αὐτὸν ἀπολύσω. (309/II) 17 [c] Ἀνάγκην δὲ εἶχεν ἀπολύειν αὐτοῖς κατὰ ἑορτὴν ἕνα. (310/I) 18 Ἀνέκραξαν δὲ παμπληθεὶ λέγοντες, Αἶρε τοῦτον, ἀπόλυσον δὲ ἡμῖν τὸν Βαραββᾶν· 19 ὅστις ἦν διὰ στάσιν τινὰ γενομένην ἐν τῇ πόλει καὶ φόνον βεβλημένος εἰς φυλακήν. (311/I) 20 Πάλιν οὖν ὁ Πιλάτος προσεφώνησε θέλων ἀπολῦσαι τὸν Ἰησοῦν. 21 Οἱ δὲ ἐπεφώνουν λέγοντες, Σταύρωσον σταύρωσον

[a] Matt. 27. 2.

[b] Matt. 27. 11. Mark 15. 2.

[c] Matt. 27. 15, 16, 22, 23, 26. Mark 15. 6—8, 15.

Ch. XXIII. 1. καὶ ἀναστάν] See Matt. xxvii. 1, 2. Mark xv. 1. John xviii. 28.

2. φόρους] See xx. 22. They accuse Him of doing what they themselves did and what He forbade them to do.

7. ὄντα αὐτόν] Herod Antipas, being then at Jerusalem for the Passover.

11. ἐξουθενήσας] He who had murdered the forerunner of Christ now mocks Christ. So one sin leads to another and greater. Because our Lord answered nothing, and did no miracle to gratify his curiosity, he too with his στρατεύματα mocked Him at Jerusalem, the City of God, and arrayed Him in an ἐσθῆτα λαμπρά, a shining robe—Him who will appear in a bright robe of glory in the heavenly Jerusalem, with His στρατεύματα of Cherubim and Seraphim, as King of Kings and Judge of Herod and Pilate and of the World.

12. Πιλάτος καὶ ὁ Ἡρώδης] Cp. Ps. ii. 1—3. Acts iv. 27. Pharisees combine with Herodians (Matt. xxii. 16). Herod is reconciled to Pilate; but all are against Christ. Cp. Ps. lxxxiii. 3, a prophetic intimation of the combination of hostile powers adverse to one another, but leagued together in the latter days against Him and His Church. See Rev. xix. 19. Ps. lxxxiii. 5.

15. οὐδὲν ἄξιον θανάτου] 'and you see that nothing worthy of death has been done by Him' (πεπραγμένον αὐτῷ). Not done to Him, but by Him, otherwise it would have appeared in evidence before Herod or before me.

Pilate and Herod, the representatives of the Roman and Jewish World, unite in acquitting and in crucifying Christ. Both Jew and Gentile pronounce Him innocent, and yet condemn Him as guilty. He is put to death by the world, and dies for it. Cp. Barrow's Sermons, vol. iv. p. 575. Serm. xxvi. on the Creed.

16. παιδεύσας] an euphemism or λιτότης for φραγελλώσας. See Thom. Magist. in πολλάκις; the LXX in Deut. viii. 5. Cp. Matt. xxvii. 26.

St. John says (xix. 1) ἐμαστίγωσε τὸν Ἰησοῦν. It appears that Pilate scourged Jesus in hopes that the Jews would be satisfied with this punishment. (See Mark xv. 15, and St. Luke here and v. 22, and on John xix. 1.) The Evangelists St. Matthew (xxvii. 26) and St. Mark (xv. 15) introduce the word φραγελλώσας just before the mention of our Lord's delivery to be crucified; not because, as it would seem, the scourging took place then, but to intimate that He was punished twice, first by scourging and then by crucifixion; and so His prophecy was fulfilled (Matt. xx. 19), παραδώσουσιν αὐτὸν τοῖς ἔθνεσιν εἰς τὸ ἐμπαῖξαι καὶ μαστιγῶσαι καὶ σταυρῶσαι. Cp. Mark x. 34. Luke xviii. 33.

17. ἀνάγκην εἶχεν, κ.τ.λ.] See Matt. xxvii. 15—22.

21. οἱ δέ, κ.τ.λ.] See Matt. xxvii. 22—26.

αὐτόν. (312 IX) 22 Ὁ δὲ τρίτον εἶπε πρὸς αὐτούς, Τί γὰρ κακὸν ἐποίησεν οὗτος; οὐδὲν αἴτιον θανάτου εὗρον ἐν αὐτῷ· παιδεύσας οὖν αὐτὸν ἀπολύσω. (313 I) 23 Οἱ δὲ ἐπέκειντο φωναῖς μεγάλαις αἰτούμενοι αὐτὸν σταυρωθῆναι· καὶ κατίσχυον αἱ φωναὶ αὐτῶν καὶ τῶν ἀρχιερέων. (314 I) 24 Ὁ δὲ Πιλάτος ἐπέκρινε γενέσθαι τὸ αἴτημα αὐτῶν· 25 ἀπέλυσε δὲ αὐτοῖς τὸν διὰ στάσιν καὶ φόνον βεβλημένον εἰς τὴν φυλακὴν ὃν ᾐτοῦντο· τὸν δὲ Ἰησοῦν παρέδωκε τῷ θελήματι αὐτῶν.

(315 I) 26 d Καὶ ὡς ἀπήγαγον αὐτόν, ἐπιλαβόμενοι Σίμωνός τινος Κυρηναίου, ἐρχομένου ἀπ' ἀγροῦ, ἐπέθηκαν αὐτῷ τὸν σταυρὸν, φέρειν ὄπισθεν τοῦ Ἰησοῦ. (316 K) 27 Ἠκολούθει δὲ αὐτῷ πολὺ πλῆθος τοῦ λαοῦ καὶ γυναικῶν, αἳ καὶ ἐκόπτοντο καὶ ἐθρήνουν αὐτόν. 28 Στραφεὶς δὲ πρὸς αὐτὰς ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπε, Θυγατέρες Ἰερουσαλὴμ, μὴ κλαίετε ἐπ' ἐμὲ, πλὴν ἐφ' ἑαυτὰς κλαίετε καὶ ἐπὶ τὰ τέκνα ὑμῶν· 29 ὅτι ἰδοὺ, ἔρχονται ἡμέραι ἐν αἷς ἐροῦσι, Μακάριαι αἱ στεῖραι, καὶ κοιλίαι αἳ οὐκ ἐγέννησαν, καὶ μαστοὶ οἳ οὐκ ἐθήλασαν. 30 Τότε ἄρξονται λέγειν τοῖς ὄρεσι, Πέσετε ἐφ' ἡμᾶς, καὶ τοῖς βουνοῖς, Καλύψατε ἡμᾶς· 31 ὅτι εἰ ἐν τῷ ὑγρῷ ξύλῳ ταῦτα ποιοῦσιν, ἐν τῷ ξηρῷ τί γένηται; (317 I) 32 Ἤγοντο δὲ καὶ ἕτεροι δύο, κακοῦργοι, σὺν αὐτῷ ἀναιρεθῆναι. d Matt. 27. 32. Mark 15. 21.

(318 I) 33 e Καὶ ὅτε ἀπῆλθον ἐπὶ τὸν τόπον τὸν καλούμενον Κρανίον ἐκεῖ ἐσταύρωσαν αὐτὸν, (319 I) καὶ τοὺς κακούργους, ὃν μὲν ἐκ δεξιῶν, ὃν δὲ ἐξ ἀριστερῶν. (320 K) 34 Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς ἔλεγε, Πάτερ, ἄφες αὐτοῖς· οὐ γὰρ οἴδασι τί ποιοῦσι. Διαμεριζόμενοι δὲ τὰ ἱμάτια αὐτοῦ ἔβαλον κλῆρον. (321 I) 35 Καὶ εἱστήκει ὁ λαὸς θεωρῶν· ἐξεμυκτήριζον δὲ καὶ οἱ ἄρχοντες σὺν αὐτοῖς λέγοντες, (322 II) Ἄλλους ἔσωσε, σωσάτω ἑαυτὸν, εἰ οὗτός ἐστιν ὁ Χριστὸς ὁ τοῦ Θεοῦ ἐκλεκτός. (323 II) 36 Ἐνέπαιζον δὲ αὐτῷ καὶ οἱ στρατιῶται προσερχόμενοι καὶ ὄξος προσφέροντες αὐτῷ, 37 καὶ λέγοντες· Εἰ σὺ εἶ ὁ βασιλεὺς τῶν Ἰουδαίων σῶσον σεαυτόν. (324 I) 38 Ἦν δὲ καὶ ἐπιγραφὴ γεγραμμένη ἐπ' αὐτῷ γράμμασιν Ἑλ- e Matt. 27. 33, 37, 39, 42. Mark 15. 22, 26, 29, 31.

---

26. ἐρχομένου] Elz. has τοῦ before ἐρχομένου, but τοῦ is not found in A, B, C, D, G, H, K, L, P, S, V. It seems to have been introduced to identify him with the person who was well known as such from St. Mark xv. 21, and may be an evidence of the priority of St. Mark's Gospel.

It is observed by some of the Fathers (e.g. St. Ambrose) that it was not a Jew of Jerusalem, but a Cyrenian stranger, who was first chosen to carry Christ's cross after Him to Calvary, and that in so doing he was a type of the priority of the Gentile world in coming to Christ, and in bowing under the yoke of the cross. And now eighteen centuries have passed, and the Jews have not yet taken up the cross and followed Christ.

Simon came from the country—a paganus, from Cyrene, the land of Ham, to Jerusalem, and took up the cross and followed Christ. The pagans of Africa have preceded the Jews of the literal Jerusalem in coming to Christ, and in taking up the cross; and so have become citizens of the "Jerusalem that is above" (Gal. iv. 26), while the children of the kingdom have been cast out.

— ἐπίθηκαν αὐτῷ τὸν σταυρόν] Our Lord bare His own cross (John xix. 17), as Isaac did the wood (Gen. xxii. 6); and Simon also was compelled to bear it. Either Christ bare one portion of the cross and Simon the other, or, when He was oppressed by the weight, He was relieved by Simon. Cp. Aug. de Consensu Evang. iii. 10.

Christ bare the cross on His shoulders as a burden, and also as a badge of the "government on His shoulders" (Isa. ix. 6), and a trophy of victory (Phil. ii. 9). And it is also laid on Simon; for His disciples must take up the cross and follow Him to the shame of Calvary, in order that they may reign with Him in the glories of Heaven. Cp. Ambrose and Cyril here.

27. ἐκόπτοντο] See Luke viii. 52.

30. τότε ἄρξονται λέγειν τοῖς ὄρεσι] This had a primary and literal fulfilment in the flight of many (e.g. Josephus and his companions) to the caverns and rocks of Palestine for refuge (cp. Matt. xxiv. 16; and see Bede's note here); and for its wider application to the Spiritual Jerusalem, see Rev. vi. 16. Isa. ii. 10.

31. εἰ ἐν τῷ ὑγρῷ ξύλῳ] On ξύλον = Hebr. עֵץ (etz), δένδρον, see Vorst. de Hebr. p. 27. Gen. i. 11, 12. Rev. ii. 7; xxii. 2. 14.

Εἰ ταῦτα ποιοῦσιν is to be taken impersonally (see on xii. 20), and the sense is, If such things as these are done with the green tree, what shall be done with the tree that is dry? Good Men are compared in Scripture to green trees, and bad to barren and dry (Ps. i. 3. Ezek. xx. 47. Jude 12). And our Lord may be supposed to say, If such are the sufferings of One who is the Tree of Life, bringing forth all healthful fruits, what shall they endure who inflict these sufferings, and are themselves like an unfruitful and barren fig-tree, dry and ready for the fire, and who will be withered by Me as such. Cp. on Matt. xxi. 19, 20. Mark xi. 13—20; and see Greg. Moral. xii. 4 and Cyril here. Theophyl. and Glass. Philol. pp. 751, 752. Vorst. de Hebr. 819.

33. Κρανίον] See Matt. xxvii. 33.

St. Luke alone of the Evangelists does not mention its Hebrew name—Golgotha. St. Matthew and St. Mark add κρανίον as the interpretation of Golgotha. St. John mentions κρανίον first, and adds ὅς λέγεται Ἑβραϊστὶ Γολγοθᾶ. This may serve as one illustration, among many, of the modifying principles which guided the several Evangelists in the composition of their respective Gospels.

— ἐσταύρωσαν] On the question why our Lord, when He gave Himself to die, chose to die by the painful and ignominious death of the Cross, and that publicly, at the great feast of the Passover, see St. Athanas. de Incarnat. Verbi Dei, and St. Ambrose and Theophyl. here. "Quoniam Crucem trophæum jam vidimus," says Ambrose, "currum suum triumphator ascendat; et patibulo triumphali suspendat captiva de sæculo spolia. Unus Dei triumphus fecit omnes prope jam homines triumphare, Crux Domini."

The cross now became a triumphal car, in which Christ rides "conquering and to conquer," by His Victory over Satan; and it also was like a royal throne and tribunal, on which Christ sits a King and Judge, and separates between the good and the wicked—represented by the two Malefactors—the one on one hand, the other on the other (see on v. 42).

Cp. Dr. Barrow's Sermons on the Creed, Serm. xxvi. vol. iv. pp. 573—596, and ii. p. 206, and above, on Matt. xxvii. 35, and below, on John xix. 18.

34. ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς] This prayer of Jesus for His murderers is mentioned only by St. Luke. See above, v. 16, and cp. Acts iii. 17.

38. ἐπιγραφὴ] See Matt. xxvii. 37. Mark xv. 26. Designed as a mark of Ignominy. But Pilate's hand was guided from above; and while he crucified Jesus, he wrote His true title; and he wrote it in the principal languages of the World; for "all kings shall bow down before Him, and all Nations shall do Him service." (Ps. lxii. 11.)

St. Luke alone and St. John (xix. 20) mention the three languages; St. Luke specifies the Greek first; St. John the Hebrew. St. Luke puts the Hebrew last, and the Roman second, which St. John puts last.

It is observable that neither of the Evangelists, who mention the superscription, put the Roman in the first place; although it is not probable that Pilate, the Roman Governor, who caused the Inscription, would have placed his own language,—the language of the Imperial Mistress of the World,—after that of the Conquered Greeks and despised Jews. Yet the Church of Rome would make that tongue to be the universal language of Holy Scripture and the λληνικοῖς καὶ Ῥωμαϊκοῖς καὶ Ἑβραϊκοῖς, ΟΥΤΟΣ ΕΣΤΙΝ Ο ΒΑΣΙΛΕΥΣ ΤΩΝ ΙΟΥΔΑΙΩΝ.

(825/II) 39 [f] Εἷς δὲ τῶν κρεμασθέντων κακούργων ἐβλασφήμει αὐτὸν λέγων, Εἰ σὺ εἶ ὁ Χριστὸς, σῶσον σεαυτὸν καὶ ἡμᾶς. (826/X) 40 Ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ ὁ ἕτερος ἐπετίμα αὐτῷ λέγων, Οὐδὲ φοβῇ σὺ τὸν Θεὸν ὅτι ἐν τῷ αὐτῷ κρίματι εἶ; 41 Καὶ ἡμεῖς μὲν δικαίως, ἄξια γὰρ ὧν ἐπράξαμεν ἀπολαμβάνομεν· οὗτος δὲ οὐδὲν ἄτοπον ἔπραξε. 42 Καὶ ἔλεγε τῷ Ἰησοῦ, Μνήσθητί μου, Κύριε, ὅταν ἔλθῃς ἐν τῇ βασιλείᾳ σου. 43 Καὶ εἶπεν αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Ἀμὴν λέγω σοι, σήμερον μετ' ἐμοῦ ἔσῃ ἐν τῷ παραδείσῳ.

(827/II) 44 [g] Ἦν δὲ ὡσεὶ ὥρα ἕκτη, καὶ σκότος ἐγένετο ἐφ' ὅλην τὴν γῆν ἕως ὥρας ἐννάτης. 45 Καὶ ἐσκοτίσθη ὁ ἥλιος, καὶ ἐσχίσθη τὸ καταπέτασμα τοῦ ναοῦ μέσον· (828/II) 46 καὶ φωνήσας φωνῇ μεγάλῃ ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπε, (829/I) Πάτερ, εἰς χεῖράς σου παρατίθεμαι τὸ πνεῦμά μου· καὶ ταῦτα εἰπὼν ἐξέπνευσεν. (830/II) 47 Ἰδὼν δὲ ὁ ἑκατόνταρχος τὸ γενόμενον ἐδόξασε τὸν Θεὸν λέγων, Ὄντως ὁ ἄνθρωπος οὗτος δίκαιος ἦν. (831/X) 48 Καὶ πάντες οἱ συμπαραγενόμενοι ὄχλοι ἐπὶ τὴν θεωρίαν ταύτην, θεωροῦντες τὰ γενόμενα, τύπτοντες ἑαυτῶν τὰ στήθη ὑπέστρεφον. 49 Εἱστήκεισαν δὲ πάντες οἱ γνωστοὶ αὐτοῦ μακρόθεν, καὶ γυναῖκες αἱ συνακολουθήσασαι αὐτῷ ἀπὸ τῆς Γαλιλαίας, ὁρῶσαι ταῦτα.

(832/I) 50 [h] Καὶ ἰδοὺ, ἀνὴρ ὀνόματι Ἰωσὴφ, βουλευτὴς ὑπάρχων, ἀνὴρ ἀγαθὸς καὶ δίκαιος, 51 οὗτος οὐκ ἦν συγκατατεθειμένος τῇ βουλῇ καὶ τῇ πράξει αὐτῶν, ἀπὸ Ἀριμαθαίας πόλεως τῶν Ἰουδαίων, ὃς καὶ προσεδέχετο καὶ αὐτὸς τὴν βασιλείαν τοῦ Θεοῦ, (833/I) 52 οὗτος προσελθὼν τῷ Πιλάτῳ ᾐτήσατο τὸ σῶμα τοῦ Ἰησοῦ. 53 Καὶ καθελὼν αὐτὸ ἐνετύλιξεν αὐτὸ σινδόνι, καὶ ἔθηκεν αὐτὸ ἐν

f Matt. 27. 44. Mark 15. 32.

g Matt. 27. 45, 46, 50, 54, 55. Mark 15. 33, 34, 37, 39, 40.

h Matt. 27. 57—60. Mark 15. 43, 46.

Church; though manifestly unfit for that purpose (see the proofs in Bentley's Sermon, on 2 Cor. ii. 17. Works, iii. p. 247).

At the same time (as Bengel observes), the superscription on the Cross may remind the Christian Teacher that there are three languages, to which all who preach Christ crucified should give special attention,—the Hebrew, Greek, and Latin. St. Luke places the Hebrew after the Roman, though he does not give the first place to the Roman. This appears to be in accordance with the general tenour of his Gospel, and of St. Paul's preaching, viz. to show that the first should be last, and the last first; and that the Gentiles were to be preferred to the Jews; the younger son to the elder. Perhaps also the Holy Spirit, by inverting the order, may have designed to show that the language of human majesty is subordinate to that of conquered Nations—Hebrew and Greek—which is consecrated by Himself as the language of Inspiration in the Old and New Testament. The Roman language, alone of the three, never holds the first place on the Cross.

40. οὐδὲ φοβῇ] If thou hast no love and pity for thy fellow man, in his agony, dost not thou even fear God, Whose creature man is, and Who is outraged, when suffering man is reviled and insulted in his anguish?

42, 43. μνήσθητί μου—παραδείσῳ] Some of the Fathers (e g. Origen, Tr. 35 in Matt., St. Jerome, Chrys., Cyril Hierosol. Cateches. 13. Theophyl. Euthym. in Matt. xxvii.) are of opinion, that at first both the malefactors railed on Jesus. But St. August., Epiphan., and others (see Suarez and à Lapide here), say that the plural is used by St. Matthew (xxvii. 44), St. Mark (xv. 32), for the singular. Cp. Glass. Phil. S. p. 286, and Matt. xxvi. 8, where Judas only is meant. See on Matt. xxvii. 44.

The penitent thief prayed to be remembered at that future time, however distant, when Christ should come in His Kingdom. Christ rewarded his faith and good confession by a promise of immediate happiness. "To day thou shalt be (i. e. thy human soul shall be with My human soul) in Paradise."

Paradise, a word of Persian origin, signifying a Park or Garden (see Xenophon, Cyr. i. 3. 12. Œcon. iv. 13. Reland de vestig. ling. Pers. Miscellan. ii. p. 210. Winer, Real-W. i. p. 244, v. Eden), and is used by the LXX for גַּן־עֵדֶן (Gan-Eden), the Garden of Eden or Delight. Gen. ii. 8—10. 15, 16; iii. 1—3, &c., and thence was employed figuratively by the Jewish writers (see Joseph. xviii. 1, and Wetstein's note here) to designate the place of rest and peace to which the souls of the faithful are conveyed, immediately on their deliverance from the burden of the flesh, and in which they enjoy a sweet repose, and a delightful foretaste of the full and final fruition of a glorious immortality, and in which they remain till the General Resurrection, when they will be reunited to their bodies, and be admitted to the infinite and everlasting bliss and glory of heaven.

"Paradise" is equivalent to "Abraham's bosom." See above, Luke xvi. 23, and cp. Acts ii. 31. 1 Pet. iii. 18, 19.

Leo M., Bishop of Rome, Serm. lxxi. de Ascens., says, "Hodie non solum Paradisi possessores formati sumus, sed etiam regni cœlorum in Christo superna penetravimus, ampliora adepti per ineffabilem Christi gratiam quam per diaboli amiseramus invidiam." Cp. Macar. p. 133, and Routh, who says (R. S. i. 10: cp. 15. 55. 66), "Paradisus distinguitur à Cœlo; et in eo loco, qui quidem justis præparatus est, οἱ μετατιθέντες dicuntur manere, auspicati incorruptelam." See also the Sermon of Bp. Bull, "On the middle state of Happiness and Misery," vol. i. pp. 49 to 82.

The following is from Kuin.: "Vocabulum παράδεισος h. l. non significat cœlum. Scilicet παράδεισος est vocabulum origine Persicum, non Græcum, ut Suidas et Auctor Etymol. M. tradunt. Pollux ix. 13, οἱ δὲ παράδεισοι, βαρβαρικὸν εἶναι δοκοῦν τοὔνομα, ἥκει καὶ κατὰ συνήθειαν εἰς χρῆσιν Ἑλληνικήν, ὡς καὶ ἄλλα πολλὰ τῶν Περσικῶν. Erant autem παράδεισοι, vivaria (Gellius ii. 19) septa muris et aquis irrigata nemora, ubi feræ alebantur, venationibus destinatæ. v. Curt. viii. 1. 11. Ex linguâ Persicâ nomen παράδεισος venit in linguam Hebraicam et Græcam, et usurpari consuevit, de loco quocunque amœno, ut Eccles. ii. 5. Cant. iv. 13. Neh. ii. 8, et in versione Alexandrinâ Gen. ii. 8, ubi in textu Hebraico legitur גַּן־עֵדֶן (Gan-Eden), positum extat de regione illâ amœnissimâ, quam Deus habitandam assignarat Adamo. Hinc Judæi hâc voce utebantur de sede animarum piarum post mortem, ἐν τῷ ᾅδῃ v. not. ad Luc. xvi. 23, quas ibi usque ad resurrectionem corporum mansuras statuebant. vid. Joseph. Ant. xviii. 1. 3. Conf. Wetstenius ad h. l. qui etiam è scriptis Rabbinorum solennes preces Judæorum moribundorum attulit has: sin mihi moriendum erit—da portionem meam in horto Edenis, et memento mei in futuro sæculo, quod reconditum est justis. Similes preces illis quæ h. l. v. 42 leguntur μνήσθητι κ.τ.λ. Etiam veteres Christiani diu discernebant Paradisum à Cœlo; laudavit hanc in rem Wetstenius verba Tertulliani Apologet. si Paradisum nominemus, locum divinæ amœnitatis, recipiendis sanctorum spiritibus, non cœlum intelligimus. Sic et h. l. per παράδεισον, Judæorum cogitandi et loquendi consuetudini convenienter, intelligi debet locus in quo piorum animæ post mortem commorantur, usque dum, cum corporibus iterum conjunctæ, in futurum sæculum recipiantur."

On the case of the Penitent Thief, see St. Aug. Tract. in Joann. xlvii., and Serm. xxiii. 3, "Latro pendens cum Domino credidit in Christum quandò de illo discipuli dubitaverunt.

"Contempserunt Judæi mortuos suscitantem, non contempsit latro secum in cruce pendentem," and Serm. ccxxxiv. 2. "In cruce latro vos vocat. . . . Crux illi schola erat. Ibi docuit Magister latronem; lignum pendentis cathedra factum est docentis."

44. ἦν δὲ ὡσεὶ ὥρα ἕκτη] See Matt. xxvii. 45. Mark xv. 33.

46. παρατίθεμαι] So A, B, C, K, M, P, Q, X, and others.—Elz. has παραθήσομαι, the reading of many MSS., derived perhaps from LXX version of Ps. xxxi. 6.

47. δίκαιος ἦν] St. Matt. (xxvii. 54) and St. Mark (xv. 39) say υἱὸς ἦν Θεοῦ. Perhaps St. Luke explains by δίκαιος ἦν, the sense in which the centurion used the words υἱὸς ἦν Θεοῦ. St. Aug. de Consens. Evang. iii. c. 20.

μνήματι λαξευτῷ, οὗ οὐκ ἦν οὐδέπω οὐδεὶς κείμενος. (334/X) 54 Καὶ ἡμέρα ἦν παρασκευή· σάββατον ἐπέφωσκε.

55 [1] Κατακολουθήσασαι δὲ γυναῖκες, αἵτινες ἦσαν συνεληλυθυῖαι αὐτῷ ἐκ τῆς Γαλιλαίας, ἐθεάσαντο τὸ μνημεῖον, καὶ ὡς ἐτέθη τὸ σῶμα αὐτοῦ· (335/VIII) 56 ὑποστρέψασαι δὲ ἡτοίμασαν ἀρώματα καὶ μύρα· καὶ τὸ μὲν σάββατον ἡσύχασαν κατὰ τὴν ἐντολήν. XXIV. (336/I) 1 τῇ δὲ μιᾷ τῶν σαββάτων ὄρθρου βαθέος ἦλθον ἐπὶ τὸ μνῆμα φέρουσαι ἃ ἡτοίμασαν ἀρώματα· καί τινες σὺν αὐταῖς. 2 [a] Εὗρον δὲ τὸν λίθον ἀποκεκυλισμένον ἀπὸ τοῦ μνημείου, 3 καὶ εἰσελθοῦσαι οὐχ εὗρον τὸ σῶμα τοῦ Κυρίου Ἰησοῦ. 4 Καὶ ἐγένετο ἐν τῷ διαπορεῖσθαι αὐτὰς περὶ τούτου, καὶ ἰδοὺ, [b] ἄνδρες δύο ἐπέστησαν αὐταῖς ἐν ἐσθήσεσιν ἀστραπτούσαις. (337/II) 5 Ἐμφόβων δὲ γενομένων αὐτῶν καὶ κλινουσῶν τὸ πρόσωπον εἰς τὴν γῆν, εἶπον πρὸς αὐτάς, Τί ζητεῖτε τὸν ζῶντα μετὰ τῶν νεκρῶν; 6 οὐκ ἔστιν ὧδε, ἀλλ' ἠγέρθη· μνήσθητε ὡς ἐλάλησεν ὑμῖν ἔτι ὢν ἐν τῇ Γαλιλαίᾳ 7 λέγων, Ὅτι δεῖ τὸν Υἱὸν τοῦ ἀνθρώπου παραδοθῆναι εἰς χεῖρας ἀνθρώπων ἁμαρτωλῶν, καὶ σταυρωθῆναι, καὶ τῇ τρίτῃ ἡμέρᾳ ἀναστῆναι. (338/II) 8 Καὶ ἐμνήσθησαν τῶν ῥημάτων αὐτοῦ· 9 καὶ ὑποστρέψασαι ἀπὸ τοῦ μνημείου ἀπήγγειλαν ταῦτα πάντα τοῖς ἕνδεκα, καὶ πᾶσι τοῖς λοιποῖς. (339/X) 10 Ἦσαν δὲ ἡ Μαγδαληνὴ Μαρία καὶ Ἰωάννα καὶ Μαρία Ἰακώβου, καὶ αἱ λοιπαὶ σὺν αὐταῖς, αἳ ἔλεγον πρὸς τοὺς ἀποστόλους ταῦτα. 11 Καὶ ἐφάνησαν ἐνώπιον αὐτῶν ὡσεὶ λῆρος τὰ ῥήματα αὐτῶν, καὶ ἠπίστουν αὐταῖς. 12 [c] Ὁ δὲ Πέτρος ἀναστὰς ἔδραμεν ἐπὶ τὸ μνημεῖον, καὶ παρακύψας βλέπει τὰ ὀθόνια κείμενα μόνα· καὶ ἀπῆλθε πρὸς ἑαυτὸν θαυμάζων τὸ γεγονός.

13 [d] Καὶ ἰδοὺ, δύο ἐξ αὐτῶν ἦσαν πορευόμενοι ἐν αὐτῇ τῇ ἡμέρᾳ εἰς κώμην ἀπέχουσαν σταδίους ἑξήκοντα ἀπὸ Ἰερουσαλὴμ, ᾗ ὄνομα Ἐμμαούς· 14 καὶ αὐτοὶ ὡμίλουν πρὸς ἀλλήλους περὶ πάντων τῶν συμβεβηκότων τούτων. 15 [e] Καὶ

a Mark 16. 4, 5.
b Matt. 28. 2, 5, 6. 8. Mark 16. 6, 8.
c John 20. 3, 6.
d Mark 16. 12.
e Matt. 18. 20. ver. 36.

1 Matt. 27. 61. & 28. 1. Mark 16. 1, 2.

---

53. οὗ οὐκ ἦν οὐδέπω οὐδεὶς κείμενος] See John xix. 41.

Our Lord took human nature in the womb of the Blessed Virgin; to which the prophecy has been applied, "This gate shall be shut, it shall not be opened; and no man shall enter in by it, because the Lord the God of Israel hath entered in by it" (Ezek. xliv. 2). Cp. Bp. Pearson on the Creed, Art. iii. And from the secret darkness of that bridal chamber, in which He espoused our nature, He went forth to redeem the world. And His human body is now laid in a new tomb, where none other was ever laid, and thence He comes forth, that all who are in the graves may rise by Him. In the former case, Joseph of Bethlehem is the guardian of His sacred body; in the latter, Joseph of Arimathea; one Joseph, from the city of David, the greatest of Kings; the other Joseph from the city of Samuel, the greatest of Prophets, who anointed David to be king. Cp. Bede here, and see note on Matt. xxvii. 57.

56. τὸ μὲν σάββατον] They had prepared some ἀρώματα or spices before the sunset of the sixth day (see v. 56), and brought more after sunset of the seventh day. See on Mark xv. 46; xvi. 1.

They rested on the Seventh Day or Sabbath (ἐσαββάτιζον), such was their reverence, which Christ had inculcated, for the Law, according to the fourth commandment, which was now fulfilled in Christ (Col. ii. 17), resting on the Sabbath in the Grave. He is the true Sabbath in whom the Father rests and is well-pleased, and Who is the Rest of the Soul and the Body. For He says, "Come unto Me—and I will give you rest" (Matt. xi. 28), and "Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord, for they rest from their labours" (Rev. xiv. 13).

The seventh Day Sabbath itself died and was buried with Christ, and rose again with Him to new life and beauty on the First Day of the week, hence called (Rev. i. 10) κυριακὴ, 'dies dominicus,' or the Lord's Day; and the command to rest was transferred from the seventh day of the week to the first.

It is observable that our Lord, the second Adam, the Author of our life, died on the sixth day of the week, the day on which the first Adam—the author of our death—was born.

This was very appropriate; for we derive all our spiritual life from His death. He died in order that we might be born anew, and live for evermore.

"Sextâ Sabbati," says St. Aug. in Joan. Tract. xvii., "inclinato capite, reddidit spiritum, et in sepulchro Sabbato requievit de omnibus operibus suis." Thus the first Sabbath on which God rested from His works was a type of the last Sabbath on which Christ rested from His works in the grave. And yet, be it remembered, His Rest was a Rest of Mercy, a Rest of Beneficence. (See on John v. 17.) For on that day "He went and preached to the Spirits in prison" (1 Pet. iii. 18, 19). What a Sabbath day's Journey was that!

See further the notes on John v. 17, and on Matt. xxviii. 1.

CH. XXIV. 1. τῇ μιᾷ] Matt. xxviii. 1.

The first day of the week is the day after the Sabbath, or Seventh Day, and is therefore the Eighth Day; and therefore it is observed by the Fathers that our Lord arose on the Eighth Day. See the passage of St. Barnabas, c. 15, quoted below on v. 50 of this Chapter.

Indeed, as the number Seven is the Sabbatical number in Holy Scripture, so Eight may be be called the Dominical. Seven is expressive of rest in Christ; Eight of Resurrection to new life in Him.

In accordance with this principle, the Eighth Day was the Day of Circumcision (cp. Luke i. 59. Phil. iii. 5),—the type of Christian Baptism,—the Sacrament of Resurrection,—in which we rise from the death of sin to newness of Life in Him. Hence also we find that the Transfiguration—which was a figure and a glimpse of the future glory of the bodies of the Saints after the Resurrection—is mentioned as having taken place eight days after our Lord had said "There be some standing here which shall not taste of death till they see the kingdom of God." (Luke ix. 27.) As St. Ambrose says there, "Quid est quod ait, In diebus octo? Quia is qui verba Christi audit, et credit, Resurrectionis tempore gloriam Christi videbit. Octavâ enim die facta est Resurrectio. Unde et plerique Psalmi in Octavam inscribuntur."

Our Lord received the name JESUS on the eighth day (Luke ii. 21); and as Jesus, Joshua, Saviour, He brings us to the heavenly Canaan,—to the glory of the Resurrection. The great Day of the Feast of Tabernacles—the type of His Incarnation—was the Eighth. See on John vi. 39. And (as has been noticed by Mr. Heft) the word Ἰησοῦς = 888.

2. τὸν λίθον] the stone. St. Luke takes for granted that his readers are aware from the other Gospels (see Matt. xxvii. 60. Mark xv. 46), that there was a stone on the mouth of the tomb. So also St. John xx. 1.

5. τὸν ζῶντα] the living one—and the Cause of Life; for He said, "I am the Resurrection and the Life" (John xi. 25).

10. Μαρία Ἰακώβου] The article ἡ is prefixed to Ἰακώβου in A, B, D, K, S, V, Z, perhaps rightly.

13. Ἐμμαούς] According to local tradition, Kubeibeh, N.W. of Jerusalem. Cp. Lightfoot, ii. 42. But see Robinson, iii. 65. Winer in v., i. p. 325.

The true position seems to have been lost before the times of Jerome and Eusebius. (See Robinson, iii. 66.) It is called Ἀμμαοὺς by Josephus, B. J. vii. 6. 6.

14. ὡμίλουν] ἐλάλουν used in this sense by LXX, and in N. T. only by St. Luke. See xxiv. 15. Acts xx. 11; xxiv. 26.

Ὁμιλέω is the word now in common use in Greece for λαλῶ.

ἐγένετο ἐν τῷ ὁμιλεῖν αὐτοὺς καὶ συζητεῖν, καὶ αὐτὸς ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἐγγίσας συνεπορεύετο αὐτοῖς· 16 οἱ δὲ ὀφθαλμοὶ αὐτῶν ἐκρατοῦντο τοῦ μὴ ἐπιγνῶναι αὐτόν. 17 Εἶπε δὲ πρὸς αὐτούς, Τίνες οἱ λόγοι οὗτοι, οὓς ἀντιβάλλετε πρὸς ἀλλήλους περιπατοῦντες, καὶ ἐστε σκυθρωποί; 18 Ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ ὁ εἷς, ᾧ ὄνομα Κλεόπας, εἶπε πρὸς αὐτόν, Σὺ μόνος παροικεῖς Ἰερουσαλὴμ καὶ οὐκ ἔγνως τὰ γενόμενα ἐν αὐτῇ ἐν ταῖς ἡμέραις ταύταις; 19 [f] Καὶ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Ποῖα; Οἱ δὲ εἶπον αὐτῷ, Τὰ περὶ Ἰησοῦ τοῦ Ναζωραίου, ὃς ἐγένετο ἀνὴρ προφήτης, δυνατὸς ἐν ἔργῳ καὶ λόγῳ ἐναντίον τοῦ Θεοῦ καὶ παντὸς τοῦ λαοῦ· 20 ὅπως τε παρέδωκαν αὐτὸν οἱ ἀρχιερεῖς καὶ οἱ ἄρχοντες ἡμῶν εἰς κρῖμα θανάτου, καὶ ἐσταύρωσαν αὐτόν, 21 [g] ἡμεῖς δὲ ἠλπίζομεν ὅτι αὐτός ἐστιν ὁ μέλλων λυτροῦσθαι τὸν Ἰσραήλ· ἀλλά γε σὺν πᾶσι τούτοις τρίτην ταύτην ἡμέραν ἄγει σήμερον ἀφ' οὗ ταῦτα ἐγένετο. 22 [h] Ἀλλὰ καὶ γυναῖκές τινες ἐξ ἡμῶν ἐξέστησαν ἡμᾶς, γενόμεναι ὄρθριαι ἐπὶ τὸ μνημεῖον, 23 καὶ μὴ εὑροῦσαι τὸ σῶμα αὐτοῦ ἦλθον λέγουσαι καὶ ὀπτασίαν ἀγγέλων ἑωρακέναι, οἳ λέγουσιν αὐτὸν ζῆν. 24 Καὶ ἀπῆλθόν τινες τῶν σὺν ἡμῖν ἐπὶ τὸ μνημεῖον, καὶ εὗρον οὕτω καθὼς καὶ αἱ γυναῖκες εἶπον, αὐτὸν δὲ οὐκ εἶδον. 25 Καὶ αὐτὸς εἶπε πρὸς αὐτούς, Ὦ ἀνόητοι καὶ βραδεῖς τῇ καρδίᾳ τοῦ πιστεύειν ἐπὶ πᾶσιν οἷς ἐλάλησαν οἱ προφῆται. 26 [i] οὐχὶ ταῦτα ἔδει παθεῖν τὸν Χριστὸν, καὶ εἰσελθεῖν εἰς τὴν δόξαν αὐτοῦ; 27 [j] Καὶ ἀρξάμενος ἀπὸ Μωϋσέως καὶ ἀπὸ πάντων τῶν προφητῶν διηρμήνευεν αὐτοῖς ἐν πάσαις ταῖς γραφαῖς τὰ περὶ ἑαυτοῦ. 28 Καὶ ἤγγισαν εἰς τὴν κώμην οὗ ἐπορεύοντο· καὶ αὐτὸς προσεποιεῖτο πορρώτερω πορεύεσθαι. 29 [k] Καὶ παρεβιάσαντο αὐτὸν λέγοντες, Μεῖνον μεθ' ἡμῶν, ὅτι πρὸς ἑσπέραν ἐστὶ, καὶ κέf Matt. 21. 11. ch. 7. 16. John 4. 19. & 6. 14.

g Acts 1. 6.
h Matt. 28. 8. Mark 16. 10. John 20. 18.
i Isa. 50. 6. & 53, toto. Phil. 2 7, &c. Heb. 12. 2. 1 Pet. 1. 11.
j Gen. 3. 15. & 22. 18. & 26. 4. & 49. 10. Ps. 16. 8—10. & 22. toto. & 132. 11. Dan. 9. 24, &c.
k Gen. 19. 3. Acts 16. 15. Heb. 13. 2.

---

16. ἐκρατοῦντο] He seems to have appeared to them like a πάροικος. See on v. 18 and Mark xvi. 12.

18. Κλεόπας] Supposed by Routh (R. S. i. p. 281) to be the same as the Κλωπᾶς of St. John (ix. 25) and the Alphæus of St. Matthew and St. Mark, who never mention Cleopas, the father of St. James and St. Jude. (See on Matt. x. 3.) St. John never has Ἀλφαῖος. Others suppose Κλεόπας here to be a different word altogether, viz. an abbreviation of Κλεόπατρος. Cp. Mill., pp. 236, 237.

Some suppose that the other disciple, whose name St. Luke does not mention, was St. Luke himself. (Theophyl.) — σὺ μόνος παροικεῖς] Perhaps our Lord seemed to them to wear the dress and speak the dialect of a stranger.

The sense is: "Art Thou alone a sojourner at Jerusalem, and dost not know what things have happened there? i. e. all others who sojourn there do know. Have we met in thee the only person who does not know?"

The expression is stronger, because παροικεῖν describes the persons who were temporary residents for the Passover. The LXX use the word παροικεῖν for יָשַׁב (yashab), sedit, and more often for גּוּר (gur), peregrinus fuit. There is an emphasis, therefore, on παροικεῖς, —"Art thou alone a sojourner, or stranger, staying merely for a few days at Jerusalem, and yet dost not know?" i. e. so wonderful are they, that not only the Jews there resident, but even the strangers who have flocked thither from other lands, do know them.

The use of καὶ here is similar to that of the Hebrew Vau. See Schroeder, Syntax. Hebr. p. 328. Gesen. ad Is. v. 4: "What could have been done more to My Vineyard and I have not done in it?" And so καὶ in John iii. 10, σὺ εἶ ὁ διδάσκαλος τοῦ Ἰσραὴλ, καὶ ταῦτα οὐ γινώσκεις; vii. 4, οὐδεὶς ἐν κρυπτῷ τι ποιεῖ καὶ ζητεῖ αὐτὸς ἐν παρρησίᾳ εἶναι. Cp. Winer, p. 554.

Observe, He who was the principal Agent in these wonderful events, is said by them to be the only person who did not know these things. He that was the true Passover was taken by them for a stranger who had come up to be a spectator at the Passover. For their eyes were then holden that they should not know Him, but they were opened when they received Him as the guest of their hearts in the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

21. ἄγει] impersonaliter: 'tertia dies est hodie.' (Vulg.) Cp. Acts xix. 38, ἀγόραιοι (sc. ἡμέραι) ἄγονται.

25, 26.] On these verses see Iren. iii. 16. 5, Athanas. (adv. Arian.) ii. 15, p. 381, and below on Acts ii. 36.

27. Μωϋσέως, κ.τ.λ.] 'Moses and the Prophets,' i. e. the Scriptures of the Old Testament. See above, xvi. 19, and on John ix. 34.

28. προσεποιεῖτο] Not aorist προσεποιήσατο, but imperfect προσεποιεῖτο. The Vulgate finxit is liable to a double objection,—first as to sense, next as to tense. Finxit suggests the idea of pretending to do what is not intended to be done; and the aorist intimates a single act.

The meaning is,—He was making overtures to go further. He was like one going further.

Probably he acted thus, as well as appeared "in another form" (Mark xvi. 12), in order to try the faith of the disciples; and to teach us, by their example, that if we desire to have Christ with us, we must use some effort for that purpose; and that if we endeavour to detain Him with us, He will abide with us and sup with us. (Rev. iii. 20.)

This trial of the disciples was similar to that of the woman of Canaan (Matt. xv. 22). At first He treated her with apparent indifference and severity; but it was to bring out more clearly her faith and love, and to teach the world by her example that patience and perseverance in prayer is necessary, and that He is prevailed upon by holy violence and untiring importunity.

There was nothing but truth in this. He made as if He would have gone further; and doubtless He would have gone further, if the disciples had not detained Him. Cp. the similar phrase Mark vi. 48.

God, Who sees and hears all things, often seems to us not to see us, and not to hear us; and, doubtless, He will hide His face from us, and be deaf to our prayers, unless we look stedfastly and cry earnestly to Him. God tries our strength, by seeming to partake in our weakness. He exercises our faith in His knowledge and love by seeming to be ignorant and unmerciful. So Christ tested and proved the desire of the disciples to keep Him, by showing an intention to leave them.

All the acts of this period of our Lord's sojourn on earth appear to have had a profound spiritual meaning. It was now evening. He made as though He would go further. He was like one about to go further (προσποιεῖται, σχηματίζεται, Hesych.). But at their desire He consented to abide with them. He was made manifest to them in the breaking of bread. Our Lord had said on the cross, "It is finished" (John xix. 30). The day of His earthly ministry was now over. The evening was come. He was no longer to be with His disciples in bodily presence on earth; He was going further—to heaven. Every thing now betokened this departure. And yet, at their prayer He would not leave them; He would remain with them even to the end (Matt. xxviii. 20), and He would specially manifest Himself to the eyes of the faithful in the breaking of bread (v. 35), by which they communicate with Him, and show the Lord's death till He come. (1 Cor. xi. 26.)[1] [1] See the interesting discussion of St. Aug. Serm. lxxxix. 4, and de Consensu Evang. ii. 51; iii. 25 (which have suggested in part what is said above), and ad Consentium vi. p. 779, where he says, "Longius namque postea profectus super cœlos, non tamen deseruit discipulos suos." and compare our Lord's questions, Who touched me? (Luke viii. 45.) Where have ye laid him? (John xi. 34.) "Sic quippe interrogavit quasi nesciens quod utique sciebat." Aug. refutes the Priscillianists, who from these actions of our Lord derive a plea for mental reserve and equivocation.

---

Maldonatus gives another exposition which does not appear satisfactory. But it may be observed, that Aug. and the Schoolmen were entangled in a needless perplexity by the unfortunate words of the Vulgate, "finxit se longius ire." κλικεν ἡ ἡμέρα. Καὶ εἰσῆλθε τοῦ μεῖναι σὺν αὐτοῖς. 30 Καὶ ἐγένετο ἐν τῷ κατακλιθῆναι αὐτὸν μετ' αὐτῶν λαβὼν τὸν ἄρτον εὐλόγησε, καὶ κλάσας ἐπεδίδου αὐτοῖς. 31 Αὐτῶν δὲ διηνοίχθησαν οἱ ὀφθαλμοὶ καὶ ἐπέγνωσαν αὐτόν· καὶ αὐτὸς ἄφαντος ἐγένετο ἀπ' αὐτῶν. 32 Καὶ εἶπον πρὸς ἀλλήλους, Οὐχὶ ἡ καρδία ἡμῶν καιομένη ἦν ἐν ἡμῖν, ὡς ἐλάλει ἡμῖν ἐν τῇ ὁδῷ, καὶ ὡς διήνοιγεν ἡμῖν τὰς γραφάς; 33 Καὶ ἀναστάντες αὐτῇ τῇ ὥρᾳ ὑπέστρεψαν εἰς Ἰερουσαλὴμ, καὶ εὗρον συνηθροισμένους τοὺς ἕνδεκα καὶ τοὺς σὺν αὐτοῖς 34 [1] λέγοντας, ὅτι ἠγέρθη ὁ Κύριος ὄντως καὶ ὤφθη Σίμωνι. 35 Καὶ αὐτοὶ ἐξηγοῦντο τὰ ἐν τῇ ὁδῷ, καὶ ὡς ἐγνώσθη αὐτοῖς ἐν τῇ κλάσει τοῦ ἄρτου. 1 Cor. 15. 5.

(840 IX) 36 [m] Ταῦτα δὲ αὐτῶν λαλούντων, αὐτὸς ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἔστη ἐν μέσῳ αὐτῶν, καὶ λέγει αὐτοῖς, Εἰρήνη ὑμῖν. 37 Πτοηθέντες δὲ καὶ ἔμφοβοι γενόμενοι ἐδόκουν πνεῦμα θεωρεῖν. 38 Καὶ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Τί τεταραγμένοι ἐστὲ, καὶ διατί διαλογισμοὶ ἀναβαίνουσιν ἐν ταῖς καρδίαις ὑμῶν; 39 [n] Ἴδετε τὰς χεῖράς μου καὶ τοὺς πόδας μου, ὅτι αὐτὸς ἐγώ εἰμι· ψηλαφήσατέ με καὶ ἴδετε, ὅτι πνεῦμα σάρκα καὶ ὀστέα οὐκ ἔχει, καθὼς ἐμὲ θεωρεῖτε ἔχοντα. 40 Καὶ τοῦτο εἰπὼν ἐπέδειξεν αὐτοῖς τὰς χεῖρας καὶ τοὺς πόδας. (841 IX) 41 [o] Ἔτι δὲ ἀπιστούντων αὐτῶν ἀπὸ τῆς χαρᾶς καὶ θαυμαζόντων, εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Ἔχετέ τι βρώσιμον ἐνθάδε; 42 Οἱ δὲ ἐπέδωκαν αὐτῷ ἰχθύος ὀπτοῦ μέρος καὶ ἀπὸ μελισσίου κηρίου· 43 καὶ λαβὼν ἐνώπιον αὐτῶν ἔφαγεν. (842 X) 44 [p] Εἶπε δὲ αὐτοῖς, Οὗτοι οἱ λόγοι οὓς ἐλάλησα πρὸς ὑμᾶς ἔτι ὢν σὺν ὑμῖν, ὅτι δεῖ πληρωθῆναι πάντα τὰ γεγραμμένα ἐν τῷ νόμῳ Μωϋσέως καὶ Προφήταις καὶ Ψαλμοῖς περὶ ἐμοῦ. 45 Τότε διήνοιξεν αὐτῶν τὸν νοῦν τοῦ συνιέναι τὰς γραφὰς, 46 [q] καὶ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Ὅτι οὕτω γέγραπται, καὶ οὕτως ἔδει παθεῖν τὸν Χριστὸν, καὶ ἀναστῆναι ἐκ νεκρῶν τῇ τρίτῃ ἡμέρᾳ, 47 [r] καὶ κηρυχθῆναι ἐπὶ τῷ ὀνόματι αὐτοῦ μετάνοιαν καὶ ἄφεσιν ἁμαρτιῶν εἰς πάντα τὰ ἔθνη, ἀρξάμενον ἀπὸ Ἰερουσαλήμ. 48 [s] Ὑμεῖς δέ ἐστε μάρτυρες τούτων. 49 [t] Καὶ ἰδοὺ, ἐγὼ ἀποστέλλω τὴν ἐπαγγελίαν τοῦ Πατρός μου ἐφ' ὑμᾶς· ὑμεῖς δὲ καθίσατε ἐν τῇ πόλει Ἰερουσαλὴμ, ἕως οὗ ἐνδύσησθε δύναμιν ἐξ ὕψους.

m Mark 16. 14. John 20. 19.

n John 20. 20, 27.

o John 21. 10.

p Matt. 16. 21. & 17. 22. & 20. 18. Mark 8. 31. & 9. 31. & 10. 33. ch. 9. 22. & 18. 31. & 24. 6.

q ver. 26. Ps. 22. 7. Acts 17. 3.

r Acts 13. 38. 1 John 2. 12.

s Job 15. 27.

t John 14. 26. & 15. 26. & 16. 7. Acts 1. 4. & 2. toto.

---

30. λαβὼν τὸν ἄρτον—καὶ κλάσας] See v. 35, ἐγνώσθη αὐτοῖς ἐν τῇ κλάσει τοῦ ἄρτου,—i. e. 'inter edendum.' Hence some would justify their celebration of the Holy Eucharist in one kind only. But by saying that He blessed and brake the Bread, the Holy Spirit does not say that He did not also bless and deliver the cup. Rather we may say, that the Evangelist, having so lately recorded the institution of the Holy Eucharist by Christ with the words ὡσαύτως καὶ τὸ ποτήριον (Luke xxii. 20), could hardly suppose it necessary to speak of the cup here as well as the bread, or imagine it possible that any one should believe that our Lord had forgotten His own words, and was inconsistent with Himself.

It is to be remembered that bread, ἄρτος, לֶחֶם (lehem), was to the Jews a general name for food, including drink as well as meat; and that ἄρτον ἐσθίειν, to eat bread, and κλάσαι ἄρτον, distribuere cibum, are general terms for taking refreshment.

Thus bread became spiritually an expressive term for all the blessings received from communion in Christ's body and blood; and the κλάσις, or breaking of bread, was suggestive of the source from which those blessings flow (viz.), Christ's body, κλώμενον, or broken. (1 Cor. xi. 24.)

Hence κλάσις ἄρτου, in Acts ii. 42, is a term for the Holy Eucharist. Cp. xx. 7, κλάσαι ἄρτον.

They who derive the inference above specified from this passage, prove the weakness of that inference by their own practice. For, even suppose it were probable (which it is not), that our Lord on this occasion did not administer the cup; yet the most that could be thence inferred is, that in certain cases it may not be necessary for the people to receive it, but they in their practice make it necessary not to receive it in all cases, which is a very different thing.

Let them listen to the words of one of the greatest Bishops of Rome, who thus speaks of Half-Communion (Leo M., Serm. xli.): "Resiliunt à sacramento salutis humanæ, et Christum Dominum nostrum in verâ naturæ nostræ carne verè natum, verè passum, verè sepultum, et verè suscitatum esse non credunt. Cùmque ad tegendum infidelitatem suam nostris audeant interesse mysteriis, ita in sacramentorum communione se temperant, ut interdum, ne penitus latere non possint, ore indigno Christi Corpus accipiant, Sanguinem autem redemptionis nostræ haurire omninò declinent. Quod ideò vestræ notum facimus sanctitati, ut vobis hujuscemodi homines et his manifestentur indiciis, et quorum deprehensa fuerit sacrilega simulatio à Sanctorum societate Sacerdotali autoritate pellantur."

31. ἄφαντος ἐγένετο] and yet He had a real body. "Quòd ab oculis repentè evanuit, virtus Dei est, non umbræ et phantasmatis. Ante Resurrectionem, quum eduxissent eum de Nazareth ut præcipitarent de supercilio montis, transivit per medios et elapsus est." See the excellent remarks of St. Jerome, on the risen bodies of the Saints ('adversus errores Johannis Hierosolym.' p. 329), who observes, that Our Lord before His Passion walked on the water, and enabled Peter also to do so. See also on John xx. 19.

33. συνηθροισμένους] See Mede's Discourse, i. book ii., on Churches in the first century.

35. κλάσει τοῦ ἄρτου] in the Holy Communion. See above, on v. 30.

39, 40.] See John xx. 20—29.

43. ἔφαγεν] See John xxi. 10. Acts x. 40, 41. Mark xvi. 14. Not because He had need of food for the body, but because they had need of faith for the soul. Our Lord gives evidence here of His own resurrection. He also affords us an image of our own resurrection, and of the nature of the bodies of the Saints after the resurrection. See St. Ambrose here, and St. Gregory (Moral. in Evang. xvi. c. 55).

44. οὗτοι οἱ λόγοι] A, D, K, L, N, X, all μου, perhaps rightly. — ἐν τῷ νόμῳ M. καὶ Προφήταις καὶ Ψαλμοῖς] i. e. in the entire Canon of the Holy Scriptures of the Old Testament, which was divided into the three classes here mentioned:—

1. The Law תּוֹרָה (Torah).
2. The Prophets נְבִיאִים (Nebiym), greater and lesser.
3. The Hagiographa כְּתוּבִים (Chethubim), or Writings, of which last class "the Psalms" standing first in order, is here the representative. See Bp. Cosin on the Canon, chapter ii., and the authorities cited in the Editor's Lectures on that subject (Lect. ii. and Appendix, pp. 389. 398. 403, 2nd ed.), where the importance of this passage is shown in reference to the Integrity and Inspiration of the Canonical Books of the Old Testament, as received by the ancient people of God and by CHRIST Himself, and through Him by the primitive Church Universal, and by the Church of England. (Art. vi.)

46. παθεῖν τὸν Χριστόν] On the legal and prophetical foreshadowings of Christ's suffering and Resurrection on the third day, see Mede, Discourses, Book i. Disc. xiii. Works, p. 49.

u Acts 1. 12.
v Mark 16. 19. Acts i. 9.

50 u Ἐξήγαγε δὲ αὐτοὺς ἔξω ἕως εἰς Βηθανίαν· καὶ ἐπάρας τὰς χεῖρας αὐτοῦ εὐλόγησεν αὐτούς. 51 v Καὶ ἐγένετο ἐν τῷ εὐλογεῖν αὐτὸν αὐτοὺς διέστη ἀπ' αὐτῶν, καὶ ἀνεφέρετο εἰς τὸν οὐρανόν. 52 Καὶ αὐτοὶ προσκυνήσαντες αὐτὸν ὑπέστρεψαν εἰς Ἰερουσαλὴμ μετὰ χαρᾶς μεγάλης· 53 καὶ ἦσαν διαπαντὸς ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ αἰνοῦντες καὶ εὐλογοῦντες τὸν Θεόν. ἀμήν.

---

50. ἐξήγαγεν αὐτούς] at the end of forty days (see Acts i. 3). Another instance of St. Luke's manner, "ad eventum festinantis." Cp. iii. 19.

He thus also affords a refutation of the allegation, that St. Mark did not know that our Lord was forty days on earth after His Resurrection; or, as the objection is now sometimes framed (e. g. by Meyer here, p. 516), that the sojourn for forty days was a later tradition! See on Mark xix. 19.

St. Luke certainly did know that our Blessed Lord was forty days on earth after His resurrection, for he relates the fact in the second part of his work, viz. in Acts i. 3. And yet, in his Gospel, the transition from the Resurrection to the Ascension,—without any mention of the intervening Forty Days,—is quite as rapid as in St. Mark.

No argument can be drawn from the silence of any single Evangelist, as to his knowledge of events. St. John was present at the Ascension of Christ. Yet he does not relate it in the order of his history. But in two other places of his Gospel he alludes to it. See John vi. 22; xx. 17. He supposes the reader to know it from the other Gospels (Mark xvi. 19. Luke xxiv. 51). It cannot be too carefully borne in mind,—that All the Four Gospels are One Gospel.

There is a passage in the Epistle of Barnabas (c. 15), which has been cited in modern times as an argument that Our Lord's Ascension did not take place after an interval of forty days from His Resurrection, but on a Sunday. Ἄγομεν τὴν ἡμέραν τὴν ὀγδόην εἰς εὐφροσύνην, ἐν ᾗ καὶ ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἀνέστη ἐκ νεκρῶν, καὶ φανερωθεὶς ἀνέβη εἰς τοὺς οὐρανούς. But there φανερωθεὶς is to be construed with ἐν ᾗ, and not with ἀνέβη. See notes in the edition of Cotelerius, i. p. 48. The Author of this Epistle passes immediately, in this passage, from the Resurrection to the Ascension. And so do all the Creeds of all Churches of Christendom, with the Acts of the Apostles (i. 3) in their hands. Barnabas himself was present at, and concerned in, a speech in which it is said that our Lord remained on earth many days after His Resurrection (Acts xiii. 31).

— ἕως εἰς Βηθανίαν] On the Eastern slope of the Mount of Olives. Cp. Acts i. 12. Βηθανία (i. e. the village and its district) is considered a part of the Mount of Olives. See Mark xi. 1. 11. Luke xix. 29, and on xxi. 37. Matt. xxi. 17.

The tradition, which supposes the Ascension to have taken place on the summit of the Hill (see Robinson, Pal. i. 348), is at variance with this statement.

St. Cyril of Jerusalem says, Cateches. 14, p. 217, ἐκ τοῦ ὄρους τῶν Ἐλαιῶν εἰς οὐρανοὺς ἀνελήλυθεν.

51. ἐν τῷ εὐλογεῖν] As Elias left his mantle with Elisha, by whom he was seen when taken up, so Christ at His Ascension left a blessing with His Apostles and His Church. See 2 Kings ii. 9—11.

53. διαπαντός] 'continually.' See above, πάντοτε (xviii. 1). Acts x. 2. John xviii. 20. Glass. Phil. S. p. 444. "Semper orat," says Aug. Epist. 130, "qui per intervalla certa temporum orat."

ΤΟ ΚΑΤΑ ΙΩΑΝΝΗΝ

ΕΥΑΓΓΕΛΙΟΝ.

INTRODUCTORY NOTE TO ST. JOHN'S GOSPEL.

"Johannes יוֹחָנָן (Yohanan), Zebedæi, haud infimæ sortis piscatoris, Galilæi, et Salomes filius (Matth. iv. 21; xxvii. 56. Marc. xv. 40), primum magistro usus est Johanne Baptista (Joh. i. 37 sqq.), deinde autem adhuc adolescens[1], ut videtur, ad Christi signa sese contulit (v. Joh. l. c.), neque tamen statim ab initio comes ejus perpetuus fuit, sed Jesu jubente vel permittente ad artem suam aliquamdiu rediit; postea à Jesu, qui ad Capernaum proficiscebatur, ad lacum Genesaret (v. 37) iterum evocatus et in intimam familiaritatem ejus receptus est (Matth. iv. 21. Marc. i. 19. Luc. v. 10), ita ut unà cum Petro atque Jacobo fratre suo principem locum inter discipulos Christi teneret (Marc. v. 37. Matth. xvii. 1. Marc. ix. 1. Matth. xxvi. 37. Marc. xiv. 33), et magistro, quem ipse unicè amabat et suspiciebat, à cujus latere nunquam discedebat, esset omnium reliquorum discipulorum longè carissimus[2]." (Kuin. Guerike.)

"Cùm Christus ex his terris abiisset, Johannes, Petri comes assiduus, plures adhuc annos substitit Hierosolymis (Act. iii. 1 sqq. v. 18 sqq.). Post Stephani quidem necem unà cum Petro à Collegio Apostolorum ablegatus est Samariam, ubi Philippus complures ad religionem Christi adduxerat (Act. viii. 15), sed inde unà cum Petro rediit Hierosolymam, ibique, ut vetus traditio à Nicephoro[3] allata docet, coll. Act. i. 14, usque ad Mariæ matris Jesu mortem remansit; obiit illa, teste Eusebio, anno post C. N. XLVIII.

"In quamnam regionem, eâ mortuâ, Johannes se contulerit, definiri nequit, eum varias exteras, longiùsque remotas regiones peragrasse, haud improbabile est. Hoc autem certum videtur, eum a. LVIII. l. LIX. p. C. N. nondum fuisse Ephesi, cùm ejus Act. xx. 17, ubi narratur Paulum Ephesi presbyteros convenisse, nulla mentio facta sit. Haud dubiè post Petri et Pauli demum mortem, post a. LXVII., id quod et Irenæus adv. hær. iii. 3, confirmat, Asiam Minorem transgressus, stabilem sedem Ephesi fixit. Parum enim probabile est, Paulum, qui fundamentum alieno ædificio superstruere detrectaret (Rom. xv. 20), tam diù commoratum fuisse Ephesi et in Asiâ Minori, si Johannes jam ante ipsius adventum ecclesias ibi collegisset et curasset. Verosimile igitur est, Johannem seriùs in Asiâ Minori degisse, ubi septem urbium ecclesias, Smyrnensem, Pergamensem, Thyatirensem, Sardensem, Philadelphiensem, Laodicensem, præcipuè verò Ephesinam ecclesiam, rexit (Apoc. c. ii. 3).

"Johannem in insulam Patmum, inter Sporadas olim numeratam, relegatum fuisse, ex idoneis auctoribus constat, docet etiam locus Apoc. i. 9, sed de tempore relegationis diversa tradunt.

"Ac Epiphanius quidem hæres. li. 33, jam Claudio regnante, intra a. XLI—LIII. Johannem in illam insulam exsulatum abiisse, ibique Apocalypsin scripsisse, affirmat: αὐτοῦ δὲ προφητεύσαντος ἐν χρόνοις Κλαυδίου Καίσαρος ἀνωτάτω, ὅτε εἰς τὸν Πάτμον νῆσον ὑπῆρξεν è Patmo, eodem Claudio regnante, eum rediisse, tradit li. 12.

"Huic vero Epiphanii testimonio plura obstant. Etenim Epiphanius, qui[4] solus contra antiquiorum scriptorum fidem hanc sententiam tuetur, pro teste idoneo et locuplete haberi nequit, idque non tantùm ob ætatem recentiorem, sed etiam quia, ut rectè monuit Lampius Comment. in Joh. T. i. p. 17, turbatissima ejus vel hoc ipso in facto est chronologia[4]. Præterea nullum vestigium persecutionis Christianorum, regnante Claudio, in illorum temporum historiâ deprehenditur. Judæi quidem jussu Claudii Romam relinquere cogebantur, neque tamen ad alios, quàm ad Judæos Romæ degentes, illud edictum à Suetonio memoratum pertinebat, Christianos non spectabat. Nemo Patrum Claudium inter persecutores Christianorum numeravit. Neroni omnes primas partes dant. Johannes Ephesi degens, ut veteres tradunt, v. Eichhornii Einl. Th. ii. p. 107, inde in insulam Patmum relegatus est, eum autem jam Claudii tempore Ephesi commoratum esse, probari nequit.

"Plerosque movit Irenæi auctoritas, ut statuerent, à Domitiano exilio affectum fuisse Johannem[5]. Locus Irenæi adv. hær. v. 30, coll. Euseb. H. E. iii. 18, ita se habet: ἡμεῖς οὐκ ἀποκινδυνεύομεν περὶ τοῦ ὀνόματος τοῦ ἀντιχρίστου ἀναφαινόμενοι βεβαιωτικῶς· εἰ γὰρ ἔδει ἀναφανδὸν ἐν τῷ νῦν καιρῷ κηρύττεσθαι τοὔνομα τοῦτο, δι' ἐκείνου ἂν ἐῤῥέθη τοῦ καὶ τὴν Ἀποκάλυψιν ἑωρακότος. Οὐδὲ γὰρ πρὸ πολλοῦ χρόνου ἑωράθη, ἀλλὰ σχεδὸν ἐπὶ τῆς ἡμετέρας γενεᾶς, πρὸς τὸ τέλος Δομετιανοῦ ἀρχῆς. Irenæus quidem h. l. nullam exilii Johannis mentionem fecit, attamen memoravit τὴν ἀποκάλυψιν, quam contigisse Apostolo in insulâ Patmo locus Apoc. i. 9 docet; jam si ad τὴν ἀποκάλυψιν refertur verbum ἑωράθη, omnino ex Irenæi verbis colligi potest, sub Domitiano in insulâ Patmo Johannem vixisse[6].

---

[1] Hieronymus in Jovin. L. i. c. 14, Ut autem sciamus, Johannem tunc fuisse puerum, cùm à Jesu electus est, manifestissimè docent ecclesiasticæ historiæ, quòd usque ad Trajani exserit imperium. v. Lampii Prolegg. p. 17. add. infra § extr.

[2] Se magistro inprimis carum fuisse, Johannes ipse non semel, sed sæpiùs testatus est, ita tamen, ut nomen suum verecundè supprimeret. v. xiii. 23; xix. 26; xx. 2; xxi. 7. 10.

[3] Verba Nicephori H. E. ii. 42, ed. Paris, 1630, t. i. p. 206, sunt: ἱστορεῖται, ὡς ὁ θειότατος οὗτος Εὐαγγελιστὴς ('Ιωάννης) μετὰ τὴν εἰς οὐρανοὺς ἄνοδον Ἰησοῦ, συνὴν τῇ μητρὶ τοῦ Θεοῦ ἐν τῷ κατὰ τὸ Σιὼν οἴκῳ αὐτοῦ ἄχρι τῆς πρὸς Κύριον ἐκδημίας αὐτῆς· ἔπειτα δὲ ἐν 'Ασίᾳ γενόμενον εὐαγγελίσασθαι τὸν Χριστον. Quæ traditio, cui libri N. T. fidem addunt, ita intelligenda est: Johannes usque ad Mariæ mortem non diutina itinera suscepit, non diu ab Hierosolymis abfuit. v. Act. viii. 15.

[4] Johannem grandævum, regnante Claudio, de exsilio revocatum, Evangelium conscripsisse contendit Epiphanius, hær. 51, § 12. T. i. p. 434.

[5] Johannem iter Romam suscepisse, ibique Domitiani jussu, in vas ferventi oleo plenum immersum, sed incolumem inde prodiisse, atque tum in insulam Patmum relegatum fuisse, vetus traditio est. Auctor hujus traditionis est Tertullianus de præscriptionibus hæretic. c. 36, verba ejus sunt: Habes Romam—ubi Apostolus Johannes, posteaquam in oleum igneum immersus, nihil passus est, in insulam relegatur. Tertullianum secuti sunt auctor fragmentorum Polycarpo adscriptorum, et Hieronymus. Ille ait: Legitur et in dolio ferventis olei pro nomine Christi beatus Johannes fuisse demersus. Hieronymus autem lib. i. adv. Jovinian. c. 14, scribit: Refert Tertullianus, quòd à Nerone missus in ferventis olei dolium, purior et vegetior exierit, quàm intraverit. Silentio præterit hanc rem Eusebius in Demonstr. Evang. l. 3, c. 5. Nihil ibi aliud quàm hoc attulit: καὶ Πέτρος δὲ ἐπὶ Ῥώμης κατὰ κεφαλῆς (capite in terram verso) σταυροῦται, Παῦλός τε ἀποτέμνεται, 'Ιωάννης τε νήσῳ παραδίδοται. Cp. Origen in Matth. tom. xvi. 6.

[6] Eusebius in Chronico ad a. 14 Domitiani: 'Ιωάννην τὸν θεόλογον ἀπόστολον ἐν Πάτμῳ τῇ νήσῳ περιώρισεν, ἔνθα τὴν ἀποκάλυψιν ἑώρακεν, ὡς ὁ ἅγιος Εἰρηναῖος φησί. Cp. Euseb. iii. 18. 20. Dem. Evang. iii. 5. Etiam Hieronymus de script. Eccles. c. 10 scribit: Quarto decimo anno secundam post Neronem persecutionem movente Domitiano in Patmum insulam relegatus scripsit Apocalypsin. Id. ib. interfecto Domitiano et actis ejus ob nimiam crudelitatem à senatu rescissis, sub Nervâ principe redit Ephesum. Alios, qui hanc sententiam, Domitianum fuisse exilii Johannis auctorem, defenderunt, laudarunt Suicerus in Thes. Eccl. p. 1470. Lampius in Prolegg. T. i. p. 71 sqq. Fabricius et Keilius l. c. p. 789.

"De exilio Johannes revocatus, per longam annorum seriem, Ephesinam aliasque Asiæ ecclesias gubernavit, et in re Christianâ tuendâ atque adaugendâ omne reliquum vitæ tempus consumpsit, v. Clemens Alex. ap. Euseb. H. E. iii. 23. Mortuus est Johannes Ephesi, ut Origenes ap. Eusebium[1] H. E. iii. 1. c. 31. v. 24, et Hieronymus de script. eccl. 9, testantur. Quonam autem ætatis anno discesserit, dissentiunt scriptores veteres. Omnes ferè, excepto uno Isidoro Hispalensi (qui anno ætatis LXXXIX. Johannem mortuum esse tradit), eum nonagenario majorem, imperante Trajano, placidâ morte obiisse credunt, sed in decernendo Trajani anno, Johannis emortuali, non conveniunt. Sententias varias congesserunt Lampius l. c. p. 93 sqq. Wegscheiderus l. c. p. 59 sqq." (Kuin.)

The persons for whom St. John wrote were others beside Jews. He is careful to describe places in Judæa, and to explain the manners and customs of the Jews, and to interpret Hebrew words (see i. 39. 43; ii. 6. 13; iv. 5. 9; v. 1, 2; vi. 4).

The time at which he wrote was after St. Peter's death (see xviii. 10 and xxi. 19), and after the destruction of Jerusalem. Hence (as Chrys. observes) he does not record our Lord's prophecies concerning its siege and capture, which were contained in the other Gospels, published before that event. He would not appear to write prophecies after the event.

He wrote after the other three Evangelists. "Johannem enim omnium postremum scripsisse Evangelium tradit Euseb. H. E. iii. 24, ἤδη δὲ Μάρκου καὶ Λουκᾶ τῶν κατ' αὐτοὺς Εὐαγγελίων τὴν ἔκδοσιν πεποιημένων Ἰωάννην φασὶ τὸν πάντα χρόνον ἀγράφῳ κεχρημένον κηρύγματι, τέλος καὶ ἐπὶ τὴν γραφὴν ἐλθεῖν κ.τ.λ. add. Clemens Alex. ap. Euseb. H. E. vi. 15. Hieronymus Catal. Script. Eccles. c. 9, Johannes novissimus omnium scripsit Evangelium. Epiphanio teste, hæres. li. 12, Johannes nonagenario major, μετὰ ἔτη ἐννενήκοντα τῆς ἑαυτοῦ ζωῆς, Evangelium edidit, auctore Suida voc. Ἰωάννης, anno ætatis centesimo." (Kuin.)

The place at which he wrote was at Ephesus, in Asia Minor. So Irenæus adv. hær. iii. 1, ἔπειτα Ἰωάννης ὁ μαθητὴς τοῦ Κυρίου, ὁ καὶ ἐπὶ τὸ στῆθος αὐτοῦ ἀναπεσὼν, καὶ αὐτὸς ἐξέδωκε τὸ εὐαγγέλιον ἐν Ἐφέσῳ τῆς Ἀσίας διατρίβων (cf. ii. 22; iii. 23), add. Euseb. H. E. v. 8; iii. 24; vi. 14. Hieronymus Præfat. in Matth. "Johannes cùm esset in Asiâ, etiam tum hæreticorum semina pullularent—coactus est ab omnibus pænè tunc Asiæ episcopis et multarum ecclesiarum legationibus de divinitate Salvatoris altiùs scribere."

After the death of Domitian he returned from Patmos to Ephesus, where he lived to the reign of Trajan, and died near Ephesus, in the sixty-eight year after our Lord's crucifixion. (Iren. ii. 22, 5; iii. 3, 4. Euseb. iii. 23. Theophylact, ex Sophronio.)

St. John makes less use of the LXX Version than his predecessors. He employs it sometimes, see i. 23; ii. 17; vi. 45; x. 34; xii. 14; xv. 38. 25; xix. 24. 36; but deserts it sometimes, as xii. 40; xiii. 18; xix. 37 (Lücke, p. 171), a remarkable passage, to be compared with Rev. i. 7.

Thus while he shows his respect for the LXX Version, he also indicates that the final standard of appeal is the Hebrew Original. He writes not only for those who used the LXX, but for all.

As to his diction, "the Evangelist St. John," says Aug., "soars above the heights of earth, and the fields of air, and the stars, and the choirs and legions of angels. If he did not mount above all creatures, he could never have attained to speak as he does of Him by whom they were all created."

St. John saw, approved, and canonized the other Gospels, and wrote his Gospel as a sequel to them, and as the consummation of the evangelical canon.

The three former Gospels were brought to St. John, and were approved by him; and he observed that a more detailed narrative of what happened in the first year of our Lord's ministry, before the imprisonment of John, was still wanting; and he wrote his Gospel to supply this need (Euseb. H. E. iii. 24; vi. 14. Jerome, Cat. Scr. Eccl. 9. Epiphan. Hær. ii. 51), as well as for other reasons of a doctrinal nature. (Cp. Aug. de Cons. Ev. ii. 17.)

"Liquet," says Dr. Routh, R. Sacr. i. 407, "Lucæ Evangelium, unà cum duobus alteris Evangeliis, à Joanne Apostolo fuisse comprobatum." Cp. the Editor's Lectures on the Canon of Scripture, Lect. vi. p. 169, 2nd ed.; and see the authorities cited and the remarks made by Lee on Inspiration, pp. 387, 388.

In modern times, this uniform consent of Antiquity concerning the design of St. John's Gospel in relation to the other three, has been controverted and rejected by many, indeed by most continental critics. Their objections to it are thus drawn out and propounded by one of the most celebrated of the class, Dr. Friedrich Lücke, Commentar. über das Evang. d. Johannes i. pp. 197, 198.

Objection 1.—Allowing that the three other Gospels were, as is most likely, anterior to St. John's, we do not know that they were generally circulated or even known to St. John.

Answer.—This objection, like most of the others, to the witness of Christian Antiquity on the composition of St. John's Gospel, is grounded on disbelief of the Inspiration of the Gospels. If the Gospels are the work of the Holy Ghost writing for the edification of the Christian Church, it is morally certain that they were very early communicated to the Churches of Europe and Asia, according to the divine purpose of Him who wrote them, and in conformity with the commission of Christ to His Apostles to proclaim the Gospel to all nations. And it is incredible that St. John, who had received this charge, and was inspired by the Holy Ghost, should not have known what the Holy Spirit had done by the instrumentality of his brother Apostle St. Matthew, and the Evangelists St. Mark and St. Luke, also inspired by the Holy Ghost, for the execution of the Divine will and command in the diffusion of the Gospel.

Objection 2.—If St. John desired to authorize and complete the narrative of the three former Evangelists, he would have mentioned them by name, and declared his purpose of doing so.

Answer.—He would have been unlike other inspired writers, and unlike himself, if he had done so.

The later Prophets of the Old Testament enlarge upon and complete the prophecies of the earlier, but they do not mention their names or declare their own purpose to do what they do. (See Townson, pp. cxxxiv.—cxlvii.) St. John's Apocalypse may be called a sequel and completion of the prophecies of Ezekiel, Daniel, and Zechariah; but he never says that it is so, and never mentions their names.

Objection 3.—If St. John had intended to complete the other Gospels, he would not have repeated any thing that they relate, as he does in chaps. vi. and xii.

Answer.—This is by no means certain. On the contrary, by repeating some portions of the other Gospels, he has shown his knowledge of them; and that he adopts, confirms, and authenticates as true and as divinely inspired that history, which he, the beloved disciple, the last surviving Apostle, was (as Christian antiquity affirms) employed by the Holy Ghost, Who inspired him, to complete. By taking up some threads of the synoptical Gospels, as they are called, and weaving them into his own, he shows that they are all of one texture and tissue, and form one divine work.

He does the same in his Gospel, with the three other Gospels, as he has done in his Apocalypse with prophecies of Ezekiel, Daniel, and Zechariah. He adopts some of the substance and language, and confirms it, and adds to it. Thus he declares the unity and divine authority of the whole. If they are inspired, he who does not scruple to add to their work and complete it, is inspired; if he is inspired, that which he adopts into his own work is not of less authority than that into which it is adopted.

[1] On this subject, and on the date of the Apocalypse, see further below in the Introduction to that Book.

Objection 4.—If St. John desired to complete the other Gospels, he would not have differed from their narratives in sundry particulars; and he would not have done this without stating the points of difference and the reasons for it.

Answer.—This objection assumes what has not been proved, viz. that St. John does differ in certain substantial respects, and not merely in circumstantial additions and the like, from his predecessors.

The points in which it is alleged he differs from them will be considered in the notes in the following pages.

Objection 5.—If St. John had designed to complete the other Gospels, his own Gospel would not be so complete in itself as it is. It would have been like a supplement, and not a whole.

Answer.—The ancient Christian writers, in saying that St. John's Gospel is supplementary to the other three, never meant to say that it is only a supplement. Nor do they, who adopt their testimony, mean this. They regard St. John's Gospel as perfect in itself, as well as supplementary to the rest, and conducing to their perfection. To adopt the figure by which Christian antiquity describes the Gospels,—each of the Evangelical Cherubim, or Living Creatures, is perfect in itself; and each lends its aid in supporting the rest, and in forming the heavenly car on which the Spirit rides. The Eagle, the symbol of St. John, is perfect in himself, but he lends his aid to complete the evangelic quaternion, and to bear the Living Gospel, in which the Spirit moves, through all ages and into all quarters of the world.

St. Augustin says, "Although each of the Four Evangelists appears to have observed a peculiar order of his own, yet none of them designed to write as if he were ignorant of what had been written by his predecessor, nor did any pass over through ignorance what his predecessor had written. But each, according to the Inspiration which he received, added the necessary co-operation of his own work." (St. Aug. de Consens. Evang. lib. i.)

St. John excels in the depth of divine mysteries. For sixty years after the Ascension he preached without the aid of writing, to the end of Domitian's reign; and after the death of Domitian, having returned to Ephesus, by the permission of Nerva, he was induced by the Bishops of Asia[1] to write (his Gospel) concerning the divinity of Christ, co-eternal with the Father, to refute those heretics, Cerinthus (Iren. iii. 12) and the Ebionites (Hieron. Cat. 9), who denied that Christ had existed before Mary. Whence in the emblems of the four Living Creatures (Ezek. i. 10; x. 14. Rev. iv. 7), St. John is compared to the Eagle, who soars above all birds, and gazes with unflinching eye on the sun. (Aug., Theophylact, and Jerome, Proleg. in Matth.)

The three former Evangelists narrated our Lord's temporal acts and the sayings that were of most avail for regulating the conduct of this present life, and were conversant about the inculcation of active duties. St. John relates fewer acts of Christ, but is more full and minute in recording His sayings, particularly concerning the Unity of the Trinity and the felicity of life everlasting, and applies himself to the commendation of contemplative virtue. Hence the three other Living Creatures, by which the three other Evangelists are symbolized in the book of Ezekiel and in the Ayocalypse (Ezek. i. 5—10; x. 14. Rev. iv. 6—8), the Lion, the Man, and the Calf, walk on the earth, because the three other Evangelists were principally occupied in relating those things which Christ wrought in the flesh, and the practical precepts which he delivered to those who are in the flesh; but John soars, like the Eagle, above the clouds of human infirmity, and contemplates the light of never-waning truth with the keen and stedfast eye of faith; and gazes at the Divinity of Christ, by which He is equal to the Father, and endeavours to present it in his Gospel, as far as he thought sufficient for man. (St. Aug. de Consensu Evang. i. cap. 5, 6, ad Joann. Tract. xxxvi.)

Let us listen, therefore, with attention to his Gospel; for he now presents himself before us who is the Son of Thunder[2], the beloved Disciple of Christ, the Pillar of the Universal Church; he who holds the keys of heaven; he who drank of Christ's cup, and was baptized with His baptism, and leaned on His breast at supper. (Chrysostom, Hom. in S. Joann.)

St. John, says Bengel, presupposes many things which had been recorded by the former Evangelists, and were perfectly well known at the time when St. John wrote.

For example, Every thing that preceded His Baptism, particularly the place of His birth. Although our Lord on the cross commended His Mother to St. John, yet St. John never mentions His Mother's name.

The Temptation in the wilderness; the name of St. John himself, and his brother's name; the cause of the Baptist's imprisonment and death.

The Transfiguration, the Agony, and particularly the Ascension, at each of which St. John himself was present.

We may call St. John's Gospel the supplement, or rather the complement, of the Evangelical history, as recorded by St. Matthew, Mark, and Luke; and it consists of four parts: I. Chap. i.—v. II. Chap. vi. III. Chap. viii.—x. IV. Chap. xi. to end.

It is not meant by what has been said above that St. John does not repeat much of what has been related by other Evangelists (see above, p. 206, and the parallels in the Eusebian canons prefixed to this volume), but where he does repeat, he does it with some additional circumstances, showing independent knowledge.

It is observable also, that St. John is distinguished from the other Evangelists by commenting on the facts which he relates. See ii. 25; v. 21; vi. 34. 71; vii. 39; xii. 33. 37. 43; xiii. 11; xxi. 17. St. John's Gospel is not only an inspired History of Christ, but also an inspired Commentary on that History.

This is an indication of later composition. Another evidence that his Gospel is subsequent to that of the other three, may be seen in the remarkable use which the author makes of the term οἱ Ἰουδαῖοι. Throughout this Gospel, the Jews, represented by their leaders the Priests and Pharisees, are contemplated ab extrà, and are spoken of in the third person as a separate body; such as they had become after the fall of Jerusalem, when those who adhered to Judaism were distinguished by bitter hostility to the Church.

St. John, therefore, and the Christians generally, even those like him of Hebrew extraction, had detached themselves from the Jews, and spake of them as a separate body. For this use of οἱ Ἰουδαῖοι see John ii. 18. 20; v. 10. 15, 16. 18; vi. 41; vii. 1. 11; viii. 52—57; ix. 18. 22; x. 24. 31; xi. 8.

On this subject see also the General Remarks introductory to the Gospels in this Volume.

The principal ancient commentaries on this Gospel are to be found in Origen, vols. i. and ii. ed. Lommatzsch. St. Cyril Alex. vol. iv. ed. Aubert. Lutet. 1638. St. Chrysostom, vol. ii. ed. Savil. Eton, 1612. St. Augustine, vol. iii. ed. Bened. Paris, 1837.

---

[1] Cp. Routh, R. S. i. 394. 408—413, who has collected a list of authors who quoted his gospel from the beginning of the second century (i. 410). See also Lücke, cap. 1, § 2.

[2] On the name βοανηργὲς, see on Mark iii. 17: cp. Justin. M. c. Tryphon. 106.

a 1 John 1. 1, 2. Rev. 19. 13. ch. 10. 33, 36.
b Eph. 3. 9. Col. 1. 17. Heb. 1. 2. ch. 5. 26. & 8. 12. & 9. 5. & 12. 46. 1 John 5. 11. Ps. 33. 6.
c ch. 3. 19.
d Matt. 3. 1. Mark 1. 2, &c. Luke 3. 3. & 7. 27. Acts 13. 24.

I. ($\frac{1}{III}$) [1 a] Ἐν ἀρχῇ ἦν ὁ Λόγος, καὶ ὁ Λόγος ἦν πρὸς τὸν Θεὸν, καὶ Θεὸς ἦν ὁ Λόγος. [2] Οὗτος ἦν ἐν ἀρχῇ πρὸς τὸν Θεόν. [3 b] Πάντα δι' αὐτοῦ ἐγένετο, καὶ χωρὶς αὐτοῦ ἐγένετο οὐδὲ ἕν ὃ γέγονεν. [4] Ἐν αὐτῷ ζωὴ ἦν, καὶ ἡ ζωὴ ἦν τὸ φῶς τῶν ἀνθρώπων. [5 c] καὶ τὸ φῶς ἐν τῇ σκοτίᾳ φαίνει, καὶ ἡ σκοτία αὐτὸ οὐ κατέλαβεν.

($\frac{2}{III}$) [6 d] Ἐγένετο ἄνθρωπος ἀπεσταλμένος παρὰ Θεοῦ, ὄνομα αὐτῷ Ἰωάννης. [7] οὗτος ἦλθεν εἰς μαρτυρίαν, ἵνα μαρτυρήσῃ περὶ τοῦ φωτὸς, ἵνα πάντες πιστεύσωσι δι' αὐτοῦ. [8] Οὐκ ἦν ἐκεῖνος τὸ φῶς, ἀλλ' ἵνα μαρτυρήσῃ περὶ τοῦ φωτός.

Ch. I. 1. ἐν ἀρχῇ] בְּרֵאשִׁית (breshith) The Evangelist thus connects the Gospel with Genesis, and shows that the Author of the New Creation is one with the Author of the Old Creation. (Cp. Jerome, ii. 507.) "Christus tam in ipsâ fronte Geneseos, quæ caput librorum omnium est, non minus quàm in principio Joannis Evangelistæ cœli et terræ conditor approbatur." St. John's Gospel may be called the Genesis of the New Testament.

"It is alleged by some," says Chrysostom, "that the words 'In the beginning' do not intimate eternity; for we read (Gen. i. 1), 'In the beginning God created heaven and earth.' But what is there in common between created and was? God created the world in time; but the Word was from eternity. St. John goes back beyond Moses, and speaks not only of the Creation, but of the Creator." (Chrys. Hom. 2; Hom. 5. Hilary, de Trin. ii. Origen. Hom. 2.)

Moses begins with the Works made; St. John begins with the Maker of the Works. The other Evangelists begin with Christ's Incarnation in time. St. John with His eternal generation. (Chrys.)

To be in the beginning signifies to exist before all things. (Aug. de Trin. vi. 2.) The Holy Spirit foresaw that some heretics would argue, that, if Christ was begotten, therefore there was a time when He did not exist[1], and He therefore says, "In the beginning was the Word." (Basil, Hom. in princ. Joann. ii. p. 134—137.)

The sense of these words and the final cause of the Incarnation is well expressed by Irenæus (iii. 18. 1), the scholar of Polycarp, the disciple of St. John. "It has been clearly shown that the Word existed in the beginning with God, and that by Him all things were made, and that He who had been always present with mankind, was in the last days, according to the time preordained by the Father, united with his Creature, and became Man, and so capable of suffering, and thus all contradictions of Heresies are excluded, which say, If Christ was then born, therefore He did not exist before. For it has been shown that the Son of God did not then begin to be, but was always existing with the Father, and that when He was Incarnate and made Man, He summed up Humanity in Himself, bestowing Salvation on us collectively, in order that what we had lost in the first Adam—namely, our Creation in the Image and Likeness of God,—we might recover in Christ." (See also Iren. v. 14.)

— ὁ Λόγος] מימרא (mimra), the word by which the Chaldee Paraphrases, which were read in the Jewish synagogues, render the name of God (see Bp. Bull on the Nicene Creed. i. 1. 19); e. g. Ps. cx. 1, "the Lord said למימרה unto His Word," i. e. to Christ. And thus, as Bp. Bull has shown, the LXX had used the term λόγος for Shaddai, the Omnipotent God, Ezek. i. 24. Hence the name "Word" was prepared for the designation of Christ, who has declared God (ἐξηγήσατο Θεὸν, v. 18) in the Gospel, and in the Book of Revelation, xix. 11—16. See also Bp. Pearson on the Creed, Art. ii. p. 219 and notes; and Schoettgen, Hor. p. 321.

Christ is called the Λόγος by Justin M. Apol. i. 32; ii. 6. Tryph. 105, and Athenagoras, Legat. c. 10: ἔστιν ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ Θεοῦ ὁ Λόγος τοῦ πατρὸς ἐν ἰδέᾳ καὶ ἐνεργείᾳ· πρὸς αὐτοῦ γὰρ καὶ δι' αὐτοῦ πάντα ἐγένετο, ἑνὸς ὄντος τοῦ πατρὸς καὶ τοῦ υἱοῦ, ὄντος δὲ τοῦ υἱοῦ ἐν πατρὶ, καὶ πατρὸς ἐν υἱῷ ἑνότητι καὶ δυνάμει πνεύματος, νοῦς καὶ λόγος τοῦ πατρὸς, ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ Θεοῦ. For the passages of Justin, see below on v. 14. Cp. Theophil. Ant. ad Autolyc. ii. 22, who says, in the second century, ὅθεν διδάσκουσιν ἡμᾶς ἅγιαι γραφαὶ, καὶ πάντες οἱ πνευματοφόροι, ἐξ ὧν Ἰωάννης λέγει· Ἐν ἀρχῇ ἦν ὁ λόγος καὶ ὁ λόγος ἦν πρὸς τὸν Θεὸν—ἔπειτα λέγει καὶ Θεὸς ἦν ὁ λόγος—οὐ δὲ Ἴν.

The Word, i. e. the Son; the Word, the Living Word, never separated from the Father. (Origen, in Joann. tom. i.) Cp. St. Hippolyt. Philosophum. pp. 334, 335. Clement Alex. Strom. i. 29; ii. 15, Potter. Greg. Naz. p. 554.

— ὁ Λόγος ἦν πρὸς τὸν Θεόν] He says πρὸς not ἐν, with God not in; showing the Word's Eternity, and that the Son no more than the Father was circumscribed by any limits of space; and that He was without time, but never without God (Chrys. Hom. 3. Basil. Hom. in princ. Joann. Hilary, de Trin. ii.). Hence we may refute Sabellius, who said that the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost are one person, who showed Himself in various modes; for the Evangelist clearly distinguishes between the person of God the Father and of God the Son. (Theophyl.)

— πρὸς is the Hebrew אֶת. See Schroeder, Syntax. Hebr. p. 292. Cp. εἰς, ver. 18, and the use of πρὸς in Matt. xiii. 56; xxvi. 55. Mark vi. 3; ix. 19.

— Θεὸς ἦν ὁ Λόγος] Cp. John v. 21, 22; x. 38; xiv. 9. Being with the Father, the Word was a different person from the Father; and being God, He is coequal with the Father. (Theophyl.)

2. οὗτος ἦν ἐν ἀ. π. τ. Θεόν] He was always God with God. (Theophyl. Cp. Aug. Serm. 117—120 and 127.)

3. πάντα δι' αὐτοῦ] 'all things.' Even ὕλη, or matter itself, was made by Him;—against the Peripatetic theory, and the later heresy of Hermogenes.

Therefore, also, He was from Eternity; and since all things are from Him, Time itself was made by Him. Hilary (de Trin. ii.). And St. Ignatius, the disciple of St. John (ad Magnesian. 8), speaks of Him thus: εἷς Θεός ἐστιν, ὁ φανερώσας ἑαυτὸν διὰ Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ τοῦ υἱοῦ αὐτοῦ, ὅς ἐστιν αὐτοῦ Λόγος ἀΐδιος. Cp. Bp. Pearson, Vind. Ignat. P. ii. cap. iv. pp. 384—415, ed. Churton. Against the Valentinians and other Gnostics, who said that the world was made by the agency of Æons. (Iren. i. 8, 5.)

Since all things were created by Him, He cannot be a creature. Athanas. de Decret. Nicen. s. 13, who quotes (p. 327), in evidence of Christ's Divinity, Rev. i. 4. Rom. ix. 5.

On the creative and administrative agency of the Logos, see Athanas. ad Gentes, 41, 42, pp. 32, 33, who (p. 36) applies the words of the Psalmist (xxxii. 6. 9, "By the Word of the Lord were the Heavens made") to Christ; and cp. Athanas. de Decret. Nic. Syn. § 16, p. 175, and so Hippolytus, adv. Noet. § 12.

The Word could not have been made, since all things were made by Him; and if the Word was not made, He is not a creature; and if not a creature, He is of one substance with the Father.

He did not make the world as an ὑπουργός, but as ὁμοούσιος τῷ Θεῷ.—St. Cyril[2], who refers to Gen. i. 26. John v. 17; x. 38. The Arians, indeed, say that the World was made by the Word as by an Instrument, as a door is made by a saw; but this is heretical. Why then did the Evangelist use the preposition διὰ, per? In order that we may not suppose Him to be unbegotten. (Theophyl.) And if you are disturbed by the preposition διὰ, remember the words of the Psalmist, "Thou Lord, in the beginning hast laid the foundation of the earth" (Ps. cii. 25), and that the Apostle applies that Scripture to Christ. (Heb. i. 10.) (Origen.)

The words πάντα δι' αὐτοῦ, κ.τ.λ. are quoted by Tatian, Justin Martyr's scholar, adv. Græc. 19.

Since all things, even Angels, Archangels, Dominions, Principalities and Powers, were made by Christ, hence we may infer how great He is Who made them. (Aug.)

3, 4. ὃ γέγονεν—ἐν αὐτῷ ζωὴ ἦν]

This may be pointed thus, with a stop after οὐδὲ ἕν·—whatever was made in Him, was life (Origen); and St. Cyril interprets it, whatsoever was made, its life was in Him. But this interpretation might lead to the error of the Manicheans, who say that life is in all things. It is better to put a stop after 'that was made,' and then to say 'In Him was life.' (Aug.)

On the dogmatic and practical uses of these three verses see Dr. H. Mill's Sermons at Cambridge, 1848, pp. 1—28.

4. ἐν αὐτῷ ζωὴ] ζωὴ = חַיָּה (chayah), vita, and therefore He is no other than יְהוָה (Yehovah), Jehovah, and is so called Jer. xxiii. 6; xxxiii. 16. So Κύριος ὁ κύριος, sum. Cp. Luke ii. 9.

5. τὸ φῶς ἐν τῇ σκ. φ., καὶ ἡ σκ. αὐτὸ οὐ κατ.] Quoted by Tatian adv. Græc. 13.

6. ἄνθρωπος] To distinguish him from Christ, who is God. (Cyril.) — ὄνομα αὐτῷ Ἰωάννης] i. e. the Grace of God. See Luke i. 13; and as to the construction, see below, iii. 1.

8. οὐκ ἦν] John was a light which was enlightened, but had not the light in itself. (Aug.)

---

[1] The Arian assertion on this subject may be seen in the words of Arius himself, cited by St. Athanas. (Orat. I. contr. Arian. § 5), pp. 322—326. An answer to the principal objections of the Arians, derived from this interpretation of Holy Scripture, may be seen in Greg. Nazian. Orat. xxx. pp. 540—556, and see St. Basil in Eunomium, i. pp. 249—252. 281. 292—294. 301.

[2] In citing St. Cyril, I refer to St. Cyril of Alexandria, in his comment on St. John,—unless it is otherwise expressed.

(8/III) 9 e Ἦν τὸ φῶς τὸ ἀληθινὸν ὃ φωτίζει πάντα ἄνθρωπον ἐρχόμενον εἰς τὸν κόσμον. 10 f Ἐν τῷ κόσμῳ ἦν, καὶ ὁ κόσμος δι' αὐτοῦ ἐγένετο, καὶ ὁ κόσμος αὐτὸν οὐκ ἔγνω· (4/X) 11 εἰς τὰ ἴδια ἦλθε, καὶ οἱ ἴδιοι αὐτὸν οὐ παρέλαβον. 12 g Ὅσοι δὲ ἔλαβον αὐτὸν, ἔδωκεν αὐτοῖς ἐξουσίαν τέκνα Θεοῦ γενέσθαι, τοῖς πιστεύουσιν εἰς τὸ ὄνομα αὐτοῦ· 13 h οἳ οὐκ ἐξ αἱμάτων, οὐδὲ ἐκ θελήματος σαρκὸς, οὐδὲ ἐκ θελήματος ἀνδρὸς, ἀλλ' ἐκ Θεοῦ ἐγεννήθησαν. (5/III) 14 i Καὶ ὁ Λόγος σὰρξ ἐγένετο, καὶ ἐσκήνωσεν ἐν ἡμῖν· καὶ ἐθεασάμεθα τὴν δόξαν αὐτοῦ, δόξαν ὡς μονογενοῦς παρὰ Πατρὸς, πλήρης χάριτος καὶ ἀληθείας.

e ch. 3. 19. & 8. 12. & 9. 5. & 12. 46.
f Heb 1. 2.
g Rom. 8. 15. Gal. 3. 26. 2 Pet. 1. 4. 1 John 3. 1.
h ch. 3. 5. James 1. 18. 1 Pet. 1. 23. 1 Matt. 1. 16. & 17. 2.
i Luke 1. 31. & 2. 7. 2 Pet. 1. 17. Col. 1. 19. & 2. 3, 9. Heb. 2. 14, 16. Isa. 40. 5.

9. τὸ φῶς τὸ ἀληθινόν] The light not only of Apostles and Prophets, but also of Angels. (Origen.)

The true light is that light which kindles other lights. Our eyes may be called lights, but in vain are they opened unless there is something to illumine them. He is the true light, which makes us see itself and every thing else. (Aug.)

ὃ φωτίζει] Enlightens all men, and therefore enlightened John, in order that he might enlighten others to see Christ. (Aug.) Hence we may explain what John says below, ἐγὼ (I, of myself) οὐκ ἤδειν αὐτόν (vv. 31. 33).

No man has any being of himself, and no man has any knowledge by himself, and no man is really enlightened, who is not enlightened by Christ. (Aug. Bede.)

— ἐρχόμενον] Some render this—"the φῶς, by coming into the world, enlightens all." And it is true that ὁ ἐρχόμενος is specially said of Christ. Matt. xi. 3. Luke vii. 19. See below, iii. 31; iv. 25; vi. 14; vii. 27.

But St. Cyril, and others of the Fathers, rightly observe that ἐρχόμενον construed with ἄνθρωπον (to which it stands next in the sentence) unfolds an important truth, viz. that no one but Christ had any light before coming into the world, and that all receive light from Him who is the light of the world. See also Vorst. de Hebraism. p. 713, who shows that 'to come into the world' is a common Hebrew idiom for 'to be born.'

10. ἐν τῷ κόσμῳ ἦν] He was here as God, and came hither as man. He was in the world, but prior to it, for the world was made by Him. (Aug. Chrys.)

— ὁ κόσμος δι' αὐτοῦ] The term World is used in Scripture in two senses; first for the universe made by Christ; next for those who love the world and worldly things, and have not their heart in heaven (Aug.); but those who were not of the world knew Christ even before His Incarnation. Thus Abraham saw his day and was glad. (John viii. 5.) David in spirit called Him Lord. (Matt. xxii. 43. Cp. Acts xiii. 22. Chrys. Hom. 7. See also Aug. Serm. 121.)

11. εἰς τὰ ἴδια] i. e. to the world made by Him, and specially to the Jews, His own peculiar people. (Cyril, Chrys., Aug.)

12. ὅσοι δὲ ἔλαβον] Much vigilance is therefore necessary to preserve the divine image formed in us by adoption in Baptism; and no one can take it from us unless we forfeit it by our sin; and God gives grace to those who desire it, and endeavour earnestly after it; and by the concurrence of divine grace with human free-will we are made sons of God. (Chrys. Hom. x.)

13. οἳ οὐκ ἐξ αἱμάτων] The plural αἵματα is the Hebrew דָּמִים (damim). Man, as distinguished from God or Angels, is called בָּשָׂר וָדָם (basar vedam), flesh and blood. (Cp. Matt. xvi. 17. Gal. i. 16.) He thus shows us the insignificance of our old natural birth, compared with our new or spiritual birth, and reminds us of the care with which we ought to cherish the heavenly gift of divine grace. (Chrys.)

14. καὶ ὁ Λόγος σὰρξ ἐγένετο] Not changed into flesh. But ἐγένετο is here used as by the LXX in Gen. ii. 7, ἐγένετο ὁ ἄνθρωπος εἰς ψυχὴν ζῶσαν,—not that he was changed into a living soul, but was endued with it. Hence in the Apocalypse (xix. 11—16) the Word of God Who is the Faithful and True, is represented as clad in a vesture dipped in blood,—that is, with a robe of flesh red with His own Blood which He shed for us. (Origen, tom. ii.)

A reference seems to be made to these words by Justin M. c. Tryph. 63. Cp. Justin M. Apol. i. 32, ὁ Λόγος σαρκοποιηθεὶς ἄνθρωπος γέγονεν. Apol. ii. 6, ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ Θεοῦ, ὁ μόνος λεγόμενος κυρίως υἱὸς, ὁ Λόγος πρὸ τῶν ποιημάτων καὶ συνὼν καὶ γεννώμενος, ὅτε τὴν ἀρχὴν δι' αὐτοῦ πάντα ἔκτισε καὶ ἐκόσμησε.

The Word was made flesh; that is, He was not a mere phantasm, as some heretics (the Docetæ and others) imagine. By this union the Word and the Flesh became one Person; but the two natures were not confounded, nor was the Word changed into Flesh. As our words become voice, by making themselves to be audible, but our words are not changed into voice; and as the human soul is united to the body, but is not changed into the body, so the eternal Word took our flesh, and was united to it, and made Himself manifest in it, but was not changed into it or confused with it. (Aug. De Trin. xv. 11. Chrys.)

For a beautiful summary on the manifestations of Christ's Humanity, and also of His Divinity in One Person, see St. Hippolyt. adv. Noet. § 18, vol. ii. pp. 19, 20. Cp. St. Cyril (Epist. ad Succens. p. 137), ὁρῶμεν ὅτι δύο φύσεις συνῆλθον ἀλλήλαις καθ' ἕνωσιν ἀδιάσπαστον, ἀσυγχύτως καὶ ἀτρέπτως· ἡ γὰρ σὰρξ σάρξ ἐστι, καὶ οὐ θεότης, εἰ καὶ γέγονε Θεοῦ σάρξ.

He dwells in us as in a temple which He occupies from us and for us, that He may reconcile us in one body to the Father. (Cyril.)

Apollinarius perverted these words into an occasion of heresy,—affirming that the Word took human flesh only, and not also a human soul, but that the Divine Intelligence was to Him instead of a human soul. But flesh is often used in Scripture for man, consisting of body and soul. (Ps. lxv. 2. Matt. xxiv. 22. Acts ii. 17. Rom. iii. 20. 1 Cor. i. 29. Gal. ii. 16. Theophyl. Aug. c. Arian. cap. 9. Vorst. de Hebr. p. 124.)

Nestorius is also refuted by this Scripture, who said that the Blessed Virgin brought forth a Man endued with every virtue, and that man had the Incarnate Word joined to Himself; and thus he in fact made two sons,—one Jesus, the Son of the Virgin, another the Son of God; whereas the Evangelist does not say that the Word of God found a holy person, and united Himself to that person, but that the Word became Flesh and dwelt in us. (Theophyl.) See also Barrow's two Sermons on the Incarnation, vol. iv. pp. 535—565.

14. ἐσκήνωσεν ἐν ἡμῖν] Pitched His Tent or Tabernacle in our nature, tabernacled in us. ἐσκήνωσεν is Hebr. אָהַל (ahal), or שָׁכַן (shachan). And since the Tabernacle, σκηνὴ, in which God dwelt in the wilderness, is אֹהֶל (ohel), therefore the sense is, the Word made our nature, as it were, the Tabernacle in which the divine Shechinah ἐσκήνωσε, rested, and showed itself in wonderful and gracious works. See Buxtorf. Lex. Talm. p. 2394, in v. שְׁכִינָא (Shechinah), "habitatio, in specie dicitur de præsentiâ, gloriâ, et majestate divinâ aut divinitate, quandò dicitur hominibus esse præsens, aut cum eis conversari, gratiâ et salutari præsentiâ adesse."

And this is the more appropriate, because the course of the Church through this present world is often compared to the pilgrimage of the ancient people of God through the wilderness of Sina to Canaan, the type of heaven. The σκηνὴ of our Humanity became the Shechinah of Deity. We saw His glory, the Shechinah of the Divinity, resting on the Tabernacle of His Humanity, as the cloud of the Divine presence rested on the Tabernacle in the wilderness.

Let it also be considered that, as the Feast of the Passover was a type of Christ's Passion, and the Feast of Pentecost was a figure of the sending of the Holy Ghost, so the Feast of Tabernacles (σκηνοπηγία) seems to have been typical of Christ's Incarnation, that mysterious σκηνοπηγία in which He σκηνὴν ἔπηξεν, pitched his tent in our flesh, ἐσκήνωσεν ἐν ἡμῖν. See below on vii. 2.

And perhaps some confirmation may thence arise to the opinion that our Lord's Birth took place in the autumn at the Feast of Tabernacles. See Mede's Works, i. Dis. 48, p. 266.

Christ pitched not His tent in any particular person already existing; but in us, i.e. in our nature; and became our Emmanuel, God with us; God manifest in our flesh; He ἐσκήνωσεν in us as in a Tabernacle. See Amos ix. 11. The Tabernacle of our Nature which was broken down, Christ alone could raise up, and did raise up by dwelling in it. (Chrys.) And thus we see the two natures, our Nature and the Nature of the Word, joined in one Person. Hence the Virgin is called Θεοτόκος.

God was made man; what may not then man become for whom God was made man? Let this hope comfort us in our tribulations. If you regard Christ as only God, you refuse the medicine by which you are healed; if you regard Him as only Man, you deny the divine power by which you were made. Receive Him then as both God and Man; God equal with the Father, one with the Father; and man born of a Virgin, deriving from our nature mortality without sin. (Aug. ad loc. and Tract. xxxvi.)

As the reasonable soul and flesh is one man, so God and man is one Christ. Thus Christ is God, and is reasonable soul and flesh. We confess Christ in each one of these. By whom was the world made? By Christ in the form of God. Who was crucified? Christ in the form of a servant. Who was not left in hell? Christ, but in His human soul only. Who rose again? Christ, but in His human flesh only. In all these acts we acknowledge one Christ. (Aug. Tract. lxxxiii.) See also Hooker, E. P. V. lii. for an exposition of the doctrine of this verse, and for a refutation of the various heresies opposed to it. Also Barrow on the Creed, Serm. xxi. and xxiii.

— τὴν δόξαν] כָּבוֹד (chabod), Majesty, Divinity, all the attributes of God, especially power and mercy. Col. i. 15. (See Rosenmüller here.)

— ὡς does not here signify comparison, but reality, i. e. what was consonant to, and might be expected from.—ὡς is here equivalent to the Hebrew caph veritatis. See Kimchi in Isa. i. 9. Chrys. Hom. 11, in Joh. Glass. Phil. Sacra, p. 476. The Israelites were not able to look on the face of Moses, but we saw the glory of the Only-begotten Son. (Theoph., who quotes Ps. xliv. 3.)

— μονογενοῦς] μονογενὴς, i. q. יָחִיד (yachid), unicus, Gen. xxii.

(6/I) 15 k Ἰωάννης μαρτυρεῖ περὶ αὐτοῦ καὶ κέκραγε λέγων, Οὗτος ἦν ὃν εἶπον, Ὁ ὀπίσω μου ἐρχόμενος ἔμπροσθέν μου γέγονεν, ὅτι πρῶτός μου ἦν· (7/X) 16 l καὶ ἐκ τοῦ πληρώματος αὐτοῦ ἡμεῖς πάντες ἐλάβομεν, καὶ χάριν ἀντὶ χάριτος· 17 m ὅτι ὁ νόμος διὰ Μωϋσέως ἐδόθη, ἡ χάρις καὶ ἡ ἀλήθεια διὰ Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ ἐγένετο. (8/III) 18 n Θεὸν οὐδεὶς ἑώρακε πώποτε· ὁ μονογενὴς Υἱὸς, ὁ ὢν εἰς τὸν κόλπον τοῦ Πατρὸς, ἐκεῖνος ἐξηγήσατο.

(9/X) 19 o Καὶ αὕτη ἐστὶν ἡ μαρτυρία τοῦ Ἰωάννου, ὅτε ἀπέστειλαν οἱ Ἰουδαῖοι ἐξ Ἱεροσολύμων ἱερεῖς καὶ Λευίτας, ἵνα ἐρωτήσωσιν αὐτόν, Σὺ τίς εἶ; 20 p καὶ ὡμολόγησε, καὶ οὐκ ἠρνήσατο, καὶ ὡμολόγησεν, Ὅτι ἐγὼ οὐκ εἰμὶ ὁ Χριστός. 21 q Καὶ ἠρώτησαν αὐτόν, Τί οὖν; Ἠλίας εἶ σύ; καὶ λέγει, Οὐκ εἰμί. Ὁ προφήτης εἶ σύ; καὶ ἀπεκρίθη, Οὔ. 22 Εἶπον οὖν αὐτῷ, Τίς εἶ; ἵνα ἀπόκρισιν δῶμεν τοῖς πέμψασιν ἡμᾶς, τί λέγεις περὶ σεαυτοῦ; (10/I) 23 r Ἔφη, Ἐγὼ φωνὴ βοῶντος ἐν τῇ ἐρήμῳ, εὐθύνατε τὴν ὁδὸν Κυρίου, καθὼς εἶπεν Ἡσαΐας ὁ προφήτης. (11/X) 24 Καὶ οἱ ἀπεσταλμένοι ἦσαν ἐκ τῶν Φαρισαίων· 25 s καὶ ἠρώτησαν αὐτὸν καὶ εἶπον αὐτῷ, Τί οὖν βαπτίζεις, εἰ σὺ οὐκ εἶ ὁ Χριστὸς, k Matt. 3. 11. Mark 1. 7. Luke 3. 16. ch ver. 26, et seqq. & 3. 31.

l Col. 1. 19. & 2. 9.
m Exod. 20. 1, &c. Deut. 5. 6, &c. n Exod. 33. 20. Deut. 4. 12. ch. 6. 46. 1 John 4. 12. 1 Tim. 6. 16. Matt. 11. 27. Luke 10. 22. Ecclus. 43. 31.
o ch. 5 33.
p ch. 3. 28. Luke 3. 15. Acts 13. 25.
q Deut. 18. 15.
r Isa. 40. 3. Matt. 3. 3. Mark 1. 3. Luke 3. 4. ch. ver. 15.
s Deut. 18. 15.

---

2. 12, where the Septuagint, explaining the sense, render it ἀγαπητός. (Rosenmüller.)

— χάριτος καὶ ἀληθείας] חֶסֶד and אֱמֶת (chesed and emeth), which, as Rosenmüller observes, describe the greatest love, characteristic of God alone.

15. Ἰωάννης] The Evangelist lays great stress on the witness of John, because of the honour paid him by the Jews. (Chrys.)

— κέκραγε] said by some (Winer, p. 245. Meyer, p. 56) to be a Perfect with the sense of a Present. But may it not rather be intended to express that the Precursor, so long expected, has come, that his message has been delivered?—κέκραγε is Hebr. קָרָא (kara), Angl. cry, specially said of a Prophet, or of the voice of an angel or of God. Isa. vi. 3. Zech. vii. 13. Cf. Matt. iii. 3.

These words of the Evangelist are referred to by Justin M. c. Tryph. c. 66, describing John's address to the people, πρὸς οὓς καὶ αὐτὸς ἐβόα, οὐκ εἰμὶ ὁ Χριστὸς ἀλλὰ φωνὴ βοῶντος.

16. ἐκ τοῦ πληρώματος] πλήρωμα, Hebr. מְלֹא (m'lo), Gen. xlviii. 19. Isa. xxxi. 4. 1 Cor. x. 26, comp. with Ps. xxiv. 1. Hence St. Paul says that in Christ πᾶν τὸ πλήρωμα κατοικεῖ (Col. i. 19), and Col. ii. 9, πᾶν τὸ πλήρωμα τῆς Θεότητος,—a refutation of those Gnostic theories which would make him merely an αἰὼν from the πλήρωμα.

χάριν ἀντὶ χάριτος, חֵן עַל חֵן (chen al chen), one grace, or blessing, in the place of, or upon and after another.

The grace of the new covenant for that of the old. (Origen, Cyril, Chrys., who quotes Phil. iii. 6. 2 Cor. iii. 11.)

But it may rather be, the grace or free gift of eternal life for the grace and free gift of faith. This we had not under the Law (see v. 17. Rom. vi. 14), but we have it under the Gospel, for the Law threatened, but did not assist; it gave a commandment, but not strength to do it. It showed our diseases but did not heal them; and yet it prepared the way for the Physician Who was to come with grace and truth, and Who gives us the grace or free-gift of immortality. Hence, therefore, we are not to imagine that we deserve anything from God as a due. In giving us the prize of immortal life, He crowns His own gifts, and not our deserts. (Aug.) Therefore χάριν ἀντὶ χάριτος may be understood to mean grace, in succession to and addition to grace; ever growing supplies of grace: and so Bengel, Lücke, Tholuck. Olshausen, Meyer.

John's name means the Grace of God, and he was a fit precursor of Him Who gives grace for grace.

17. ὁ νόμος] The Law was given by the servant (Heb. iii. 5), and made men guilty. The Grace which came by the King freed them from guilt. (Aug.) He says the Law was given, but Grace came, because the one was sent by a servant, the other was brought by the Son.

18. Θεὸν οὐδεὶς ἑώρακε] Cp. 1 Tim. vi. 16. The Patriarchs and Prophets saw Angels who revealed the will of God, but never saw God. (Chrys.)

— ὁ ὤν is the peculiar name of Jehovah in the Old Testament, as written in the Septuagint, and therefore was familiar to the Jews, and to St. John, who was a Jew; so that "it may very well be doubted whether the phrase, 'which is in the bosom of the Father,' gives it its full force, and whether the ever existent in the bosom of the Father, is not the idea meant to be conveyed. See Coleridge's Remains, vol. iv. p. 234." Blunt, Lectures on the Duties of a Parish Priest, p. 52.

— εἰς τὸν κόλπον] On this use of εἰς, see Mark ii. 1. Luke xi. 4. Cp. πρὸς τὸν Θεόν (i. 2).

To be "in the bosom" is much more than "to see;" it is to know all his secret thoughts, and participate in all His power and substance. (Chrys. Hom. 15, who quotes John x. 15. Aug. Tract. iii.) It was reserved for the beloved Disciple St. John, who leaned on the bosom of Jesus at supper (John xiii. 23; xxi. 20), to declare the mystery of Him Who is in the bosom of the Father. (Origen, tom. 32, who quotes Luke xvi. 22.)

19—28.] On these verses, see the excellent Homily of Greg. M. Moral. in Evang. i. 7, p. 1458.

19. οἱ Ἰουδαῖοι] As observed before (Introd. note, p. 207). St. John writes concerning 'the Jews,' as it were ab extrâ. See ii. 6. 13. 20; iii. 1. 25; v. 1. 10. 15, 16, and in numerous other places; and thus he differs widely from St. Matt. and St. Mark; and this circumstance affords another proof that his Gospel was written after theirs, and at a time when the distinction between the Christian Church and the Jews had taken a definite form.

— ἱερεῖς] More honour was paid by the Jews to John than to Christ, in the persons sent, and in the place from which they were sent. They esteemed John for his sacerdotal lineage, and sanctity of life; and they were at this time expecting the Messiah. But they despised Christ, saying, "Is not this the carpenter's son?" Matt. xiii. 55. (Origen, Chrys., Theoph.)

The Evangelist thus intimates the Baptist's firmness and disinterestedness. The Jews, who were expecting the Messiah, and mused in their hearts whether He was the Christ (Luke iii. 15), sent to him, from the capital City, Priests and Levites, of the Pharisees (v. 24), i. e. the chief of the people. Thus they paid homage to John: and tempted him to declare himself the Christ.

But he resisted their solicitations, and used them as occasions for preaching to them Jesus. A noble example of faithfulness and zeal.

Here, also, is an indirect testimony, as it were, by an undesigned coincidence, to the marvellous history (which has been recently called in question by Strauss and others) concerning the Conception and birth of John the Baptist, and the Angelic appearance to his father, Zacharias the Priest, ministering in the Temple, as recorded by St. Luke, chap. i. The deference here paid to the Baptist by the Rulers of the people, and their readiness to accept him as the Messiah, are accounted for by those circumstances, which doubtless were well known to the Priests and Levites ministering in the Temple at Jerusalem.

20. ὡμολόγησε] Contrary to their expectations; but like a loyal servant he would not usurp the honour of his Master, and declined it when offered to him. The multitude through ignorance might imagine John to be the Christ: the Scribes and Pharisees, the Priests and Levites, flattered him, with a view of drawing him, who belonged to their order, to their own interest; and in order to derive from him a plea for rejecting Christ. (Chrys., Theoph.)

21. Ἠλίας εἶ σύ;] Whom they expected then. Cp. Matt. xi. 11—14; xvii. 10—13.

— ὁ προφήτης εἶ σύ;] The Prophet of whom Moses spake (Deut. xviii. 15), and who at this time was not identified by these enquirers with the Messiah. Cp. Theoph., who notes the use of the definitive article. See also Acts iii. 22, where the identity of the Prophet with Christ is shown.

23. ἐγὼ φωνή] Of which Esaias spake. (Isa. xl. 3.)

John is the Voice, Christ the eternal Word. John prepares the way for the manifestation of Christ, as the Voice precedes the Word. (Origen. Greg. Hom. vii.) I am his servant, and am sent to prepare His way in your hearts: the Voice is inarticulate without the Word. (Theoph.) John humbled himself, and so became a burning and shining light. John v. 35. (Aug.)

25. τί οὖν βαπτίζεις] They expected the Messiah and his attendants, Elias and Jeremias, to baptize; for Baptism involved a new obligation, such as that which was formed by Proselytes. (Rosenmüller.) They had first tried to win the Baptist by flattery, and by prompting him to assume a high title; they would now constrain him to it by allegations of inconsistency. (Chrys.) But John resists them in both attempts, and preaches not himself, but Christ.

— εἰ σὺ οὐκ εἶ ὁ Χριστὸς, κ.τ.λ.] The Jews erroneously made a distinction between that Christ and that Prophet; but to us that Prophet is our Christ and God. (Theoph.) οὔτε Ἠλίας, οὔτε ὁ προφήτης; (12/1) 26 t Ἀπεκρίθη αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰωάννης λέγων, Ἐγὼ βαπτίζω ἐν ὕδατι· μέσος δὲ ὑμῶν ἕστηκεν ὃν ὑμεῖς οὐκ οἴδατε· 27 Αὐτός ἐστιν ὁ ὀπίσω μου ἐρχόμενος, ὃς ἔμπροσθέν μου γέγονεν· οὗ ἐγὼ οὐκ εἰμὶ ἄξιος ἵνα λύσω αὐτοῦ τὸν ἱμάντα τοῦ ὑποδήματος. (12/2) 28 Ταῦτα ἐν Βηθανίᾳ ἐγένετο πέραν τοῦ Ἰορδάνου, ὅπου ἦν Ἰωάννης βαπτίζων.

t Matt. 3. 11. Mark 1. 7. Luke 3. 16. Acts 1. 5. & 11. 16. & 19. 4.

29 u Τῇ ἐπαύριον βλέπει τὸν Ἰησοῦν ἐρχόμενον πρὸς αὐτὸν, καὶ λέγει, Ἴδε ὁ ἀμνὸς τοῦ Θεοῦ ὁ αἴρων τὴν ἁμαρτίαν τοῦ κόσμου· (14/1) 30 x Οὗτός ἐστι περὶ οὗ ἐγὼ εἶπον, Ὀπίσω μου ἔρχεται ἀνὴρ, ὃς ἔμπροσθέν μου γέγονεν, ὅτι πρῶτός μου ἦν· 31 κἀγὼ οὐκ ἤδειν αὐτόν· ἀλλ' ἵνα φανερωθῇ τῷ Ἰσραὴλ διὰ τοῦτο ἦλθον ἐγὼ ἐν τῷ ὕδατι βαπτίζων. (15/1) 32 y Καὶ ἐμαρτύρησεν Ἰωάννης λέγων, Ὅτι u Exod. 12. 3. Isa. 53. 7. ver. 36. 1 Pet. 1. 19. & 2. 24. Acts 8. 32.

x ver. 15.
y Matt. 3. 16. Mark 1. 10. Luke 3. 21.

26. ἐγὼ βαπτίζω ἐν ὕδατι] With water, but not with the Spirit: for he was not able to remit sins; he cleansed the body only, not the soul. Why then did he baptize? In order that by his baptism he might prepare the way for the baptism of Christ, as by his preaching he prepared the way for the preaching of Christ. (Greg. Hom. vii.) If my baptism (he says) were not imperfect, another would not arise to baptize after me. (Chrys.)

— μέσος δὲ ὑμῶν ἕστηκεν] When John points to Christ, man points to God, and the Voice indicates the Word. (Origen.)

27. λύσω αὐτοῦ τὸν ἱμάντα] I am not worthy to do the most menial office to Him. (Origen.) If this is the case with John, than whom none is greater of those born of women, what is the case with us? (Chrys.) There may be a reference to the practice described Ruth iv. 7, 8, whereby a kinsman plucked off the shoe of a kinsman who would not espouse as a bride one to whom he had a right by nearness of kin. Thus the Baptist may be supposed to say, He that hath the Bride is the Bridegroom, John iii. 29. The Church is His Spouse, I do not dare to dispute His claim. (Greg. Hom. vii.)

28. ἐν Βηθανίᾳ] The reading of A, B, C, E, G, H, K, L, M, S, V, X, and numerous cursives and Versions. בֵּית-אֲנְיָה (Bethaniah), Domus navis, the place of the Ferry. The other reading, Βηθαβαρᾷ, is not older than Origen.

This Bethany is thus distinguished by the Evangelist here from the other Bethany, of Martha, Mary, and Lazarus, by the adjunct 'beyond Jordan.' On this Bethany, see Patrit. ii. p. 445. Cp. below, iii. 26; x. 40, 41.

29. ἴδε ὁ ἀμνὸς τοῦ Θεοῦ] The Lamb of God. He is described by St. John, in the Apocalypse, as the Lamb slain (v. 6).

St. John never calls our Lord ὁ ἀμνὸς in the Apocalypse, but always τὸ ἀρνίον, and he never calls Him ἀρνίον in the Gospel, but always ἀμνός. See Lectures on the Apoc. p. 380, 2nd edit.

Christ alone came without sin. He took our flesh without sin, in order to take away our sin. (Aug.) Why, then, was He baptized? He submitted to be baptized by His servant, in order that thou mightest not disdain to be baptized by thy Lord: for whatever may be a man's knowledge, and self-denial, and charity, his sins are upon him, unless he comes to the healing waters of baptism, without which he cannot enter into the kingdom of heaven, John iii. 5. (Aug.)

The rest of the people came to John confessing their sins. (Matt. iii. 6.) In order that no one might be mistaken as to our Lord's nature, and might imagine that because He had been baptized, He had any sins to confess, John declares that He is the Lamb of God, pure and spotless, and not only sinless in Himself, but that He takes away the sins of the whole world. (Chrys. Hom. 17.)

— ὁ αἴρων τὴν ἁμαρτίαν] Cf. 1 John iii. 5, τὰς ἁμαρτίας ἡμῶν ἄρῃ, and 1 Pet. ii. 24, ὃς τὰς ἁμαρτίας ὑμῶν αὐτὸς ἀνήνεγκεν ἐν τῷ σώματι αὐτοῦ ἐπὶ τὸ ξύλον.

He does not say that will take, but that He does take. Not that Christ is always being crucified, for He offered one oblation once for all, and He is ever taking away the sins of the world by that one sacrifice. (Chrys. Hom. 18. Theoph.) ὁ αἴρων means something more than taking away; it means also, supporting the burden, bearing the weight of. Accordingly, it is used in about 200 places by the LXX for the Hebr. נָשָׂא (nasa), to carry, to lift, bear a weight. See St. Cyril here, who well expounds it, καταργῶν θάνατον, ὑπὲρ πάντων ἀποθανών, εἷς γὰρ ὑπὲρ πάντων ἀπέθανεν ἀμνός. as a vicarious offering for sin. See Isa. liii. 4—6. 1 Pet. ii. 24, and Hugo Grotius, de Satisfactione Christi, c. i. p. 24, against the Socinians, and Archbp. Magee on the Atonement, i. p. 216. 419, and ii. 335, ed. 1816, and see note on Matt. viii. 17, and Bloomf. here, who says: "'Behold Him, who is the Lamb of God, who expiateth the sins of the world'—'who was appointed by God to be offered as a sacrifice of atonement for the sins of the whole world.' Jesus is characterized by the designation of Lamb, with allusion to the paschal lamb typifying Him, and the lamb daily offered up at the evening sacrifice, representing Him. Moreover, He is designated as the Lamb of God, with reference to his being appointed and approved by God as the all-sufficient sacrifice for the sins of men. In this view John the Baptist must have considered Jesus, when he called Him Lamb, namely, as suffering and dying like a victim; for it is clear that he meant to represent our Lord as one dying, and that in the place of others, by his subjoining the words ὁ αἴρων τὴν ἁμαρτίαν τοῦ κόσμου by way of explication. Now the phrase αἴρειν τὴν ἁμαρτίαν answers to the Hebr. נשא עון or נשא חטאה, which never signifies to remove sins, i. e. extirpate iniquity from the earth (as many recent Interpreters suppose), but to pay the penalties of sin, either one's own, or others', as in Exod. xxviii. 30. Lev. v. 1; x. 17, where are conjoined, as synonymous, the formulas to bear the sin of the people, and expiate and to atone the people with God. Therefore the formula 'to bear sins,' must denote 'to be punished because of sins,' 'to undergo the punishment due to sins.' Again, as 'to bear one's own sins' denotes 'to be punished for one's own sins,' so 'to bear the sins of others' must mean 'to be punished for the sins of others,' 'to undergo the punishment which the sins of others have deserved.' Moreover, Christ is said 'to bear the sin of the whole world;' and therefore the interpretation above mentioned can have no place. There is, besides, in these formulas a manifest allusion to, and comparison with, a piacular victim. For such a victim was brought to the altar, and the Priest put his hands over and upon the head, a symbolical action, signifying that the sins committed by the persons were laid on the victim, and when it was slaughtered it was said to bear or carry away the sins of the expiated. by which it was denoted that the victim paid the penalty of the sins committed, was punished with death in their place, and for the purpose of freeing them from the penalty of sin. Therefore when Christ is called the Lamb bearing the sins of the world, it is manifest that we must understand one who should take upon himself the sins of men, so as to pay the penalties of their sins, and in their stead, for the purpose of freeing them from those penalties. In short, αἴρων denotes, in its full sense, 'taking away by having borne;' and thus it is well adapted to express the atoning sacrifice of Christ for the sins of the world."

Here is a proof of the Baptist's prophetical gifts.

It has been alleged by some (e. g. Kuinoel), that it is improbable that he should have foreseen that Jesus would die by a violent death like a lamb, as a victim and a sacrifice for sin. And therefore some have rejected the primitive and orthodox interpretation of this passage. And, indeed, if John the Baptist had been a mere ordinary man, it was impossible that he should then have contemplated Christ as such. But John was inspired from his mother's womb; he was the greatest of prophets. (Matt. xi. 9. Luke vii. 26.) Hence when he saw Jesus coming to his baptism, he was enabled to proclaim Him as the future Judge of the world (Matt. iii. 12. Luke iii. 17), and now he is empowered by the Holy Ghost to discern and to declare Him to be the One sinless, expiatory Sacrifice, and Propitiatory Satisfaction for the sins of the world.

How strange and lamentable it is, that when John the Baptist so clearly preached the Doctrine of the Atonement before the sacrifice was offered, some should deny the doctrine, now that it has been offered!

30. ἔρχεται ἀνήρ] ἀνὴρ (not ἄνθρωπος). Christ is the Husband of the Church and of every soul, as St. Paul says, 'I have espoused you to one man (ἑνὶ ἀνδρὶ), Christ.' (2 Cor. xi. 2.)

I am the friend of the Bridegroom, He is the Bridegroom.

— πρῶτός μου] i. e. before Me, and first of all. See Col. i. 15, and Bp. Pearson on the Creed, Art. ii. pp. 180—200. πρῶτος ἀντὶ τοῦ ἀεί. (Cyril.) Hence we may refute the Arian, who says that Christ was made, and Paul of Samosata, asserting that He took His beginning from the blessed Virgin. (Chrys. Theoph.)

31. ἵνα φανερωθῇ] "I come not with my baptism to give the Spirit, or to remit sins, but to prepare the way for Him and His manifestation." Hence, it is clear that the histories which are related by some concerning miracles, as if wrought by Christ in His childhood, are fabulous; for if He had wrought miracles, He could not have been unknown in Israel, and have needed manifestation from John. (Chrys. Theoph.) The baptism of John lasted but a short time, being designed to manifest Christ and His humility, who submitted to receive the baptism of His servant, in order to encourage us to receive the baptism of our Master, whose baptism was necessary for those who had been baptized with the baptism of His servant. (Aug. Tract. v.)

Jesus was baptized by John for three reasons; first, that, being born as a man, He might fulfil all the law; next, that He might authorize John's baptism; next, that by sanctifying the water of Jordan, He might show, by the descent of the Dove, the advent of the Holy Ghost in the baptism of believers. (St. Jerome in Matt. iii.) Christ had no need to be baptized; but we needed that water should be sanctified for our baptism. St. John testifies that Christ needs not to be baptized, but Christ by His example consummates the Mysteries of our salvation, sanctifying us by His Incarnation and Baptism. (St. Hilary in Matt. iii.)

τεθέαμαι τὸ Πνεῦμα καταβαῖνον ὡς περιστερὰν ἐξ οὐρανοῦ, καὶ ἔμεινεν ἐπ' αὐτόν· 33 z καγὼ οὐκ ἤδειν αὐτόν· ἀλλ' ὁ πέμψας με βαπτίζειν ἐν ὕδατι ἐκεῖνός μοι εἶπεν, Ἐφ' ὃν ἂν ἴδῃς τὸ Πνεῦμα καταβαῖνον, καὶ μένον ἐπ' αὐτὸν, οὗτός ἐστιν ὁ βαπτίζων ἐν Πνεύματι ἁγίῳ. 34 Κἀγὼ ἑώρακα, καὶ μεμαρτύρηκα ὅτι οὗτός ἐστιν ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ Θεοῦ.

z Matt. 3. 11. Acts 1. 5.

(16/X) 35 Τῇ ἐπαύριον πάλιν εἱστήκει ὁ Ἰωάννης, καὶ ἐκ τῶν μαθητῶν αὐτοῦ δύο· 36 a καὶ ἐμβλέψας τῷ Ἰησοῦ περιπατοῦντι λέγει, Ἴδε ὁ ἀμνὸς τοῦ Θεοῦ. 37 Καὶ ἤκουσαν αὐτοῦ οἱ δύο μαθηταὶ λαλοῦντος, καὶ ἠκολούθησαν τῷ Ἰησοῦ. 38 Στραφεὶς δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, καὶ θεασάμενος αὐτοὺς ἀκολουθοῦντας, λέγει αὐτοῖς, 39 Τί ζητεῖτε; Οἱ δὲ εἶπον αὐτῷ, Ῥαββὶ, (ὃ λέγεται ἑρμηνευόμενον διδάσκαλε) ποῦ μένεις; 40 Λέγει αὐτοῖς· Ἔρχεσθε καὶ ἴδετε. Ἦλθον καὶ εἶδον ποῦ μένει· καὶ παρ' αὐτῷ ἔμειναν τὴν ἡμέραν ἐκείνην· ὥρα ἦν ὡς δεκάτη. 41 b Ἦν Ἀνδρέας, ὁ ἀδελφὸς Σίμωνος Πέτρου, εἷς ἐκ τῶν δύο τῶν ἀκουσάντων παρὰ Ἰωάννου καὶ ἀκολουθησάντων αὐτῷ. (17/I) 42 Εὑρίσκει οὗτος πρῶτος τὸν ἀδελφὸν τὸν ἴδιον Σίμωνα, καὶ λέγει αὐτῷ· Εὑρήκαμεν τὸν Μεσσίαν· ὅ ἐστι μεθερμηνευόμενον Χριστός. 43 c καὶ ἤγαγεν αὐτὸν πρὸς τὸν Ἰησοῦν. ἐμβλέψας αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπε, Σὺ εἶ Σίμων ὁ υἱὸς Ἰωνᾶ, σὺ κληθήσῃ Κηφᾶς· ὃ ἑρμηνεύεται Πέτρος.

a ch. ver. 29.

b Matt. 4. 18.

c Matt. 16. 18. d John 12. 21. e ch. 21. 2. Gen. 3. 15. & 22 18. & 49. 10. Deut. 18. 15. 2 Sam. 7. 12. Isa. 7. 14. & 9. 6. & 40. 10, 11. & 53. 1, &c. Jer. 23. 5. & 33. 14. Ezek. 34. 23. & 37. 24. Dan. 9. 24. Micah 5. 2. Zech. 6. 12. & 9. 9. f Matt. 2. 23. Luke 2. 4. ch. 7. 41, 42. g Ps. 32. 2. ch. 8. 39.

(18/X) 44 Τῇ ἐπαύριον ἠθέλησεν ἐξελθεῖν εἰς τὴν Γαλιλαίαν, καὶ εὑρίσκει Φίλιππον, καὶ λέγει αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Ἀκολούθει μοι. 45 d Ἦν δὲ ὁ Φίλιππος ἀπὸ Βηθσαϊδὰ, ἐκ τῆς πόλεως Ἀνδρέου καὶ Πέτρου. 46 e Εὑρίσκει Φίλιππος τὸν Ναθαναὴλ, καὶ λέγει αὐτῷ, Ὃν ἔγραψε Μωϋσῆς ἐν τῷ νόμῳ καὶ οἱ προφῆται, εὑρήκαμεν, Ἰησοῦν τὸν υἱὸν τοῦ Ἰωσὴφ τὸν ἀπὸ Ναζαρέτ. 47 f Καὶ εἶπεν αὐτῷ Ναθαναήλ, Ἐκ Ναζαρὲτ δύναταί τι ἀγαθὸν εἶναι; Λέγει αὐτῷ Φίλιππος, Ἔρχου καὶ ἴδε. 48 g Εἶδεν Ἰησοῦς τὸν Ναθαναὴλ ἐρχόμενον πρὸς αὐτὸν, καὶ λέγει περὶ αὐτοῦ, Ἴδε ἀληθῶς Ἰσραηλίτης ἐν ᾧ δόλος οὐκ ἔστι. 49 Λέγει αὐτῷ Ναθαναήλ, Πόθεν μὲ γινώσκεις; ἀπεκρίθη Ἰησοῦς καὶ εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Πρὸ τοῦ σε Φίλιππον φωνῆσαι, ὄντα ὑπὸ τὴν συκῆν εἶδόν σε. 50 Ἀπεκρίθη Ναθαναὴλ καὶ

---

32. τεθέαμαι τὸ Πνεῦμα] Cp. on Matt. xi. 2. John's own witness was to be confirmed by the witness of God the Holy Ghost, Whose work it is to declare Christ. (Chrys.)

— ὡς περιστεράν] Elz. ὡσεί, but ὡς A, B, C, E, G, H, L, S, V. See on Matt. iii. 16.

The Holy Ghost manifested Himself as a Dove,—and, at the day of Pentecost, in Tongues of Fire; in order that we may learn to unite fervour with simplicity, and to seek for both from the Holy Ghost. (Aug.)

— ἐπ' αὐτόν] The preposition implies motion to, the verb expresses immanence on. Cp. v. 33.

33. κἀγὼ οὐκ ἤδειν αὐτόν] It has been objected by some, that it is not possible that John should have been ignorant of Jesus the Son of his mother's cousin, and probably intimate with him in his infancy.

But this objection is grounded on a misunderstanding of the words before us, κἀγὼ οὐκ ἤδειν αὐτόν, which mean, "Even I, intimate with Him as I am, did not know Him as He is, and as I now preach Him to you."

Lest it should be supposed that, from his own mother's near connexion with the Mother of Jesus, the Baptist might be biassed, either by favour or interest, to bear witness to Christ, he refutes this suspicion by saying, "I knew Him not." (Theoph.) "It is not from my own personal knowledge, as you may imagine, that I now declare Him to be what He is; for my own knowledge of Him is only earthly and human (ἐγὼ in κἀγὼ is emphatic), but because I have twice received from heaven a divine revelation concerning Him." Cp. our Lord's saying to St. Peter, Matt. xvi. 17.

The Baptist shows by these words, that he utters his testimony concerning Christ not from human intercourse and affection, but from divine revelation. And John declared Christ to the people, not from human attachment, but in obedience to the divine will. (Cyril.) As son of the cousin of our Lord's Mother, he knew Jesus according to the flesh, but it was only by revelation from above that he knew and declared Him as He is, viz. the Lamb of God, the Judge of Quick and Dead, the Bridegroom of the Church, the Son of God, the Saviour of the world. The men of Nazareth knew Jesus as man, but they would not receive Him as the Christ,—and they did not know Him as He is, namely, as God. Cp. Mill's Essays, p. 79.

37. δύο μαθηταί] The Baptist, as the friend of the Bridegroom, gives away the Bride to Christ, by presenting the souls of his own disciples to Christ, and espousing them to Him. (Chrys.)

39. ὃ λέγεται ἑρμηνευόμενον] A common expression with St. John, who is careful to interpret eastern words (cp. i. 42; ix. 7), and is also accustomed to specify original Hebrew names. The word Ἑβραϊστὶ occurs seven times in his Gospel and Apocalypse (John v. 2; xix. 13. 17. 20; xx. 16. Rev. ix. 11; xvi. 16), and no where else in N. T.

40. ἔρχεσθε καὶ ἴδετε] A phrase used by the Holy Spirit, particularly when speaking by St. John, to call attention to some notable thing. See i. 47. Rev. vi. 1, 5. 7. Cp. Rev. xxii. 17. 20.

— ὥρα ἦν ὡς δεκάτη] 'ten in the morning.' On St. John's mode of reckoning the hours see Townson on the Gospels, Disc. viii. pt. i.; see below, iv. 6. 52; xi. 9; xix. 14.

42. εὑρίσκει οὗτος πρῶτος τὸν ἀδελφόν] We find one brother, and when we find our brother, and bring him to Christ. We find Christ by caring for the souls of our brethren. (Bede, Hom. in Vig. St. Andr.)

— εὑρήκαμεν τὸν Μεσσίαν] מָשִׁיחַ (Mashiah). Messias in Hebrew and Christ in Greek, the Anointed. See above, Matt. i. 1. Christos signifies unction, and He is specially the Christ, through Whom all Christians derive their unction, and who is anointed with the oil of gladness above His fellows. Ps. xiv. 8. (Aug. Tract. 7.)

— Χριστός] ὁ Χριστός (Elz.), but the Article is not in A, B, E, G, H, K, L, M, R, S, V, X.

43. Κηφᾶς] He is called Petrus, 'a stone', from Petra, 'the Rock.' (Aug.) Petrus (or Peter) has the same meaning in Greek as Cephas (ܟܐܦܐ) in Syriac; and the Apostle was called Peter from the firmness of his faith, by which he clave to that Petra, or Rock, of Whom the Apostle Paul speaks.—"That Rock was Christ" (1 Cor. x. 4). (Bede, Hom. i. in Vig. St. Andr.) See above on Matt. xvi. 18.

46. Ναθαναήλ] נְתַנְאֵל, i. q. Θεόδωρος, 'gift of God;' supposed by some (e. g. Meyer) to be the Apostle Bartholomew. See Matt. x. 3, and on John i. 49; xxi. 2.

48. Ἰησοῦς ὁ Ἰησοῦς (Elz.), but the Article is not in A, B, E, H, K, L, R, S, V.

49. πόθεν μὲ γινώσκεις;] Me,—so obscure a person.

— ὄντα ὑπὸ τὴν συκῆν] Something more than ὑπὸ τῇ συκῇ. The accusative intimates retirement thither, as well as concealment there,—perhaps for purposes of Prayer and Meditation.

Nathanael inquires as man, Christ replies as God, "I saw thee; thou wast then seen by Me as God,"—that is, from afar, and when no other eye was upon thee. I saw thee under the fig-tree, before Philip λέγει αὐτῷ, Ῥαββί, σὺ εἶ ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ Θεοῦ, σὺ εἶ ὁ βασιλεὺς τοῦ Ἰσραήλ. 51 Ἀπεκρίθη Ἰησοῦς καὶ εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Ὅτι εἶπόν σοι, Εἶδόν σε ὑποκάτω τῆς συκῆς, πιστεύεις; μείζω τούτων ὄψῃ. 52 h Καὶ λέγει αὐτῷ, Ἀμὴν ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ἀπ' ἄρτι ὄψεσθε τὸν οὐρανὸν ἀνεῳγότα, καὶ τοὺς ἀγγέλους τοῦ Θεοῦ ἀναβαίνοντας καὶ καταβαίνοντας ἐπὶ τὸν Υἱὸν τοῦ ἀνθρώπου.

h Gen. 28. 12. Matt. 4. 11. Luke 22. 43. & 24. 4. Acts 1. 10.

II. 1 Καὶ τῇ ἡμέρᾳ τῇ τρίτῃ γάμος ἐγένετο ἐν Κανᾷ τῆς Γαλιλαίας· καὶ ἦν ἡ μήτηρ τοῦ Ἰησοῦ ἐκεῖ. 2 ἐκλήθη δὲ καὶ ὁ Ἰησοῦς καὶ οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ εἰς τὸν γάμον. 3 Καὶ ὑστερήσαντος οἴνου, λέγει ἡ μήτηρ τοῦ Ἰησοῦ πρὸς αὐτόν, Οἶνον οὐκ ἔχουσι. 4 a Λέγει αὐτῇ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Τί ἐμοὶ καὶ σοί, γύναι; οὔπω ἥκει ἡ ὥρα μου. 5 Λέγει ἡ μήτηρ αὐτοῦ τοῖς διακόνοις, Ὅ τι ἂν λέγῃ a 2 Sam. 16. 10. & 19. 22. 2 Kings 3. 13.

---

called thee; and I saw thy heart, and pronounce thee to be an Israelite indeed, in whom there is no guile,—that is, who art not indeed free from taint of sin, but who art ready to confess thyself a sinner, and to embrace the truth. (Chrys. Aug. Tract. vii. et de Verb. Dom. Serm. xl.) See above on the history of Zacchæus, Luke xix. 5.

"All men," (says Hooker, iii. 1,) "knew Nathanael to be an Israelite. But our Saviour, piercing deeper, giveth further testimony of him than men could have done. 'Behold an Israelite indeed, in whom is no guile.' He declared that Nathanael belonged not only to the Church Visible (i. e. the Church as seen by man), but to the Church Invisible, i. e. to the Church as seen by God."

It is asked, since Nathanael received such a testimony from Christ, why is he not found among the Apostles? Perhaps he was a learned man, skilled in the Law; and Christ would choose unlearned men to convert and confound the world. He would not convert fishermen by orators, but orators by fishermen. (Aug.) But, as is well known, reasons have been adduced by some for believing Nathanael to be no other than Bartholomew the Apostle, e. g. by Robert Nelson on the Feast of St. Bartholomew, and Meyer here. Cp. John xxi. 2, where Nathanael is placed before οἱ τοῦ Ζεβεδαίου. But as the writer himself was one of the sons of Zebedee, no argument can thence be drawn that Nathanael was an Apostle. Rather, it would seem, that passage shows that he was not an Apostle, and therefore not the same as Bartholomew; for Nathanael is there placed after Thomas (ὁ λεγόμενος Δίδυμος),—whereas, on the contrary, in all the Apostolic Catalogues (Matt. x. 3. Mark iii. 18. Luke vi. 14, 15), except Acts i. 13, Bartholomew is placed before Thomas.

50. Ῥαββί, σὺ εἶ ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ Θεοῦ] How is it that Peter, for his confession afterwards, received such excellent gifts (Matt. xvi. 16), and that they were not now given to Nathanael for his confession of Christ? and that our Lord said that He would build His Church on Peter's confession as being complete, and that He promised to lead Nathanael to a higher elevation, as if his confession was not perfect? The reason seems to be, that Nathanael did not as yet confess Christ to be the true living God, the Lord of angels; and therefore Christ promises that hereafter he shall see heaven opened, and the angels of God ascending and descending to minister to the Son of Man as their King. (Chrys.) Probably Nathanael would not have addressed Christ as Rabbi (see Matt. xix. 16, 17), and as βασιλεὺς τοῦ Ἰσραὴλ, if he had then known Him to be God.

52. ἀμὴν ἀμήν] ἀμὴν occurs twenty-five times in St. John's Gospel; always doubled, never used by any one but Christ, and always at the beginning of a sentence. It is never doubled in the other Gospels. It is found at the end of sentences, especially doxologies in the Apocalypse, i. 6, 7; v. 14; vii. 12; xix. 4, in which book CHRIST is called ὁ Ἀμήν. Rev. iii. 14.

— ἀπ' ἄρτι] Henceforth,—now that I am come and have begun My course as the Messiah.

— οὐρανὸν ἀνεῳγότα] The heaven, shut by the sin of the first Adam, opened by the obedience of the second.

— τοὺς ἀγγέλους τοῦ Θεοῦ] In the garden, at the Agony, at the Resurrection, and at the Ascension. (Theoph.)

CH. II. 1. τῇ ἡμέρᾳ τῇ τρίτῃ γάμος] The third day after His return to Galilee (i. 44). Doubtless something is designed by this precise and exact indication of time.

On the first day, John declares Jesus to the Priests and Levites (John i. 19—28), who came from Jerusalem to him at Bethany and in Perœa.

It is probable that this took place soon after our Lord's Temptation, which is not described in this Gospel.

On the second day, John proclaims Jesus as the Lamb of God, and refers to his former testimony concerning Him (John i. 29, 30), and to the descent of the Holy Ghost on our Lord at His baptism; which is no where mentioned in this Gospel.

On the third day, John reveals Jesus especially to Andrew and another of his disciples, who accordingly follow Jesus, and speak of him as the Christ, and He abides with them that day (i. 39), and calls Simon by the name Cephas.

On the fourth day, He returns to Galilee, and finds Philip of Bethsaida in Galilee, who finds Nathanael of Cana in Galilee.

On the third day after this, the Marriage of Cana takes place, at which was wrought the first Miracle, the Manifestation of His Godhead.

As the Book of Genesis begins with the history of a period of Six Days, so, it would seem, does the Gospel of St John—the Genesis of the New Testament. (Cp. Burgon, p. 38.) The consummation is here in the Marriage of Cana; and in Genesis the consummation is in the Institution of Marriage in Paradise. (See Gen. i. 26—28.) There Adam is united to Eve, a figure of the Mystical Union and Marriage betwixt Christ and His Church. (Eph. v. 22—32.)

— γάμος] A Marriage Feast (see Matt. xxii. 2. Luke xii. 36), lasting for seven or eight days. See Gen. xxix. 27. Judg. xiv. 15, and Lightfoot here.

On the honour thus paid by Christ to Holy Matrimony, see the Marriage Office in the Book of Common Prayer.

— Κανᾷ τῆς Γαλιλαίας] Perhaps Kana-el-Jelil, about seven miles north of Nazareth. See Robinson's Palestine, iii. p. 204. Winer, Real-Lex. i. p. 648.

2, 3. ἐκλήθη ὁ Ἰησοῦς καὶ οἱ μαθηταὶ — ἡ μήτηρ] Joseph, it would seem, was now dead.

He who is the Son of God and also the Son of Mary came to the Marriage. He Who, when He was with the Father, had instituted Marriage. He Who came into the world to a Marriage, for He has espoused the Church, which He has redeemed with His own blood, and to which He has given the Holy Spirit as a pledge, and which He first united to Himself in the Virgin's Womb, from which He came forth as a Bridegroom from His chamber, rejoicing to run His course (Ps. xix. 5), when He, the Word of God, married our flesh, and so the Son of God and the Son of Man joined both in one. (Aug.) Hence we may learn to reject the heresies of Tatian and Marcion, who disparage Matrimony. (Bede, Hom. dom. 1, post Epiph.)

3. ὑστερήσαντος οἴνου] perhaps at the close of the feast week.

— ἡ μήτηρ τ. Ἰ.] never called Mary by St. John.

4. τί ἐμοὶ καὶ σοί] The Hebr. מַה לִּי וָלָךְ (mah lanu valak), Quid nobis et tibi? (Josh. xxii. 24. Judg. xi. 23. 2 Sam. xvi. 10. Matt. viii. 29; xxvii. 19. Mark i. 24, and Wetstein's note.)

The word γύναι is not necessarily to be understood as a rebuke. Cp. xix. 21; xx. 15, and see Kuin. here, who quotes Soph. Trachin. 370, and the words of Augustus to Cleopatra, Dio Cass. li. p. 305, θάρσει, γύναι, καὶ θυμὸν ἴσχε ἀγαθόν. But yet, as the Fathers observe, it is significantly employed to remind Mary of her womanhood, and of her subjection to her Son, as God. He does not say μῆτερ, but γύναι.

The sense is, What have I, as God, to do with thee, a woman? Dost thou suppose that the divine power by which I work miracles can be set in motion by thee, because thou art the mother of my humanity? Thus He condemns those who pray to the Virgin to command Christ, "Monstra te esse matrem, Jure matris impera Filio." St. Irenæus says (iii. 16. 7), "Dominus repellens intempestivam ejus festinationem dixit, Quid mihi et tibi, mulier?"

Hence Christ (says Chrys.), Who loved and revered His earthly Mother (see Luke ii. 51. John xix. 26), teaches us to begin with love and reverence to our heavenly Father; and He here rebukes His Mother. He had great regard for her, but more for the salvation of souls. (Matt. xii. 48. Luke xi. 27.) He therefore corrects her, and prepares the way for the working of His first miracle with due dignity.

Christ is the Son of Mary, and the Lord of Mary; He was made of Mary and created Mary; for He is the Son of David and the Lord of David. (Ps. cx. 1.) He is both man and God. (Aug.)

The miracle He was now about to work, He was about to work as God. As God He had no mother. And now that He was about to perform a divine work, He ignores, as it were, the human womb, and asks, "Woman, What have I to do with thee?" As much as to say, Thou art not the Mother of that in Me which works miracles, thou art not the Mother of My Godhead. What then have I now to do with thee? (Aug., see also his Serm. 218.)

Our Lord here and elsewhere displays His Divinity more clearly, by bringing it out in contrast with His relationship to His human Mother. Cp. Mark iii. 22. Luke ii. 48.

— οὔπω ἥκει ἡ ὥρα μου] 'mine hour;' the hour of My weakness derived from thee is not yet come; but it will come, and then I will acknowledge thee. See John xix. 26, 27, the best comment on this text.

Mine hour is not yet come, but it will come hereafter. When the hour of my human infirmity arrives, and when that infirmity, of ὑμῖν, ποιήσατε. [6] [b] Ἦσαν δὲ ἐκεῖ ὑδρίαι λίθιναι ἓξ κείμεναι, κατὰ τὸν καθ- b Mark 7. 3. αρισμὸν τῶν Ἰουδαίων, χωροῦσαι ἀνὰ μετρητὰς δύο ἢ τρεῖς. [7] Λέγει αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Γεμίσατε τὰς ὑδρίας ὕδατος· καὶ ἐγέμισαν αὐτὰς ἕως ἄνω. [8] Καὶ λέγει αὐτοῖς, Ἀντλήσατε νῦν καὶ φέρετε τῷ ἀρχιτρικλίνῳ· καὶ ἤνεγκαν. [9] Ὡς δὲ ἐγεύσατο ὁ ἀρχιτρίκλινος τὸ ὕδωρ οἶνον γεγενημένον, καὶ οὐκ ᾔδει πόθεν ἐστὶν, οἱ δὲ διάκονοι ᾔδεισαν οἱ ἠντληκότες τὸ ὕδωρ, φωνεῖ τὸν νυμφίον ὁ ἀρχιτρίκλινος, [10] καὶ λέγει αὐτῷ, Πᾶς ἄνθρωπος πρῶτον τὸν καλὸν οἶνον τίθησι, καὶ ὅταν μεθυσθῶσι, τότε τὸν ἐλάσσω· σὺ τετήρηκας τὸν καλὸν οἶνον ἕως ἄρτι. [11] [c] Ταύτην ἐποίησε τὴν ἀρχὴν τῶν σημείων ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἐν Κανᾷ τῆς c ch. 1. 14.

Γαλιλαίας, καὶ ἐφανέρωσε τὴν δόξαν αὐτοῦ· καὶ ἐπίστευσαν εἰς αὐτὸν οἱ μαθη-ταὶ αὐτοῦ.

(19/VII) [12] Μετὰ τοῦτο κατέβη εἰς Καφαρναοὺμ αὐτὸς καὶ ἡ μήτηρ αὐτοῦ, καὶ οἱ ἀδελφοὶ αὐτοῦ, καὶ οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἐκεῖ ἔμειναν οὐ πολλὰς ἡμέρας.
(20/I) [13] Καὶ ἐγγὺς ἦν τὸ πάσχα τῶν Ἰουδαίων, καὶ ἀνέβη εἰς Ἱεροσόλυμα ὁ d Matt. 21. 12. Mark 11. 15. Luke 19. 45.
Ἰησοῦς. (21/I) [14] [d] Καὶ εὗρεν ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ τοὺς πωλοῦντας βόας καὶ πρόβατα which thou art the Mother, hangs on the Cross, then I will acknowledge thee as My Mother. Then He owned her, when that which was born of her was about to die; then He commended her to His Disciple, and said to him, "Behold thy mother." (Aug.)

---

As man He had His hour (cp. vii. 30; viii. 20; xii. 27; xvii. 1), but as God Eternal He has no hour. And it was as God that He was now about to work, and to manifest His Godhead. He calls His hour of suffering "Mine hour," because He had the power of laying down His life when He chose. (John x. 18.)

5. ὅ τι ἂν λέγῃ] λέγῃ, 'command;' the Heb. אָמַר (amar).

6. ὑδρίαι λίθιναι] Some few MSS., e.g. B, L, X, have λίθ. ὑδρίαι, which has been received in some editions, but without reason.

— κατὰ τὸν καθαρισμόν] For ablution before dinner, and for washing of the vessels. (Matt. xv. 2. Luke xi. 39.) It would appear from v. 7 that they had been exhausted of part of their contents before the miracle was wrought.

— χωροῦσαι ἀνὰ μετρητάς] ἀνά, apiece. See Matt. xx. 11. Mark vi. 40. μετρητής, the Hebr. בַּת (bath). 2 Chron. iv. 5. See on Luke xvi. 6. Joseph. Ant. viii. 2. 9, and Kuinoel here.

Since the μετρητὴς held seventy-two sextarii (Joseph. Ant. viii. 2), about nine gallons,—and since these ὑδρίαι held two or three μετρηταὶ apiece, the quantity of water changed into wine was very great—about 135 gallons.

This large quantity has been perverted by some into an argument against the veracity of St. John's account, and even against the reality of the miracle itself.

What use, it is asked, could there be in the supply of so much wine for a single feast? And is it consistent with the divine character of Christ to produce what would only be wasted, and was so disproportionate to the occasion?

To this it has been replied by some (Semler and Kuin.) that it is probable that only a portion of the water in the ὑδρίαι was changed. This is against the text.

Others reply, that it was an act of divine benevolence to supply a large quantity of wine for the future use of the newly married pair and their friends. (Meyer.)

This may be so. But the true reason of the large surplus beyond the present need, seems to be of a higher spiritual kind,—viz. that in it there might be, as in the twelve baskets remaining over and above the barley-loaves after the miraculous feeding (Matt. xiv. 20; xvi. 9. John vi. 13),—a visible and abiding proof and record of this mighty work of Christ; and that whenever the newly married pair brought forth any of this wine, from time to time, to welcome and regale any of their friends, they themselves might be reminded, and they might speak to others, of the divine power and love of Him Who produced it; and so the effects of the miracle might extend far beyond the time, and place, and other circumstances of its first operation; and the water thus made wine might diffuse the knowledge of the Gospel, and become a holy well-spring and fountain of living water for the salvation of souls. The bread of the barley loaves could not be kept long; and therefore, in that case, the surplus produced by our Lord was less. But the "good wine" of Cana might be preserved for many years. How many persons may it have afterwards refreshed in body and soul! Perhaps it may have served for some holy Eucharistic celebrations in the infant Church of Galilee.

7. γεμίσατε τὰς ὑδρίας] He uses the elements of which the world consists, to show that the world was not made by any power alien from Himself, as some heretics assert. (Chrys.)

— ἕως ἄνω] So that any one might see first the water then the wine.

8. ἀρχιτρικλίνῳ] or συμποσιάρχῃ, cp. Ecclus. xxxv. 1, where he is called ἡγούμενος. "Convivii Magister, Modimperator." (Varro.) "Arbiter bibendi." (Horat. I. iv. 18.) "Dictator." (Plaut.)

It has been supposed by many recent Expositors that the ἀρχιτρίκλινος was the τραπεζοποιὸς of Julius Pollux (Onom. iii. 41),—a chief servant or butler, whose duty it was to provide wine and food for the guests.

But no authority has been quoted for this sense, and the etymology of the word seems to be against it. Besides, his language to the bridegroom (v. 10, σὺ τετήρηκας) shows that he regarded the νυμφίος, not himself, as the purveyor of the feast; and his words to the bridegroom are not those of a servant to a master, but of an equal. Rather, the ἀρχιτρίκλινος must have been one of the guests, chosen to taste the wine, and to regulate the order of its consumption; and, notwithstanding the objections of Kuin., Meyer, and others, it seems more reasonable to conclude, with Rosenmüller, that he was no other than the 'Convivii Magister.'

11. ταύτην ἐποίησε τὴν ἀρχήν] τὴν is omitted by A, B, and some Editors, but without reason. Observe, τὴν ἀρχὴν and ἐποίησε, i. e. the beginning which He made was this,—He laid this first stone, or foundation, of the miraculous fabric.

He Who changed the water into wine in the water-pots, at Cana in Galilee, works the same change every year in the rain which descends from the clouds of heaven into the vines. But this gradual operation of change in the vine attracts no wonder from its continuity; and, therefore, the same God sometimes makes, as here, unusual demonstrations of His power, in order to awaken men from their slumber to a sense of His Omnipotence, and to excite them to worship Him as God. See Aug. and Irenæus, iii. 12. 5, and Athanasius, de Incarn. 18, p. 51,—"He Who changed water into wine thus proved Himself their Creator. Therefore He walked on the sea as on dry land, and fed thousands with a few loaves,—in order that He might show us that He is the Lord of the universe."

The whole of the passage, pp. 50, 51, is well worthy of perusal, and very seasonable in an age like the present, when a disposition manifests itself to separate the study of Physics from that of Religion, and to detach the operations and phænomena of the World of Nature from the control and government of Him Who is Supreme in the World of Grace. If we would philosophize aright, let us regard CHRIST—as Holy Scripture teaches us to do—as Creator and Lord of the Elements, and as acting in them and by them no less than by the Word and Sacraments. Cp. the remarks on Matt. xiv. 20.

As we admire the works wrought by the Man Christ Jesus, so let us admire those done by Jesus our God. Let us not turn our face to the works of creation, and our backs to Him Who made them. (Aug.)

— τὴν δόξαν] His Divine Majesty and Glory. See above, i. 14.

— ἐπίστευσαν] They had already some faith (i. 41; see also ii. 23), which was increased by His miracles, but yet was not a clear and firm faith (see vii. 5). And thus we learn that faith, like other graces, is gradual in its growth, and needs continual education and cultivation by those means which God provides for its increase.

12. κατέβη] "Tanquam in locum maritimum." (Rosenmüller.)

— ἀδελφοὶ] 'cousins.' Abraham was the uncle of Lot, and Laban of Jacob, yet Scripture calls them brethren. All the relatives of Mary are called brethren of Christ. (Aug.) See above on Matt. xii. 46; xiii. 55.

13. τὸ πάσχα] St. John adds τῶν Ἰουδαίων, because he wrote for many who were not conversant with Jewish customs. See v. 6, and vi. 1, and above, p. 206, and cp. the instances in which St. John translates Hebrew words, i. 38. 42, and cp. iv. 9 and 25; and Dr. Townson on the Gospels, Disc. vii. sect. 2.

This seems to have been the first Passover of our Lord's ministry, if the ἑορτὴ at v. 1 is the second or a feast of Pentecost, then that at vi. 4 is the third Passover (see note there). And so, with the Passover at which He suffered, there are four Passovers in St. John's Gospel; which was the opinion of Eusebius, i. 10. Theodoret, ad Dan. ix. tom. ii. p. 1250, ed. Hal. 1770.

14. εὗρεν ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ, κ.τ.λ.] Not ἐν τῷ ναῷ, but ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ, in the outer courts.

καὶ περιστερὰς, καὶ τοὺς κερματιστὰς καθημένους. 15 Καὶ ποιήσας φραγέλλιον ἐκ σχοινίων πάντας ἐξέβαλεν ἐκ τοῦ ἱεροῦ, τά τε πρόβατα καὶ τοὺς βόας· καὶ τῶν κολλυβιστῶν ἐξέχεε τὸ κέρμα, καὶ τὰς τραπέζας ἀνέστρεψε· 16 καὶ τοῖς τὰς περιστερὰς πωλοῦσιν εἶπεν, Ἄρατε ταῦτα ἐντεῦθεν· μὴ ποιεῖτε τὸν οἶκον τοῦ Πατρός μου οἶκον ἐμπορίου. (ϰβ/χ) 17 e Ἐμνήσθησαν δὲ οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ, e Ps. 69. 9.
ὅτι γεγραμμένον ἐστίν, Ὁ ζῆλος τοῦ οἴκου σου καταφάγεταί με.
(ϰϛ/ιϛ) 18 f Ἀπεκρίθησαν οὖν οἱ Ἰουδαῖοι καὶ εἶπον αὐτῷ· Τί σημεῖον δεικνύεις ἡμῖν, f Matt. 12. 38. & 16. 1. Mark 8. 11. Luke 11. 29.
ὅτι ταῦτα ποιεῖς; (κδ/χ) 19 g Ἀπεκρίθη Ἰησοῦς καὶ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Λύσατε τὸν ch. 6. 30.
ναὸν τοῦτον, καὶ ἐν τρισὶν ἡμέραις ἐγερῶ αὐτόν. 20 Εἶπον οὖν οἱ Ἰουδαῖοι, g Matt. 26. 61. & 27. 40. Mark 14. 58.
Τεσσαράκοντα καὶ ἓξ ἔτεσιν ᾠκοδομήθη ὁ ναὸς οὗτος, καὶ σὺ ἐν τρισὶν ἡμέ- & 15. 29.
ραις ἐγερεῖς αὐτόν; 21 Ἐκεῖνος δὲ ἔλεγε περὶ τοῦ ναοῦ τοῦ σώματος αὐτοῦ.
22 h Ὅτε οὖν ἠγέρθη ἐκ νεκρῶν, ἐμνήσθησαν οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ ὅτι τοῦτο ἔλεγεν· h Luke 24. 8.
καὶ ἐπίστευσαν τῇ γραφῇ, καὶ τῷ λόγῳ ᾧ εἶπεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς. 23 Ὡς δὲ ἦν ἐν τοῖς Ἱεροσολύμοις ἐν τῷ πάσχα ἐν τῇ ἑορτῇ, πολλοὶ ἐπίστευσαν εἰς τὸ ὄνομα αὐτοῦ, θεωροῦντες αὐτοῦ τὰ σημεῖα ἃ ἐποίει. 24 Αὐτὸς δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς οὐκ ἐπίστευεν ἑαυτὸν αὐτοῖς, διὰ τὸ αὐτὸν γινώσκειν πάντας, 25 i καὶ ὅτι οὐ χρείαν i ch. 6. 64. Acts 1. 24. Rev. 2. 23.
εἶχεν ἵνα τὶς μαρτυρήσῃ περὶ τοῦ ἀνθρώπου· αὐτὸς γὰρ ἐγίνωσκε τί ἦν ἐν τῷ ἀνθρώπῳ.

— βόας—πρόβατα—περιστεράς] for sacrifices in the Temple; that persons, who came from a distance, and could not bring victims with them, might purchase them on the spot. The money-changers were there to facilitate the purchases of the sacrifices. Perhaps, also, to change money, for the payment of the Temple-Rate due now. See on Matt. xvii. 24.

It might not have seemed to be a great sin to sell in the temple what was purchased in order to be offered in the temple. Yet our Lord drave them out. (Aug. and Bede.) See above on Matt. xxi. 12.

15. πάντας ἐξέβαλεν] A fulfilment of the prophecy (Mal. iii. 1—3). Our Lord did this twice, as is evident from the other Gospels. (See Matt. xxi 12. Mark xi. 15. Luke xix. 45.) The former instance is that described here by St. John. (Aug. de Cons. Evang. ii. 67.)

And yet, against the clear testimony of the Gospels, and the concurrent interpretation of antiquity, it has been recently denied by many (Lücke, De Wette, Strauss), that there was more than one cleansing of the Temple.

Origen (in Joan. tom. x.) dwells on this act as a wonderful proof of Christ's Divinity felt by men,—even by the large multitudes who profaned the temple. See above, St. Jerome on Matth. xxi. 12. 16.

16. μὴ ποιεῖτε] Sellers in the Temple are they who seek their own things, not those of Jesus Christ. (Phil. ii. 21.) Simon Magus desired to purchase the gift of the Holy Spirit, that he might sell it again. He was among the Sellers of Doves. Divine Grace is so called because it is given gratuitously. (Aug., Origen.)

Money Changers in the Temple are they who pursue secular interests in the Church; and God's house is made a house of merchandise, not only by those who seek to obtain money or praise, or honour, by means of holy Orders, but they also who exercise the sacred ministry, or dispense sacred gifts, with a view to human reward,—and not with simplicity of intention. (Bede.)

18. ὁ ζῆλος, κ.τ.λ.] Let all the members of Christ's Body be consumed with this zeal. Who is he that is eaten up with this zeal? He who never rests, but is ever endeavouring and longing, that what he sees amiss may be corrected; and if he cannot correct it himself, is patient, and mourns inwardly. You see your brother going astray, let the zeal of God's house eat thee up; prevent him if you can; restrain him if you can; terrify him if you can; persuade him if you can; never cease; do the same in your family, do whatever you can, according to your position in life, then you will imitate Christ, of Whom it was said, "The zeal of Thine House hath even eaten me up." (Aug.)

19. λύσατε] 'destroy,' a prophecy that they would do so. See xii. 28. Matt. xxiii. 32, and cp Glass. Philol. S. pp. 406. 873.

He predicts at His first Passover what they would do at His last Passover. And by His act in cleansing the material Temple at this Passover, He foreshadowed His own act in raising the Temple's antitype—His own Body, at the last Passover, and in thus reviving His mystical Body the Church.

19. τὸν ναὸν τοῦτον] 'Me ipsum;' on this use of οὗτος, see on Matt. xvi. 18. Cp. below, vi. 50.

They sought for a miracle from Christ, because He had driven their traffic from the Temple; and He tells them in reply that the Temple was emblematic of His own Body, and that He by His own divine power would do much more than He had done in purging the type profaned by them. He would raise the antitype, His own Body, destroyed by them. (Bede.) As the Body of Christ was crucified and raised again, so will it be with His mystical Body, the Church; and with every true Christian, who is crucified with Christ, and buried with Christ, and rises again with Christ to newness of life in this world, and to eternal glory in the next. (Origen.) Compare 1 Pet. ii. 5. Ephes. ii. 20; iv. 13. 1 Cor. xii. 12. 27. Ezek. xxxvii. 11. Rom. vi. 4. 1 Cor. xv. 22.

20. τεσσαράκοντα καὶ ἓξ ἔτεσιν] It began to be built (or rather rebuilt) by King Herod the Great, forty-six years ago, and is not yet finished. See Joseph. Antiq. xv. 11; xx. 8. B. J. i. 21. Wieseler (Chronol. Syn. p. 106) reckons that this period of forty-six years had expired at the Passover, A.U.C. 781.

"Septem annis ædificatum erat Salomonis templum. (1 Regg. vi. 38.) Templi verò secundi structura, plus unâ vice interrupta, viginti annorum spatio absoluta erat (v. Usserii Annal.). Sermo igitur est de templo Herodis, qui Sorobabelis templum, ut populum Judaïcum sibi devinciret, restauravit et ampliavit. Quamquàm autem Herodes Magnus templum secundum à fundamentis, quod Josephus adserit, novaverat, tamen cùm et materiâ usus sit veteri, nec totum templum simul diruerit, sed per partes, quantum tempore quoque innovandum esset, rectè hoc Herodis Templum idem fuisse censetur ac dicitur, quod à Sorobabele structum erat, unde et Judæi templum secundum vocarunt Sorobabelis templum, nec uspiam mentio templi tertii occurrit, et Josephus templum bis dirutum dicit, semel à Chaldæis, iterum à Tito.

"Cœpit Herodes I. templi structuram anno imperii XVIII. ut Josephus tradit Ant. xv. Templi structura, ab Herode inchoata, intra decennium absoluta est (Joseph. Ant. xv. 14), ita tamen, ut post Herodis mortem nova augmenta et ornamenta subinde addita sint, nam Agrippæ II. demum tempore absolutum est totum templi ædificium, ἤδη καὶ τότε τὸ ἱερὸν τετέλεστο, Joseph. Ant. xx. 8." (Kuin.)

21. ἔλεγε περὶ τοῦ ναοῦ τοῦ σώματος αὐτοῦ] Our Lord often uttered sayings which were not intelligible at first to those who heard them, but became clear afterwards; and thus He showed His divine prescience. (Chrys.) Cp. St. John's own declaration concerning Christ's disciples (xii. 16).

This observation is of great importance, and answers by anticipations many objections, grounded on the erroneous supposition that Christ could not have meant to say what His words imply, merely because they, to whom He was then speaking, could not understand that meaning.

That allegation virtually contravenes the claims of His Prophetical office. For it is the essence of Prophecy to be obscure when first delivered, and to be explained by the event. Examples of Christ's prophetic language, combined with didactic instruction, may be seen in iii. 5; vi. 53. See the notes there on the prolepses, or anticipations, in our Lord's Teaching, to be explained afterwards by the event.

22. εἶπεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς] Elz. has not the article; but it is in A, B, E, G, H, K, L, S, V, X.

23. ἐν τοῖς Ἱερ.] Elz. has not τοῖς, which is in ten uncial MSS. Cp. x. 22.

24. αὐτὸς δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, κ.τ.λ.] These two verses afford an instance of the peculiar manner in which the Holy Spirit pronounces judgment, in St. John's Gospel, on things and persons. Cf v. 21; vi. 64. 71; vii. 39; viii. 27; xii. 33. 37; xiii. 11; xxi. 17.

This method was very suitable for the last written Gospel, and confirms the testimonials and proof that St. John's Gospel is the last. It is not only an inspired History, but also an inspired Comment on that History.

k ch. 7. 50. & 19. 39.
l ch. 9. 16. 33. Acts 10. 38.
m Tit. 3. 5. ch. 1. 13. Gal. 6. 15. 2 Cor. 5. 17. James 1. 18. 1 Pet. 1. 23. 1 John 3. 9.
n ver. 3. Eph. 5. 26. Heb. 10. 23.
o Rom. 8. 5. 1 Cor. 2. 14. & 15. 47. p Eccles. 11. 5. 1 Cor. 2. 11.
q ch. 6. 52, 60.
r Isa. 49. 21. & 66. 8. Jer. 31. 31—34. Ezek. 36. 26, 27. & 37. 9. 10 s ver. 32. & 7. 16. & 8. 28. & 12. 49. & 14. 24.

III. 1 k Ἦν δὲ ἄνθρωπος ἐκ τῶν Φαρισαίων, Νικόδημος ὄνομα αὐτῷ, ἄρχων τῶν Ἰουδαίων. 2 l Οὗτος ἦλθε πρὸς αὐτὸν νυκτὸς, καὶ εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Ῥαββὶ, οἴδαμεν ὅτι ἀπὸ Θεοῦ ἐλήλυθας διδάσκαλος· οὐδεὶς γὰρ ταῦτα τὰ σημεῖα δύναται ποιεῖν ἃ σὺ ποιεῖς, ἐὰν μὴ ᾖ ὁ Θεὸς μετ' αὐτοῦ. 3 m Ἀπεκρίθη Ἰησοῦς καὶ εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Ἀμὴν ἀμὴν λέγω σοι· ἐὰν μή τις γεννηθῇ ἄνωθεν, οὐ δύναται ἰδεῖν τὴν βασιλείαν τοῦ Θεοῦ. 4 Λέγει πρὸς αὐτὸν ὁ Νικόδημος, Πῶς δύναται ἄνθρωπος γεννηθῆναι, γέρων ὤν; μὴ δύναται εἰς τὴν κοιλίαν τῆς μητρὸς αὐτοῦ δεύτερον εἰσελθεῖν καὶ γεννηθῆναι; 5 Ἀπεκρίθη Ἰησοῦς, n Ἀμὴν ἀμὴν λέγω σοι, ἐὰν μή τις γεννηθῇ ἐξ ὕδατος καὶ Πνεύματος, οὐ δύναται εἰσελθεῖν εἰς τὴν βασιλείαν τοῦ Θεοῦ. 6 o Τὸ γεγεννημένον ἐκ τῆς σαρκὸς σάρξ ἐστι, καὶ τὸ γεγεννημένον ἐκ τοῦ πνεύματος πνεῦμά ἐστι. 7 Μὴ θαυμάσῃς ὅτι εἶπόν σοι, Δεῖ ὑμᾶς γεννηθῆναι ἄνωθεν. 8 p Τὸ πνεῦμα ὅπου θέλει πνεῖ, καὶ τὴν φωνὴν αὐτοῦ ἀκούεις, ἀλλ' οὐκ οἶδας πόθεν ἔρχεται καὶ ποῦ ὑπάγει· οὕτως ἐστὶ πᾶς ὁ γεγεννημένος ἐκ τοῦ Πνεύματος. 9 q Ἀπεκρίθη Νικόδημος καὶ εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Πῶς δύναται ταῦτα γενέσθαι; 10 Ἀπεκρίθη Ἰησοῦς καὶ εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Σὺ εἶ ὁ διδάσκαλος τοῦ Ἰσραὴλ, καὶ r ταῦτα οὐ γινώσκεις; 11 s Ἀμὴν ἀμὴν λέγω σοι, ὅτι ὃ οἴδαμεν λαλοῦμεν, καὶ ὃ ἑωράκαμεν μαρτυροῦμεν· καὶ τὴν μαρτυρίαν ἡμῶν οὐ λαμβάνετε. 12 Εἰ τὰ ἐπίγεια εἶπον ὑμῖν,

---

Ch. III. 1.] For a synopsis of the contents of this Chapter, see below, note on v. 36.

— Νικόδημος] Not only a Greek name (Demosth. 549, 23), but also common among the Jews. (Lightfoot.) — ἄρχων] שַׂר (sar). Probably one of the Sanhedrim. See vii. 48.

2. νυκτός] Nicodemus was of the number of those who had some faith, but were not yet born again of water and the Spirit. The Apostle says, ye were sometimes darkness, but now are ye light in the Lord. Eph. v. 8. (Aug.) Nicodemus came at first by night, through fear, but was not rejected by Christ; but was tenderly received and instructed by Him; and grew in grace and wisdom and courage. He, who at first was only a timid Disciple, became in the end a courageous Confessor. He who came at first to Jesus by night, came at last boldly forward, when the disciples of Jesus had fled. See John vii. 50; xix. 39. (Chrys. and Burgon. here.)

3. Ἰησοῦς] ὁ Ἰησ. Elz.; but the article is not in B, E, G, H, K, L, M. See on v. 5.

— ἐὰν μή τις γεννηθῇ ἄνωθεν] ἄνωθεν (i. 13) ἐκ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ. On the sense of ἄνωθεν, see iii. 31; xix. 11. 23. James i. 17; iii. 15. 17.

Thou art not yet born again; i. e. of God, by spiritual generation, and therefore the knowledge thou hast of Me is not spiritual but carnal. But I say to thee, that except thou be born again of God, thou canst not apprehend My glory, but wilt remain a stranger to My kingdom, for the birth which is by Baptism gives illumination to the soul. (Aug.) Cp. Justin M. Apol. i. 61, ὁ Χριστὸς εἶπεν, ἂν μὴ ἀναγεννηθῆτε, οὐ μὴ εἰσέλθητε εἰς τὴν βασιλείαν τῶν οὐρανῶν.

4. πῶς δύναται] This questioning "how?" is of the natural man (1 Cor. ii. 14), and is characteristic of a weak faith and an earthly mind, like that of Sarah when she laughed; and many, by putting such questions as to the manner of God's operations on the soul, have fallen from the faith. If a person ask,—How is a man born again by water? let us ask in return, How was Adam born from the earth? How are our bones and sinews and veins, and all our organs, formed? In both cases the work is God's, Whose the elements are, to work upon them and by them according to His will. Cp. Chrys., who quotes Col. ii. 12, Rom. vi. 6, and dilates on this topic.

If the earth is endued with such power that such marvels as we see every day are produced from it, so, in like manner, when the Holy Spirit is present with the water, the marvels which exceed our comprehension are easily performed. The element of water is there; but the whole work is wrought by the grace of the Holy Ghost. By the first creation from earth, man became a living soul; but by the second creation from water he is made a quickening spirit; and the old man is buried in the water as in a tomb, and the new man rises from it. (Chrys.)

— μὴ δύναται] What the maternal womb is to the infant,—that the Baptismal Font is to the Faithful. (Chrys.)

Nicodemus knew as yet but one birth,—that from Adam and Eve; he knew not as yet that other birth from Christ and the Church; he knew the first birth which is unto death; he knew not, as yet, the second birth unto life. The one birth is from earth, the other is from heaven; the one is of the flesh, the other of the Spirit; the one is of mortality, the other of eternity; the one is from men and women, the other is from God and the Church. Each of these two births takes place once, and once only. As the birth from the womb cannot be repeated, so neither can baptism. Carnal generation takes place once, so does spiritual regeneration. (Aug. Tract. xi. xii.)

5. Ἰησοῦς] ὁ Ἰησ. Elz.; but the article is not in A, G, H, M, V, X. Cp. v. 8, where Νικόδημος is anarthrous. See also v. 10, where A, G, H, K, L, S, V, have not the article before Ἰησοῦς.

— ἐὰν μή τις γεννηθῇ ἐξ ὕδατος] The word τις is general, and includes Infants. Cf. Jerome ad Pelagium, iii. ad fin. pp. 545, 546, on the Baptism of Infants.

As the Israelites were not delivered from the Egyptians before they came to the Red Sea, so none can be freed from the pressure of his sins before he comes to the waters of Baptism. And if the Red Sea, the figure of Baptism, had such virtue as it had, how great is the power of Baptism, of which the Red Sea was a type! (Aug. Tract. xi. xiii. and Serm. 294.) Cp. St. Cyril. Hieros. Catech. 3, p. 41, who hence asserts the necessity of Baptism. "He declares the manner of Regeneration in Baptism," says Theodor. Mopsuest. "By mentioning the water, He specifies the Element ἐν ᾧ πληροῦται τὸ ἔργον: by mentioning the Spirit, He speaks of the Agent Who ἐν τῷ ὕδατι τὴν οἰκείαν πληροῖ ἐνέργειαν." (Meyer, p. 103.)

If there are any who doubt whether Christ,—Who knew what He would do (John vi. 6), and foresaw, not only His own institution of the Sacrament of Baptism, but every Baptism that has ever been administered in the Church,—had reference to Baptism in these words, let them read Hooker, v. lix. and consider the use made of this Scripture by the Church in her offices for Baptism of Infants and of those of riper years. Let it not be objected that our Lord's words cannot refer to Christian Baptism, because that Sacrament was not then instituted, and because they could not then be understood by Nicodemus to refer to it. This objection (as before observed on ii. 21) is tantamount to a denial of our Lord's prophetic character and office. And it is remarkable, that a similar prolepsis, or anticipation, to be explained ab eventu, is observable in our Lord's words concerning the other Sacrament as recorded by St. John, vi. 53. See also on iii. 21.

8. τὸ πνεῦμα] רוּחַ (ruach), used, as πνεῦμα, for wind, and also for the Holy Spirit. Gen. i. 2; vi. 3. 17; vii. 15; viii. 1.

If no one can control the wind, much less can any laws of nature constrain the Spirit; and if you cannot trace the path of the wind, whose effects however you hear and see, how can you expect to scrutinize the operation of the Holy Spirit of God? (Chrys.) In the Word and Sacraments the Holy Spirit comes to us invisibly, that we may be born again. (Aug.)

10. σὺ εἶ ὁ διδάσκαλος] 'Art thou the teacher of others,—of God's own people,—and hast not learnt this?' The definite Article is used to bring out more forcibly the word διδάσκαλος, the teacher, who has yet the very elements of divine truth to learn. Cp. Rom. ii. 21, ὁ διδάσκων ἕτερον σεαυτὸν οὐ διδάσκεις; This use of the definite Article not specifying any individual of a class, but the class itself, may be seen in the following examples; Matt xiii. 3, ἐξῆλθεν ὁ σπείρων, not any one sower, but the sower, in the abstract. So 2 Cor. xii. 12, τὰ σημεῖα τοῦ ἀποστόλου, the miracles which are necessary as credentials for one who is an Apostle. Cp. Gal. iv. 1, ὁ κληρονόμος, and Winer, p. 97.

12. τὰ ἐπίγεια] If ye do not believe the soul's birth by Baptism, which is ministered on earth, how can you believe in the birth of the Son of God? (Theoph.)

Nicodemus had said (iii. 2), "Rabbi, we know that thou art a teacher come from God." Our Lord corrects and elevates his views thus: "True, I am a Teacher sent from God, but not as other teachers or prophets, who are of the earth; but I am from heaven, to καὶ οὐ πιστεύετε, πῶς, ἐὰν εἴπω ὑμῖν τὰ ἐπουράνια, πιστεύσετε; [13] [t] καὶ οὐδεὶς ἀναβέβηκεν εἰς τὸν οὐρανὸν, εἰ μὴ ὁ ἐκ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ καταβὰς, ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ὁ ὢν ἐν τῷ οὐρανῷ· [14] [u] καὶ καθὼς Μωϋσῆς ὕψωσε τὸν ὄφιν ἐν τῇ ἐρήμῳ, οὕτως ὑψωθῆναι δεῖ τὸν Υἱὸν τοῦ ἀνθρώπου, [15] [v] ἵνα πᾶς ὁ πιστεύων εἰς αὐτὸν μὴ ἀπόληται, ἀλλ' ἔχῃ ζωὴν αἰώνιον· [16] [x] οὕτω γὰρ ἠγάπησεν ὁ Θεὸς τὸν κόσμον, ὥστε τὸν Υἱὸν αὐτοῦ τὸν μονογενῆ ἔδωκεν, ἵνα πᾶς ὁ πιστεύων εἰς αὐτὸν μὴ ἀπόληται, ἀλλ' ἔχῃ ζωὴν αἰώνιον· [17] [y] οὐ γὰρ ἀπέστειλεν ὁ Θεὸς τὸν Υἱὸν αὐτοῦ εἰς τὸν κόσμον, ἵνα κρίνῃ τὸν κόσμον, ἀλλ' ἵνα σωθῇ ὁ κόσμος δι' αὐτοῦ· [18] [z] ὁ πιστεύων εἰς αὐτὸν οὐ κρίνεται, ὁ δὲ μὴ πιστεύων ἤδη κέκριται, ὅτι μὴ πεπίστευκεν εἰς τὸ ὄνομα τοῦ μονογενοῦς Υἱοῦ τοῦ Θεοῦ· [19] [a] αὕτη δέ ἐστιν ἡ κρίσις, ὅτι τὸ φῶς ἐλήλυθεν εἰς τὸν κόσμον, καὶ ἠγάπησαν οἱ ἄνθρωποι μᾶλλον τὸ σκότος ἢ τὸ φῶς· ἦν γὰρ πονηρὰ αὐτῶν τὰ ἔργα· [20] [b] πᾶς γὰρ ὁ φαῦλα πράσσων μισεῖ τὸ φῶς, καὶ οὐκ ἔρχεται πρὸς τὸ φῶς, ἵνα μὴ ἐλεγχθῇ τὰ ἔργα αὐτοῦ· [21] [c] ὁ δὲ ποιῶν τὴν ἀλήθειαν ἔρχεται πρὸς τὸ φῶς, ἵνα φανερωθῇ αὐτοῦ τὰ ἔργα, ὅτι ἐν Θεῷ ἐστιν εἰργασμένα.

[22] [d] Μετὰ ταῦτα ἦλθεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς καὶ οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ εἰς τὴν Ἰουδαίαν γῆν· καὶ ἐκεῖ διέτριβε μετ' αὐτῶν, καὶ ἐβάπτιζεν. (25/III) [23] [e] Ἦν δὲ καὶ Ἰωάννης βαπτίζων ἐν Αἰνὼν ἐγγὺς τοῦ Σαλείμ, ὅτι ὕδατα πολλὰ ἦν ἐκεῖ· καὶ παρεγίνοντο t ch. 6. 33, 38, 51, 62. Acts 2. 34. 1 Cor. 15. 47.

u Prov. 30. 4. Deut. 30. 12. Eph. 4. 9, 10. Numb. 21. 9. 2 Kings 18. 4.
v ch. 8. 28. & 12. 32. ver. 36. & 6. 47. Luke 19. 10. 1 John 5. 10.
x Rom. 5. 8. & 8. 32. 1 John 4. 9.
y ch. 9. 39. & 12. 47. Luke 9. 56.
z 1 John 4. 14. ch. 5. 24. & 6 40, 47. & 20. 31.
a ch. 1. 5, 10, 11. & 8. 12.
b Job 24. 13, et seqq.
c Eph. 5. 8.
d ch. 4. 1.
e Matt. 3. 6, 16. Mark 1. 5. Luke 3. 7. 1 Sam. 9. 4.

which none of the prophets ascended, and I though on earth, am always in heaven." (Chrys.)

13. οὐδεὶς ἀναβέβηκεν] The Son of God became also the Son of Man by His Incarnation; and He vouchsafed to designate His divinity (in which He remained in heaven while descending to earth) by the name of Son of Man; and He also calls His Humanity by the name of the Son of God.

For, by unity of Person, by which both natures are One Christ, the Son of God walked upon earth; and the Son of Man abode in heaven. Thus by believing in things more incredible, we learn to believe in things that are less so. For if the Divine Nature could take our human nature, so that One Person is in both, how much more credible is it that all who are sanctified become one in the Man Christ Jesus; so that when all ascend to heaven by divine grace, and by virtue of their union with Christ, He alone is said to ascend to heaven Who came down from heaven? This is spiritual generation, by which men from earthly become heavenly; a condition which they cannot attain unless they become members of Christ, Who regards His Body the Church as no other than Himself. (Aug. de Pecc. mer. et remiss. c. 31. Cp. Hippolyt. adv. Noet. § 4.)

We must here guard against the heresy of Apollinarius, which says that the flesh of Christ came down from heaven. Christ is One Person in two natures; and therefore the attributes of humanity are ascribed to Him Who is the Word of God; but that we may not suppose that the Word having descended is not in heaven, he adds the words "which is in heaven." I am on earth as Man, and in heaven as God. (Theophyl.)

He descended from heaven as becoming the Son of Man, and He is in heaven, because when the Word was made flesh He did not cease to be the Word. (Hilary, de Trin.) He was on earth and in heaven. Here in body, there in Deity. Yea, every where by his Godhead. Born of a human Mother, yet never separated from his Divine Father. He descended to us that we might ascend by Him. They whom He makes children of God by adoption ascend with Him, for He Himself says they will be equal to the Angels. (Luke xx. 36.) And one Man, Christ Jesus, ascends; because we, made one in Him, ascend by Him; as St. Paul says, "Our conversation is in heaven." Phil. iii. 20. (Aug.) See also Eph. ii 6.

He ascended, before His bodily Ascension, and thus by virtue of the hypostatical union was in heaven. See Bp. Pearson on the Creed, Art. vi. p. 507, and on what is called the communicatio idiomatum, "wherein are attributed to Man such things as properly belong to the Deity of Christ Jesus;" and vice versâ, see Hooker, V. liii. 4, and V. liv.

14. καθὼς Μωϋσῆς] Having described the benefits of Baptism, our Lord proceeds to mention the source of those benefits. The Death of Christ is the cause of the grace in Baptism. (Chrys.)

And by reference to Moses and the Serpent, He shows that the Gospel is not contrary to the Law, but is a fulfilment of it, and thus He refutes Marcion and the Manichæans. (Theophyl.)

Many died of the bite of the fiery serpents in the wilderness, and Moses, by God's command, lifted up the Serpent of brass, and they who looked on it were healed. The serpent thus lifted up was the figure of Christ dying on the Cross, according to that mode of signification, by which that which is done is signified by that which does it, for death came from the Serpent who tempted man to sin, whose wages are death: and our Lord transferred to His own Body, not sin which is the venom of the Serpent, but death; so that in the likeness of sinful flesh (Rom. viii. 3) there might be the penalty of sin without the guilt of sin; and thus in our sinful flesh both the penalty of sin and the guilt might be done away. (Cp. Aug. de pecc. mer. c. 32.)

What did the fiery Serpents typify? Sins, from our mortal flesh. Why is the Serpent lifted up? To signify the death of Christ on the Cross. The brazen Serpent, looked at by the eye of the Israelite, saved from temporal death; Christ lifted up on the Cross, looked at by the eye of faith, saves the true Israelite from everlasting death. For since death came from the Serpent, it was figured by the Serpent. The bite of the Serpent brought death. The death of Christ brings life. Look at the Serpent, that the Serpent may not harm you. Look at death, that death may not hurt you. But at whose death? At the death of Him Who is the Life. Christ our Life died on the Cross, and in His death, Death died; Life by dying destroyed death; Life by dying swallowed up death; Death died in Christ; so that we may now say, "O death where is thy Sting, O Grave where is thy Victory?" (Aug.)

As the Serpent killed and the Serpent healed, so Death killed and Death healed. The brazen Serpent resembles a Serpent, but has not the venom of a Serpent, so Christ was made in the likeness of sinful flesh, but without sin. (Cp. Chrys.) As the Israelite, who looked at the Serpent which was lifted up, was healed from the venomous bite of the Serpent, so now he, who is conformed to the likeness of Christ's death, by Faith and Baptism unto Christ, is delivered from sin by Justification. (Aug. de Peccat.)

On the typical character of the Brazen Serpent, in illustration of the doctrine of divine grace, flowing from Christ's death by means of Sacraments, see Hooker, V. lvii. 4.

— ὑψωθῆναι δεῖ τὸν Υ. τ. ἀ.] His enemies designed that He should be lifted up in shame, but God overruled their designs, and made the lifting up in shame to be a lifting up in glory. On this double sense of ὑψωθῆναι, cp. Acts ii. 33; v. 31. They who crucified Him lifted Him up in ignominy; but (says Theoph.) the Cross is the glory of Christ; for where He seemed to be condemned and executed as a slave, He condemned and conquered and slew him who condemned him. Cp. on Matt. xxvii. 28.

18. ὁ δὲ μὴ πιστεύων] Just as he who commits murder is condemned by the nature of his act, before he receives the sentence of his judge, so he who believeth not is condemned already. As it is said of Adam, "on the day thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die," Gen. ii. 17. (Chrys.) Cf. Titus iii. 11, and the ancient proverb, "Illo nocens se damnat, quo peccat, die."

19. αὕτη ἡ κρίσις] Men are condemned, in that they preferred to remain in darkness and in sin when the light came to them. They prefer darkness to light, because their deeds are evil. This explains what would otherwise be unaccountable.

22. Ἰουδαίαν γῆν] The country, as distinguished from Jerusalem the city. See on iv. 3.

— ἐβάπτιζεν] And by baptizing He explained what He had said before to Nicodemus concerning the necessity of being born again of water and the Holy Ghost (v. 5).

It is a rule of great use in interpreting Scripture, that sayings of our Lord are often explained by immediately subsequent acts; or by our Lord's acts, mentioned immediately by the Holy Ghost in Scripture.

On the question—Why it is said that Jesus baptized, although He did not baptize in person? see note on iv. 2.

The true nature of Christ's Baptism is brought out more clearly here by being contrasted with the Baptism of John. Cp. Tit. iii. 5. Acts xix. 4.

23. Αἰνών] Probably so called from עין (ayin), oculus, fons. (Reland, Pal. ii. c. 12); hence ὕδατα πολλά, 'springs of water.'

καὶ ἐβαπτίζοντο· (ιδ΄) 24 f οὔπω γὰρ ἦν βεβλημένος εἰς τὴν φυλακὴν ὁ Ἰωάννης· (ιε΄) 25 Ἐγένετο οὖν ζήτησις ἐκ τῶν μαθητῶν Ἰωάννου μετὰ Ἰουδαίων περὶ καθαρισμοῦ. 26 g Καὶ ἦλθον πρὸς τὸν Ἰωάννην καὶ εἶπον αὐτῷ, Ῥαββί, ὃς ἦν μετὰ σοῦ πέραν τοῦ Ἰορδάνου, ᾧ σὺ μεμαρτύρηκας, ἴδε οὗτος βαπτίζει, καὶ πάντες ἔρχονται πρὸς αὐτόν. 27 h Ἀπεκρίθη Ἰωάννης καὶ εἶπεν, Οὐ δύναται ἄνθρωπος λαμβάνειν οὐδὲν, ἐὰν μὴ ᾖ δεδομένον αὐτῷ ἐκ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ. (ιζ΄) 28 i Αὐτοὶ ὑμεῖς μοι μαρτυρεῖτε ὅτι εἶπον, Οὐκ εἰμὶ ἐγὼ ὁ Χριστὸς, ἀλλ' ὅτι ἀπεσταλμένος εἰμὶ ἔμπροσθεν ἐκείνου. (ιθ΄) 29 Ὁ ἔχων τὴν νύμφην νυμφίος ἐστίν· ὁ δὲ φίλος τοῦ νυμφίου, ὁ ἑστηκὼς καὶ ἀκούων αὐτοῦ, χαρᾷ χαίρει διὰ τὴν φωνὴν τοῦ νυμφίου· αὕτη οὖν ἡ χαρὰ ἡ ἐμὴ πεπλήρωται. 30 Ἐκεῖνον δεῖ αὐξάνειν, ἐμὲ δὲ ἐλαττοῦσθαι. 31 k Ὁ ἄνωθεν ἐρχόμενος ἐπάνω πάντων ἐστίν· ὁ ὢν ἐκ τῆς γῆς ἐκ τῆς γῆς ἐστι, καὶ ἐκ τῆς γῆς λαλεῖ· ὁ ἐκ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ ἐρχόμενος ἐπάνω πάντων ἐστί, 32 l καὶ ὃ ἑώρακε καὶ ἤκουσε τοῦτο μαρτυρεῖ, καὶ τὴν μαρτυρίαν αὐτοῦ οὐδεὶς λαμβάνει· 33 m ὁ λαβὼν αὐτοῦ τὴν μαρτυρίαν ἐσφράγισεν ὅτι ὁ Θεὸς ἀληθής ἐστιν· 34 n ὃν γὰρ ἀπέστειλεν ὁ Θεὸς, τὰ ῥήματα τοῦ Θεοῦ λαλεῖ, οὐ γὰρ ἐκ μέτρου δίδωσιν ὁ Θεὸς τὸ Πνεῦμα. (κ΄) 35 o Ὁ Πατὴρ ἀγαπᾷ τὸν Υἱὸν, καὶ πάντα δέδωκεν ἐν τῇ χειρὶ αὐτοῦ. (κα΄) 36 p Ὁ πιστεύων εἰς τὸν Υἱὸν ἔχει ζωὴν αἰώνιον, ὁ δὲ ἀπειθῶν τῷ Υἱῷ οὐκ ὄψεται ζωὴν, ἀλλ' ἡ ὀργὴ τοῦ Θεοῦ μένει ἐπ' αὐτόν.

f Matt. 14. 3.
g ch. 1. 7, 15, 26, 34. Matt. 3. 11. Mark 1. 7. Luke 3. 16.
h 1 Cor. 4. 7. James 1. 17. Heb. 5. 4.
i ch. 1. 20, 30. Mal. 3. 1. Matt. 11. 10. Mark 1. 2. Luke 1. 17. & 7. 27.
k ch. 8. 23. & 17. 2. Matt. 28. 18. Eph. 1. 21. 1 Pet. 3. 22. Rom. 9. 5.
l ch. 5. 20. & 8. 26.
m 1 John 5. 10. Rom. 3. 4.
n Eph. 4. 7.
o Matt. 11. 27. & 28. 18. Luke 10. 22. & 17. 2. Heb. 2. 8.
p vv. 15, 16. ch. 6. 47. 1 John 5. 11.

— Σαλείμ] West of Jordan; in the northern part of Samaria, eight miles S. of Scythopolis, and perhaps the same as the city of Melchizedek. (Euseb. Jerome. Patrit. ii. p. 447.)

Hence it would appear that John exercised his ministry in three distinct places at least,—

First, in the wilderness of Judæa, where he preached, and afterwards baptized (Matt. iii. 1. Mark i. 1—5. Luke iii. 3), ἦλθεν εἰς πᾶσαν περίχωρον τοῦ Ἰορδάνου.

Secondly, in Peræa, east of Jordan, at Bethany. See i. 28.

Thirdly, at Ænon, near Salem; which seems to have been in or near the region of Samaria.

In all these places he proclaimed Christ.

In the first, by preannouncing Him to the multitude (Matt. iii. 11, 12).

In the second, by pointing Him out as the Lamb of God (Matt. iii. 13—17. John i. 19—28; iii. 26).

In the third, by declaring Him to be the Bridegroom of the Church, and by delivering the illustrious testimony which St. John the Evangelist now records (iii. 27—36).

Thus he was Christ's πρόδρομος and κήρυξ in the Holy Land, even to the Samaritans; and it is probable that the reception of our Lord by the Samaritans (see ch. iv. 37—42) was due in some measure to St. John's preaching.

— ὕδατα πολλά] Not said of the river Jordan; indeed, this would have been superfluous; but spoken of the springs at Ænon, near Salem.

24. οὔπω γὰρ ἦν βεβλημένος] Matt. iv. 12; xi. 2; xiv. 3.

The Evangelist takes for granted that the circumstances of the Baptist's imprisonment are already known to the reader from the other Gospels.

John's early death seems to have been permitted, that there might be no distraction in the people's minds between him and Christ. (Theoph.)

25. Ἰουδαίων] Many Editors have received Ἰουδαίου (a Jew) from A, B, E, F, K, L, M, S, U, V, Δ. It may perhaps be the true reading, though in that case we should rather expect τινος to be added; and the context seems in favour of the plural; hence ἦλθον in v. 26. The reason why Ἰουδαῖοι are mentioned here seems to be, because John was now in or near Samaria. The objection was not made by Samaritans, but Jews,—a contrast favourable to the Samaritans, similar to that in other parts of the Gospel. See iv. 40; v. 16.

— περὶ καθαρισμοῦ] 'purification.' The Evangelist never uses the word Baptism (Bengel), and never calls St. John, the Baptist. He was no longer 'the Baptist' when St John wrote; his baptism had passed away. It is observable, that "Jesus baptized not, but His disciples" (iv. 2); but we never hear that any of John's disciples baptized—his baptism died with him. Christ's baptism remains to the end.

26. ὃς ἦν μετὰ σοῦ] They wish to excite the Baptist to jealousy (Chrys., who quotes John xv. 22. 24); as much as to say, All are forsaking thee, and flocking to the baptism of Him Who was baptized by thee. (Chrys.)

— πέραν] i. e. at Bethany (i. 28), on the east of Jordan, in Peræa. Ænon and Salem were on the west.

29. ὁ ἔχων τὴν νύμφην] The Church, collected from all nations, which is in faith a virgin, and is espoused to Christ, to whom she bears children. No one is the Bridegroom of the Christian soul but Christ; Baptism is the Bride-chamber, and Christ's Ministers are the Friends of the Bridegroom, who rejoice to hear His voice.

29. ὁ φίλος τοῦ νυμφίου] Christ is the Bridegroom, and as a Bridegroom He comes to the Bride; and, therefore, when about to espouse our nature, and to betroth to Himself a Church, He descended from heaven,—and, having espoused it, He carries His Bride to His own home to heaven. And John was the friend of the Bridegroom in bringing the Bride to Christ,—i. e. in leading the souls of others, especially his own disciples, to Jesus. (Theoph. on i. 30. 35.)

— ὁ ἑστηκώς] I stand still, while He marches onward. I, His friend and Paranymph, stand and look, admire and love, while the Divine Bridegroom rejoiceth as a giant to run His course. My ministry will soon be at an end, His is everlasting.

— ἡ χαρὰ ἡ ἐμὴ πεπλήρωται] He who desires to rejoice in himself is miserable; but he who loves to rejoice in God will rejoice for evermore. (Aug.)

30. ἐκεῖνον δεῖ αὐξάνειν] Here is a mystery. God is not capable of increase or diminution. Before the Incarnation of Christ men gloried in themselves. He came that man might confess his sin, and humble himself, and so receive forgiveness of God. Man's confession is man's humiliation; God's mercy is his exaltation. Let the glory of God increase in us, and let our own glory diminish,—so that our glory in God may increase. The more thou understandest of God, the more God will seem to increase in thee. God does not increase in Himself, but is ever perfect; our inward man increases in God, and God appears to increase in us; and we decline in ourselves, that we may ascend in the glory of God. (Aug.)

As the day-star which precedes the sun appears to be eclipsed by the rising sun, so the Precursor of Christ seemed to decrease when Christ arose on the world. Christ might be said to increase according as He manifested Himself by miracles; not that He increased in the power of His deity, but in the revelation of it to the world. (Theophyl.) Cp. on Luke ii. 52, and see Glass. Phil. Sac. p. 700. The Baptist was not diminished by the increase of Christ; for his ministry was perfected in Christ's Messiahship, which he came to announce. But he answers them according to their own notions: "As far as this world's fame is concerned (which you propose to my ambition), I am now nothing;" and yet he was about to be perfected by dying a martyr's death. His light seemed to wane and go out in the prison of Machærus, but it shines for ever in heaven, as a star, in glory.

32. τὴν μαρτυρίαν αὐτοῦ οὐδεὶς λαμβάνει] The Baptist saw, in the Spirit, mankind divided into two classes,—unbelievers and believers; he first speaks of those on the left hand, and says of them,—"no man receiveth his testimony;" he then turns from them to those on the right, and says, "he that receiveth his testimony —." (Aug.)

33. ἐσφράγισεν] Shows, owns, and attests, as by the affixing of a seal (vi. 27. Rev. vii. 3.)

34. οὐ γὰρ ἐκ μέτρου] For God gives the Holy Spirit without stint to Him. Cyril. reads this verse thus, οὐ γὰρ ἐκ μέτρου δίδωσιν, without Θεός, which is omitted in B, C, L. Οὐκ ἐκ μέτρου means "non modice sed largissimè" (Rosenmüller); and that, because His power is not limited by measure, but infinite.

36. ἡ ὀργὴ τοῦ Θεοῦ] He does not say the wrath of God cometh on him, but it abideth; for all who are born of Adam are children of wrath, as the Apostle says (Eph. ii. 3); he, therefore, that will not believe on Christ (who came into the world without sin, and, having taken our mortality, died, that we might live), the wrath of God re-

IV. [1] [a]Ὡς οὖν ἔγνω ὁ Κύριος, ὅτι ἤκουσαν οἱ Φαρισαῖοι ὅτι Ἰησοῦς πλείονας μαθητὰς ποιεῖ καὶ βαπτίζει ἢ Ἰωάννης, [2] καίτοιγε Ἰησοῦς αὐτὸς οὐκ ἐβάπτιζεν, ἀλλ' οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ, (ιη' ηιι') [3] ἀφῆκε τὴν Ἰουδαίαν, καὶ ἀπῆλθε πάλιν εἰς τὴν Γαλιλαίαν. (λε' ι') [4] Ἔδει δὲ αὐτὸν διέρχεσθαι διὰ τῆς Σαμαρείας. [5] [b]Ἔρχεται οὖν εἰς πόλιν τῆς Σαμαρείας λεγομένην Συχὰρ, πλησίον τοῦ χωρίου ὃ ἔδωκεν Ἰακὼβ Ἰωσὴφ τῷ υἱῷ αὐτοῦ· [6] ἦν δὲ ἐκεῖ πηγὴ τοῦ Ἰακώβ. Ὁ οὖν Ἰησοῦς κεκοπιακὼς ἐκ τῆς ὁδοιπορίας ἐκαθέζετο οὕτως ἐπὶ τῇ πηγῇ· ὥρα ἦν ὡσεὶ ἕκτη. [7] Ἔρχεται γυνὴ ἐκ τῆς Σαμαρείας ἀντλῆσαι ὕδωρ. Λέγει αὐτῇ maineth on him (Aug.); it remaineth also because the death which it brings will be eternal.

[a] ch. 3. 22, 26.

[b] Gen. 33. 19. & 48. 22. Jos. 24. 32.

REVIEW of the contents of the foregoing chapter (chap. iii.).

The Evangelist had described the Epiphany (or Manifestation) of Christ's Divinity (ch. ii. 1—10) made more striking by its contrast with His Humanity, derived from the Blessed Virgin Mary (v. 4); and he had shown Christ cleansing His Father's house by the majesty of His presence and power, and foretelling that He would die as man, and raise Himself as God (v. 19).

He then proceeds to describe His conversation with Nicodemus the Pharisee, who had been led by Christ's miracles to acknowledge that our Lord was "a teacher sent from God" (v. 2). But Nicodemus, not being as yet enlightened by Divine Grace, had no faith in His Divinity, and did not feel his own need of Regeneration.

Our Lord, desiring to elevate him to a higher degree of faith, tells him that he must be born again, if he would see the kingdom of God,—i. e. if he would hope to understand its true nature, and to enjoy its bliss hereafter. Marvel not that I say, you must be born again. And He proceeds to teach him that he must be born again of Water and the Holy Ghost. Do not be surprised because you do not understand how this is to be. You do not see whence the wind comes, but you see its effects. So in spiritual things you do not see how Regeneration takes place, but you may see its fruits.

It ought to be enough for you, that I declare to you that you must be born again, and be born again of Water and the Holy Ghost. I only am able to teach you on these matters. For no one on earth has been in heaven except Myself, Who am in heaven as God, while I speak to you on earth as man.

The Law of Moses, of which you are an appointed teacher, may instruct you here. It may show you that Life flows from My Death. The Brazen Serpent was a type of Me. (See notes v. 14.) From Me, lifted up for all as man, and giving life to all as God, Regeneration and Salvation flow to all who look with the eye of faith to Me lifted up by death. And do not be staggered when you see Me rejected by your brother Pharisees and the world. Men will not come to the Light, not because it is not clear, but because their deeds are evil, and because they are condemned by the Light; and thus, by shunning the Light, they condemn themselves.

The Evangelist, by a natural transition, then passes on to speak of the difference of the Baptism instituted by Christ and that administered by John (v. 26). And he brings forward the Baptist himself, proclaiming that his own office is now at an end, and declaring Christ to be the Bridegroom, who, by the Sacrament of Baptism, espouses souls to Himself (see Eph. v. 25, 26); and that He in His Baptism gives the Holy Spirit, which the Baptist confesses that he himself could not do.

Thus the meaning of our Lord's words to Nicodemus, on the necessity of being born again of Water and the Holy Spirit, is more fully explained.

CH. IV. 1, 2. Ἰησοῦς—βαπτίζει—καίτοιγε Ἰησοῦς αὐτὸς οὐκ ἐβάπτιζεν] Both are true; for Jesus did baptize, in that He cleansed those who were baptized; and He did not baptize, in that He did not administer Baptism with His own hands. The Apostles were the human instruments by which His Divine Majesty worked. (Aug.)

It may be asked, whether the Holy Spirit was given in the Baptism ministered by His disciples, since we read (chap. vii. 39), the Holy Spirit was not yet given, because that Jesus was not yet glorified? To which it may be replied, that the Holy Spirit was bestowed by their baptism, but not with that plenary manifestation, by which He was afterwards given at and after Pentecost. (Alcuin.)

The Apostles of Christ, it is probable, were baptized by Him, before they baptized others. He, who vouchsafed to perform the office of washing their feet, probably did not decline to baptize them, that they might baptize others. (Aug. ad Seleucian. Ep. cviii.)

John the Baptist, a human minister, had a baptism, which was called by his name—the baptism of John. (Matt. xxi. 25.) But our Lord would not allow His baptism to be called by any man's name, in order that He Himself might always baptize, and might be rightly said to baptize those whom He does not baptize by His own hands, but by His ministers; and that we might understand that whosoever is baptized by His ministers, is baptized by Christ. If He had committed His baptism to any one person like John, His baptism might have been called the baptism of Peter, or of Paul; but now it is the baptism of Christ, in Whom all who are baptized must place their hope and trust. (Aug.)

Judas was among the disciples, and they who were baptized by Judas were not baptized again; for they whom even Judas, who was Christ's Apostle, baptized, were baptized by Christ.

If Christian baptism is ministered by an evil minister, yet it is still the baptism of Christ. So that we may always say with St. John the Baptist (Matt. iii. 11), He it is who baptizes with the Holy Ghost. (Aug.)

3. ἀπῆλθε] πάλιν is added in B, C, D, L, M, but not in A, E, F, G, H, K, S, U, V, Δ.

5. εἰς πόλιν τῆς Σαμαρείας] The place where God first appeared to Abraham in the Land of promise. (Gen. xii. 6.) See also Gen. xxxiii. 19. Συχάρ is the reading of the best MSS. Sichem (Gen. xxxiv. 2), between Mount Ebal and Mount Gerizim (Judg. ix. 7), afterwards called Νεάπολις, now Nablous, thus described by Josephus, Ant. v. 7. 2, τὸ ὄρος τὸ Γαριζεὶν ὑπέρκειται τῆς Σικίμων πόλεως. iv. 8. 45, οὐ πόρρω τῆς Σικίμων πόλεως, μεταξὺ δυοῖν ὀροῖν, Γαριζαίου μὲν τοῦ ἐκ δεξιῶν κειμένου, τοῦ δὲ ἐκ λαιῶν Γιβάλου (גְּעָל) προσαγορευομένου. xi. 8. 6, Σαμαρεῖται μητρόπολιν τότε (tempore Alexandri M.) ἔχοντες, κειμένην πρὸτ τῷ Γαριζεὶν ὄρει καὶ κατῳκημένην ὑπὸ τῶν ἀποστατῶν τοῦ Ἰουδαίων ἔθνους.

The change of the name to Sychar is due to the contempt shown for the Samaritans by the Jews, who charged the Samaritans with the worshipping of an Idol (שֶׁקֶר), Sychar, or falsehood, from שָׁקַר (shakar), fefellit. (See Habak. ii. 18.) Lightfoot derives it from שָׂכַר, inebriavit.

Bengel and Wieseler (Chronol. Synops. p. 256, 8) suppose the name to be connected with sachar, 'to purchase,' with reference to Gen. xxxiii. 19; xlviii. 22.

Sichem was a remarkable place in patriarchal History. It was the national sanctuary of Israel. There, God first appeared to Abraham (Gen. xii. 6). There, Jacob spread his tent and built an altar (Gen. xxxiii. 18—20). There, Joseph was buried (Josh. xxiv. 32), and all the Patriarchs (see on Acts vii. 15, 16). There the people were assembled by Joshua to hear the blessings and the curses of the Law (Josh. viii. 33).

Thus the Jews could not deny that on the ground of local sanctity, Sichem had strong claims.

And now consider Christ the Incarnate Word at the spot where God had appeared to Abraham, and where He had been worshipped by Jacob, and where the bodies of Joseph and the Patriarchs lay. God had promised unto Abraham, Unto thy seed I will give this land; and now Christ is there, Who is the seed of Abraham, and in Whom all Nations are blessed. See Burgon here, for an excellent note, and on v. 41.

On the history of Sichem, see further note on Acts vii. 16.

6. πηγὴ τοῦ Ἰακώβ] Jacob's well was probably only a λάκκος, or cistern for rain water; the water that Christ gives is ὕδωρ ζῶν. Cp. Jer. ii. 13. Zech. xiv. 8. John vii. 38.

— Ἰησοῦς κεκοπιακὼς] The well was probably shaded with trees, and a place of resort. He would have an audience there.

Jesus is weary. He is both strong and weak; strong, because "In the beginning was the Word" (i. 1); and weak, because "the Word was made flesh," i. 14. (Aug.)

— ἐκαθέζετο οὕτως] οὕτως, 'thus,' i. e. in all symplicity, ἁπλῶς, ὡς ἔτυχε, on the bare stone. (Chrys., Euthym., Theoph.); οὕτως (cp. xiii. 25. Acts xxvii. 17). He in whom is the fulness of the Godhead sat thus, as any one among men.

— ὥρα ἦν ἕκτη] probably, six in the evening.

It is not likely that this was at noon; that was not an usual hour for drawing water; but six in the evening was. In Gen. xxiv. 11, the evening is described as the time that women go out to draw water.

The woman, after a short discourse, leaves her ὑδρία, and goes to the city, where she finds the men of Sychar, as usual in the evening, collected for conversation, and brings them to Jesus; and they entreat Him to remain that night.

Among other things, in which St. John is distinguished from the Jews and from the earlier Evangelists, is, it would seem, his mode of reckoning time. He specifies hours oftener than any of the Evangelists, and he appears to calculate them according to a different mode of computation.

That method is identical with our own.

It has been shown from the history of the martyrdom of St. Polycarp, the scholar of St. John, in one of the seven Churches of Asia, that this mode of reckoning the hours was there received. See Polycarp, Martyr. c. 21, p. 635, ed. Jacobson, who says, "Non enim de Romanâ, sed de Asiaticâ horas computandi ratione, hic est sermo; eâdem scilicet quâ nos hodie utimur." Cp. Grenwell, Dissertat. i. 260; ii. 216; iii. 229; iv. 627.

The same mode of calculation is employed in the account of ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Δός μοι πιεῖν· 8 οἱ γὰρ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ ἀπεληλύθεισαν εἰς τὴν πόλιν, ἵνα τροφὰς ἀγοράσωσι· 9 [c] λέγει οὖν αὐτῷ ἡ γυνὴ ἡ Σαμαρεῖτις, Πῶς σὺ Ἰουδαῖος ὢν παρ' ἐμοῦ πιεῖν αἰτεῖς οὔσης γυναικὸς Σαμαρείτιδος; οὐ γὰρ συγχρῶνται Ἰουδαῖοι Σαμαρείταις. 10 [d] Ἀπεκρίθη Ἰησοῦς καὶ εἶπεν αὐτῇ, Εἰ ᾔδεις τὴν δωρεὰν τοῦ Θεοῦ, καὶ τίς ἐστιν ὁ λέγων σοι, Δός μοι πιεῖν, σὺ ἂν ᾔτησας αὐτὸν, καὶ ἔδωκεν ἄν σοι [e] ὕδωρ ζῶν. 11 Λέγει αὐτῷ ἡ γυνή, Κύριε, οὔτε ἄντλημα ἔχεις, καὶ τὸ φρέαρ ἐστὶ βαθύ· πόθεν οὖν ἔχεις τὸ ὕδωρ τὸ ζῶν;

12 Μὴ σὺ μείζων εἶ τοῦ πατρὸς ἡμῶν Ἰακὼβ, ὃς ἔδωκεν ἡμῖν τὸ φρέαρ, καὶ αὐτὸς ἐξ αὐτοῦ ἔπιε, καὶ οἱ υἱοὶ αὐτοῦ καὶ τὰ θρέμματα αὐτοῦ; 13 [f] Ἀπεκρίθη Ἰησοῦς καὶ εἶπεν αὐτῇ, Πᾶς ὁ πίνων ἐκ τοῦ ὕδατος τούτου διψήσει πάλιν· 14 [g] ὃς δ' ἂν πίῃ ἐκ τοῦ ὕδατος, οὗ ἐγὼ δώσω αὐτῷ, οὐ μὴ διψήσῃ εἰς τὸν αἰῶνα· ἀλλὰ τὸ ὕδωρ ὃ δώσω αὐτῷ γενήσεται ἐν αὐτῷ πηγὴ ὕδατος ἁλλομένου εἰς ζωὴν αἰώνιον. 15 Λέγει πρὸς αὐτὸν ἡ γυνή, Κύριε, δός μοι τοῦτο τὸ ὕδωρ ἵνα μὴ διψῶ, μηδὲ ἔρχωμαι ἐνθάδε ἀντλεῖν. 16 Λέγει αὐτῇ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Ὕπαγε φώνησον τὸν ἄνδρα σου, καὶ ἐλθὲ ἐνθάδε. 17 Ἀπεκρίθη ἡ γυνὴ καὶ εἶπεν, Οὐκ ἔχω ἄνδρα. Λέγει αὐτῇ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Καλῶς εἶπας, Ὅτι ἄνδρα οὐκ ἔχω· 18 πέντε γὰρ ἄνδρας ἔσχες· καὶ νῦν ὃν ἔχεις οὐκ ἔστι σου ἀνήρ· τοῦτο ἀληθὲς εἴρηκας. 19 [h] Λέγει αὐτῷ ἡ γυνή, Κύριε, θεωρῶ ὅτι προφήτης εἶ σύ. 20 [i] Οἱ πατέρες ἡμῶν ἐν τῷ ὄρει τούτῳ προσεκύνησαν· καὶ ὑμεῖς λέγετε, ὅτι ἐν Ἱεροσολύμοις ἐστὶν ὁ τόπος, ὅπου δεῖ προσκυνεῖν. 21 [k] Λέγει αὐτῇ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Γύναι, πίστευσόν μοι, ὅτι ἔρχεται ὥρα, ὅτε οὔτε ἐν τῷ ὄρει τούτῳ οὔτε ἐν Ἱεροσολύμοις προσκυνήσετε τῷ Πατρί. 22 [l] Ὑμεῖς προσκυνεῖτε ὃ οὐκ οἴδατε· ἡμεῖς προσκυνοῦμεν ὃ οἴδαμεν, ὅτι ἡ σωτηρία ἐκ τῶν Ἰουδαίων ἐστίν.

c Luke 9. 52, 53. ch. 8. 48. Acts 10. 28. 2 Kings 17. 24.
d Ps. 36. 8, 9. Isa. 12. 3. & 41. 17, 18. Jer. 2. 13. Zech. 14. 8. ch. 6. 35. & 7. 38, 39. & 14. 16, 17. Rev. 7. 16. & 21. 6. & 22. 1, 17.
e Jer. 2. 13.
f ch. 6. 58.
g ch. 6. 27, 35. & 7. 38, 39. & 14. 16, 17. Rom. 8. 10, 11, 15—17, 23. 1 Cor. 15. 44, 45. Gal. 6. 8. Eph. 1. 13, 14. Isa. 12. 3. & 41. 17, 18. Ps. 36. 8, 9. Zech. 14. 8. Rev. 7. 16, 17. & 21. 6. & 22. 1, 17.
h ch. 6. 14. Luke 7. 16. & 24. 19.
i Gen. 12. 6, 7. & 23. 18—20. Deut. 11. 29, 30. & 12. 5, 11. 1 Kings 9. 3. 2 Chron. 7. 12.
k Mal. 1. 11. 1 2 Kings 17. 29. Isa. 2. 3. Luke 24. 47. Rom. 3. 2. & 9. 4.

another martyrdom in Asia, at Smyrna, that of Pionius. (Ruinart, Acta Martyrum, p. 137. Townson on the Gospels, i. p. 26.)

This then was, it seems (though Lücke denies it, p. 581), the mode of reckoning received by the Asiatic Churches of the second century.

We know that St. John wrote his Gospel in Asia (see above, p. 206), and for the use of those Churches.

It is therefore probable, that St. John found such a mode of reckoning in the country where and for which he wrote his Gospel, and adapted his narrative to it.

Such a method of reckoning was not unknown in other countries. "Ipsum diem," says Plin. N. H. ii. 79, "alii aliter observavere. Cimbri à meridie ad meridiem. Ægyptii et Hipparchus à mediâ nocte in mediam."

St. John, in his Gospel, speaks of the Jews (οἱ Ἰουδαῖοι) as separated from the Christian Church (see above, p. 206, and on i. 19).

He is specially careful to record those acts and sayings of Christ which indicate the true character of the Jewish Sabbath (v. 9—18; vii. 22, 23; ix. 14. 16). He alone mentions the Lord's Day by name (Rev. i. 10). And, perhaps, by the peculiar method he employs of reckoning hours, he might desire to mark the separation of the Christian Church from the Jews, in hours as well as in days, and to break her off entirely from the observance of Jewish seasons as such; and to put the Christian seasons on a footing of their own. It would manifestly have been inconvenient that the Day of Christ's Resurrection, the great annual and weekly festival of the Church, should have been supposed to begin with the sunset of the seventh day, and end with the sunset of the first. Such reckoning would have been historically false.

These are arguments à priori, in favour of the above opinion concerning St. John's reckoning. An argument à posteriori may be recognized in the fact, that this mode of reckoning has been adopted, and is now used, by the principal nations of the Christian World.

For further illustration of this subject, see i. 40; iv. 52; xix. 14.

7. γυνὴ ἐκ τῆς Σαμαρείας] ἐκ is the Hebrew מ, signifying her origin. Cp. ἀπό (xi. 1).

She may be considered as a figure of the Church, coming from foreign lands, not as yet justified, but to be justified in Christ. (Aug.)

— δός μοι πιεῖν] Our Lord was athirst for water, but was more athirst for the salvation of her soul from whom He asked it, and therefore He desired to give her living water, and to make her athirst for it. (Aug.)

9. οὐ γὰρ συγχρῶνται] It is not said that the Samaritans decline all dealings with the Jews; and though our Lord said, "Enter not into a city of the Samaritans" (Matt. x. 5), He did not command them to repel the Samaritans. (Chrys., Theoph.) The Jews might buy of the Samaritans. (See Rosenmüller's note.)

The following are passages from Rabbinical works, on the relation of the Jews to the Samaritans: "Rasche ad Sota p. 515, edit. Wagens., Samaritani panem comedere, aut vinum bibere, prohibitum est. Sanhedrin fol. 104, 1, Si quis Cuthæum (Samaritanum) in domum suam recipit, eique ministrat, ille caussa est, ut filii ipsius in exilium abire cogantur. Tanchuma fol. 43. 1, Dicunt, qui edit frustum Samaritani, est ut edens carnem porci. Hieros. Avodah Zara fol. 44, 4, R. Jacob Bar Acha, nomine R. Lazar dicit, victualia Cuthæorum permissa sunt, si non immisceatur iis aliquid vini eorum aut aceti. Bab. Kidduschin fol. 76. 1, Azyma Cuthæorum sunt permissa, et per ea homo præstat officium suum in Paschate."

10. ὕδωρ ζῶν] Cp. Justin M. c. Tryph. 114, where he says that Christians joyfully die διὰ τὸ ὄνομα τῆς καλῆς πίτρας καὶ ζῶν ὕδωρ ταῖς καρδίαις τῶν δι' αὐτοῦ ἀγαπησάντων τὸν πατέρα τῶν ὅλων βρυούσης, καὶ ποτιζούσης τοὺς βουλομένους τὸ τῆς ζωῆς ὕδωρ.

14. ἐκ τοῦ ὕδατος, οὗ ἐγὼ δώσω] i. e. the Holy Spirit (Chrys.), which he calls living water, because the Spirit is not like a stagnant pool, but a gushing spring, ever stirring the soul to good works. (Theoph.)

— οὐ μὴ διψήσῃ] Some Editors have adopted διψήσει, from a few MSS., e. g. A, D, L, M, Δ. But διψήσῃ has more MS. authority, and is preferable; as intimating that he shall be preserved from thirst by divine power.

Οὐ μὴ διψήσει would signify only 'he will not thirst;' but Christ says that he shall not thirst; I will give him living water, by which he shall be preserved from thirst. Cp. vi. 35, where the same observation is applicable. Cp. viii. 51. 53, θάνατον οὐ μὴ θεωρήσῃ—οὐ μὴ γεύσηται θανάτου: he shall never see, never taste death. I, Who alone can, will preserve him from it.

The future is rightly preserved by the Editors in viii. 12, where the sense is 'he will not walk in darkness.'

19. θεωρῶ ὅτι προφήτης εἶ σύ] Obs. σὺ emphatic.

The woman does not excuse herself, but confesses Christ (Chrys.), who dwells on the particulars in which this Samaritan woman, in her intercourse with Christ, affords profitable instruction to Christians.

20. τῷ ὄρει τούτῳ] Gerizim. Elz. has τούτῳ τῷ ὄρει. But the reading of the text is that of A, C, D, H, K, L, S, V, and is preferable.

21. ἔρχεται ὥρα] He removes the notion of any special privileges guaranteed to either of the two rival Cities and Mountains, and says, The hour is coming of evangelical doctrine, when the words of the Prophets will be fulfilled, and the shadows of types will pass away, and all local distinctions be abolished, and the Truth will illumine the hearts of all believers with its pure light in the true Sion, the universal Church of Christ, where true spiritual worship is offered to God. (Origen. Chrys.)

22. ὑ. προσκυνεῖτε ὃ οὐκ οἴδατε] Because ye regard God as local and particular; and mingle His worship with that of Idols; but we worship the one Lord of all. (Chrys.)

On the heathen Origin, History, and idolatrous Worship of the Samaritans, see an excellent essay in Mede's Works, I. Disc. xii. p. 46, and Lücke here, i. pp. 592—596.

— ἡ σωτηρία ἐκ τῶν Ἰουδαίων] Obs. ἡ σωτηρία, the pro-

23 m Ἀλλ' ἔρχεται ὥρα, καὶ νῦν ἐστιν, ὅτε οἱ ἀληθινοὶ προσκυνηταὶ προσκυνήσουσι τῷ Πατρὶ ἐν πνεύματι καὶ ἀληθείᾳ· καὶ γὰρ ὁ Πατὴρ τοιούτους ζητεῖ τοὺς προσκυνοῦντας αὐτόν. 24 n Πνεῦμα ὁ Θεός· καὶ τοὺς προσκυνοῦντας αὐτὸν ἐν πνεύματι καὶ ἀληθείᾳ δεῖ προσκυνεῖν. 25 Λέγει αὐτῷ ἡ γυνή, Οἶδα ὅτι Μεσσίας ἔρχεται· (ὁ λεγόμενος Χριστός·) ὅταν ἔλθῃ ἐκεῖνος, ἀναγγελεῖ ἡμῖν πάντα. 26 o Λέγει αὐτῇ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Ἐγώ εἰμι, ὁ λαλῶν σοι. 27 Καὶ ἐπὶ τούτῳ ἦλθον οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἐθαύμαζον ὅτι μετὰ γυναικὸς ἐλάλει· οὐδεὶς μέντοι εἶπε, Τί ζητεῖς; ἢ τί λαλεῖς μετ' αὐτῆς; 28 Ἀφῆκεν οὖν τὴν ὑδρίαν αὐτῆς ἡ γυνὴ, καὶ ἀπῆλθεν εἰς τὴν πόλιν, καὶ λέγει τοῖς ἀνθρώποις, 29 Δεῦτε, ἴδετε ἄνθρωπον ὃς εἶπέ μοι πάντα ὅσα ἐποίησα· μήτι οὗτός ἐστιν ὁ Χριστός; 30 Ἐξῆλθον ἐκ τῆς πόλεως, καὶ ἤρχοντο πρὸς αὐτόν.

31 Ἐν δὲ τῷ μεταξὺ ἠρώτων αὐτὸν οἱ μαθηταὶ, λέγοντες, Ῥαββὶ, φάγε. 32 Ὁ δὲ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Ἐγὼ βρῶσιν ἔχω φαγεῖν ἣν ὑμεῖς οὐκ οἴδατε. 33 Ἔλεγον οἱ μαθηταὶ πρὸς ἀλλήλους, Μή τις ἤνεγκεν αὐτῷ φαγεῖν; 34 p Λέγει αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Ἐμὸν βρῶμά ἐστιν, ἵνα ποιῶ τὸ θέλημα τοῦ πέμψαντός με, καὶ τελειώσω αὐτοῦ τὸ ἔργον. 35 q Οὐχ ὑμεῖς λέγετε, ὅτι ἔτι τετράμηνός ἐστι, καὶ ὁ θερισμὸς ἔρχεται; ἰδοὺ, λέγω ὑμῖν, ἐπάρατε τοὺς ὀφθαλμοὺς ὑμῶν, καὶ θεάσασθε τὰς χώρας, ὅτι λευκαί εἰσι πρὸς θερισμὸν ἤδη. 36 Καὶ ὁ θερίζων μισθὸν λαμβάνει, καὶ συνάγει καρπὸν εἰς ζωὴν αἰώνιον, ἵνα καὶ ὁ σπείρων ὁμοῦ χαίρῃ καὶ ὁ θερίζων. 37 Ἐν γὰρ τούτῳ ὁ λόγος ἐστὶν ὁ ἀληθινὸς, ὅτι ἄλλος ἐστὶν ὁ σπείρων, καὶ ἄλλος ὁ θερίζων. 38 Ἐγὼ ἀπέστειλα ὑμᾶς θερίζειν

m Phil. 3. 3.
n 2 Cor. 3. 17.
o ch. 9. 37.
p Job 23. 12. ch. 17. 4.
q Matt. 9. 37. Luke 10. 2.

---

mised salvation; for the Saviour arises from Judæa. See also Rom. ix. 1—6.

24. Πνεῦμα ὁ Θεός] Hence they are refuted who understand literally the figurative expressions of Scripture concerning the Lord; e. g. the arm, the eyes, the feet, the wings of God: "Who is a Spirit?" (Origen.) God is a spirit. He thus condemns the formal and carnal worship of the Jews, and teaches men to offer themselves a living sacrifice to God. (Chrys.)

— ἐν πνεύματι καὶ ἀληθείᾳ] The Samaritans regarded God as limited by space, and the Jews were studious mainly of external forms in worship, and neglected the spirit: they dwelt on types and figures which were only images of truth; but the true worshippers will differ from both, because they will worship God in Spirit and in Truth. In Spirit, that is, in holiness and righteousness of life; and in Truth, that is, not in heresy, but in soundness of faith. There will not only be a change in the place (τόπος), but in the mode (τρόπος) of worship. And the hour of this change now is. (Theoph.)

25. Μεσσίας ἔρχεται] The Jews contend for their temple, on Moriah, we for our mountain, Gerizim. The Messiah will come and teach us how to worship. (Aug.) That the Samaritans expected a Messiah appears from the fact, that Dositheus arose among them, and pretended to be the Christ. Cp. Origen (tom. 13).

This woman, who only knew the Five Books of Moses, expected the Messiah. The knowledge of the Samaritans on the subject was probably derived from Gen. iii. 15, and the prophecies of Jacob, Gen. xlix. 8. 10, and of Balaam, Numb. xxiv. 7—9. 17, and the words in Deut. xxxiii. 7 (cp. Deut. xviii. 15). Hence our Lord said to the Jews, If ye had believed Moses, ye would have believed Me. (John v. 46.)

— ἀναγγελεῖ] 'will teach us.' Therefore the Samaritan woman had a clearer idea of the character of the Messiah than the Jews, who looked for a temporal Prince.

26. ἐγώ εἰμι, ὁ λαλῶν σοι] The Jews said to Christ (John x. 24), If thou be the Christ, tell us plainly, and He did not reveal Himself to them; and yet He says to the woman, "I am He." Whence this difference? Because they asked in malice, she in simplicity; and because there were no Pharisees and Chief Priests in Samaria, who would pervert this knowledge into an occasion of hatred against Him; and because He foreknew that the Samaritans would believe in Him. Cp. Matt. xvi. 20.

27. ἐθαύμαζον] 'stood wondering;' the reading of A, B, C, D, G, K, L, M. Elz. has ἐθαύμασαν, which is less expressive.

— μετὰ γυναικός] 'with a woman;' which the Jewish Rabbis, who despised women, did not willingly do. (Lightf., Schoettgen here.)

— οὐδεὶς μέντοι] A silent intimation of awe for their Master. See on Mark x. 24. Luke v. 7. John xii. 21, 22.

28. ἀφῆκεν τὴν ὑδρίαν] Our Lord employed this woman as an Apostle to her own city. (Origen.) And she would not have them trust implicitly in her own report of Him, but she said to them, Come and see. And she did not tell them that He had declared Himself to be the Christ, lest perhaps they might refuse to come, but she said, come and see a man, &c. Is not this the Christ? (Chrys.)

29. δεῦτε, ἴδετε] This woman of Samaria was wiser and more courageous than the master of Israel, Nicodemus, with whom Jesus had discoursed on the same subject. He did not fetch others, or declare himself openly as a disciple. She brought a City to Christ. (Chrys. on v. 13.)

32. ἐγὼ βρῶσιν ἔχω φαγεῖν] Our salvation is the meat for which Christ hungers. (Chrys., Theoph.)

35. τετράμηνος] sc. χρόνος. (Lobeck, Phryn. p. 549.) So A, B, E, G, H, K, L, M, S, V. Elz. has τετράμηνον.

It would seem that this was in December. As Kuin. observes (and cp. Wieseler, Synopse, p. 214. Meyer, p. 133), "Perquam autem probabile est, Jesum, qui à rebus obviis et in sensus incurrentibus argumenta atque imagines desumere soleret, eminus conspexisse hominem, qui sementem faceret, atque ea quæ h. l. leguntur dixisse mense Decembri, cùm hordeorum facerent sementem. Alia semina maturiùs, alia seriùs terræ committebantur. Quod hordeum attinet, illis in regionibus Orientis inter sementem et messem intervallum quatuor mensium interjectum est, vid. Walchii Calendarium Palestinæ p. 25. Buhlii Calendarium pp. 23, 25. Ante hordeum nihil metebatur; primitiæ hordei festo Paschatos, mense Nisan, nostro Aprili Deo offerebantur, vid. Levit. xxiii. 10. Joseph. Ant. iii. 10, quibus oblatis falx in segetem immittebatur; et primitiæ tritici festo Pentecostes offerebantur, v. Levit. xxiii. 17. Hordei igitur sementem faciebant mense Cisleu, nostro Decembri."

— ἐπάρατε τοὺς ὀφθαλμούς] 'Lift up your eyes and see.'

You can calculate by the aspect of the fields how many months it wants to the visible harvest; but I say to you, Lift up the eyes of your heart, and behold the spiritual harvest present before you; He sees a multitude of the Samaritans coming to hear Him, and He calls them fields white to Harvest. (Chrys., Theoph.)

He has also a prophetic view of the harvest gathered in Samaria, soon after His Ascension into heaven; on which see Acts viii. 1—14, and note there, and on Acts viii. 17. Cp. note on John xii. 20. 24.

36. ὁμοῦ χαίρῃ] Their labours were at different times, the reward will be given at once. (Origen.)

37. ἄλλος ὁ σπείρων] The Patriarchs and Moses, and the Prophets of the Old Testament had sown the seed; the Apostles of the New reap the harvest. (Origen, who quotes Matt. xiii. 17; xii. 42. Eph. iii. 5. Dan. viii. 27. Isa. xxix. 11. Cyril, Chrys., Aug., Theophyl.)

Hence we see that the New Testament is not contrary to the Old (as the Marcionites and Manichæans vainly say), but the Old preparatory to the New, and the New the fulfilment of the Old. (Chrys., Aug., Theophyl.) And finally the World's Harvest will be reaped by the angels of heaven, who will gather in the sheaves of good wheat from the field of the Church, tilled by Christ's ministers from the beginning; and many will come from the East and from the West, and will sit down with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, in the Kingdom of Heaven. (Matt. viii. 11.) Cp. Aug. here.

Our Lord Himself, it is probable, was now reaping in fields prepared for the harvest by the preaching of John the Baptist, now in prison. See on iii. 25.

38. θερίζειν] Our Lord, by His example in this chapter, teaches us to spiritualize all the ordinary incidents of life. He sits at a well-

ὃ οὐχ ὑμεῖς κεκοπιάκατε· ἄλλοι κεκοπιάκασι, καὶ ὑμεῖς εἰς τὸν κόπον αὐτῶν εἰσεληλύθατε. 39 Ἐκ δὲ τῆς πόλεως ἐκείνης πολλοὶ ἐπίστευσαν εἰς αὐτὸν τῶν Σαμαρειτῶν, διὰ τὸν λόγον τῆς γυναικὸς μαρτυρούσης, Ὅτι εἶπέ μοι πάντα ὅσα ἐποίησα. 40 Ὡς οὖν ἦλθον πρὸς αὐτὸν οἱ Σαμαρεῖται, ἠρώτων αὐτὸν μεῖναι παρ' αὐτοῖς· καὶ ἔμεινεν ἐκεῖ δύο ἡμέρας. 41 Καὶ πολλῷ πλείους ἐπίστευσαν r ch. 17. 8. διὰ τὸν λόγον αὐτοῦ, 42 r τῇ τε γυναικὶ ἔλεγον, Ὅτι οὐκέτι διὰ τὴν σὴν λαλιὰν πιστεύομεν· αὐτοὶ γὰρ ἀκηκόαμεν, καὶ οἴδαμεν ὅτι οὗτός ἐστιν ἀληθῶς ὁ σωτὴρ τοῦ κόσμου, ὁ Χριστός.

(34/VII) 43 Μετὰ δὲ τὰς δύο ἡμέρας ἐξῆλθεν ἐκεῖθεν, καὶ ἀπῆλθεν εἰς τὴν s Matt. 13. 57. ch. 7. 1. Mark 6. 4. Luke 4. 24. Γαλιλαίαν. (35/I) 44 s Αὐτὸς γὰρ Ἰησοῦς ἐμαρτύρησεν, ὅτι προφήτης ἐν τῇ ἰδίᾳ πατρίδι τιμὴν οὐκ ἔχει. (36/X) 45 Ὅτε οὖν ἦλθεν εἰς τὴν Γαλιλαίαν, ἐδέξαντο αὐτὸν οἱ Γαλιλαῖοι, πάντα ἑωρακότες ἃ ἐποίησεν ἐν Ἱεροσολύμοις ἐν τῇ ἑορτῇ·
t ch. 12. 1, 11. καὶ αὐτοὶ γὰρ ἦλθον εἰς τὴν ἑορτήν. (37/III) 46 t Ἦλθεν οὖν πάλιν ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἰς τὴν Κανᾶ τῆς Γαλιλαίας, ὅπου ἐποίησε τὸ ὕδωρ οἶνον. Καὶ ἦν τις βασιλικὸς οὗ ὁ υἱὸς ἠσθένει ἐν Καφαρναούμ. 47 Οὗτος ἀκούσας ὅτι Ἰησοῦς ἥκει ἐκ τῆς Ἰουδαίας εἰς τὴν Γαλιλαίαν ἀπῆλθε πρὸς αὐτὸν, καὶ ἠρώτα αὐτὸν ἵνα καταβῇ u 1 Cor. 1. 22. καὶ ἰάσηται αὐτοῦ τὸν υἱόν, ἤμελλε γὰρ ἀποθνήσκειν. 48 u Εἶπεν οὖν ὁ Ἰησοῦς πρὸς αὐτόν, Ἐὰν μὴ σημεῖα καὶ τέρατα ἴδητε, οὐ μὴ πιστεύσητε. 49 Λέγει πρὸς αὐτὸν ὁ βασιλικός, Κύριε, κατάβηθι πρὶν ἀποθανεῖν τὸ παιδίον μου. 50 Λέγει αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Πορεύου· ὁ υἱός σου ζῇ. Καὶ ἐπίστευσεν ὁ ἄνθρωπος τῷ λόγῳ ᾧ εἶπεν αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, καὶ ἐπορεύετο. 51 Ἤδη δὲ αὐτοῦ καταβαίνοντος, οἱ δοῦλοι αὐτοῦ ἀπήντησαν αὐτῷ, καὶ ἀπήγγειλαν λέγοντες, Ὅτι ὁ παῖς σου ζῇ. 52 Ἐπύθετο οὖν παρ' αὐτῶν τὴν ὥραν ἐν ᾗ κομψότερον ἔσχε· καὶ εἶπον αὐτῷ, Ὅτι χθὲς ὥραν ἑβδόμην ἀφῆκεν αὐτὸν ὁ πυρετός. 53 Ἔγνω side, and He makes it an occasion for speaking of living water. The disciples ask Him to eat. His meat and drink is to do the will of God. It wants four months to harvest. He sees the Samaritans coming to Him. He foresees that they will believe in Him; they are fields whitening to the harvest, yielding a crop from the seed sown by Moses 1500 years before.

---

See this duty of Christianizing every occasion of life, illustrated in the Rev. Robert Cooke's Exhortation to Ejaculatory Prayer, edited by W. Jones of Nayland, Lond. 1797.

40. οἱ Σαμαρεῖται, ἠρώτων αὐτόν] The Jews, although they saw His miracles, rejected Him in pride, malice, and vain-glory; but the Samaritans, among whom He wrought no miracle, desired to retain Him with them, and believed on Him.

— ἔμεινεν] Jesus remains with those who desire Him to stay with them, particularly if they come forth out of the city, and pray Him to enter and abide with them. (Origen.)

Observe how these Samaritans were blessed in their subsequent history. See the notice of this place in St. Stephen's speech (Acts vii. 16), and the mission of Philip the Deacon, and of the Apostles Peter and John to Samaria (Acts viii. 5).

To "him that hath shall be given" (Matt. xiii. 12). And it is remarkable that the site of Sichem is still well known, and its condition comparatively fruitful and prosperous,—while the great city of the unthankful Capernaum has vanished, and no one can accurately tell the sites of Chorazin and Bethsaida. See Matt. xi. 21—23. Luke x. 15.

42. λαλιάν] In a good sense. Cp. viii. 43, and see on Mark xvi. 19.

— πιστεύομεν] At first they had some belief from the woman's testimony (John iv. 39), now they believe because they had heard Him themselves. So it is with those who are brought to Christ by Christian friends, and by the preaching of the Christian Church. They believe through that report, then Christ abides with them, and He gives them the precepts of love; they are convinced, and know, by their own experience, that He is indeed the Saviour of the world. (Aug.)

Compare Hooker, II. iv. 3, and III. viii. 14; and the Editor's remarks on the Canon of Scripture, Lect. i. pp. 21—26, on the manuductory office of the Visible Church of God, even from the beginning, in bringing the world to Christ, in Holy Scripture, where He abides with us, and confirms, settles, and stablishes us in the faith.

43, 44. εἰς τ. Γαλιλαίαν—αὐτὸς γὰρ Ἰησοῦς] The interpretation of St. Cyril here, and others of the ancients, is that our Lord went away (ἀπῆλθεν) into Galilee, passing by (παρατρέχων) His own πατρίδα, Nazareth,—see Matt. xiii. 54. 57. Mark vi. 1. 4. Luke iv. 23, 24, where Nazareth is designated the πατρὶς of Christ; for even Jesus Himself (αὐτὸς), the greatest of all Prophets, witnessed that a Prophet hath not honour in his own country. Hence we find Him at Cana, which is north of Nazareth, so that our Lord in coming from Samaria must have avoided Nazareth. Cana had profited doubtless by His first miracle there, while the Nazarenes had been offended at Him (Luke iv. 23, 24). St John takes for granted that Nazareth was already known by his readers as the πατρὶς of Christ, from the earlier Gospels (Matt. xiii. 54. Mark vi. 1. Luke iv. 23). Nazareth in Galilee is contrasted here with Galilee generally,—as Jerusalem, the capital of Judæa, is contrasted by St John with Judæa, iii. 22.

If this is not the true sense, perhaps (with Tholuck, Olshausen, and others) we may consider γὰρ as explanatory of the grounds on which the Galilæans, our Lord's countrymen, received Him. They did not receive Him, as might have been expected, on account of His miracles wrought in Galilee, e. g. at Cana; "for He Himself witnessed that a Prophet has no honour in His own country."

The Samaritans received Him without a miracle. But the Galilæans did not receive Him for the miracles which He had wrought in Galilee; they received Him for what He had wrought at Jerusalem, at the Feast; "for they themselves went up to the Feast." Therefore, in receiving Him they paid indirect homage to themselves. "We have been at Jerusalem," they said; "we have been at the Feast; we know what He did there; we authorize His reception." They as it were patronize Him, and consider His reception as due to their own influence. So it is now. Many receive Christ, many honour Christianity,—not for His sake and the Gospel's, but in a spirit of vanity, egotism, and in love for themselves. How few love Christ for the sake of Christ!

46. βασιλικός] Probably a courtier, or officer of Herod Antipas. See the passages from Josephus in the notes of Krebs, Rosenmüller, and Kuin.

47. καταβῇ] Come down, i. e. to the sea-side.

The nobleman had some faith, but it was feeble, in that he did not think that Christ could give health to his son after his son's death, or unless Christ were present in person (Chrys.); yet Christ did not reject him, but did more than he asked.

50. πορεύου] i. e. Go in peace,—a Hebraism. Contrast the faith of the centurion (Luke vii. 2) with that of the courtier, and Christ's conduct to each. Our Lord would not go down at the desire of the nobleman to heal his son, but He offered to go down to heal the servant of the centurion (Matt. viii. 7). He thus teaches us, that what is lofty in man's sight is low in His eyes, and the reverse.

52. κομψότερον ἔσχε] "κομψότερον Theophylactus interpretatus est βέλτιον καὶ εὐρωστότερον, et apud Arrian. Epictet. iii. 10, sibi invicem opponuntur formulæ κομψῶς ἔχειν atque κακῶς ἔχειν, verba ibi sunt: ὅταν ὁ ἰατρὸς εἰσίρχηται, μὴ φοβεῖσθαι τί εἴπῃ· μηδ' ἂν εἴπῃ, κομψῶς ἔχεις, ὑπερχαίρειν· μηδ' ἂν εἴπῃ, κακῶς ἔχεις, ἀθυμεῖν." (Kuin.)

— χθές] ἐχθές, A, C, D, K, L, which may be the true reading. "Moeris: χθές — Ἀττικῶς, ἐχθές — Ἑλληνικῶς v. ibi Piersonus p. 402. Etymol. M. ἐχθὲς καὶ χθές. Οἱ Ἀττικοὶ χθές, οἱ δὲ κοινοὶ οὖν ὁ πατὴρ ὅτι ἐν ἐκείνῃ τῇ ὥρᾳ ἐν ᾗ εἶπεν αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Ὅτι ὁ υἱός σου ζῇ· καὶ ἐπίστευσεν αὐτὸς καὶ ἡ οἰκία αὐτοῦ ὅλη. 54 Τοῦτο πάλιν δεύτερον σημεῖον ἐποίησεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς, ἐλθὼν ἐκ τῆς Ἰουδαίας εἰς τὴν Γαλιλαίαν.

V. (38/1) 1 a Μετὰ ταῦτα ἦν ἑορτὴ τῶν Ἰουδαίων, καὶ ἀνέβη ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἰς Ἱεροσόλυμα. 2 Ἔστι δὲ ἐν τοῖς Ἱεροσολύμοις ἐπὶ τῇ προβατικῇ κολυμβήθρα, ἡ ἐπιλεγομένη Ἑβραϊστὶ Βηθεσδὰ, πέντε στοὰς ἔχουσα. 3 Ἐν ταύταις κατέκειτο πλῆθος πολὺ τῶν ἀσθενούντων, τυφλῶν, χωλῶν, ξηρῶν, ἐκδεχομένων τὴν τοῦ ὕδατος κίνησιν. 4 Ἄγγελος γὰρ κατὰ καιρὸν κατέβαινεν ἐν τῇ κολυμβήθρᾳ, a ch. 2. 13. Lev. 23. 2. Deut. 16. 1.

ἰχθύς. Hesych. χθὶς, ἰχθύς. Sed nec Attici alterâ formâ ἰχθὶς, quâ cæteri Græci usi sunt, planè abstinuerunt, vid. Aristoph. Plut. v. 883. 1047, et interpp. ad Thom. Mag. p. 913, sq." (Kuin.)

— ὥραν ἐβδόμην] 'seven in the evening.' It is not probable that the father should have delayed so long as he would have done if it was one o'clock p.m. Indeed it is distinctly said, ἐπυνθάνετο, v. 50. The position and distance of Cana and Capernaum are not certainly known. (See Winer, i. pp. 210. 648.) But it is almost universally agreed, that they were not more than twenty-five miles apart; and they cannot have been very far asunder; for the nobleman, who had left his son, as he thought, at the point of death, says to Christ, "Come down ere my child die" (vv. 47—49).

If this ὥρα ἐβδόμη was seven in the evening, we need not be surprised that the father did not arrive till next day (v. 52, χθές).

On the hours of St. John, see above on v. 6.

— ἀφῆκεν αὐτὸν ὁ πυρετός] He was restored from the point of death in an instant, which could only be done by divine power. (Chrys.)

53. ἐπίστευσεν] There are degrees in faith as in other virtues; the nobleman's faith began when he came to Christ, it increased when our Lord said, "Thy son liveth," it was completed when his servants told him "yesterday at the seventh hour the fever left him." (Bede.)

CH. V. 1. ἦν ἑορτή] A feast of the Jews. Some MSS. (e. g. C, E, F, L, M, Δ) prefix ἡ. What feast was this? It does not seem to have been the Passover. When the Evangelist speaks of that feast he describes it by that name. See ii. 23, ἐν τῷ πάσχα, ἐν τῇ ἑορτῇ. So again in the next chapter to the present, τὸ πάσχα ἡ ἑορτή. See also xiii. 1. In like manner he describes the feast of Tabernacles, vii. 2, ἡ ἑορτὴ τῶν Ἰουδαίων ἡ σκηνοπηγία.

If, then, this feast had been either the Passover or the Feast of Tabernacles, it is probable that it would have been specified as such in this place, as in others of the Gospel. It is remarkable, that neither St. John nor any of the Evangelists ever mention by name the third great Festival, that of Pentecost. Would they reserve that to be associated uniquely in the mind of their readers, with the presence and gift of the Holy Ghost, after the Ascension of Christ? (Acts ii. 1.)

That the Feast here referred to was one of the three great Feasts, seems to be implied in the words καὶ ἀνέβη ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἰς Ἱεροσόλυμα (v. 1). The fact that the other two Feasts are mentioned by name by St. John, and the Feast of Pentecost is not, appears to suggest the conjecture that the ἑορτὴ here alluded to was the Feast of Pentecost. And this was the opinion of many of the ancient Fathers, Cyril, Epiph., Chrys., Theoph., Euthym. So also Erasmus, Maldonat., Calvin, Bengel. St. Irenæus (ii. 39), and Origen, call it the Passover; and so Eusebius, Theodoret, Greswell, Robinson, and others. Keppler, Wieseler, Neander, Olshausen, and Meyer, think it was the Feast of Purim (in March).

If this Feast was the Feast of Pentecost or the Feast of Passover, then our Lord's ministry lasted for about three years and a half, containing four Passovers, as follows:

A passover when He cleansed the Temple, ii. 13.

A Pentecost or Passover here, v. 1 (after a winter, see note on iv. 35, following the Passover of chap. ii. 13).

A third Passover connected with the miraculous feeding, and preceding the discourse on the Eucharist, vi. 4.

The fourth Passover, at which He suffered, xiii. 1.

Jesus went up to the Feasts at Jerusalem to show His reverence for the Law of Moses, and in order to preach to the multitudes who were then assembled at Jerusalem. (Chrys.)

2. τῇ προβατικῇ] προβατικὴ κολυμβήθρα, probatika piscina, a sheep-pool (Chrys., Theophyl.), in which the entrails of the sheep which had been sacrificed were washed (Theophyl. v. 1). But modern Expositors supply πύλη after προβατική. (See Nehem. iii. 1. 32; xii. 39. Lightfoot, i. p. 666.)

For a Homily on this miracle see St. Cyril. Hieros. pp. 336—344.

— κολυμβήθρα] Water of itself has no power of healing either body or soul. But this pool, stirred by an angel, was endued with curative power. It may be regarded as a figure of Christian baptism, which derives its energy from God, and heals the diseases of the soul. And by the cures visibly wrought on the body, with water when stirred by an Angel, by the operation of Divine power, Christ leads us to believe in the operations which He assures us are wrought by the Lord of Angels on the soul, in the Sacrament of Baptism by Water. To this pool of Baptism all mankind is invited, and every one may step in and be healed, and its virtue is never exhausted. (Chrys. Aug. Serm. 124, 125. Theoph.) — Ἑβραϊστὶ] See above, on i. 39.

— Βηθεσδά] 'House of mercy;' בַּיִת (beth), 'domus et חֶסֶד (chesed) beneficentia.' See Lightfoot Chorog. and Harmony on John v. 2, vol. i. pp. 666. 670.

— πέντε στοάς] five arcades; probably the whole building was of a pentagonal form, the pool being in the middle, to which there was access from the five sides, covered with roofs, supported on columns. See v. 13.

The porch of Bethesda, with its πέντε στοαί, has been regarded as emblematic of the Jewish nation, which lay sick and impotent in the porch of the Pentateuch; and Christ came to give them health in the Gospel. (Cp. Aug.)

3. πλῆθος] The work of Christ, in healing the soul, is far greater than that which He wrought in healing men's bodies. But because the soul of man did not as yet know Christ, by whom she was to be healed; and because man has eyes in the body so as to be able to see bodily acts, and had not as yet eyes in the heart, so as to see God, therefore Christ wrought works of healing that were visible on the body, in order that the soul, which could not as yet see Him, might be healed by Him. He therefore entered the porch where a great multitude lay, and chose one (who had been long there, and had no one to put him into the pool), to heal him. (Aug.)

He restored Him to vigour immediately; and gave a public proof of the miracle. How great is the difference in the health restored by Christ, and that which we receive by the ministry of Physicians! (Beas, Theoph.)

— ἐκδεχομένων—κίνησιν is omitted by A*, B, C*, L, a few cursive MSS., and the ancient Cureton Syriac.

As to the words ἐκδεχομένων τὴν τοῦ ὕδατος κίνησιν, they state nothing which is not known from v. 7. And no good reason can be assigned for which they should have been omitted, if they had been in the original text of the Gospel. But they may have been left out in inadvertence from some ancient copy, and so never have found their way into the transcripts from it.

This seems more probable than that these words should have been added as a gloss to some early copy, and from that one source have been diffused into the immense majority of copies where they are now found.

4. ἄγγελος—νοσήματι] These words are not found in MSS. B, C*, D, nor in a few cursive MSS., nor in the Cureton Syriac, but they were in copies of this Gospel in the time of Tertullian (de Bapt. 5, adv. Jud. 13), and are quoted by Chrys., Cyril, Aug., and others. See the evidence on the subject in Tregelles, Acct. of MSS. pp. 243—246, and in Scholz, Tisch., and Alf. here.

As to this verse, which is found in the vast majority of copies, some reasons might be alleged why it should have been inserted by transcribers. They might have been desirous to assign a cause for the phenomenon. On the other hand, reasons no less valid might weigh with them for its omission. Who had seen the Angel? What Jewish writer had recorded his appearance and operation? These are questions which might have been urged by sceptics of old, as now, and the easiest way of removing the objections might seem to be to omit the words. We know that this feeling operated so strongly with some critics of old, as to lead them only to omit a few words, but even to reject entire Books of the Sacred Canon, e. g. the Epistle to the Hebrews and the Apocalypse (see the Editor's Lectures on the Canon, pp. 213. 246. 330, 2nd edit.).

The evidence of the MSS. being, on the whole, so strong in favour of the words, it seems rash to reject them. They are retained by Lachmann; but rejected, as "a legendary interpolation," by Meyer.

As to the internal teaching of the verse, it will be observed that it does not say that the Angel was visible; and therefore no objection against its insertion can be grounded on the silence of profane writers.

It seems also a worthy exercise of Divine Revelation, to lead human Philosophy to regard what are Physical Phænomena, as being not produced by natural Laws, though they may be regulated according to them, but as effected by divine Agency; in a word, to elevate the human mind from the lower level of material Mechanics to the higher region of spiritual Dynamics.

Here also we have a true view of the dignity of the Medical Profession. We see the ministry of the Physician, and the visible means and appliances used by him for the restoration of health. But by such Scriptures as these, the Holy Spirit teaches us to look at the invisible power of the Great Physician acting by this agency; and to ascribe all their success to Him,—"Jesus Christ maketh thee whole." (Acts ix. 34.)

So it is also in the World of Grace. We see the Bread and Wine in the Holy Eucharist; and we see the Water in the Sacrament of Baptism. But the Holy Spirit in Holy Scripture lifts up the veil καὶ ἐτάρασσε τὸ ὕδωρ· ὁ οὖν πρῶτος ἐμβὰς μετὰ τὴν ταραχὴν τοῦ ὕδατος ὑγιὴς ἐγίνετο, ᾧ δήποτε κατείχετο νοσήματι. 5 Ἦν δέ τις ἄνθρωπος ἐκεῖ τριάκοντα καὶ ὀκτὼ ἔτη ἔχων ἐν τῇ ἀσθενείᾳ· 6 τοῦτον ἰδὼν ὁ Ἰησοῦς κατακείμενον, καὶ γνοὺς ὅτι πολὺν ἤδη χρόνον ἔχει, λέγει αὐτῷ, Θέλεις ὑγιὴς γενέσθαι; 7 Ἀπεκρίθη αὐτῷ ὁ ἀσθενῶν, Κύριε, ἄνθρωπον οὐκ ἔχω, ἵνα, ὅταν ταραχθῇ τὸ ὕδωρ, βάλῃ με εἰς τὴν κολυμβήθραν· ἐν ᾧ δὲ ἔρχομαι ἐγὼ, ἄλλος πρὸ ἐμοῦ καταβαίνει. 8 [b] Λέγει αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Ἔγειρε, ἆρον τὸν κράββατόν σου, καὶ περιπάτει. 9 [c] Καὶ εὐθέως ἐγένετο ὑγιὴς ὁ ἄνθρωπος, καὶ ἦρε τὸν κράββατον αὐτοῦ, καὶ περιεπάτει. Ἦν δὲ σάββατον ἐν ἐκείνῃ τῇ ἡμέρᾳ. 10 [d] Ἔλεγον οὖν οἱ Ἰουδαῖοι τῷ τεθεραπευμένῳ, Σάββατόν ἐστιν, οὐκ ἔξεστί σοι ἆραι τὸν κράββατον. (89/X) 11 Ἀπεκρίθη αὐτοῖς, Ὁ ποιήσας με ὑγιῆ ἐκεῖνός μοι εἶπεν, Ἆρον τὸν κράββατόν σου, καὶ περιπάτει. 12 Ἠρώτησαν οὖν αὐτόν, Τίς ἐστιν ὁ ἄνθρωπος ὁ εἰπών σοι, Ἆρον τὸν κράββατόν σου, καὶ περιπάτει; 13 Ὁ δὲ ἰαθεὶς οὐκ ἤδει τίς ἐστιν· ὁ γὰρ Ἰησοῦς ἐξένευσεν, ὄχλου ὄντος ἐν τῷ τόπῳ. 14 [e] Μετὰ ταῦτα εὑρίσκει αὐτὸν ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ, καὶ εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Ἴδε, ὑγιὴς γέγονας· μηκέτι ἁμάρτανε, ἵνα μὴ χεῖρόν σοί τι γένηται. 15 Ἀπῆλθεν ὁ ἄνθρωπος, καὶ ἀνήγγειλε τοῖς Ἰουδαίοις, ὅτι Ἰησοῦς ἐστιν ὁ ποιήσας αὐτὸν ὑγιῆ. 16 Καὶ διὰ τοῦτο ἐδίωκον τὸν Ἰησοῦν οἱ Ἰουδαῖοι, καὶ ἐζήτουν αὐτὸν ἀποκτεῖναι, ὅτι ταῦτα ἐποίει ἐν σαββάτῳ. 17 [f] Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς ἀπεκρίνατο αὐτοῖς, Ὁ Πατήρ μου ἕως ἄρτι ἐργάζεται, κἀγὼ ἐργάb Matt. 9. 6. Mark 2. 11. Luke 5. 24.

c ch. 9. 14.
d Exod. 20. 10. Deut. 5. 13. Neh. 13. 19. Jer. 17. 21, &c. Matt. 12. 2. Mark 2. 24. Luke 6. 2.
e Matt. 12. 45. ver. 21. ch. 8. 11.
f ch. 14. 10.

---

from the unseen world, and discovers to us the ministry of Angels, and even His own ministry, in the spiritual Bethesdas, which God has provided for the palsied and withered soul.

If the καιρὸς mentioned by St. John in v. 4 was the season of the Feast (as some suppose of the ancient Fathers, e.g. Ammon. Cyril), then the grace thus bestowed might be typical of that afterward given by the Holy Ghost at the Feast of Pentecost: and this might be a corroboration of the opinion that the ἑορτή in v. 1 was that feast.

— κατέβαινεν] 'was wont to descend.'

5. τριάκοντα—ὀκτώ] He had no one to put him in, he was prevented by others, and yet he continued there. What a reproof to our languor and despondency, and weariness in prayer, and in other spiritual exercises for the impetration of divine grace and eternal good! (Chrys.)

8. κράββατον] 'grabatum,' used only by St. Mark and St. John in the Gospels. See Mark ii. 4. 9. 11, 12; vi. 55.

9. σάββατον] The day of Rest was specially chosen by Christ as the fittest season for Divine acts of Mercy. He so fulfilled the Law, and showed His Oneness with the Father. (Luke iv. 31—36. 38, 39. Mark iii. 1. John ix. 14.) God rested on that day from all His works of creation; but on that Day of Rest He specially works in doing acts of mercy to the souls of His Creatures. He operated upon them in the public religious exercises of the Temple and the Synagogue. Cp. v. 16, 17.

13. ὁ δὲ ἰαθείς] A multitude of impotent folk lay in the porch, and one was healed by Him Who could have healed them all by a word. Why was this, but that Christ wrought rather with a view to the healing of the soul than of the body? For the health of the body though once restored failed again in death; but the soul once healed passes to life eternal. And to show the blessing promised to patient endurance, and faith, and resignation, He healed this one.

— ἐξένευσε] "emersit, enatavit à turbâ tanquam à fluctibus maris;" from ἐκνεῖν, anatare. ἐκνεύσας = ἐκκολυμβήσας, Hesych. See Eurip. Hippol. 471, εἰς δὲ τὴν τύχην πεσοῦσ' ὅσην σὺ πῶς ἂν ἐκνεῦσαι δοκεῖς; and LXX. in Jud. xviii. 26. There is something beautifully significant in this word as here applied to Christ. He emerged, glided, dived forth invisibly from the waves of the crowd, and reappeared in the quiet harbour of the House of God.

He thus also proved that when arrested at Gethsemane it was by His own will. See also Luke iv. 29, 30. John viii. 59.

Our Lord has now withdrawn His bodily presence from the crowd of the world, in order that we may see Him with the eye of faith.

14. εὑρίσκει αὐτὸν ὁ Ἰησοῦς] εὑρίσκει, seeks for and finds; see i. 42; xii. 14. The man when healed went not to the market, but to the Temple; and there Jesus, who had conveyed Himself away from the crowd, met him who had not known Him in the crowd. Jesus escapes from the crowd, but is found by us, and finds us, in the Temple; God is seen in the solitude; the multitude makes a din around us and hides Him from us; the divine vision demands religious retirement and holy peace in His house, apart from the strife of tongues. Ps. xxxi. 20. (Cp. Aug., Chrys.)

— μηκέτι ἁμάρτανε] Bodily infirmities are therefore the effects of sin; and if we suffer for our sins, and fall again into the same sins, we may expect that our sufferings will be worse. (Chrys.)

— ἵνα μὴ χεῖρόν σοί τι γ.] So A, B, C, G, H, L, M, S, V.—Elz. τί σοι; but σοι is emphatic, and is rightly placed first,—'to thee who hast been healed.'

16. ἐποίει] 'factitabat.'

17. ὁ Πατήρ μου ἕως ἄρτι ἐργάζεται] τὸ ἕως ἄρτι δείκνυσι τὸ ἀϊδίως. (Athanas. adv. Arian. ii. p. 386.)—ἕως ἄρτι from the Creation. (Bengel.) In His reasonings on the Sabbath, our Lord sometimes speaks as man, as a human teacher (e. g. Matt. xii. 3), sometimes as God. Here He speaks as God, who makes His Sun to rise and His rain to fall, and clothes the grass of the field on the seventh day as well as on the other six. (Chrys.)

The man who was healed was seen by the Jews to be doing a corporal work on the Sabbath,—he carried his bed. Christ, therefore, who had commanded him to do so, teaches them thereby that the ordinance of their Sabbath was temporary, and that its substance had now appeared in Himself, and He therefore says, "My Father worketh hitherto, and I work."

The Jews, understanding the law of the Sabbath in a carnal sense, imagined that God was wearied by the labour of creation, and was resting from fatigue. Think not that My Father so rested on the Sabbath as not to work any more; but as He worketh without labour, so I work. But it is therefore said that God rested, because He made no creatures after that all things were finished. (Gen. ii. 1, 2.)

God gave the precept of the Sabbath to be a shadow of the future, and to signify the spiritual rest which remaineth to the people of God (Heb. iv. 9) after this life, to the faithful who have done good works in this present state of existence; and this rest will begin when the six ages of the world (like the six days of creation) are past; and our Lord Himself confirmed the mystery of this rest by resting on the seventh day in the grave, after He had completed His work, and had exclaimed, "It is finished" (John xix. 30). See also note on Matt. xxviii. 1.

Our Lord says, "My Father worketh hitherto," because though He no longer maketh new creatures, yet He works in governing the Creation which was finished on the sixth day. And because the whole fabric of the universe would be dissolved if God's operative power and administrative rule were ever withdrawn. (Aug. super Gen. iv. 12.)

As Bengel says, "What would become of the Sabbath, unless God worked on the Sabbath?"

17. κἀγὼ ἐργάζομαι] The Law of the Sabbath is the law of a Being who never rests from doing good. (Theoph.) See on Luke xiii. 16.

What my Father made, He made without fatigue, by Me, who work without labour; and when He governs, He governs by Me. Thus while He works I work. (Aug., Hilary de Trinit. vii.) The Father does not work except by the power and wisdom of the Son. (Cyril.) You think that the honour of the Sabbath has been disparaged by Me; but I never should have done what I have now done, unless I saw that the Father acts in like manner as I have now done; He does every thing which appertains to the constitution of the world and to the Sabbath, and does it all by Me. (Cyril.) ζομαι. 18 g Διὰ τοῦτο οὖν μᾶλλον ἐζήτουν αὐτὸν οἱ Ἰουδαῖοι ἀποκτεῖναι, ὅτι οὐ μόνον ἔλυε τὸ σάββατον, ἀλλὰ καὶ πατέρα ἴδιον ἔλεγε τὸν Θεὸν, ἴσον ἑαυτὸν ποιῶν τῷ Θεῷ. 19 h Ἀπεκρίνατο οὖν ὁ Ἰησοῦς καὶ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Ἀμὴν ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, οὐ δύναται ὁ Υἱὸς ποιεῖν ἀφ' ἑαυτοῦ οὐδὲν, ἐὰν μή τι βλέπῃ τὸν Πατέρα ποιοῦντα· ἃ γὰρ ἂν ἐκεῖνος ποιῇ, ταῦτα καὶ ὁ Υἱὸς ὁμοίως ποιεῖ. 20 i Ὁ γὰρ Πατὴρ φιλεῖ τὸν Υἱὸν, καὶ πάντα δείκνυσιν αὐτῷ ἃ αὐτὸς ποιεῖ· καὶ μείζονα τούτων δείξει αὐτῷ ἔργα, ἵνα ὑμεῖς θαυμάζητε. 21 k Ὥσπερ γὰρ ὁ Πατὴρ ἐγείρει τοὺς νεκροὺς καὶ ζωοποιεῖ, οὕτω καὶ ὁ Υἱὸς οὓς θέλει ζωοποιεῖ. 22 k Οὐδὲ γὰρ ὁ Πατὴρ κρίνει οὐδένα, ἀλλὰ τὴν κρίσιν πᾶσαν δέδωκε τῷ Υἱῷ, 23 l ἵνα πάντες τιμῶσι τὸν Υἱὸν, καθὼς τιμῶσι τὸν Πατέρα. Ὁ μὴ τιμῶν τὸν Υἱὸν οὐ τιμᾷ τὸν Πατέρα τὸν πέμψαντα αὐτόν. (40/1) 24 m Ἀμὴν ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι ὁ τὸν λόγον μου ἀκούων καὶ πιστεύων τῷ πέμψαντί με ἔχει ζωὴν αἰώνιον, καὶ εἰς κρίσιν οὐκ ἔρχεται, ἀλλὰ μεταβέβηκεν ἐκ τοῦ θανάτου εἰς τὴν ζωήν. (41/X) 25 n Ἀμὴν ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι ἔρχεται ὥρα, καὶ νῦν ἐστιν, g ch. 7. 19. & 10. 33. Phil. 2. 6.

h ver. 30. & 8. 38. & 14. 10.
i ch. 3. 35. Matt. 3. 17. Luke 9. 35.
k Matt. 11. 27. & 28. 18. ch. 3. 35. & 17. 2. Acts 17. 31.
l 1 John 2.
m ch. 3. 18. & 6. 40, 41. & 8. 51. Rom. 8. 24. Eph. 2. 6. 1 John 3. 2. Luke 23. 43.
n Eph. 2. 1, 5. Matt. 8. 22. Rev. 3. 1. Rom. 6. 4. Gal. 2. 20.

---

19. ἀμὴν ἀμήν] The word ἀμὴν, 'verily' (from אָמַן, veritas), whence God is called (Isa. lxv. 16) the God of Amen (i. e. of Truth), used singly about fifty times in the other Gospels, is doubled in St. John's Gospel, where it is so found in twenty-five places, as if the Truth were here solemnly repeated and sealed for ever. See above on i. 52.

— οὐ δύναται ὁ Υἱὸς ποιεῖν ἀφ' ἑαυτοῦ οὐδέν] See Athanas. adv. Gentes, 46, p. 37; also p. 226. The Word is the essential Wisdom, Reason, and Power of the Father. (Cp. 1 Cor. i. 24.) And St. Aug. says the substance of the Son is from the Father, and therefore the power of the Son is of the Father. His essence and power are synonymous. He can do nothing but what He sees the Father do; but this act of seeing is His eternal generation from the Father. As fire is to light, so is the Father to the Son; the Son who is begotten is co-eternal with the Father who begat Him. (Aug. See also Serm. 126.)

For God does not see by bodily eyes, but His faculty of sight is in the virtue of His nature. (Hilary.)

When Christ says He can do nothing of Himself, He means nothing contrary to His Father's will, for He took our nature of Himself (Phil. ii. 6, 7), and died and raised Himself (John x. 17, 18). (Chrys.)

— ἃ γὰρ ἂν ἐκεῖνος ποιῇ, ταῦτα καὶ κ.τ.λ.] I work His Works as being ever from Him. The Son is the Virtue by which the Father works all things, and ever is in the Father, and declares His will by act. (Cyril.)

We are not to imagine that the two persons of the Trinity are as it were two Artificers—the one a Master workman, the other his scholar, so that according as the former makes a chest, the other makes another after him. Therefore our Lord does not say, whatever the Father does, the Son does other things like what the Father does; but He says that the Son does the same things. The Father made the world, the Son made the world, and the Holy Ghost made the world; one and the same world was made by the Father through the Son in the Holy Spirit.

We are not to suppose that Christ's power of working comes by increments of strength, supplied to Him from time to time, but from consciousness, and not so from consciousness that the Son does subsequently what He has previously seen the Father do. But since the Son is begotten of the Father by a consciousness of His Father's power and nature in Himself, He testifies that the Son can do nothing but what He sees the Father do. (Cp. Aug. here.)

He adds the word ὁμοίως likewise, lest another error[1] should rise in our minds. A servant does some things at the command of his master, the same thing is done by both, but is it done likewise? No. Therefore the Father and the Son are not in the relation of master and servant to each other. But the Son does the same things as the Father, and He does them in like manner, that is, with the same power as the Father. The Son therefore is equal to the Father. (Aug.; and see Greg. Nazian. p. 547.)

20. ὁ Πατὴρ φιλεῖ τὸν Υἱὸν, καὶ πάντα δείκνυσιν αὐτῷ] Not that the Father shows every thing to the Son by His own working, but He works through the Son by showing what He does. For the Son sees the Father showing what He does, before any thing is done; and whatever is done by the Father through the Son, is done from the Father's demonstration, and from the Son seeing what is shown. (Aug.) We are not to suppose that the only-begotten Word, Who is God, receives any teaching by demonstration. The demonstration of works inculcates here a faith in Christ's eternal generation. (Hilary, de Trin. vii.) Christ sees God by being born of God. (Aug.)

— μείζονα τούτων δείξει αὐτῷ ἔργα] He will show Him the Resurrection of the Body and the Regeneration of the Soul. But how can He be said to show these things to the Son, co-eternal with the Father? He shows them to Him as Man; for the body will be raised at the general resurrection by the voice of the Son of Man. (Aug.)

22. ὁ Πατὴρ κρίνει οὐδένα] In that the Father begat the Son co-equal with Himself, and has given all judgment to the Son, the Father will judge the World with the Son; but the Father judgeth no man, because the form of God will not be visible at the judgment day, but the form of the Son of Man, which He received from us. At the judgment day no one will see the Father; but every one will see the Son; because He is the Son of Man. Those on the right hand will see Him, and those on the left hand will see Him; and both will hear His voice.

But after the Judgment the righteous shall see God; for "blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God" (Matt. v. 8). (Aug.) See also below, note on v. 27, and Bp. Pearson on the Creed, Art. vii. pp. 554—560, and notes.

— τὴν κρίσιν πᾶσαν δέδωκε] Has delivered the work of Judging, totally, to the Son—totam Ei soli dedit.

23. ἵνα πάντες τιμῶσι τὸν Υἱόν] This Scripture refutes various forms of Heresy. It shows that Christ is the Son, because He does nothing of Himself; and that He is God, because whatever the Father does He does; and that He is one with the Father, because all must honour Him as they honour the Father; and that He is not the Father, because He is sent by the Father. (Hilary, de Trin. vii.) They despise the Father of Heaven who do not give equal honour to the Son; and we must honour the Son as we honour the Father, if we desire to honour the Father and the Son. (Aug., Chrys.)

24. μεταβέβηκεν ἐκ τοῦ θανάτου] He does not say will pass, but is already passed; that is, he has passed from the death, the death of unbelief, to the life of faith, and from the death of sin to the life of righteousness.

— εἰς τὴν ζωήν] to the life; i. e. to life eternal; for this present life on earth does not deserve to be called life; there is no true life but what is eternal.

25. ἔρχεται ὥρα, καὶ νῦν ἐστιν] Our Lord is about to speak of two Resurrections;

The first Resurrection is that which is not universal; it is the Resurrection of the soul from the death of sin.

The second Resurrection is that of all bodies from their graves at the last day.

If we believe the Gospel, we have already risen by the first resurrection; and we who have so risen have risen to eternal life, if we endure in faith to the end, we have passed from the death unto the life, i. e. from that which is indeed death—sin—to that which is indeed life—the life of Christ. And then we shall rise hereafter to be equal to the Angels in Heaven.

Let us therefore rise now in our souls by faith and holiness from the grave of sin, that we may rise hereafter with joy in our bodies to life everlasting. (Cp. Aug.)

See also Aug. Serm. 127, on the Two Resurrections here described by our blessed Lord. See also Macarius (Hom. xxxvi. p. 193), who says, "the Resurrection of dead souls now is; the Resurrection of dead bodies will be at the Great Day;" and Bp. Andrewes, Serm. xvi.

So the Church of England speaks in the Book of Common Prayer,

---

[1] Errors against which it is necessary to guard the reader, because they are found in a note on this passage derived from one of the subtlest of modern Arians, Dr. Samuel Clarke, in one of the most widely circulated comments in the English language. "I do every thing in imitation of Him and by His direction and appointment." See also the same writer's note on John xi. 41.

The same caution must be given against the tendency of some notes from Dr. Whitby, whose antitrinitarian bias, afterwards openly declared in his opposition to Bp. Bull, and refuted by Waterland, is sometimes visible in them, e. g. on v. 17, "I, after His example, work that which is good."

The teaching of St. Hilary, St. Athanasius, St. Cyril, and St. Augustine may serve as a corrective of these erroneous notions.

ὅτε οἱ νεκροὶ ἀκούσονται τῆς φωνῆς τοῦ Υἱοῦ τοῦ Θεοῦ, καὶ οἱ ἀκούσαντες ζήσονται· [26] ὥσπερ γὰρ ὁ Πατὴρ ἔχει ζωὴν ἐν ἑαυτῷ, οὕτως ἔδωκε καὶ τῷ Υἱῷ ζωὴν ἔχειν ἐν ἑαυτῷ· [27] καὶ ἐξουσίαν ἔδωκεν αὐτῷ καὶ κρίσιν ποιεῖν, ὅτι Υἱὸς ἀνθρώπου ἐστί. [28] Μὴ θαυμάζετε τοῦτο· ὅτι ἔρχεται ὥρα, ἐν ᾗ πάντες οἱ ἐν τοῖς μνημείοις ἀκούσονται τῆς φωνῆς αὐτοῦ, [29] καὶ ἐκπορεύσονται· οἱ τὰ ἀγαθὰ ποιήσαντες εἰς ἀνάστασιν ζωῆς, οἱ δὲ τὰ φαῦλα πράξαντες εἰς ἀνάστασιν κρίσεως. (42/I) [30] Οὐ δύναμαι ἐγὼ ποιεῖν ἀπ' ἐμαυτοῦ οὐδέν· καθὼς ἀκούω, κρίνω· καὶ ἡ κρίσις ἡ ἐμὴ δικαία ἐστίν· ὅτι οὐ ζητῶ τὸ θέλημα τὸ ἐμὸν, ἀλλὰ τὸ θέλημα τοῦ πέμψαντός με. (43/X) [31] Ἐὰν ἐγὼ μαρτυρῶ περὶ ἐμαυτοῦ, ἡ μαρτυρία μου οὐκ ἔστιν ἀληθής. [32] Ἄλλος ἐστὶν ὁ μαρτυρῶν περὶ ἐμοῦ, καὶ οἶδα ὅτι ἀληθής ἐστιν ἡ μαρτυρία ἣν μαρτυρεῖ περὶ ἐμοῦ. [33] Ὑμεῖς ἀπεστάλκατε πρὸς Ἰωάννην, καὶ μεμαρτύρηκε τῇ ἀληθείᾳ· [34] ἐγὼ δὲ οὐ παρὰ ἀνθρώπου τὴν μαρτυρίαν λαμβάνω· ἀλλὰ ταῦτα λέγω ἵνα ὑμεῖς σωθῆτε. [35] Ἐκεῖνος ἦν ὁ λύχνος ὁ καιόμενος καὶ φαίνων, ὑμεῖς δὲ ἠθελήσατε ἀγαλλιαθῆναι πρὸς ὥραν ἐν τῷ φωτὶ αὐτοῦ. [36] Ἐγὼ δὲ ἔχω τὴν μαρτυρίαν μείζω τοῦ Ἰωάννου· τὰ γὰρ ἔργα ἃ ἔδωκέ μοι ὁ Πατὴρ ἵνα τελειώσω αὐτὰ, αὐτὰ τὰ ἔργα ἃ ἐγὼ ποιῶ, μαρτυρεῖ περὶ ἐμοῦ, ὅτι ὁ Πατήρ με ἀπέσταλκε· (44/III) [37] καὶ ὁ πέμψας με Πατὴρ αὐτὸς μεμαρτύρηκε περὶ ἐμοῦ. Οὔτε φωνὴν αὐτοῦ πώποτε ἀκηκόατε, οὔτε εἶδος αὐτοῦ ἑωράκατε· (45/X) [38] καὶ τὸν λόγον αὐτοῦ οὐκ ἔχετε μένοντα ἐν ὑμῖν, ὅτι ὃν ἀπέστειλεν ἐκεῖνος τούτῳ ὑμεῖς οὐ πιστεύετε. [39] Ἐρευνᾶτε τὰς γραφὰς, ὅτι ὑμεῖς δοκεῖτε ἐν αὐταῖς ζωὴν αἰώνιον o Dan. 12. 2. 1 Cor. 15. 52.

p Matt. 25. 46.
q ver. 19. & 6. 38. Isa. 11. 3, 4.
r ch. 8. 14.
s Isa. 42. 1. Matt. 3. 17.
t ch. 1. 19.
u Matt. 3. 17. & 17. 5. Mark 1. 11. & 9. 7. Luke 3. 22. & 9. 35. ch. 1. 33. & 6. 27. & 8. 18. & 10. 25. & 12. 28. 2 Pet. 1. 17.
v Exod. 33. 20. Deut. 4. 12. 1 Tim. 6. 16. 1 John 4. 12.
x Isa. 8. 20. & 34. 16. Luke 16. 29. & 24. 27. Acts 17. 11. Deut. 18. 15. ch. 1. 46.

"Baptism doth represent unto us our profession, which is to follow the example of our Saviour Christ, and to be made like unto Him, that as He died and rose again, so should we, who are baptized, die unto sin and rise again unto righteousness, continually mortifying all our evil and corrupt affections, and daily proceeding in all virtue and godliness of living."

25. οἱ νεκροί] The dead shall hear the voice,—the dead, i. e. in trespasses and sins (see Eph. ii. 1. 3. 6; v. 14. Rom. vi. 4, 5), for we are buried with Him by Baptism into Death (Col. ii. 13; iii. 1. 3).

The dead, i. e. the unbelieving,—for they who do not believe, or who, believing, do not live holy lives, and have not charity, are dead. Some of them shall hear: that is, shall hearken to the voice of the Son of God in the Gospel; and they that hear, i. e. that obey ('qui audierint'), shall live, i. e. shall be justified. (Aug.)

— τοῦ Υἱοῦ τοῦ Θεοῦ] 'the Son of God.' He does not here say the Son of Man, because He is representing to us that in which He is equal to the Father. See v. 26. (Aug.)

27. ἐξουσίαν ἔδωκεν αὐτῷ]. Hath given Him as Son of Man; for as Son of God He possessed it from eternity. God now raises the soul by Christ as Son of God (v. 25). He will raise all the bodies of men at the general resurrection by Christ as Son of Man. (Aug.)

— κρίσιν ποιεῖν, ὅτι Υἱὸς ἀνθρώπου ἐστί] For the form of man will come visibly to judge; that form of Man which was once judged will judge; He who once stood before the judge will sit as Judge of all; He who was once falsely condemned as guilty will justly condemn the guilty. It is fit that they who are to be judged should behold their Judge, and both the good and wicked must be judged. It follows as a consequence, that in the judgment, the form of a servant which Christ bore should be shown both to the good and wicked; but the Form of God will be manifested to the good alone. "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." Matt. v. 8. (Aug. Serm. lxiv.)

28. ἔρχεται ὥρα] See above, note on v. 22. He does not add now is, because the Resurrection of which He is about to speak is future,—i. e. is the General Resurrection of the Body at the end of the world, at the last trump. (Aug.)

— πάντες οἱ ἐν τοῖς μνημείοις] The bodies of men are in the graves, and not their souls. The souls of the righteous departed are now in Abraham's bosom, and those of the wicked are now in misery. See above on Luke xvi. 23.

He had before spoken of men's souls (v. 25), and then He did not say that all who are dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God; i. e. obey it and believe, for some would remain in unbelief.

But He now says that all who are in the graves will rise; He does not say here that all will live, as He had said before of all who believe, and by believing have passed from death to life; because some who come forth from their graves will not rise to life eternal, but will go into the resurrection of damnation. (Aug.)

Our Lord here guards by anticipation against the error of Hymenæus and Philetus, who took occasion from the doctrine of the first resurrection by faith, to deny the second, or General Resurrection of the Body. 2 Tim. ii. 17, 18. (Aug.)

Consider also the words of the Athanasian Creed, declaring the sense of the Church concerning this passage of Scripture,—"At whose coming all men shall rise again with their bodies," &c.; and examine the bearing of these words on the opinion that at Christ's second Advent the righteous only will rise with their bodies, and that He will reign with them for a thousand years upon earth.

29. ποιήσαντες—πράξαντες] Observe ποιεῖν applied to good, πράσσειν to evil. Good made and done has permanence for ever. Evil is practical but produces no good fruit for eternity.

30. καθὼς ἀκούω, κρίνω] As the Father in Me speaks, so I hear, and pronounce judgment. (Aug.)

— τοῦ πέμψαντός με] Πατρός is added by some MSS., but it is not in A, B, D, K, L, and many Versions and Fathers.

31. ἐὰν ἐγὼ μαρτυρῶ περὶ ἐμαυτοῦ, ἡ μαρτυρία μου οὐκ ἔστιν ἀληθής] That is, would be liable to suspicion from you; for no one is regarded as a credible witness in his own behalf; He therefore appeals to three several other testimonies,—His miracles, the testimony of His Father, and the witness of John the Baptist. (Chrys. Aug.)

33. ὑμεῖς ἀπεστάλκατε] Ye have sent, and he has borne witness. That is done, and it ought to have convinced you.

You yourselves, yea, even your greatest men, Priests and Pharisees, have sent to John; you have thus proved your reverence for his testimony, and you even sent to ask his witness concerning himself,—"Who art thou?" (John i. 19,) and he then bare witness of Me. (Chrys.)

34. τὴν μαρτυρίαν] My testimony; the witness on which I rely.

35. ἐκεῖνος ἦν ὁ λύχνος] He was that burning lamp (λύχνος),—that greatest of Prophets. (Matt. xi. 11. Luke vii. 28.) All the Prophets were lamps (λύχνοι). But Christ is the Light itself (τὸ φῶς). He is the true Light—the Light of the World—from which these lamps were kindled; and when the Light shone forth in the full lustre of mighty words and deeds, then the lamps disappeared. (Aug.) "Lychnus orto soli non fœnerat lucem." (Bengel.)

— ἀγαλλιαθῆναι] You were willing enough to rejoice in his light, but not to walk in the way which he showed you. Cp. Ezek. xxxiii. 32. Ten uncial MSS. have ἀγαλλιασθῆναι. Elz. has ἀγαλλιασθῆναι.

36. τὰ γὰρ ἔργα—μαρτυρεῖ] Moses bare witness to Christ, so did John and the other Prophets; but Christ prefers the testimony of His works to all their testimonies, because God did indeed give witness to His Son by Moses and by John; but by His works, God in the Son manifests the Son, and when we come to the Son we need go no further. We want no lamps when we come to the Light. We need not dig deeper when we come to the Rock. (Aug.)

37. οὔτε φωνὴν αὐτοῦ π. ἀκηκόατε] A reply to the plea of the Jews,—"We know that God spake unto Moses" (John ix. 29). Ye boast of your knowledge of God, but ye know nothing of Him. Ye reject Him Whom God hath sent.

He answers their thoughts, and so proves Himself God, Equal and One with the Father. (Cyril.)

39. ἐρευνᾶτε τὰς γραφάς] ἐρευνᾶτε used by LXX for Hebr. חקר (chaphas), 'rimari, perscrutari.' (Gen. xxxi. 35; xliv. 12.) It is probably the imperative mood. Cp. vii. 52.

ἔχειν, καὶ ἐκεῖναί εἰσιν αἱ μαρτυροῦσαι περὶ ἐμοῦ· 40 καὶ οὐ θέλετε ἐλθεῖν πρός με, ἵνα ζωὴν ἔχητε. 41 Δόξαν παρὰ ἀνθρώπων οὐ λαμβάνω· 42 ἀλλ' ἔγνωκα ὑμᾶς, ὅτι τὴν ἀγάπην τοῦ Θεοῦ οὐκ ἔχετε ἐν ἑαυτοῖς. 43 Ἐγὼ ἐλήλυθα ἐν τῷ ὀνόματι τοῦ Πατρός μου, καὶ οὐ λαμβάνετέ με· ἐὰν ἄλλος ἔλθῃ ἐν τῷ ὀνόματι τῷ ἰδίῳ ἐκεῖνον λήψεσθε. 44 [y] Πῶς δύνασθε ὑμεῖς πιστεῦσαι δόξαν y ch. 12. 43. Rom. 2. 29.
παρὰ ἀλλήλων λαμβάνοντες, καὶ τὴν δόξαν τὴν παρὰ τοῦ μόνου Θεοῦ οὐ ζητεῖτε; 45 Μὴ δοκεῖτε ὅτι ἐγὼ κατηγορήσω ὑμῶν πρὸς τὸν Πατέρα· ἔστιν ὁ κατηγορῶν ὑμῶν Μωϋσῆς, εἰς ὃν ὑμεῖς ἠλπίκατε. 46 [z] Εἰ γὰρ ἐπιστεύετε z Gen. 3. 15. & 22. 18. & 49. 10. Deut. 18. 15.
Μωϋσῇ, ἐπιστεύετε ἂν ἐμοί· περὶ γὰρ ἐμοῦ ἐκεῖνος ἔγραψεν. 47 Εἰ δὲ τοῖς ἐκείνου γράμμασιν οὐ πιστεύετε, πῶς τοῖς ἐμοῖς ῥήμασι πιστεύσετε;

VI. (46/I) 1 Μετὰ ταῦτα ἀπῆλθεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς πέραν τῆς θαλάσσης τῆς Γαλιλαίας τῆς Τιβεριάδος· 2 καὶ ἠκολούθει αὐτῷ ὄχλος πολύς, ὅτι ἑώρων τὰ σημεῖα, ἃ ἐποίει ἐπὶ τῶν ἀσθενούντων. (47/III) 3 Ἀνῆλθε δὲ εἰς τὸ ὄρος ὁ Ἰησοῦς, καὶ ἐκεῖ ἐκάθητο μετὰ τῶν μαθητῶν αὐτοῦ· (48/I) 4 [a] ἦν δὲ ἐγγὺς τὸ a Exod. 12. 18. Lev. 23. 5. Num. 28. 16. Deut. 16. 1.
πάσχα, ἡ ἑορτὴ τῶν Ἰουδαίων. (49/I) 5 [b] Ἐπάρας οὖν τοὺς ὀφθαλμοὺς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, b Matt. 14. 15. Mark 6. 35. Luke 9. 12.
καὶ θεασάμενος ὅτι πολὺς ὄχλος ἔρχεται πρὸς αὐτὸν, λέγει πρὸς τὸν Φίλιππον, Πόθεν ἀγοράσωμεν ἄρτους, ἵνα φάγωσιν οὗτοι; 6 τοῦτο δὲ ἔλεγε πειράζων αὐτόν· αὐτὸς γὰρ ᾔδει τί ἔμελλε ποιεῖν. 7 Ἀπεκρίθη αὐτῷ Φίλιππος, Διακοσίων δηναρίων ἄρτοι οὐκ ἀρκοῦσιν αὐτοῖς, ἵνα ἕκαστος αὐτῶν βραχύ τι λάβῃ.
8 Λέγει αὐτῷ εἷς ἐκ τῶν μαθητῶν αὐτοῦ, Ἀνδρέας ὁ ἀδελφὸς Σίμωνος Πέτρου, 9 [c] Ἔστι παιδάριον ἓν ὧδε, ὃς ἔχει πέντε ἄρτους κριθίνους καὶ δύο ὀψάρια· ἀλλὰ c 2 Kings 4. 43.

— τὰς γραφάς] 'your Scriptures.' The Son of God, therefore, Who knows all things, acknowledged the Holy Scriptures in the hands of the Jews. He acknowledged what they received as the pure and inspired Word of God, to be what they accounted it, and He appealed to it as such; they, therefore, that deny the Integrity and Inspiration of the Old Testament reject Christ. A divine testimony to the Canon of the Old Testament; see on Luke xvi. 31.

And lest the Jews should ask, When hath the Father borne witness of thee? He refers them to the Scriptures, which they acknowledged to be from God. But observe, He commends the Scriptures to them not only for reading, but for diligent search. He did not say Read, but Search; search as for a treasure hidden in the earth. So let us Christians, when we contend with heretics, arm ourselves with weapons from thence. For all Scripture is inspired by God (2 Tim. iii. 16), and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof (or refutation of error), that the man of God may be perfect. (Chrys. Hom. 40, 41.)

— ὑμεῖς δοκεῖτε] 'in them ye think;' but it is a vain imagination if ye merely admire the Scriptures, and read the Scriptures, but do not believe the Scriptures, which testify of Me. (Chrys.) What is the use of searching the Scriptures, if you do not believe in Him of Whom they write? (Cyril.)

40. οὐ θέλετε] If man therefore perishes it is not by God's will, but by his own sin. See 1 Tim. ii. 4. 2 Pet. iii. 9. Ezek. xxxiii. 11.

43. ἐὰν ἄλλος] The Jews rejected the true Messiah, and now more than sixty False Messiahs have arisen among them from time to time, who have come in their own name, and whom they have received. (Bengel.)

The Fathers were generally of opinion, grounded on this passage, that Antichrist would be received by the Jews.

44. παρὰ τοῦ μόνου Θεοῦ] From the One Only God (1 Tim. i. 17).

Lest the Jews should imagine that He was contravening their Law which says (Deut. vi. 4), "the Lord our God is One Lord," because He had spoken of Himself and the Father as Two Persons (vv. 17—23), He here affirms the Divine Unity, and teaches them that they who profess zeal for the ONE GOD do not honour Him aright (see v. 23), unless they honour the Son as they honour the Father. A warning to those who claim for themselves the title of Unitarians, and deny the Divinity of Christ. No one can be said to believe in the Divine Unity who rejects the doctrine of the Trinity.

CH. VI. 1. μετὰ ταῦτα] See on Matt. xiv. 13—21, and cp. Mark vi. 30—44. Luke ix. 10—17. Here all the four Evangelists concur.

St. John by his silence, where he is silent, confirms what had been already said by the other three. Here, where he speaks, he also confirms what they had said by his agreement with it and by adding to it. "Hoc unicum miraculum inter baptismum et passionem Christi," (says Bengel well,) "Johannes unà cum reliquis Evangelistis describit, narrationem eorum hoc ipso confirmans." See above, Introductory Note, pp. 206, 207.

For a summary Review of the contents of this chapter and their connexion, see note at end.

— Τιβεριάδος] "Tiberias erat oppidum Galilææ, ad latus occidentale lacus Genesaret situm, qui hanc ipsam ob caussam lacus Tiberiadis dici solebat, conditum et ita dictum ab Herode tetrarcha, in honorem et memoriam Tiberii Cæsaris, vid. Joseph. Ant. xviii. 3. 3. Relandi Palæstina p. 259 sqq." (Kuin.) Now Tabaria. (Robinson, Pal. iii. 500. Winer, p. 620.)

Cp. John xxi. 1. St. John alone of the Evangelists uses the word Tiberias. Hence an argument arises for the genuineness of chap. xxi.

2. ἑώρων τὰ σημεῖα] which the Evangelist passes by without further description (Chrys., cp. xxi. 25), and because many of them had been related in the other Gospels.

3. τὸ ὄρος] The Mountain Region. See above on Matt. v. 1, and v. 15.

4. πάσχα] And therefore there was an ὄχλος πολὺς going to Jerusalem.

The Passover.—The mention of it is significant here. He was about to work a Miracle—that of the Feeding of the Five Thousand—which was figurative and prophetic of that other feeding, of which He afterwards speaks (vi. 53), and which was to date from the next ensuing Passover, when He who is the true Bread that came down from heaven (as He declares in this chapter, vv. 33. 48. 50) was about to institute the Holy Sacrament of His own Body and Blood, by which He offers to feed all men in all ages and nations of the World, in the Universal Church, even unto the end; and at which Passover He was about to give His Body to be broken and His Blood to be shed on the Cross, by which He gave divine efficacy and virtue to that Sacrament for the preservation of their souls and bodies unto everlasting Life.

See Burgon's Commentary, for some excellent remarks on this chapter.

5. τοὺς ὀφθ. ὁ Ἰησ.] So A, B, D, K, L, M.—Elz. ὁ Ἰ. τ. ὀ.

— ἀγοράσωμεν] So A, B, E, H, L, S, and others. Elz. has ἀγοράσομεν, which would imply an intention of buying.

6. ἔλεγε πειράζων] He puts the question not in order to learn, but to teach the disciple his ignorance. (Chrys., who compares the case of Abraham, Gen. xxii.)

9. παιδάριον ἓν] One person, and he a child; and he has only five loaves; and they of barley; and two fishes, and they small.

— κριθίνους] St. John alone mentions that the loaves were of barley, i. e. of the homeliest kind.

"Panibus hordeaceis apud veteres, homines plerumque vilioris sortis utebantur, v. 2 Regg. vii. 1, 16, 18. Ezech. iv. 12. Pesachim fol iii. 2, Jochanan dixit: hordeum factum est pulchrum. Dixerunt: Nuntia hoc equis et asinis. Seneca ep. 18, non enim jucunda res est aqua, et polenta, et frustum hordeacei panis. Augustus, ut Sueton. V. Aug. c. 24, tradit, cohortes, si quæ cessissent, decimatas hordeo pavit. Frontinus iv. 1, 37, legatum cum ignominiâ dimisit, reliquis ex legionibus hordeum dari jussit. Liv. xxvii. 13, cohortibus, quæ signa amiserant, hordeum dari jussit, v. Wetsten., Lamp." (Kuin.) Cp. Rev. vi. 6, where κριθῆ is contrasted with σῖτος.

The loaves are of barley; yet all eat and are filled. In the eyes of unregenerate reason, the visible elements of the Sacraments are simple and mean, and despised by man—mere 'barley loaves,' brought by the childish simplicity of a παιδάριον. But they who receive them with faith are filled with food from heaven.

ταῦτα τί ἐστιν εἰς τοσούτους; 10 Εἶπε δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Ποιήσατε τοὺς ἀνθρώπους ἀναπεσεῖν· ἦν δὲ χόρτος πολὺς ἐν τῷ τόπῳ· ἀνέπεσον οὖν οἱ ἄνδρες τὸν ἀριθμὸν d 1 Sam. 9. 13. ὡσεὶ πεντακισχίλιοι. 11 d Ἔλαβε δὲ τοὺς ἄρτους ὁ Ἰησοῦς, καὶ εὐχαριστήσας διέδωκε τοῖς μαθηταῖς, οἱ δὲ μαθηταὶ τοῖς ἀνακειμένοις· ὁμοίως καὶ ἐκ τῶν ὀψαρίων ὅσον ἤθελον. 12 Ὡς δὲ ἐνεπλήσθησαν, λέγει τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ, Συναγάγετε τὰ περισσεύσαντα κλάσματα, ἵνα μή τι ἀπόληται. 13 Συνήγαγον οὖν, καὶ ἐγέμισαν δώδεκα κοφίνους κλασμάτων ἐκ τῶν πέντε ἄρτων τῶν κρι-e Deut. 18. 15. Luke 7. 16. & 24. 19. ch. h. 21. & 4. 19. & 7. 40. θίνων, ἃ ἐπερίσσευσε τοῖς βεβρωκόσιν. (50/X) 14 e Οἱ οὖν ἄνθρωποι ἰδόντες ὃ ἐποίησε σημεῖον ὁ Ἰησοῦς, ἔλεγον, Ὅτι οὗτός ἐστιν ἀληθῶς ὁ προφήτης ὁ ἐρχόμενος εἰς τὸν κόσμον. 15 Ἰησοῦς οὖν γνοὺς ὅτι μέλλουσιν ἔρχεσθαι καὶ ἁρπάζειν αὐτὸν, ἵνα ποιήσωσιν αὐτὸν βασιλέα, ἀνεχώρησε πάλιν εἰς τὸ
f Matt. 14. 22. Mark 6. 47. ὄρος αὐτὸς μόνος. (51/IV) 16 f Ὡς δὲ ὀψία ἐγένετο, κατέβησαν οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ ἐπὶ τὴν θάλασσαν· καὶ ἐμβάντες εἰς τὸ πλοῖον ἤρχοντο πέραν τῆς θαλάσσης εἰς Καφαρναούμ. 17 Καὶ σκοτία ἤδη ἐγεγόνει, καὶ οὐκ ἐληλύθει πρὸς αὐτοὺς ὁ Ἰησοῦς· 18 ἥ τε θάλασσα ἀνέμου μεγάλου πνέοντος διηγείρετο. 19 Ἐληλακότες οὖν ὡς σταδίους εἰκοσιπέντε ἢ τριάκοντα θεωροῦσι τὸν Ἰησοῦν περιπατοῦντα ἐπὶ τῆς θαλάσσης, καὶ ἐγγὺς τοῦ πλοίου γινόμενον· καὶ ἐφοβήθησαν. 20 Ὁ δὲ λέγει αὐτοῖς, Ἐγώ εἰμι· μὴ φοβεῖσθε. 21 Ἤθελον οὖν λαβεῖν αὐτὸν εἰς τὸ πλοῖον, καὶ εὐθέως τὸ πλοῖον ἐγένετο ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς εἰς ἣν ὑπῆγον.

— ὀψάρια] A word peculiar to St. John (vi. 9. 11; xxi. 9, 10. 13), dim. from ὄψον. Hence ψαρὶ, the modern Greek word for fish.

"Matth., Marc. et Lucas explicant δύο ἰχθύες. Nempe ὀψάριον, quod ab ὄψον descendit, dicitur omnis cibus, qui pani adjicitur, inprimis coctus et assatus; cùm verò apud veteres magno in pretio essent pisces, eosque assare moris esset, hinc factum est, ut vocabulis ὄψον et ὀψάριον significarentur quoque pisces ut h. l. Hinc etiam interpretes Alexandrini nomen דג, quod aliàs vertunt ἰχθύς, Num. xi. 22, expresserunt ὄψον. Suidas: ὀψάριον· τὸ ἰχθύδιον. Phavorinus: ὄψον· ἱστέον δὲ καὶ ὡς οἱ ὕστερον ἐπὶ μόνου ἰχθύος τὴν λέξιν ὥρισαν—ὅθεν καὶ ὀψάριον. Eustath. in Hom. Il. λ'. p. 814, ὄψον ἁπλῶς φασὶν οἱ παλαιοὶ πᾶν τὸ σύναμα σιτίοις ἐσθιόμενον —ἱστέον δὲ καὶ ὡς οἱ ὕστερον ἐπὶ μόνου ἰχθύος τὴν λέξιν ὥρισαν. Terent. Andr. ii. 2, pusillum obsoni—pisciculos minutos." (Kuin.)

10. ἦν δὲ χόρτος πολὺς ἐν τῷ τόπῳ] There was much grass in the place, and it was green, for it was the season of Spring, the Passover being near. (Theoph.) A beautiful figure also of the "green pastures" (Ps. xxiii. 2), in which Christ feeds His people in the ministry of His Word and Sacraments, where He prepares a Table for them in the wilderness (v. 5).

11. ἔλαβε δὲ τοὺς ἄρτους] Hence we may confute the Marcionites and the Manichæans, who condemn the visible creation, and say that it was made by an Evil Principle. Christ, who is God, might have made bread from nothing; but He designed to show that the creatures are good; for He who is good would never have multiplied that which is evil. (Theoph.)

— εὐχαριστήσας] Cp. v. 23, εὐχαριστήσαντος τοῦ Κυρίου. The other Evangelists use this word in relating the Institution of the Eucharist (Matt. xxvi. 26, 27. Mark xiv. 22. Luke xxii. 19), to which this Miracle was preparatory. See above, v. 4.

— διέδωκε] By the same divine power as that with which He multiplies the ears of corn from the grain sown in the fields, He now multiplies in His own hands the loaves, which were like seed—not indeed committed to the earth, but multiplied by Him who made it. (Aug.) See above, on the Miracle of changing Water to Wine, ii. 11.

13. δώδεκα κοφίνους] See on Matt. xiv. 20; xvi. 9. Why did He not give the fragments to the Multitude, but to the Disciples? In order to teach the Apostles who were to be the teachers of the world. Let us admire not only the greatness of the miracle, but the exact precision of the residue; twelve baskets; neither more nor less according to the number of the Apostles. (Chrys.) We may also see the use of the baskets as a memento of the miracle to the Apostles; and therefore He afterwards refers to them, "How many baskets full took ye up?" (Matt. xvi. 9.)

See above on ii. 6.

This Miracle was also introductory to our Lord's discourse at Capernaum concerning the Holy Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, in which He, the true Bread of Life from Heaven, is ever distributing Himself by the hands of the Apostles, and an Apostolic Ministry, to the hungry and weary multitudes in this "desert place"—the wilderness of this world, in all time, going up to the heavenly Jerusalem to celebrate an everlasting festival.

14. οὗτός ἐστιν ἀληθῶς ὁ προφήτης] They had not yet learnt to acknowledge Him as God. Christ is a Prophet, and an Angel or Messenger, and the Lord of Prophets and of Angels, because He is the Word. (Aug., Alcuin.)

It is a greater thing to rule the world, than to multiply five loaves into food for five thousand; and yet men do not admire and adore and obey Christ, in His continual government of the Universe. We ought not so to regard Christ's miracles, as to confine our eyes to Him on the mountains of earth. He is enthroned King of Kings and Lord of Lords in heaven. (Cp. Aug.)

15. ἔρχεσθαι καὶ ἁρπάζειν—βασιλέα] Christ is a King. His faithful people are His Kingdom, which He has purchased with His precious blood. And hereafter His kingdom will be manifest, and the glory of His saints will appear. But the Disciples and the multitude imagined that He had come into the world then in order to reign over it. This was to take Christ by force and make Him a King. (Aug.)

— ἀνεχώρησε—αὐτὸς μόνος] Christ has gone up by Himself alone to heaven to pray for us; and thence He looks down upon us, struggling in the storms of the world, and rowing in the bark of His Church; and in His own due time, after a trial of our faith and obedience, He will come to us walking on the waves of this world; and will save us when we seem to be perishing in the waterflood.

16. ὀψία] 'afternoon;' but soon succeeded by σκοτία (v. 17).

— ἤρχοντο] 'were on their passage across the Sea.'

17. οὐκ ἐληλύθει—ὁ Ἰησοῦς] Christ in His love leaves His disciples, and is absent from them, even when they are in the sea, and in the storm and in the night; in order to quicken their desire for His presence and aid, and to show His knowledge of their needs, and to prove His power to help them. (Chrys., Cyril.)

19. σταδίους εἰκοσιπέντε ἢ τριάκοντα] The Holy Spirit inspires the Evangelists, but does not annihilate their human faculties, or destroy their personal identity. He reveals to them heavenly things beyond the range of time and space, but leaves them to calculate distances on earth and water by human measurement. Cp. Luke i. 56; iii. 23; ix. 14. 28; xxii. 59. John iv. 6; xix. 39. Acts i. 15; ii. 41; xix. 7, and Lee's Lectures on Inspiration, Lect. i. London, 1854.

— θεωροῦσι τὸν Ἰησοῦν περιπατοῦντα ἐπὶ τῆς θαλάσσης] Our Lord had returned to the mountain, and the disciples were rowing in the storm and in the darkness.

The Ship in which they were was an emblem of the Church. The waves and winds are the troubles that assail her; and the Ship is tossed in the storm.

In proportion as the end of the world approaches, errors will increase, terrors will multiply, iniquity will abound, infidelity will prevail, the light of love will wane and be nearly extinct. The darkness will become more thick; and Jesus does not yet arrive. All this is going on as Time proceeds, and as the world grows old tribulation and calamities increase.

But in due time, Christ, Who is the true light, will come, walking on the waves; that is, treading beneath His feet all the proud swellings and glories of this world. (Aug.)

Moses, as a servant, by the power of God divided the sea; but Christ, as the Lord of all, by His own power walked on the sea. (Theoph.)

20. ἐγώ εἰμι] I am: the Everliving One: Jehovah, the Author of Life.

I am always at hand and never pass by you, therefore be not afraid; but trust in Me. Our Lord allows us to be in trial and danger, to struggle in the storm, to endure for a long time, in order that our patience and perseverance and faith may be proved, and that we may resort to Him Who alone can save us. We are often in darkness and in storms, and the Devil and evil men assail and affright us: but let us listen to Christ's voice, Ἐγώ εἰμι, μὴ φοβεῖσθε, and when human help fails, then divine aid will come. Terrors pass by, but Christ never passes by, He ever says, "It is I." I am He who always am, who ever remains; therefore have faith in Me. And if we are rowing in the Apostolic Ship of the Church, doing our duty there in our respective callings, and if we desire to receive Christ into the Ship, He will not only quell the storm but give us a fair breeze, and we shall soon be at the harbour where we would be—the quiet harbour of heavenly peace. They who are in the Ship are rowing in the storm; i. e. they who labour in the Church, and continue in good works to the end, will receive Christ, and will arrive at the harbour of everlasting life. (Cp. Aug. here.)

(ιβ/χ) 22 Τῇ ἐπαύριον ὁ ὄχλος ὁ ἑστηκὼς πέραν τῆς θαλάσσης, ἰδὼν ὅτι πλοιάριον ἄλλο οὐκ ἦν ἐκεῖ, εἰ μὴ ἓν ἐκεῖνο εἰς ὃ ἐνέβησαν οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ, καὶ ὅτι οὐ συνεισῆλθε τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἰς τὸ πλοιάριον, ἀλλὰ μόνοι οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ ἀπῆλθον· 23 ἄλλα δὲ ἦλθε πλοιάρια ἐκ Τιβεριάδος ἐγγὺς τοῦ τόπου ὅπου ἔφαγον τὸν ἄρτον, εὐχαριστήσαντος τοῦ Κυρίου· 24 ὅτε οὖν εἶδεν ὁ ὄχλος ὅτι Ἰησοῦς οὐκ ἔστιν ἐκεῖ, οὐδὲ οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ, ἐνέβησαν αὐτοὶ εἰς τὰ πλοῖα, καὶ ἦλθον εἰς Καφαρναοὺμ ζητοῦντες τὸν Ἰησοῦν. 25 Καὶ εὑρόντες αὐτὸν πέραν τῆς θαλάσσης εἶπον αὐτῷ, Ῥαββί, πότε ὧδε γέγονας;

21. ἤθελον λαβεῖν] It is said by some Interpreters (e. g. Meyer here), that this is irreconcilable with the narrative of the other Evangelists, who say that our Lord was received into the Ship (see Matt. xiv. 32. Mark vi. 54), whereas it is alleged that St. John says here that they were desirous to receive Him, but, before He could enter the ship, the ship was at the shore (v. 21).

But this allegation rests on an erroneous translation of St. John's words, ἤθελον λαβεῖν. They do not mean, that they desired to receive Him and did not receive Him; but the sense is, they were willing and desirous to receive Him, and did receive Him; and then, after they had received Him, the ship was at land, by the divine power of Him Whom they had received.

The word ἤθελον is to be explained by what St. John knew, but did not record, because it had been related by the former Evangelists.

At first they were panic struck, thinking He was a Spirit (Matt. xiv. 26), and cried out for fear (Mark vi. 49), and then they were not willing to receive Him. But Peter went on the water and was upheld by Christ (Matt. xiv. 28). Then they were no longer afraid, and were willing and desirous to receive Him. On this use of θέλω, see on viii. 44.

22. πλοιάριον] A small ship; the greater the danger.

23. ἐγγύς] i. e. to the neighbourhood of the place, &c.

The ἄλλα πλοιάρια are mentioned to explain how the people came to Capernaum.

— εὐχαριστήσαντος τοῦ Κυρίου] Observe, εὐχαριστήσαντος and Κυρίου, both words appropriate here, in connexion with the Eucharist or Lord's Supper (εὐχαριστία, δεῖπνον Κυριακόν). The word Κύριος is not often used in the Gospels when speaking of Christ; and, when it is used, it has a special significance. Cp. on Luke ii. 9; x. 1.

25. Ῥαββί, πότε ὧδε γέγονας;] When hast thou come, and how art Thou now, here? Jesus had come on the sea to the ship, and had brought the ship to land.

Our Lord had fed the multitude with bread, in which He typified the distribution of the Bread of Life in the Holy Eucharist, even unto the end of the world; and He had thus prepared His hearers for His discourse on the Holy Eucharist in the Synagogue at Capernaum. How He is present there, Reason cannot understand. And where Reason is weak, there Faith is strong. He gives no answer to the question concerning His presence there—Lord, when camest thou hither? He was there present, to be seen and heard; but as to the time and manner of His presence, which was miraculous, He says nothing. "His way is in the sea, and His paths in the great Waters, and His footsteps are not known." (Ps. lxxvii. 19.)

And now, by walking on the sea, invisibly to the eyes of the multitude, and suddenly presenting Himself to them in the synagogue at Capernaum, in a manner unintelligible to them, He instructs us, that though He comes by Water in Holy Baptism, and is present in the Holy Eucharist, the manner of His presence is not to be scrutinized by us. That He is present, Faith believes.

It is for us to receive Christ joyfully into our hearts in the Holy Sacraments, but not to speculate inquisitively into the time and manner in which He is there present.

See Hooker, V. lxvii., whose words are as follows: "All things considered and compared with that success which truth hath hitherto had by so bitter conflicts with errors in this point, shall I wish that men would more give themselves to meditate with silence what we have by the Sacrament, and less to dispute of the manner how?

"If any man suppose that this were too great stupidity and dullness, let us see whether the Apostles of our Lord themselves have not done the like.

"It appeareth by many examples, that they, of their own disposition, were very scrupulous and inquisitive,—yea, in other cases of less importance and less difficulty, always apt to move questions. How cometh it to pass that so few words of so high a mystery being uttered, they receive with gladness the gift of Christ, and make no show of doubt or scruple? The reason hereof is not dark to them who have any thing at all observed how the powers of the mind are wont to stir, when that which we infinitely long for presenteth itself above and besides expectation. Curious and intricate speculations do hinder, they abate, they quench such inflamed notions of delight and joy as divine graces use to raise when extraordinarily they are present. The mind, therefore, feeling present joy, is always marvellous unwilling to admit any other cogitation, and in that case casteth off those disputes whereunto the intellectual part at other times easily draweth.

"A manifest effect whereof may be noted, if we compare with our Lord's disciples (John xx. 20) the people that are said in John vi. 24 to have gone after Him to Capernaum. These leaving Him on the one side of the sea of Tiberias, and finding Him again as soon as themselves by ship were arrived on the contrary side, whither they knew that by ship He came not, and by land the journey was longer than, according to the time, He could have travelled,—as they wondered, so they asked also, 'Rabbi, when camest thou hither?'

"The disciples, when Christ appeared to them in far more strange and miraculous manner, moved no question, but rejoiced greatly in what they saw (John xx. 20). For why? The one sought and beheld only that in Christ which they knew was more than natural; but yet their affection was not rapt therewith through any great extraordinary gladness. The other, when they looked on Christ, were not ignorant that they saw the well-spring of their own everlasting felicity. The one, because they enjoyed not, disputed; the other disputed not, because they enjoyed.

"If, then, the presence of Christ with them did so much move, judge what their thoughts and affections were at the time of this new presentation of Christ, not before their eyes, but within their souls. They had learned before that His flesh and blood are the true cause of eternal life; that this they are not by the bare force of their own substance, but through the dignity and worth of His Person, which offered them up by way of sacrifice for the life of the whole world, and doth make them still effectual thereunto; finally, that to us they are life in particular, by being particularly received.

"Thus much they knew, although as yet they understood not perfectly to what effect or issue the same would come,—till at the length, being assembled for no other cause which they could imagine but to have eaten the Passover only that Moses appointeth, when they saw their Lord and Master, with hands and eyes lifted up to heaven, first bless, and consecrate for the endless good of all generations till the world's end, the chosen elements of bread and wine,—which elements made for ever the instruments of life by virtue of His divine benediction, they being the first that were commanded to receive from Him,—the first which were warranted by His promise, that not only unto them at the present time, but to whomsoever they and their successors after them did duly administer the same, those mysteries should serve as conducts of life and conveyances of His body and blood unto them, was it possible they should hear that voice,—'Take eat, this is My body; drink ye all of this, this is My blood;' possible, that doing what was required, and believing what was promised, the same should have present effect in them, and not fill them with a kind of fearful admiration at the heaven which they saw in themselves?

"They had at that time a sea of comfort and joy to wade in; and we by that which they did are taught that this heavenly food is given for the satisfying of our empty souls, and not for the exercising of our curious and subtile wits.

"If we doubt what those admirable words may import, let him be our teacher for the meaning of Christ to whom Christ was Himself a Schoolmaster. Let our Lord's Apostle be His interpreter, content we ourselves with His explication (1 Cor. x. 16),—My body, the communion of My body; My blood, the communion of My blood. Is there any thing more expedite, clear, and easy, than that as Christ is termed our life, so the parts of this sacrament are His body and blood, for that they are so to us, who, receiving them, receive that by them which they are termed? The bread and cup are His body and blood, because they are causes instrumental upon the receipt whereof the participation of His body and blood ensueth; for that which produceth any certain effect is not vainly or improperly said to be that very effect whereunto it tendeth. Every cause is in the effect which groweth from it. Our souls and bodies, quickened to eternal life, are effects, the cause whereof is the Person of Christ; His body and blood are the true well-spring out of which this life floweth. So that His body and blood are in that very subject whereunto they minister life, not only by effect or operation, even as the influence of the heavens is in plants, beasts, men, and in every thing which they

26 Ἀπεκρίθη αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς καὶ εἶπεν, Ἀμὴν ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ζητεῖτέ με, οὐχ ὅτι εἴδετε σημεῖα, ἀλλ' ὅτι ἐφάγετε ἐκ τῶν ἄρτων καὶ ἐχορτάσθητε.
g ch. 1. 32. & 4. 14. & 5. 37. & vv. 40, 54. & 18. 8. Matt. 3. 17. & 17. 5. Mark 1. 11. & 9. 7. Luke 3. 22. & 9. 35. 2 Pet. 1. 17.
27 gΕργάζεσθε μὴ τὴν βρῶσιν τὴν ἀπολλυμένην, ἀλλὰ τὴν βρῶσιν τὴν μένουσαν εἰς ζωὴν αἰώνιον, ἣν ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ὑμῖν δώσει· τοῦτον γὰρ ὁ Πατὴρ ἐσφράγισεν ὁ Θεός. 28 Εἶπον οὖν πρὸς αὐτόν, Τί ποιοῦμεν, ἵνα ἐργαζώμεθα τὰ ἔργα τοῦ Θεοῦ; 29 hἈπεκρίθη ὁ Ἰησοῦς καὶ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Τοῦτό ἐστι h 1 John 3. 23.
τὸ ἔργον τοῦ Θεοῦ, ἵνα πιστεύσητε εἰς ὃν ἀπέστειλεν ἐκεῖνος. (53/IV) 30 iΕἶπον i Matt. 12. 38. & 16. 1. Mark 8. 11. Luke 11. 29. 1 Cor. 1. 22.
οὖν αὐτῷ, Τί οὖν ποιεῖς σὺ σημεῖον, ἵνα ἴδωμεν καὶ πιστεύσωμέν σοι; τί ἐργάζῃ; (54/X) 31 kΟἱ πατέρες ἡμῶν τὸ μάννα ἔφαγον ἐν τῇ ἐρήμῳ, καθώς ἐστι k Exod. 16. 4, 15. Num. 11. 7. Ps. 78. 24. Wisd. 16. 20. 1 Cor. 10. 3. γεγραμμένον, Ἄρτον ἐκ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ ἔδωκεν αὐτοῖς φαγεῖν. 32 Εἶπεν οὖν αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Ἀμὴν ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, Οὐ Μωϋσῆς δέδωκεν ὑμῖν τὸν ἄρτον ἐκ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ· ἀλλ' ὁ Πατήρ μου δίδωσιν ὑμῖν τὸν ἄρτον ἐκ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ τὸν ἀληθινόν. 33 Ὁ γὰρ ἄρτος τοῦ Θεοῦ ἐστιν ὁ καταβαίνων ἐκ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ, καὶ ζωὴν διδοὺς τῷ κόσμῳ. 34 Εἶπον οὖν πρὸς αὐτόν, Κύριε, l Isa. 55. 1. ch. 4. 14. & 7. 37.
πάντοτε δὸς ἡμῖν τὸν ἄρτον τοῦτον. (55/I) 35 lεἶπε δὲ αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Ἐγώ εἰμι ὁ ἄρτος τῆς ζωῆς· ὁ ἐρχόμενος πρὸς μὲ οὐ μὴ πεινάσῃ, καὶ ὁ πιστεύων εἰς ἐμὲ οὐ μὴ διψήσῃ πώποτε. 36 Ἀλλ' εἶπον ὑμῖν, ὅτι καὶ ἑωράκατέ με, καὶ οὐ πιστεύετε. (56/X) 37 Πᾶν ὃ δίδωσί μοι ὁ Πατὴρ, πρὸς ἐμὲ m Matt. 26. 39. Mark 14. 36. Luke 22. 42. ch. 4. 34. & 5. 30.
ἥξει· καὶ τὸν ἐρχόμενον πρός με οὐ μὴ ἐκβάλω ἔξω· (57/I) 38 mὅτι καταβέβηκα ἐκ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ, οὐχ ἵνα ποιῶ τὸ θέλημα τὸ ἐμὸν, ἀλλὰ τὸ θέλημα τοῦ πέμn ch. 10. 28. & 17. 12. & 18. 9.
ψαντός με. 39 nΤοῦτο δέ ἐστι τὸ θέλημα τοῦ πέμψαντός με Πατρὸς, ἵνα πᾶν ὃ δέδωκέ μοι μὴ ἀπολέσω ἐξ αὐτοῦ, ἀλλὰ ἀναστήσω αὐτὸ ἐν τῇ ἐσχάτῃ ἡμέρᾳ.
o ch. 3. 15, 16. (58/X) 40 oΤοῦτο γάρ ἐστι τὸ θέλημα τοῦ πέμψαντός με, ἵνα πᾶς ὁ θεωρῶν τὸν Υἱὸν καὶ πιστεύων εἰς αὐτὸν ἔχῃ ζωὴν αἰώνιον, καὶ ἀναστήσω αὐτὸν ἐγὼ quicken, but also by a far more divine and mystical kind of union which maketh us one with Him, even as He and the Father are one."

---

26. ἀπεκρίθη αὐτ. ὁ Ἰησοῦς καὶ εἶπεν] He who had retired to the mountains now preaches to the crowd. After the mystery of the miracle He delivers a Sermon; and satiates with doctrine the souls of those whose bodies He had refreshed with food. Thus He sets an example to man especially, to teachers, that they ought to be instant in preaching the word; as He had set an example before, by declining earthly glory, and by refusing to be made a king. (Aug., Alcuin.)

— ζητεῖτέ με—ὅτι ἐφάγετε] How few seek Jesus for the sake of Jesus! (Aug.)

27. ἐργάζεσθε μή] Ἐργάζεσθε, work, for labour is necessary; but work not for the meat that perisheth.

Ye seek me carnally, and not spiritually; ye seek temporal sustenance, and I have given you bodily sustenance, in order that ye may learn to seek that sustenance which nourishes the soul unto eternal life. (Chrys., Aug.)

— ἣν ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ὑμῖν δώσει] When you receive the Lord's Supper from the hands of Christ's minister, look with the eye of faith not at him whom you see, but at Him whom you do not see. The Priest is the dispenser of the food, but not its maker. The Son of Man gives Himself in it to us, that we may dwell in Him and He in us. And do not imagine that this Son of Man is like other sons of men; for Him hath God the Father sealed, and He contains in Himself the fullness of God Who has sealed Him to be the image and impress of Himself. (Heb. i. 1, 2. Cp. Hilary, de Trin. viii.)

29. τοῦτό ἐ. τὸ ἔργον τοῦ Θεοῦ, ἵνα πιστεύσητε] It is one thing to believe Christ, and another to believe in Christ. The Devils believe Christ, but not in Him. We believe Paul, but not in him. To believe in Him is to love Him by faith, by faith to be incorporated into Him. This is the faith which God requires of us, the faith which worketh by love. (Gal. v. 6. Cp. on Matt. xviii. 6.)

There are works which seem to be good, and yet are not good, because they are not done with an eye to Him, as an end, from Whom all good comes, for "Christ is the end of the law to every one that believeth" (Rom. x. 4); therefore Christ does not separate works from faith, but says that faith is the work of God. (Aug.)

31. οἱ πατέρες ἡμῶν] 'Our fathers;' more than half a million of persons ate manna supplied miraculously for forty years; Thou hast only fed 5000 once, and not from heaven, but from earth.

— τὸ μάννα] 'the manna.' See v. 49.

32. οὐ Μωϋσῆς δέδωκεν ὑμῖν τὸν ἄρτον ἐκ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ] It is not Moses who has given the bread, the true bread from Heaven; i.e. the true bread was not given in his days to your fathers: the bread which he gave was "meat that perisheth," and only typical of the true bread (1 Cor. x. 3), which Moses could not give; it could not be given but by Me alone, and it is now given by Me.

On this saying, cp. Ignatius, ad Rom. 7, who seems to have had these words in his mind: οὐχ ἡδομαι τροφῇ φθορᾶς οὐδὲ ἡδοναῖς τοῦ βίου τούτου· Ἄρτον Θεοῦ θέλω, ὅς ἐστι σὰρξ Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ, τοῦ υἱοῦ τοῦ Θεοῦ, τοῦ ἐκ γένους Δαβὶδ, καὶ πόμα θέλω, τὸ αἷμα αὐτοῦ, ὅ ἐστιν ἀγάπη ἄφθαρτος.

33. ὁ γὰρ ἄρτος τοῦ Θεοῦ ἐστιν ὁ καταβαίνων] After the passage of the Red Sea, which is a figure of Baptism, the people were fed with manna, which is the figure of Christ's body and blood, Who is the Living Bread that came down from Heaven. (Aug.)

So after our Lord has walked invisibly on the sea, the type of His presence in Baptism, He speaks of the heavenly Manna which He gives to those who have been baptized in the other Sacrament. Thus Christ's passage over the sea connects His two Discourses on the two Sacraments,—that with Nicodemus and that at Capernaum.

He is the true Manna. The word Manna signifies "what is it?" and every one may well ask with wonder concerning this divine Manna, what is He? How is He the Son of God and the Son of Man? "Who shall declare His generation?"

— καταβαίνων] coming down of its own accord (see v. 38), and not for the food of one people in the wilderness for forty years, but for the world.

35. πρὸς—εἰς] Observe the difference of these two prepositions. We must come to (πρὸς) Christ, and be incorporated into (εἰς) Him by faith. Cp. v. 37.

— οὐ μὴ πεινάσει—διψήσει] Not πεινάσει—διψήσει, the reading of a few MSS. and some editions. See on iv. 14. He does not say, they will not hunger or thirst, but they shall not. He will preserve them from it. He only can.

37. οὐ μὴ ἐκβάλω ἔξω] He who cometh to Me is incorporated with Me, and becomes like Me, and therefore will not do his own will, but God's will; and so will never be cast out, for that which is cast out of Heaven is Pride. (Aug.)

38. καταβέβηκα ἐκ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ, οὐχ ἵνα ποιῶ τὸ θέλημα τὸ ἐμόν] In order that Pride (the root of all our diseases) might be cured, the Son of God came down from heaven and humbled himself. Therefore, O man, why art thou proud? The Son of God was made humble for thy sake. Perhaps thou mayest be ashamed to imitate a man in humility; imitate God, who humbled Himself here in the commendation of humility. I came not to do mine own will. Humility does the will of God. (Aug. Cp. Greg. Nazian. p. 548.)

39. πᾶν—μή] 'that I should lose nothing;' πᾶν μή, a Hebraism, לֹא (lo-col). Exod. xii. 43. Lev. iv. 2. Matt. xxiv. 22. Luke i. 37. (Vorst. Hebr. 531.)

40. τοῦτο γάρ] So A, B, C, D, K, L.—τοῦτο δέ. Elz.

— ὁ θεωρῶν] Hebr. חָזָה (chazah).—θεωρῶ, used by the LXX for 'to understand.' See Rosenmüller.

τῇ ἐσχάτῃ ἡμέρᾳ. (59/I) 41 Ἐγόγγυζον οὖν οἱ Ἰουδαῖοι περὶ αὐτοῦ ὅτι εἶπεν, Ἐγώ εἰμι ὁ ἄρτος ὁ καταβὰς ἐκ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ, 42 p καὶ ἔλεγον, Οὐχ οὗτός ἐστιν Ἰησοῦς ὁ υἱὸς Ἰωσὴφ, οὗ ἡμεῖς οἴδαμεν τὸν πατέρα καὶ τὴν μητέρα; πῶς οὖν λέγει οὗτος, Ὅτι ἐκ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ καταβέβηκα; (60/X) 43 Ἀπεκρίθη οὖν ὁ Ἰησοῦς καὶ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Μὴ γογγύζετε μετ' ἀλλήλων· 44 οὐδεὶς δύναται ἐλθεῖν πρός με, ἐὰν μὴ ὁ Πατὴρ ὁ πέμψας με ἑλκύσῃ αὐτόν· καὶ ἐγὼ ἀναστήσω αὐτὸν ἐν τῇ ἐσχάτῃ ἡμέρᾳ. 45 q Ἔστι γεγραμμένον ἐν τοῖς προφήταις, Καὶ ἔσονται πάντες διδακτοὶ Θεοῦ. Πᾶς οὖν ὁ ἀκούσας παρὰ τοῦ Πατρὸς καὶ μαθὼν ἔρχεται πρὸς μέ. (61/III) 46 r Οὐχ ὅτι τὸν Πατέρα τὶς ἑώρακεν, εἰ μὴ ὁ ὢν παρὰ τοῦ Θεοῦ, οὗτος ἑώρακε τὸν Πατέρα. (62/X) 47 s Ἀμὴν ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ὁ πιστεύων εἰς ἐμὲ ἔχει ζωὴν αἰώνιον. 48 Ἐγώ εἰμι ὁ ἄρτος τῆς ζωῆς. (63/I) 49 t Οἱ πατέρες ὑμῶν ἔφαγον τὸ μάννα ἐν τῇ ἐρήμῳ καὶ ἀπέθανον· (64/X) 50 οὗτός ἐστιν ὁ ἄρτος ὁ ἐκ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ καταβαίνων, ἵνα τὶς ἐξ αὐτοῦ φάγῃ καὶ μὴ ἀποθάνῃ. (65/I) 51 u Ἐγώ εἰμι ὁ ἄρτος ὁ ζῶν, ὁ ἐκ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ καταβάς· ἐάν τις φάγῃ ἐκ τούτου τοῦ ἄρτου, ζήσεται εἰς τὸν αἰῶνα. (66/X) 52 Καὶ ὁ ἄρτος δὲ ὃν ἐγὼ δώσω ἡ σάρξ μου ἐστὶν, ἣν ἐγὼ δώσω ὑπὲρ τῆς τοῦ κόσμου

p Matt. 13. 55. Mark 6. 3. Luke 4. 22.

q Isa. 54. 13. Jer. 31. 34. Heb. 8. 10. & 10. 16.

r ch. 1. 18. Matt. 11. 27. Luke 10. 22.

s ch. 3. 16, 18, 36.

t Exod. 16. 15. Numb. 11. 7. Ps. 78. 24. 1 Cor. 10. 5. Heb. 3. 16, 19.

u ch. 3. 13.

---

41. ἐγόγγυζον οὖν οἱ Ἰουδαῖοι] for they were estranged from that living bread that came down from heaven, and had not learned to feel hunger for it. That bread seeks for the craving of the inner man, and satisfies it. (Aug.)

44. οὐδεὶς δύναται ἐλθεῖν πρός με, ἐὰν μὴ ὁ Πατὴρ ὁ πέμψας με ἑλκύσῃ αὐτόν] ἑλκύω is used by LXX for Hebrew מָשַׁךְ (mashak), which does not imply violence, as Jer. xxxi. 3. (Rosenmüller.)

A tribute to the power of Divine Grace. No one can come except He is drawn. If thou dost not desire to err, do not seek to determine whom God draws, and whom He does not draw; nor why He draws one man and not another. But if thou thyself art not drawn by God, pray to Him that thou mayest be drawn. (Aug.)

God is ready to draw every man, for He says, It is written in the Prophets, they shall all be taught of God (Isa. liv. 13). And, again, every one that hath heard and learned of the Father cometh to me (John vi. 45), and Him that cometh to me I will in no wise cast out (John vi. 37). Besides, He says, that He will draw all, πάντας ἑλκύσω, John xii. 32. (Aug.)

This saying does not deny our freewill, which is the error of the Manichæans, but proves our need of divine grace; it does not say that the unwilling comes, but that he comes who receives grace; and we have a Teacher who is willing to give His blessing to all (as is evident from v. 45), and pours out His heavenly teaching upon all. (Chrys.)

God draws all who are willing to be drawn; but He does not draw others; as the magnet draws not every thing, but it draws iron. (Theoph.)

You are not drawn against your will. God draws by love, not by force (Aug.), but "by the cords of a man," Hos. xi. 4.

— ἐν τῇ ἰσχ. ἡ.] So A, C, D, E, G, H, K, L, S, T, V, and other MSS. Elz. omits ἐν.

45. ἔσονται πάντες διδακτοὶ Θεοῦ] On the phrase διδακτοὶ Θεοῦ, see Vorst. Hebr. pp. 408, 409. Cf. θεοδίδακτοι, 1 Thess. iv. 9.

I may utter words that sound in your ears, but unless your minds are enlightened by God, how can you know me? (Aug., Chrys.)

— ἀκούσας] This appears to be the right reading,—ἀκούων has been adopted from a few MSS. by some editors.

— πᾶς ὁ ἀκούσας—ἔρχεται] Where hearing is, there is obedience; for faith is not of necessity, but by persuasion. And that understanding, by way of assistance, rather than of force, which is in Christ, is supplied from the Father. For the truth of Christian doctrine teaches that the αὐτεξούσιον καὶ αὐτὸ προαίρετον of the human soul is preserved entire. (Cyril.)

48. ἐγώ εἰμι ὁ ἄρτος τῆς ζωῆς] The multitudes followed Him (in consequence of the loaves) seeking food for their bodies, and remembering the manna which had been given to their fathers; but our Lord teaches them that these things were figures emblematic of the Truth now present to their eyes, and therefore proceeds to speak of spiritual food, "I am the bread of life." He speaks here of the mystical communion of His own Body. (Chrys., Theoph.)

Since Christ is the bread of life, and except we eat His flesh and drink His blood, we have no life in us; let those take heed who have been baptized, and yet rarely resort to Church to receive the Holy Communion, under a pretence of fear and reverence, and so exclude themselves from eternal life. This pretext, though it seems to be religious, is a trap and snare. Rather, they ought to strive to be cleansed from sin, and amend their lives. (Cyril.)

Satan has various devices, and when he has tempted us to sin, he then makes us shrink from divine grace. But let us break his chains, and shake off his tyrannical yoke and serve God, and come to divine and heavenly grace, and approach the Holy Communion of Christ. So we shall conquer Satan, and be partakers of the Divine Nature, and rise to life and immortality. (Cyril.)

50. οὗτος] i. e. 'I myself.' See Matt. xvi. 18, and below, v. 58.

— ἵνα τὶς ἐξ αὐτοῦ φάγῃ καὶ μὴ ἀποθάνῃ] Moses ate the manna, and many who pleased God ate it, and did not die, because they received the visible food spiritually, and tasted it spiritually, that they might be satiated spiritually. We also now receive visible food. But the Sacrament is one thing, and the Virtue of the Sacrament is another; for many receive at the altar, and perish in receiving. Whence the Apostle says (1 Cor. xi. 29), "He that eateth and drinketh unworthily, eateth and drinketh damnation." To eat this heavenly food spiritually, is to wash our hands in innocency (Ps. lxxiii. 12), and so to come to the altar: though we sin daily, let not our sin be deadly; and before we come to the altar let us reflect on the prayer, "Forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us." If you forgive, you will be forgiven. Come, then, with confidence. If any man eateth of this bread he shall not die; that is, if he eats, what belongs to the Virtue of the Sacrament, not what belongs to the visible Sacrament; if he feeds upon it internally, not externally; feeds upon it in his heart, not only presses upon it with his teeth. (Aug.)

52. ὁ ἄρτος δὲ ὃν ἐγὼ δώσω] He thus shows His power and freewill. He was crucified; He was given by His Father, but He gave Himself. (Theoph.) Our Lord gave this Bread when He delivered the Sacrament of His Body and Blood to His disciples, and when He offered Himself to the Father on the Altar of the Cross. (Bede.)

I die for all, that I may quicken all by My death; and I offer my flesh as a ransom (ἀντίλυτρον) for the flesh of all. Death will die in My death; and the nature of Man which has fallen in Adam will arise again in Me. I am therefore made like you, of the seed of Abraham. Death could not otherwise have been destroyed, except Christ had given Himself a ransom for all. As the Psalmist says, "Sacrifice and burnt-offering thou wouldest not, but a body thou hast prepared Me. Then said I, Lo, I come" (Ps. xl. 9). "He bore our sins in His own body on the cross, and by His stripes we are healed" (1 Pet. ii. 24). Therefore He says (John xvii. 19), I sanctify Myself, that is, I consecrate Myself, and offer Myself as an Immaculate Victim, for the life of all. And this redemption is effected by the Union of the two Natures. For after that the Life-giving Word of God made His dwelling in our Flesh, He transformed it to His own Virtue, that is, to Life, and, by the ineffable mystery of His union with us, quickened us and made us to be like what He is in Himself. Therefore the body of Christ quickens those who partake in it. (Cyril.)

The Fathers combat the Eutychian Heresy by arguments drawn from what our Lord says concerning the Lord's Supper.

The Sacraments which we receive of the Body and Blood of Christ are a divine thing, because through them we are made partakers of the divine nature. And yet there does not cease to exist in them the substance of bread and wine. And an image and similitude of the Body and Blood of Christ is seen and solemnized in the celebration of these mysteries; and we must have the same belief concerning Christ our Lord as we profess concerning His image (in the Sacrament), viz. that as the elements pass into a divine substance, by the operation of the Holy Spirit, and yet remain in the properties of their own nature, so they show that the principal mystery, whose efficacy and virtue they truly represent to us—namely, Christ—remains One, because entire and true; while these things (i. e. the two natures), of which Christ consists, remain in their true properties. (Gelasius, Bp. of Rome, A.D. 492—496, 'De duabus naturis in Christo.' Bibl. Patr. Lat. v. p. 671.) The bread and wine even after consecration lose not their own nature, but remain in their ζωῆς. [52] Ἐμάχοντο οὖν πρὸς ἀλλήλους οἱ Ἰουδαῖοι λέγοντες, Πῶς δύναται

y Matt. 26. 26. 1 Cor. 11. 23, &c. οὗτος ἡμῖν δοῦναι τὴν σάρκα φαγεῖν; [53] y Εἶπεν οὖν αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Ἀμὴν ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ἐὰν μὴ φάγητε τὴν σάρκα τοῦ Υἱοῦ τοῦ ἀνθρώπου, καὶ πίητε z ch. 4. 14. αὐτοῦ τὸ αἷμα, οὐκ ἔχετε ζωὴν ἐν ἑαυτοῖς. [54] z Ὁ τρώγων μου τὴν σάρκα καὶ πίνων μου τὸ αἷμα ἔχει ζωὴν αἰώνιον, καὶ ἐγὼ ἀναστήσω αὐτὸν τῇ ἐσχάτῃ ἡμέρᾳ· (ξ΄) [55] ἡ γὰρ σάρξ μου ἀληθῶς ἐστι βρῶσις, καὶ τὸ αἷμά μου ἀληθῶς ἐστι πόσις. (ξ΄ χ΄) [56] Ὁ τρώγων μου τὴν σάρκα καὶ πίνων μου τὸ αἷμα ἐν ἐμοὶ μένει, κἀγὼ ἐν αὐτῷ. [57] Καθὼς ἀπέστειλέ με ὁ ζῶν Πατὴρ, κἀγὼ ζῶ διὰ τὸν a ch. 3. 13. Πατέρα· καὶ ὁ τρώγων με κἀκεῖνος ζήσεται δι' ἐμέ. [58] a Οὗτός ἐστιν ὁ ἄρτος ὁ ἐκ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ καταβάς· οὐ καθὼς ἔφαγον οἱ πατέρες ὑμῶν τὸ μάννα καὶ ἀπέθανον. Ὁ τρώγων τοῦτον τὸν ἄρτον ζήσεται εἰς τὸν αἰῶνα. [59] Ταῦτα εἶπεν ἐν συναγωγῇ διδάσκων ἐν Καφαρναούμ.

[60] Πολλοὶ οὖν ἀκούσαντες ἐκ τῶν μαθητῶν αὐτοῦ εἶπον, Σκληρός ἐστιν οὗτος proper substance, shape, and form. (Theodoret, Eranist. iv. p. 85.) See Bp. Pearson on the Creed, Art. iii. p. 306, who says, "hence it is observable that the Church in those days understood no such doctrine as that of Transubstantiation."

---

— ἡ σάρξ μου ἐστίν] That is called flesh, which flesh does not comprehend, and the more so because it is called flesh. They who heard it shuddered at that saying, and thought it to be impossible. But the faithful people of Christ know the body of Christ, if they themselves take heed to be His Body. Let them be indeed the body of Christ, if they desire to live by the Spirit of Christ. The body of Christ cannot live but by the Spirit of Christ. Hence the Apostle says, "we are one bread and one body" (1 Cor. x. 17).

O Sacrament of Piety! O Symbol of Unity! O Bond of Charity! He who desires to have life has a place where he may have it, and a source whence he may receive it. Let him draw near, let him have faith, let him be in the body of Christ, that he may derive life from it. And let him be a living and sound member in the body; let him cleave to the body; let him live from God to God; let him now labour on earth that he may reign in heaven. (Aug.)

52. πῶς δύναται] A like question to that of Nicodemus, when Christ spoke to him of the other Sacrament (John iii. 9). "How," they ask, "can He give us His flesh to eat?" How did He feed the five thousand? The answer is the same in both cases—by His divine Power. (Cp. Chrys.)

53, 54. ἐὰν μὴ φάγητε] A form of speech parallel to that used prophetically by Christ to Nicodemus concerning the other Sacrament (John iii. 5).

Observe also that the ἐὰν μὴ is, in the two cases, introduced by Ἀμὴν ἀμὴν (used twice in both cases, iii. 3. 5; vi. 47. 53), and makes the parallel more solemn.

Our Lord did not as yet explain how they were to eat His flesh and drink His blood; for they were not as yet ripe for the intelligence of this mystery. But He tells them what inestimable blessings were to be gained from that eating and drinking, and so quickens a more vehement desire in their minds to believe it. He would first teach them to believe Him, and would afterwards reward their faith by fruition of Himself. He afterwards explained His words by saying, "Take eat, this is My body," and "Drink ye all of this."

Let all hearken to Christ, who says, "Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of Man ye have no life in you." They cannot taste that life which is in holiness and felicity, who do not receive the Son of Man in the Holy Communion.

For Christ is the Life, being generated from the Living Father of all. And His Human Body is Life-giving, in that it is united to the Life-giving Word in one Person. For, after the Incarnation, the two natures of God and Man were indissolubly joined in Him. Wherefore by communion in His Body we have life in ourselves, being united to that Body as it is united to the Word Who dwells in it. (Cyril.)

The mention of blood here as well as body contains a prophecy, i. e. that our Lord would not die 'siccâ morte, sed cruentâ,' i. e. be slain and pierced, and that by this body slain and blood shed He would give life to the world. Men may have temporal life without eating that bread and drinking that blood, but eternal life they cannot have. By this food and drink He means the communion of His own Body. Our Lord therefore presented His Body and Blood in those things which are made of many into one. For the one element (the Bread, ἄρτος, or loaf) is made of many grains; the other (the Wine) flows together into one from many grapes. The Sacrament of this Unity of Christ's Body and Blood is prepared in some places daily; and in other places at stated intervals, on the Lord's Table; and by some it is received unto life, and by others it is received unto death. But the thing itself, of which it is a Sacrament, is unto life to every man, and is not to death to any one that partakes of it. (Aug.)

Before the bread is consecrated, we call it bread; but when by the ministry of the priest the divine grace sanctifies the bread, it is reputed worthy to be called the body of Christ, although the nature of bread remains in it. (Chrys., as is generally supposed, ad Cæsar. ap. Routh, Script. Eccl. ii. 126, ed. 1840, where other ancient testimonies to the same effect may be seen.) See above, on v. 52.

54. τρώγων] There is a gradual ascent in the language of this Discourse, from one spiritual altitude to another. Each sentence in succession is an exercise of faith, and invites it to climb up higher, and to surmount new difficulties.

First He speaks of ἄρτος, bread, what He Himself had just multiplied, to feed the bodies of the five thousand, and so connects His Sermon with the Miracle (v. 26). Then of bread from heaven (v. 32); then of the bread of God (v. 33); then of the bread of life (v. 35); then of living bread (v. 51); and then He says that this is Himself (v. 51); and then, that it is His flesh (v. 51); and then, that it is necessary to eat (φαγεῖν) that flesh and drink His blood (v. 53); and then He adopts a new word for eating—a remarkable one—τρώγω. Here, in this word, is the climax of difficulty. It is repeated no less than four times (vv. 54. 56—58) in relation to this subject; and it only occurs in two other places of the N. T.—John xiii. 18. Matt. xxiv. 38. It seems to be intentionally chosen as a σκληρὸς λόγος. It means something more than mere φαγεῖν. Etymologically it is connected with τρύω and τρώω, to pierce. Properly it is not applied to food prepared by man; and it signifies the eager appetite with which animals fix on their food and even devour it. Cp. the words of Christ concerning Christians as compared to birds of prey—eagles—hastening to their food (Matt. xxiv. 28. Luke xvii. 37). It may be intended to show the need of coming to Christ in the Holy Communion with spiritual hunger and with devout cravings and earnest longings and yearnings of a famished soul for heavenly food. Cp. on xiii. 18.

55. ἡ γὰρ σάρξ μου ἀληθῶς ἐστι βρῶσις] Being the flesh of Him Who is God,—not that Christ's flesh has been changed into the nature of God. No; but as iron when heated retains the nature of iron, and exercises the energy of fire, so His flesh remains flesh and vivifies us,—being the flesh of Him Who is God. (Theoph.)

We are called members of Christ because we receive the Son Himself into us, in the Holy Communion. His Blood is the Blood of Him Who is the Life. (Cyril.) — ἀληθῶς] Some MSS. (e. g. B, C, D, K, L, T) have ἀληθής here, but the preponderance of authority is for ἀληθῶς.

56. ὁ τρώγων μου τὴν σάρκα] Observe the position of the pronoun μου, in both cases it is emphatic.—'The flesh of Me, Who am God, and by My Divine Power quicken whom I will.'

This is to eat that food and drink that drink, viz. to dwell in Christ. He who does not dwell in Christ, nor Christ in him, without doubt neither eats His flesh nor drinks His blood, but rather eats and drinks to his own condemnation the Sacrament of so great a thing. (Aug. Cp. the MSS. collations p. 1987, and p. lxxvii. on the words from Aug. in our 29th Article.)

These words of our Lord are to be referred to the Holy Eucharist, in which we partake of the body and blood of Christ. (Chrys.)

Our Lord taught us by these mystical words to be in His body under Himself the Head, eating His flesh, not forsaking His Unity. But many who were present did not understand His meaning, and were offended; for they thought of nothing but the flesh, which they themselves were (i. e. they received His words carnally, being themselves carnal). But the Apostle tells us, to be carnally minded is death (Rom. viii. 6). Therefore we ought not to taste Christ's flesh carnally, as some did who said (v. 60), "This is a hard saying; who can hear it?" (Aug.) and He therefore replied to them in v. 62.

59. Καφαρναούμ] 'villa consolationis' (see Matt. iv. 13),—a fit place for this discourse on those benefits which by His precious blood-shedding He has obtained to us, and on those holy "mysteries which He has instituted as pledges of His love, and for a continual remembrance of His death, to our great and endless comfort."

60. σκληρός ἐστιν οὗτος ὁ λόγος] Yes, a hard saying to those who are hard; incredible to the incredulous. (Aug. Serm. 131.)

Because they had heard Him speak of flesh, they thought He wished to make them eaters of flesh; but we, who understand these words spiritually, are not devourers of flesh, but are spiritualized by this food. (Theophyl.)

ὁ λόγος· τίς δύναται αὐτοῦ ἀκούειν; 61 Εἰδὼς δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἐν ἑαυτῷ, ὅτι γογγύζουσι περὶ τούτου οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ, εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Τοῦτο ὑμᾶς σκανδαλίζει; (ξ) 62 [b] Ἐὰν οὖν θεωρῆτε τὸν Υἱὸν τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἀναβαίνοντα ὅπου ἦν τὸ πρότερον; (οη) 63 [c] Τὸ πνεῦμά ἐστι τὸ ζωοποιοῦν, ἡ σὰρξ οὐκ ὠφελεῖ οὐδέν· τὰ ῥήματα, ἃ ἐγὼ λελάληκα ὑμῖν, πνεῦμά ἐστι καὶ ζωή ἐστιν. (ξα) 64 [d] Ἀλλ' εἰσὶν ἐξ ὑμῶν τινες οἳ οὐ πιστεύουσιν. Ἤιδει γὰρ ἐξ ἀρχῆς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, τίνες εἰσὶν οἱ μὴ πιστεύοντες, καὶ τίς ἐστιν ὁ παραδώσων αὐτόν· (οβ) 65 [e] καὶ ἔλεγε, Διὰ τοῦτο εἴρηκα ὑμῖν, ὅτι οὐδεὶς δύναται ἐλθεῖν πρός με, ἐὰν μὴ ᾖ δεδομένον αὐτῷ ἐκ τοῦ Πατρός μου. (ογ) 66 Ἐκ τούτου πολλοὶ ἀπῆλθον τῶν μαθητῶν αὐτοῦ εἰς τὰ ὀπίσω, καὶ οὐκέτι μετ' αὐτοῦ περιεπάτουν. 67 Εἶπεν οὖν ὁ Ἰησοῦς τοῖς δώδεκα, Μὴ καὶ ὑμεῖς θέλετε ὑπάγειν; (οδ) 68 [f] Ἀπεκρίθη οὖν αὐτῷ Σίμων Πέτρος, Κύριε, πρὸς τίνα ἀπελευσόμεθα; ῥήματα ζωῆς αἰωνίου ἔχεις· 69 [g] καὶ ἡμεῖς πεπιστεύκαμεν καὶ ἐγνώκαμεν, ὅτι σὺ εἶ ὁ Χριστὸς, ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ Θεοῦ τοῦ ζῶντος. (οε) 70 [h] Ἀπεκρίθη αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Οὐκ ἐγὼ ὑμᾶς τοὺς δώδεκα ἐξελεξάμην; καὶ ἐξ ὑμῶν εἷς διάβολός ἐστιν. 71 Ἔλεγε δὲ τὸν Ἰούδαν Σίμωνος Ἰσκαριώτην· οὗτος γὰρ ἤμελλεν αὐτὸν παραδιδόναι, εἷς ὢν ἐκ τῶν δώδεκα.

[b] ch. 3. 13. Mark 16. 19. Luke 24. 51. Acts 1. 9.
[c] Eph. 4. 8. 2 Cor. 3. 6.
[d] ch. 2. 25. & 13. 11.
[e] ver. 44.
[f] Acts 5. 20.
[g] Matt. 16. 16. Mark 8. 29. Luke 9. 20. ch. 11. 27.
[h] Luke 6. 13. ch. 8. 44.

